A little capital

"IF ONLY I had a little capital, look where I might have been to-day!"

Are you going to be one of the men who say that after you have passed middle age, or are you going to be one of those who "got there" because you had that "little capital" when your chance came?

Most big business concerns and large fortunes had small beginnings.

The men who accomplish things are not the idle rich but the ambitious, industrious men, rich or poor.

A little money saved each week and deposited in the Bank of Toronto can be the beginning of your life venture. With the interest it earns it does not take long to accumulate capital sufficient for a start. The more you have for your beginning, the surer is your success.

ONLY TABLETS MARKED "BAYER" ARE ASPIRIN

Not Aspirin at All without the "Bayer Cross"

The name "Bayer" identifies the only genuine Aspirin,—the Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years and now made in Canada.

Always buy an unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" which contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Joint Pains, and Pain generally.

Tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer"

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

When Love Came

By ETTA VERNE LYNDON

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

"I want to see you married and settled down in life before I pass away," spoke old Jared Bliss to his favorite nephew, and the latter looked startled at the suggestion.

By a strange coincidence at almost that very hour Mrs. Walter Morse was talking over affairs with her niece, Elsie Briggs.

"I promised my sister, your mother, when she died," she said, "that you should never need a home. My husband is to represent the firm employing him in far western Canada; meanwhile what are your plans, dear?"

Elsie looked serious, but not distressed. She had been given a sensible, practical bringing up, and had already thought over the future. Mrs. Morse listened indulgently as Elsie spoke of going to the city and earning her own living.

"You two have been so good to me. I must not further burden you," she said. "I am sure I can earn my own way, Aunty."

Mrs. Morse grew very thoughtful. Then, after a long pause, she said: "I would like to see you married, with a good man for a husband and a home of your own," but Elsie shook her head smilingly.

Two evenings later as Elsie sat on the porch Ransom Bliss appeared. He and Elsie had been friendly acquaintances for over a year, and the latter looked puzzled and then embarrassed as Ransom, after some casual conversation, moved his chair closer towards her and said:

"I came on a special mission this evening, Elsie. It is to ask you if you will marry me."

Elsie flushed quickly and her voice was a trifle unsteady as she said, without the least trace of affectation:

"I never expected that you—you—"

"Cared for you, Elsie? Yes. Loved you? No. True affection is too sacred a thing to be named lightly. I am a plain-spoken man. There is no woman whom I more deeply respect and admire, and I would be proud to call you my wife. I will devote my life to make you happy."

Elsie sat with eyes cast down and fluttering secretly at heart. She did not reply on impulse, nor for a long time. Then, evenly enough, she spoke:

"I feel that you have honored me, Mr. Bliss, and I appreciate your clear, honest words. We have always been good friends. I shall be frank with you in turn. You say you do not love me, and I can confess for you nothing deeper than esteem. I am poor, humble, and will soon be homeless. I would not have you later regret that I can be nothing more to you than a loyal, helpful wife, who, however, can never forget that in a measure this would be a marriage of convenience."

And so they were wedded, and, after the death of his uncle, Ransom Bliss and his bride took up their residence at the old family home. They settled down into their new life more like partners than wedded mates. In all things Ransom was considerate and courteous and Elsie was a model housekeeper, and all that respect and thoughtfulness could suggest. Never was there a jar or misunderstanding. Many a time, however, as he looked at the beautiful girl, like himself engaged in reading, Ransom realized that she was possessed of rare womanly qualities, while Elsie, in turn, when alone, sighed drearily, acknowledging his perfection as a man among men, and she was at variance with the compact they had made.

There came an unexpected separation a little later. The presence of Ransom was required in settling up some business of the estate at Abingdon, 24 miles distant. For the first few weeks he came home over Sunday, but finally his absence ran into a full month. Elsie was wretched. An impulse came over her to at least see him. A trolley line ran to a junction half the distance and then joined another line. She reached it about eight o'clock in the evening to wait for the intersection car. From Abingdon there arrived a car branching off and a passenger alighted to wait for a connection. He came into the dimly lighted little station. Elsie recognized him as her husband.

"Why, Elsie!" he spoke in surprise.

"I must tell you the truth," she said. "I was lonely without you. I was going to visit Abingdon, if it was only to see you at a distance."

The man drew a deep breath. "And I," he said in tones that thrilled her, "only sought to look through the window of our home and see if you were well and happy."

"Happier now than I ever have been," she breathed raptly, for his arm had stolen about her waist.

"Elsie," he cried, "can it be possible that we made a mistake in the past?"

"You mean—"

"In deeming that we cared for each other as only casual acquaintances might."

"It has grown into something deeper than that with me," she whispered tenderly.

And the surety of a first and lasting love engulfed the satisfied soul of the lonely man.

MARCH WEATHER DANGEROUS TO BABY

Our Canadian March weather—one day bright, but sloppy, the next blustery and cold—is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mothers to keep the little ones indoors. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against these colds and to keep the baby well till the better, brighter days come along, a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels and thus they relieve colds and simple fevers and keep the baby fit. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Colorado's Wonderland.

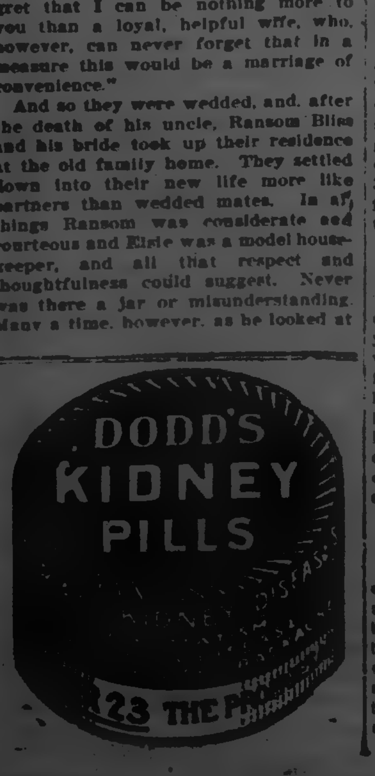
The Garden of the Gods is a tract of land, about 500 acres in extent, near Colorado Springs, Colo. It abounds in weird and fantastic pinnacles of red and white sandstone, some of them more than 300 feet high. Among the chief features are the Cathedral spires, the Balanced rock, etc. The gateway of the garden consists of two enormous masses of red sandstone, 330 feet high, sufficiently far apart for the roadway to pass between them.

Bananas.

The banana is a perennial herbaceous plant, growing from year to year from an underground root stock with a stem or stalk from 10 to 15 feet high above the ground. The plant has drooping leaves, but no branches like fruit trees of the north countries. Each stalk produces one large cluster of fruit. After fruiting, the stalk is cut down to the surface of the ground and grows up again from the root.

The Roman Fare.

The Roman soldiers, who built such wonderful roads and carried a weight of armor and baggage, lived on coarse brown bread and sour wine. They were temperate in diet and regular and constant in exercise. The Spanish peasant works every day and dances half the night, yet eats only black bread, onion and water lemon.



Dangerous Russian Girl Plots Against British And Spreads Bolshevism

THE mischief making possisibilities of the Bolsheviki seem to be endless. These Russian revolutionists are not content to turn things upside down in their own country, but they seem determined to make trouble wherever they can make themselves felt, and they regard both groups of nations in the war as their enemies. In his book on the war, Gen. Ludendorff asserts that it was Joffe, the Bolsheviki representaitve in Berlin after the Teutons made peace in the Soviet Government, who spread abroad the propaganda that undermined Germany, causing the revolution that made necessary the Prussian surrender in November, 1918. With perfect impartiality, the Bolsheviki have also done their best to undermine the structure of the British Empire. Among the most dangerous of their plotters is the woman Bluma Zalzaney, now under arrest in California in connection with conspiracies. Bluma Zalzaney is one of the most notorious of the female Bolshevists. In course of time, she may become as famous as Emma Goldman. She is utterly without scruple, and lacks all sense of the moral values that are common in Anglo-Saxon countries. Those persons who have come in contact with Bluma Zalzaney assert that the young Russian woman strikes one as possessing the low cunning of the half-witted rather than cleverness, and yet there can be no doubt about her ability. Although only nineteen years of age, she is suspected to be the power behind the spreading of Bolsheviki propaganda in San Francisco and up and down the Pacific coast. In addition to her work against the American Government, she is alleged to have been instrumental in the engineering of a conspiracy against the British in India. She is not altogether sympathetic with the nationalistic claims of the discontented Hindus, as the Bolshevists are opposed to the theory of nationalism, but she has made use of the Hindu unrest for her own purposes. Fortunately the conspiracy in which she took an interest was nipped in the bud, and at present the Federal authorities of the United States are looking after the young woman, so that she cannot make further mischief. With her daring, her cunning and her unscrupulousness, Bluma Zalzaney bids fair to win wide recognition as one of the most effective plotters in the campaign for world-wide Bolshevik revolution.

The organization of the General Synod of the Lutheran church.

The first appearance of anthracite coal as an article of commerce.

Elephant Nurses.

In Siam some of the women intrust their children to the care of elephant nurses, and it is said that the trust is never betrayed. The babies play about the huge feet of the elephants, who are very careful never to hurt their little charges.

How Drunk He Was.

Heard in a British law court: Counsel—Was the prisoner sober? Witness—No, sir; he was as drunk as a judge. The Judge—You mean as drunk as a lord! Witness—Yes, my lord!

New Letter Printing Machine.

A new form letter printing machine cuts paper fed from rolls into the proper size, uses three colors of ink when desired and automatically changes the names and addresses for each letter produced.

Palmy Days.

The origin of the phrase, "palmy days" arises from a custom of the ancient Romans. A victorious gladiator received a palm branch as a symbolic reward for his brave deeds.

GUARD AGAINST THE 'FLU

Serious Outbreaks of Influenza all over Canada

GOOD HEALTH IS THE SUREST SAFEGUARD

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brings Vigor and Vitality and Thus Protects Against Disease

There can be no doubt that the situation regarding the spread of Influenza throughout Canada is one of grave concern. It is quite true that the number of cases does not constitute an epidemic such as caused the suffering and sorrow during the terrible days of 1918. Yet there is no disguising the fact that everyone should be on their guard against the disease.

In Montreal alone, from January 20th to February 21st, three thousand, one hundred and twenty-two cases of Influenza and 189 deaths from the disease were reported to the Health Department.

If the outbreak had come at the beginning of the winter instead of the end, we might reasonably feel that the very cold weather would check the spread of the disease. But coming as it has, at the end of the winter, there is grave fear that an epidemic may occur. For spring, with its slush and rain under foot, its dampness and chill, its constant changing from cold to warm and back again, is a prolific source of coughs and colds, pleurisy and pneumonia.

Those who are not as well and strong as they should be; those who are underweight; those who are "run-down" through overwork or sickness; should build up at once. What they need is a Blood-purifier, a body-builder, a strength-giver, like "Fruit-a-tives", the wonderful fruit medicine.

"Fruit-a-tives" regulates the kidneys and bowels, causing these organs to eliminate waste regularly and naturally as nature intended. "Fruit-a-tives" keeps the skin active, and insures an abundant supply of pure, rich blood. "Fruit-a-tives" tones up and strengthens the organs of digestion, sharpens the appetite, brings restful sleep and renews the vitality of the nervous system. "Fruit-a-tives" contains everything that an ideal tonic should have; to purify the blood, to build up strength and vigor, and to regulate the eliminating organs, so that the whole system would be in the best possible condition to resist disease.

Now is the time to build up your health and strength, not only as a precaution against the ravages of Influenza, but also to protect you against "spring fever" and the inevitable reaction which comes with the appearance of warmer weather. Get a box of "Fruit-a-tives" today and let this fruit medicine keep you well.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, trial size 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Famous English Chimneys.

A "twisted chimney" distinguished an Elizabethan manor house in the ancient town of Buckingham, England, which is to be offered for sale shortly, and the auctioneers assert that the secret of this mode of construction is lost, and that the only other "twisted chimney," and that less perfect, is at Hampton Court.

Ostrich a Monogamist.

In the wild state ostriches pair in the spring. Once paired they remain mated "till death doth them part." The female makes a shallow hollow in the ground away from water courses for her nest. During the sitting period the male remains on the nest by night, the female by day.

Stars in a Dream.

To dream of stars is said to have the following meaning: If the stars were clear, Dame Fortune is going to smile upon you, but if they were obscured and dusky, then the reverse may be the case.

To Tell Age of Fish.

Year rings on the scales of fish are used in Norway and France to determine the age of sardines, whether they have reached their full growth and when they will spawn.

Keep Tacks in Jars.

Save all small glass jars. One good use for them is to keep tacks, screws and small nails in. It will save time when looking for a particular kind.

Great Man.

Great men hallow a whole people, and lift up all who live in their time. —Sydney Smith.

Palm Sugar.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound.

A safe, reliable regulating medicine. Sold in three degrees of strength—No. 1, $1; No. 2, $3; No. 3, $5 per box. Sold by all druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Free pamphlet. Address: THE COOK MEDICINE CO., TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Windsor.)

CONSTANTINOPLE.

Constantinople is much less picturesque than it was before the war; yet the extreme charm of the East lingers as persistently about the city as it did in the past, writes anonymously an Allied official of high rank in the Pall Mall Gazette.

"When I stood on the famous bridge over the Golden Horn," he went on, "the incredible diversity of orientals one was wont to see passing was there, but at least 75 per cent. of them were dressed as Europeans. Some no longer even wore the fez.

"A business-like air pervades the principal thoroughfares, not because the Turk himself has suddenly developed high commercial instincts, but owing to the great influx of business men from the Allied and neutral countries.

"All commodities command the most exaggerated prices. Great quantities of goods have, however, begun to arrive, so that prices will soon begin to decline.

"On the other hand, the workers' wages have reached a stupendous figure. The man who before the war would have earned the equivalent of five shillings, at present refuses to do the same work for less than four or five pounds per day. Cabmen reach the supreme height of extortion at Constantinople.

"Shipping is fairly active at the port. Several Allied warships lie in the Bosphorus. The historic Goeben is in the Gulf of Ismit.

"The British are engaged in rebuilding the road to Theraph. It is singularly new and interesting to witness the spectacle of British, French, and Italian troops in the streets; Highlanders in kilts, Royal Italian Carabiniers, and sturdy French poilus marching by with their band.

"The Sultan, of whose impending fate we hear so much nowadays, still goes in state to the Selamlik every Friday. The psychology of the Turks in Constantinople appeared to me to denote indifference, in the sense that they did not seem to care much what political future awaited them. Although the Asia Minor Nationalists were said to be more or less active, there was no evidence of their activities in Constantinople. There the young Turk is at least invisible.

"Of the Germans not one is left, save a few invalids. The former German Hospital has been converted into a British hospital.

"The Robert College, one of the foremost seats of learning in the East, continues to function. The ordinary native system of education also goes on.

"It was rather striking to find the big mosques free from the tourists. The cost of travel coupled with the difficulties associated with passports form a barrier to casual, sight-seeing visitors."

A New Rasputin.

Somebody has said somewhere that butlers, valets and other confidential servants are the most irreverent members of humankind—that great men cease to be great in their eyes, and that the only real democracy is that of the bathtub. If that be so, it would be interesting for the world to know what Mr. Ipak Yen thinks of Lenine. Estimations of the dictator of Soviet Russia rank from the eulogies of those who consider him the greatest of European statesmen to the execrations of those who see in him Beelzebub incarnate. The chances are truth lies somewhere in between, and if ever a human being got a close-up view of this truth it was the above named Mr. Ipak Yen, his barber. According to the London Daily News, Berlin newspapers declare that this Ipak Yen is to-day the most powerful man in Soviet Russia. He is a Chinese of Confucian Buriot, and was formerly a barber's assistant in Blagovestchensk. Also, he was nearly hanged as a spy during the Russo-Japanese war. For two months past Ipak has had working quarters in the Kremlin, and has a palace in Moscow, where he keeps up great state and parades his four Christian wives on Sunday in gilded carriages. The orthodox Communists bitterly criticise Ipak and his ways, and accuse him of having accumulated 3,500,000,000 rubles (nominally $15,000,000) in six months.

The Communist leader Jakolef lately declared: "We have a new Rasputin, who hypnotizes our new czar."

Aerial Bombs.

In the early period of the world war the bombs used by airplanes weighed twenty pounds, but toward the close of the conflict the largest weighed a ton and a half.

A Smithy.

A blacksmith keeps his shop dark because his work with iron demands that he should see the "heat" colors of the metals. This would be difficult in a well-lighted place.

Utilizing Paper.

Although there is a great shortage of paper, it is unlikely that many of us have carried economy to the extent indicated in a letter received by a school teacher the other day. "Dear Sir," it ran, "Please excuse Tom being late, but our gas leaks, so we couldn't cook any breakfast. Please send a man to put it right. P. S.—Please let him take this note on to the plumber."

HAPPY EVENING SPENT

prevailing. There had been unrest amon gthe pupils just as there had been among the adults. Nevertheless, speaking on behalf of the staff, he could say that they were proud of the record made in the last examination. However, examinations were not the only test of successful schooling. The teachers were handicapped in that they could not measure their product in dollars and cents as the artisans could. It was the teachers' object to set before the pupils high ideals, and to help them in the formation of character; the habits of punctuality, obedience and respect for constituted authority. The last named was badly needed in the world today. He then presented the diplomas to the following pupils:

Victory Loan Medals.

To Mr. W. H. Bradburn, chairman of the Peterborough Victory Loan Comittee, fell the honor of presenting medals to the six successful contestants in the Victory Loan essay competition. He explained that the Victory Loan Committee of Ontario had presented six medals to the school for Victory Loan essays. Two hedals went to the upper school of fifth form, two to the midide school or third and fourth forms, and two to the lower school, or first and second forms.

Jean Elliott.

Middle School: Arthur McClure, Doris Clegg.

Junior School: Ruth Sharpe, Ernest Legon.

Rev. F. A. Malott.

Rev. F. A. Malott, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, t wohom was given the honor of presenting the Commercial diplomas, prefaced this with an address on "efficiency." He stated that there was no provision that we could make that would be too good for the children. Splendid provisions were indeed made today. He asked the audience to thing of the lack of this provision in former days. He felt that the youth of today had before them a great opportunity. Grey, in his "Elegy in a Country Churchyard," had written of those who never had the opportunity to become anything, but that colud not be said of the youth of today, in a city like Peterborough with schools second to none.

It was one thing to have the opportuntiy, but it was another thing whether or not the youth of today made correct use of that opportunity Iffindeed, many were not taking advantage of the chances put before them. Efficiency was what every business man wanted from every employe It was wanted in every profession Many here tonight, he said, were just at that stage where they could learn the lesson of thoroughness, of doing something so well that they would be wanted.. "Why is ther eso much inefficiency?" asked Mr. Malott. It was because the habits of thoroughness were not formed early enough School subjects, such as Latin, Greek and Algebra, were just difficult enough to give habits of mastering a thing and being thorough. Then again, another reason was becase too little time was spent in stdying the line of work undertaken. The tendency was to cut short the period of preparation in the belief that getting out into the world presented a better chance than remaining at school

Three things went to make efficiency. They were physical condition training and character. Efficiency could not be obtaned if physica powers were wasted in dissipation. There was a tendency in our day to dissipation in all sorts of life and to take too much time out of the hours appointed by God and nature for sleep.

Nine-tenths of all the failures ir life were failures in character. They began with moral breakdown. tI was not lack of ability bt a failre of the principles so essential to man's relation to man. The world today requir ed men and women of character. A well-trained character would start any young man or woman properly on the road of life. If these three points were kept in mind the speaker could predict success in the battle of life.

Athletic Prizes

Mr. L. M. Richardson, B. A., a teacher at the Collegiate Institute and honorary president of the Boys' Athletic Associaiton, undertook to present the prizes won on the Collegiate Field Day October 15, 1919. In a short speech, he made reference to the part played in Grecian and Roman history by athletics. He would not mention athletics with reference to Peterborough, as that would introduce hockey and with hockey would naturally come Kingston. Therefore he confined his remarks to athletics, as far as they concerned the Collegiate Institute. It had been asserted in some quarters tha athletics were dead or dying at the P. C. I., but this was not so. On the other hand there had been great activity in this line. The Girls' Athletic Association had been responsible for inaugurating uniforms for the school. When Belleville visited here recently, the girls supplied both teams with tea. They had organized a basket ball team and had already played Cobourg in Peterborough and would play them in Cobourg tomorrow.

The boys' field day last Fall had been very successful, but there had been one fault. There were too few boys taking part in the events. However, this had been remedied and the result would be different the next field day. A rugby team had been organized but the location of Peterboorugh made it difficult to challenge teams from other collegiates. Travelling expenses were heavy and he would be glad if any suggestion could be made as to a means of raising funds to defray such expenses..

The Prizes

In presenting the prizes, Mr. Richardson explained that the Staff Cup was donated by the staff for annual competition as also was the H. S. McDonald Cup. The following received prizes for the field day sports:

Staff Cup: William Mowat.

Senior Championship Medal: William Mowat.

The H. S. McDonald Cup: Alfred Johnston.

Junior Championship Medal. Alfred Johnston.

Winners of First Place in One or More Events: Herman Hunter, Jack Porteous, Fred. Green, Graham Eastwood, Douglas Shortly, Elwood McBrien, Allan Stevenson, Fred Brooks Karl Kirn, Gregg Roberts, Eric Roberts and

Nicholls Scholarship

The Nicholls scholarships were presented by Mr. G.O. Cameron, chairman committee on appointments, Board of Education. His appearance on the platform was the signal for loud applause, which was repeated from time to time during a short and humorous address. He drew attention to the wonderful record of Miss Isabel Baird who has a long list of prizes and scholarships won from the entrance examinations right through to the faculty entrance. He also commented on the good work of Miss Stinson, who won the lower school scholarship last year and the middle school this year. The Nicholl's scholarships were presented as follows:

Honour Matriculation—$20.00 Helen Sloggett.

Pass Matriculation, $15.00 — Jean Elliot.

Middle School Normal Entrance, $15—Madeline Stinson.

Lower School Normal Entrance, $10—Douglas Shortly.

Musical Program

This program opened with a chorus from the Collegiate Girls' Glee Club. "Land of Hope and Glory." It was a grand start, and the audience applauded loudly. A piano solo was rendered with wonderful touch and expression by Mr. Otto Gliddon, who was encored. "In Flanders' Fields," by Mr. Douglas Carlisle, was greatly appreciated. Mr. Carlisle has a splendid baritone voice, and the fact that he was compelled to return to the platform, showed that the audience was not slow to recognize this.

Two delightful piano solos were also rendered by Miss Agnes Logan. The Teachers' Guild Glee Club chorus made a very good impression and the program was concluded by a valedictory address by Miss Isabel Baird in which she described her feelings on leaving the Collegiate and ventured a few suggestions as to improvements including a gymnasium and an honor roll for those who well overseas.

Cure That Cold
Don't Get Grippe

Take them at once when you feel the first pain or shiver—the first symptom of a cold.

Taken then, they will prevent the Grippe. Taken after it has developed there is nothing better for the pain and fever.

THE PIGS SQUEAL AND THE REST

The squeal is not the only thing which is lost when a hog becomes pork. Tests at one of the largest Canadian packing plants, made within the past month, show that over 41 pounds, or about 22½ per cent. of the live weight of each hog bought on the farm is of no value to the abattoir.

The tests made with 4,135 hogs gave the following results:

	Total Weight Lbs.	Average Per Hog Lbs.
Weight of meats	475,961	113.00
Hair cleaned	3,138	.75
Edible fat	35,857	8.57
Tongues	2,498	.59
Livers	8,943	2.14
Hearts	1,826	.43
Kidneys	1,654	.40
Head meat and pork trimmings	24,343	5.81
Heads trimmed	7,055	1.68
Casings, weasand, etc	837	.20
Grease	10,571	1.31
Fertilizer:
Tankage and stick	25,286	6.04
Blood, dry	8,370	2.00
	606,239	142.82
Loss, waste	166,421	41.18
	772,660	184.00

Put in another form, 22½ cents out of every dollar paid for the live animal is for material which is waste.

There were slaughtered at Canadian inspected packing plants last year approximately 2,333,000 hogs. A waste of 41 pounds per hog, therefore amounts approximately to 95,650,000 pounds.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a table spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

WAS AFRAID TO GO TO SLEEP AT NIGHT

WAS ALMOST DESPERATE FORM ILL HEALTH, BUT FEELS FINE SINCE TAKING TANLAC.

"I am just so happy over what Tanlac has done for me that I can't find words to express my gratitude," was the statement made recently by Mrs. John O'Neil, who lives on Victoria Road, Sydney, Nova Scotia.

"For three years I had been troubled with indigestion so bad that I thought I would have to give up entirely," she continued. "After nearly every meal the pains in my stomach and across my chest would almost draw me double, and I would bloat up with gas until I simply had to fight for breath and my heart palpitated something awful. Night after night I sat up in bed afraid to go to sleep, and often I would have to get up and walk the floor to keep from choking. I felt so weak and had so little energy that my housework was a burden, life was no pleasure and I worried so much all the time that I was almost desperate.

"When I began taking Tanlac I had already taken so many medicines that did me no good at all that I had but little faith in anything. But I quickly changed my mind, because I started to improve in almost no time after I began taking it. I took five bottles in all and today I am in better health than I have been in many years. I can eat just anything I want now and digest it perfectly. The gas does not trouble me any more and I never have a pain of any kind. As my breathing is free and easy I am no longer afraid to go to sleep at night and I fall asleep just as soon as I go to bed and never wake up till morning, and when I get up I am full of life and energy. At times it seems so wonderful, the way Tanlac has built me up, that I can hardly realize myself what perfect health I am enjoying.

GRANITES AND KITCHENER TIES

In one of the greatest battles ever played on Toronto ice Kitchener and the Granites tied after 90 minutes of fast hockey. Time was called with the score 4 all. They will renew the struggle for the senior O. H. A. championship next week. The line-up:

HOCKEY THIS MORNING

Grove, Lakefield hockey team, defeated St. Luke's this morning in a fast game at the Brock street rink Grove showed their superiority from the start and held the initial lead in every period, gradually increasing it until they won by a final score of 12-6. Despite this decisive victory the game was hard-fought from beginning to end, the locals making a good showing considering all things.

The line-up was as follows:

St. Luke's—Goal, D. Hayes; defence, Davidson and Curtis; centre, E. Manice; forwards, Legon and G. Manice; subs., Lipsett.

Grove—Goal, Bleeker; defence, Hamilton and Sjostrom; centre, McKenzie; forwards, Hamilton and Barnard.

TWO WEEKS' SERVICES

Rev. Walter E. Millson, of London, Will Assist.

Special evangelistic services will be held at George Street Methodist Church during the coming two weeks. These have been in progress for the past week in charge of the pastor, Rev. A. J. Thomas. They have been largely attended, splendid interest being evinced.

Beginning tomorrow, the Rev. Walter E. Millson, preacher and singer, of London, Ont., will assist in these services. Rev. Mr. Millson is one of the field secretaries of the Methodist Church, and is well known for his evangelistic ability and zeal. These meetings are open to everyone and it is hoped that many will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing Mr. Millson as often as possible. Their aim is the deepening of the spiritual life of the community. Services will be held every night except Saturday, beginning at 7.45 p.m. A chorus choir will also be in attendance each evening.

Services will be held tomorrow as usual at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Rev. A. J. Thomas will preach at the morning service, taking as his theme, "A Question Which Divided a Multitude." Rev. W. E. Millson will preach at the evening service on the subject, "God's Plan and Our Response." A cordial invitation is extended to strangers and visitors.

LOCAL MARKET TODAY

Sickness, bad roads and the cold weather were contributory causes to an exceptionally small market this morning. The outside market practicaly did not exist at all, and the inside market was not very much larger. As a result, dairy prices showed a slight increase and were firm, there being no second prices in either eggs or butter. Prices corrected to date are as follows:

Dairy Produce
Butter, pound,	70c.
Eggs, dozen,	75c.
Chickens, lb,	35c and 40.
Meat
Pork, pound,	27c and 29.
Beef, pound,	18c and 21c.
Lamb, pound,	32c and 35c.
Garden Produce
Potatoes, bag,	$4 straight.
Turnips, bag,	51.
Carrots, peck,	40c.
Parsnips, peck,	40c.
Beets, peck,	40c.
Onions, peck,	$1.25 and $1.35.
White beans, quart,	25c.
Cabbage, per head,	15c to 30c.
Apples, peck,	90c.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, steaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful aperance and attractiveness. Bu darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

FINLAND ATTACKED.

Bolsheviki Bombard Finnish Positions with Heavy Artillery.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 6. — Bolsheviki have begun a new attack on Finland, a Central News correspondent at Helsingfors reports. After heavy artillery bombardment on Wednesday they attached the Finnish positions at Sutjervi.

NORTH-WEST NEWS IN BRIEF

Winnipeg, Man. March 6.—Sir Jas. Aikins, Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, himself a Methodist has donated $1,000 to the Presbyterian Forward Movement fund. This is in addition to $2,000 which already he had donated to the same fund in his own denomination.

Regina, Sask., March 6—This session of the Legislature has given consent to amendments to the Infants Act, under which the custody of the children up to the age of fifteen is vested in the mother, and after that age in the father, with provisions for the judge outsting the right of either in favor of the other for cause.

Vancouver, B. C., March 6.—F. W. Wade, agent-general for British Columbia in Great Britain, is home on a two months' vacation. "The prejudice that existed against the wooden house in England now has been entirely removed " said Mr. Wade.

Calgary, Alta, March 6.—The Prince of Wales has consented to act as patron of the Calgary Industrial Exhibition.

Winnipeg, Man., March 6.—The Imperial Parliament may discuss the case of R. B. Russell, strike leader who is now serving a two years' sentence, having been convicted of seditious conspiracy. COLLINGWOOD GETS LEAD IN KINGSTON

NORTHENERS BEAT LIMESTONE CITY 2-1 IN O.H.A. INTERMEDIATE FINAL

Kingston, Ont., March 6.—Kingston received a "hefty" bump last night when Collingwood took the first of the O.H.A. intermediate final games by 2 to 1. The play was pretty close all the way, but team work won for the visitors. Kingston failed to make its usual third period rally.

After eighteen minutes' play in the first period Walton of Collingwood slipped one past Toban. That was the only goal scored until the third period, when Foulis scored Collingwood's second goal. Just before the finish Smith scored Kingston's only goal. The visitors are a heavier team than the locals, and on last night's performance are a better team. Cook of Kingston was twice knocked out, and the last time had to be carried off. There were few penalties. The return game is to be played in Collingwood on Monday night. The teams:

Collingwood—Goal, Cooke; defence, McLeod and Noble; centre, Hughes; wings, Fryer and Walton. Spares—Burns and Foulis.

His Death Expected

New Brunswick Man Saved

Mr. Isidore Thomas, of Tilley's Road, Gloucester County, N.B., while expecting death, availed himself of help that was offered at random. Here is part of a letter he wrote to us:—

"I beg you to publish my letter, so that people may know what Gin Pills did for me. My case was very serious. I was so sick everybody expected my death any day. Finally, on advice from friends, I tried Gin Pills, and in a short time was well again, and soon had gained 20 pounds."

Kidney and bladder troubles, very often, work in secret ways. A bad condition may exist, with only a backache to indicate it. That is why the slightest pains in back or sides should be investigated. These pains, along with sciatic neuralgia, rheumatism, dizziness, constipation, lassitude, lumbago, highly-colored urine, headache, floating specks before the eyes, gravel, indicate kidney trouble. A course of Gin Pills, taken at once, will give relief, and prevent the progress of the disease, enabling the organs to right themselves and restore good health. Gin Pills are the safe, quick remedy. Get a box from your druggist or dealer—50c. Money refunded if no relief found. Send for free sample.

P. C. I. VS. COBOURG IN BASKETBALL

A team from the Peterborough Collegiate Institute left today for Cobourg to battle against the Cobourg Collegiate Institute for basketball honors. During the past few weeks the local team has been getting in a lot of hard practice and it is thought by the team's supporters that they will experience no difficulty in bringing home a victory. The team is made up as follows: Green, Kim, Young, Elliott, Shortly and McLaren. The recently organized girls' basketball team has also gone to Cobourg with equally ambitious intentions. Since their organization the girls has made a very good showing and there is no reason to think that today will be an exception.

PALE, WAN CHEEKS A SIGN OF ANAEMIA

TO HAVE GOOD COLOR AND HEALTH THE BLOOD MUST BE KEPT RED AND PURE.

Many women who had good color and bright eyes in their girlhood grow pale and colorless and lose much of their charm when they become wives and mothers. Why is it? When the fading color in the cheeks and lips is accompanied by a loss of brightness in the eyes and an increasing heaviness in the step and a tendency to tire easily, the cause is to be sought in the state of the blood.

Many causes may contribute to the condition of the blood known as anaemia. Care of the home, overwork, lack of outdoor exercise, insufficient rest and sleep, improper diet, are a few of them. The important thing is to restore the blood, to build it up so that the color will return to the cheeks and lips, brightness to the eyes, and lightness to the step. To do this, nothing can equal Dr. Williams Pink Pills. They begin at once to increase the red corpuscles in the blood, and this new blood carries strength and health to every part of the body. The appetite improves, digestion becomes perfect, and energy and ambition return. Proof is given in the statement of Mrs. Alex Archambo, Cornwall, Ont., who says:—"Two years ago my health began to fail. I was suffering from headaches, pains in the back and sides, and a constant tired out feeling. I had used a lot of medicine, but instead of it helping me I seemed to be growing weaker. My friends urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and while I felt disheartened at my experience with other medicines, I decided to do so. To my great joy I soon found the pills were helping me, and their continued use for a time fully restored my health. I feel that I would be ungrateful if I did not give my experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, in the hope that it may point the way to health to some other poor sufferer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained through any medicine dealer, or may be had by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

STORM KING AGAIN VISITS NEW YORK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, March 6.—The storm king paid another unwelcome visit to this city today, just as it was commencing to recover from the effects of a five-million-dollar blizzard of a month ago, and within twelve hours the metropolis struggled with pelting rain, a driving sleet storm and a biting snow squall. The temperature dropped steadily during the night, the wind increasing in velocity until during the early morning hours it had reached an unofficial velocity of sixty miles an hour, which boded ill for shipping off the coast. Rail and water transportation was seriously disrupted.

Movie fans will have their opportunity to see how a "regular" girl behaves when Selznick Pictures present Elsie Janis in "A Regular Girl" at the Empire Theatre on Monday. Miss Janis, it will be remembered, forsook the stage and all its munificent earnings to go overseas to entertain her pals of the A.E.F. Her appearance at the Empire Theatre marks her first public bow in two years and no efforts have been spared to surround the popular comedienne with a story well calculated to exploit her versatile talents.

True-to-Life Story.

"A Regular Girl" is said to be one of the most entertaining photoplays produced in several months. The authors of the story—Frances Marion and Edmund Goulding—have taken a typical American girl, full of fun and ginger, and placed her in the centre of a timely plot which deals with the problems and difficulties arising from her determination to land jobs for returned soldiers and aid them in finding "wives to match."

There are many novelty scenes throughout the picture, including those which show an entire circus in full blast, a trip through Coney Island's Luna Park a party on board the yacht "Oneida" and the inner circles of one of New York's "swell" boarding houses.

The characters in the play are picked from the stage of life itself. There are moments of tender heart appeal, interspersed with the inimitable clowning for which Elsie Janis has sole rights.

Miss Janis' acting is not confined to the commonplace make believe found in many pictures. What are known in the studios as "persons' liberties" have been accorded the celebrated comedienne, resulting in a swiftly-moving comedy-drama that affords the star unusual opportunities for the display of her own original talents.

"LISTEN LESTER" AT THE GRAND

From the moment the curtain rises on this play all notice of time ceases amid the delightful whirl and attractive happenings exposed. By reason of the number of events which occupy the attention of the spectator he would suppose that there was no end to the length of time the performance takes to fully unfold, but so swiftly do the events follow on the heels of the other, that it seems not more than an hour all told, from the first curtain to the final one. It has all to do with a certain live wire called Arbutus Quilty, and the efforts of a Colonel Dodge to extricate himself from the clutches of the afore mentioned lady, with several love letters thrown in for good measure and comedy and beauty galore. There is dancing and singing, an entertaining story, laugh-splitting specialties, exquisite scenery and the original cast which includes Mayme Gehrue, Jean Thomas, Mirian Folger, Cecil Williams, Ann Ott, Florence De Barr, Frances Anderson, Florida Bellaire, William Seelery, Joseph Mack, William Wayne, Gus Shy, John L. Lyons, Murray Hart, Mark Thompson and Andrew Leigh.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

Do Women Read Newspaper Advertising

- Since Women do over 80 per cent of the Retail buying that is done, Advertisers are constantly investigating the Appeal which Advertising mediums exert upon Women. This fact is continually before manufactures in every line, and recently the Bureau of Investigation was asked to conduct an investigation to show how much Underwear for Men was bought by Women, so that the manufacturer who made the request could write his advertisements accordingly.
- Many investigations have been made by Women's Clubs, Merchants' Organizations, Statistical Bureaus, and the like, but while these inquiries invariably show that Women are more influenced by Newspaper Advertising that by any other kind, they are inconclusive because of the high percentage of non-commital or unsatisfactory replies.
- The question broadly answers itself in that Women do most of the buying, and Newspapers carry far more Advertising than other mediums combined.

Ancient Honduran City.

Copan is an ancient ruined city of northwestern Honduras, on the Copan river. The remains are of unknown antiquity and very extensive, stretching for about two miles along the river. The buildings are of stone, embracing a temple over 600 feet long, with many sculptured figures. The Copan ruins take their name from a modern town to the east of them. This was an Indian stronghold, and was taken after a fierce struggle by the Spaniards under Hermando de Chaves in 1530.

Rather Ominous.

Among the presents given to a rural bride was one from an old lady in the neighborhood with whom the bride and the groom were prime favorites. Some years before the old lady had accumulated a number of cardboard mottoes, which she worked and framed as occasion arose.

In cheerful blues and reds, suspended by a cord of the same colors, over the table on which the other presents were gathered, hung this motto:

"Fight On; Fight Ever."

History of the Melon.

Melons were first extensively cultivated in France early in the seventeenth century, but were known to the ancients from the commencement of our era. The Egyptians grew them. They are said to have been carried to America by the Portuguese.

Making Billiard Balls.

Experience has shown in the making of billiard balls that, as it dries, ivory shrinks, so they are turned in the rough and kept in a warm room for a long time—sometimes two years. Then after shrinking they are turned again.

At Odd Purposes

By BELVA M. THORNE

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

Martin Wolcott, bachelor, moved from Lisle to Clyde because he was in debt. Mrs. Althea Burrows, widow, remained in the latter town for the same reason. The coincidental similarity as to motive and environment went still further. Both were regarded as above the average as to wealth or the prospect of it. A third circumstance in this chain of sequence was the fact that Judge Alward Marsh, who had been Mrs. Burrows' attorney for ten years, became likewise the legal adviser of Mr. Wolcott.

Now neither of the two named made any pretense to the merest graze with opulence. Neither was over thirty and both were healthy, accreditable and good looking. Common rumor had it, however, that the fair widow had inherited a gold mine out West that might at any time open its vast store of wealth. When Mr. Wolcott came to Clyde there followed him the report that when a certain lawsuit he had been fighting for five years was decided, he would become the recipient of a royal fortune.

The facts were really these: The alleged mine had never produced so much as an ounce of the precious metal, and Mrs. Burrows had leased the fifty acres involved for grazing purposes at barely enough to meet taxes and water right installments. As to the lawsuit, Wolcott had expended nearly all he had in legal fees and had hopelessly abandoned any anticipations of success in winning it.

As said, Wolcott had come to Clyde because he was in debt. Not that his Lisle creditors were manifesting any collection pressure, for he was a favorite with everybody, but, finding himself growing poorer and poorer, he resolved to get down to real work. He was a specialist in cattle diseases, and Clyde was the center of a large rich farming district.

It was at the office of Judge Marsh one day that Martin Wolcott met the charming widow. The observing old jurist's eyes twinkled as he sensed a mutual liking established between the two. It got to be so that Wolcott became a weekly visitor at the Burrows home. They were vastly pleased with each other and the prospective match met with the approval of their friends.

Mrs. Burrows had made some inquiry regarding Mr. Wolcott. It was to receive exaggerated intelligence as to the wonderful lawsuit that would place him so high above her in the way of wealth that her heart failed her. Wolcott did the same thing. He became despondent and hopeless when he heard about the undeveloped Golconda in the Rockies which would make of Mrs. Burrows a social queen, who would naturally disdain the attentions of a poor and obscure individual like himself.

Wolcott began to curtail his calls upon Mrs. Burrows and the latter influenced by this and a realization of the vast gulf between them, tried to root out the love that might bring only disappointment and sorrow. They had not seen one another for two weeks, when they came face to face in the office of Judge Marsh. Each acted as if their relations were strained. The judge was not in evidence, but they decided to wait for him. A quick tenderness permeated the sensitive heart of the sympathetic widow as she noticed that Wolcott looked thin and worried.

"You do not seem as well as when last saw you, Mr. Wolcott," she said.

"That is because I haven't seen so much of you," replied Wolcott gallantly.

"Is not that your own fault?" softly intimated the blushing widow. "Surely you have been always welcome at my home."

"I have met with such kindly consideration," answered Wolcott in unsteady tones, "that I dared not continue my visits because I foresaw that it could end only in banishment."

"How strangely you speak," she uttered.

"Mrs. Burrows, I am a plain man," said Wolcott seriously. "It will be no news to you to know that you are to me the one woman in the world I respect, admire and cherish. It is only recently that I learned of your prospects of fortune. A poor man, I dared not presume that you would look upon me as your equal."

"Why, Mr. Wolcott," exclaimed Mrs. Burrows, "who ever gave you such a ridiculous idea. A poor man? It was when I learned of your coming wealth that I felt that I could never hope that is—"

"Poor man, poor woman," interrupted Judge Marsh, bursting into the room radiant. "Mr. Wolcott, you have said enough to divest the situation of any misconception. Mrs. Burrows, you are too sensible a woman to resent an old friend like myself saying that there is no possible barrier of inequality, socially or as to wealth, between you two. I sent for both of you to report that the people at the other end of the lawsuit are willing to compromise for fifty thousand dollars, and that they have discovered gold at the mine and it promises a fortune. Be happy, my children," laughed the old jurist gleefully, and he waved himself from the room, and when he returned half an hour later the glowing faces of his clients told him that there would soon be a wedding.

The Tramp Once More.

Itinerant hawkers, street "tricksters" and the vagrant class are on the increase. Rowton houses are full. Masters of casual wards in different parts of England are reporting a plentiful crop of "hoboes" for whom they provide lodging. And so it would appear that the war has been no more successful in driving the tramp from the roads than that "all-sweeping besom of societarian reformation" of which Lamb so much disapproved. There are tramps and tramps, of course; there is the tramp from choice and the tramp from hard necessity, but whether he takes to the road or is forced on to it he may in either case be peer or pauper. The call of the road is heard and the response comes as delightedly from silk and satin as cotton and rags. Its lure is a good deal more primitive than class, though productive of varieties among its brotherhood. The after-war tramp is one of them. He has his own characteristics, being described often as an unlicensed hawker of worthless articles, a fellow living by his wits, as in fact, maybe he is maligned, a worthless imitation of the old hawker whose tray was a legitimate blessing of the country-side. But even the 1920 variety of the ancient brotherhood may produce tramps—and tramps.

A Jewish Ship In Commission.

Once more a merchant ship from Palestine is plying the Mediterranean, touching at Tyre and Sidon, at Haifa and Jaffa and Gaza. From her masthead flies the blue-white flag of Zion. The Hecholutz, which being translated means "Pioneer," recently launched at Jaffa, is the first of a Jewish fleet of merchantmen, owned and named by Jews, which the Zionist Organization of America hopes soon to see engaged in a lively coastwise trade as were the galleys of the Phœnicians, with their squat sails and many rowers, in the days of the glory of Tyre and Sidon. By means of a Palestine restoration fund of $10,000,000 planned for, the organization hopes to improve the harbor of Haifa and make that city the most important city of all the Near East with commercial and maritime prosperity.

Something About Sneezing

A JOKE is a joke and a sneeze is a sneeze, but a sneeze is not a joke, as a rule, though the dictionary, somewhat mechanically and facetiously, says that it is "the convulsive motion and explosive sound attendant upon the ejection of air through the nose or mouth." This may be true, through I have little faith in dictionaries.

A great many people, when they sneeze, are like Mrs. Sparrit. You have forgotten who Mrs. Sparrit was? Tut, tut! turn to your "Hard Times" by a somewhat celebrated author, Charles Dickens, and read: "Mrs. Sparrit with a violent cold upon her, and her stately frame so racked by continual sneezes that it seemed in danger of dismemberment." Mrs. Sparrit's condition at the moment was certainly no joke, and we have all probably been in the same condition at some time or other.

The—or a—sneeze has an interesting history. From the time of Adam to the days of Jacob sneezing was a divine sign of death, but Jacob, by making sacrifice and prayers, succeeded in changing it to a sign of life. From Jacob's day you may have noticed that all babies have sneezed on coming into the world.

The first man that sneezed was so surprised that he couldn't understand what was happening, and straightway went and insured his life. Our ancestors were equally alarmed and astonished by their sneezes, and when gradually the idea of spirits and gods and devils developed to account for mysteries, naturally the sneeze came in for its share of superstitious explanation.

One of the loudest sneezes recorded by history was delivered by Timotheus the Athenian. He and his fleet were just putting out to sea on a hazardous expedition when he sneezed so heartily and loudly that it startled the entire fleet. The sailors took the sneeze as a bad omen and demanded that he instantly return to port. Timotheus, however, rose up and spoke thusly: "And do you wonder, O Athenians, that amongst so many there should be one with a cold in his head?" These grave words restored the shattered confidence of the sailors and they sailed off to victory without more ado.

Then there is the famous sneeze of Xenophon. This sneeze decided the fate of Athens. There came a moment in one of his wars when his soldiers were wavering. Suddenly one of his soldiers sneezed loudly—extremely loudly. The idea was promptly spread by some ingenious officer that the gods had employed the sneezing soldier's nose as a trumpet wherewith to sound the blast of victory. Inspired by the idea, the army made up its mind to do or die, and so saved Athens.

Eastern legends would have us believe that in the place of everlasting fire sits a judge who keeps a book in which the names of all mortals are written. Every day he turns one page and this settles what mortals are to come into his presence for judgment. As the leaf is turned each of the chosen ones sneezes.

In ancient Greece the sneeze was greeted with "Jove preserve thee!" In Italy with "Felicite!" In Germany with "Gesundheit!" In France with "Bonne Sante!" In England with "God bless you!" and in this country generally with "Oh! stop it!"

In England the north country folks have a rhyme which runs:

Sneeze on a Monday, sneeze for danger!
Sneeze on a Tuesday, kiss a stranger!
Sneeze on a Wednesday, sneeze for a letter!
Sneeze on a Thursday, you'll get something better!
Sneeze on a Friday, you sneeze for sorrow!
Sneeze on a Saturday, love comes on the morrow!
Sneeze on a Sunday, you'd best safety seek,
The devil will have you the rest of the week!

This little ditty has not yet been set to music, although a sneezing sarabande might well be developed out of the interesting lyric.

There are times to sneeze and times not to sneeze. Aristotle believed that a sneeze in the morning was a good augury, but in the afternoon a bad augury. If the ancients sneezed when they were going on a fasting journey they promptly went back to bed. They considered the moment was not propitious for rising. If a Hindoo sneezes while he is bathing in the Ganges and before his prayers are finished he begins to say them all over again from the beginning. Some people say that one sneeze brings good luck and a double or treble sneeze bad luck. But there is certainly a time to sneeze and a time not to sneeze. The most awful time to sneeze is when making a proposal of marriage to a lady. A whole volume of fiction was once fashioned out of the idea that the hero sneezed half way through his proposal. In consequence he lost his opportunity and never recovered it.

I have said that a sneeze is no joke. It isn't, but it may lead to hilarity. Such occasions do occur. It was only the other day that some one said to me in an extremely rude tone of voice, "Oh! I can keep my eyes open." At that moment he sneezed. This gave me my opportunity for a splendid repartee. I replied on the instant, "Yes, and if at the same time you kept your mouth shut you'd be perfect!"—La Touche Hancock.

COSTLY FLYING.

Uncle Sam's Aviation During War an Expensive Joke.

In the report of the United States sub-committee on aviation of the Special House Committee appointed to investigate the cost of the war, made public recently, were these outstanding assertions:

During the 19 months of war, the War Department spent $1,051,000,000 on aviation, but sent to the front only 213 "clumsy, utterly dangerous" De Haviland-four observation planes.

Secretary Baker and Director Ryan are charged with "full knowledge of the defective and dangerous character of the De Haviland plane, 4,000 of which were built at a cost of $50,000,000, but few of which got overseas.

The War Department spent $23,000,000 on Bristol and Standards J. machines, which later "were scrapped as worthless."

Col. E. A. Deeds, in charge of airplane production up to January, 1918, "should have been court-martialled, as recommended by Judge Hughes."

A close "association" existed between Director Ryan and the Siems-Carey-Kerbaugh Corporation of New York, which had $30,000,000 in contracts.

Col. B. P. Disque, in charge of spruce production, "illegally spent" $1,500,000 of Government funds, and, according to the committee's expert accountant, "wasted more than $30,000,000, as based on the contract price of spruce, as produced in 1918."

When the Compass "Goes Mad."

Certain deviations from fact occur in the action of the compass in a rapidly-moving airplane, which at first sight seem to indicate that the instrument has "gone mad" or "lost its magnetism," writes C. H. Claudy in Popular Mechanics. It is, therefore, highly important for the pilot who must at some time depend upon his compass to know when it is telling the truth, and when it is misleading him.

Obviously a properly mounted compass, properly compensated, and not affected by engine vibration, will when used in a plain flying straight ahead on a level tell the truth as to direction. But if a plane be flying from south to north and turn suddenly to the right with a steep bank, the needle, instead of remaining pointed toward the magnetic north, will also turn to the right. If the aviator trusts his compass here he will be seen to be turning to the left. If a similar turn is made to the left from a south-north direction, the needle will not indicate it, and when the half turn is completed and the aviator is pointing his plane due west, the needle will show him going to the north. If the airplane is caught in an eddy, and be compelled to turn and dodge and twist to balance and keep going, the compass will indicate anything except the true direction.

Many aviators firmly believe that there are magnetic currents or disturbances in the upper air which affect the compass and make it "go crazy." Long experiments and careful investigation, however, seem to prove conclusively that it is not the compass but the plane which moves distractedly in the first place, and that the apparent insanity of the compass is due to these movements and the vertical magnetic component of the governing force. The maddest of compasses, the most contradictory and insane of cards, will steady down to a quiet behavior once the plane is successfully set on a straight level course for a period of time greater than the period of the compass.

Cold Feet In Advertising

Phone 189 and our Representive will Call and discuss Rates, etc., with you

It is a well-established principle of commerce that there is no business that should not devote a proportion of its gross revenue to advertising if it is to be successful.

Yet it is a surprising fact that many businesses, generally speaking, advertise too sparingly, or only spasmodically.

National advertisers, the very ones who, at the expense of millions, have tested the value of advertising, don't think of cutting down or stopping their activities. Some of the most successful national advertisers even declare that their advertising plans for this season provide for still larger appropriations than last year.

Why shouldn't the local merchant follow their example and make a yearly appropriation for advertising in its various forms? Spasmodic advertising never pays like a regularly mapped out campaign.

HIGH SCHOOL CLUB ADDRESS AND SUPPER

REV. F. A. MALOTT TALKS ON "CHOOSING OF LIFE WORK"

The High School Club met yesterday evening at the Y. M. C. A. for an address and supper. The attendance was good, and great interest was shown by the members in the address of the evening. The chair was taken by the president, Mr. Art McLure, who introduced the speaker Rev. F. A. Malott, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church.

Mr. Malott chose as his subject, "The Choosing of a Life Work," which, he stated, was a problem to most boys of collegiate age. The speaker urged the boys to choose as a life work a calling in which their lives would count most for service. The talk was an inspiration and will prove helpful to those who heard him in dealing with this most important problem.

These meetings will continue weekly and will be a separate feature from the intermediate boys' meeting which will be held on the same evening but as a separate group for supper and program.

WRITERS OF SOME FAMOUS BOOKS

There is something so fascinating about Biography that a whole series of articles on the subject would not be out of place in dealing with it. But it is not only fascinating it is instruction and is an absolute essential to a right understanding of the trend of history. It was the great secret of Macaulay's success that he was enabled to make his History of England so interesting that it reads as pleasantly as a novel. And there is no reason whatever, why any boy or girl or, for the matter of that, any grown person, should not be able to make history more palatable by following the methods of Macaulay and becoming acquainted with the lives of those who helped to make it.

It falls to a librarian's lot to have to consult many volumes. Experience teaches him which are the most valuable and there are very few, I should imagine, who would not place The 'Dictionary of National Biography (a work in 25 volumes) in the category of needful works.

As an instance of its comprehensive nature it may be noted that some time ago an enquiry was made for something relating to Mother Shipton and her alleged prophecy—the seeker of the information was a young man who had been struck with the wonderful fulfilment of everything that that prophecy contained. He was anxious to know something about the woman to whom it was attributed. He had only read a few lines of the doggerel in some newspaper and he was anxious to obtain the whole of it. The pages of the Dictionary whilst they did not supply the words gave details showing that, so far as the famous prophecy was concerned it was a myth but that there were evidences that in the time of Cardinal Wolsey Mother Shipton had foretold the death of himself, Lord Percy and a few other notables and had got into a certain amount of trouble over it. There have also been tracts written at various times seeking to show that a prophetess of that name really lived. It is sad to add however, that the Prophecy as we know it, is a fabrication from beginning to end, and was the work of a London printer and publisher, who wrote it in the year 1862. His name was Charles Hindley. He frankly acknowledged the authorship in Notes and Queries in the issue of April 26th 1873. The words of the prophecy that Hidley wrote, with the exception of ten lines that are not quoted in the article I have in my hand are as follows;—

Carriages without horses shall go
And accidents fill the world with woe.
Around the earth thoughts shall fly
In the twinkling of an eye.
The world upside down shall be,
And gold be found at the root of a tree.
Through hills men shall ride
And no horse be at his side,
Under water men shall walk.
Shall ride, shall sleep, shall talk.
In the air men shall be seen,
In white, in black, in green;
Iron in the water shall float
As easily as a wooden boat.
Gold shall be found and shown
In a land that's not now known.
Fire and waters shall wonders do.
England shall at last admit a foe.
The world to an end shall come
In eighteen hundred and eighty one.

Notwithstanding Hindley's confession, there are thousands of people to-day, and probably always will be, who will look upon Mother Shipton as an altogether marvellous being, gifted with occult powers. Which shows how much harm a practical joke, in print, may be capable of creating.

Mention of the above brings to mind another prophecy which foretold the end of the world in 1871. It was, if memory serves one aright, by a Dr. Cumming. I was in Boulogne at the time, on my summer holidays. Although a small boy, I can remember distinctly, the troops of people who marched down to the beach on the eventful day set for the dissolution of the world. The pier that separated the Capecure sands from the sands on the town side was black with people. The sands too were crowded. What they expected to see was perhaps, beyond intelligent comprehension. All eyes were turned to the west where the sun lit up in an indistinct way the cliffs of Albion. When night fell and nothing happened the crowd turned their faces homewards. Their relief was unmistakeable. I remember, young as I was, thinking it strange that although the German guns were still thundering around Amiens, the populace had no more thought of them than of an eruption in Mars. That was something real, but a prophecy by a fanatic filled their superstitious souls with dismay.

John Evelyn's Diary, which was written at a time contemporaneous with that of Pepys, contains a fund of information and is most valuable as an historical reference.

John Evelyn was one of the outstanding figures of the reign of Charles II and seems through all his career to have been able to steer clear of entanglements amongst the various factions of the times. His life was a long one, stretching from 1620 to 1705-1706. He thus lived in the times of Charles the First, Oliver Cromwell, Charles II and the ministers of Charles II and James II and King William. He was on intimate terms with James II and also with foreigners distinguished for arts and learning, who visited England. His diary is therefore filled with most valuable data, relating to the times. It is interesting to read, amongst other things, of the visit of the Czar of Muscovy, Peter the Great, to England. He and his suite occupied Sayes Court, Evelyn's residence near Deptford. One of Peter's favorite recreations was to drive or be driven on a wheelbarrow through Evelyn's holly hedge. We read also that his entourage contrived to do so much damage to the house and grounds during their stay that the government had to allow the owner 150 pounds for it. It must be remembered that a pound went considerably further in those days than it does now, so the damage done must have been great.

Turning to modern times there is a book of great interest in the Biographical section entitled "Far away and Long Ago." It is the recital of the youthful days of Mr. W. H. Hudson, the famous naturalist and writer. It is a book that will appeal to old and young and the style is beautiful, a term which can be extended without exception to all his writings. His childhood and youth were possed on the pampas of South America. He tells of the landowners and cattle breeders of the plains, of his first visit to Buenos Aires, and dwells with special emphasis on his early love for birds. The didactic spirit is singularly absent. He seems to take you gently along with him and leave you to make your own discoveries. Those who have read his Purple Land, and his Crystal Age; his Green Mansions and Adventures among Birds, will welcome this book.

TO MY FRIENDS

We are getting acquainted with each other now, are we not, and I believe you have confidence in me and in what I tell you. This is why I have refrained from telling you about our most wonderful remedy until now, as had I told you about it at first you would not have believed me. I confess it reads like a fairy story or a patent medicine advertisement, but nevertheless this is every bit true. I am here appending a list of things which I know Gallagher's Golden Drops has done.

A young lady got an infection in her finger, a doctor opened it, used iodine and antiphlogestum for a month before getting it under control. Later a sister got an infection from the prick of a rusty tack, started with the same treatment but the finger began to cure with the inflammation, when she began the use of Golden Drops and in two days it was all right.

In another family a doctor treated a young man's finger for a month for an infection while a sister later cured hers in two days with Golden Drops.

A friend with a ringworm had tried all kinds of salves for a year with no result and took it off completely in two weks with Golden Drops.

I know of different ones who tried all kinds of corn cures without satisfactory results and removed them easily and painlessly with a plaster of Golden Drops. It will kill boils or carbuncles in 24 hours after being opened up. These are only some of the things it has done, more later

It is composed of resinous gums and oils and will kill poison, draw out inflammation and will heal. Any place where antiphlogestum may be used I guarantee this to be 90 per cent. more efficient. To use it, first cleanse the part with boracic acid solution or peroxide, place some absorbent cotton between two layers of sterelized gauze or cotton, spread the gum on one side and apply where it will adhere firmly. Try it.

Your friend.
JACK SPELL.

PRESENTATION AND FAREWELL ADDRESS

MR. AND MRS. POSEPH ELLIOTT REMEMBERED BY MANY FRIENDS

On Tuesday evening last about fifty friends and neighbors gathered to spend a social evening at the home of Mr Joseph Elliott 1st concession, Smith, a highly respected resident who has always lived in that community and is now moving to Dummer where he has purchased the farm of Mr. Dewart.

An Address.

During the evening the following address was read by Miss Medda E. Swinton:

Mr and Mrs. Elliott and Family:

Dear Friends,—Having realized that the time for your departure from among us is close at hand, we, a few of your friends and neighbors, have gathered to say farewell. You have spent many years in this neighborhood, and we have always found you true friends, ever ready to lend a helping hand where it was most needed. In our school, both day and Sunday school, your children will be greatly missed, and we would urge them, in their new home, to continue to be deligent in their pursuit of education, both secular and religious.

We can assure you that you carry with you our very best wishes for your future happiness and prosperity.

We ask you to accept these chairs as a slight token of our esteem and our prayer is that you may be long spared to enjoy their comfort.

Acceptable Gifts.

Mr. Fred L. Campbell and Mr. J. A. Middleton presented a lovely pair of rocking chairs to Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, who made suitable replies. Impromptu speeches were then made by Mr. T. D. Young, Mr. C. J. Hancock, Mr. A. W. Ackison and others, expressing their regret at losing a good friend and neighbor.

Refreshments were then served by the ladies, after which music and cards were enjoyed till the evening was brought to a close by the singing of Auld Lang Syne, God Be With You Till We Meet Again, and God Save the King.

FINNS REPULSE RUSSIAN REDS AND HAVE PIERCED THEIR LINES

Polish Troops Attacked by Soviet Forces—Irkutsk in Occupation by Bolshevik Regulars.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 8.—Russian Soviet forces have launched attacks against the Finns on both western and northern fronts, according to advices received here. It is said they have been repulsed and the Finns are reported to have launched counter attacks which have pierced the Red lines.

Polish Units Attacked.

Polish units holding a line running through Pripet Marshes, south of Bobrusk, are said to have been under attack at two points, the Soviet armies advancing on the north and south sides of the Marshes. Heavy Red detachments were recently reported to have assembled at Gomelf, just east of Pripet country, and it is probably these have been hurled westward against the Polish lines.

Reds Siese Irkutsk.

London, March 8.—Irkutsk, the recent seat of the Kolchak Government, which was seized last month by insurrectionary troops who were reported to have executed Admiral Kolchak, is now in the hand of the Bolshevik regulars. Troops of the Red army have entered town, it is announced in a wireless message from Moscow.

Ex-Ministers Prisoners.

Several members of the former Kolchak ministry and many active counter revolutionists who were imprisoned in Irkutsk are being transferred to Omsk where they will be delivered to the judgment of a revolutionary tribunal, the despatch adds.

FAVOR 15 PER CENT RAISE

GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY TO BENEFIT UNDER AWARD

Ottawa, Ont., March 8. — The Board of Conciliation which investigated the dispute between certain employes of the Canadian General Electric Company, of Peterborough, Ontario, and the Company recommends an increase of fifteen per cent. in wages from January 6 and to remain in force for one year. The employes had asked for an increase of twenty per cent.

Although the report is signed by Judge Huycke, of Peterborough, chairman; Fred Bancroft, for the employes, and James G. Merrick for the Company. Mr. Merrick favors only a ten per cent. increase in wages. Mr. Bancroft recommends a minimum wage of 50 cents per hour after three months' service.

OCEAN RATES INCREASE

Will Jump Fifty Per Cent. to Meet Cost of Bunker Coal.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 8.—Freight rates on ocean shipping from England would be increased at least fifty per cent. by a movement now in progress, says The Times, in order to meet the high cost of bunker coal here.

MR. BURNHAM RESENTS IN HOUSE USE OF WORDS "HOUR OF QUEBEC"

Heated Words Over Reference to Need of Improved Relations—Member for West Peterborough Regrets Repudiation of Liberal Party by the Farmers

In the House of Commons last week, the words "Hour of Quebec," used by Mr. Gauthier, of St. Hyacinthe, precipitated a heated discussion between that member and Mr. Burnham, member for West Peterborough. Just what transpired in full, and Mr. Burnham's speech on Canadian policy follows:

Mr. Gauthier, in a debate on Mr. Cronyn's motion for the address in reply to the Governor-General's speech, and the amendment of Hon. Mackenzie King, used words to the effect that "the hour of Quebec had come."

This brought Mr. Burnham to his feet. He said:

This noble building one might expect to inspire noble thoughts, but I have been somewhat disturbed by the speech of the hon. gentleman who has just sat down (Mr. Gauthier). He began by repudiating the conciliatory remarks of the member for Parkdale (Mr. Mowat), and ended, as I understood him, by saying —and he asserted that he spoke for himself and his Province — that Quebec would not confer until her hour had come, and then she would be prepared to confer. If that is what the hon. gentleman said and it that is what he meant, I would ask him if he intended that as a threat.

Mr. Gauthier: It is not a threat. it is a declaration.

Mr. Burnham: The difference between a threat and a declaration, especially a declaration of that kind, is that the man who makes the declaration is afraid to back it up.

Mr. Gauthier: The hon. gentleman has no right to insinuate that I am a coward.

Mr. Speaker: It would not be in order for any hon. member to impute cowardice to another. It is a question of construction as to whether that is what the Hon. member (Mr Burnham) meant in the present instance, and I can hardly go so far as to place that interpretation upon his words.

Mr. Burnham: Mr. Speaker, I, of course, bow to your ruling instantly. I might explain that I was not attributing physical cowardice to the hon. gentleman; I was attributing to him moral cowardice, something that he himself—

Mr. Speaker: Order. The hon. member has now clearly brought himself within the rule of the order, and his latter remark ought to be withdrawn.

Mr. Burnham: I certainly withdraw the remark, Mr. Speaker. Proceeding, then, upon a declaration which is not a threat, but which is a full, plain and evxplicit declaration by a man who is speaking for himself and his Province, as he said, I must say that I am unable to distinguish between his remarks and something of a very warlike and threatening character. I do not understand such talk as that. I am an admirer of the French—the French of Canada as well as the French of old France. But in these days when we in Ontario have had to stand the Nationalists, when we have had to endure from Quebec every insult under heaven, why should we be subjected to a statement of the most mysterious character, a statement that they would only confer when their hour had come? That means when their hour has struck. Well, if it means that, I can only say, with most infinite regret, that I do not care a brass farthing whether they threaten or whether they do not, for I am confident that we will be able to hold our own with equanimity.

Mr. Gauthier: I may say that we will never confer with the hon. gentleman for if we did he would not understand.

Mr. Speaker: Order.

Passion Displayed.

Mr. Burnham: However, this sort of feeling that has been aroused, to my infinite astonishment and very great regret indeed, seems to be in the air. The passion displayed by

PROHIBITION A SUCCESS IN THE STATES AND CANADA, DECLARES REV. SPENCE

Voting on Local Option in Scotland This Fall for First Time.

St. Andrew's Church had a distinguished visitor present for the morning service yesterday, in the person of Rev. Ben. Spence, of Toronto, secretary of the Dominion Alliance and a very well-known temperance worker.

Mr. Spence delivered the sermon, taking as his text: Stand Fast in the Liberty Wherein Christ has made us Free; be not entangled in the Yoke of Bondage." He spoke of the temptations of victory. On the one hand there was a tendency to thinking all is done and to relax effort. On the other hand there was a tendency of losing balance and of being led off along unwise lines. There never was a time when sanity and balance were required in the world so much as at the present time. He deplored the disposition of comparing the conditions today with those which existed when the bone dry law was enforced in the province. Instead the comparison should be made with conditions which existed before the passing of the Ontario Temperance Act. Taking the City of Toronto as a concrete example of what he meant, Mr. Spence stated that although the arrests for drunkenness in that city during the month of January this year were nearly double those of the same month last year, they were only one third of the arrests made in January 1914.' Then the increase in population in the meantime and the disturbed post-war conditions should be taken into consideration in making these comparisons.

Mr. Spence spoke of the present situation in each province of the Dominion pointing out that eight or nine provinces had a prohibition law and the province of Quebec was partially prohibition. He referred to the commendable action of the Dominion Government in passing war time prohibition and their reprehensible action in repealing it. The speaker dealt at length with the situation in the province of Ontario mentioning that important decisions would be reached at the conference, which is to be held this week.

Turning to the more general aspect of prohibition, Mr. Spence told of the great work which lay ahead for world wide prohibition emphasizing the success of the movement in the United States. In Scotland the campaign was progressing successfully and this fall the first local option law would be voted on in that country. In connection with this, aid was being sent to Scotland from Canada.

The speaker closed with an appeal to all to enter into the open door of opportunity and to strengthen establish and enforce the law at home. He asked them to exemplify the good of prohibition in their own country and to bring envoys from other countries that they might carry the good work of prihibition abroad.

Mr. Spence's address was listened to with great interest by the large congregation which had turned out to hear him. Interest in the service was also added to by the soloists, Miss Lilian Eastwood and Messrs. Charles Clark and Douglas Carlisle.

BRITAIN SHIPS GOLD TO STATES

CANADA ALSO SEND ANOTHER $3,000,000 IN GOLD COIN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, March 8.—Gold valued at $1,250,000 is being shipped from England today to this country, according to an announcement made by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. This is the first large shipment in several months, and is believed to be the forerunner of others. Another shipment of three million dollars worth of gold coin has been received from Canada at the sub-treasury here.

Canadian Dollar Declines.

Preliminary quotations on the pound sterling today were $3.55, or five cents below Saturday's close. The Canadian dollar declined in sympathy, the discount rate being quoted at 12½ per cent.

NO ABATEMENT OF SMALL POX HERE

EIGHT OR NINE MORE HOUSES QUARANTINED LAST WEEK

Such was the information gleaned from the Medical Officer of Health this morning in answer to inquiries. He stated that eight or nine more houses were quarantined last week tying up able-bodied men and laid the blame for such occurrences entirely to the fact that people will neglect to get vaccinated in spite of all evidence as to its benefits and the necessity of it at the present time.

Influenza remains about the same. New cases continue to be reported but they are generally not very serious, and the situation in so far as this disease is concerned is not anything to cause alarm.

Charles Everett, his wife and twelve-year-old son, of Bracebridge all in bed with the "flu" were obliged to crawl out into the snow when their home caught fire.

Dr. Henry De Man, eminent Belgian Labor leader, has predicted the early death of Bolshevism.

Ex-President W. H. Taft chuckled when asked if he entertained any ambition to return to the White House.

THE REVOLTING "ONE HUNDRED"

LIMERICK POLICE SUCCESSFULLY BEAT OFF ATTACK ON BARRACKS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Limerick, March 8.—One hundred men armed with rifles and high explosives attacked the police barracks at Doon, near here, early this morning. The attack lasted an hour and the police resisted with rifles and hand grenades until the assailants withdrew.

None of the police were injured.

HELP FOR FRENCH FORCES IN EAST

REINFORCEMENTS TO BE SENT AT ONCE TO GENERAL GOURAUD

London, March 8.—Tried George Anderson in Commons today said that prompt measures had been taken by the French Government to send reinforcements to General Gouraud, commander-in-chief of French forces in the East, for the purpose of re-establishing his position, and preventing further attacks on Armenia.

CAPT'S CERTIFICATE HAS BEEN SUSPENDED

BLAMED FOR LOSS OF SHIP — SECOND OFFICER CENSURED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Halifax, March 8.—Capt. Ernest Chiscoe's certificate was suspended for three months, and Second Officer Hamuel Blackmore was censured for loss of the Leyland liner Bohemian on Sambro Ledges last week, when Court of Enquiry read its findings at noon today.

The court suspended the captain because he did not make sure of his position and did not take any soundings or verify his bearings. The second officer censured for not suggesting to his captain the necessity of verifying the ship's position.

12 DOLLARS FOR A BOTTLE OF WHISKEY

SUCH IS PRICE ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN CHARGED LOCAL MEN

Six dollars for a part of a bottle was what Gus Rose was alleged to have charged for a bottle of whisky Saturday morning. His victim became intoxicated, found himself in the police station, and the result was that the defendant was charged with keeping liquor for sale without a license in contravention of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Entering the witness box in his own defence, the prisoner told how one A. V. Mann had asked him if he knew where to get any liquor. He had replied that he knew of a Lindsay man who charged ten dollars a bottle, and that he would share up and get a bottle. Later he met the man from Lindsay and took the bottle to the Empress Hotel, where he met A. V. Mann again. They drank some from the bottle, and then Mann took the bottle home with him, paying $6 as his share of the expenses.

Andrew Mann, however, told a different story to the accused, saying that the deal was a straight sale of a bottle of whisky for $6, and that he had made no arrangements with the accused to share up. The deal just cost the defendant $200 and costs.

WEST INDIES WILL REMAIN BRITISH

NO INTENTION ON PART OF GOVERNMENT TO BARTER SAME

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 8.—Premier Lloyd George, replying to questions in the House of Commons today regarding the suggestion that the West Indies be transferred to the United States in payment of part of the British debt, stated that there was not the slightest intention on the part of the Government to barter or sell any part of the British West Indies.

PETERBOROUGH EXHIBITION BOARD INCREASE PRIZES FOR NEXT EXHIBITS

Hon. Manning Doherty Will Open Next Industrial Exhibition—Preparations in Hand.

Re-distribution and increasing various prizes were discussed at a meeting of the Industrial Exhibition Board held in the Business College on Saturday afternoon. The chair was occupied by President Roland Denne.

Mr. J. W. Cox reported for the Light Horse Committee, on the arrangement of prizes, showing that these had been increased all the way down the line.

A discussion occurred here with reference to the half-mile track for road horses (Redmond Cup). It was suggested to leave it to the judge, but the concensus of opinion was against this. The question at issue was whether they should be shown on the small track or the half-mile track.

Mr. Cox moved and Mr. Chris. Graham seconded that the road horses be shown on the small ring in front of the grand stand.

An amendment was moved by Mr. Thos. Brown to leave this matter over till the next meeting. The amendment was carried.

Mr. Cox was instructed to hold his report over for further consideration.

Mr. Sam Oke reported for the committee dealing with agricultural prizes, presenting many changes which represented an increase from $73 to $119 in garden produce. In all four different classes the increase was $98. The report was adopted.

It was discovered that the auditor, Mr. Morris, could not work with any other auditor whowas not a chartered accountant, and as two auditors are required it was necessary to appoint another. Mr. Thos. Brown moved that the matter be left with the president. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Breyfogle that the secretary, or treasurer, be authorized to sign cheques with the president. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Webber that the secretary order ribbon for the poultry class prizes. Carried. A sample of this ribbon was shown to the members of the board at the meeting.

Mr. Cummer of the Merchants' Bank moved that the ribbon be used in any class.

Mr. Webber moved that the cup be given for the best Durham bull, any age. Carried.

Speaking for the delegation which waited on the Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Denne said that they had received the finest reception from the Minister that any delegation had ever been accorded. The Minister promised to look the ground over after the session, and also to open the fair.

Mr. J. W. Fraser suggested that a banquet be tendered the Minister when he came here.

Mr. Breyfogle moved that the secretary be instructed to write the Minister asking him to advise them of the date of his visit to Peterborough, so that he could be tendered a reception; and also that the fact of his opening the exhibition this fall is being advertised.

BRITISH, FRENCH AND ITALIAN FORCES CLASH WITH TURK TROOPS

Fighting in Constantinople Today—Martial Law in Turkish Capital Declared—Allies Make Extensive Military Demonstration and Turks Resisted—No Details of Casualties Yet.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 8. — Allied and Turkish forces have clashed in Constantinople, official messages today declare.

Martial law has been declared, the messages said, and 20,000 British, French and Italian troops made an "extensive military demonstration." The Turks resisted, and fighting followed.

No details of casualties were given.

Drastic Terms.

London, March 8. — The Allies despatched a note to the Turkish Government on Saturday. The terms of the communication were not disclosed, but it is understood they are drastic and will be followed by drastic action should the necessity arise.

The proposed Allied military control of Constantinople is not to be an occupation in the sense which that term usually implies, according to the Peace Conference plans, which, however, have not as yet been fully matured,, not arise. They are of the opinion.

The idea of the Conference, it is indicated, is to impress upon the Turks that the world will not tolerate massacres such as those of the Armenians and Cicilians last month. This has been unsuccessfully attempted through threats from the Conference that unless the massacres ceased the peace terms for Turkey would be much more severe than otherwise, and now the allies plan to make some sort of a military demonstration at Constantinople. Just what this form shall take is understood not to have been decided, but a speedy decision is expected, as Great Britain, France and Italy are agreed that quick action is necessary to save hundreds of lives.

Turks Must Knock Under.

The Allies have enough troops in Turkey to control Constantinople, if it be necessary to resort to force, but the Allied Premiers are believed to be convinced that this necessity will disappear that when the Turkish Government finally comes to the conclusion that the Allies mean business the situation will be considerably clarified. This is the first point in the plan of the Conference.

CANADA'S PORTION OF WAR INDEMNITY

REPORT AS TO ADDITIONAL PAYMENT FOR PENSIONERS NOT TRUE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 8.—The report in circulation to the effect that Canadian pensioners are to receive additional payments out of Canada's portion of war idemnity, when this is received from the central powers, was emphatically denied by the Board of Pension Commissioners today.

Based on Misconception.

The Board states that this report is probably based on a misconception regarding claims Canada will make on Germany in respect to liability she has already incurred on account of war pensions. The board is now preparing data on which to base this claim, which it is stated, is solidly in respect of Canada's pension bill.

MARASH REOCCUPIED BY FRENCH TROOPS

TURKISH GOVERNMENT AGREES ACCORDING TO A CONSTANTINOPLE DESPATCH

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 8. — The Turkish Government has agreed with French authorities that Marash should be reoccupied by French troops, according to a Constantinople despatch to the Temps.

Order Reestablished.

The newspaper says that information has been received in Paris to the effect that calm seems to have been re-established in Cilicia. French losses in Cilicia to February 15, including the period during which disorders occurred at Marash, were [illegible] killed and nearly two hundred missing, according to the Temps. Losses of French regulars and native troops are included.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT is proposing to make daylight saving in Great Britain a permanent measure, as it is claimed that in spite of all predictions of failure the change has been a success, and a sufficient trial to prove that it is at once a benefit and a saving has been given. The agriculturists in the Old Land, however, are not yet converted, but even they do not allege that the change in the clock makes their business impossible. There are strong reasons, therefore, for removing the working of the clock from the uncertainties of annual legislation, and making it a settled matter for the future. War was required to convince the British of the utility of the reform in their marking of time, and they count the alteration as one of the very few benefits that they have obtained from war.

With regard to the reform of the clock face, or, rather, the method of reading it, the Committee which under the chairmanship of Major Baird, Under-Secretary, Home Office, has been considering the adoption in Britain of twenty-four-hour time for official and other public purposes, recommends the change. Already this method of time notation, which makes confusion between a.m. and p.m. possible, is used in France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Belgium and Switzerland. It is employed in this country for the Continental time-tables issued by the railway companies and Messrs. Cook. Two in the afternoon is fourteen o'clock, five is seventeen, eleven at night is twenty-three, and so on. The new method was used in the Navy even before the war, and in the Army during the war. Both services have testified to its usefulness.

It has been pointed out to the Committee in evidence that it will make the looking-up of trains in railway time-tables easier, since there will be no doubt as to whether a train starts in the morning or the afternoon. The railway companies will find it an economy. Often when the timing of a train has to be telegraphed to a great many stations "a.m." or "p.m." have to be paid for a hundred times or more.

The Post Office has agreed to fall in with the reform and does not expect any difficulty. The Admiralty say there is everything in favor of the change and nothing against it. There will be no need to alter the dials of clocks and watches.

It was stated to the Committee that in Italy, where the new method has been in use for twenty years, twelve-hour watches are still used and few clocks have been changed. It is claimed that it is in the writing down of times that the great value of the reformed system has been experienced.

Canada seems divided as to the desirability of daylight saving, and the above views on this very-much-debated question here may prove interesting and illuminating in many respects.

THE WHITE CITY AND THE WAR.

THE "WHITE CITY," England, which has been formally given up by the Government, was the training-ground of the 60th (London) Division in the opening stages of the war, when some 16,000 men were stationed there. The troops left the place in good order, although there is a story of a quantity of theatrical scenery being commandeered as a protection against draughts; but much havoc has overtaken the place during civilian occupation by different service departments. It is reported that 75 per cent. of the tents used by the Allied armies were issued from the "White City," and that in one building alone 25,000 persons were daily employed in making these or other war materials.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS IN CHURCH.

WHILE IT IS CERTAIN that as early as the fifteenth century instruments besides the organ were used in church in connection with polyphonic liturgical compositions, it has not been definitely ascertained to what extent this was the case, what passages were played by the instruments alone, and where they simply reinforced the voices.

The difficulty of determining the precise nature of instrumental co-operation with the voice is increased by the fact that in those days the text was applied by the composer to only one voice—generally the cantus, or upper voice. In accordance with this model the singers themselves applied the text to the other voices as they proceeded. At all events the instruments served at best only as a reinforcement or as a substitute for the human voice, and had no independent function in our modern sense.

Furthermore, they were employed with sole reference to their pitch and not to their timbre, or tone-quality. Thus, instruments of the violin family and flutes would play with the high voices—sopranos and altos—whereas horns and trombones were assigned to the tenor and bass parts.

It was with the advent of monody that the use of instruments in connection with the voices in church music received a great impetus. The closely-knit, compact, polyphonic structure which had predominated up to this time, needed no extraneous aid for its effectiveness and sonority. This was not the case with the new style of composition rapidly superceding the old school. It depended to a great extent for its tonal body and artistic existence on the aid of instruments.

The great perfection reached in the construction of stringed instruments in the sixteenth century was both a manifestation of, and an aid to, the growing tendency. Virtuosity, not only on stringed, but also on wind instruments, was a common accomplishment. The character and individuality of the instruments, so to speak, were being made available as means of expression for the subjective moods, dramatic feelings and conceptions of the composer.

MODERN STORY OF PAPER.

REPORTERS and correspondents are adjured to use brevity and mighty little of that, declares the New York Evening Post. Editors must send out every hour for fresh supplies of blue pencils. But the great American office boy may indulge his abnormal thirst for water in paper cups to his heart's content. He does not stand alone in his extravagance. The paper napkin with which you start your simple lunch vanishes into the limbo of table legs long before the waiter has returned to ask you to repeat your order. The second napkin tears as you make a futile attempt to wipe up the soup that the too-efficient attendant has sloshed out on the cloth. The third—you give up in despair and reach for your spare handkerchief. A noble degree of wastefulness is attained by paper towels. Although nobody ever succeeded in drying his hands upon any number of them, it is de rigueur to go through the motions with as many of them as you have time for. Then there are paper containers for ice cream, jelly and oysters.

We are evidently determined to be sanitary at all costs—even as you have time for. An individual paper towel that inspires a resolve not to wash your hands until you get home and forget, is sanitary and exasperating; while a common towel of the old-fashioned kind is deadly and does the work. Everything that can possibly be made out of paper must be made, except newspapers. Who ever heard of a shortage of paper cup paper? Or paper napkin paper? Or of paper towel paper? But newsprint paper seems to be short by hypothesis. It is a case of sanitary living and restricted thinking.

THE RICH GO BATHING.

THE OTHER DAY we took a trip to Palm Beach to see the rich go in bathing, says the Detroit Free Press. This is an impressive ceremony. It seems the ritual must be followed closely. There must be no vulgar haste about the bath. One must proceed leisurely into the water.

While we did not read the rules, we gathered from observing our best rich that it is bad form to immerse completely. One can easily pick the people who are something from the vulgarians who have come south merely to enjoy themselves from the way they act on the beach. The common herd take a rush at the wide Atlantic and dive into it; they act like porpoises for a few minutes, and then beat it back to the dressing rooms. With them it is evident that they use the ocean merely for swimming purposes. This is a sordid view. Such souls are dead to poetry and sentiment. They lack refinement.

The more elegant use the ocean merely as a background for their own magnificence. It is the back drop for the photographer's canvas, and plays but a minor part in the grand scheme.

One must be dressed to go swimming, and after that it is not necessary to go swimming. There are women here who have gone swimming every morning at 11 o'clock, and have yet to get wet above the knees. We shudder to think what will happen to one of our fair creatures if she should chance to slip on an oyster shell and get a duckling.

There was a lovely one out this morning. She wore the cutest little georgette bonnet (the millinery dope comes from the missus) with ribbon strings and flower trimmed, and her bathing suit was a dream. It sure was a dream, and a right smart dream at that. (The dialect here seems to be getting to us, too.) And oh, my dear, she had on blue silk stockings, and lovely beach shoes, and her arms were protected with full-length kid gloves, the kind the women wear in the evening. We wasted an hour watching that girl, because she wanted to see how she was going to do an Annette Kellerman in that outfit, but she never got near the water. What we did discover, however, is that she had two arms, two legs, a pair of feet and a pair of hands, neck and shoulders and a head. This seems to be the complete equipment for all women, rich or poor, so we lost interest as a spectator. If ever we discover a three-legged woman on the beach we'll probably stare her out of countenance.

Incidentally we might add that nature seems to have been very unkind with some of our richest folks. They may have fat pocketbooks, but otherwise they may be described as scrawny.

IMAGINATION IN TEACHING.

(Portland Oregonian.)

By whatever method the imagination of the pupil is stimulated, desire for knowledge will be increased, and when this has been done the process of acquiring necessary information becomes secondary. The problem is a highly practical one, not to be solved by railing at teachers because they need to eat while they are teaching, but perhaps approachable through the indirect method of making the reward attractive enough so that they will be able to let their imaginations soar, unhampered by the bread and butter considerations that are so effective in keeping their feet constantly on the ground.

VISCOUNT HALDANE'S ADVICE.

(New Commonwealth, London.)

Viscount Haldane's personal courage and political sagacity are strongly marked in a passage in which he says: "I have seen something of the Germans, and what I have learned of them and of their history has led me to the conclusion that, certain traditions of theirs notwithstanding, they resemble us more than they differ from us. If this be so, the sooner we take advantage of our present victory by seeking to turn our eyes from the past as far as can be, and to look steadily towards a future in which the misery and sin which that past saw shall be dwelt on to the least extent that is practicable, the better it will be for ourselves as well as the rest of the world."

CANADA A SOVEREIGN POWER.

(Manitoba Free Press.)

We are told that "America is debating her course. Before long she will decide." If the Lenroot reservation is part of her decision it has a peculiar interest for Canada, but the League of Nations would have little interest for Canada if the reservation were accepted. We have our national status, we have proved our nation and our manhood; we intend to be a nation and a sovereign power, subscribing to the League of Nations as we do at present, but outside the League of Nations if such modifications as the Lenroot reservation proposes ever become, by evil chance, a part of its constitution.

THE NEED FOR HELP.

The people of Labrador are very dependent on outside assistance in order that the Gospel may be preached to them, physicians be sent to heal their diseases, teachers give of their knowledge to enlighten them and life as a whole be enriched for the rising generation. To extend these privileges your co-operation is required.

DR. GRENFELL.

This year, a quarter of a century will have elapsed since Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, physician, missionary, explorer and philanthropist came to Labrador. His work has made his name and that of the country almost synonymous. When Labrador is mentioned our thoughts turn to Dr. Grenfell and it is impossible to think of Dr. Grenfell apart from Labrador.

Before 1892, the only medical aid available was that of a Government doctor who traveled that coast on the mail-boat. Since that time Dr. Grenfell, plus associates and money, has revolutionized life down there. Where twenty-five years ago one doctor tried to meet the exigencies of the case, today eight hospitals serve the same population.

OPERATING UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

To turn out the family and transform the kitchen into an operating room took the nurse and the mother of the patient some time; sterilizing under such circumstances, so as positively to insure asepsis, needs no little skill. The operation took till mid-day, by which time my new host's kitchen was crowded with applicants for a visit to their houses. Here is the list visited.

First came a poor fellow whose eye we had removed ten days previously; a woman with abscess of the breast, being treated to date with only the local remedy of tarry oakum and weasel skins. After that came a child with acute rickets. It had been fed from birth on bread pap, as the mother had been unable to nurse it, and they had not been able to "reach to milk." Then came a case of ophthalmia, with ulcer in the cornea, in a little girl of seven years, followed by a boy of ten, who must be carried back for operation later at St. Anthony. Meanwhile a team from our northernmost and loneliest lighthouse was waiting to haul me out there. It was two miles over very rocky going, but I was well repaid by the opportunity of visiting the cheery Scotch keeper and his family. I returned to find another kitchen full of those seeking aid, including those who wished to know if they could have some mats to make, build a komatik, or haul firewood, in order that they might earn some much needed clothing or a little extra food.—From "In Ice-bound Labrador," by Wilfred T. Grenfell.

GIVE!

Have thy fields given thee golden store?
Be happy! Thou canst give the more.
Does plenty give thy table weight?
The hungry ones wait at thy gate!
Hast store of wood to keep thee warm?
Some have no shelter from the storm.
Art grateful for the Father's care?
Remember gold gives weight to prayer!
Hast less than ever in thy store?
The poorer still are just before!
Has love been given thee in thy share?
Some do not know that blessing rare!
Wouldst richly, fairly, truly live?
Then open heart and purse—and give!

EDITOR'S MAIL

FIRE FIGHTERS' POSITION.

Editor Review: In an editorial entitled, "The Wrong Method," the Examiner criticised the Fire Fighters Association, who have recently presented a request for increased salary. This editorial contains the statements that the fire fighters have attempted to abuse members of the City Council, and threatened strike unless their demands were acceded to. There has, evidently, been a great misunderstanding of the actual facts. The fire fighters have not attempted abuse, neither have the words "strike" or "demand" been mentioned. We presented (as is our privilege) a request to the City Council, a request for increased salary together with arguments in its favor. The proceedings have been conducted in a most courteous manner on both sides. As far as "strike" is concerned the following section from article 2 of the Fire Fighters' constitution will be self-explanatory:

"It is deemed inadvisable to strike or to participate in any strike owing to the peculiar nature of our employment. We are formed for the protection of lives and property in the community in case of fire or other serious hazard."

It is to be regretted that a misunderstanding should occur. Harmony is essential at this particular time and we think it but just that our version of the incident should be given due prominence.

TURKISH FEMINISTS.

Played Important Part In Plots Against Old Regime.

The day of the latticed window and the veiled woman has by no means passed in Turkey, though the feminist movement, as we should term it dates back farther than one might suppose, says Gertrude Emerson in Asia. Certainly the revolution of July 24, 1908, when Sultan Abdul Hamid was forced by the Young Turk Party to proclaim the long-delayed constitution, and when Turkey first began to think in terms of modern institutions, went a long way toward initiating social freedom for the women of Turkey. Back of that coup, however, lay many years of careful preparation, of education, of secret propaganda, in which women had already played their part. Some day the records may be laid bare, but it is still unwise to talk too openly in Turkey. Thirty years of censorship, of secret agents scurrying through the empire to report back to the Great Ear at Yildiz Kiosk in Stamboul any shadow of "treachery," were not calculated to produce anything but trickery with which to meet trickery, astuteness with which to match power. The espionage system made it impossible for men to come together without being watched, and it was the women who carried back and forth thousands of letters for the Young Turks and for the Society of Union and Progress. The wives of these men saw to it that messages were delivered to their friends whom they met by chance, as it were, in the bazaars or shops, and they, in turn, passed on the information to their husbands. Women were even sold as slaves into the households of important officials who it was necessary to win over to the cause, and later were bought back again when their work was finished. The Turkish law does not permit women to be arrested for political action, but sometimes they paid the full price of courage. Just after the ex-Sultan, who had accepted the constitution only to introduce a period of reaction blacker than any that had preceded it, had left his palace for the last time on the way to exile, a newspaper published the report of how he had murdered a beautiful Circassian in the palace. Among initiated circles it was known how, in his harem, a certain Circassian had used her beauty and charm to good effect in the subtle interests of the Young Turk Party. Even the Sultan's own sister worked secretly against Abdul Hamid, whom she always referred to as the Usurper. Probably the first woman actually to be admitted into the Young Turks organization was Refeka Hanoum, daughter of Kiamil Pasha, who refused marriage at eighteen in order to devote all her energies toward bringing about a higher freedom for her oppressed sisters. Among this little group of daring women, Haledeh Hanoum, who has since assumed the role of Turkey's leading feminist, early showed herself one of the leading spirits.

ECONOMY IN BURNING WOOD

Experts of Agricultural Department Reveal Secrets That Are Well Worth Keeping in Mind.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Where a fireplace is available wood can be used to good advantage, affording both heat and ventilation, but there is a secret about fireplace management. It is not generally known that a wood fire can be kept burning day and night in a fireplace with very little attention and with small consumption of wood. The secret in keeping wood from burning too rapidly is a plentiful supply of ashes, say foresters of the United States department of agriculture. One user who adopted this plan reports continuous use of a fireplace for over a month, with dry chestnut wood, where the amount of ashes formed by a month's use was not enough to require removal.

Ashes should be kept level with the andiron, the foresters say. As the blocks burn, an accumulation of glowing charcoal forms in the ashes. This keeps on burning slowly and assists in igniting the fresh blocks on the andirons. A pocket may be formed in the ashes into which the hot charcoal may fall, forming a heat storage. Two or three blocks on the andirons with the hot charcoal in the ashes will form an excellent fire.

To check the fire, ashes are shoveled over one or more of the blocks, covering lightly all the burning wood. This will not put out the fire; it will only check the rate of burning, so that red charcoal will be found when the ashes are removed for addition of fresh fuel.

Fireplace wood is usually cut in longer lengths than stove wood, but the ordinary 16-inch stove length is convenient. Any kind of wood can be used, provided it is dry and seasoned.

A banked fire will keep 10 or 12 hours, and will send some heat from the hot bricks all the time. A well-managed fireplace will be found a great addition to the heating system in any residence. Its value is to supplement a furnace, although it may replace the furnace in fall and spring with decided economy.

Value of Obstacles.

We were talking with a gentleman the other day about the rise of boys and young men, and he had many observations to relate, all of which taught the lesson that success starts with obstacles. A young man who has had no obstacles to surmount will seldom be successful in any department of life he may enter. It is quite impossible to expect anything great of a boy who is fed with a silver spoon and grows up amid a life of ease. It is the resistance that a boy encounters that develops his powers. He must carry rocks, and not feathers, if he expects to gain strength. So a boy should not wish for an easy way through which to reach success. If he is to be a scholar, a great merchant, a captain of industry or an efficient manager of anything good, he must begin down low, where there is work to do. A boy cannot loaf his way into great achievement; he has to struggle for it. The boy who knows this and fears not will make a man of himself. None other need apply. —Ohio State Journal.

One Rainy Night.

It was my first grand affair and I had invited the judge's daughter. Three weeks of my salary had been invested in raiment Lord Chesterfield might approve. My elder married sister was to be a receiving matron.

In spite of the sloppy rain that night, the taxi had brought my lady in uncrushed safety to the hall. Her gown was quite the daintiest in sight. My white kids were adjusted, and I felt indeed we were a distinguished pair as we crossed the ballroom in the limelight to the receiving line.

My sister greeted the judge's daughter graciously and turned to bestow on me her company manners, incidentally her critical eye.

"Good evening, brother," she smiled as she glanced from top toward toe and suddenly, sub rosa, "Turn down your trousers!"

I looked at my feet. My cheeks flamed! I had crossed the floor with full three inches of trousers still turned up in proof that "'twas raining in London."—Chicago Tribune.

New Anesthetic.

How nitrous oxide gas, an anesthetic made available in large quantities in France through the joint efforts of the army medical corps and the American Red Cross, saved the lives of many American soldiers, was told in a statement by the Red Cross. The value of the gas was underestimated by medical men before the war, the statement said, but because of its tendency to increase blood pressure to strengthen the heart without producing a shock and to cause no depressing after effects, it came into general use in the operating rooms of most hospitals before the end of the war.

In the War News.

A young man told us about an old lady who used to come to see the wounded boys. Her one fault was asking too many questions. They decided that the next time she came they would all pretend to be asleep. She came. One, who was bandaged from head to feet, was the only one who appeared at all awake, so she went to him and asked: "How did you know you were wounded, my lad?" "Oh, I read about it in the papers," he replied.—Exchange.

The Ports of Finland.

Conversation in Abo, one may readily believe by report from Finland, is finding daily food in the superior claims of that town over the town of Hango to become the important winter harbor of Finland, and conversation in Hango is equally busy with the superior claims of Hagno over Abo. Abo, Hango, and Helsingfors are Finland's three ice-free winter ports, which means that ice breakers are necessary to keep them open, and the statistics of the past are said to prove that the trade of the future will provide both Abo and Hango with all the shipping they can handle. But both harbors need improvement, and each town evidently feels that its own harbor should be attended to first. The larger sea-going steamships, for example, cannot now enter Abo, and the townsfolk naturally feel that the project for making their port a first-class harbor should be put through as soon as possible; but the townsfolk of Hango are arguing that the many islands surrounding Abo make the work of ice breaking much more expensive than in their own harbor, and that Hango is, therefore, the port that should logically receive first attention. Nor, one may believe, is Hango as enthusiastic as it might be over the possibilities of a ferry from Abo to the Swedish harbor of Kapellskar, something over 130 miles away, and also under discussion as the possible terminal for a new railway line in Sweden. As a matter of fact, the shipping interests insist that the state should deepen all three harbors, Helsingfors, Abo, and Hango, and provide powerful enough ice breakers to keep them open.

Eucalyptus Fuel.

Eucalyptus trees planted on tropical mountain sides would produce fuel at the rate of twenty tons, dry weight (sixty pounds to the cubic foot), per acre annually. This in perpetuity, the plantations when cut reproducing themselves without further expense.

Such is the declaration of a scientist who says that by this means the sun's heat in hot latitudes can be economically stored, the dry eucalypt timber being heavier than coal and possessing more heating power, bulk for bulk.

An acre of eucalypts in the tropics, he asserts, would produce the equivalent of at least twenty tons of coal per annum, the only requirements being powerful sunshine and heavy rainfall to insure rapid growth. So, with such a possible resource available, why worry about the threatened exhaustion of the coal mines?

Two Robberies.

The disgruntled householder reported to the police sergeant that someone had entered his house the night before and stolen a quantity of lead pipe. "I wouldn't mind it so much," he explained, "only it is the second time I have suffered within a week." "When were you robbed before?" asked the sergeant. "Last Tuesday by the plumber who collected his bill for putting that pipe in."

WILSON WAS A VICTIM

COULD NOT COPE WITH DIPLOMATS OF EUROPE.

John Maynard Keynes Gives Pen Picture of President of United States and Tells Why He Failed to Impress His Views Upon the World During the Meetings of the Peace Conference.

IN the "Economic Consequences of Peace," a book recently issued by John Maynard Keynes, there is a bold pen picture of President Wilson, and an explanation of his supposed failure to influence Clemenceau and Lloyd George. Mr. Keynes attended the conference for some time as a representative of the British Treasury, so his opportunity for informing himself was excellent. How unbiased he is will have to be judged by individual readers. It is undoubtedly true that when President Wilson left Washington for Paris he enjoyed a prestige and a moral influence without parallel.

Those who believe that as a molder of international affairs President Wilson has been a failure will probably agree with the reasons set forth by Mr. Keynes, says the Toronto Mail and Empire. The chief fault, he says, was in the President's own character. He says that the original idea of the President as a student or scholar is an erroneous one. He lacks the temperament. He lacked, too, that culture of the world that makes Mr. Balfour and M. Clemenceau exquisitely cultivated gentlemen of their class and generation. Mr. Keynes continues "What chance could such a man have against Lloyd George's unerring, almost medium-like sensibility to everyone immediately around him? To see the British Prime Minister watching the company with six or seven senses not available to ordinary men, judging character, motive and subconscious impulse, perceiving what each was thinking and even what each was going to say next, and compounding with telepathic instinct the argument or appeal best suited to the vanity, weakness or self interest of his immediate auditor was to realize that the poor President would be playing blind man's buff in that party. This deaf and blind Don Quixote was entering a cavern where the swift and glittering blade was in the hands of the adversary.

The President was by no means a business man or an ordinary party politician, and though he proved not to be the philosopher king, he certainly was a man of force, personality and importance. What then was the matter? The writer believes it is to be found in the fact that the President's temperament is theological rather than intellectual. His program for the world was so admirable in spirit that the least desire of his sympathizers was to criticize details, but it was assumed that the President, with the assistance of a large body of expert advisers, had thought out details. His colleagues were amazed to discover that he had though out nothing, that when it came to practice his ideas were extremely nebulous. Moreover, in many respects he was ill informed or wrongly informed as to European conditions. The same criticism is made with regard to Lloyd George, but whereas the British Prime Minister has a wonderfully quick and adaptable mind, the President proved very slow.

He was quite capable, to use Mr. Keynes' phrase, of digging in his toes and refusing to budge, as he did over the Fiume settlement. The trouble was that he could be manoeuvred by his opponents into such a position that there was nothing to dig his toes into until it was too late. He might have made a better figure if he had taken counsel with his numerous advisers who among them supplied the deficiencies of the President's character, but the writer says that he took little counsel. His fellow plenipotentiaries were dummies. Even Col. House, who might have been expected to know more about European affairs and about human nature than any of the others, fell into the background as time went on. Thus the President was left virtually alone to fight his battle for idealism. Had he been fighting with avowed enemies he would have made a better showing, but it is impossible to be meeting in friendly intercourse every day with men like Clemenceau and Lloyd George and keep on reminding himself that these men were the enemies of his ideas. On the contrary they were his friends. He found, however, that his specific or "open diplomacy" would not cover certain British, French and Italian relations. He was confronted with certain facts accomplished, and had to bow to the inevitable. In the case of Fiume he was driven to make an appeal to the nations over the heads of their representatives, and this proved to be a blunder.

Eventually he had to face the alternative of openly breaking off the conferences, in which case he knew he would be misrepresented as a friend of Germany, or of acquiescing in certain arrangements that surely were never dreamed of in the well known "fourteen points." He chose the latter course in the hope of saving at least the League of Nations from the wreckage of his ideals, and he had to make his choice when insulated from the great currents of public opinion which had so long been his support. Eventually he had to admit that compromises were necessary. The task then for his colleagues was to persuade him that every thing they wanted done was consistent with the principle of righteousness, and here it was that Mr. Wilson's ignorance of Europe made him an easy victim. He was able to leave Paris with the full approval of his own conscience, and must have been amazed and must continue to be amazed that his sincerity was so generally challenged after he reached home.

Rabbit Skins in Demand.

There is a market for rabbit skins. Before the war an enormous trade was carried on abroad. It is said that Great Britain and Ireland alone produced about 80,000,000 skins annually. Most rabbit skins are sold in bales, by weight, the fur from them being used for felting purposes, and the skins for making glue. The war interrupted the importations from Europe and Australia to such an extent that the price has greatly increased. The better skins are sold by the dozen. When dressed they become the "cony" of the fur trade, often sold under fanciful names. American breeders are raising all kinds of rabbits that produce the best "cony" of the fur shops.

"A Soul Above Potatoes"

By PAUL HAMILTON

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

"You'll stay in Clifton, won't you, Harney?"

Mrs. Ross looked all motherly anxiety as she addressed her son. With them on the garden seat was Harney's sweetheart, Alma Reeves, whose bright, pretty face reflected the solicitude of the older woman.

The son and lover affected quite a lordly air. A week previous his uncle, Mark Leston, dying, had bequeathed him a neat sum in money and a grocery store he owned in the village.

"But, Harney, dear," intervened Alma, "you know how pleased you were at first with the idea of being your own master and running a business for yourself."

"That's all right," acknowledged this ambitious favorite of fortune, "but I've met my old chum since then. You know Ned Dallas came down to see me when he learned of my big luck. Well, he's a clerk in a broker's office and he says that with his experience of the money market, if I will supply the capital, he will go into partnership with me and will make a regular Napoleon of finance of me."

Before leaving Harney made an arrangement with Warren Doane, an old clerk in a local store, to place him in charge of the one he had inherited on a basis of equal division of profits. The day after Harney's departure Mr. Doane called at the Ross home.

"I am going to surprise Harney," he told Mrs. Ross, who was an old friend. "He has agreed to let me have full swing with advertising and specialty wrinkles and I am going to build up a grand trade. Alma, I shall need some one to take charge of the cashier's desk. Can I count on you?" and Alma acquiesced in the arrangement and the enterprise started out under most promising auspices.

The young adventurer across the shoals of finance wrote almost daily the first month of his absence. He was all anticipation, ambition, enthusiasm. Then he became less effusive in his epistles and during the second month of his absence only two brief letters reached home.

"We must not expect too much attention from the poor boy, immersed as he is in business cares," Mrs. Ross told Alma, who, in her faith and innocence, pictured "the poor boy" handling the monetary destinies of nations. The merest "All well—love to all," about comprised the substance of subsequent letters from Harney. Meanwhile, Alma and Mr. Doane begrudged no thought or care that would tend to place the despised grocery business upon a firm and growing basis and keep it there. The idea that she was doing something that benefited the business interests of her lover kept Alma animated and glad. How she worked, and planned, and hoped! She had, however, received an inkling from something she overheard between two local business men that Harney "was cutting a wide swath in the city," making daring speculative investments and going beyond his depth.

It was one Saturday night and Mr. Doane had closed the store an hour earlier than usual on account of a rain storm, and Alma had decided to remain for an hour or so and balance the books and was engrossed at her desk when the knob of the store door rattled, and then there was a quick, sharp tapping on its glass panel. Alma could make out the visitor against the glare of the street lamp. It was Harney Ross and she uttered a cry of joy as, unlocking the door, she led him into shelter and clung to his arm, uttering fervent words of welcome. Then as he came within the radius of the desk lamp her heart smote her.

"I've tramped it from the trolley, Alma," he said. "I ran out of money and I'm about famished. You've got a neat and inviting layout here," and he went over to a counter which held a tempting array of cheeses, dried beef, boiled ham and some pickle relishes, on the way drawing a liberal handful from the cracker box, and set about eating with an enjoyment that both gratified and saddened Alma, for this returning lover of hers dreadfully suggested the penitent prodigal.

"This is sure a land of plenty," said Harney, with a sigh of satisfaction as he completed a lunch sufficient for two men. "Alma, I've come back with nothing but a hard, costly lesson learned. Those city sharks took my money away from me so easy. I wonder how they did it. I'm through as a financial Napoleon. I'm glad to creep home, humble and glad to come back to the store, and mother—and you."

"And, oh! Harney," jubilated Alma, "such a business the store has done! You poor boy, indeed! How welcome you are!"

"I had a soul above potatoes, you know?" observed Harney with mournful retrospection. "Well, if the flat upstairs is still vacant—"

"Yes, it is, Harney," nodded Alma.

"Then it's a quiet wedding as soon as you can get ready. And, after what I've gone through, it will be paradise to settle down in the cozy, modest little home.

"Even if it is right over the potatoes!" laughed Alma, bestowing a kiss that to Harney Ross was more precious than all the money he had lost.

"I ADVISE EVERY SICK WOMAN

To Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

"I advise every suffering woman to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it has done me so much good. I had female weakness, inflammation, pains in my sides and painful periods. I suffered for six years and tried many remedies without benefit. The doctor said I must have an operation. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers, and since taking it I am cured and have a nice baby four months old. I feel like a new woman, and have recommended your medicine to my friends. I would be glad to have everybody know what your medicine did for me, and if any write to me I will answer all letters."—Mrs. MARY CALIGURE, 317 South Main St., Herkimer, N.Y.

Every woman at some period or other in her life may suffer from just such disturbances as Mrs. Caligure, and if there is no interested friend to advise, let this be a reminder that this famous root and herb remedy has been overcoming these ailments of women for more than 40 years.

If any complications exist, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years' experience is at your service.

"Haunted" Gems in British Museum

HAUNTED gems that, like the famous Kohinoor diamond, are claim to be accompanied by an evil spirit which works a sinister influence over the lives of those into whose hands they fall and wherever they go, have just been reported as discovered in a British museum. One day an art student, who claims occult powers, saw the jewels and startled their custodian pretty considerably by stating that he saw an apparition standing by the jewels dressed in Elizabethan costume and evidently very angry.

Investigating this new mystery, a London Sun representative interviewed Ralph Shirley, the well-known occulist and editor of the Occult Review. Far from ridiculing the story of the haunted gem, Mr. Shirley professed every belief in the possibility of the accuracy of the art student's statement.

The stones in question comprise a fine collection of Elizabethan jewels, which are on exhibition in the Gold Room of the London Museum. About eight years ago they were discovered by workmen during excavations for the building of a warehouse in the vicinity of St. Paul's Cathedral. The gems were inclosed in a decayed wooden box and consisted of about 150 gold and enameled articles, including neck chains, pendants, rings, unset stones and various ornaments.

They were taken by the workmen to the house of an official of the London Museum, who kept them in his study for a fortnight, in the meantime informing the British Treasury of the discovery.

"The jewels arrived about 6 o'clock one evening. About 10 o'clock, although it was a warm June night, the official and his wife and daughter experienced a sensation of cold and shivering in the room where the jewels had been placed.

Presently the art student arrived. Standing by the jewels, he claimed that he could see a person whom he described as a tall, thin man in Elizabethan costume, who looked very angry. He further declared that he heard or "sensed" the apparition say: "Those are my jewels; what right have you to them?"

Two or three years later, long after the jewels had been placed in the London Museum, there was a curious sequel. A professional medium, who knew nothing of what had happened, while visiting the official at his house, declared that he saw a man standing by the side of his daughter, who, he said, "does not like you (the girl) and might do you an injury." His description of the man tallied exactly with that seen by the art student. The daughter, it should be said, used to clean the jewelry when it was in the house.

Another surprise incident occurred shortly before the war. A woman spiritualist, when shown the jewels at the London Museum, fainted. On recovering she accounted for her illness by explaining that she had seen blood on a gold neck chain among the jewels, and that she had "sensed" that the woman who originally wore it had been murdered by somebody who wished to obtain possession of it.

Since then there have been no further strange manifestations. From a psychical point of view, it is considered that the original owner of the jewels does not object to them remaining where they are, as they are national property and not in the possession of any private individual.

"There are a great many stories of treasure guarded by spirits," said Mr. Shirley when told this story. "From an occultist's point of view the theory is that there are earth-bound spirits who were so attached to certain possessions in their life that they still cling to them in the after life. There are stories of ghosts preventing people going to live in houses they tenanted in life. One may suppose that such apparitions do not realize that they are dead and that they look upon the new tenants as trespassers. In one such case I read of they called in a medium, through whom the ghost spoke, and they then cajoled the visitant to leave the house, passing out of the front door.

"Such spirits it may be supposed, are living a dream life, and in cases where ghosts have been exorcised it may be that they have been set free from the illusion that has tied them by some magnetic attraction to some particular spot."

"The theosophists' view," added Mr. Shirley, "is that these hauntings are by the lower selves of the people and do not represent the true individuals; that they are some fragment of the lower consciousness of actual representation.

The most wonderful story of all, however, is told by a British officer, a correspondent of Mr. Shirley's. It is a personal narrative of an uncanny experience that happened to this officer in one of the wildest spots in the Indian jungle. There came into his possession accidentally a dirty scrap of paper from which the officer learned that treasure of enormous value lay buried beneath a certain rock. About a week after the paper had been handed to him by the native Col. X—— came upon the site of the buried treasure, which he found well guarded by spirits.

"Colossal grey elephants massed in a ghostly way between me and the mass," he states, "and all the while there was never a sound but that thud, thud, thud, as of some heavy body falling upon soft earth. I suppose panic must have grown and that I attempted to bolt from the neighborhood. Anyway, the next thing I remember finding myself sitting upon the ground, my gun gone, and at a loss to know where I was."

Ploughing, harvesting and road work are common employment for Greek peasant women.

CAMELS.

They Were Numerous In America But Became Extinct.

The camel tribe is represented in South America by four species of animals—the llama (commonly used as a beast of burden), the guanaco, the alpaca and the vicuna.

The camels anciently so vastly numerous in North America, and varying in size from that of a cottontail rabbit to the so-called "giraffe" species (much larger than any camel now surviving on the earth), vanished long ago. Why they should have become extinct on this continent nobody knows.

Camels and their near relatives the dromedaries have been introduced in this country from the old world at various times. Some were brought to Virginia in 1701. But, owing to lack of knowledge of their habits and of proper methods of caring for them, these attempts have proved failures.

On a number of occasions dromedaries have been introduced into various parts of South America, and employed with some success for travel on desert plains difficult for any other animal to traverse. But they have not long survived.

It has been asserted that without the dromedaries the intercourse of mankind over vast regions in Asia would have been confined to districts where abundance reigned. The products of one district could not have been exchanged for those of another; commerce would have been nonexistent, and tribes distantly separated would have had little knowledge of each other.

A particularly desirable animal for this country would seem to be the "booghdee," which is a cross between the Bactrian camel and the dromedary of the plains. This hybrid is short-limbed and very muscular. It carries 600 pounds on level ground, or 400 pounds where the going is rough and hilly. Nearly as sure-footed as a horse, its greatest advantage as a mountain burden-bearer lies in the strength and development of the claw that terminates each foot.

The booghdee is almost as omnivorous as a goat, and browses cheerfully on desert plants of almost any kind. In the Old World it is annually shorn, its long fleece (equal in quantity to the wool of four sheep) being used for weaving. The fleece is nearly as soft as the wool of Tibet. But the so-called camel's-hair shawls are woven from Tibetan goat's fleece, and not from the hair of any camel.

The "Go Slow" Strike.

Japanese laborers seem to have discovered and put in practice something new in the relations of employer and employed, the "go slow" strike, and a writer in the Japan Advertiser, examining this form of protest against what the workers in any given plant have decided is an undesirable state of affairs, finds it interesting characteristic of Japanese ways of thinking and acting. The "go slow" strike, which was not long ago effectively employed by some 17,000 employes at the Kawasaki dockyard, differs radically from the "walk out" of laborers that marks the beginning of a strike in western nations, for the Japanese laborers walk in as usual in the morning, but having arrived they calmly and unanimously "go slow" by refusing to work. The resulting situation, says the analyst, appeals to something which each side recognizes "the feeling of loyalty on the one hand and of paternal responsibility on the other, both well-marked features of the national character as it has been developed by a paternal-feudal system. To go to the factory, loyal and ready to work if only conditions are made just and fair, seems to the Japanese a nobler attitude than that of the arrogant western individualist who walks out and refuses to work except on his own terms." Chinese laborers in the war zone, one seems to remember, initiated a similar strike one day when their morning rations had not been distributed. They came to the scene of their daily toil, and did nothing at all until food was provided, and the strike ended. Apparently, too, the "go slow" strike in Japan has so far had the approval of the public, and the static unanimity of the great body of laborers, waiting and ready to resume work when conditions are made satisfactory, presents an emergency which the employer sees no way of meeting by engaging strike breakers.

The Biggest Pair of Tusks.

It is said that in the stables of the Royal Palace at Mandalay, in Burma, may be seen an elephant with a remarkable pair of tusks, which the Burmese declare are the biggest in the world.

These tusks, it is averred, measure as much as seven feet nine inches on the outside curve, with a maximum circumference of no less than seventeen inches. To naturalists the most extraordinary point about the tusks, which are still being carried by their owner, is that they virtually touch the ground and almost meet.

Apparently, however, their owner experiences no inconvenience from these long and cumbrous appendages while taking exercise. As a zoological curiosity the elephant has naturally attracted wide attention and it is reported that several offers have been made for the tusks when the animal should see fit to depart this world.—Tit-Bits.

Holland Electrified.

Electricity has received a big boom in Holland as a result of the fuel shortage during the war. Of 140,000 houses in Amsterdam, 110,000 are now provided with electric lights, whereas before the hostilities started only 30,000 houses were connected up, says an exchange. Electricity's more general use in Holland is bound to make a big change in the appearance of the country, as the windmills that for centuries made the power for land drainage are being replaced gradually by electric pumps. Most of the generating plants and motor equipment have been supplied by the Swiss and the Germans.

MR. BURNHAM RESENTS

the gentleman of that portion of the Opposition is no doubt largely aroused through the feeling that they have lost the major portion of themselves. The farmers of this country beyond all doubt, according to my way o thinging, owe to the Liberal party, who held the fort for many a long day, at least a tribute of respect, if not of consideration. But now the farmers have repudiated the Liberal party, and surely if the farmers repudiate their associates, the least we on this side can do is to agree with them. They know the Liberals better than we do, and they have cast them aside like a brand into the burning. I regret his parting from old associates, from those who remain of a great historic party, now about to disappear because it is to be swallowed up in that far greater movement known as the Agrarian or Farmers' Movement.

Developed by War.

This is one of those incidents arising from furious feeling which has been developed by the war. We have other exemplifications of force; we have the women of this country (whose forte is practical but not philosophical idealism) advocating force. Strange to say, in this general convulsion after the war, when peace should have supervened, we have the doctrine of force being preached from one end of the country to the other, by ministers in the pulpit and by women out of it. The religion and the morals of the people, as well as their peace and content, depend upon individual liberty, and if we are to understand, as the Rev. Dr. Bland said recently in his pulpit—a prominent pulpit in Toronto—that individual liberty has disappeared, and that we must henceforth have only community liberty, then we must bow to force. Well, we will bow to force only when we have to. And we will not submit to the force of the majority, because I have known a minority that, when it came to force, could overcome a majority; and if our women and the pulpiteers have so far forgotten their respect to God, and preserve their desire to spread infidelity throughout this country, as the most certainly are doing, let them remember that the remnant who hold dear all the old basic elements of the moral law, the basis of religion, will adhere to those elements then these people proclaim, as they are proclaiming, that the death of Christ himself was unnecessary if the Almighty had had brains enough to prohibit the source of evil. It is one of the most extraordinary and deplorable conditions imaginable. I am well aware that those who say that do not mean it, but they do not know. Those people who pooh-pooh philosophy, who sneer at the fundamental reasons of things and set up something that they adore and that they are determined to back up by force, have intensified the spleen and excitement [illegible] we now see throughout the country and which will result in the country's downfall if something is not done to prevent it. I am not now referring to any particular brand of prohibition. It is not necessary to stop at alcohol; that form of prohibition is a very minor affair. We need only follow that idea up to revive at once the conditions of the Inquisition. If it is wrong to misuse alcohol, it is wrong to misuse religion—and we have all the horror of the days when women were executed as witches and when people were burned at the stake, the persecutors maintaining the while a remarkable self-complacency. The descendants of these very people are today delighted to see a repetition of what has happened before. One cannot look back on those days without wondering how these things could have been done: but when people are wedded to force, they can do anything. I can only say that I do not come of a race that submits to force. If force has to be exercised, then let us "cry havoc and let loose the dogs of war." We can all join in that, and possibly out of this extraordinary condition of things there may come that spirit of reunion which the hon. member for St. Hyacinthe (Mr. Gauthier) a few moments ago seemed to repudiate. We cannot and we will not put up with this dogmatism which has been engendered by a false system of ethics, then force which has been substituted for the old religion and which sooner or later will destroy the very foundations of society.

One of the disturbing elements of the present day is beyond all doubt the condition of the mind of the soldier. He is not satisfied. Why? Because broadly before him is placed this simple fact: that the people who stayed at home have profited and that the people who went to war have lost. They simply say to themselves: Upon us has fallen not only the burden of the war at the front, but the burden of the war at home; we are ignored; we must struggle. The consequence is that there has been engendered and aroused a feeling which is regrettable [illegible]

Did Not Follow Up.

I confess that the people who have been engaged in looking after the returned soldier have thought that they were doing well. To some extent they have been doing well. But he gives twice who gives quickly, and they did not give quickly, nor did they follow up what hey intended to do with that instantaneous and practical carrying out of the intention which would have taken away so much from the sting of the loss which these men had suffered. Delay followed delay. Impracticable things were suggested. It was suggested that returned soldiers should go upon the farm who did not know a farm when they saw it. Men were offered inducements to go upon the farm, but no inducements to go into business. Afterwards the loan principle was extended in some degree to business, but there has been throughout a lack of promptitude on the part of our people—on the part of all of us—with regard to the soldier, And the soldier feels it. He does not want to be paid for what he did. He cannot be paid; no country could pay him. But after four or five years of war he finds that he is in an extremely bad condition in many cases —a poor, unfortunate condition — and he thinks that if he had some decent help in time of need, if the people of this country had been a "very present help in time of trouble." this post-war period would have been tided over, with possibly few exceptions. But the condition has been so widespread and so general that it has occasioned at last a suspicion in the minds of the people themselves that all is not right. In England they have said that war fortunes must not only be regretted: they must be given up. How infrequently do we say that people in this country made a good thing out of the war; but we let them keep it. Let them in all honesty and ourselves in all honor remember that while they the entitled to a fair reward and fair remuneration, they are most decidedly not entitled to keep the fortunes they made during the absence in the field of strife of our glorious soldiers. There can be and will be no satisfaction so long as these evidences of luxury are paraded before the men who made the sacrifice which made possible the enjoyment of these luxuries. Therefore, when we analyze the various causes of discontent we must remember that we have not by an means done all that we could do to allay it.

LOCAL POSTIES OF SAME MIND

AGREE WITH BRETHREN ELSEWHERE REGARDING PROMISES NOT YET FILLED

Local letter carriers are of the same mind as the letter carriers all over the country with regard to delay in carrying out promises made last December that arrears in pay would be sent out to all employes immediately after the meeting of Parliament.

The local men, while they are dissatisfied, do not know whom to blame for their troubles. One carrier regarded it as a game of "passing the buck." The Government laid the blame on the Civil Service Commission, and when the Civil Service Commission were charged with it, they in turn threw the blame back on the Goverument. The local carriers were reticent as to their actions, in case of continued delay by the Government, but a Review reporter was given clearly to understand that they would stand with the carriers all ovdr the country and that any movement to force the Government to action in the matter would receive local support.

Matters reached a head at a meeting of tho Toronto letter carriers last week, and the threat was made there to call another strike on forty-eight hours' notice if no action was taken. The majority of the men at the meeting declared they were compelled to take such a stand in order to obtain justice from the Government. Some members pointed out that as there were about two thousand names on the waiting list of persons anxious to secure positions in the local post office it would be folly to resort to drastic action. The more aggressive members talked of demanding a salary of $40 a week and the elimination of bonuses.

SPORTS AT Y.M.C.A. GYM SATURDAY

JUNIOR SCHOOL BOYS MATCH WITH JUNIOR EMPLOYED BOYS

On Saturday evening a program of sports was run off in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, when the junior school boys matched their efficiency against that of the junior employed boys. The contests were keenly contested all the way, except perhaps in the indoor baseball game, when the weakness of the school boys' battery gave the employed a run-away with the score.

SHAMROCK DAY

Next Saturday will be Shamrock Day in aid of the St. Vincent's Orphanage. There will be a meeting of the ladies of the three Roman Catholic parishes in St. Alphonsus Lyceum, to complete arrangements. At High Mass yesterday in St. Peter's Cathedral, Bishop O'Brien made a strong appeal for helpers to canvass next Saturday He stated that, although perhaps the work was not very enticing yet the cause for which it was done should over-rule such consideration. In conclusion he mentioned that the public had always been genrous to the institutions in this city and there was no reason to think that next Saturday would be an exception.

Notice to Encampment Members All Patriarchs are invited to attend the joint meeting of Hiawatha and Mount Hebron Encampments on Tuesday evening, March 9, 1920. Grand officers will be present. Dinner at 6:30 p.m.

BAYER
BAYER

ONLY TABLETS MARKED "BAYER" ARE ASPIRIN

Not Aspirin at All without the "Bayer Cross"

For Colds, Pain, Lumbago, Stiffness, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuritis, and for Headache, Neuralgia, Toothache, Earache, take Aspirin marked with the name "Bayer" or you are not taking Aspirin at all.

Accept only "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in an unbroken "Bayer" package which contains complete directions. Then you are getting real Aspirin—the genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years. Now made in Canada.

Handy tin boxes containing 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer"

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

TEACHES GIRLS HOW TO STEAL

FATHER ACCUSED OF TRAINING DAUGHTERS TO ENGAGE IN THEFT

GIRLS WERE USED AS BLINDS

WHILE FATHER ENGAGED IN SHOP LIFTING IN BIG STORES

Los Angeles, March 6.—A shoplifters' school in which George Sutton, 40 years old, a switchman was instructing his wife and two daughters to steal from the local department stores, was uncovered the police say, when Sutton, his wife Mrs. Elsie L. Sutton, 37 years old, and their daughters, Bessie, 18 years old, were taken into custody. Hidden beneath Suttons clothing the police found silk underwear and stockings valued at about $150.

Sutton confessed to stealing the goods from department store counters and said his family needed the expensive clothing.

Used As Blinds.

Mrs. Sutton and her two daughters who were locked up with Sutton on grand larceny charges denied any part in the stealing. The woman told officers that her husband insisted that she and the two girls stand near the department store counters where he was operating. The three denied ever assisting in the thefts, but admitted they often wore clothing stolen from Sutton.

According to the detectives, Sutton always operated with his family. The three women, the police say, were used as "blinds" by Sutton and also assisted him in escaping if his actions aroused suspicion.

From what the police were able to learn, Sutton after entering a department store would send his wife and two daughters to a silk counter with instructions top price and examine the goods on display. While the three women attracted the attention of the clerks to one end of the counter, Sutton, the policet say would snatch any article within reach from the other end.

Accees Husbad

Although Sutton and his wife both stated that the two girls had never been allowed to take anything from the counter, and Sutton asserted that although his famly was always present when he "lifted" anything alone did the stealing the police believe the two girls were receiving instructions in shoplifting.

In a statement to the police Mrs. Sutton declared that her husband first started to steal from department stores about four years ago. "We lived in Pueblo Colo," said Mrs. Sutton. "My husband, who is the stepfather of the two girls, first started to steal two years after we were marred. I begged him to give it up as I knew that sooner or later he wold be arrested. We left Peblo a couple of years ago and have lived in Salt Lake Denver and several Pacific Coast cities. We came to Los Angeles and George was going to work. Now we are all in jail and our lives are ruined."

Sutton, when questioned by the police, after Mrs. Sutton made her statement denied that he had stolen anything before the arrest here.

DIAMOND HOLDUP RACKS THE NERVES

MAN STUDIES MANY STONES BEFORE USING REVOLVER

A quietly dressed man walked into a pawnbroker's shop in Park Row, New York, a few days ago, asked to see some of the larger diamonds, passed half an hour looking them over and finally selected two that pleased him. Then he drew a revolver, backed away and bounded out into the street. He still has the diamonds, so far as J. D. Koplek & Co., 101 Park Row, and the police are concerned.

Either this holdup man was something of a humorist or else it took him a long time to tighten up his nerve. He walked into the shop shortly after 5 o'clock in the afternoon and asked to be shown some big diamonds. J. Gorta, a clerk in the shop, brought out a tray and placed it before the customer.

He held up one stone after another, and after about half an hour settled on two stones, one priced at $650 and the other at $1,250. Then he asked, "What do you give in the way of a guarantee?"

Gorta told him that the firm's bill had been considered guarantee enough during its sixty years of business.

"Can I see one of those?" asked the visitor, and when the clerk faced about again he looked into a revolver muzzle.

NEW CAPITAL ISSUES BY BRITAIN INCREASE

HOME INDUSTRIES AND FINANCING NEW VENTURES BEING ENCOURAGED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 8.—According to reliable returns new capital issues of the United Kingdom for January and February totalled seventy-eight million pounds, compared with twenty-eight million in 1919.

A large majority of these issues were for developing existing home industries of financing new ventures, which are mostly over-subscribed.

MINISTERIAL ASSN. MET THIS MORNING

CONGRATULATIONS EXTENDED TO ARCHDEACON DAVIDSON ON HIS PROMOTION

The Ministerial Association of Peterborough met in the Y. M. C. A. this morning at 10 o'clock. President Rev. F. E. Malott was in the chair, and Rev. G. E. Ross acted as secretary. The mintues of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The following resolutions were carried:

"That the Peterborough Ministerial Association give its hearty endorsation to the Grenfell Deep Sea Mission, Association of PPeterborough, and commends the appeal made by the ladies this week to the many friends who have subscribed to Dr. Grenfell's work in the past, and to all who will be reached by the information laid before them during the next few days."

It was also resolved that the matter of Bible Society meetings be deferred until the Autumn. Another resolution was carried arranging for a meeting of the Executive of religious education for the city, with a view to a general canvass in the autumn.

An expression of appreciation was extended to Archdeacon Davidson by the president of the association and the members present, and he was heartily congratulated on the latest honor conferred upon him by his church.

Arrangements wer made for a union meeting to be held in St. Paul's Church on Good Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the program to be arranged by the president, Archdeacon Davidson and the leader of St. Paul's choir.

RONALD McDONALD DEAD

Well-known Newspaper Man of Guelph City, Passes Away.

Guelph, March 8.—The death occurred here on Friday of Ranald Macdonald, a well-known newspaper man of this city, following an illness of about three weeks. He came to Guelph from Scotland a few years ago, and was a student at the O. A. C., later going into newspaper work. He enlisted in 1914, and served all through the war with the 18th Battalion, being once wounded. He returned about a year ago and conducted a news bureau until he was taken ill. He was a son of Angus Macdonald of Edinburgh, Scotland, and was born in that city nearly thirty-nine years ago. His brother, George A. Macdonald, resides in Peterborough, and was here when he died. The funeral will take place here today.

DEFENDANT EXONERATED

Judgment in the case against C. A. Moncur, charged with failing to keep a proper record of drugs sold in contravention of the sale of opinum act was delivered by Magistrate Dumble this morning. He found that the Crown had failed to substantiate their charges and rendered a verdict accordingly. A copy of his judgment appears below. This is the last of the three cases resulting from the drug investigation in the city, every one resulting in a dismissal.

"I cannot set up my judgment, even ofI had one, in condemnation of the defendant.

The Government is making strenuous efforts to reduce the evil habit of using opium and I would suggest that all the druggists assist the Government in ther efforts. I must dismiss the charge.

D. W. DUMBLE,
Police Magistrate.

BOWLING

Saturday night's bowling at the Y.M.C.A. resulted in a victory for George Street of two games to All Saints' one. The losers being out to hold up a good reputation won during the first part of the league, but the loss of Rose, All Saints' high roller, is keenly felt on the team and it is hoped that he will soon recover from his present illness and be with his team once again.

Pratt for the winners chalked over 200 twice but McClellan for All Saints' held the higher average of 203.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

A boys' membership campaign commences at the local Y. M. C. A. today and will be extended until the end of the month. Teams of three boys each are arranged to conduct the campaign, and the team getting the highest number of points above a minimum of sixty will be awarded half a week at the boys' camp for each member of the team. Then there is a special prize of a week at the boys' camp or in the event of his not wanting this, an alternative prize of a German gas helmet, old and new type, to the boy getting the highest individual number of points above a minimum of thirty points. Every boy has the privilege of working for this prize, whether he is on a team or not. Points are arranged according to the amount of money represented by the new members brought in. Two points are given for every dollar of membership.

There will be a practice of the Y. M. C. A. indoor baseball team at the "Y" Tonight at 7 o'clock, and all members of the team are asked to attend without fail.

PITCHERS SHOULD BE GREATEST SLUGGERS

BABE RUTH SAYS THEY KNOW WEAKNESS OF OTHER BATTERS—A MYSTERY

Babe Ruth, who has become an authority on many arts since he set a new record for home runs now comes to bat with a statement which is worthy of some thought.

"Babe" claims that pitchers should be the greatest hitters in the game, but that with one exception they are not.

The hurler knows the weakness of all other pitchers in the league—or he should know. He follows the course taken by a ball more than any other man except the catcher. Under such circumstances he should be a slugger but usually the pitcher is given little consideration when it comes to hitting.

There are many reasons why a pitcher seldom hits well as other players, and Ruth mentions a few of them.

They do not get into the game every day like outfielders, infielders or catchers. It takes practice to become a hitter and a player who gets into the game every third, fourth or fifth day does not get a chance to look things over. Practice makes perfect in baseball as well as in other things.

Then again a pitcher works harder than any other man on the team, and this also affects his ability at the plate, for he is usually tired when he steps up with his bat.

Many a pitcher is asked to "win your own game," but few come through.

Good War Work Was Done By British Propaganda, But Mysteries Remain

PRACTICALLY every phase of the late war has been written and rewritten over and over again, but in spite of the apparently limitless reams of war literature, very little important war news, beyond the official war communiques, was allowed to pass the censor, who, seated at his desk at the United Service Institution in Whitehall, appeared to spend his time inventing methods of keeping the British people from knowing too much about the inner workings of that mighty machine that was gradually bringing the enemy to his knees. A mysterious veil of secrecy hung over the portals of Whitehall and even to this day there are within the pigeon holes of New Scotland Yard Intelligence branch secret papers, which, if brought to the light of day, would open the eyes of many people who have read everything they could lay their hands on in connection with the war.

There must be many people who, in discussing the late war, ask if ever these secrets will be revealed. For instance, will the finding of the Hampshire enquiry ever be published and the mystery of the death of Kitchener be solved. In connection with the tragic death of that "organizer of victory" blame has been attached by many to the British Government, but those who are cognizant of the facts can never divulge them, for they have already paid the penalty for their treachery and they lived many miles from England. Again, will the identity of that remarkable woman, Princess P—— who throughout the war lived in Berlin and did valuable work for the cause of the allies ever be known? Instances such as these could be multiplied many times, but although the war is gradually passing into history it is doubtful if the public will ever know "the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

During the period of hostilities it was necessary to maintain this rule of secrecy in order that no information might trickle through the different channels of communication to the lines of the enemy. As most people are aware, during the war England was honey-combed with secret service agents, spies—many of them employed in Government offices under the very eyes of important officials who held the secrets of the state. The walls of the Tower of London are splashed with the blood of German agents and a few British traitors, though the names of only a few who paid the penalty for their daring have been given to the public.

While it was necessary for the British authorities to keep silence when the publication of certain information would be of assistance to the enemy, it became evident that while the Germans were making every effort to defeat the Allies on the battlefield, they were also spending enormous sums of money on propaganda in an attempt to defeat the Allies in a moral sense and at the same time to impress upon the neutral countries, and specially the United States, that the aims of the Germanic alliance were the most unselfish and honorable and that Germany was fighting solely a war of defence. Then it became necessary for the British Government to break down the walls of mystery and silence. And Mr. Lloyd George instituted the Ministry of Information and placed at its head a Canadian, Lord Beaverbrook.

The Allies ever since the commencement of the war possessed the entire control of the cables of the world. Not a line of German propaganda could ever cross the ocean by means of the cable, but the Huns had a powerful wireless system which could reach the Scandinavian countries, Russia, Holland, and other countries. Often German "news" was transmitted through their wireless stations to such vessels that might have eluded the British navy, but there were only a few cases of this kind, as the German ships did not live long to be of any read value.

The work that the Propaganda Department of the British Government, in liaison with similar departments in the allied countries, performed during the last two years of the war has never been properly known or understood by the people of the British Empire. The bullets and the guns destroyed the bodies of the enemy, but propaganda destroyed their spirits.

In order that every phase of the British endeavor might be brought Ministry played a varied part and was divided into numerous branches. Also the best brains were employed. Among those who gave their services were: Arnold Bennett, E. Phillips Oppenheim, Major Beith (Ian Hay), Sir Anthony Hawkins (Anthony Hope), Hugh Walpole, Sir Hall Caine, E. Temple Thurston, Sir H. Newbolt, Lord Northcliffe, Ben Tillett, Rudyard Kipling, Louis Raemaekers, and many others whose names are known throughout the world. A special section was devoted to making known in every country the remarkable progress and expansion made in British industries, especially those captured from the Germans, such as dyes, synthetic drugs, etc.

The British Propaganda Department played a remarkable part in opening the eyes of neutral nations. It spread the prestige of the British arms through the world. It drew nearer together the allied countries and did much to bring the United States on the side of the Allies. In short, it did much to bring about victory to the allied arms.

A Permanent Blush.

We have always been under the impression that the English women were blest with one of the finest complexions in the world, says the Electrical Experimenter, but here comes a cable from London telling of the popularity accorded to a new fad in the English city—that of electrically tattooing a permanent complexion or blush on the face. The report goes on to say that the pallid and sallow faces of London women are being permanently brightened and given a rosy tint by expert tattooists, whose electric needle applications can be graduated to suit any physiognomy, and further, that the tattooists report they have never done such a thriving and profitable business among women as now.

Such an outfit comprises an electric tattooing needle operated from a battery and supplied with current through a flexible wire, while a small rubber tube leads through the needle proper to whichever complexion is selected by the customer. In some of these tattooing needles the coloring pigment is contained in a small hollow chamber on the base of the needle itself.

Fruits of Old.

Many of the fruits and vegetables now eaten in England were almost unknown to our forefathers. Not until Henry VIII.'s time were raspberries or strawberries or cherries grown in England, and we do not read of the turnip, cauliflower and quince being cultivated before the sixteenth century.

The Sample.

"If I give you one kiss will you be satisfied?" "No. I expect the sample to assay better than that."

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

Do Women Read Newspaper Advertising

¶ Since Women do over 80 per cent of the Retail buying that is done, Advertisers are constantly investigating the Appeal which Advertising mediums exert upon Women. This fact is continually before manufactures in every line, and recently the Bureau of Investigation was asked to conduct an investigation to show how much Underwear for Men was bought by Women, so that the manufacturer who made the request could write his advertisements accordingly.

¶ Many investigations have been made by Women's Clubs, Merchants' Organizations, Statistical Bureaus, and the like, but while these inquiries invariably show that Women are more influenced by Newspaper Advertising that by any other kind, they are inconclusive because of the high percentage of non-commital or unsatisfactory replies.

¶ The question broadly answers itself in that Women do most of the buying, and Newspapers carry far more Advertising than other mediums combined.

FORGOT HE CHANGED HIS HAT

Aged Restaurant Patron Makes Search for Straw Toppiece, But Finds Own Derby.

Nice old gentleman in the restaurant, with a long line of hat trees running down the center. His dinner finished, he picked up his check and turned to the hat tree back of him and took down his hat, or the hat he had no doubt was his, but when from force of habit he looked inside of it to make sure he found that it wasn't his hat at all!

So he put that hat back on the tree and tried the next most likely one, but with the same result, and it was the same with all the hats on the tree, which he looked into one by one until he had looked into all excepting a black derby, which he did not inspect, for what he was looking for was a straw.

But then, to leave no stone unturned, he took down that black derby and looked into it; and, good gracious! that was the hat he was really looking for; that black derby hat he was now looking into was his very own.

He smiled as he put it on. He had changed that morning from straw to felt and then had forgotten all about it.

PITCAIRN ISLAND IS LONELY

Natives Occupying Spot, Peopled by About 150, Have Degenerated Through Intermarriage.

Home is where the heart is, but the heart picks out some most unusual locations at times. Rather near, as Pacific ocean distances go, to the Society islands, is Pitcairn Island. It is certainly a lonesome spot, says the New York Sun, and as far back as 1856 the British authorities decided that it was no fit place for human habitation. So, the descendants of the mutineers of the "Bounty" who had settled there in 1790 were transferred that year to the more inviting Norfolk island. Several families, however, were so homesick that they went back to Pitcairn.

The population from these few families has now increased until about 150 people are on the island. Through intermarriage and other evils of isolation these islanders have degenerated and their retrogression undoubtedly will end in their extermination.

CONTAGIOUS ABORTION

A Too Common Trouble With Some Farm Mares.

Cause of the Disease Discovered—Method of Spreading Described—Measures for Control — Oyster-shell Bark Louse With Its Treatment.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

CONTAGIOUS abortion of mares is due to a specific bacillus (Bacillus abortivus equinus) which gets established in the uterus, fetal membranes and foetus, setting up local inflammation leading to expulsion of the foetus dead or alive at any time during pregnancy.

The symptoms of approaching abortion are not usually in evidence until just before abortion takes place. Then the animal is seized with colicy pains, restlessness and straining, and a swollen vulva with a mucous discharge is noticeable. After abortion, the symptoms are more specific. There is a chocolate brown fluid discharge from vulva which has a typical offensive odor, and the foetal membranes are inclined to remain intact, thus necessitating artificial removal to prevent blood poisoning.

The disease has been known in Europe for many years, but it was not found on the American continent until 1886 when it appeared in the Mississippi valley. Since then it has spread far and wide in the United States and Canada. Although many investigations were made both in Europe and America, it was not until 1912 that the cause of the disease was discovered. In that year E. S. Good, of Kentucky, discovered the bacillus which causes the disease. The same year Dr. Schofield, of Toronto, discovered the same bacillus in some cases of joint ill in colts which had developed in districts in Ontario where contagious abortion of mares was prevalent and the following year found the same bacillus in cases of contagious abortion of mares in Ontario.

Method of Spreading.—The disease is spread mainly by the discharges from the vulva of aborting animals. If a mare that has aborted is served before all discharges from the vulva have ceased and the genitalia have been efficiently disinfected, then the stallion is liable to get contaminated with the bacillus and spread the disease to other mares which he subsequently serves. If the discharges from an aborting mare are allowed to contaminate the bedding or other materials that other mares come in contact with, then the mares are liable to contract the disease. If the discharges are allowed to contaminate water or food materials that are given to other mares, the latter are liable to contract the disease.

Measures for Control.—1. Three months must elapse between abortion and subsequent breeding.

2. Mares that have aborted must not be bred if there is evidence of uterine catarrh, even after three months.

3. Mares that have aborted must only be bred at the end of the stallion season.

4. Application of an efficient disinfectant to the external genitalia of the stallion after each service in affected districts.

Measures to Be Employed at Time of, or Subsequent to Abortion.—1. Isolation of mare at first sign of approaching abortion.

2. After abortion the foetus and membranes should be burned, if possible, or buried deeply in quick-lime.

3. Those handling the foetus and mare should disinfect hands and clothing.

4. Bedding should be burned and the stall washed with a strong disinfectant.

5. External genitals, thighs and tail of mare should be washed daily with a good disinfectant. Two per cent. bacterol, lysol, or cresol, is satisfactory for this purpose.

6. Isolation of mare should be maintained for at least a month or until all evidence of uterine discharge has ceased.

Treating the animal with drugs, as carbolic acid, black haw and methylene blue, though popular in some districts, cannot be recommended as being of any value.—Dr. J. H. Reed, O. A. College, Guelph.

Oyster-shell Scale.

This is a very common orchard insect. It attacks not only apples but also pears, plums, currants and many ornamental and shade trees and bushes. Full grown scales are found almost exclusively on the bark and are easily recognized by their oyster-shell appearance. They are about ⅛ of an inch long, 1-24 inch wide, taper towards one end and in color resemble closely the bark.

The injury is caused by their sucking the juices out of the bark and thus weakening the trees. When very abundant they almost completely cover the bark and in that case may kill either the whole tree or portions of the branches. Most infested trees, however, are not killed but only weakened.

Control.—Spraying the trees just before or just after the buds burst with lime-sulphur solution, 1 gallon to 8 or 9 gallons of water, is a satisfactory remedy. The regular Codling Moth spray with one gallon of lime-sulphur to about 39 gallons of water, to which two pounds of arsenate of lead paste or one pound arsenate of lead powder is added will also help greatly, because it will hit the young scale insects just after they have hatched, while they are still unprotected and easily destroyed. Dead scales may remain on the trees for several years after date of killing. Pruning the trees early makes it easier and cheaper to spray them well. —Prof. L. Caesar, O. A. College, Guelph.

HORNETS MAKE PAPER.

Interesting Discovery Made by French Scientist.

That a hornet is both a maker of paper and an able builder was known even before insect science was systematized. But the processes by which the paper is made and the elaborately planned nest is built were shrouded in mystery until they were studied by Charles Janet, a Frenchman, whose investigation of insect life has attracted much attention.

Prof. Janet found that a hornet's paper-making methods will bear comparison with those of ordinary paper mills. The hornet seeks some rotting tree, removes a piece of wood and chews it till he produces a ball of pulp about a quarter of an inch in diameter. Laden with this he flies to the nest. The search for a suitable piece of decayed wood and the chewing of it have consumed not more than six minutes, and perhaps only two. Clinging to the comb with his middle and hind feet, the worker juggles the ball of pulp with his fore-feet, chewing it continuously to make it more plastic and adhesive. After sufficient chewing he disposes of the ball in repairing or in building additions. Selecting a suitable part of the nest, he attaches the ball and then drags it, leaving behind a narrow strip of paper.

As the ball of pulp is unreeled it is shaped by the insect's jaws, and by incessant tamping along the joint it is glued to the sheet to which it is to form a part. When the ribbon has reached a length that varies from half an inch to an inch and a half the hornet returns nearly, but not quite, to the point of beginning and deposits a second strip, soon after that a third and so on to completion.

After a certain stage in this singular work of construction has been reached the queen of the hive emerges from her royal seclusion and performs a most astonishing operation. Carrying a ball of pulp of her own, she spins around one leg as a radius and deposits a circular ribbon of paper. Less agile than the workers, who complete their labors in two or three minutes, the queen requires at least five minutes for her spin.

Instead of building annexes to the hive, the hornet may use half the ball of pulp in cell building, although whole balls of very fine pulp are gathered for this special purpose. In principle, cell building is exactly like the process described, but the paper used is finer and the work is carried on with greater care. Like a good artisan, the worker retouches the moist cell after completion, smoothing down inequalities and finishing the walls with exquisite attention to detail.

Leather From the Sea.

Everybody is painfully aware of the scarcity and high price of leather. The war, of course, took a heavy toll of the leather production of the world, and in addition reduced the world's flocks and herds from which our leather usually comes. The sea, however, holds an almost inexhaustible source of leather in the larger aquatic creatures—whales, sharks, porpoises, dogfish, the ray or devilfish, the sawfish and some others.

There have, however, been difficulties in the way of utilizing these sources on any large scale for the production of leather suitable for general purposes. The shagreen or outer coating of the skin of the shark, for example (as well as those of the ray and of the dogfish), is a horny structure frequently so hard that it is difficult to grind it off; while grinding, if carried far enough to re[illegible] it entirely, results in partial de[illegible] of the skin proper.

Necessity, however, has again proved the mother of invention, and chemical means have been devised by which this horny material may be successfully removed, while improvements in lining now permit that part of the process of tanning to be carried through without injury to the skin. A further step has succeeded in removing the fishy odor which would otherwise remain in the finished product. In the circumstances it is not surprising to learn that new stations for the treatment of these sea products are being established on the southern Atlantic shores of the United States where many of the sea creatures abound.

Pursued.

Nathaniel Hawthorne's handwriting was so illegible that some of his manuscripts remained unpublished because nobody could read them. This was likewise true of Carlyle. The story is told of a type compositor who was employed by a London printing office because of a strong recommendation brought from Scotland. The first piece of manuscript given him to set was by Carlyle.

"My God!" said the new typesetter. "Have you got that man here too? I fled from Scotland to avoid him!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

OLYMPIC GAMES BEST MEN CANUCKS

PLAYERS ON LEADING AMERICAN HOCKEY TEAMS ARE CANADIANS

Pittsburg, March 8 — Because practically all of the players on the best of the American hockey teams are Canadians, it will be necessary to send a composite team to represent the States at the Olympic games... The rules governing the competition provide that players must be citizens of the country they represent.

It was intended to play a series of elimination games between the Boston St. Paul and Pittsburg teams the surviving team to carry the colors of the United States at Antwerp. Under the new arrangement the team to represent this country will be chosen from the best of the American players on the various teams. The members of the local team are all Canadians, but some of the substitutes will try for places on the United States Olympic septette. The selection of the players will be probably be left in the hands of a committee of the Internatonal Skating Union, which controls hockey in this country

GAULT TEAM SICK DEFAULTED GAME

Galt, March 8.—The Galt Northern League seniors went into the finals on Friday afternoon, when Seaforth, with all of their team except the goalkeeper sick, defaulted the game scheduled for that town on Friday night.

The local team was at Kitchener, on the way north to Seaforth, when it got the message halting it. Seaforth are scheduled to come here Tuesday, but the game is not apt to be played. The locals will meet the winners of the Wiarton-Palmerston series in the finals.

INVITATION RACES

Mike Goodman, of Winnipeg, Cleans up First Place.

Winnipeg, March 8. — Displaying great speed at the necessary moments, Mike Goodman, Winnipeg speed merchant, cleaned up first place in the invitation races at the Arena rink on Thursday night before a very poor turnout, in rather easy fashion, scoring 90 points out of a possible 120, getting three firsts, in the quarter, half and mile races. Mike was in great form, taking the lead at the critical moment without much apparent effort, except in the mile, when Steinmetz kept right on his heels throughout the race.

Stowel of Aurora and Steinmetz of Chicago tied for second place with 60 points each, while Patrick of Winnipeg took the remaining 20 points by getting second in the half-mile.

WILDE AND HERMAN

Philadelphia, March 8.—A battle between Jimmy Wilde, ruler of the fly-weight brigade, and Pete Herman, bantamweight champion, may take place in London in May or June.

C. B. Cochran, the English promoter, is angling for the match, and if he can get Wilde to agree to allow Herman enter the ring at 116 pounds ringside the contest will probably be held.

PRISON FOR PROFITEERS.

Greedy Dealers Are Summarily Dealt With In Great Britain.

That profiteering is meeting with its just deserts in Great Britain is evident from reports that have just come to light regarding the punishment that has been meted out to those who have been making unwarranted profits off the poor, long-suffering public. Prison terms and heavy fines follow the conviction of dealers who seek to fatten off the people. It has just been disclosed that 7,350 offenders have been prosecuted throughout the British Isles and of those 1,320 have been convicted. Fines aggregating $35,000 have been imposed upon the guilty ones. Local tribunals to which complaints against dealers are submitted have been established, also appeal tribunals in specified areas in England, Scotland and Wales. In addition central committees have been formed to investigate supposed trusts or monopolies which may be manipulating wholesale prices. This has been done under the Profiteering Act.

Membership of the local tribunals is fixed at from 7 to 25, two of whom must be women. All complaints are heard in public, except in special cases, when, under authority of the Board of Trade, proceedings may be in private. Books or documents, produced at private hearings are to be treated as confidential if the persons producing them so desires. Labor is represented on the local tribunals and on the central committees.

Local tribunals have been empowered to investigate all claims brought before them and, if the allegations of excessive charges are established, to institute proceedings against the seller before a court of summary jurisdiction where, upon conviction, fines of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for terms not to exceed three months, or both, may be imposed.

Questions before local tribunals are decided by a majority of the members present and voting. Any seller aggrieved by any finding of a local tribunal, other than a decision to take proceedings before a court of summary jurisdiction, may appeal to the appeal tribunal for the area in which the local tribunal is operating. The institution of court proceedings is not the only function of the local tribunals—they may dismiss the complaint entirely, declare the price which would yield a reasonable profit on the article in question, or require the seller to repay to the complainant any amount paid by him in excess of this stipulated price.

Local tribunals all over England have lists of complaints for investigation. The articles range from flannelettes at 36 cents a yard to bootlaces at 25 cents a pair; from enameled saucepans at $1.45 to spools of cotton at 14 cents; a Westminster committee has been called on to investigate a charge of $125 for a woman's hat, another of $80 for a coat and skirt and a charge of 8 cents for a breakfast roll.

A complaint was made before the Walton-on-Thames committee of a charge of 62 cents for a lamp shade, which, it was alleged, could be purchased a few miles distant for 32 cents.

At Bangor a man complained that he had been charged 65 cents for tea for himself and a friend. The committee ordered a refund of 16 cents.

Poet Sasson Against War.

Apologists for war have, says the New York World, been almost of one voice in alleging its idealism as a redeeming feature. War, to be sure, involved human suffering and desolation, but above and beyond the carnage and ennobling the waste of life and treasure were the patriotism and devotion and brotherhood it fostered. It might brutalize for the time being, but in the end it exalted nations and spiritualised them with a baptism of blood.

This, indeed, is characteristically the view poets are supposed to take of war, yet it is the young British soldier-poet Siegfried Sassoon who most rudely challenges it. In his opinion, the great world war has been a nightmare of destruction and nothing else. It has been an orgy of blood without compensating gain, and so far from making the world safe for democracy "it has had a retrograding effect, at least throughout Europe, and civilization has been hurled back into a grosser materialism than it ever knew before."

Is not this the view which sober second-thought is compelling even idealists to take of war? If war ennobles, Europe and all the world as the result of the most colossal of wars ought to be purged and purified of dross as never before in history. As a matter of fact, the tempest of human passion has wrecked the great institutions of the world and loosened elements of disorder in a way to threaten political stability for generations to come. It has killed the spirit as well as the flesh. If this is the exaltation of war, humanity may well pray for the corroding and corrupting influences of peace."

Strength of the East.

Francis Yeats-Brown, the British cavalry officer who was "caught by the Turks" and who has written a most interesting book under that title descriptive of his adventures, is not enamored of the Turkish capital, in the purlieus of which he lurked for some time in the guise of an out-of-work Hungarian artisan.

"Constantinople," he says, "or at least that portion of it which lies outside the fashionable shopping area affected by tourists, is unkempt and filthy to an unbelievable degree.

"'See Naples and die,' says the Neapolitans. I say, 'smell Constantinople—same result.'"

Starfish for the Garden.

The Japanese are now using starfish as a manure, and it is said to give excellent results on rice. An analysis shows the fish to contain nearly five per cent. of nitrogen and a small quantity of phosphoric acid.—Tit-Bits.

BIRDS' EFFORTS TO DECEIVE

Pathetic Deception Practiced by Mother of Brood in Her Attempt to Save Her Young.

It has been pointed out that the military tactics which a commander may employ to deceive the enemy are practiced in a limited way by many birds.

There is nothing more interesting in the study of bird life than the efforts to deceive which many species put forth to save their young or their nests from the despoiler. They flutter just in front of the trespasser to attract his notice, and then they trail off with a "broken" wing dragging on the ground, emitting cries of distress.

The bobwhite (commonly called quail) is a most notable tactician in this kind of deception. This bird is physically helpless in the face of danger, possessing no weapons. Its power of swift flight for a short distance is great, but when there are little bobwhites to protect, the mother will not leave them. The nest is always on the ground, and the eggs are thus peculiarly open to the ravages of snakes and other enemies.

There are sometimes a score of eggs, sharply pointed at one end and round at the other, so that space in the nest is economized. The chicks quit their birthplace before they are fairly out of the shell.

They inherit a knowledge of the family vernacular, and each little head about the size of a pea, holds quick perception and resolute will. If danger threatens the brood, the mother bird calls. The young all "go dead" instantly, they drop down wherever they chance to be at the moment. A man or a boy might step on them; they are almost invisible among the dry leaves and grass. The mother bird renders herself very conspicuous, fluttering with a "broken wing."

The mourning dove is another timid and helpless creature; she also tries the broken wing ruse to divert danger from her nest. The dove acquired the "broken wing habit" of deception while the tribe yet nested on the ground. The habit persists, although rather ludicrous when exercised on the bough of a tree or on the top of a rail fence.

Clay Eaters.

The Aymara Indians, inhabiting the shores of Lake Titicaca and the lofty plateau of the Andes, find the struggle for existence hard at an altitude of more than 11,000 feet above the sea level. Their principal articles of food are quinoa, a coarse grain resembling rice, and potatoes, of which tuber their country is the original home. The difficulty of boiling food at so great an altitude necessitates the previous maceration of all articles intended to be so cooked. The potato is therefore prepared for storing and use by exposing it to the frost; then it is placed in water and stamped into a paste, all the soluble matter is washed out and the starchy and farinaceous substance remains. This is called chuno and it is made into a nutritious though insipid soup. The Aymaras use clay as an article of food, mixing it with quinoa. The clay they use is of a whitish color and rather gritty. Careful analysis shows that it contains no arsenic matter.

INDIA GETS HOME RULE.

First Step Toward Self-Government Known as a Diarchy.

No matter how the sun comes up there are always weather-wise prophets who see signs of a dismal day; and not a few such augurs, we are told, watched with due forebodings the passing of the bill giving a measure of self-government to India. But its passage "ends the old era and starts a new one," to use the words of its sponsor, the Right Hon. Edwin Samuel Montagu, Secretary of State for India.

The centre of the scheme of the measure, as the London Times points out, is a diarchy by which there is a division of governmental responsibility between a nominated executive council and ministers chosen from an elected legislative body. The new system provides bicameral legislatures, which are only partly popular, for India as a whole and for certain provinces. The Indian Legislative Assembly will consist of about one hundred members, of whom two-thirds are elected. Of the appointed members, one-third will be made up of non-officials and representatives of special minority interests. The upper chamber will contain sixty members, of whom not more than one-third will be officials. The arrangement for Provincial Legislatures will be virtually the same. Diarchy, or twin authority, it is explained, shows itself in two ways. Some powers of government are "reserved" to the executive, some "transferred" to the legislatures; but the executive has virtually the decision in a conflict of authority or in case the legislature exercises its transferred powers against the common interest. The purpose of the measure is gradually to replace the system of bureaucratic administration with a system of representative government in which the representatives of the Indian electors will not only initiate policy and legislate, but will also control the officials charged with the task of carrying out that policy.

Sir Michael O'Dwyer, who, says the London Morning Post, is "universally regarded as the greatest living Indian administrator," represented the opinion of the Provincial Governments before the joint committee and laid down his objections to the dual system as follows:

"An Indian province needs a united government; and this gives it a divided government.

"An Indian province needs a strong government; and this gives it a weak one.

"An Indian province needs a government capable of prompt action; and this leads to delay and friction.

"An Indian province needs a simple system of government; and this involves extreme complexity.

"An Indian province needs a cheap system of government; and this involves a very costly one, with elaborate methods of taxation and finance which will certainly not make for economy.

"An Indian province needs a government which commands the confidence and ready support of the services; and this tends to divide and disintegrate the services by making them serve two masters.

"An Indian province needs a government which secures good administration to all; and this gives power to a small section and endangers the interest of the masses."

Who Bottomley Is.

Horatio Bottomley, the energetic editor of John Bull, the London weekly, whose savage onslaughts upon the American nation were considered of sufficient importance to cable, has an unequaled capacity for getting in the limelight and ingenuity in keeping himself there. Bottomley made a fortune out of the Australian mining business and then went into journalism. He founded the Financial Times, then became proprietor of the Sun of London and at length established John Bull, of which periodical he has remained the editor.

Twice—in 1893 and again in 1909—he was the defendant in a case brought against him by the crown, and, successfully conducting his own case in both instances, became generally regarded as the best "lay lawyer" in the country; at least he makes that claim for himself in the autobiography which he furnished the English "Who's Who." He also claims in that autobiography to be the founder of the modern co-operative movement, but the Rochdale system founders probably would dispute that claim with him. He was a member of Parliament for a good many years and is the owner of some well-known race horses.

His anti-Americanism is well established. Last December he urged the Entente to disregard the United States and to occupy Berlin in order to require full compliance with the terms of the peace treaty. "Let us wipe Germany off the map," was his advice. He has a grudge against Lloyd George because, according to him, the latter "accepted Wilson as a guide rather than Clemenceau" at the peace negotiations.

Some of Mr. Bottomley's contemporaries have compared him with P. T. Barnum and others have said that he is American in some of his traits.

A Narrow Escape.

While he was making his way about his platoon one dark night a sergeant heard the roar of a "G. I. Can" overhead and dived into a shell-hole. It was already occupied by a private, who was hit full in the wind by the non-com.'s head. A moment's silence — a long, deep breath and then — "Good Lord, is that you, Sarge?" "That's me." "Thank Heaven! I was [illegible] waiting for you to explode."

Edinburgh Landmark Gone.

An interesting bit of old Edinburgh, dating back about 1600, has been burned. The destroyed building, which consisted of a single story and attic, was one of the landmarks of the Holyrood area. It was the old Yew Tree tavern, enclosed inside the bounds of the Holyrood sanctuary for debtors, within which in days of yore, the fugitive was free from the attentions of his creditors.

Phonograph Repeats Record

When the needle comes to the end of its travel and the music ceases the owner of a phonograph equipped with a new attachment, says Popular Mechanics magazine, takes no heed and a moment later the machine is playing the same air over again. This interesting result is achieved by means of a metal arm pivoted at a point outside the turntable, its inner end resting upon the projecting tip of the spindle. At the end of the record the traveling sound box engages a trigger which actuates a vertical screw, and the metal arm rises, lifting the needle from the record. The sound box slides back along the inclined arm to its starting position, the descending arm replaces the needle accurately in the outer groove, and the music goes on.

Wealth in Waste.

The foundations of some of the most prosperous [illegible] were laid in utilization of what was formerly waste. [illegible] is still open to the southern [illegible] lumbermen. The annual cut [illegible] feet, board [illegible] for one foot that goes to [illegible] piles two go to waste. [illegible] would say this was not waste [illegible] wasted raw material for [illegible] of paper, twine, bags, [illegible], turpentine, rosin, pine oil, charcoal, tar, varnish, ethyl alcohol and acetic acid. Yet lumbermen throw [illegible] this great source of wealth [illegible] of the high cost of production.—Wall Street Journal.

Myriad of Snowballs.

A singular phenomenon, reported to science by J. [illegible] Woodman, was witnessed [illegible] March around Bangor and Orono, Maine. A four-inch fall of snow was followed by high wind, and occasional gusts caught up large flakes and rolled them over in the damp top layer, forming a myriad of snowballs from two inches to nearly two feet in diameter. The triangular trail of one was 38 feet long. The balls were largest on downward slopes, and a measured one had a horizontal diameter of 30 inches and a vertical diameter of 14 inches.

Cold Feet In Advertising

Phone 189 and our Representive will Call and discuss Rates, etc., with you

It is a well-established principle of commerce that there is no business that should not devote a proportion of its gross revenue to advertising if it is to be successful.

Yet it is a surprising fact that many businesses, generally speaking, advertise too sparingly, or only spasmodically.

National advertisers, the very ones who, at the expense of millions, have tested the value of advertising, don't think of cutting down or stopping their activities. Some of the most successful national advertisers even declare that their advertising plans for this season provide for still larger appropriations than last year.

Why shouldn't the local merchant follow their example and make a yearly appropriation for advertising in its various forms? Spasmodic advertising never pays like a regularly mapped out campaign.

NEW DANGER

The sudden thaw of the other day followed by cold weather has created a new danger to pedestrians in the city of Peterborough. Sidewalks all over the city which previously were covered with snow are now one mass of slippery ice. It is almost impossible to walk on some of the streets even in the centre of the town. In other places residents have had the forethought to sprinkle a little sand over the slippery parts, thereby eliminating much of the danger to themselves and other pedestrians but there are still many sidewalks which could be greatly improved by the addition of a little sand. Up to the present there has been no information of anyone being seriously injured by falling on the walks, but that is more on account of good luck than management. The danger was particularly evident when people were coming out of the churches yesterday.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Rev. Ben. Spence, Toronto, was in the city yesterday.

The engagement has been announced of Winnifred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. MacKenzie, Lakefield, to Mr. Archibald Lampman, only son of Mr. Archibald Lampman, Canada's poet. The marriage will take place after Easter.

Mr. Morphet, of Peterborough, has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) W. Archbold, at the rectory for the past week.—Lakefield News.

Mr. J. B. Wilson, of Toronto was a visitor to the city over the week-end.

Miss Helen Walsh, of Detroit, has returned home after visiting with friends in the city.

After lecturing to large audiences of women each afternoon last week, Mrs. Blair closed her series on Saturday afternoon with a brief revival of the subjects under discussion and a charming "dansant."

Mr. J. R. Stratton, of Toronto, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stratton, Park street.

Mrs. Northedge Burke and Miss Barbara returned on Saturday from a visit with friends in Toronto.

Invitations have been issued by the Entertainment Committee of the G.W.V.A. for an "at home" to be held in the Murray street club rooms on the evening of Easter Monday, April 5th. Manley's orchestra of Toronto has been engaged for the occasion and an enjoyable time should be had. The patronesses of the affair are Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mrs. W. H. Hill, Mrs. T. W. H. Young, Mrs. W. L. Sharpe, Mrs. Duncan Walker, Mrs. R. J. Devey, Mrs. A. H. Stratton, Mrs. J. F. Strickland, Mrs. J. H. Eastwood, Mrs. C. Perry, Mrs. W. Dolby, Mrs. A. W. McPherson.

Word has been received here of an improvement in the condition of Mr. Robert Stewart who has been seriously ill at Passedena, California. His many friends in Peterborough will be glad to learn of this change for the better.

Mr. Alex. J. Grant, Superintendent of the Trent Canal, Welland, has sold his house on Gilmour street to Mr. A. G. Grier.

Mr. W. R. Widdess of the Canada Life Assurance Company, has returned from a business trip to Toronto.

Mr. Walter Stocker returned on Saturday from a business trip to Toronto.

Colonel McIntyre, of the Salvation Army headquarters, New York, was in the city on Saturday to visit Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Braund. The Colonel was accompanied by his daughter, who accompanied the American Expeditionary Forces to France as a cook of these famous "doughnuts."

Mr. R. C. Braund and Mrs. J. T. Braund were in Bowmanville on Sunday to attend the funeral of their nephew, Mr. Frank Found, who died in British Columbia.

Mrs. W. R. Morris returned on Saturday from a visit to Toronto.

CARD OF THANKS.

To all who have shown such kindness in our recent sad bereavement, and especially Mrs. G. Harper, Mrs. G. McCartney, and Dr. King.

Mrs. R. J. Munro and Family.

Among the many beautiful floral tributes at the funeral of the late R. J. Munro were flowers and expressions of regret from the following: Peterborough Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Corinthian Chapter No. 36, Moore Preceptory, Durham Lodge No. 78, I.O.O.F., the Kitchen Fishing and Hunt Club, Board of Director of the Peterborough Intdustrial Exhibition, St. John's Church Chancel Guild, the staff of the Munro House, Mr. and Mrr. W. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. S. Fisher, T. A. Kelly and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Deyell, Dr. W. A. Settle, Mrs. Westlake, Sales Dept., Hyslop Company, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Cornell, Dr. and Mrs. King, Margaret M. Crossley, F. Wilson, C. M. Moncur, Messrs. Jordan Bros.

The sentiment of my heart is:

Asleep in Jesus, Blessed God, Thy love and mercy,
Oh how great that Thou shouldst hide
My loved one in the grave until Thy wrath be ever past;
Oh, yes, dear heart, sleep well,
Sleep well; no dreams disturb thy sweet repose,
Asleep in Jesus, undisturbed the while
Earth's breast is rent by Armageddon's strife,
And all creation travails in the pangs
That must precede her glorious second birth.
Sleep well beneath his overshadowing wings;
Sleep well, sleep well, until His Kingdom comes;
The ransomed of the Lord shall then return
And shall bid thee awaken out of sleep.
A highway shall be there, a way of life,
And thou, dear heart, with joy shall walk thereon;
Up, up until perfection's goal won.
When there shall be no pain nor any death;
When God's dear hand shall wipe all tears away.
In this blest hope I lay thee down to rest;
Good night, dear heart, 'twill not be long—sleep well.

MRS. MUNRO.

"TEN NIGHTS OF EVANGELISM"

Two Weeks of Special Services Begin at the George Street Methodists Church.

Yesterday's church services at George street Methodist Church were the beginnig of two weeks of special meetings. They were marked by large congregational and inspirational services. In the morning Rev. A. J. Thomas preached on "A Question Which Divided a Multitude," and in the evening, Rev. Walter E. Millson, of London, Ontario, on: "God's Plan and Our Response." Both speakers made strong appeals for decision and service.

Rev. Walter E. Millson, who is a strong, forceful and convincing speaker, and also a singer, will assist during the two weeks. Mr. Millson is not an evangelist. He's one of the field secretaries of the Methodist church of the department of evangelism and social service, and has been loaned for the work, through the kindness of the department. His subjects for the first three nights will be:

Monday,—"Is the Church Efficient."

Tuesday— "Backsliders—are there any?"

Wednesday—"The Way to the Kingdom."

He will also sing.

Meetings, which will continue every night except Saturday, will be held in the auditorium of the church, and will commence with a song service at 7.45 p.m. sharp. No collection will be taken.

Thos who will assist in the chorus choir are asked to meet in the left transept at 7:40.

Mr. Thomas based his remarks on the words of Moses, "Who is on the Lord's side," uttered by him after coming down from Mount Sinai and seeing the children of Israel worshipping the golden calf.

Mr. Thomas pointed out that the question asked by Moses: "who is on the Lord's side" is ever timely. If God should ask the citizens of Peterborough this question today, who would rally to his standard and who would be indifferent. The majority of people are exceedingly anxious at times for God to be on their side, for instance in the time of sickness. They may curse God when the sun shines, but when the storm comes they pray. It is comforting to know, that God is our eternal refuge, but it is also of great importance that we should be on the Lord's side.

To be on the Lord's side involves separation from sin. It is a mistake to think that there is no idolatry in these days. Anything which takes the place which should be sacred to God is an idol. Porsperity, pleasure, social standing are some of the idols of today. Jesus plainly said: "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon."

"Unless we are striving to live victoriously," said Mr. Thomas, "we are not one of his people no matter what profession we make."

Being on the Lord's side also involves service. Real religion is not simply an inward impression; it is also an outward expression. There are no loafers on the Lord's side. There are many forms of service, but one point which is particularly important is the Divine Master counts upon His people to win others to His side. The reclaiming of the sinner is the work of every Christian.

It is a solemn truth that we are either on the Lord's side or against Him. There is no neutral ground. We cannot be indifferent to His will in this world and be numbered with the blessed ones in the world to come.

"May God save us from being selfish about our religion said Mr. Thomas. "May we have a self-sacrificing passion to save men and women in the community.

Mr. Millson's subject was: "God's Plan and our Response." That Mr. Millson is very familiar with the scriptures, was plainly evidenced by the way in which he quoted passage after passage, bearing on this subject. In opening his remarks, Mr. Millson quoted such passages as John 3.16, Isaiah, 55:1, Isaiah, 55:7 and Rev. 22:17, as an example of the many passages which appear in the Bible, containing the basic principle of God's plan. There are certain fundamentals which underly the whole basis of our work in carrying out God's plan. "I am persuaded," said Mr. Millson, that whatever our history has been, we are coming face to face with the time—in fact are there now—when the Church of God, instead of being less positive in her belief. I believe with all the intensity of my nature that it is within the great plan and purpose of God that His Kingdom shall extend the world over." In the fulfillment of God's plan for us the scripture says that in the fulness of time Jesus came forth and seized this old world with a grip of love, that he might bring it back from darkness into light. Jesus opened his public ministry by saying: "The Kingdom of God is at Hand," and He reiterated this again and agin.

Mr. Millson drew the attention of the congregation to two important statements made by Jesus, just before and after his crucifixon. The first was St. John, 18:17: "As soon hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world." The other statement was "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." There and then Jesus committed His commission to His followers.

All down through the ages since that commandment was given, every religous movement has had for its basic principle the extension and establishment of the Kingdom of God.

"What does church membership mean to those of you who are the professed followers of Jesus?" asked Mr. Millson. "Or in other words what of God to extend and establish His Kingdom? Do you think a person can be a loyal subject of the kingdom and not honestly endeavor to promote that kingdom. I believe, after having given it a good deal of thought, that it would be in the interests of the kingdom of God for the man or woman who has been falsely flying the flag of the cross, to pull it down rather than be disloyal. Let us not camouflage in our relation with the kingdom."

Mr. Millson concluded by making a strong appeal for the support of the congregation during the coming "ten nights of evangelism."

HE SERVED A JAIL SENTENCE IN THE HOME OF A SALVATION ARMY OFFICER

When the reporter for the police court news says "He was handed over to the Salvation Army," what becomes of the man? Not long ago a young chap, in whom there is much hope, served his sentence in the home of a Salvation Army Officer. Special circumstances surrounded his case. Special consideration was given by the authorities. The boy was saved the humiliation of a jail term. He was set right and intends to stay right.

A prisoner who gives evidence of trustworthiness and intention to go straight is sometimes released on an order-in-Council. He can complete his term at his work. From the very beginning of the case the services of the Salvation Army are requisitioned.

The wages of the men are collected by the Army and turned over—every cent—to his dependents.

"What happens when a man goes to a situation?" We asked Brigadier Fraser, the Army's Parole Officer.

Free if He Behaves.

"He is entirely free so long as he behaves. We visit him once a week. We collect his wages and pay them over to his dependents. There is no charge, no deduction from the amount. It goes in its entirety to wife or mother as the case may be."

Recently a stowaway reached Canada. He came from Scotland. He was arrested soon after arrival in connection with the theft of a horse. He was sentenced to Burwash. Adjutant Adams, the local Prison Officer of the Salvation Army, brought his case up for consideration. The lad had been dealt with by the Army Officer and showed signs of having undergone a change. He was discharged. The Government paid his fare to Montreal. The Salvation Army saw him through to St. John, N.B. There he was met by another Officer of the Army who saw that the boy was given an opportunity to work his way back home.

Brigadier Fraser takes a tremendous interest in the parole work. He is not alone in this. Mrs. Fraser is known at "the farm" as "the little mother," and is constantly helping the Brigadier with the problems that present themselves. Her special work is visiting the wives and families of men whose liberty, temporarily, has been taken from them. She takes a great interest in "the boys," and they are happy when she is around. She conducts most of the religious meetings at Langstaff and Concord. These are the men's and women's divisions of the Toronto Municipal Farm.

Pays a Tribute.

Dr. Lavelle, the new Parole Commissioner for Ontario, speaks highly of the assistance he receives from the Salvation Army. He has gone so far as to say that he does not see how he could get along without it.

"This is Brigadier Fraser," said that Officer in answer to a 'phone call. Then the following was heard. "I am sorry. He was taken ill this morning and we had to get a taxi to take him home. He is very sick. There are two or three children and the mother ill with the flu. No, there was neither coal or food, but I am arranging for both right away. I . . . . I think he should go to a hospital . . . ."

The subject of the conversation was a man on parole. He's making good too. Arrangements were made to send him to a hospital of his own demonination. By this time, however, many mothers and fathers were waiting to see Brigadier Fraser, and thus we leave him again engrossed in his task.

JESSIE IRVING IN PERFECT RECITAL

PROGRAM BY TALENTED ENTERTAINER AND ELOCUTIONIST APPRECIATED

The concert given in St. Andrew's Church on Friday evening under the auspices of the Willing Workers Mission Band was a decided success. The large audience gave a hearty welcome to Miss Jessie Irving (the talented elocutionist and entertainer), and then settled down to enjoy every number of the excellent and varied program. Miss Irving sees life with so much understanding that she is able to give out a great amount of truth in her different impersonations, which cause much amusement, and it is this communication of thought that places her concerts on the highest level.

It is only fair to add that she was aided by the openly receptive state of mind maintained by the audience, for it takes two parties to make a concert—one giving and the other getting. If either party fails in its duty something must be lacking.

Miss Irving may be assured of a packed house on a return visit to Peterborough.

GOSPEL HALL NOTES

"After Death What?" was the subject taken by Evangelist Harper in the Gospel Hall last evening.

These special meeting are attracting the attention of the thinking people of Peterborough, and they are speaking of blessing received.

A message in song was given by three young people before the sermon was delivered.

"Mankind born on the broad way are hastening onto death," said Mr. Harper—"not only physical death, but eternal death in the lake of fire." It was pointed out that God was seeking to save mankind proving His love to them by sending the Lord Jesus to die on Calvary.

The death of the believer was first dwelt upon. Various texts were cited showing that while the body slept in the grave the soul went to be with the Lord.

Reading the latter part of Luke 16 the speaker showed that the portion of the unsaved sinner, after death, was judgment. The audience was exhorted to flee from coming wrath and pointed to Christ, the sinner's saviour.

Mr. Harper will speak tonight at 8 p.m., the subject being, "The Second Coming of Christ. Is it near?"

TRAVELLING HANDICAPPED

Railway men report that travelling on the railroads these days is a difficult undertaking. This is due to the sudden change in weather conditions. A couple of days ago there was a thaw and melting snow streamed across certain tracks in small streams. The next day the frost closed everything up and froze over the tracks in spots. Delays were numerous on various parts of the Grand Trunk and C.P.R. as a result. In some cases engines gave out, and in many cases slow orders were given.

PROTECTION VERSUS FREE TRADE IS THE CANADIAN ISSUE TODAY

J. H. Burnham Discusses the Federal Political Situation in a Communication in Ottawa Paper—Country Tired of a Government That Lacks Both Leadership and Policy.

In a communication published in Monday's issue of the Ottawa Journal J. H. Burnham, M.P. for West Peterborough, says:

Sir:—The crisis in political affairs in Canada has been brought to a head by the nationwide Farmers' movement in favor of Free Trade.

In the House of Commons, there is now a distinct 'Farmers' party under the able leadership of the Honorable Mr. Crerar, the Agrarian Movement is well under way.

It demands an appeal to the country and a decision—a decision upon what point? Upon whether Moderate Protection or unrestrained Free Trade shall shape the future policy of this country.

The Liberal party is also for an election. What party or parties is opposed to these views?

The answer is "no party," since no permanent Unionist party has been formed and the old Conservative or National Policy party remains in the background. But in any event the Cabinet is split by political dissension. A month ago the old Moderate Protectionist party could have been reformed while those Unionists who are not Protectionists could have formed a separate group. The Protectionists could in the person of a National party composed of all callings and of all groups have faced the future with certainty. Today of certainty there is no trace. Dissensions in the Cabinet have their counterparts in the Government's following. Departures from the Government have been followed by departures from those behind them. Major Andrews, a man of the highest integrity, is among the latest to leave for the cross-benches. Mr. Buchanan also a thoroughly representative Canadian and a Unionist, has declared himself a free lance.

The Unionist Government has no trade policy, no united following and no leader. Sir Robert Borden must not in his condition of health be denied the necessary retirement. He must not be sacrificed to the "lame and impotent conclusion" of a great undertaking. We must have reconstruction and a forward movement. Decision and energy in the interest of Canada or disintegration—there is no other alternative. Personally I will vote against the King resolution, merely to gain time. But we cannot go on in this way. Is it to be Free Trade as the great new nationwide movement demands or is it to be the old principle of Protection that has made Canada great? That has pulled us out of the awkwardness and uncertainty of youth and made Canada and good Canadian manhood out of us? The country is getting vastly tired of Government leadership that is now not even that in name without a policy and unhappily without a leader. Patience has ceased to be a virtue unless it be that those who do not know what to do had better do nothing. It is not too late to mend yet but it soon will be. Let us bestir ourselves. The "enemy" is at the gates.

FARMERS' CLUB MEMBERS DISCUSS THE METHODS OF SHIPPING LIVE STOCK

Another Meeting to be Held March 22 to Hear an Expert From Toronto—Monthly Sesssion of Local Club Last Night.

A well-attended meeting of the Peterborough branch of the U.F.O. was held in the Sons of England hall last night when routine business was transacted. The chair was occupied by President R. S. Rogers.

The matter of the demonstration farm came up for discussion and the president reported on the success which had been achieved by the deputation which had gone to Toronto on Wednesday last to interview the Minister of Agriculture. He gave them to understand that if shuch a method of education was decided upon Peterborough would have the first place.

A motion was then carried to the effect that the matter should be left for the members from the county of Peterborough in the Provincial Legislature to take care of their interests and that the members should be informed of this motion.

Mr. Mullen's Books Correct.

Mr. Mullen, who had been the shipper for the clubs, demanded that the auditors who had re-audited his books should make a statement as to the condition they found them in as statements had been made at a previous meeting that his books were not in shape.

Mr. T. Garvey, as one of the auditors, read a statement showing that they had found Mr. Mullen's books correct.

At this point a lively discussion took place with reference to the methods adopted of disposing of hogs. The new arrangements made by the executive came in for some strong criticism and various opinions on the matter were expressed by different members present. A certain section seemed to be of the opinion that Mr. Mullen had been treated unjustly in the matter and that conditions were better when he was shipping the clubs' hogs.

Mr. Mullen rose to remind the members that he had resigned at the last open meeting and as far as he was concerned he "stayed resigned" as he was dissatisfied with the way things were being run.

A strong plea for unity was made by the president and Mr. Moore, who both pointed out that there was nothing to be gained by allowing the branch to be divided on such a small matter. They expressed the opinion that such a division was just what business men wanted and there was no sense in playing into their hands.

Mr. Shields moved that the matter of shipping be left over until the next meeting when the Toronto shipper, Mr. Fulthorp, would be present. The motion was carried with slight opposition.

A communication was read from Mr. Fulthorp, the U.F.O. shipper at the Union Stock Yards, in answer to a letter received by him, stating that he would like to be present at a meeting so that he might explain the matter of shipping stock to the members themselves. He also stated that the best plain to adopt was to form a central club which could ship for all the other clubs in the district. There was a slight discussion as to a suitable date for the meeting and it was then moved by Mr. C. Moore that such a meeting as requested be held on Monday, March 22, and that all the farmers' clubs in the county be asked to send representatives.

The meeting was to have been addressed by Mr. Corbett on stock food, but owing to the length of the discussion, he departed before being able to give his lecture.

FARMER-LABOR LEGISLATURE OPENS WITH LITTLE OF OLD TIME CEREMONY

No Burst of Artillery Heralds First Session of New Government But Lieut.-Governor Has a Body Guard—Chances are That Premier Drury and His Followers Will be Given Field.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, March 9.—Under circumstances of exceptional interest and considerable speculation, the first session of the fifteenth Legislature of Ontario was opened here today. It is the first Farmer-Labor Legislature in the history of Canada and the "Farmer" Government of Hon. E. C. Drury, holds power by the narrow nominal majority of two members in a Legislature of one hundred and eleven seats. There was no salute of artillery as the session was formally opened by Lieut.-Governor Clarke this afternoon, though there was a military guard of honor supplied by the famous Princess Patricia regiment. The social side of the opening ceremonies was not so prominently emphasized as in other days, but the wives of Cabinet Ministers and of many of the members were present for the function.

There is a tendency on all sides, including the direct opposition, Liberals and Conservatives, to avoid unduly embarrassing the Government. The feeling is that the "Farmers" Cabinet, composed of eight Farmers two Laborites and one lawyer, should be given a clear track to see what they can accomplish in the present period of re-construction.

THE SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

After references to the visit of the Prince of Wales, ratification of the Peace Treaty and the opening of the Federal Parliament in the new building, the Lieut.-Governor, in the Speech from the Throne, called attention to the problem which has arisen by the revocation of Dominion order-in-Council prohibiting liquor importation during the war subsequent to the vote in Ontario against the repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act.

In connection with educational needs, the Legislature would be asked, he said, to provide for an increase in rural school grants, pending a thorough inquiry into the whole subject.

The Department of Agriculture was maturing plans to stimulate agricultural production, especially in regard to live stock while the Government believed that the application of a progressive and well-balance road policy would facilitate marketing of crops and improve rural conditions generally.

His Honor then forecasted better provision of reforestration in view of the depletion of our forests while the importance of the mining industry would be recognized by the creation of a Department of Mines, thus separating the work from that of lands and forests.

Consideration of the absence of labor legislation was then made by the Lieut.-Governor, who referred to the project calling for the unification of labor laws. "Various measures affecting labor and improving existing laws will be submitted to you, and also a bill providing for the payment of allowance in certain cases to mothers of dependent children." he said.

CITY TO PAY UTILITIES COM'N INCREASE FOR FIRE PROTECTION

Rates on Hydrants Jump From $27.50 to $35 to Save Domestic Consumers

As a result of presentations made to the City Council last night by the Utilities Commission, it was agreed to raise the cost to the city for maintenance of hydrants for fire protection purposes from $27.50 each to $35.00.

The commission was represented by Commissioners Hicks and Sisson, Manager Fisk and Superintendent of the Waterworks Ross Robin.

The commission explained that they are facing increased expenses in wages and material, had lain addition feed mains and installed an auxiliary steam pumping unit. These improvements had not produced any additional revenue, and the time had come, owing to changed conditions, when the city must be asked to bear a part of the increased expenditure for fire protection.

Commissioner Hicks explained that the Utilities' small margin of $1,000 profits last year would be wiped out by increased salaries, and he thought the increased revenue imperative to meet expenditures for fire protection should not be imposed on domestic consumers but on the city generally. To this end he asked that the charges to the city for hydrants be raised from $27.50 to $35. For 286 hydrants this would provide an increased revenue of $2,100 odd. (All

ANNUAL MEETING OF BOARD OF TRADE

The thirty-first annual meeting and first annual meeting of the reorganized Board of Trade will convene at supper in the G. W. V. A. Hall, Murray street, tonight at 6:30 o'clock.

Through the kindness of Mrs. W. R. Morris, arrangements have been made for the service of ladies from the Women's Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A.

The general meeting will convene at 8 o'clock and reports will be submitted from all the committees, in which the work of the past year will be reviewed.

The officers for the coming year will be formally installed, and addresses will be given by the retiring officers and inaugural speeches will be made by the incoming officers.

The largest attendance ever shown is expected at this closing meeting for the year, and to mark the commencement of the new year, filled with opportunities for the development of Peterborough.

Morris Rappaport, a Windsor butcher and grocer was shot dead by an unknown man at 10.30 Saturday night.

CANNOT INCREASE RATE ON MILK SHIPMENTS

RAILWAY COMMISSION RESCINDS ORDER THAT WAS ISSUED LAST MAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 9.—The Board of Railway Commissioners has dismissed the application of the railway companies to be allowed to increase their rates on milk in baggage cars. The tariffs filed last May showed increases ranging from twenty-five to sixty per cent. These were suspended pending the investigation asked for by the National Dairy Council. The commission has now dismissed the application for increased rates and confirmed the old rates existing prior to last May.

JURY FIND VERDICT OF ACCIDENTAL DEATH

CORONER GREER HOLDS INQUEST INTO DEATH OF CHARLES HOLLAND

A verdict of accidental death was brought in last night by the jury empanelled by Coroner Greer, to enquire into the death of Charles Holland, at the Bonner-Worth factory last week. The jury, however, added two riders to the verdict, the first recommending that some system of bell signals be installed inconnection with the elevator so as to afford more safety to the employees using it and the other recommending that the Bonner-Worth Company communicate with the makers of the elevator and the Government with a view to devising more safeguards to the elevators and thereby render such accidents as the present one less probable.

Numerous witnesses were called being for the most part fellow employees of the deceased, but their testimony had little hearing on the case as none were eye witnesses of the accident. The theory that the deceased died of heart failure before being crushed by the rising elevator was exploded by the medical evidence given at the inquest.

Drs. W. D. Scott and T. W. H. Young were witnesses. Both had been called to the scene of the accident as soon as the body had been discovered. Dr. Scott was the first to arrive on the scene, and he stated that life was extinct when he arrived. He did not think that it was possible for death to have been caused by heart failure as the fact that there was blood still in the upper part of the chest showed that the heart had been beating regularly at the time of the crushing, death, in his opinion being solely due to the crush between the elevator and the floor Dr. Young's evidence corroborated that given by Dr. Scott.

Messrs. Melton, Travers, Albert Barton, Tom Turcotte Patrick Hickey and Dennis O'Brien all fellow employees of the accused gave evidence as to the finding of the body, but their evidence could not reveal the actual cause of the accident.

Mr. C. R. Widdifield was present at the inquest looking after the interests of the family of the deceased

POLISH FORCES ROUT BOLSHEVIKI TROOPS

ONE THOUSAND RED SOLDIERS AT TWO IMPORTANT POINTS CAPTURED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Warsaw, March 9.—Polish forces commanded by Col. Kikorski attacked the Bolshevik troops in the vicinity of Mozir and Kolenk-Ovits southeast of Minsk, Sunday morning and captured these two important junctions and much war material. One thousand Red soldiers and many officers were taken prisoners. Then attack was made in order to prevent further operations by the Russian-Soviet army, which has been operating in this region for a distance of twenty miles, says the official statement issued this afternoon at general staff headquarters here. "Victory," says the statement, "is a worthy answer to Bolshevik policy of suing for peace and at the same time continuing attacks along the front."

FIREMAN'S SALARIES ADJUSTED BY CITY COUNCIL LAST NIGHT

Increases Requested by Firemens' Association Remains Submitted Excepting in Cases of Fire Chief, Assistant Chief and Captain—$100 for Secretary Not Allowed.

Our City Fathers last night definitely fixed the firemen's salaries for this year. This was done in Committee of the Whole Council, and his Worship and all his colleagues were present.

The men's original request for increases was granted excepting in the case of the Chief, the assistant chief, captain, and E. G. Johnston. For the latter there had been asked $100 above his fireman's salary for services as secretary for the department. A deduction of $100 was made in the salary asked for Chief Grange, the assistant chief's salary was reduced from $1687.50, as originally requested, to an even $1600, and the salary of $1537.50 for the captain, as previously scheduled, was fixed at $1500.

The New Salaries.

The salaries now determined on for this year, dating from January 1st, are as follows:

	Present Salary	Salary requested
Chief Grange	$1700.00	$2000.00
H. Johnston, Asst. Chief	1322.50	1600.00
A. McDonald, Captain	1236.50	1500.00
J. Warde, Lieutenant	1207.50	1437.50
W. Jones, Lieutenant	1207.50	1437.50
Bert Trotter, Electrician	1250.00	1475.00
E. Marchand, Engineer	1200.00	1450.00
E. G. Johnston	1150.00	1360.00
Drivers of motors—
First	1150.00	1400.00
Second	1150.00	1375.00
Firemen—
First grade	1150.00	1350.00
Second grade	1035.00	1275.00
Third grade	None	1200.00

This schedule provides $50 for the drivers of American La France motor apparatus, and $25 for drivers of the Chief's car, in addition to their regular salary as firemen.

Last Year's Increase

To Ald. Gordon Ald. Crowe replied that the firemen and officers got a 15 per cent. increase in 1919.

In the discussion which followed, Ald. Morrison did not think it worth while engendering dissatisfaction for the sake of $768.25 divided among twenty men. This amount is the difference between what the men asked and the salaries the Council in committee proposed at the last meeting.

Ald. Morrison in his support of the firemen's request could not understand Ald. Crowe's stand in holding out for a flat increase of $200 per man, irrespective of efficiency and responsibility, and Ald. Crowe a Labor representative at that. He takes his stand as a Labor man on this

TAX RATE DEFINITELY FIXED AT THIRTY-FIVE MILLS ON DOLLAR

The city's tax rate for this year was fixed definitely at 35 mills on the dollar last night, based on the following estimates submitted by Finance Minister Ald. Turner to Council. The figures below, however, are slightly amended to keep within the estimates as a whole and not to exceed the 35 mills Council has kept in mind as a maximum rate. For the Utilities Commission came along after the estimates had been prepared and asked for an increased revenue on hydrant service amounting to $2,145.00 by raising their charge on each of the city's 286 hydrants from $27.50 to $35 a year. The reason for this is explained under another heading.

Tax Collector Green gets $50 more.

Then the firemens' salaries have been fixed at the schedule originally submitted by the brigade, excepting that $100 is knocked off that asked for the chief, $87.50 less for the assistant chief, $37.50 less for the captain. The $100 wanted for secretary's work has also been eliminated. This increases the estimates for that department by $443.25.

The city solicitor suffered a reduction of $300 from his salary decided on last week to help make good the foregoing increased expenditures for hydrants and firemens' salaries, and Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, consented to foregive $2,500 of the $5,000 he had asked for surface drainage.

Finance Minister Ald. Turner feels confident he can now safely strike a rate of 35 mills, but there will be little or no margin to speak of to fall back on:

THE SITUATION AT THE FIREHALL.

THE MEMBERS of the Fire Brigade are well able to look after their own affairs without dictation from other organizations or from any set of civic or private employes. A delegate from the Firemen's Union stated as much at a meeting of the Trades Council some weeks ago, and added that the members of his organization preferred to deal with their own disputes and troubles. The fact that the Firemen's Union is affiliated with the Trades Council does not justify the charge—or the inference—that they are planning to strike in case the city turned down their request for an increase in pay. The Trades Council is not a body that exists to foment strikes. Labor troubles may be discussed by the delegates, but the latter as such never originate them. The discussion of such topics begins in the union interested and the initiative is there taken.

The firemen of the city may have a union, but the constitution of that organization forbids strikes. Any fireman on the city's pay roll is at liberty to resign if he does not like his compensation or his working conditions. The same privilege would not be denied him even if there was no union at the firehall. There is, however this important difference between a walkout and a resignation—in the latter case no attempt is made to prevent other men from filling the vacant places. When a man joins the Fire Department he does not sell himself into perpetual bondage any more than does the man who enters the service of the Utilities Commission or accepts any other civic position. He can quit at any time by giving the required notice.

The Fire Brigade as at present composed excels anything that has hitherto been attained not only as to personnel but as to efficiency and discipline. The members have a proper sense of the responsibility that rests upon them, a responsibility that means the protection of life as well as of property. They are interested in the welfare of the city in which so many of them have material interests. To desert their posts would endanger the lives of their own friends and their own property as well as place the entire city in jeopardy.

There is no use in attempting to prejudice the public against the firemen. The latter will do nothing rash or unreasonable. If they have an organization it is for their own protection, internal as well as external, and not for the purpose of abusing the aldermen or of holding up the city.

AUSTRALIA RAISES TARIFF.

AN INCREASE of ten per cent. is made to the invoice valuation for customs purposes by the Australian Customs Act. Australian tariff duties in the case of commodities produced in Australia are high, despite the fact that that country is quoted by low tariff advocates in Canada as relying largely upon direct income taxation. In the hardware items, for example, duties of 38½ per cent. are levied on shovels, spades, scoops, hinges, door hangers, pulleys, locks, toilet fixtures, stencils, enameled wear and food choppers. Another long list of items is subject to a net duty of 33 per cent.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT FOR MONTREAL

TWO YEARS AGO the city of Montreal was placed under tutelage for four years by the Quebec Legislature through the appointment of an administrative commission. Though much improvement has been made in the city's affairs by the present commission, there has been growing of late a strong feeling of resentment amongst the citizens against what they term outside interference with their local rights, even though such interference two years ago was necessary to save the good name of Montreal. The Provincial Government, evidently recognizing that there is an awakening interest in the civic affairs of the city, has just passed through a bill for the appointment of a commission to investigate into the best form of government for Montreal. This commission is to be made up of two nominees from each of eight of the local public bodies, and five additional nominees, selected by outside mayors, should it be decided to draft a charter for the government of the whole Island of Montreal. The members of the commission will receive no remuneration for their services, which are expected to be from nine to twelve months, but they are empowered to engage and pay for expert advice.

While we heartily endorse the appointment of a commission, says the Canadian Municipal Journal, to study the best form of government for Montreal, we are not so sure of the wisdom of having the commission made up of amateurs, as will be the case, unless the local bodies named in the bill nominate outsiders, which they are entitled to do. Municipal administration today is one of the most complex problems in the government of a nation, and Montreal in particular, because of its peculiar local conditions, presents problems that require the best brains for their solving. Added to the difficulties of the purely local conditions, there is the problem of the government of the whole island which must be studied in all its phases, otherwise the work of the commission will not be complete. Again, the commission is not only instructed to formulate the best system of government for the city of Montreal and its environs, but is instructed to draft a specific charter. This means that the commission will have undertaken a task the magnitude of which can only be fully appreciated by those who have studied the intricacies of municipal government not only as they were affected by the economic conditions of yesterday, and as they are influenced by the changing conditions of today, but as they will be by those of tomorrow.

There is a phase of municipal government that is not generally understood, and consequently not appreciated, namely, social responsibility. To many people municipal government means only the administration of a municipality on "sane business lines." It means much more, as many a successful business man has found out on becoming a member of a local council. Municipal government properly carried out means not only the administration of the municipality, but the government of the community as well—that is, the local council is responsible for the social as well as the economic welfare of the citizens.

A municipal charter, then, must be so drafted as to make it a working hypothesis for the promotion of a real civic spirit, otherwise it will mean nothing. The question that each member of the commission must ask himself is—will the charter function in the interests of the whole people, or will it be just an instrument that can easily be worked by adroit manipulation for the benefit of the few, particularly of private interests, or special classes.

The present charter of Montreal is in reality a series of amendments to a charter granted many years ago for the government of a small community—the weakness being that the original charter was not made broad and elastic enough to allow for the wonderful expansion that has taken place within the last two decades—an expansion not only in population and trade but in the variety of interestsc brought about by our immigration policy which allows the dumping of foreigners into our industrial centres, without any regard to either their own welfare or the welfare of the community at large. Montreal is in fact one of the most cosmopolitan cities in the world, and consequently one of the most difficult to govern, and no new charter is going to function any better than the present one, with all its drawbacks, unless the community or social interest forms at least an equal basis with the economic interest. For instance, to govern Montreal on what is known as a purely business basis would spell failure; that is, unless the citizens are prepared to accept the German system of bureaucracy—an impossible form of government for men and women with good red blood in their veins. The drafting of the Montreal charter will be watched with interest by other cities in Canada and in the United States.

THE HOUSING SCHEME.

THE PROVINCIAL housing scheme has been tested sufficiently to warrant its continuance. Ninety-nine municipalities in Ontario have come in under the scheme in the past year, Mr. J. A. Ellis, Director of Housing, states in his first annual report to the Government. These municipalities have erected 1,184 houses. But only the fringe of the housing need has been met, and the shortage of homes is being felt more keenly every month, says the Ottawa Journal.

There has already been appropriated for the housing system $10,629,000, and Mr. Ellis reports that $8,000,000 more will be needed to carry on the work fully this year.

The Hearst Government was keenly interested in the housing question and undoubtedly would have continued the scheme. Its fate now rests with the Farmer-Labor Government of Mr. Drury. This Government has not yet indicated its policy in respect of housing. A pronouncement from it is eagerly awaited. It is hoped that when it comes it will declare the Government's intention to carry on the scheme.

The housing system imposes very little burden on the province. It merely loans the money at a low rate of interest to the builders of houses, and a large part of what it loans it has not to raise itself. The Dominion Government appropriated $25,000,000 for housing, dividing it among the provinces on a pro rata basis in respect of population. Ontario's share of this is $8,753,291. The Province, therefore, will have to provide only about $2,000,000 of the $10,629,000 appropriated in 1919. It is worthy of note, in view of the fact that the question of the continuance of the plan is now in the hands of a Farmer Government, that the cities are not getting all of the money. Of the $10,629,000 appropriated, $5,125,000 goes to seventeen cities, $3,649,000 to thirty-nine towns, $735,000 to sixteen villages, and $1,120,000 to eleven townships. Thus the farmers and those with whom they are intimately associated—the people of the small country towns and villages—are taking advantage of the loans. The total amount appropriated, of course, has not been paid out. Loans approved for houses erected last year total $3,677,974, and the amount actually paid out was $2,807,721.

THE AMERICAN soldiers who find themselves married to those French women evidently missed the point of their military mission, which was to fight for liberty.

What kind of news would you call it, that the wet and dry issue in Ontario seems to rest a good deal with one Mr. Raney?—Detroit News.

THERE IS NO USE kicking about the tax rate. No other eleven men selected from the citizens could have made it less under the circumstances and preserved the rate of civic progress.

IF THE LANDLORDS in the city are disposed to play the game fair they will not plead the new tax rate as an excuse for raising the rents. MRS. GRENFELL'S WORK IN LABRADOR.

And Mrs. Grenfell—the indispensible Mrs. Grenfell—plays the game at all times and in all places with him, and thereby doubles his influence. There is no lowly helping task to which she will not turn her hand at need. She types the letters with a busted old typewriter (and how I wished I had the brains to fix it!). She keeps the records in detail of diagnoses and prescriptions and the personal history of patients; she hands out old clothing and books to the needy, being very careful to allot them justly; she fearlessly lectures the fishermen against the spitting that spreads tuberculosis; and everywhere she radiates the spirit of light and joy, and the example of hard work, so that the Doctor more than once turned to me and said "without her it would be impossible."—Dr. Paddon, in "Among the Deep Sea Fishers."

NINE DAYS WITH THE DEAD.

At North River a single house stands on the north shore and, at the time of the influenza plague, this was shut off from the others by ice conditions. In this house lived an old couple, a middle aged woman and two young men. All but the old woman died and she spent nine days in the house, with putrefying corpses, because of which she dared not kindle a fire to warm the house, and in hourly fear of an invasion by the hungry, wolf-like dogs. On the south shore seven more died. When the relief party could cross the Bay from Cartwright they dug a hole twenty feet by twelve, hauled out the corpses, two by two on komatiks, and hastily interred them. Seven miles to the north, in a still more isolated house, the father and one child died and froze together. The mother and one little one used their floor for fuel and kept live on jelly fish, kelp and Eskimo pappy. All along the coast a perfect famine as regards fresh meat had combined with the plague to lower health and prevent convalescence.

INASMUCH.

In various ways my family grew at an alarming rate, once the general principle was established. On my early summer voyage to the east coast of Labrador I found at Indian Harbor Hospital a little girl of four. In the absence of her father, who was hunting, and while her mother lay sick in bed, she had crawled out of the house, and when found in the snow, had both legs badly frozen. They became gangrenous half way to the knee, and her father had been obliged to chop them both off. An operation gave her good stumps; but what use was she in Labrador with no legs? So she joined our family, and we gave her such good new limbs that when I brought her into Government House at Halifax, where one of our nurses had taken her to school temporarily, and she ran into the room with two other little girls, the Governor could scarcely tell which was our little cripple Kirkina.

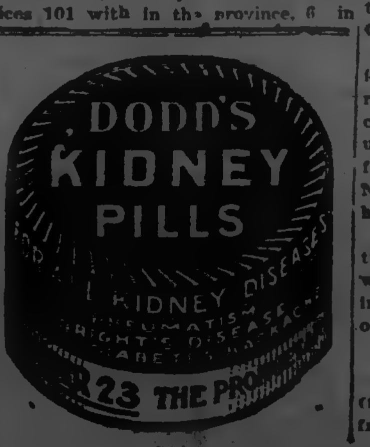
EMPLOYMENT IN CANADA

The Employment Service of the Department of Labor reports that returns from the Dominion and Provincial offices of the Employment Service of Canada for the week ended February 14th, show an increase in placements as compared with the preceding week. During the week 94 offices reported that they had referred 6828 persons to regular positions and that 5691 of those were placed. This represents an increase of 110 placements as compared with the proceding week when 5581 persons were placed. In addition 1198 casual jobs were supplied as compared with 1280 during the week ended February 7th. The placements for the week were distributed as follows:

Prince Edward Island	6
Nova Scotia	107
New Brunswick	217
Quebec	707
Ontario	2183
Manitoba	565
Saskatchewan	252
Alberta	644
British Columbia	1010

During the week 8641 applicants were registered, of whom 653 were women and 8188 were men. This represents a decrease of 1475 in registration, when compared with the 10316 applicants of the previous week. The number of vacancies notified by employers during the week totalled 6760 of which 5816 were for men and 944 were for women. This shows a decrease of 377 vacancies when compared with the 7137 notified during the previous week. The number of applicants unplaced at the end of the were totalled 27,283, which the number of vacancies remaining unfilled was 10068. This compares with 28,348 unplaced applicants and 10215 unfilled vacancies at the end of the week of February 7th. Of the placements in regular employment 398 were women and 5293 were men. The number of returned men reported as placed was 2987.

Of the placements in regular employment 6 were reported by Prince Edward Island offices, all within the province, as compared with 9 the previous week; 107 by Nova Scotia offices 101 with in the province, 6 in other provinces as compared with a total of 113 the preceding week. New Brunswick offices reported 217 placements, 212 within the provinces as compared with 272 the previous week. Ontario offices reported 2183 applicants placed, 2165 within the province and 18 in other provinces. This compares with a total of 1974 during the week proceeding. Placements were reported by the Prairie Provinces as follows; 565 Manitoba offices, 506 within the province and 59 in other provinces, as compared with a total of 601 the previous week; 252 by Saskatoon offices, 240 within the province and 12 in other provinces as compared with a total of 295 the week preceding; 644 by Alberta offices, 614 with the province and 30 in other provinces, as compared with a total of 599 the previous week. The British Columbia offices reported 10 10 placements, all within the province as compared with a total of 992 during the week ended February 7th.



PETERBORO FARMERS PREPARE FOR ELECTION

COL. JOHNSTON TO RUN IN EAST RIDING—WARDEN NICHOLS IN WEST

The farmers in East and West Peterborough are making political hay in the light of the new sun which just now is shining so brightly in their firmament. Whenever the next general election is held for the Federal House, the members of the U. F. O in this district will not be caught napping. In the east riding it is taken for granted that the Farmers' candidate will be Col. T. F. Johnston, a lifelong Liberal, who was one of the first men to join up with teh new party and who has been active in its interests ever since. Col. Johnston is not only a prominent farmer, but he has the added advantage of a war record, having led overseas the 93rd Battalion, one of the best military units that ever left Canada.

In the West Riding Allan B. Mann is a favorite son, but there are other rising young men whose chances are considered good, and Mr. Mann is understood to have little inclination for a public career. Warden A. K. Nichols of Smith is being urged by his friends to enter the race.

Whether, in the event of an election, the Independent Labor party will put up a candidate of their own in this riding or support of the choice of the farmers is so far a problem.

LEGEND ABOUT HIRAM ABIFF

More legend than fact has been woven around the character of Hiram, the widow's son, of Tyre, or, as he is more generally known, Hiram Abiff. This last name, however, does not occur in the English bible. It is first met with in the German translation, which was the work of Martin Luther. He translated the words, "Hiram, his father," in II. Chronicles ii., 13, and iv., 16, as "Hiram Abiff," and the same reading is now to be found in the Swedish version. Calmet, in his dictionary of the bible, has pointed out that the word "Hiram" signifies "high intelligence," and says that Hiram was called "father" by Solomon and the King of Tyre because he was the chief director of the work on the temple.

It is clear that Hiram could not have been the father either of David or of the King of Tyre. It is of interest to recall that Khurum or Hurum is identical with the Egyptian Herfra, Hermes or Hercules. The word Abi or Abiff, regarded by some writers as a surname, was a title bestowed by the Hebrews as an honor upon their chief advisers and the intimate friends of the reigning monarch.

The story of Hiram is given in the Old Testament, I. Kings, vii., 13-45, and II. Chronicles, ii., 11-14. In the first place, Hiram is described as the son of a widow of the tribe of Naphtali, and in the second as the son of a woman of the daughters of Dan, an obvious impossibility, as a woman could not belong to two tribes. The Rev. Morris Rosenbaum, a well-known Hebrew and Masonic scholar, maintains that two Hirams are spoken of, and points out that they were engaged upon different work in connection with the building of the temple. One was a brass-smith only, but the other was an all-round workman, skilful in every kind of metal work, also in stone and timber; consequently, a builder and a master of device, and architect.

One Masonic tradition runs that about four years before the building of the Temple Hiram Abiff, as the agent of Hiram, King of Tyre, purchased some curious stones from an Arabian merchant, and upon inquiry where he met with them he was told that they had been found upon an island in the Red Sea. King Hiram at once sent his agent to investigate, and he had the good fortune to discover many precious stones, and among the rest an abundance of the topaz, with which the King of Tyre adorned his palaces and temples, as we read in Ezekiel, xxviii, 13. Subsequently, according to Pliny, the island was called Topaz, from the abundance of this stone found there.

The story familiar to Free Masons is that Hiram Abiff was slain before the temple was completed, but if only one Hiram was referred to in the Old Testament, this story lacks corroboration either there or in Josephus. Masonic tradition asserts that he met his fate within the precincts of the temple before the work was completed, which is at variance with I. King vii., 40, and II. Chronicles iv., 11.

According to Mr. Rosenbaum, the legend of Hiram Abiff's murder can be substantiated by the Scripture narrative, although there is no mention of it in the Old Testament. "Huram, his father," he contends, refers to the father of Hiram, the second, who is said in the verses immediately preceding to have carried out the casting of the huge brass articles, and that the proper interpretation of the passage in Chronicles is: "And Huram (the father) made the pots and shovels, but Hiram (the son) finished all the work which he made for King Solomon," viz., the two pillars, the sea and the lavers.

In the history of the Masonic degree of architect we are told that on the stoppage of the work in consequence of the passing of the chief architect of the temple, King Solomon assembled all the masters, who were distinguished for their talents, and formed them into a lodge or council to supply the place of Hiram Abiff and conferred on them the privilege of entering the Sanctum Sanctorum, on the portal of which had been engraved the letter "G" inclosed within a blazing star. From this period the plans and designs of the temple were placed at the disposal of the Lodge of Architects.

The Ghiblim, or stone squarers, polishers and sculptors, says Dr. Oliver, a high Masonic authority, were the Dionysiacs, a society of architects, who built the temple of Hercules at Tyre and many magnificent edifices in Asia Minor before the temple of Solomon was projected. They were the masters and wardens of the lodges of Masons during the erection of this famous edifice; to them was intrusted the execution of those works of art and genius which were projected by the chief architect, Hiram Abiff; they maintained order and regularity throughout the last number of inferior workmen and laborers.

Hiram Abiff lived towards the end of the tenth century, B.C., at which time, and many centuries later, in the time of Tutmes III. (about 1600 B.C.), Hiram's countrymen were renowned for the productions of works of art. Dr. Anderson, in his "Book of Constitutions," issued in 1723, says, "Solomon had laborers of his own; but was much obliged to Hiram, King of Tyre, for many of the Ghiblim and Bonan who lent him his best artists and sent him firs and cedars of Lebanon; but above all, he sent his namesake, Hiram Abiff, who, in Solomon's absence, filled the chair as deputy grand master and in his presence was the senior grand warden or principal survey and master of work."

HORRIBLE EXPERIENCE

London, March 9.—A party of British officers arriving at Harbin from Omsk and Chita declare that their experiences west of Irkutsk excelled all other previous horrors, says The London Times, Harbin, Manchuria, correspondent in a communication dated February 19.

"Piles of naked, frozen and gnawed bodies of men, women and children were stacked at every station," the correspondent quotes the officers as saying. "The Czechs took the engines from the hospital trains, leaving the sick to perish from cold and hunger."

FATALLY SCALDED IN LARD

Chatham, March 8.—Thomas Leonard Goodwin, aged twenty years, passed away at noon yesterday in St. Joseph's Hospital as the result of scalds and burns sustained at the Canadian Wilson Packing Company's plant here Wednesday last, when, in the course of his usual employment, he fell into a vat of boiling lard. Before he could be rescued his body had become submerged up to his chin.

DAYLIGHT SAVING AGAIN IN KINGSTON

CITY COUNCIL ON JOB WITH BY-LAWS AND FINANCIAL GRANTS

Kingston, March 8.— Kingston is going to observe daylight saving again this year. The members of the city council passed a bylaw which will put daylight saving into effect from May 1 until Labor Day and citizens generally are well pleased over the action of the council.

It took the city councillors seconds to grant the sum of $150,000 for the erection of an infectious building at the Kingston General Hospital, in connection with the extension scheme at the hospital.

Kingston is the only city in Canada without a free library, but if the by-law that is to be placed before the ratepayers on March 24 is passed, provision will be made for the establishment of a free library.

There will be no motorization of the fire department this year. The city council decided not to submit a by-law to the people for the expenditure of $80,000 to motorize the department. It was felt that, owing to so many heavy expenditures this year, the fire department could wait.

DOMINION ALLIANCE CONVENES TODAY

SEEKING LEGISLATION TO STOP IMPORTATION OF LIQUOR INTO PROVINCE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

with the opening of the first session

Toronto March 9.— Concurrently of the Farmer-Labor Legislature in Ontario here this week, the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance will hold its annual convention and decide upon a policy for demands on the Ontario Legislature and the Dominion Parliament.

Many Delegates.

Many of the delegates to the Alliance convention are in the city today to attend the preliminaries to the main sessions, which will commence tomorrow. This convention will decide the important question as to whether or not the prohibition forces will ask the Ontario Legislature to bring on a vote in Ontario regarding the importation of liquors, and will also deal with the question of amendments to strengthen the Ontario Temperance Act.

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION

SAYS INDIGESTION RESULTS FROM AN EXCESS OF HYDROCHLORIC ACID.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heart-burn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive acids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

Children attending a school at Caldwell, N.J., were removed in rowboats by their teachers after water from mountain streams had inundated the school grounds.

DISCIPLINE AT ASYLUM GOOD

COMPLAINTS REGARDING FOOD GROUNDLESS—JUDGE HENDRIE SUBMITS REPORT

Toronto, March 8— After an exhaustive enquiry into charges regarding conditions at the Ontario Hospital, "formerly known as an insane asylum," at Hamilton, Judge Codin G. Hendrie has submitted his report, which states that, while in isolated cases patients in the hospital were treated with violence, on the whole the discipline among the attendants was satisfactory. Complaints regarding food he said were groundless.

Right of Examination.

The report recommends, however that all patients, claiming, with any show of reason, to be sane, should receive the right of examination by an expert and returned soldiers suffering from nervous disturbances should not be sent to an asylum, while there is any chance of their recovering.

Further, non-criminal patients criminal cases.

MYSTERIOUS FINLANDER

Arrested by Constable Moore. His Movements Cannot be Explained

A little over a week ago a foreigner alighted from an eastbound train at Havelock, and apparently had no knowledge of his surroundings or his correct destination. He was taken in tow by Constable Moore, of the county, who laid a charge of vagrancy against him. An interpreter was secured, but the prisoner would divulge no information, and the court sentenced him to be a guest of His Majesty for fifteen days. The sequel came today, when word was received from the Chief of Police at Fort William stating that the foreigner in question was a Finlander who had purchased a ticket at that city for Finland, and had left there for the Atlantic Coast to embark When the prisoner was found he had no such ticket on him, and since his arrest several doctors have examined him and given evidence as to his insanity.

Bela Kun is still in custody in Austria. A short time ago an attempt to secure his release by Hungarian officers was foiled.

Would Be Too Realistic.

In his "Lines of Communication," Captain Agate tells a good story of a certain great actress who was one day giving a lesson to a pupil on the bare stage of her theater.

The girl was supposed to be in immediate danger and to be calling for assistance, but could not manage to do so in a sufficiently realistic manner.

"But, madame, will you not show me the proper way to cry for help!" she asked at length.

"My child," replied the actress, "Were I to cry for help those decorators of mine up there in the wings would come rushing down on the stage."

Some Things Can't Be Borne.

"I thought you said you were not going to quarrel with your wife any more."

"So I did, but there's a limit to human endurance."

"Nonsense."

"When I refused to open my mouth she sat and tapped her foot on the floor until I exploded."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Made Good Use of Statue.

The equestrian statue of George III, that cantankerous old king who precipitated the American Revolutionary war, was well camouflaged when President Wilson passed by, following his arrival in London. An American sailor sat on the charger's neck, a Canadian on the tail and an American doughboy on its back, one arm around the neck of the king's image.

GLADNESS IN THEIR HEARTS

Physical Discomforts Unable to Affect Soldiers Who Had Good Reasons for Feeling Happy.

"It was three o'clock in the morning," said the returned soldier as he recalled his departure from a training camp. "A cold rain was pouring down in torrents. The hundreds of soldiers who came from the barracks of the big army camp were in a most cheerful mood. All carried heavy loads. They seemed to pay little heed to the fact the ground was soggy and their feet went into the mud above their shoe tops. At other times, when they had been brought out into the cold rain, they had spoken in bitter language, but it was not so upon this occasion.

"Through the inky darkness the men tramped with their heavy luggage, the packs getting heavier as the water soaked into them. They did not seem to mind the long hike, and they sang a little and laughed a little despite the fact their clothing did not turn the streams of water the skies above poured down upon them unmercifully.

"Finally the commands of officers rang out in the darkness and the men were halted near a railroad track. They stood there for more than an hour. The rain turned into a snow. The cheerfulness among the men was not broken. Their laughter continued, and occasionally they would sing some familiar army song.

"At last a long train of passenger coaches was backed in on the track. In that machine-like manner of troop movements the men boarded the train. The last man had no more than left the ground when the train began moving, and soon was rumbling and screeching through the darkness.

"Within the coaches the soldiers continued their singing and laughter, although they were wet to the skin. They had a reason to be happy. That 'grand and glorious feeling' finally had arrived.

"They were going home."

ENDED RAT PLAGUE

Rodents Wiped Out Scientifically and Thoroughly.

Campaign Waged by Bureau of Biological Survey of Agricultural Department Saved Large Government Stores From Ruin.

A barrel of rats is not a pleasant thing to contemplate, but it is what Maj. O. D. Hammond, quartermaster corps, United States army, used to have to look upon every day in the great Bush terminals, Brooklyn, used by the war department for storing clothing and subsistence for the overseas forces. At first, he saw them scampering around over everything, gibbering and crawling and cutting. Then he saw them, day after day, heaped up in barrels. Then, finally, he saw them dwindle until only about a dozen a day could be found in the whole warehousing plant, eleven blocks long and from one to three blocks deep. That was after he had carried out a trapping campaign according to plans furnished by the United States department of agriculture.

The war department took charge of the Bush terminals Jan. 1, 1918. Some of the buildings, it was found, were from 25 to 30 years old. Every time a door was opened into a warehouse, the scurrying of rats and mice could be heard and signs of them were apparent everywhere. It was evident that unless something could be done to get rid of them serious damage would result to subsistence supplies, such as flour, meal, corn, rice, oats, bacon, and even clothing.

The officer in charge applied to the United States department of agriculture for assistance; with the result that an expert from the bureau of biological survey was detailed. After making an investigation, he recommended that six or eight gross of modern rat traps be purchased and that four men be put to work trapping the rats.

Maj. Hammond, in a recent letter to the department of agriculture, says that the plan was immediately put in operation, and was followed throughout the year. At first, the day's catch would net a barrel full of rats and mice. At the end of the year, only an occasional rat or mouse could be caught, amounting to not more than a dozen a day in the entire plant. Maj. Hammond estimates that probably 50,000 rats were taken during the year and that the total loss to stores, after the trapping campaign was begun, did not exceed $50.

The bureau of biological survey of the department of agriculture has devoted a great deal of effort to devising ways of trapping and other means of destroying rodents in warehouses, and the knowledge thus gathered, with particular advice in individual cases, is available for the protection of stored products.

Language of Their Own.

A "boob" and a "gob" met at one of the entraining stations yesterday, where they serve tea and biscuit. "I don't suppose you army men savvy our sea-going slang," said the sailor, who wore "U. S. Armed Guard" on his hatband and two overseas stripes on his sleeve. "Sometimes the rookie sailors—we call them 'boots' because they always draw rubber boots at the training stations—don't savvy it, either. Now, you know, in the navy the little smoke stack from the galley or kitchen on a ship is nicknamed the 'Charlie Noble,' after some old sea cook of long ago. Well, on my ship one day we tells a rookie that 'Charlie Noble' said he was a fathead and a dub. The rookie got sore as a pup and went hunting all over the ship for 'Charlie Noble.' Finally he goes up to the captain himself and complained of being called names by Charlie. "Report to the bo's'n, said the skipper. Ask for a pot of red paint and tell him I gave you permission to daub it all over Charlie—do a good job of it, too.'"—New York Sun.

Romance in History.

It was in June, 1671, that the French took over the northern portion of the Province of Ontario. Most Canadians are still interested in the exploits of the coureur des bois, and in the adventures of Perrot, the most picturesque figure in the ceremony of June, 1671, when the Deputy Governor, "in the name of the High High, Most Powerful, and Most Redoubtable Monarch, Louis XIV, of name, most Christian King of France and Navarre," took possession of "Ste. Marie du Sault, as also Lakes Huron and Superior, the Island of Manitoulin, and of all the lands, rivers, lakes, and streams contiguous to and adjacent here as well discovered or to be discovered which are bounded on the one side by the seas of the north and on the other side by the seas of the south—in its whole length and breadth."

The Most High, Most Powerful, and Most Redoubtable Louis and his successors held the lands about the lakes for less than a century after their annexation, but among the men who carried the badge of Canada on the fields of France these last five years were hundreds who could have traced their descent directly from the hawk-eyed coureurs des bois who stood about Perrot on the day when a great province was added to New France.

Water in the Desert.

The National Geographic Magazine gives some interesting accounts of the driving of cattle to the nearest port or railway, from the vast pasture lands of Australia.

Two, three or even five months may be required, says this magazine. Unless the season is favorable, it cannot be done at all, for feed and water are lacking along the route. . . . Stock routes are laid out and tended as carefully as wagon roads or railways. They head for the principal markets, or for the ends of railways that extend into the arid belt, and wind across the country, taking advantage of all known water supplies. Streams, springs, billabongs and namma-holes are used, regardless of the quality of the water, for almost any liquid is acceptable in the desert. When the distance between watering places is too great, or areas of feed are beyond the reach of water, artificial supplies are provided and carefully watched. Wells are dug, and reservoirs and tanks are constructed to collect rain water. Where other means fail, skeleton buildings with large roof area are provided to conserve the rainfall.

Will Visit Southern Jungles.

Eighteen men and women, natural scientists and naturalists, headed by William Beebe, curator of the birds at the Bronx zoo, will sail soon from New York to explore jungles in South America. It is hoped they will bring back a large collection of rare birds and insects. Miss Mabel Satterlee, granddaughter of J. P. Morgan, will accompany the party to study birds, and Prof. William M. Wheeler of Harvard university will devote his attention to the study of ants. Others in the party will include Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborne of the American Museum of Natural History, Alfred Emerson of Cornell university, Miss Gertrude Emerson, editor of Asia Magazine, and Prof. Clifford Pope of the University of West Virginia.

Perplexing.

A certain admiral used to relate a story about a pretty girl on a Mississippi steamer who was anxiously sought in marriage by five of the passengers. As she looked on all of them with favor she sought the captain of the boat for advice in making her choice. His suggestion was that she should leap overboard, he, of course, making arrangements that no harm could come to her. This she did, four of her suitors promptly jumping in after her, and jointly bringing her back to the boat. "Whatever shall I do now?" she inquired of the captain. "I don't rightly know, miss," he answered, scratching his head in perplexity, "but it seems to me I'd take the dry one."

TWO HOMING PIGEONS FOR PETERBOROUGH

FRANK PRATT BRINGS THEM FROM ENGLAND FOR DETECTIVE NEWHALL

Frank Pratt ,formerly of the Peterborough Police Force and William James, caretaker of the cemetery arrived in the city yesterday after a two month' holiday in England.. They crossed on the "Scandinavian" and reported a fair trip although at times the weather was rough.

Mr. Spratt brought home two valuable homing pigeons, winners of the international flying contest between France and England, for Detective Sergeant Newhall. Mr. Newhall stated this morning that these birds were being bought in the Old Country for sums as high as $50 now. Mr. Newhall failed to state whether the birds would be incorporated as members of the detective force.

The pigeons had been crated up since February 20 and when they were released yesterday they were found to be in first class condition..

INFORMATION RELATIVE TO FIREMAN'S REQUEST FOR INCREASE IN SALARIES

A Document Which Bore Fruit in City Councils' Deliberation Last Night.

The following information was in the hands of every city alderman last night. It speaks for itself:

The fire-fighters is based on two arguments:

1.—The increased cost of necessities.

2.—The lack of recognition of merit service or industry. That our salary did not enable us to live with any degree of comfort was a well established fact, and in order to prove that efficiency was not recognized in the local department the same as in other departments, we requested information from other cities. We found that we were lower paid than others and that the opportunities of promotion and the reward of efficiency were not fairly arranged for.

A few facts concerning the duties of firement ought to be remembered. Although we have double platoon system we are on duty twenty-four hours daily. During twelve hours we respond to alarms from the station and during the other twelve we respond from our homes. Now, it is imperative that we respond to all alarms on the so-called "off duty" platoon. This means that we must be within reach of the sound of the alarm at all times. We have in our homes an alarm bell and a telephone (we pay for the phone.) When we are on the street we must be within hearing of the tower striker. If a fireman wishes to visit a friend's home in the evening he must choose a friend with a telephone and leave someone in his own home to call him in event of his alarm ringing. If he goes to church or to the theatre he must request the attendant to call him in event of fire. Often our men have had to leave a theatre during the progress of the show. The fireman cannot leave the city except during his annual vacation. The fireman, in order to be available at all times, must live within a reasonable distance of the fire station. Consequently his opportunities for gardening, etc. are fewer and he is also living in the high rent district. We believe that the fire fighter is entitled to as high a standard of living as any worker. Our children are a part of the future nation civilization's hope and the conditions under which they live will have an influence on their future usefulness. We request for them an opportunity for intellectual and physical development.

Conditions have improved in the local department recently, in the introduction of the double platoon system but this condition does not enable us to cope with the H. C. of L. We consider our request very reasonable. It was arranged five months ago and since then the cost of living has greatly advanced.

Attached you will find a few figures relative to the salaries paid in the Peterborough department compared with those paid in other cities. In Peterborough the firemen get from 11 8 cents per hour to 15.5 cents per hour taking into consideration the fact that we are on duty twenty-four hours daily.

Some objection has been raised, outside the council, to the firemen's organization. The fire fighter's association is essentially of an educational character, while at the same time having been formed for protection. It is absolutely a non-strike association Section 2 of the constitution proves this. We would be traitors to, not only the larger interests of the city but to the workers, if we were to leave the city without protection, affording to those in authority no opportunity to fill the vacancies. The homes and lives of the workers are just as likely to be destroyed by the fire fiend as those of others.

The increase requested amounts to $4,968.35.

The flat increase suggested is $4,200.00

This leaves the sum of $768.35 in dispute.

This, I do not believe to be very much to stand in the way of rewarding efficiency and service and something reasonable to those who perform additional duty or assume additional responsibilty. If there is to be no recognition of or encouragement for length of service, industry, efficiency or responsibilty how are you going to get men to render this service or to assume this responsibility?

The figures attached will, I believe prove conclusively that our request is a just one and, believe me, our aim is to improve the service and to see an intelligent fire-fighting force that will prove a credit to the city.

3rd Grade	1.200.00	1,318.00

Assistant Chief, yearly — $32.45; weekly $2.88 over the Captain.

Captain, yearly—$29.57; weekly $1.83 over the Lieutenant.

Lieutenant, $27.64; weekly— $1.6. over High Grade..

High Grade— $25.96.

Second Grade— $24.32.

3rd. Grade— $23.08.

To prove that our aim has been a more just distribution of the amount paid to the several ranks

Our request is below the request of other cities by 25.47 per cent for the Chief; 21.47 per cent for the Assistant Chief; 9.9 per cent for the Captain; 12.85 per cent for the Lieutenant; 10.77 per cent for 1st. Grade; 9.57 per cent for 2nd grade and 9.03 per cent for 3rd. grade. This means that we have asked for less in proportion to what other cities are paying for the higher paid mambers than for the lower. It means that by our schedule the lowest paid man will be paid nearer the amount paid to the higest paid man than in other cities.

Assistant Chief, $1.900.000, Captain $1825.00; High Grade Private., $1,642.50; Lowest Grade Private, $1,368.75.

In Brantford the newest man on the job receives 4 ?% more than the Assistant Chief receives in Peterborough.

Toronto, Hamilton, London, Windsor Chatham, St. Catharines. Ottawa Kingston, Stratford and other cities of Ontario have all received substantial increases this year.

MRS. WILSON HAS GAINED 20 POUNDS

"Since taking Tanlac I have gained twenty pounds in weight and all the neighbors are talking about my wonderful improvement," was the statement made recently by Mrs. Clare Wilson, of 40 McSweeney Ave., Moncton, New Brunswick.

"It was about five years ago that my health failed," she continued, "and in spite of all I could do I grew worse and worse. Then in October, 1918, I had a bad case of the 'flu,' which left me in a most miserable and weakened condition. I had almost no appetite at all and whenever I managed to eat a little of something it seemed to do me more harm than good. I had a heavy, distressing feeling all the time and I could hardly retain a thing on my stomach. My sleep was restless and often it was disturbed by horrible dreams and nightmares, and I was so nervous that even the children playing around the house upset me. I lost weight until I was scarcely more than a frame and I became so weak and run down that I was almost a wreck.

"One day my husband brought me a bottle of Tanlac, but I had taken so many medicines without getting relief that I had become discouraged and he had to insist for some time before I consented to take it. And now I am certainly glad I tried it, for I began to improve right away. After taking five bottles I am in perfect health today and my friends are simply amazed at my recovery. I can eat anything I please and digest it without the least trouble and I don't have that distressing feeling after eating like I used to. My nerves are steady and I sleep sound every night: I have gained so much in weight and strength that I am really feeling like a different woman. Tanlac was certainly a blessing to me and I am pleased to tell others about it."

The following information is summarized from a letter from Mr. S. Messer, President of the Company:—

1. The Continental Oil Company, Limited, of Canada, the business and assets of which have been acquired by the North Star Oil & Refining Company, Limited, a Canadian corporation, has been in successful operation in the Prairie Provinces for the past eleven years.

2. The Company has no bond issue or other funded indebtedness outstanding nor any floating debt other than current accounts payable.

3. Earnings after the completion of a refinery for the production of refined oil, gasoline and lubricating oil, at Winnipeg, which refinery is expected to begin operations about the middle of the year, are estimated to be initially at the rate of $150,000 to $160,000 annually, or equal to over twice the dividend upon the Preferred Stock. With the completion of other refineries, earnings are expected to materially increase.

4. The Company has affiliations with large and responsible producers in the United States which should ensure a continuous and constant supply of crude oil. In the event of the development of crude oil in commercial quantities in the Canadian West, the Company, with refineries at Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Calgary, will be in an advantageous position to manufacture from this crude, refined oil, gasoline and other petroleum products for the Western trade.

Applications, which should be accompanied with cheque for full payment, will be received only on the understanding that the right is reserved by us to allot all, a portion only, or none of the amount applied for. In the event of a partial allotment the balance, and if none be allotted the full amount forwarded, will be returned to the applicant.

It is intended that application be made to list these issues on the Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg Stock Exchanges.

NORTH-WEST NEWS IN BRIEF

Calgary, Alta., March 9.— An 800 acre farm situated between Carbon and Swalwell was sold by the owner, Mr. Eicherns, a few days ago for $60,000.

Vancouver, B. C., March 9.— Seven competitors from His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales stables will carry the royal colors at the Vancouver exhibition race meet this year, according to word received from J. Carlyle manager of the ranch purchased by the Prince during his recent visit to Canada. The horses are being sent to Canada for breeding purposes and will race at all the Canadian meets during the season.

Lethbridge, Alta., March 8. — The Federal Coal Mine has now been declared a "closed shop," all the miners having agreed to sign the check-off for the United Mine Workers of America. The halting between two opinions in regard to the International and the one Big Union has now given place to final action in declaring for the International.

Regina, Sask. March 9.—In the two years that the Juvenile Court has been established in Saskatchewan, out of a total of 451 children who have come before Judge Ethel MacLachlan, only 22 appeared the second time, and three the third time.

Vancouver, B. C., March 9.—A representative of the McCall Aero Corporation, of Calgary, has announced that the company will stage a Vancouver-to-Calgary flight non-stop, early in the spring. A Britol Tourer airplane with a 260 horsepower Siddeley Puma engine is now on its way from England. Captain Fred McCall, D. S. O., M. C., D. F. C., one of the most noted Canadian aces, or Captain W. Claxton, D. S. O, M C., D. F. C. with bar, another equally well known pilot will likely be the pilot.

Regina, Sask., March 9.— It is thought possible here that the California syndiciate of millionaires who are going after oil in Alberta on such a large scale have also been filing in Saskatchewan through agents. Already moer than 200,000 acres have been leased and this outlay this summer will be in the neighborhood of $200,000.00

Fort William, Ont., March 9—"Flu" is rife among the fur-traders and trappers of the north country, but is not so prevalent among the lumber-jacks and pole cutters, according to Game Warden J. T. Foxton, who has returned from a three weeks expedition through the district. "I met a dog train on the Misanabe river coming down from Moose Factory, carying sixteen victims of "flu," said Mr. Foxton. "This train had to journey two hundred miles with the patients to reach an hospital."

Winnipeg, Man., March 9.— Ocean ships in the Red River in 20 years at the latest, and the establishment of Winnipeg as the Liverpool of Canada, were predicted by Mayor Charles F. Gray. He said that the logical and inevitable solution of the trade problem for Winnipeg was an ocean route, through the Hudson Bay, down the Nelson River to Lake Winnipeg and through the Red River to the city.

Vancouver, B. C., March 9.— In the finest February weather which Vancouver has experienced in years much plowing was done on Lulu Island and on several farms early potatoes were planted towards the end of the month.

Moose Jaw, Sask., March 9.—The Saskatchewan School Trustees' Association has gone on record as favoring equal pay as between men and women teachers. Further, was decided that a standarad schedule of salaries should be set for the whole province the minimum being: second class $1200; first class, $1400 and university graduates$ 1700.

Regina., Sask., March 9.—Furs to the value of over two million dollars were bought in Saskatchewan during the season ending June 30, 1919, and the amount received for the season ending June 30, 1919, and the amount received for the season ending June 30, 1920, will be higher still owing to the great advance in the price of furs. Muskrats trapped for the year 1919 showed a decrease of 267,389 over that of 1918.

DOWNEYVILLE

Downeyville, March 9.— The many friends, and relatives of Mrs Thomas Morrissey are very glad to know of her recovery.

Mr. J. Campbell of Lindsay was a business visitor here during the past week.

Messrs. Daniel Costello and Charles Lucas Junior, were busy hawling the formers grain to Omemee during the past weeks.

Mr. James Lucas, Junior, was in King's Wharf on Wednesday last.

Mr. Thomas Lucas was in Omemee on Tuesday last on business.

Messrs. Francis and Urban Lucas were in Lindsay on Saturday.

Mr. William Carroll was in Lindsay transacting some business on Saturday.

Messrs. William Corroll and Urban Francis Lucas were in Omemee on Thursday evening.

MR. BURNHAM'S SPEECH IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS ON CANADIAN POLICY

Cost of Living.

The high cost of living is founded upon the most awful inflation that ever took place in the history of the world. It is true that the nation's holdings of gold have been enormously increased, but the paper currency in circulation, based upon that gold, has been still more enormously and disproportionately increased. The increase has extended from three times what it was before the war in some cases to ten times what it was before the war in others. There is an immensity of paper money. In some quarters it is worth nothing; in other quarters it is worth little, and we have high prices, based, of course, upon this inflated currency—the governments of the world, not excluding our own Government, meanwhile standing by and taking no steps or adopting no measures to shrink that inflation and enable prices to get back to where they were. The most extraordinary feature of it all is that we have in exchange a loss to this country which is almost beyond belief and is almost more than we can bear. There are people, the farmers included, who view this condition with equanimity. They may be a little disturbed, but they say: We will not buy in Canada if we can buy more cheaply out of it. Well, if they are determined to follow that system and they are bled year by year many millions of dollars in discount or by way of foreign premium, then, just as a case of Bright's disease will sooner or later destroy and exhaust a human being, so will payment of that money surely destroy Canada. The nations of this world are not one. We have all our households, national and domestic, to look after. Our farmers are the most cultured, and, generally speaking, the happiest and most prosperous class in the whole community. For them to consider that they have a right to envy the rest of us because of our superior luxuries or attainments is a serious and sad mistake. I know of nowhere that the farming community enjoys such a high, broad and luxurious life as in Canada. Therefore, it is with the utmost regret that I see that they have formed themselves on a basis of force into a class or group, and to prove that they have formed themselves into an exclusive group, they say that nobody but a farmer can join them. You have nothing left; you cannot follow in behind them because you approve or disapprove their principles, because they repudiate you. And why do they repudiate you? Because their whole new policy is founded on selfishness or self-interest. How can they say that they intend to do what is best for Canada when they refuse to let good Canadians join them unless they are actual farmers? They hope, by the power of their number, to come to Ottawa to rule the country, and I am stirred to make these remarks by hearing the Premier of Ontario say that he did not care so much for his job as Premier of Ontario, only for one thing, namely, that he regarded it as an outpost in his keeping, and he bade the farmers of Ontario keep their eyes and their minds upon Ottawa. There, he pointed out, was the field of their operations, and the Province of Ontario will be kept as an outpost while a class or group, defying all the traditions of good Canadianism and all the desire that we have we should blend our interests, will reject all these and say: We will keep the province as an outpost and make our assault upon our fellow citizens at Ottawa. As for the others—their day will come; labor, the professions, their day will come; the manufacturer, their day will come, their hour will come, in the language of my French friend. But now, just like a great storm blowing across the country, the farmers have announced that they are determined to sweep all before them. Well, that is a magnificent way to proclaim the unity and solidarity of Canadianism. I sympathize with the Liberals that I see before me who are going down in this great storm. I do not suppose that two years hence Liberalism will be more than a name; and if the Conservative party, or that which shall succeed the Conservative party, does not defend the Canada for the Canadians, a well developed and well balanced country the Conservative party, or the party which succeeds it, will go down, too.

A Canadian Policy

Like the hon. member for Parkdale, (Mr. Mowat.) I am wedded to no party, but I am wedded to a Canadian policy. I am wedded to the national policy, not to everyfeature of it, because there have been mistakes; there have been injustices; but to the principle. Work at home, work together; buy at home; let your country be well balanced; then when time of trouble comes, you will be developed and able to take your part as in the late war, and when difficulties of a financial character arise they will all be at home and you will not be paying out your gold to redeem yourselves and paying a huge discount to other nations. These things are too serious to trifle with, and I hope, in these crucial days, nobody is approaching these subjects except with the most acute concern.

MISSION TO RUSSIA

London, March 9.—General Ludendorff, erstwhile head of the German military system, has passed through Finnish territory on his way to Russia, according to a Helsingfors despatch to the Central News. The General was accompanied by a large staff, the message adds.

CORINNE GRIFFITH RENEWS CONTRACT WITH VITAGRAPH FOR SCREEN SERVICE

Corinne Griffith, one of the screen's most successful and best known stars, has just entered into a new agreement which insures her service to Vitagraph for the extra three year Both Mr. Albert E. Smith, Presiden of Vitagraph, and Miss Griffith took time by the forelock at the Vitagraph Brooklyn studio, and signed the renewal of the old contract some time before it had expired.

Corinne Griffith, whose rare charm and artistry endeared her to motion picture patrons wherever she is seen, is a daughter of the south who rose to fame during her association with Vitagraph, winning her place on the much-sought screen thorugh her own endeavor. She is the ideal society type and her sparkling personality, on and off the screen, radiates self-reliance, refinement and contentment. She began her screen career with Vitagraph and has remained with them ever since. Her new contract gives her a salary on a par with that of the most famous film star.

Miss Griffith was born in Texarkana, Tex..., and completed her education at the Sacred Heart Convent in New Orleans, while still a school girl, her beauty attracted the attention of one of the Vitagraph officials who foresaw for her a future in motion pictures. At the completion of her studies her mother had other plans for Miss Griffith, but she finally consented to a professional career for her daughter and accompanied her to Vitagraph's studio in California where the coming star made good from the very start.

Posessing rare beauty, marked with dramatic ability and the added advantage of photographing splendidly, Miss Griffith advanced rapidly and was soon playing leads to well known male stars and at the end of a year she was sent to the Brooklyn studio where for a time she was leading woman for Earle Williams. Then Albert E. Smith, President of Vitagraph, promoted her to stardom.

Miss Griffith is a thorough athlete a graceful dancer and an intelligent actress, traits that have stood her in good stead in her diversified characterizations. Her pictures have been universally successful. Her most recent features have been "A Girl at Bay," "The Bramble Bush," "The Tower Jewels," and the big special production of Clyde Fitch's masterpiece, "Th Climbers." She recently finished "Deadline at Eleven," a newspaper story by Ruth Byers and is now engaged on "The Momento," a feature adapted from the short story of the same name by the late O. Henry.

NO INCREASE IN PENSIONS

Germany Wants Information Asked Pensioners by Ottawa.

Ottawa, March 9. — The Pensions Commissioners have sent circular letters to widows, widowed mothers and children who have been receiving pensions because of the war, requesting that they provide the department with the exact date of birth. The information is required by Germany, which under the peace treaty must pay pensions of dependents up to a certain date. The payment by Germany is in the nature ofr a refund and will not mean any addition to hte amount which has been received by Canadian pensioners.

AUTO SPEEDERS BEWARE

POLICE MAGISTRATE DUMBLE MAY FOLLOW ACTION OF BROTHER MAGISTRATE

Magistrate Dumble has received a card from an admirer of his which gives him some friendly advise as to a course he might pursue when carrying out his official duties with regard to cases of speeding. The advise which appears below is particularly interesting in view of the fact that Mr. Dumble is hot against speeding.

"A California magistrate struck a new note recently when he jailed a motor car for speeding and allowed the speeder to go free. There are great possibilities in this line of reasoning. For a five day period at least that motor car was out of harm's way, and the owner, presumably not having a second car, would also be safe for a like period of time. On a second offense the magistrate might fine the car one tire, and if it still persisted in 'hiting it up' a second tire might be pinched; and so on until finally His Honor would have a complete car at his disposal. These suggestions are not patented. Any Canadian police magistrate may adopt them without fear of infringement."

RAIL DERAILS TRAIN

St. Thomas, March 9.—A broken rail caused a bad spill on the Wabash-G.T.R. line, just east of Aylmer, yesterday morning, eighteen freight cars of Wabash train No. 98, loaded with valuable merchandise, being derailed. One car loaded with tractors was very badly broken up. The passenger trains were detoured via the Michigan Central until the tracks were cleared last evening.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.

RED CROSS HEROES

Correspondent Tells of Deed of Splendid Bravery.

Many Glorious Things Have Been Done in the Hot Spirit of Battle, But This Was in a Class by Itself.

From Hill 212, overlooking Fere-en-Tardenois and the valley of the Ourcq, William Slavens McNutt, Collier's correspondent, watched the American infantry start the Germans on their final retreat from Reims-Soissons-Chateau Thierry pocket. He says:

And then I saw the most painfully dramatic thing I have witnessed in all this war. Out from the little strip of wood that the Americans had just captured, walking slowly out into that open, bullet-swept field over which the charge had passed, I saw two men with the brassard of the Red Cross on their arms bearing a wounded man on a litter. They had perhaps 300 yards to go back across that open field before the curve of the hill would shelter them from the machine gun fire from the hill above. And they could not run, they could not duck, they could not take cover. They must walk upright on their work of mercy, walk upright in that storm of lead, and, walk slowly for the burden they bore!

"There go two dead men," the captain said solemnly. "They haven't got a chance in that field. The machine guns'll get 'em, sure! Watch!"

I watched. I have never watched anything so intently in my life. And with all the fervency of reverence and belief that there was in me I prayed for those two men of mercy over there who could not fight back; those men who had made the charge up the hill with their comrades of the gun and bayonet and must now march back bearing a wounded fighting man to safety; back through that storm of lead that was sweeping the field from the big wood—march back standing straight and walking slow. So slow!

They had made perhaps a hundred yards when one of them slipped to his knees and rolled over.

"I told you," the captain exclaimed. "They've got 'em!"

"Only one," I said. "The other fellow's not hit."

"They'll get him," the captain prophesied gloomily.

I saw the unwounded man kneel by his stricken comrade. For the space of a minute he knelt there, I suppose applying first aid. Then he stood erect. And then the man who had been hit, the stretcher bearer on the ground, rose slowly—oh, so very slowly—till he was propped up on one elbow. Then to his knees. Slow! Then very, very slowly he got to his feet. Once up, he leaned over—and, from where I was, through my glasses, I could see by the movement the pain it cost—leaned over, grasped the handles of the litter, and straightened up again. He had been hit, but he was going on!

On they went. I have no power to describe how slowly they seemed to be moving across that deadly open field. A hundred yards! Another hundred would mean comparative safety under the slope of the hill. Fifty of that accomplished! Twenty-five more! And then, slowly yet, they vanished from sight under the protective slope. They had made it!

I think I shouted. I know I tried to, and I know that my knees were suddenly too weak to hold me up and that I abruptly knelt and grasped the slim pole of the little lone tree near by to steady myself.—Red Cross Bulletin.

An Ideal Woman.

Solomon's model woman would have made an ideal federated club woman! First she began at home and the heart of her husband-man safely trusted in her, for she rose while it was yet night to give meat to her household. She was a financier, another qualification fitting her admirably for club life, for we see her considering a field and buying it. She was a horticulturist, for she planted a vineyard. She was a merchant, for she bought her goods from afar and perceived that they were good. She was a manufacturer, for she is pictured as making fine linen and selling girdles to the merchants. She was a wise councilor—perhaps, a member of the national council of defense; we knew she was a diplomat, for her husband was known in the gates, and so was she.—New York Evening Telegram.

New Roofing Material.

England's efforts to conserve steel and iron have resulted in the development of an asbestos and cement material that is being used instead of corrugated iron for roofing purposes. It is made by mixing one part of finely ground asbestos to six parts of Portland cement. When made into paste by the addition of water, it is rolled into sheets which, after being trimmed, are corrugated and then seasoned. The asbestos serves as reinforcement.

RHEUMATISM FOR OVER 16 YEARS

103 Church St., Montreal.

"I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism for over 16 years. I consulted specialists; took medicine; used lotions; but nothing did me good.

Then I began to use "Fruit-a-tives", and in 15 days the pain was easier and the Rheumatism much better. Gradually, "Fruit-a-tives" overcame my Rheumatism; and now, for five years, I have had no return of the trouble. I cordially recommend this fruit medicine to all sufferers."

WINTER TRAVEL IN ALASKA

His route extended around the whole arctic coast of Alaska, beginning at the west side, and thence inland to Fort Yukon. He was received everywhere with cordial hospitality by the Eskimos. Two weeks were spent at Point Barrow, where the traveler had an opportunity of studying the largest Eskimo village in Alaska under winter conditions. During the subsequent journey of 225 miles to Flaxman island the party saw only one human being and were housed only twice.

The archdeacon describes it as "the barrenest, most desolate, most forsaken coast I have ever seen in my life: flat as this paper on which I write, the frozen land merging indistinguishably into the frozen sea, nothing but a stick of driftwood here and there, half buried in the indented snow, gives evidence of the shore."

For two weeks the travelers had to face a bitterly cold northeast wind, and the faces of all were continuously frozen. The heaviest task of all was the journey over the winter's unbroken snow to Fort Yukon. On this inland trip Stefansson and his party were encountered and escorted to Fort Yukon, where Stefansson, who was seriously ill, received medical attention.

Alligator Farming.

There is much money to be made in alligator farming. The demand for alligators is large, constant, and rapidly increasing; the supply is limited, and there is not much competition. The few alligator farmers in America are prospering. Alligators have to be fed on meat, but they need no food from September 1 to May 1, for this is their hibernating season, when they do not eat at all. Alligator skins are used for making bags, suit cases, purses, belts, cushion covers, etc., and the teeth and bones are made into cuff-links, paper knives, whistles, and many forms of cheap jewelry and ornaments. The skins are worth from two to twelve shillings apiece, according to size and quality. More money, however, is made by selling live alligators to museums and for pets. It is said that the State of Florida realizes more than two hundred thousand pounds a year from alligators.

Horses, Men and Elephants.

Tests made to determine the respective pulling power of horses, men and elephants showed that two horses, weighing 1,600 pounds each, together pulled 3,750 pounds, or 550 pounds more than their combined weight. One elephant weighing 12,000 pounds pulled 8,750 pounds, or 3,250 pounds less than its weight. Fifty men, aggregating 7,500 pounds, pulled 8,750 pounds, or just as much as the single elephant, but, like the horses, they pulled more than their own weight. One hundred men pulled twelve thousand pounds.

Conan Doyle's "Familiar."

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "familiar" proved of very practical assistance to him the other day.

The creator of "Sherlock Holmes" walked into his study, and after some indecision drifted over to the waste-paper basket, plunged his arm into the litter, and—extracted a valuable war office document relating to the history of the war! It had blown from the table into the basket.

"I've never done such a thing before," said Sir Arthur, in narrating the circumstances, and the unusual course of action which he followed with such good results he attributes wholly to the promptings of his "familiar."—London Chronicle.

Dreaded Sub-Tropical Spider.

The mygale is one of the best known of the large and heavy spiders. It is a native of tropical and sub-tropical America. It is said that it catches and kills small birds with its poisonous bite and then sucks the blood of its victims. The body of this spider is dead black and is covered with long reddish-brown hair. It possesses eight eyes, placed close together in the front of its head.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW

GOLD IN NEARLY ALL LANDS

Yet It Is Today, to a Very Large Extent, the "Mainspring" of a Nation.

Gold has been much talked about during these years of war, and every one-pound and ten-shilling note is a monument to the power and value of gold. It is to a great extent the mainspring of a nation, says a writer in London Answers.

And yet in spite of its being counted among the rare and precious metals it is surprising how universally it is found. Almost every country in the world can boast of a gold mine.

Gold is found in the ground in rock formation when its presence is often discovered on the surface. The fine particles of gold are extracted by crushing the rock and amalgamating with mercury. Another place where gold is found is in river beds and ditches, when the gravel is collected and the gold separated by washing.

In the British Isles gold is found in small quantities. There are a few mines in North Wales, where it is won from rock of poor quality.

The greatest mines in the world are in Africa, the Rand mines, which are worked by large limited companies. Up country, in Rhodesia, and also in West Africa, there is plenty of gold.

America is the next largest gold-producing country. Extensive operations are carried on in Alaska and California, and the metal is obtained in many other American states.

Australia is one of our colonies whose reputation as a gold producer is known to many. Gold was first discovered in 1851 in New South Wales and Victoria, and there are possibilities in gold mining in Queensland and Western Australia.

PUTTING THE CASE MILDLY

The example given in recent issues of the Companion of understatement of facts reminded a reader of a glaring instance of such caution in speech. One Monday morning, she says, our colored laundress came to us all agog with the gruesome particulars of the brutal murder of a little girl that had happened a few hours before. As she was the bearer of the first intelligence, I listened intently, interrupting her tale with due exclamations of horror. At last she turned to the washtub:

"Ya-as'm," she drawled, bending over steaming suds, "it suttinly was a mean thing to do—a right mean thing!"

At the time that seemed to me the acme of moderation, but—strangely enough—I was later to meet it exaggerated in the mother of the little victim of that mad assassin. When I paid my visit of condolence to the poor woman, she spoke at length of all the sad circumstances of the tragedy. It was when she came to sum up her conclusions that language failed. Pulling out her handkerchief, she sobbed into its neat folds:

"It was so—uncalled for!"—Youth's Companion.

The Middle Class.

Class is being raised against class as a consequence of the attitude of the manual laborers in Britain. While monopolist capital has always been able to fight for its rights and maintain its power, it is the unfortunate middle class that is the toad beneath the harrow,—above the beast the spikes of taxation and capitalism, beneath the stony indifference of labor to any other interest than its own. Yet the middle classes form the majority of the educated classes and probably give less trouble to government than any other equal body of men.—Singapore Free Press.

Played No Favorites.

A gentleman was staying in a provincial town when he heard that Mr. Moneyboy, his partner in business, was at another hotel on the telephone.

"Is Mr. Moneyboy there?" he inquired.

"No; he is not," came the response.

"Well, has he engaged rooms?"

"No. We don't reserve rooms here. First come, first served, is our rule," came the sharp and somewhat airy reply.

He was rather taken back at the lofty independence they seemed to revel in in that town.

"Can you tell me," he asked, "if he will stay with you when he reaches the town?"

"It's possible he may. But we can't say."

"Look here," roared the irate gentleman, "you're the most impudent jack in office that ever spoilt his master's business! Go away and tell some one who knows more about the business of the hotel to come and speak to me."

There was a chuckle at the other end of the wire.

"This isn't a hotel; it's the town jail," said the voice.

THE BARBARY COAST.

Notorious District In San Francisco Passes.

Extending back from the bay front in San Francisco, California, to the border of Chinatown, itself a distinctively oriental section of a cosmopolitan city, lies wh[illegible] has been known, almost since the days of the gold rush in 1849, as "Barbary Coast." Few tourists who have visited San Francisco have failed at least to get a glimpse of this exceptional relic of the frontier days, in those hours of the night when its activities were at their height. "Barbary Coast," in daylight, was no more spectacular or interesting than its neighbor, Chinatown, or the near-by Italian section. In earlier times, its kerosene lamps and gas lights burned brightly on street corners and in its entertainment halls and worse resorts until dawn, and its denizens and frequenters toiled not by the light of the sun. Chinatown also was, in the days of its so-called glory, as it is at the present day, prosy, quiet, and uninteresting, even to the enthusiastic searcher after the unusual, until after dark. In the Chinese section the shaded, subdued light, indicative of the mysterious, perhaps the forbidden, is the attraction, even to the wary. In the "Barbary Coast" section, on the contrary, the very brightness of the vari-colored lights served to attract and hold those in search of unusual adventures.

But now the lights have been dimmed; the doors of dance halls which were the scenes of unrestrained revelry for possibly seventy years have been closed and padlocked, and the denizens have gone their various ways. The sightseer, maybe not advised of the change, walks up Kearney street to the border of the "Coast," only to turn back very likely for a stroll out Market street and on to the old Mission District, where time and changing social conditions seem to leave no visible impress. But the tourist, had he stopped to think, would have been saved the short walk from the city's hotel and civic centre to the border of the deserted "Coast." He would have known that "Barbary Coast" without its saloons and licenced resorts could not flourish ever for a night. The edict was immutable when it became settled that national prohibition was to be enforced. Those who had reveled in open defiance of somewhat less drastic social regulations prepared to write the final chapter in the history of an institution segregated as distinctly from the environs of Knob Hill and Twin Peaks as though separated by an ocean.

The devastation which swept San Francisco from the water front to Van Ness avenue in 1906 transformed the old San Francisco into the new. Much that gave to the city its former quaintness was lost, to be replaced with more modern buildings and parks. Even Chinatown was transformed. Its joss houses gave way to neat and attractive shops, to schools, and to modern dwellings. It retains its customs, its oriental atmosphere, and its language. It even has its own telephone exchange and its department in the telephone directory, with the names of subscribers printed in Chinese characters. But the rebuilding of the "Barbary Coast" section, or that part of it which had been destroyed, brought little change from the original outward aspect. And the "Coast," like Chinatown, retained its "language," its dialect, as peculiar and as distinctive as the dialect of the "Apache" in Paris or that of the Bowery in New York. No forbidding warning, apparently, was seen in the black pall which rested upon the section after the embers had cooled and order had been restored elsewhere in the city. The revelry was resumed, and continued until the people of a whole nation rose up and declared it forever outlawed.

From "Barbary Coast," in times gone-by, many an unwilling sailor has embarked upon a voyage for which he had no liking. The "Coast" section, naturally enough, was the place where the crimp, the tool of unscrupulous masters of ships, plied his hideous vocation. The resort keepers and habitues were his paid accomplices. The "Coast" was the home port of missing men, of men inveigled into servitude through the willing or unwilling slavery which drink had imposed upon them. Now, with this weapon of offence taken from them, the crimp and his confederates find their occupation gone, and they, too, it is said, have bidden "Barbary Coast" farewell. Even the hospitable San Franciscan, it is safe to assert, will not regret telling his guest that "Barbary Coast" has been struck out of the revised list of attractions in the city of which he is so justly proud.—Christian Science Monitor.

The Auto In Peru.

The Peruvians take eagerly to the automobile, wherever its use is possible. Outside of the sections served by railroads — and there are only about 1,700 miles of railway in Peru's 700,000 square miles of land —transportation has hitherto depended on pack mules or burros. As trails or bridle paths are being converted into highways, motor cars and trucks are bringing new life to formerly isolated centres of mining and agricultural production.

The Hun Propagandist.

Dr. Dryander, once chief court preacher in Berlin, describes in the Lokal-Anzeiger an interview of Allan Baker, M.P., an English Quaker, with Kaiser Wilhelm before the war, says the New York World. There had been talk of a league of nations. Dr. Dryander continues:

"For that we should need a new Saviour," replied the Kaiser. Here the Quaker Baker had a heavenly inspiration by God: "You are the man"! he cried ecstatically, and, in Quaker fashion, he three times touched the Kaiser's chest and arms. The Kaiser's eyes became moist. "What this man wants is also my desire," he said, "but if one wished to compel peace one must be powerful."

Wilhelm's arms were not powerful enough to "compel peace." English Quakers must now think a new "Ecce Homo!" sacrilegious. But a Moravian preacher at Amerongen also choruses praise of William: "How lovingly he talks of his brave army and his court clergy!" (indorsing Dr. Dryander). He "defends his people: 'War, misery and hunger make them what they are to-day.'" He is "in God's hands." And "Where the Kaiser is, there is sunshine."

We had supposed that where the Kaiser is dwells the memory of a wasted world and eight million dead. However, these publications have a purpose. When important German elements begin hocking der Kaiser again, they are probably wondering whether they dare start something.

Garibaldi.

Gen. Giuseppe Garibaldi of the Italian army, who arrived in New York recently on a special mission to aid in cementing the friendship of the Italian and American peoples, is a grandson and namesake of the Italian patriot, himself once a resident of New York. Before the European war he was what in the story books is called a "soldier of fortune." That is, he is the same Col. Guiseppe Garibaldi who was on Francisco I. Madero's staff and who fought at the first battle of Juarez in May, 1911, at the battle that made Madero president. Garibaldi was a bigger man in this battle than he ever received credit for. There was more jealousy at the battle of Juarez that there was ammunition.

Take No Chances.

"Not every one understands how inflammable and explosive chlorate of potash is. One man learned in a peculiar manner. He was carrying chlorate of potash tablets in a small bottle in his coat pocket; the cork presumably became loosened and fell out. Entering a street car, he knocked the ashes from his pipe, as he supposed, and put it in his pocket. In a few moments there were spurts of blue flame, and the tablets 'went off.' For a time the man was in danger of being mistaken for an enemy alien, carrying bombs. The mystery of the explosion was solved by finding small particles of glass wedged in the clothing around where the bottle had been. Other than the shock to his own nerves and those of the passengers, the only damage was to his clothes, which were burned badly."

Fir Turpentine.

Copenhagen engineers are experimenting with the production of turpentine from fir trees, the roots and twigs being used as well as the trunks.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Nothing Is Impossible.

"A creature of marvel is this thing called man," observed the facetious philosopher. "He can ride in an automobile and run into debt at the same time."

Cactus Is Vegetable Camel.

In the hot desert regions of Arizona and Mexico the cactus stores in its thick leaves every drop of water or dew that it can get, so that there is always a supply, not for a day, but for a dry season. In reality the spines of the cactus are the remnants of its leaves, and the so-called leaves are the modified stalks. In the waterless regions where the cactus grows it has very little use for leaves that would only wither away from the heat, so it reduces them to a very effective weapon against all enemies, and then swells the stalks to make the kind of watertank it can best use for its purposes. The best proof of the efficiency of its reasoning is in the fact that it exists where very little else can, except a few plants, which have similarly adapted themselves to circumstances.—Family Herald.

BELMONTS WIN FIRST INDOOR BASEBALL GAME WITH MACHINE GUN SECTION

Score 20 to 2 in Opening Contest of the New City League

With Col. E. B. Clegg, 57th Regiment, in the pitcher's box, Major Miller, 4th brigade C.M.C., at the bat and Capt. Winterbottom behind the bat, the season opened in the City Indoor Baseball League at the armories last night. A large crowd of spectators assembled and took great interest in the opening game between the Belmonts and the M. G. S. The Belmonts walked away with an easy victory to the tune of 20 to 2, and in some quarters the score was alleged to have been 24 to 2.

The M.G.S. were fortunate enough to score the first counter and had visions for a few moments of a victory, but these visions were soon rudely dispelled. The star of the game was undoubtedly Harrison whose pitching was remarkable. Time after time the M.G.S. went to bat without being able to connect at all and the only score they could make was one in the first and one in the last inning. Infielders and outfielders were an unnecessary part of the Belmont team for the game throughout was a two-man game between the catcher and the pitcher.

The 20 counters of the Belmont team were scattered pretty well all over the game. They got six in the third, seven in the sixth and six in the eighth. After such an auspicious start the Belmonts have visions of making a name for themselves in the league.

However, the M.G.S. are of the opinion that with a little more practice they will be able to offer some better resistance and it is understood that there are some more fast teams in the league who will be able to dispute any high ambitions of the Belmonts.

The line-up last night was as follows:

Belmonts—Catcher, C. Haskill; pitcher, C. Harrison; 1st base, S. Lowes; 2nd base, C. Stewart; 3rd base, F. Jobbitt; short stop, F. Hollyman; r. field, M. Knox; l. field, A. Darling; centre, A. Thompson.

FIREMEN'S SALARIES

Council, he said, and does not advocate applying the same principles in regard to the firemen as has been meted out to civic officials—some of them high-salaried men.

Ald. Turner pointed out that the objection to the proposed salaries seems to come from the men who have practically got all they want, and not from the officers who are affected by the reductions proposed. This seemed evident at the last meeting, he said, when two of the firemen interviewed Council.

Ald. Crowe replied that these men were a committee from the whole brigade.

Ald. Crowe Explains.

Ald. Crowe here entered into an explanation of his position. In their first communication to the Council, he said, the firemen had asked an increase commensurate with the increased cost of living, "and I contend that that increase in living would be met in a $200 flat raise for all. It appears, however, that the men want a percentage increase, to recognize length of service, industry, efficiency and responsibility." Ald. Crowe here said he had met the men at the firehall and discussed his position with them. He had pointed out that they belong to an organization the platform of which is a more equalization of wages and the raising of the men's standard nearer to that of the officers'. He contended that the efficiency and responsibility of the brigade's officers was already recognized in their salaries of 1919. The men, Ald. Crowe continued, had expressed approval in his policy for meeting the increased cost of living, but had pointed out that they also contended that length of service, industry, efficiency and responsibility should be recognized this year, which might be the only year the men would ask for increased recognition of officers' salary on the grounds of efficiency and responsibility. The men took the stand that from former Chief Howard's time the officers' position had not been sufficiently recognized in their salaries above those o fthe rank and file. After this year, they say, a flat rate increase would probably be satisfactory, but at present the difference in salaries between those of officers and men is not sufficient.

Ald. Crowe here, in direct reply to Ald. Morrison, said: "I have been sincere in my contention that all departments under Council's control should be treated on similar lines. I come here to represent Labor to a certain extent and also to represent the people as a whole. There is nothing in it for me to come here and argue methods if I am not sincere in my arguments."

Ald. Turner—"Why not recognize the increased cost of living this year, which is to be a hard one for civic administration, and recognize service, efficiency and responsibility next year?"

To Ald. Turner Ald. Crowe replied that he would not amend his position. The men had originally asked for increases to meet living expenses and had been granted sufficient for that purpose.

Ald. Whitehouse thought that if the chief and officers were not sufficiently recognized above the men in salaries, ambition and efficiency among the men would not be encouraged. "It's a good thing to stimulate ambition."

Ald. Gordon—"The Chief is getting nearly $700 more than second rate men."

Ald. Hamilton did not approve of $25 additional to drivers of the Chief's car.

The Decision.

Considerable debate here occurred on the question of an additional $100 for secretary's services, Ald. Morrison holding out for even $50, as suggested by Ald. Turner, till the eleventh hour.

Ald. Jones took the stand that as Fireman Johnston apparently filled the duties of secretary in the hours he was on duty, no extra remuneration should be allowed.

Finally Ald. Morrison and Whitehosue moved that the men's wage schedule as originally presented be adopted, eliminating $100 for secretary.

This was carried, but Ald. Gainey, finding that he had voted for $400 increase in the Chief's salary, withdrew his vote, and the motion was discarded.

Several resolutions and counter-resolutions here met their Waterloo, and Ald. Turner and Copping moved that the Chief's salary be $2000, that of the assistant chief $1600, captain $1500, secretary $1350 (eliminating the $100 for secretaryship), and the other salaries to remain as requested by the men.

This carried.

Another Cut.

Ald. Jones thought the city solicitor's proposed salary of $1500, an increase from $1000, might be reduced to $1200. In the salary of $1500, Ald. Jones said, the solicitor would be getting a raise of 50 per cent., more in proportion to anyone else in the city's employ.

Ald. Jones and Copping moved that the solicitor's salary be $1200 a year. This carried.

Ald. Phelan's motion that it be $1500, as previously decided, was passed by.

Ald. Crowe's motion that the city engineer get $3000 a year instead of the $3300 previously agreed on found no seconder.

The Rate.

The rate was fixed at 35 mills, on motion of Ald. Turner.

Address of Welcome.

The G. W. V. A. invited the Mayor to read an address of welcome to the delegates to the Veterans' Convention.

This was agreed to, and the city's Reception Committee will be present to extend greetings.

Housing Commission.

Council will meet Wednesday to discuss the report of the Housing Commission on the Government's housing scheme.

CHOSEN BY BOOTH TO BE MISSIONARY

LATE GENERAL OF SALVATION ARMY SENT BRIGADIER McEWAN TO AFRICA

"Religion is the romance of Scotland," said Principal Fairbairn, one of Scotia's distinguished sons. Religion and romance have been wonderfully blended in the interesting career of Brigadier Jessie McEwan Women's Side Officer, of the Salvation Army Training College.

Miss McEwan was born at Dundee, the city by the sea famed for jute and marmalade. Her home was of the old-fashioned Scottish type, in the days when it was risky even to smile on the Sabbath. After enlisting in the Salvation Army she was for nine years a Field Officer in the old country commanding some of the larger corps and supervising cadet garrisons. Then at a large gathering in Bolton, conducted by the late General Booth, she was called upon to pray. Almost at once came the unexpected inquiry, "The General would like to know whether you will go abroad." A non-committal reply was given—"I must go home and pray about that." Then she told the General she was "ready to go anywhere."

Trained Dutch Women.

South Africa was Brigadier McEwan's first overseas destination, where she was engaged in training Dutch women-cadets. Later she was in charge of the training garrison and corps at Johannesburg. On the outbreak of the Boer War, President Kruger ordered her out of the country. After being conveyed to the border she had to leave the train and tramp for miles, carrying her baggage to the British lines — the railway was torn up. Her South African experiences also included work as a Pioneer Officer at Buluwayo, Rhodesia.

The United States was Brigadier McEwan's next field. Six years at the Chicago Training Garrison was followed by several years in New York, Detroit and New Orleans, occupied in work among women prisoners. For some years she was chaplain to women prisoners in American goals; travelling over a vast territory to visit the many penal institutions.

A chat with Brigadier McEwan is genuine education. Her familiarity with life in widely-different climes, and her knowledge of human nature and it darkest phases, all regarded from the standpoint of one whose dominant aim throughout has been to help, makes her story as it comes from her own lips fascinating and instructive to a rare degree.

JUNIOR BOYS FROM Y. DEFEAT ST. LUKE'S TEAM

A very exciting hockey game took place last night between the Junior Employed boys of the Y.M.C.A. and the St. Luke's Boy Scouts, in which the "Y" boys came out victors by a score of 2 to 1, at the East City rink.

The game was fast and exciting from beginning to end, although the ice was soft. The East City infants played well, but the speed and stick-handling of the "Y" boys was too much for them. Smith of the "Y" team almost made a hospital case by bodying one of the Scouts against the boards.

CITY TO PAY

citizens are not water users, but all citizens benefit by fire protection). The city paid some years ago $35 for each hydrant, this was reduced by the commission to $30 and subsequently to $27.50 as last year.

Mr. Hicks also explained that a couple of years ago 14 or 15 hydrants had been reset lower in the ground, and those hydrants had never frozen. The commission, he said, contemplates treating all hydrants the same way. In conclusion, Mr. Hicks declared that from whatever angle the present situation is taken the city is not paying for water for fire protection one half the amount. It should in proportion to the whole water service.

Commissioner Sisson said from 35 to 40 per cent. of the water works revenue should come from fire protection.

Mr. Ross Dobbin stated that this has been a hard winter on hydrants. Since February last not a day passed but what a number of hydrants froze up. In this respect 1919-20 has been the worst year in the commission's experience.

In discussion, Ald. Turner wondered were the commission to reduce its discount of 33 1-3 per cent. on accounts to 10 per cent., sufficient revenue would not be saved to pay interest and sinking fund on debentures for a filtration plant.

Mr. Hicks replied that this scheme had been thought out: but 50 per cent. added the rates would not take care of those funds. The best plan which appealed to the board, he said, is to issue 30 years' debentures for a filtration plant at a cost, say of $300,000, and create no sinking fund until ten years' time, when the water works, $230,000 purchase debentures will be retired. However, the commission has abandoned the filtration plant project for this year, owing to financial conditions facing the city. Were the rates to consumers made net, there would not be, he said, sufficient increased revenue to take care of interest and sinking fund for filtration plant debentures.

On motion of Ald. Turner, the charge for hydrants was increased from $27.50 each to $35.

To avoid disturbing the rate of 35 mills Ald. Crowe agreed to suffer a decrease of $2,500 in his estimate of $5,000 for storm drainage.

Ald. Crowe said he was surprised at Ald. Phelan, who must be prepared, for sure, to meet an increase in wages for corporation employees this year.

Eighteen hundred and six dollars—a fund for compensation of workmen in case of accident—was also released for other purposes. Workmen are taken care of by the Provincial Compensation Act.

Good Move.

Ald. Phelan here suggested that as the Council have to pay revenues into the Utilities Commission, they should be represented on that board by the Mayor ex-officio. He had introduced this question in Council before, as believed Council should have some say in the expenditures undertaken by the commission.

Ald. Phelan and Crowe's motion that this question be filed for discussion at another meeting carried.

FRIENDS BID FAREWELL TO LONG TIME NEIGHBORS

MR. AND MRS. D. H. McMANUS MOVING TO THEIR NEW HOME IN REABORO

A number of Mr. D. H. McManus' associates in Cavan and Emily gathered at his home on Wednesday evening, March 3rd., to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. McManus, who are leaving the district and moving to their new home near Reaboro. There was not so many present as would like to have been there, owing to so much sickness in the district. However, those present spent a very enjoyable evening and made it the occasion of making a presentation to Mr. and Mrs. McManus.

Mr. and Mrs. McManus leave the district with the very best wishes of their many friends.

Cold Feet In Advertising

It is a well-established principle of commerce that there is no business that should not devote a proportion of its gross revenue to advertising if it is to be successful.

Yet it is a surprising fact that many businesses, generally speaking, advertise too sparingly, or only spasmodically.

National advertisers, the very ones who, at the expense of millions, have tested the value of advertising, don't think of cutting down or stopping their activities. Some of the most successful national advertisers even declare that their advertising plans for this season provide for still larger appropriations than last year.

Why shouldn't the local merchant follow their example and make a yearly appropriation for advertising in its various forms? Spasmodic advertising never pays like a regularly mapped out campaign.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

ROBINSON—STEWART.

A quiet wedding of great interest to the friends of the contracting parties was solemnized in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Wednesday March 3rd, when Blanche Stewart of Otonabee, became the bride of Stanley Robinson, of South Monaghan. Rev. Robt. Pogue performed the ceremony in the presence of only the near relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride, wearing a very pretty brown suit, with hat to match, was given away by her brother, Livingstone. The bride is one of the most highly esteemed young ladies in Stewart's Hall neighborhood.

The happy couple left for a short honeymoon, after which they will go to their new home in South Monaghan with the best wishes of a wide circle of friends and relatives.

SILVER CUP DONATED

To Exhibition Board By Manager Cummer of Merchants' Bank

The cup which was presented to the Industrial Exhibtion Board by Manager Cummer of the Merchants' Bank, is on exhibition at Denne's feed store. It is a handsome prize engraved with the inscription, "The Merchants' Bank Cup." The manager of the bank kindly donated it to be used in any way that the board desired, and at the meeting held on Saturday last it was decided to give it for Durham bulls, which class was short of a cup. It goes without saying that the addition of this cup to that class is bound to have the effect of stimulating competition.

REMOVE MORE WIRE POLES FROM STREETS

COUNCIL HOPES TO CLEAR GEORGE STREET TO THE C. P. R.

The C.P.R. Telegraph Co. have under the Dominion Government a perpetual franchise for pole service on Peterborough's streets, and Council is seeking for the company's overhead wires on the east side of George street to the C.P.R. station to be run under ground. It has been suggested to the company that they use the Machine Telephone Co.'s underground conducts for this purpose. The company, however, have written Council that were they to lay their wires underground they would expect a perpetual franchise, whereas the Machine Telephone Company's franchise expires in 15 years. Hence they would not be willing to use the latter's conducts, and have to remove their wires in fifteen years from now.

It was suggested in Council last night that the Telegraph Company buy one duck in the Machine Company's conducts, and be given a perpetual franchise for same.

Mr. Fisk, however, pointed out the impracticability of this, as the latter company's conducts are a circular group of ducts, from which one could not be severed.

This matter was sent on to the Railway Committee.

Another Salary Question.

Ta Collector Green's salary was augmented by another $50. His salary was $1,550, increased at last meeting to $1,800 with an allowance of $250 for office help, postage and sundries. This gave him a salary of $2,050, but Council last night allowed him another $50, bringing his salary up to $2,100.

The idea is that Mr. Green shall take advantage of office help allowed to get out after income tax, which is somewhat difficult of collection.

CARD OF THANKS.

Henry B. Carte and sister Constance wish to thank the members of St. James' Church and the De Laval Company and friends and neighbors for the great kindness shown in their recent bereavement, also the nurses at Nicholls Hospital.

IS THE CHURCH TODAY EFFICIENT?

Rev. W. E. Millson at George Street, Says Average Church is Much Less so Than up to Date Business Establishment.

A fair-sized audience, considering the weather conditions, attended the first of the "Ten Weeknights of Evangelism," at George Street Church last night. An enthusiastic volunteer choir filled the choir gallery, and rendered splendid service in leading the singing of old time favorites.

Rev. Mr. Millson, in his opening remarks said that he did not criticize the church in the spirit of criticism, but that we have to face the facts. He believed that the Church of Jesus Christ is the brightest light of all history and the most important of our institutions.

Is the church working on a high standard of efficiency. To illustrate his meaning, he referred to the high standards of efficiency which existed in the Ford Motor Company at Detroit and may other business concerns. Every institution is demanding efficiency from those associated with it—as near 100 per cent as possible.

"Do you think," sair Mr. Millson, "We ought to have a lower standard of efficiency in the church than in a manufacturing establishment?"

A Serious Condition

After having made a wide and careful investigation, and given careful consideration, Mr. Millson summed up his conclusion in the words: "I do not know of a Methouist church in this country, whose working efficiency would be impaired one iota, by a decrease in 50 per cent of its membership." We have been fooling far too long. One can almost count the men and women in any church on two hands who are bearing the burden and responsibilty. Everywhere one is pained by the lack of loyalty to the pastor on the part of those who should be behind him.

"Where do you stand in efficiency for God?" Mr. Millson asked. "Can you muster 95 per cent. None of us can be too high!" It is said there are a lot of people in the world who have never heard of Jesus. A returned missionary said the reason was that those who had heard of Him were untrue to the great commission. If there is a man or woman who is not a member of the family of God, it is because someone in the church has failed in his duty. Do you know the way of bringing someone to Jesus Christ?

CHILDREN HAVE NO FOOD OR CLOTHING

RED CROSS REPRESENTATIVE WRITES OF CONDITIONS IN SUFFERING POLAND

In Paris, reports say, the women go stockingless from choice. In Poland thousands of men, women and children go stockingless — and shoeless—from necessity. As Poland's climate is more rigorous than that of France, what is only "smart" in Paris smarts in Poland. This shockingly barefoot state in the New Polish state has just been reported by Frank W. America an American Red Cross representative stationed in Warsaw, who recently made a trip of inspection throughout the Pinsk region.

"In a whole day's travel," writes Mr. America, "we did not see a cow nor did we pass a horse or a dog. The peasant refugees who did have a cart full of meager household goods hauled it themselves. On the stretch of road we saw an unusually large number of refugees barefooted. Then we noticed that they were carrying their boots under their arms. They were saving them for the colder days when there was snow and slush under foot."

Shoes, according to Isidore Hershfield, a prominent lawyer of New York, have been all but an unknown luxury in Poland for at least two years. Mr. Hershfield has made two trips to Poland in that period. He is now preparing to sail again for Warsaw, where he will supervise the disbursing of funds and the distribution of supplies to be provided from the $35,000,000 total raised last year by the American Jewish Relief Committee.

"Last winter," states Mr. Hershfield," it was a common sight to see men, women and children barefoot in Warsaw and other Polish cities which I visited. Snow or slush was often under foot, and the suffering among the poorer Jewish classes that resulted from the dearth of shoes was terrible. Families remained indoors as much as possible but hunger forced them to go out from time to time to seek food at Jewish relief stations."

Quantity shipment of shoes, stockings, warm underwear and other essential wearing apparel will be made possible by the $1,000,000 to be sought in the Canadian Jewish Relief appeal soon to be made.

A SHAKESPEARE WANTED FOR MOTION PICTURES

SILENT DRAMA MUST BE ELVATED TO SAME STANDARD AS HIS PLAYS

Frequent visitors to picture houses in Canada are finding just cause to lament the degeneration of what might be an art raised to the high standing of literature. True, it is that there are picture plays on the road which are worthy of the books from which they are founded and give credit to the silent stage, but these are often few and far between. They are advertized for weeks before they come and even then one cannot be too sure whether they are the real thing or just some wild melodramatic yarn worthy of no higher place than the dime novel. The tendency among some of the producers seems to be to think that the story is secondary to the scenery and as long as they can introduce a big house, an expensive car and a few other luxuries that is all that is necessary to make a picture.

Some writer is needed for the silent stage who could give it the same high standing as Shakespeare gave to the legitimate stage. Someone who would have the courage to eliminate the trash and introduce something real in its place. Someone who would also have the courage to say "away with the sex plays and such like for they are generally devoid of any real story and their only object is to appeal by thore delicate situations, etc. to a certain type of the audience which hungers after such offerings. Mistakenly, the producer has judged the world as demanding such things and he hastens to satisfy the demand with an eye to his pocket and not his conscience.

The world does not demand such things and never will. Truly a part of the audience may delight in it, but that part is in the minority. By continuing to present such attractions and blazonly advertise them as such before hand, the producer is gradually changing the composition of the audience of moving picture houses to say nothing of the irreparable harm that he is working on the minds of some of the weaker human beings Conscientious people see the style that is advertized and stay away Those who glory in such exhibitions hasten to witness it. If the producer and theatre owner is willing to make his money at such a cost then it is only right that the fairminded public should at least know that such is the case and govern themesives accordingly.

Even when the situation is looked at from purely financial aspect, it is a penny wise and pound foolish course which is being pursued today. Take as an example the bar. The bar got into disrepute because of the drunkenness which is created. Conscientious men stayed away. But they did more They fought at the polls that their weaker brethren might not suffer for the money lust of the few.

Already there are hints from certain quarters that the motion picture business will fall if its standard is not raised. Every reasonable men will admit that the danger from degenerate motion pictures is as real and serious as ever the danger from the bars was. One cannot get drunk from liquor at the picture show but he can get drunk in other ways, and the producer and theatre owners had better look to it and cure themselves lest they be cured by the power the fairminded citizen has wielded in the polling booth. The average citizen has a natural repugnance inherited from his ancestors against prohibitive legislation, but he also believes that the "Devil must be fought with fire" and if it becomes necessary prohibitive legislation will be resorted to in the case of the picture show just as it was in the case of the bar.

As a final word, let it be pointed out that there is really no comparison between the bar and the picture show. The bar never could be any better than it was but the picture show could become one of the national necessities—if conducted along right lines. It is as great an educational institution as the school, but it is another thing whether it is educating in the right direction or not.

OBITUARY

ISABEL BIDWELL

At nine o'clock on Monday night Miss Isabel Bidwell passed away at Nicholl's Hospital, after an illness of ten days. Miss Bidwell was a member and a much beloved worker in the Murray Street Sunday school.

She leaves two sisters, Miss Alice of this city and an older sister, in England.

The funeral will be held from Murray Street Church on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock.

THE LATE ROBERT ALEXANDER.

The funeral of the late Robert Alexander took place this afternoon from Comstock's undertaking parlors to Little Lake Cemetery. A service was conducted by Rev. A. J. Thomas, pastor of George Street Methodist Church. Messrs. Geo. Porter, Robert Wilson, A. Calder and W. G. Morrow acted as pallbearers. The deceased is survived by one son, Robert Hugh Alexander, of Tisdale, Sask.

ISABEL BIDWELL.

Sadness cast its gloomy shadow over the Y. W. C. A. last night when the death occurred of a resident of the institution, Miss Isabel Bidwell. Miss Bidwell was taken ill with influenza a week ago, and was not at first in a serious condition, but during the last few days pneumonia set in with fatal results.

Miss Bidwell was born in England twenty-three years ago, but had resided at the local Y. W. C. A. for the past two years. During the greater part of that time she had been employed at the Canadian General Electric Company, and was very well liked there both by her employers and her fellow employes. She had been a prominent member of Murray Street Baptist Church for the past two years, taking a great interest in the Sunday school and the young people's societies, and was looked upon both at the Y.W.C.A. and at the church as a great church worker.

A sad feature of the case is that she left two brothers who volunteered early in the war. They were her only relatives, with the exception of a sister, Alice, of Peterborough, and a sister in England.

The funeral will take place from Murray Street Church to Little Lake Cemetery tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. J. R. Webb will officiate.

MAY DOROTHY PHILLIPS.

The death took place early this morning of May Dorothy Phillips after a short illness. Miss Phillips was nineteen years of age. She leaves to mourn her loss one sister, living in Toronto. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock from Belleghem's funeral parlors to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. Mr. McKenzie will conduct the funeral services.

DINNER AND ANNUAL MEETING BOARD OF TRADE CLOTHED IN SONG AND ENTHUSIASM

Two Hundred Members Gathered Together Last Night in the G.W.V.A. Hall for Festivity and Business—Oratory and Entertainment United in One Long Pleasant Evening—Reports Show That Board Closed Year With a Balance

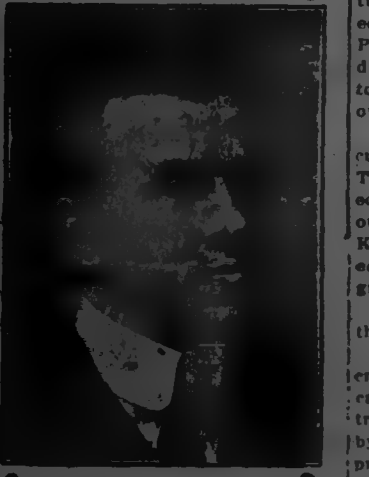
Without question, the greatest event in the history of Peterborough's Board of Trade was staged last night when two hundred members gathered together in annual session.

The real business of the occasion was preceded by dinner served by Thomas Hooper, and the gathering spent a jolly hour or more with limbs beneath a festive board, served by ladies of the G.W.V.A. Auxiliary.

An outstanding feature of this dinner was snatches of jolly songs served by Mungrave in printed form, from which the whole assembly of masculine voices sang with youthful spirit and irresistible abandon. Some dozen or more popular and patriotic airs were rendered while the edibles were being consumed, and thus "merrily the dinner rolled along." Mr. G. O. Cameron had charge of this soul-stirring portion of the menu, and it is needless to say he was in his glory. He took keen pleasure in, for instance, stopping the passage to one's mouth of a prime piece of roast beef (England's national meat) by calling for the singing of "Rule Britania;" and when the ladies were serving the last course in intercepting the enjoyment thereof by sounding the keynote for "Good Night, Ladies." Oh, yes G. O. thoroughly enjoyed all this, and so did the others too. Of course these songs were meant for between courses, but at a dinner of this magnitude they came for some otherwise, and so much the merrier.

And there was other music too—vocal and instrumental. Mr. H. E. Follis served at the piano, as also did Mr. John Crank. Mr. F. R. Clarke was heard to good advantage in banjo solo, Mr. Douglas Carlisle in baritone solo and Mr. C. Hotston in English comic songs, which kept his audience in laughter.

The tables were prettily decorated with flowers. The seating arrangements were perfect.



EDGAR WORTH
New President of the Board of Trade

At the official table there were seated Mayor McIntyre, ex-Mayor J. J. Duffus (vice-president), President Ed. Worth, ex-Mayor Duncan, S. R. Armstrong, Retiring President J. J. Turner, H. R. H. Kenner, retiring Vice-President Thomas Barrie, B. F. Ackerman, Ald. Whitehouse, R. G. Kingan, Ald. Crowe, J. J. Hartley, Secretary Leonard Fraser, Treasurer J. W. Fraser, W. A. Richardson, C. Horley, G. O. Cameron.

The business of the evening was attended with an enthusiasm which promises much for the board's future. Every interest in this city was represented.

The Toasts.

The toast to the King was followed by singing "The Soldiers of the King." The toast to "Our Country and Empire" was proposed by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner.

Communications.

Reeve Moore, of Bobcaygeon; Wm. M. Fox, president Cobourg Board of Trade; J. H. Eaton, president Orillia Board of Trade, all wrote, regretting inability to be present, and expressing accord with the sentiment of co-operation conveyed in the invitations extended them to join with Peterborough's Board on this occasion.

Treasurer's Report.

Treasurer Fraser's report gave 1919's receipts as $9,358.21 and expenditures, leaving of that amount $94.15 in the bank.

Auditor W. R. Morris' report showed a correct accounting.

Retiring President J. J. Turner submitted the thirty-first annual report of the activities of Peterborough's Board of Trade.

The report was an exhaustive one and took over an hour to read. It dealt with what had been accomplished last year, as given publicity to from time to time. The press were thanked for unstinted co-operation in the Board's interest, and the procedure and policies govering the Board dealt with. The work of the different committees and their chairmen were endorsed as satisfactoty, and special tribute paid to Mr. W. S. Campbell, chairman of the Committee on Transportation, who has removed to Toronto.

Mr. Campbell, the report read, leaves behind him the best example of a competent committee services. City planning was covered in the report, the proposed new riverside park endorsed, and civic development by a commission enlarged on. Civic education had also its place, and systematic work for a greatly enlarged membership of the Board advocated. Cultivation of acquaintanceship at daily luncheons was a feature proposed for consideration. The report spoke of industrial relations, regretted that local charges for gas are higher than in any community equally conditioned, and said arrangements are being made to take up with the local postmaster all complaints as to postal service. The desirability of a winter fair and of an experimental farm was recognized in the report. Dealing with new industries for Peterborough, the report noticed that almost invariably those secured were of American origin. Enquiry from British sources in future was hoped for. It was advocated that, in the case of power, if Peterborough is to have a great industrial future it will be necessary to establish a zone within which our own natural water energy shall be

Railway service improvements secured, water transportation via the Trent waterway and extension of electric railways to connect Peterborough with the north through the Kawartha Lake district, were touched on as needful for this city's growth.

In referring to city government the report said:

"Your Council was subjected to criticism because a meeting was not called to consider the bridge controversy and hear heated arguments by angry advocates of this or that procedure, of protests both prejudicial and judidicial, as though a problem in the hands of the City Council could be disposed of by discussion. Under the circumstances, when our feelings were at high tension, we could only discredit the body in authority and perhaps issue a pronunciamento. What would that have accomplished? The real source of trouble, then as now, is that we do not take thought in time, as prudent business men would do in any great enterprise. Now, we are hearing from men of genius, who should have favored us with advice long ago."

The report eulogized the works of the Board's several associations and emphasized the need of an adequate income.

Mr. Turner here left with his hearers a thought for the consistency of the "buy-at-home campaign," and contended that there is no higher duty than to encourage home manufacturers, who employ a large number of our own people.

Referring to the Board of Trade's future, Mr. Turner said:

"It is primarily necessary that the Board shall maintain its own integrity as an independent body. Every association in the city is already represented in your membership and there is warrant for your faith that more and more men of worth, irrespective of caste or class, will join with you to help support your co-operative activities.

J. J. DUFFUS

"One phase of your development during these first few months of initiatory organization deserves comment. It has happened that the majority of our [illegible] have given no real concern for their own work, attended none of their meetings, and in fact stood outside the circle of action as observers or open critics of your conduct. You have a lamentably large number who have never called at the rooms of the Board, and who seem to regard their contribution of dues as an imposed obligation of very doubtful expediency.

"To the very few, your duties and responsibilities as an organization have fallen, and these few are not given even the moral support that is due them. It is not uncommon to hear a member say, 'What good is a Board of Trade anyway? What are all these clerks for? A Board of Trade doesn't do me any good; why should I support it?' Yet these men know and respect your officers and workers; but by some distortion of mind and logic they refuse their confidence and question the integrity of a voluntary service by their fellows and neighbors.

"This mental attitude is akin to that of the majority of voters who abuse the men who serve them and do nothing in their support. Half of our voters do not even vote.

"How may we, as a Board of Trade, devoted to the material and public welfare, win the confidence that is vital to our very existence?

"The answer to that question, gentlemen, is yours in the coming year."

Mercantile Association.

President Frank Whitehouse of this association, presented its report of activities for the year past. He said:

"The generous assistance of your Board during the last few months of your fiscal year, in connection with the organization of the merchants into the Mercantile Association, in the use of your Council room for meetings, and with the aid of clerical services, has resulted in the formation of a sound foundation for a real live merchants' association.

"Since the inaugural meeting of November 3rd of last year some eighteen meetings have been held in your Council room, during which ten business sections have organized and elected their chairman to act as representative of the special trade interests on the Governing Board of the association. With the clerical assistance it has been possible to draw up a new set of bylaws; minutes kept of all meetings, and the commencement of a credit reporting bureau system.

"At present there are ninety-three merchants members of your Board out of three hundred merchants in the city. With the Mercantile Association it is expected that with the special object of promoting the mercantile interests in Peterborough it will be possible to have a membership of two hundred and fifty, and that there will be a substantial increase of members for your Board, resulting from the "get-together movement" of the merchants.

"Although the association has not up to the present been self-sustaining, it is proposed by the executive to form a graduation scale of fees for membership in the association which will be equitable to the amount of services rendered. In this way we feel that it is within easy possibility to make the association self-sustaining and be in a position to as-

TEMPERANCE ARMY IS DIVIDED OVER LEADING ISSUE

ONE PARTY BELIEVES THAT TO TAKE REFERENDUM NOW IS INADVISABLE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, March 10.— The Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance in convention this morning unanimously decided that legal difficulties must be removed before it will ask for a provincial plebiscite. In this the Alliance stnds at variance with the Ontario Referendum Committee, which has asked for a referendum. No decision has yet been reached by the joint gathering of the Dominion Alliance, and the referendum Committee and the Alliance executive which began its sesions yesterday. The report of the special committee of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance was presented and passed at this morning's sesion of the convention. The deputation to the Government submitted that the present situation in Ontario is perplexing alike to the Government and to the prohibition forces. The Dominion Act, known as Bill 26, is admitted to be so surrounded with difficulties as to make its use at the present time inadvisable.

Deputation Sees Premier.

The Temperance deputation was received by the Premier and Messrs Raney, Nixon, Bowman, Biggs and Doherty. President C. E. Steele introduced the delegation, whose case was presented by Rev. Ben H. Spence Mrs. May Thornley and Rev. W. E. Prescot, of London.

"It is our sincere desire to make the Ontario Temperance Act effective and to enforce it in such a way that there will be no decline, for we must not jeopardize the permanent cause of temperance in the province We are as anxious as you to make the Act effective and we will move to that end as swiftly as possible but with due deliberation."

Such was the assurance given by Premier Drury to the deputation.

EXCHANGE RATES TODAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, March 10.—The rates on demand bills for the English pound sterling rose during the morning to $3.72, the highest rate since the slump of last month, when it fell to $3.19. The discount rate on Canadian money was quoted at 11⅛ per cent. this morning.

MINE WORKERS' DECLARE FOR GENERAL STRIKE

TO FORCE BRITISH GOVERNMENT TO NATIONALIZE MINES AS DEMANDED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 10.—The National Conference of coal miners at their session today, declared in favor of a general strike as a means of enforcing the demands for the nationalization of mines. The decision of the miners' body will be referred to the special Trades Union Congress, which meets tomorrow, and opinions which have been expressed by delegates give rise to the expectation that this body will decide on a continuation of constitutional means for achieving the end desired instead of a resort to direct action.

FRANCE AND ITALY HESITATING OVER TURKISH ISSUE

WILL NOT AGREE TO JOIN GREAT BRITAIN IN OCCUPYING CONSTANTINOPLE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 10.—The continued postponement of the Allies' decision with regaord to Constantinople is attributed in peace conference circles to the hesitation of France and Italy, neither of which countries, it is asserted, has definitely answered Great Britain's invitation to co-operate in occupying the city. Italy is credited with maintaining a reluctance to participate in any drastic action and to receiving support of a section of French politicians. Former Premier Briand is said to favor the British proposal, however.

Meanwhile, speculation is indulged in as to why the French Premier submitted the Turkish draft treaty to President Wilson. Among the suppositions is that either M. Millerand wished to forestall possible eventual interposition by the President, if the latter is uninformed as to the settlement terms, or that Millerand again is trying to obtain American aid in the settlement, even hoping to persuade the United States, after all, to undertake a mandate for Armenia.

MORE LOANS FOR ALLIES

Washington, March 10.—The Allied Governments will receive further loans from the American Government Secretary Houston announced today.

ANNUAL PASSES FOR LONG TIME EMPLOYES

NEW ORDER ISSUED BY C. P. R OFFICIALS PLEASES THE WORKERS.

Local employes of the Canadian Pacific Railway are affected by the recent instructions of the president of the road that annual passes will be issued to all employes with over te nyears' service with the company. The order calls for a pass over the general superintendent's district in which the employe is working, for ten years' service, and for twenty years' service a pass over the whole Eastern division. While there are not many employes who would be eligible for the Eastern division pass, a Review reporter was told this morning that at the present time nine of the freight shed employees and half a dozen of the passenger station employes were eligible for the ten-year service pass, and that several more would become eligible during the summer.

The local employes of the company express great pleasure at the new order, which is bound to have the effect of encouraging long and faithful service.

FATHER KILLS HIS SON AND TAKES OWN LIFE

IN FIRST CASE WEAPON WAS ACCIDENTALLY DISCHARGED WHILE BEING EXAMINED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Saskatoon, March 10. — Suffering pangs of remorse at having as he thought, just shot and killed his son, Andrew Olson, a well-known farmer of Turtleford, reloaded his rifle and shot himself dead. His son was lying in bed and Olson, seeking information regarding the gun, asked the boy to show him. In some manner the father pulled the trigger while the son was showing him and the bullet entered the lad's arm. Neither believed the gun to be loaded.

Seeing his son writhing in pain Olson turned the rifle to his own head, shooting and killing himself instantly. An investigation has been ordered.

GOLD FOR UNITED STATES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, March 10.—The reports of large gold imports from London to the United States have added to the strength of sterling exchange, the bankers said, forcing a lot of short covering created recently when traders thought the market was due for a relapse.

FIRST DIVISION IN HOUSE RESULTS IN VICTORY FOR UNION GOVERNMENT

Leader King's Resolution Calling for an Immediate General Election is Voted Down by a Majority of 34--Cross Benches Voted With the Opposition.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 10.—By a majority of 34, on a division in the small hours of this morning, the Union Government of Sir Robert Borden was sustained in the House of Commons. The vote of the members of the House was 112 to 78. It was first taken on the amendment of the Liberal Opposition leader, Hon. W. L. M. King, demanding a revision of the voters' lists and an immediate general election.

After the defeat of this amendment the House divided on a similar vote, reversed on the main motion on the address in reply to the speech from the throne. Eleven "cross benchers," largely representative of agricultural parties headed by Hon. T. A. Crerar, former member of the Union Government, voted with the Liberal Opposition. During the registration of the votes the proceedings were enlivened with the singing of national and party songs. The Government supporters cheered wildly the announcement of the vote, which was a straight party one with the exception of "farmers" or "cross benchers" who were expected to vote with the Opposition.

During the last session the majorities for the Union Government on division varied with the issues involved. On the amendment for the six months' hoist of the G. T. R. Purchase Bill the Government had only 31 majority. On the Veterans' gratuity scheme the Government was sustained by a majority of 65, and on the amendment to the budget the result was a majority of 50 in favor of the Government.

TWO OF CREW PERISH

When Portuguese Steamer Went Ashore Near Halifax

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Halifax, March 10.—While returning to Port Leaking, the Portuguese-owned steamer "Albatross," which sailed from Halifax on Monday for Portugal, went ashore last night near Egg Island, twenty-eight miles off Halifax. In abandoning the ship, two of the crew lost their lives.

German Government Expresses Regret for Recent Outrages

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, March 10.— The German Imperial Government has issued a proclamation signed by Premier Bauer, condemning the attacks on members of the Entente mission. It declares that the Minister of Defense will act with the greatest severity in punishing the excesses.

With a capital of $600,000, the Vancouver Island Whaling Company has been formed to carry on whaling on the British Columbia coast.

CHAPLAIN DAVIDSON RESIGNS FROM 57TH

REV. JAS. ROLLINS RECOMMENDED FOR APPOINTMENT AS HIS SUCCESSOR

Archdeacon Davidson has resigned his chaplaincy of the 57th Regiment in favor of Rev. James Rollins, whose name has gone forward for official appointment.

Archdeacon Davidson, who enjoys the military rank of major, was appointed chaplain of the 57th Regiment in 1896 by Lieut.-Col. R. Bell, then commanding officer. He served successively under Lieut.-Cols. R. B. Edwards, J. W. Miller, [illegible] Stevenson, E. B. Clegg, Duncan Walker and Joseph Mills. Archdeacon Davidson officiated as chaplain of the 57th at the consecration of the regiment's colors by Lord Dundonald in St. John's Church, and on other marked occasions. He always accompanied the regiment on its annual outings, and to training camp at Barriefield common, and took part in parade services when visiting regiments were here. He obtained his rank of major in 1907, and was presented with an officer's long service medal in 1916 by Governor-General the Duke of Devonshire.

Chaplain-Major Davidson volunteered for overseas service in August, 1914, and in 1915 was appointed by Sir Sam Hughes chaplain of the 93rd Regiment of Peterborough city. He served at the armories here, at Barriefield, at Shorncliffe and Orpington Military Hospital, England, and at No. 3 Canadian Stationery Hospital on the Somme front in France. He also was present at other parts of the Canadian line on occasional duty. Archdeacon Davidson lectured on Canada for Imperial units in France and England. He was selected chaplain of the re-constituted 57th Regiment last month, had accepted office, but resigned March 9th, 1920. He expects to be transferred to Canada's military reserve.

DOG LICENSES READY

Dog licenses for 1920 are now at the local police station. Up to the present there has not been much demand for licenses and people who have any love for their canine friends are advised to get them fitted out with a new license without delay.

WHO KILLED THE CZAR?

HISTORY IS FILLED with the records of assassination of kings and queens that remain as unsolved as any of the numerous murder mysteries in the police annals of the city of Hamilton. These assassinations have been the result of the existence of two or more factions one of which attempts to fix the responsibility for the deed upon the other.

There has been, since the violent death of the Czar of Russia and members of his family, a popular impression that the unfortunate monarch was put out of the way by the revolutionary party. Now comes Mr. Frank Green, a native of Russia, now a resident of this city, who claims to have inside information denied the general public, and who asserts that the murder was really the work of the deposed Russian faction, that sought, by making victims of the Royal family, to discredit the new republican party in the eyes of the world.

Whatever may be the justification for this statement it cannot be denied that it appears plausible. But even if the Royal murder was the work of the revolutionists then the masses of the people made the mistake of the uprising and gave the world an example of the ingratitude which is so often the portion of unselfish service.

The late Czar, whatever may have been his failings, was to a great extent the victim of environments, of a system that had been in existence for centuries, and which he lacked the power to break through. Under different conditions he would have gone down into history as one of the most benign rulers the world has ever seen. His symapthies were altogether with the common people, and but for the influence with which he was surrounded he would have broken their bonds. The unfortunate Nicholas may have been a dreamer, but his visions were all of an empire redeemed from the curse of absolutism.

The late Czar must always be regarded by posterity as the first and greatest pacifist. Had his will prevailed in the early part of the century the world would have been spared the horror of the late war. He originated the idea of disarmament, and The Hague Convention, the League of Nations in embryo, was called as a result of this suggestion. It was then that the world drew nearer to the dream of universal and perpetual peace than ever before, when the people were to be spared the burden of supporting armies and building navies, but the opportunity was allowed to lapse. The ideal of the Russian ruler was never realized.

The granting of a measure of representative government to the masses of Russia was another of the plans of the Czar, but the Duma availed little for the purpose in view. Nicholas was under the influence not only of his own courtiers, but of the machinations of Germany's Royal family. He failed to stem the tide which eventually overwhelmed him and his party. But credit for his intentions should not be denied him.

DR. CODY RETIRES.

HON. DR. CODY, who held the position of Minister of Education in the late Hearst Government, can scarcely be called the father of consolidated schools, as some newspapers have styled him since his resignation as a member of the Legislature has been announced. The idea was born and nurtured long before Dr. Cody was ever thought of in connection with the public life of the Province. If consolidated schools are ever generally established in Ontario, the bulk of the credit for their establishment must in justice be given to County Inspector Lees of this city, who has for years, both on the public platform and in the press, advocated what he regards as the one hope of the rural educational institutions.

Dr. Cody is a graduate of the country schools and an ex-teacher in them. He knew their needs as few men did when he took over his important public duties. He brought down legislation which made easily possible the establishing of such institutions, and his plan is so well thought of by his successor in office that it is to be retained in its integrity. Representatives of the present Administration at Toronto have toured the Province explaining the purpose of the new Act to the communities most directly interested.

It is to be regretted that the educational interests of the Province are to be deprvied of the eminent ability of Dr. Cody. His selection as Minister of Education was in some quarters regarded as a rather doubtful experiment. He was a noted clergyman with a nation-wide reputation as such, but he lacked experience either in business or in public life.

But Dr. Cody during his all too brief term in office made good and amply justified the wisdom of ex-Premier Hearst in calling him to his Cabinet. He was in no sense a politician, but qualification in this regard was one of the least required for the position in which he so distinguished himself. His administration was marked by caution as well as by foresight. The educational foundation which he laid is safe upon which to erect any system of education.

The clerical profession has every reason to be proud of the showing made by one of its most distinguished members in a field in which popular prejudice believes that clergymen should take no part. This delusion, for such it is, has been dispelled, and the entry of a minister into politics, either as a profession or as an avocation need no longer be a matter of surprise.

ALL TOGETHER, GENTLEMEN!

(Farmers' Sun.)

AS NEVER SINCE her first Legislative Assembly convened are the eyes of the people of Ontario upon her Parliament. A new hour has struck and the people know it, and demand that the men elected to make their laws shall act like serious minded men entrusted with big tasks. No one can tell just how certain men in the Legislative Assembly came to be elected to their mighty office, but any one can accurately forecast what will become of them should they prove mere me-too's or ventriloquist's mannikins squeak-me-too's. Ontario expects her parliamentary representatives to be men of brains, of patriotism, of business ability and integrity.

All does not depend upon the Premier and his Cabinet. At best they are but such stuff as the party they lead is made of; chosen men, but still men. Moreover, they must be regarded as leading, not because all responsibility is placed on them or because they are regarded as able and capable above their fellows, but for the sake of order. Above all, the Cabinet must not be expected to do the thinking for the other members of the Assembly, but it should be regarded as a committee chosen to crystalize the thinking of the Assembly into such a shape that it may be deliberated upon, and when properly deliberated upon by the whole House turned into law beneficial to the whole Province. For every such act the whole House has its inescapable responsibility.

Nor is the Opposition free from responsibility. It is no part of the duty of the Opposition to make the work of the Government harder. Still less is it any part of their sworn duty to lay traps, to set snares, or to put up false lights. In such days as these the man who does such work in Parliament is a traitor and will be so regarded. Rather it is the part of the Opposition to make the duty of the Government clearer. By every bond of honor the Opposition is bound to make its criticism, not destructive, but eminently and unmistakably constructive. All men, and especially parliamentarians, who take the people's money must see to it that they render adequate service in return therefor. Opposition members and their leader alike are no exception to this wholesome rule.

"All together, gentlemen!" That's the slogan Ontario gives her new Legislature. Eagerly do the electors of this Province watch for the men therein who serve. Heartily will they welcome the representatives with measures for the good of this Province. Heartily and fully will they reward the men who blaze the trail to better days than have been. As never before it may be said that every elector is a student of public business rather than a partisan politician. Hence their demand of the Legislative Assembly for legislation that promotes the welfare of every citizen within its bounds.

CANADA'S OPPORTUNITY.

THE WALL STREET Journal quotes an unnamed Canadian authority, "the leader of a movement in Canada to embargo the shipment of pulpwood to the United States," as stating that the United States must have products made from Canadian pulpwood, and that if the wood be manufactured into paper in Canada and then shipped over the boundary, it would bring Canada perhaps $80,000,000 profit instead of the present $15,000,000 profit on the unmanufactured pulpwood.

Extract from "First Impressions of Harrington," by L. H. Goldsmith of Harvard Medical School:

Up on the rocky hillside was the hospital, the largest building in the place, a revelation of neatness and cleanliness. Even in the cellar, dirt and dust were strangers. To realize at all adequately what the hospital means to these people, one must really see the patients and what is done for them. The greatest danger is from tuberculosis. Two young men were in hospital with legs infected by it. If allowed take its course a few months would find them completely crippled by it, yet with careful treatment and proper attention they will be cured in a few months. There were two little girls deformed and bent with tuberculosis of the spine. One year at the hospital would work wonders in making them straight and strong, but without that treatment, paralysis would soon set in.

A year ago Harrington was closed during the winter because no doctor was available for that post. To the average man in the street that means nothing. It bothers him not a whit that a certain small village on the Canadian Labrador is without a doctor, but to those who live there it means everything. To them the hospital means what the Red Cross meant to the soldiers—protection against the dread enemy, disease. It is also a source of sanitary betterment, a place from which radiates knowledge of better living conditions, so that all life is protected and safeguarded thereby. I tis a lasting monument to those who by their vision of a need and their practical aid erected and continue to maintain that hospital station.

HARRINGTON IN ACTION.

(By Annie M. Warne.)

Our citizens who so generously contribute to the upkeep of Harrington Hospital on the Canadian Labrador will be glad to learn of a few of the cases there receiving treatment and the progress made by them.

A boy of twelve, a victim of infantile paralysis. Six years ago this disease left him badly crippled in his right leg. This leg did not develop in strength, although it grew in length. He could walk a little but this leg always turned out at the ankle and he walked on the side of his foot. His leg was merely skin and bone. The boy was sent for when Dr. Grenfell was here last summer and brought to hospital next day. Dr. Grenfell operated to straighten his leg and then put it in a plaster cast which was removed after three months. I visited him at his home in Mutton Bay a couple of weeks ago and found that he is able to walk much better. Strength is slowly returning to the leg and next summer he expects to go fishing for the first time.

A man of sixty came into hospital with an attack of grippe. It was during the fisherman's busiest season and quite wisely he wished to avoid a long illness. Under treatment he was soon able to return to his work. This patient is one of the most successful fishermen in our neighborhood. He and his family are in very comfortable circumstances. He makes an annual contribution to the hospital of $10 to $15 and also paid a fee for treatment. It is a pleasure to visit his home where his jovial wife gives a hearty welcome to every guest.

An infant was born in hospital, the mother being admitted because it was thought safer in her case. It was February 3rd, 1917, when this embryo fisherman first opened his eyes on a strange world.

Other cases were a man of seventy-five from Newfoundland with a painful affection of the eye, a boy of fifteen with watery pleurisy, and a young man of nineteen with la grippe. These few instances furnish abundant proof of the usefulness of Harrington Hospital which has to serve a long stretch of coast, and I trust will convey to those who have invested their money in this medical mission the assurance that it is helping to conserve life at a time when the conservation of life is a national duty.

It does seem that the life and work of a medical missionary more nearly represents the activity of our lord's life on this earth than does any other—healing, teaching, preaching. By relieving physical need entrance is gained to the life in such a way that the deeper need of heart and mind and spirit may also be met. The evidences of Messiahship were summed up Christ Himself in, "Go, tell John what things ye see and hear. The blind receive their sight, the deaf hear, the dumb speak, the lame walk lepers are cleansed and the poor have the gospel preached to them." This is the gospel preached by medical missionaries.

DAYLIGHT SAVING DOESN'T SAVE TIME

(Belleville Ontario.)

It is to be hoped that the Chamber of Commerce will not be led into the folly of recommending the enactment of Daylight Saving by the City Council the coming spring.

We note that D. S. is among the subjects to be discussed at an early meeting. We trust the members will give it short shift.

Belleville was practically forced to adopt D. S. last year because the railways were run on that time schedule. As one-quarter of our population is concerned with the operation of the railways it would have occasioned great confusion to have a double time standard. For instance, the men working in railway shops and going home at eleven o'clock for dinner, while their children from school could not be released until an hour later—such a contingency would have created intolerable confusion and unnecessary additional work in many hundreds of households in the city.

But this coming season the railways will operate on old or standard time so the argument for D. S. will be the other way around.

Many of those who advocate D. S. are conscientious enough but they do not look at the subject in a broad or national way. The majority of them are non-producers or mere pleasure seekers.

Mechanics and laborers are generally opposed and the most important of all producers, the farmers, are a unit in uncompromising hostility.

To the farming community, Daylight Saving has come to be like a red rag. Many farmers around Tweed threatened to transfer their patronage to Madoc and elsewhere because the Tweed Council last summer had adopted the fast time.

A writer, in the last issue of The Picton Times, tells how much in earnest the farmers around Picton became over D. S. in Prince Edward's county town. The writer says:

> Now, in regard to the farmers patronizing the mail order business. To anyone living in Picton it may sound ridiculous when I say that the Daylight Saving Bill is to blame for a lot of farmers' money going to Toronto and elsewhere. Living in the country, as I do, I know for a fact that a number of farmers threatened to send away for their goods if the merchants of Picton persisted in adopting the fast time in 1919, and they have fulfilled their threat. They sent a few orders, were satisfied with results and found they could have money, and so have formed a habit that it will be hard to cure them of.

People living in towns and cities fail to realize the deep-rooted antagonism of the farming interests to the D. S. innovation.

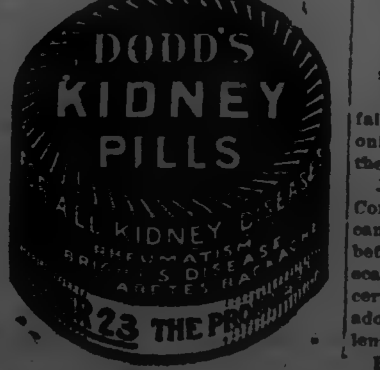
Just now, when the Chamber of Commerce is about to enter upon a campaign to promote better relations between the city and country, we can scarcely conceive of a method more certain to wreck harmony than the adoption of D. S. without the excellent excuse we had last year.

Belleville merchants should oppose any change change in the time because it will inevitably mean to them loss of patronage without any corresponding gain.

Anyone at all familiar with conditions and necessities around a farm in the producing season, knows full well that the farmer's aversion to Daylight Saving is not dictated by mere caprice or bull-headedness. It is to him a continuous source of annoyance and interferes in a very real manner with production.

City dwellers are inveterate kickers against the high prices for farm products. But yet many of them want to do the very thing that will intensify the problem of enhanced living costs by this short-sighted policy of Daylight Saving.

Daylight Saving doesn't save any time for anybody.



LACK OF FEED AFFECTS LIVE STOCK MARKET

The following is a summary of the reports made by agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The lack of straw has been keenly felt this winter by owners of live stock.

Cattle have been coming along in good health, but are rather thin for handling on the block. Peel states that not over 60 per cent. of steers are being fed, a large number being carried through for grass finish. In Durham also, a large number will be finished on grass. Waterloo reports that a number of farmers have disposed of considerable of their beef cattle owing to the shortage of feed and the poor outlook of the market. Brant, however, states that feeders are holding on to their cattle owing to the unsettled prices, but that good veal calves are bringing 18 cents a lb., from droves, while butchers are paying from 15 to 16 cents. Peel claims that some vealers have sold as high as 21c a lb.

In Waterloo "really good horses weighing about 1,500 lbs." are commanding from $225 to $250 each, but Brant reports that "horses are very dull property, good ones running as low as $150." Durham says that fewer mares are being bred.

Sales of hogs are not heavy; the are bringing from $17.50 to $18.0 a cwt.

At an auction sale in Brant re cently, little pigs sold at from $6 to $9 each, but in some other districts they are going lower on account o the scarcity of feed.

Hay is selling all the way from $24 to $34 a ton, according to location.

Speaking of the shortage fo mil feeds, a representative states that some farmers can secure only about a bag of bran at a time, as the mills are not grinding much wheat.

Elgin states that there will be plenty of seed corn, but that many farmers have been saving old oats for seed.

Fall wheat, and clover are still under fair cover, and are supposed to be in good condition.

Comparatively few men are showing up for farm help so far, and some representatives are of opinion that this class of labor will be scarcer than ever this spring. Elgin and Renfrew report farmers as offering from $50 to $60 a month, with board, for fit men.

The Brant representative reports that he never saw so many sales listed in the county as during the past month.

POLICE PAY IN OTHER PLACES

Salary Schedule Higher in Stratford Than in Peterborough

Stratford, March 9.—The Police Commission on Saturday cleaned up the accumulation of the month's work and prepared for the year by fixing salaries, cabs and carter's tariffs and receiving the chief's report for 1919.

Increases of $15 were given the constables and $100 a year to the detective and sergeants, while the chief's salary was increased $200 The following will be salary schedule for 1920: 1st year men $1,200; 2nd year men $1,260; 3rd year men $1,320, and fourth year men $1,380; sergeants and detectives $1,500, and chief $2,200, with $200 addition as inspector under the O.T.A.

The recommendation of Chief Lannan for an additional man and for an automobile for the use of the department was refused, the Commission feeling that it would be too expensive at the present time, and not absolutely essential to the running of the department.

The carters' tariff was fixed as follows: Double team $1 an hour; single 70 cents per hour; baggage 50 cents for the first trunk (including the return trip to the station) and 20 cents for each additional trunk; trunks to private residence 35 cents for the first trunk, and 25 cents for each additional trunk.

The cab and taxi rates were set at a slight advance, 40 cents flat being fixed for single person and 25 cents each for two or more passengers. Children under 5 years will be carried free and half fare will be charged between five and 12 years of age. There will be no zone system.

Police Chief W. J. Lannin presented his annual report, which will be published later.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

The Treaty of Versailles impose on Germany many obligations, disarmament being among them. For a time, at any rate, the war-makers are to be rendered powerless to again attack their neighbors. That disarmament is actually carried ou is the duty of Allied Commissions to ascertain. These Commissions are in Germany watching the work and ascertaining that the terms of the treaty are being fulfilled. At the head of the Allied Naval Commission is a British officer, which is natural considering that Great Britain was the dominant naval Power of the Allies. This officer is Vice-Admiral Sir Edward Charlton, a sailor from youth, who has seen much active service. He was born at Newcastle-upon-Tyne on March 21, 1865, the son of an eminent physician and grandson of an eminent lawyer.

His education was received a Oshaw College, Durham, and at the Royal Academy, Gosport. In 1878 at the age of 13, he entered the Royal Navy, and four years later, a youth of 17, he saw active service in the Egyptian war. He was present at the bombardment of Alexandria and landed with the Navy Brigade

His promotions came regularl and early, and in 1897 he was Commander. Three years later h commanded H.M.S. Orlando durin the China War, when he was award ed a medal. In 1903 he becam Captain, and five years later w appointed Commodore of the De troyer Flotilla.

He was aide-de-camp to the Kin from 1911 to 1913, and in the latte year was made a Rear-Admiral. the following year he was Assistan Director of Torpedoes, and during th early years of the war was Admir of Mine Sweepers. Then he was appointed Naval Commander-in-Chi at Cape Town, South Africa. H experience is wide and varied, em inently qualifying him for the pos tion of President of the Allied Nav Commission in Germany.

MR. BURNHAM'S SPEECH IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS ON CANADIAN POLICY

Mr. J. H. Burnham (resuming)—When the house rose for dinner I was calling attention to the question of exchange and inflation, and I shall not detain the House further than to make a general summing up. I will begin by congratulating the hon. member for Cape Breton North and Victoria, the former leader of the Opposition (Mr. McKenzie) on the courage and fortitude which he displayed in pronouncing unequivocally for Protection, in favor of Canada for the Canadians. It required some courage to do that in view of his surroundings, but I am pleased to see that he thinks more of Canada than of any party; the same spirit should inspire us all.

I just wish to say further with regard to the farmer that if anybody asks why it is the farmer has become so aroused he will find the answer in the fact that the farmer dreads high wages, daylight saving, and things of that kind. Especially does he dread shorter hours, and he cannot be blamed for that in view of his industrious life and its requirements. The question of shorter hours is no reproach to labor, because when we consider how it arose the answer at once presents itself. In the United States, for example, the operators of the coal mines, in order to have as little coal on hand as possible when the demand came for it, shortened the hours of production, so that if the worker in the coal mine was to have any pay at all he must necessarily shorten the hours of his working day so that he could get in more working days, because it frequently happened day after day and week after week that he would have not only many hours but whole days idle. Now when he sees that the operators have made tremendous profits running all the way from 400 to 2,000 per cent., what can he do but strike? for neither this Government nor any other that I know of has provided him with any means of expressing his feelings in the matter except by striking. People when they read the newspapers hold up their hands in horror at the usurious percentage exacted by such operators as I have referred to, but they make no effort to stop it. The reason I refer to the United States is that the Americans have at last taken up this question in their usual strong and vigorous way. We in Canada, although I have nothing but the greatest respect for for our Minister of Labor (Hon. Mr. Robertson) who is, I think, a man of great energy and great ability and certainly of great sincerity, seems to be utterly confounded by these things. We have no solution; we offer no suggestions, and the cruel work goes on. Labor has, therefore, taken the matter into its own hands, and if we do not get an eight-hour day it will be because we will get a six-hour day, and the farmer will then be worse off than ever. If the manufacturers, for instance, decided to run the country, decided to form a powerful financial group and to concentrate their energies and their wealth, with all the ability that their leading men have, upon their own interests in this House, and with the farmers doing the same, where, pray, would the rest of Canada be? I would be just as strongly against the manufacturers in any such event as I would be against the farmers. We must be a united and a sane people, or we will cease to exist as a nation. I am confident that one of the difficulties this country labors under is that the people are largely uninformed except as to their own business, and here is a reproach that lies at the door of our leading men. Our ministers of Government and the leading men of the Oppositoin might well go through the country, not at election times, when nobody believes any body else, but at other times and explain the broad principles of government and of statesmanship. "A statesman, Gladstone said, is a man who ascertains the facts and acts accordingly. In this way our leading men wold learn in their peregrinations what the true conditions of the country were; they would know what the country thought and needed, and the country would know also what they thought; but at the present time, until the war drum of election is sounded, nobody pricks up his ears about the country at all, and it is left to Canadian clubs and similar institutions to educate the country. This is a very serious drawback, and I am quite convinced that the good feeling as well as the intelligence of the country would be very much developed if our leading men were to visit different sections of the country at different times.

Source of Energy.

I want to touch for a moment upon a source of energy that has come like a flash into view and will afford us more comfort than anything else that I know of. The day of coal has gone by. Even if it could be mined, it is of poor quality or it is not there—I am referring to hard coal particularly, and the highest quality of soft coal. Gasoline has become so tremendously expensive that it is fast disappearing in public estimation and is creating a need which is about to be supplied, industrial chemists tell us, by indusrtial alcohol. The Americans a few years ago manufactured six million gallons of alcohol per annum. Now they manufacture over 100,000,000 per annum. Our industrial alcohol, owing to the nervosness of the temperance people, has to be shipped from the distillers to Ottawa, there be denatured and sent out to the users throughout the country. The consequence is that the freight alone is so expensive that Canada is put out of business as a consumer of industrial alcohol. That has to be stopped. The National Council of Industrial Research begs the Government to tell the people to grow more corn, and potatoes, and everything of that sort from which alcohol can be easily made and then to take off all sorts of embargoes such as I have referred to so that this source of energy may be made available to the people. We are short of electricity, and even if we had all the electricity we wanted alcohol has become so cheap as a manufacturing product that one might almost describe it as the product of the wizard's wand. The hope of the world lies in industrial alcohol. Let us be alive to that fact and see to it that the Government duly recognizes it. A few years ago it was discovered that peat could be made into a fertilizer. I wrote to the department then, some five years ago and begged them not to let some people get hold of all the peat bogs in the country and, after they had been tied up in this manner, find that they were all owned privately. I believe that some steps were taken in the matter. There is a fertilizer which, as the chemist might say, by a single twist of the wrist, could be made available to the whole country, and surely it is necessary and desirable that this should be done.

I desire to say in closing—because it is a matter that is very near to my heart—that the basis of religion and morals is individual liberty; and when individual liberty is gone then no religion nor morals can exist. The Creator recognised this truth, and He could not establish the moral law nor be the fountain of that law and compel one single human being by means of prohibition or any such device. We are to have no freedom, no free will in anything, except by the behest of the prohibitionists. If you want Bolshevism, if you want that frightful explosion of energy which we saw in Russia, which overthrew like a volcanic eruption the tyrannical and autocratic system that was in vogue there, then that is the way to get it. There was no sense in the cruelty practised there by the ruling classes. The country did not belong to the people but to the few. How can we expect a great multitude, disturbed like an immense animal from its long sleep of oppression, to do otherwise than rise up and smash everything to pieces? Believe me, there is far more of that very spirit in this country than many people imagine, and it may show itself in many peculiar ways and not be recognized as the spirit of Bolshevism until it is too late. Why pray when the policeman is at the door? That is the motto of the prohibitionists and the user of force, the man who is substituting force for faith. Hail the policeman! Cruch them! Do what no divine plan ever did or could do, and you will show your human presumption, your ignorance and your incapacity. Let me say that no moral system can substitute the "must" for the "ought." In conclusion, let me extend in all sincerity the hand of fellowship from one province to another, if I may be bold enough to do so. Surely the Protestant and the English speaking people have played some part in Quebec. Surely they have shown their faith in Quebec, as well as their high regard for the French people. We are the same as they; our interests are linked up with theirs; our prosperity and our whole future, in Ontario at least, is linked up with that of Quebec. If Quebec and Ontario cannot pull together they will both be ruined, and Ontario knows this, whether Quebec does or not. Now we are all men and women, whether we are French or English, Liberals or Conservatives, farmers, manufacturers or mechanics. Let us drop the race cry; drop the party cry. Let us, of course, be loyal to whatever school of thought we belong to; let us be loyal to our friends within reason. But let us remember that above all things we are human beings and must be loyal to human liberty and human rights.

EASY TERMS GRANTED TO EX-SERVICE MEN

IF THEY PROPOSE TO EMIGRATE TO CANADA, BRITISH OFFICIAL SAYS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 9. — In discussion in the House of Commons on the Colonial office vote today, Under Secretary Amery explained that the overseas settelement committee, having secured effective co-operation with the Dominion Governments in directing emigration into Canada, had granted the ex-service men easy terms. Applications for about 18,000 persons to emigrate had been made and 11,000 to 12,000 had already sailed or were about to. From the point of view of safety of the Empire, one emigrate into Canada was worth twenty times as much as one who went into even a friendly country like the United States. What the Government aimed at was putting emigration on the best conditions.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

IF MIXED WITH SULPHUR IT DARKENS SO NATURALLY NOBODY CAN TELL.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

Birds Have Right of Way.

Fowl have the right of way in air, warns the director of military aeronautics. This is justice indeed, since birds flew first.

But this is not all. Recently many towns along the Atlantic coast have been visited with dead bird showers. Aviators flying by a town would see a flock of wild fowl coming their way. They would set their machine guns and let the bullets fly.

Presently a prominent citizen walking below would be hit with a large, bloody bird. He complained to the town, and the town complained to the department of agriculture. Then the federal migratory bird law between the United States and Great Britain was referred to, and it was found that shooting birds from airplanes is unlawful.

The Wrong Man.

When I was an eighteen-year-old girl I was keeping house in my mother's absence and received word from an old friend of the family, of whom I was very fond, that he was to be our guest for a day or two. Toward evening when the doorbell rang I told our little colored maid to answer it and show Mr. Blank into the living room.

I rushed into the room which was half dark, some minutes later and threw my arms around the gentleman who rose to greet me and kissed him soundly only to hear a strange voice say, "I called to see if I could interest you in a wonderful set of books I am showing today."

I backed to the light and turned it on to view a perfect stranger—a book agent. But Mr. Blank's timely arrival just then saved a little of my embarrassing explanation.—Chicago Tribune.

Triple Tone Electric Bell.

Three separate and distinct sounds are given by an electric bell which operates on ordinary lighting current by means of a transformer. In the home the bell can be connected with push-buttons installed at three different doors—front, kitchen and side, for example. When one button is pressed a clear ring results, when the second is operated a buzz is produced, and when the third button is pushed a combination buzz and ring results. In the office or shop this bell will prove most useful, since it can be used to call three different persons without necessitating them to count the number of rings, as must often be done when the customary signaling is employed. This bell has no contact points to burn out and no batteries to replace.

"Booker Time" Is Cheerful.

The term a "booker time," which the Australians use to describe a cheerful leave, comes home to its birthplace, little altered. "Bosky," with a similar meaning, was an English colloquialism in the eighteenth century. And "bosky" is still current slang with us, but implying too generous use of the wine cup. There is one phrase in the book of slang which is decidedly pleasing, "Australian grip." It stands for that best of greetings, the honest, hearty hand shake.—London Chronicle.

These Balance Men.

I profess no special partiality for any critic, who, holding balance in hand, weighs eagerly whatsoever of learning comes to his counter. I question whether he is not taking less of the quality of the wares, than of the fashion of his scales, never questioning their accuracy nor his own levity. Still it must be admitted that these balance men are not without their usefulness, being convenient for appraising market values.—A. Bronson Alcott.

"Kitchen Middens."

Kitchen middens are great mounds, some 100 feet long and 250 feet wide, found in Denmark, England, Scotland France and in parts of Europe, North and South America and Australia. They are supposed to be the refuse heaps of prehistoric periods, and are composed chiefly of oyster, periwinkle, cockle and mussel shells. In them are found implements of wood, stone, bones of animals and cinders.

PRESIDENT BEATTY ON Y. M. C. A. WORK.

In a foreword to an attractive little pamphlet issued by the Railway Y.M.C.A. of Canada, Mr. E. W. Beatty, President of the C.P.R., pays a tribute to the work of this association.

"The high value of the work," says Mr. Beatty, "of the Young Men's Christian Association in the interests of men and boys has come to be generally and properly recognized, particularly on account of its efforts and accomplishments on behalf of our soldiers during the recent world war.

"Among the various spheres of the Association's activities not the least valuable is the work of the Railway Branches which minister to the intellectual, the social, the moral and the physical needs of railway men irrespective of race or creed.

"The inception of this work on the Canadian Pacific Railway dates back to 1906 when the building at Revelstoke, B.C., was erected, and so well satisfied were the Company's officers with the experiment tried there that 9 additional branch associations have since been established. These provide home surroundings and comforts for men in train service when away from home and to many employees located at outlying points they afford the only home facilities that are available to them.

"It is not only that good meals and clean beds and baths are provided, but the educational advantages, the recreational facilities and the opportunities for social intercourse amidst wholesome surroundings must necessarily contribute to the well being of the men and benefit the community in which they live, and the Company with which they are employed.

"The eminently satisfactory results of this work on the Canadian Pacific lines in the past for which I desire to express my admiration and appreciation, have without doubt been achieved through the earnest and cordial co-operation of the Company's employees with the Association's officers and staffs, and with the continuance of their united efforts the future success of the work can, I feel sure, be confidently entrusted to them."

The Railway Y. M. C. A. provided 140,000 beds to railway men and served 328,000 meals in 1919. Its buildings are valued at $550,000.

REVICTUALING LEBANON.

Depots Opened to Sell the Foodstuffs at Reasonable Prices.

The Government which is concerning itself with the revictualing of Beirut, has decided to take similar steps for the benefit of the Lebanon at the same time. Depots have been opened in the principal Cazas, where flour and the most necessary foodstuffs, such as rice and sugar, are being sold at reasonable prices fixed by the revictualing service.

These efforts of the Government to assist the population were extremely necessary, and praiseworthy, but it is a matter for regret that certain depots have been intrusted to individuals who were formerly in the Turkish service and who, profiting by their position, assumed the role of monopolists of foodstuffs. It is with a sense of relief that the populations of certain villages have learned the news that a few of these men are to be dismissed.

The representatives of the press at Beirut were recently invited to the house of Col. Nieger, administrator-in-chief of the western zone. The colonel announced to them that the French troops had taken possession of several of the principal strongholds of the Bekas, without any untoward incident. The French troops, he said, had only taken this action after an agreement between the French military authorities and the representatives of the Sherif, and had resulted from an intelligent understanding between the two parties, for the assurance of unity and order in the government of the country.

The press representatives were later received by Gen. Gouraud, at the new Seraiah. The general explained to them that he regarded the press as one of his principal collaborators and that he counted upon it to help him in the work of unification, appeasement, and pacification, which he had come to undertake in the country. He declared that he should not ignore the difficulties in the situation consequent upon the diversities of beliefs, and remarked that if all the Syrians would put aside their personal interests, in favor of the general good, aiming at a common end, and following a common plan, they would succeed in forming a strong and prosperous nation.

The Beirut press, he said, should not, by its actions, gainsay wise and zealous people in Damascus, who were also working for the reorganization of the country. They should not render the task more difficult. The general stated that he was disposed to lend all his support to the press, and he trusted they would reciprocate.

A Waiting Game.

"Suppose you wait here in this comfortable seat while I match these two samples of ribbon," said Mrs. Simson sweetly to her husband, who had been entrapped into going shopping with her.

When she came back she said contritely: "Have I kept you waiting an unpardonable long time, you poor dear?"

"Oh, I haven't minded it," he said cheerfully. "I just jumped on a car and ran up to the football match, and then I took a little spin in Jack Dance's new car. Did you match the samples?"

"One of them. It's so provoking, I shall have to come in again tomorrow, for they are just closing the shop."—London Ideas.

Tubs May Strike Next.

Add to the strikes for higher wages that of negro washerwomen of Louisville.

Aunt Katie (last name not known even to patrons) was asked the other day if she could do a washing the next day.

"'Deed no, chile," was the reply. "An' any more washings I do is goin' to cost yuh ten cents moah," she added.

Pressed for an explanation, Aunt Katie said that she and "seb'ral other washer ladies are goin' on a picnic today and won't do no washin' for nobuddy."

"Furdemoah, dis ten cents moah goes all the time now. De street car men is gonna git moah dan dat fer strikin', and so is us," was her explanation.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SOVIET GOVERNMENT IS BRINGING ABOUT REGENERATION OF RUSSIA

That is Claim Made by Frank Green, Native of Fallen Empire, in Address at Labor Hall Last Night.

Another view of the situation in Russia was given by Frank Green, a Russian and an Engineer at the C. G. E., at a lecture on the "Regeneration of Russia," a public meeting held in the Labor Hall, under the auspices of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council. Mr. Green's argument for the Soviet Government was convincing and the fact that he was greeted with loud applause when he concluded, showed that he had completely won his audience over to his side of the question. In the absence of President Bolwell, Vice-President Thomas Lane of the Trades and Labor Council occupied the chair. The attendance for the occasion was good, the hall being packed to its limit.

The speaker of the evening was introduced by Mr. Holmgrem, who stated that he had known Mr. Green for several years. Before introducing the speaker he wished to call attention to the fact that the daily press could not be depended upon for news on Russia. He quoted an editorial from a local paper of last Saturday which to say the least, he thought was the essence of intolerance. It stated that we had no interest in what was going on in Europe and that those who were interested should be sent away. The purpose of the editorial was to suggest that the lecture which was advertized for tonight was entirely out of place. It was not a question of seditious conspiracy but merely the question of learning the other side of a very vital question. It had been stated that the Russian Soviet Government was bound to collapse if left alone, but still there seemed to be no tendency to let it alone. Mr. Holmgren gave some of the life history of Mr. Green showing how he had been born in Russia, forced to go to work at an ealy age, educated himself and through the tyranny of the Czarist Government had been forced to leave the country. He had continued his education in this country getting his degree of Bachelor of Electrical Engineering at the Winnipeg University. In conclusion he appead to the audience to give Mr. Green a fair hearing.

Mr. Green's Address.

Mr. Green opened by referring to the missionary Mr. Joffe, who has been lecturing on Russia in the city and who had been invited to attend the meeting but had seen fit to decline the invitation. He thought that Mr. Joffe was giving the truth as he saw it and as about five per cent of the population of Russia saw it but the speaker desired to give the truth as the other 95 per cent saw it. Mr. Green gave definitions for the terms of evolution, revolution, counter revolution, Socialism, Democrat Social Democrat, Social Revolutionist Anarchist, and the Red and White Armies, and some of the definitions were a revelation to his hearers. He pointed out that it was not the Bolshevist who were the advocates of terrorism but the Social Revolutionists of which class Kerensky had belonged.

The first revolution in Russia came in 1905 in the form of a general strike which was successful enough to compel the Czar to take action and grant a constitution. Then the Duma came into existence, but when after the first election there were any Socialists in the Duma, it was dissolved by order of the Czar. New election laws were made eliminating some of the worker voters and another election was held but there were still many Socialists in the Duma. Three times it was dissolved and in the meantime the Czar began to collect his forces to undo the work which the general strike had accomplished. The leaders were arrested and executed or deported to Siberia and Trades Unions were made illegal. It was at this time that the Soviets were first formed to that it could be seen that although the Soviets were new to the rest of the world, they were no new thing to the Russian people.

Regarding the falsification of news the speaker referred to the assassination of the Czar. It was popularly supposed that the Czar and his family had been executed by the Soviet Government but this was not so. Twenty-eight conspirators of the Social Revolutionists party killed the Czar and his family in order that the world would discredit the Soviet Government. They had been brought before a tribunal of the Soviet Government and eleven had been sentenced to death for the murder and paid the sentence. This had not been made public in the press.

As another example of falsification of news, he mentioned that the official paper of the Soviet Government which was printed in Moscow by the Soviet Government, was being copied as to date, shape and title outside of Russia, even to the extent of being marked as printed in Moscow, but the news contained in it was such as to discredit the Soviets. False statements were published in it and attributed to different members of the Soviet Government. Touching on the report of the Nationalization of Woman, the speaker said that it was now recognized that this was false and that the rumor had been sent out by a foreign correspondent and attributed to the Soviet Government.

The Canadian Economic Commission to Siberia in 1919 reported on the growth of the Co-operative Movement in Siberia and regarded the fact that the Russians could so co-operate to produce and distribute the commodities of life as something that would lead to the regenration of Russia.

In 1917 a revolution took place in Russia without bloodshed. New people came into power and immediately the workers started to organize their unions or "Soviets" which had been prohibited since 1905. There were several governments of short duration and then Kerensky came into power. Kerensky was a Social Revolutionist of the left wing or moderate type. It was the policy of the Social Revolutionists that the system of Government could be altered by assassinating the Government leaders. but the Bolshevists or majority of the Social Democratic party, were against this system believing that the mere assassinating of a leader would not alter the form of Government. Kerensky the official Government wanted to carry on the war to a successful finish. At the same time the Soviets were the unofficial Government and they tried to find out if the people wanted to continue the war or wanted Kerensky. They decided that the people did not want Kerensky and decided to get rid of him as he represented the foreign financial interests.

Mr. Green called attention to the fact that at the opening of Congress in 1917 President Wilson had cabled a message of sympathy to the Russian Soviets.

The fact had been established that the Soviet Government, under the leadership of Lenine and Trosky had offered to prosecute the war against Germany with the Allies in return for recognition of the de facto government and the supply of ammunition. At that time the Germans were invading Russia and the Soviets were doing all that they could to carry on the war. At the congress of the Soviets held to consider the question 15,000 delegates were unanimously in opposition to making peace with Germany the only delegate wishing to sign being Lenine, who declared that as the Allies had refused to recognize the Government they could not fight on all sides and peace with Germany was the only thing. The 15,000 delegates accepted this argument and a peace of terrible conditions was signed with only Trosky objecting.

Referring to the chaos which, he admitted existed in Russia, Mr Green laid the blame for this on the sudden downfall of the Czarist Government and not to any action on the part of the Bolshevists.

The Red Army was first formed when the Czecho-Slovacks aided and armed by the Allies overthrew the Soviets in Siberia. Then it was seen that if the Soviet Government was to live it must arm and the Red Army was organized successfully by Trosky. In the many battles which had followed this the Soviets had won out because 95 per cent of the population was behind them and because the people knew that the supporters of the White Army had been old supporters of the Czar.

Quoting the Winnipeg Telegram Mr. Green gave come of the fundamental laws of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic. They included:

Abolition of private property without compensatiin to owners. Land to be distributed according to the ability to till it. Universal obligation to work

Church to be separated from the State and the School from the Church

All citiens have the right to work pulsory labor with certain exceptions

All citizens have the hight to work at their trade and to receive the scale of pay set for that trade.

The normal day shall not exceed eight hours or seven hours night.

Mr. Green quoted a telegram sent from Moscow under date of February 24 by Mr. George Lansbury, Editor of the Daily Herald, London, England which said in part. "I have visited several state facories where automobiles, bicycles and aeroplanes are being made. Before the war it was necessary to import these things into Russia but now she is making them. The only difference between the workmen of Russia and the workmen of other countries is that, in Russia the workmen are their own employers. They participate in the organization and direction of the industry. In Russia's national workshops there is no waste. Every bit of raw material is registered as it comes in and is accounted for. The position of the women workers is such that would satisfy every leader of the women's movement. The women work side by side with the men for the same pay, although their average of production is about 15 per cent less than the men. There is the same minimum wage in the case of piece work for the women as for the men. Pay, at full rates, is allowed in case of sickness. There are ten church holidays, eight public holidays and two weeks vacation with pay, to be extended where necessary." The speaker said that such a report coming from George Lansbury ought to be considered as reliable.

A statement had been made by Mr Joffe in one of his recent lectures that the Bolshevist Government was responsible for more massacres of Jews than the Czarist Government, but when he was challenged with the statement by the speaker he, at first denied having made such a statement and then said that he got his information from the daily papers. Mr Green asserted that these massacres were being committed by the White Army in territory not under the control of the Soviet Government.

The asytem of Government, as outlined by Mr. Green, is as follows: The All Russia Congress of 15,000 delegates from the Soviets meets twice a year to define the policy. It elects an executive committee of 200 members to carry this policy out during the intervening months. Seventeen commissaires were elected to undertake different duties and were responsible to the executive committee when the Congress was not in session. If a delegate did not carry out the wishes of his Soviet, there was the "recall."

A few tablets of "Pape's Diapepsin" bring relief almost as soon as they reach the stomach.

"Pape's Diapepsin" by neutralizing the acidity of the stomach, instantly relieves the food souring and fermentation which causes the misery-making gases, heartburn, flatulence, fullness, or pain in stomach and intestines.

"Pape's Diapepsin" helps regulate disordered stomachs so favorite foods can be eaten without causing distress. Costs so little at drug stores.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

IF YOUR BACK HURTS OR BLADDER BOTHERS YOU, DRINK LOTS OF WATER

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

The Telephone Situation

The Man Who Knows

"The real underlying cause of unrest and discontent, which is in turn the cause of present social and business conditions, is ignorance of the other fellow's problems, lack of appreciation of his difficulties."—N. C. Kingsbury.

We have found that the more our subscribers and the pulbic know about our business, the more smoothly it runs—the better the service.

In other words, when people understand something of how complex and infinitely detailed a modern telephone system is—especially in a big city—the more readily they co-operate with us in our efforts for good service.

We have found that the most satisfactory subscriber to deal with, is the man who has been through a telephone exchange and has seen it in operation. His criticism is always considerate, always fair and helpful, just because he knows what an intricate, comprehensive and yet delicate thing a modern telephone system is.

That is why we invite subscribers to visit our exchanges, and why, from time to time, we endeavor to tell in the newspapers just what the telephone situation is.

MAKING MERRY

At Mealtime, Means Good Appetite, Good Digestion, Good Cheer and Stuart,s Dyspepsia Tablets.

Do You Use Them? If Not, Why?

To sit back after a good meal and know there is not going to be sour risings, gas, drowsiness and discomfort is the logical result of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets immediately after eating. Most people believe they can trace each attack of indigestion to the something they ate and can still "taste." And it surprises them, invariably, to note how quickly relief comes after using one or two of these tablets. Whether it is highly seasoned food, rich pastry, the heavy hearty foods or some one particular offender the relief comes just the same. Those who are susceptible to attacks of indigestion or dyspepsia should try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets as they supply the stomach with an alkaline effect just as it does naturally when it is working in a perfectly healthy condition.

A glance around the table will likely indicate one or more who plainly look as if they anticipated the dyspeptic's mournful assemblage of distresses shortly after the meal is finished. Many a bon vivant, however, has learned how to leave the table in a happy frame of mind by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets immediately after eating. And whether it was rich soup, pastry, cheese, or dishes usually rated as "heavy," these tablets contain ingredients that digest food, assist the stomach in the work of digestion and supply the alkaline effect that the stomach requires. Thus before you conjure up the troubles that ordinarily would follow eating some favorite dish, try this plan of avoidance.

Or if the trouble is already doing its worst get a 50 cents box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets off any druggist and note how gently and smooothly your stomach settles down to good behavior.

DINNER AND ANNUAL

sist in a material way the attractiveness and development of Peterborough and its trade.

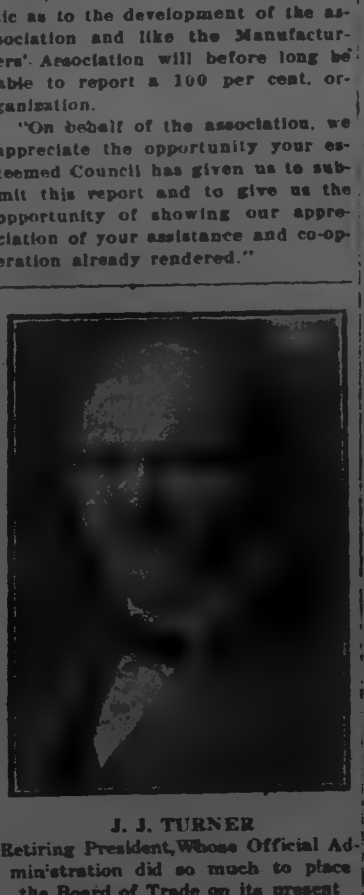
"In September last your Board demonstrated what could be done by organised effort, by running a very cheap excursion from points on the lakes, north and south, chartering of steamers, volunteer use of automobiles, special train rates; and despite bad weather at the commencement of the excursion a number of tourists came from the lakes, who otherwise would have found it difficult to visit Peterborough, returned satisfied and proved later an advertising medium for the city.

"Following the advertising campaign which is being made in the United States to develop the Kawartha Lake district, it is expected that a great number more summer tourists will be spending their leisure months in this district and with such excursions as that of September last put into effect during the dull business season would stimulate trade and advertise the city.

"During this year it is the intention of the executive of the association to have meetings at which special addresses will be given, using topics such as Dominion, Provincial and Municipal Legislation, as affecting business, in reference to the Bankruptcy Act, transient traders, hawkers and pedlars, false advertising and early closing hours; salesmanship, in which the ability and courtesy of the salesman means successful business and satisfied customers, also window dressing under the heading of local attractions.

"The executive are very optimistic as to the development of the association and like the Manufacturers' Association will before long be able to report a 100 per cent. organization.

"On behalf of the association, we appreciate the opportunity your esteemed Council has given us to submit this report and to give us the opportunity of showing our appreciation of your assistance and co-operation already rendered."



J. J. TURNER
Retiring President, Whose Official Administration did so much to place the Board of Trade on its present high standard of efficiency.

Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. W. A. Richardson of the Peterborough Canoe Works, in submitting this report, in the absence of Mr. Breyfogle, said the past year had been successful in every way. This association, he was pleased to report, is now associated with the Manufacturers' Association of Canada. Conditions in Peterborough, industrially, he declared, to be extremely satisfied, and this city had been comparatively free from serious industrial unrest, which, he said, speaks well for both employers and employees. His report endorsed the water front park project, and the housing scheme. Peterborough must have more housing accommodation, for the first question manufacturers seeking location ask is: "How are your housing conditions?" The report concluded with a plea for unity of action toward making the city both attractive to live in and desirable for industrial growth.

President Edgar Worth.

Mr. Worth received quite an ovation, for which he extended his thanks in gracious terms. He had felt, he said, some diffidence in accepting the presidency when there were many men available more capable than he. "But, if I retire as shiningly as I have come in, I shall do so very happily," he added.

Nineteen nineteen had been a trying year, the president continued, for a re-organized Board of Trade for which re-organization he extended a full measure of credit to Retiring President J. J. Turner. He bespoke the co-operation of the Board's Council, and in reply to the question frequently asked, "What is the Board of Trade?" he declared it a gathering together of men in the community who have that community's interests at heart. Eulogizing the kindly feeling existing between Peterborough's manufacturers, he said they have faced and will face problems together, and advise with each other. He contended that this year is going to be a particularly trying one in Canada. We are, he said, all in the dark as to the future. "I doubt if any man in this room can say with any degree of assurance what is liable to happen tomorrow or next month. Canada's most brilliant statesmen cannot see ahead of them today, and it is only natural that business men should organize themselves and talk over difficult problems to the end that they may reap inspiration and reach solutions." All should leave this meeting, he asserted, with an inspiration for future guidance; and had the Board of Trade accomplished nothing else but to stimulate the enthusiasm shown here tonight, it would in that case have done its duty.

The president extolled the housing project, the need for which, he said, was exemplified in the Government's action in that regard. It is absolutely useless, he declared, to ask industries to locate here unless the city can properly house their people. Three new industries were received last year, two of which will soon be in operation and employing 200 men. Houses will have to be built, and the city should take care of that problem.

In conclusion, President Worth asked for the kindly co-operation of every member of the Board, in which event, with the splendid Council which has been elected, the Board will be in a position to perform the duties required of it, and next March he will be in a position to present as highly a satisfactory report of the year's business as had the retiring president tonight.

Welcome to New Officers.

Mr. G. O. Cameron in a happy address extended hearty welcome to the new boys elected to office and to the "old boys who had to go home early." (The hour was getting late here).

He assured the new officers of hearty support during the current year, and was amazed to learn from Retiring President Turner of the amount of re-construction work accomplished last year, an exceedingly trying one for all. He hoped this year for an unstinted application of energy which will forward the Board to the position of a civic institution with a real mission. In conclusion, he congratulated President Worth on his election to a position second only in importance to that of His Worship the Mayor.

Full of Confidence.

Mr. E. B. Fowler, in endorsing all that Mr. Cameron had said, extended his sincerest welcome to the incoming Council of the Board of Trade, and expressed confidence that the results of their work this year will be such as to justify the same nominating committee which named this Council being re-appointed next year. He felt quite satisfied that the new Council will engage vigorously in work which will lead to better things, and was optimistic of that Council having such support as to justify his assurance that the coming year will be the best in the history of Peterborough's Board of Trade.

Vice-President Duffus.

The newly elected vice-president, Mr. Jos. J. Duffus (ex-Mayor), looked for the operations of this year's Board, with the assistance of its officers, to show as successful a term next March as shown tonight. He extolled the enthusiasm and experience of newly elected President Worth, who he was confident would carry on the work required of him to the unqualified satisfaction of both the Board of Trade and of the city generally.

Organization, Mr. Duffus said, counts, and with organisation and proper co-operation, results can be accomplished; without those two essentials nothing can be done satisfactorily. But, he went on to say, no matter what the body there is always to be found a certain number of its membership ready to drive home the wedge of antipathy, criticism and fault-finding. He hoped for an absence of such a spirit this year on the Board of Trade and for unswerving co-operation which will carry the organization safely through nineteen twenty. As to the financial situation, he urged all present members to retain their affiliation, give generous support to the officers, and each man endeavor to win for the Board a new member. This would, he believed, place the Board on a sound financial footing, and in all other respects, last year's experience leads him, he concluded, to anticipate substantial support for the officers from members generally.

Thanks to Mr. Ritchie

His worship the Mayor, in a few graceful acknowledgments, presented a motion of thanks to retiring President Turner and Secretary, Mr. Ryerson Ritchie.

This was seconded by Ald. Whitehouse, who characterized Mr. Turner as one of the most valuable men in this city. He testified to the retiring president's untiring energy even in days of considerable handicap, now happily passed, and contended that the Board's present satisfactory position is due in full measure to its president now retired. He, it was, Ald. Whitehouse asserted, who first suggested a home of its own for the Board of Trade. As to Retiring Secretary, Ryerson Ritchie, Ald. Whitehouse extolled his tremendous business capacity and genius, which, he said, is recognized all over the continent. Mr. Ritchie is a member of Chambers of Commerce in the largest citeis in Amerca. The works of these two indefatiguable officers, Ald. Whitehouse declared, will be even more valued in days to come than now.

Dr. Harvey, in oratorical appreciation of Messrs. Turner and Ritchie, declared that this Board of Trade forms part of their very lives. He must re-echo with added vehemence that too much thanks cannot be extended those two men for their work of last year. The efficiency of this board is due to their broad vision; they saw ahead Peterborough's advantages, not yet developed, but which will be developed, because no city in Canada enjoys more natural advantages from which should spring a great community, than Peterborough. Dr. Harvey concluded that the Board of Trade's advancement to have been largely the result of unselfish devotion from Mr. Turner and to that broadly-acquired inspiration of Mr. Ritchie, for which he is renouned. "There is not a man, woman or child in Peterborough but will be benifited by the devoted energies of these two retiring officials of the Board of Trade."

ALD. FRANK WHITEHOUSE
Member of Counc'l in Board of Trade and President of Mercantile Association

The Real Dynamo

Mr. J. J. Turner, in graceful terms, acknowledged the oratorical bouquets thrown at him, and he declared Mr. Ryerson Ritchie to have been the real dynamo behind the Board of Trade last year. Mr. Ritchie, he said, is held in high esteem in the United States, where his advice and service are sought by men in high office, and even by the President himself. Had Mr. Ritchie been engaged as permanent secretary the Board could not adequately compensate him.

Mr. Turner here declared that Mr. Ritchie's services to the board were actuated by love of Peterborough City, and that excepting for the first four months of the board's reconstruction, he had labored energetically, without any remuneration whatever. Mr. Ritchie, he said, had served voluntarily and also contributed generously of his means. He has an honest interest in the city in which he lives and in its interests and future development.

Peterborough's Future.

Mr. Ritchie's reply was eulogistic of this city's opportunities. He had been, he said, highly honored in association with Mr. J. J. Turner, and he believed that the men present did not understand as he understood, the great service Mr. Turner had rendered this board. He had never lost sight of those business principles which must be applied to the board or any other organization, if success is to follow. Mr. Turner, the speaker said, did not ask thanks, but he did wish a wider spirit of co-operation than had been offered. Mr. Ritchie said he had been struck with a lack of responsiveness to the board's call on the part of men who really NEED to respond in their own interests.

In reference to the contributions of certain men, who believed in organization and its force, Mr. Ritchie declared that with but one single exception, the money asked for with which to see the board through its first year of re-organization decently, had been cheerfully supplied.

As to the future of Peterborough, Mr. Ritchie was optimistic, were business methods for development applied. "I and my old friend, Dick Rogers, were born in Peterborough," that's why we stick to it." Here Mr. Ritchie said he had shown to men in New York the map of the Kawartha Lakes and those men were simply astonished. The Kawartha Lakes, the speaker declared a source of interest over the border, and would contribute to this city's future. He would not be surprised to see this summer 200 or 300 Americans coming over here to visit what is to them a new city and a new recreation resort; and Mr. Ritchie urged that they receive the fullest measure of respect, esteem and courtesy, consequent upon which they will carry back home with them, happy and friendly impressions of Peterborough, its adjacent lakes and Canadians. He would like to see an attitude shown toward American visitors which will make them put Peterborough on their map. As to our locks, Mr. Ritchie said there had been some complaint of lack of attention to small craft. He urged that those government men in charge, inculcate a spirit of non-discrimination, and if anything, "handle the little fellow a little better than the big fellow."

In conclusion, Mr. Ritchie pointed out the need of unity to accomplish anything, and he hoped that all members would stand behind their officers, and assist in building up a greater city," not from an idea of little selfishness but from an idea of greater selfishness."

Retiring Vice-President

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner moved thanks to Mr. Thomas Barrie, retiring Vice-President and a capable president of the board's council. The motion also included members of council, and was seconded by Mr. Joseph Wearing, who appreciated those men who had banded together to make this city one of the best in the Dominion. Mr. Wearing declared unqualified thanks are due to Mr. Barrie for his untiring energies as vice-president.

In reply, Mr. Barrie thanked Mr. Kenner and Mr. Wearing for their kind appreciation of the board's council and himself. The work of last year he felt had been thoroughly enjoyed by all participating in it, and the praise offered is sufficient acknowledgment that the reorganized Board of Trade is a success. He referred in glowing terms to the work of the board's committee, and to that of Mr. J. J. Turner, without which, the board would not have shown its present full measure of vitality, as demonstrated on this occasion.

Mr. J. J. Hartley

In also seconding the foregoing motion, Mr. Hartley considered, members of the board's committee had devoted much valuable time toward building of a solid foundation from which this year's board can erect a structural reputation for Peterborough City, which shall go throughout the whole country. He referred to Mr. J. J. Turner as a "live wire," and to Mr. Ryerson Ritchie and his services in the States. "When the Americans want a good man," Mr. Hartley declared, "they come to Canada, and when a good man is wanted in Canada he is sought for in Peterborough. He questioned of in Canada there were better facilities, material and intellectual, for the development of a big city, than are to be found in Peterborough.

The Close

The gathering dispersed, after endorsing Mr. Wearing's vote of thanks to the ladies, for their services at dinner, followed by singing the National Anthem.

Mrs. Wells of Petersburg Tells How.

Petersburg, Va.—"For two years my daughter suffered from a weakness and pains in her right side; at times she was so bad she could not do any work. For two years she was attended by the best physicians here, and both agreed that she would have to be operated on. I suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at first she refused to take it, but finally consented. From the very beginning it helped her, and now she is entirely well, and telling everybody how much good it has done her."—Mrs. W. D. WELLS, 226 North Adams Street, Petersburg, Va.

GRANTS ANNUAL PASSES.

C. P. R. Encourages Loyalty in Service.

The C.P.R., to encourage loyalty in service, and recognize the principle of co-operation has, through the president, Mr. E. W. Beatty, announced a new departure which will, doubtless, be much appreciated. This is the granting of annual passes to officers and employees and their wives under the following classifications:

Employee on a general superintendent's district, who has had continuous service for a period of not less than ten years, will be granted an annual pass good over district on which employed.

Such employee, who has had continuous service for twenty years and over, will be allowed annual pass good over eastern or western lines upon whichever employed. Employee of any other department of the service will enjoy the same privilege as above, stating the territory over which pass is desired. Head office employees who have had fifteen years' service will receive annual passes over eastern or western lines where employed. Women employees are to be treated the same as men in this connection. This action expresses the policy of the C.P.R. to aim at the contentment and loyalty of the employees of whom there is an army of 60,000 at present, including all classes.

The Pension Fund, a free gift of the company, was the thought of Lord Shaughnessy. The employees contribute nothing. Already the operation of the fund has wrought great benefit. The effect of it has been to increase the contentment and loyalty of the employees, to give the sense of mutual co-operation and to stimulate the general purpose and interest of the company. There are many all over the system on the Pension Fund, which offers protection in declining years. Millions of dollars are involved in the operation of the fund since its inauguration.

Almost every nation has some particular superstition or belief about babies and these result in actions which [illegible] all the way from the utterly absurd to the terribly tragic. The peasantry of Greece firmly believe that the future of every child is determined by three fates, known as the Moral. In the popular mind these fates are three old women, whose habitation is a mountain cave and they come together to a house where there is a new-born child. In preparation for them, all furniture is set aside, that their tottering footsteps may not be impeded, and refreshments in the shape of honey, bread, cakes and wine are set out for these important though invisible guests. Money, too, is placed on the table as a bribe, for it is believed that in the gift of these fates are all good things as well as bad. Under no circumstances must a child's beauty be alluded to while the Morat may be in the house, or they will certainly make its good looks disappear.

Many peoples believe that ill luck will be the portion of a child who cuts its upper teeth first, and there are one or two African tribes who so firmly believe this that, in order to spare the child a life of misery, they promptly kill any child whose upper teeth appear first. Another tribe sees bad fortune for everyone in twins, and avoid it by slaying them all.

Should a child grow up bad in China the parents are said to have forgotten to bind its wrists—alluding thereby to a superstition that if a red cord is tied around an infant's wrists it cannot fail to grow up quiet and obedient.

There are various methods of assuring good luck to an infant. In rural England if its right hand is bound up for a short period soon after birth it will surely become wealthy. The Spaniards sweep their children's faces with pine boughs, to assure good fortune, while to keep the Irish baby from harm a belt of woman's hair is placed about it, and to achieve a similar object Roumanian mothers tie [illegible] ribbons around the ankles of their infants. In Holland garlic, salt, bread and [illegible] are put in the cradle of the new arrival, while to protect their babies the mothers of Wales put in the cradles a pair of tongs or a knife. In Iceland, when the first tooth makes its appearance, a lamb is given to the child, to be its very own."

JIM'S GOOD TRADE

In return for helping his grandfather one summer and fall on his bush farm, Jim Holland had received a pig which he had taken special pains to fatten. One day when he was alone he heard a great squealing and came out just in time to see a bear carrying his pig into the bush. Rushing back, he seized his grandfather's muzzle loader and hurried out. He picked up his hand ax and stuck it in his belt, and as he ran to the bush his dog joined him.

The porker, which weighed about one hundred pounds, was making a kick for his life and objecting so strenuously to the manner of his removal that the bear was not making very rapid progress. When Jim was near enough he stopped, took aim and pulled. But the old gun did not go off: either the cap was useless or the powder was damp. Sending his dog after the bear, Jim dropped the gun, seized the ax and hurried on to see what he could do. The dog rushed in and nipped a hind leg. The bear swung round and snapped at the dog, then hurried on, clinging tightly to his prize. At that moment Jim ran up and hit the robber with his ax. At the same time the dog rushed in on the farther side and nipped the bear again in the tender part of his leg. As the bear swung round upon his little tormentor, Jim saw his chance and got in another blow with his ax, which caused the beast to shake his head savagely.

Apparently the bear was determined that, even if he had to give up his booty, he would see that it was of no service to Jim, for with one blow of his powerful paw he disemboweled the pig. He then threw it from him and made off through the woods.

In great disappointment and anger at the loss of his pig, Jim called his dog, got the gun and went home. When his grandfather returned that evening he told him what had happened.

"That old bear will be back for the pig tomorrow," said his grandfather. "You'd better be on hand and get him."

"How?" asked Jim.

"Why, with the gun, of course," said the old gentleman tersely.

"I tried your gun on him today, but it wouldn't go off," said Jim.

"That is one of the best guns in this country, even if it is an old-timer," said his grandfather sharply. This was not the first time his ancient gun had been condemned by a new generation.

Early the next morning Jim climbed a tree near his dead pig and waited. The morning passed and there was no sign of the bear, but at about the time when he had appeared on the day before he came cautiously through the woods and approached the pig. Jim took careful aim at the spot just behind the fore-shoulder and fired. The old gun did its work faithfully this time.

When his grandfather heard the gun go off he hurried to the spot. He found Jim dancing around his bear.

"He's a big one, Jim; bigger than I thought," said the old gentleman. "You were lucky to get him at one crack. Meat and fat and hide, he's worth more than four pigs."

Concrete Flume in Hawaii.

Owing to the scarcity of steel in the Hawaiian islands during the war, substitutes for steel had to be used as far as possible. On one of the sugar plantations a concrete flume was used to carry water across a gulch. The flume was formed as an inverted siphon, consisting of a rectangular box resting on concrete columns. It is about 6½ feet wide and nearly 5 feet deep and is supported about 35 feet above the bottom of the gulch. A bell-and-spigot expansion joint connects the horizontal portion of the flume with one of the inclined stacks, the space between being filled with asphaltic cement. This joint has operated satisfactorily without any signs of leakage for a number of months.—Scientific American.

Silk Hats Not Popular.

Although silk hats have made their reappearance since the armistice brought about a partial return to evening dress in Paris theaters and restaurants, there is a growing feeling among well-dressed men that a substitute for the ancient and ugly stovepipe must be found.

Today a correspondent of the aristocratic Gaulois suggests that a soft felt hat to match the color of the evening waistcoat and ornamented with an artistic buckle should be adopted. This, it is suggested, would be "discreet and distinguished," but the newspaper asks with anguish: "What can be worn with the frock coat or morning jacket?"

The Impossible.

"Every man should attend strictly to his own business."

"Too much to ask," said Mr. Dustin Stax, after a moment's reflection. "Nearly every man I know was obliged to call in an expert to help him with his income tax return."

U. S. railroads in January failed to earn operating expenses and rentals paid to companies by $64,000,000, due chiefly to coal strike and severe weather.

Told in Silence

By OTILLIA F. PFEIFFER

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

"They say it is a fine picture, Florence. Won't you take the children and go?"

"I don't care much for the movies, Kitta, but I suppose the little ones will be pleased," answered Florence Trude, resignedly.

There was no affectation in words or manner. Florence looked and acted inexpressibly wearied and dull. She was visiting with relatives and her cousin, Mrs. Wilson, married and having three children, had been disappointed from the first in interesting her guest in any enlivening pleasure. She could scarcely connect the sad-eyed Florence of the present with the lively, intensely human Florence of their schooldays. She realized, of course, that there must be a cause for the startling change, but Florence had not seen fit to confide in her and she had not penetrated the cold calm that was ever present with her relative and guest.

Pictures! Alone by herself, Florence's lips tremored and her eyes acquired a pathetic, far-away expression. Alas! there was one picture framed ever in her mind, involving the tragedy of slain love, trust and hope. A glen silvered by the white moonlight—her trysting place with the only man she had ever loved, ever would love; her joyful heartbeats as he advanced, and then his sudden confrontation by a woman young and beautiful like herself. That flashing-eyed beauty had accosted Eldon Ware familiarly. For a moment he seemed dazed—almost stunned—the woman came still nearer and threw her arms about his neck. He did not repel her. She kissed him fondly and then slowly, arm in arm, those two disappeared amid the mists and shadows of the glen and apparently out of the broken life of Florence Trude.

She had crept home a blighted soul, incapable of even thought beyond the fact that the man with whom she had plighted troth was a base deceiver. Circumstances immediately ensuing seemed to enforce this fact. Florence heard next day that Ware had left the town on a night train with her apparent rival in his affections. A week went by. Ware did not return and when a letter, mailed from the city, arrived Florence placed it unopened in another envelope and returned it to his address with the words written across it: "I hope never to see you again."

Then it was a long battle against heart break and threatened illness. Ware had come to her home, but the servants had strict orders to refuse him admittance. Other letters had come. Florence returned the first unopened and burned the rest without seeking to know their contents. What could the same be but some specious explanation of his base treachery?

Florence had heard incidentally that Eldon Ware was leading a lonely, uneventful life at the home of a married sister. He was reputed to have been left quite a fortune and engaged in no special business activity. There seemed to be no attachment or complication in his life, but the memory of that meeting with another woman than herself, their brazen-faced departure together, was a source of bitterness and reproach that Florence could not dismiss from her mind or forgive.

Florence accompanied the three children to the moving picture theater, noting only casually that the theme of the scenic presentation was "Misjudged." She anticipated the usual plotful drama and had no interest in its development. When, however, the story of the play began to unfold a strange insistent attraction to its details began. From casual notice to strict attention, and then to absorbing interest, Florence followed the first film of the photoplay and sat consumed with wonderment.

No character on the screen resembled herself or Eldon Ware, yet the prologue was nothing more nor less than a prototype presentation of the first few months of her engagement to Ware. So faithfully were their incidents depicted that Florence could scarcely believe that she saw aright. There came a perfect reproduction of that memory scene where Eldon Ware and his mysterious woman companion passed out of sight.

And there the story explained that devastating event. It seemed that the lover of the picture had a cousin who resembled him greatly. This cousin had paid some attention to a girl who turned out at heart to be a frivolous adventuress and who finally went insane and was sent to an asylum. That night of the glen scene she came upon the lover of the screen story and mistook him for his cousin. She raved wildly of murder if she was not taken back to his love and care. The cousin, to save his relative, accepted the identity thrust upon him by the mad creature, whom he indulged until he once more got her into custody.

With no other way of explaining all Eldon Ware had arranged to have the motion picture Florence now viewed publicly displayed. She realized this now, bewildered, repentant, as she left the theater. She turned as some one pressed to her side and a cherished voice asked:

"Do you understand now?"

"Oh! for all time—forgive!" fell pleadingly from lips that quivered with love and hope.

Mrs. S. Myers, 30, Lewistown, Pa., regained the sight of her left eye recently after that optic had been blind for 22 years.

GOLD IN GRIP OF NEPTUNE

Hope Renewed That Millions Lost in Treasure Ships May Be Brought to the Surface.

Somewhere in the sea off the coast of Zululand lies the ship Dorothea, which went down on Tenedos reef, carrying with her, so some people believe, part of the fortune of Oom Paul Kruger, once president of the Transvaal, and rumor has it that plans are afoot to fit out a British expedition in the hope of salvaging her. The war has improved methods of salvaging sunken ships and, if the Dorothea really carried it, the gold cemented into the hold of the vessel has been estimated at over $3,000,000. Before the war a syndicate was organized to attempt recovery of the vessel, and unsuccessful efforts were made to locate her; now the project is again possible—perhaps all the more so, because time has accumulated so many treasure ships which are again under discussion. A list recently published includes: The Grosvenor, lost on the Pondoland coast, with $8,750,000; the Ariston, in Marcus bay, with $4,000,000; the Birkenhead, on Birkenhead reef, with $3,900,000; the Dorothea, on Tenedos reef, with $3,250,000; the Abercrombie, with $900,000; the Merestein, with $700,000, and the Thunderbolt, with $2,750,000. If a sunken treasure enterprise fails of one treasure ship, perhaps it can find another. So far, however, the sea has proved a miser with the gold it has acquired; may the modern improvements in salvaging equipment change the habit.

BOOKMARKS OF EVERY KIND

Strip of Bacon About the Most Unique That Des Moines Librarian Has Yet Found.

The most startling marker that Forest B. Spaulding, public librarian of Des Moines, Iowa, has come across in the books that have circulated from the library was a strip of underdone bacon. The most ordinary bookmark found in the books is the common variety of wire hairpin. Hairpins might be collected by the hundreds, Mr. Spaulding says, but owing to that very fact they are considered as fairly worthless from the collector's standpoint.

The vacation season is announced annually by the presence of snapshots in the returned books. These are both personal or otherwise in character. Postcards and letters, too, come in often. Frequently letters addressed and stamped are found just as they were left by the book borrower who doubtless was proceeding postoffice ward by way of the library. These are mailed from the library.

Mr. Spaulding has noticed any number of pretty girls sitting on the beach at Riverview Park with books, and he has been looking forward all summer to recovering a bathing suit absent mindedly left by one of the young ladies in her book.

A Boy Just the Same.

Little curly-headed, four-year-old Joe had often been mistaken for a girl by reason of those same beautiful curls but it was a very sore point with him. He came very near, however, turning it to advantage one afternoon when his six-year-old sister was giving a birthday party "for girls only."

Poor little Joe wandered around the refreshments spread on the grass, gazing wistfully at the cookies and lemonade which his sister was serving to her little girl guests.

"No, Joe, this party is only for little girls, and no boys can come." Then poor little Joe turned past taunts into an argument that would admit him, and wailed out, "Well, sister, I ain't much of a boy, anyway."

Sam Had His Fee.

Sam was on trial, charged with stealing ten dollars. He pleaded not guilty. Being unable to hire a lawyer, the judge appointed young Clarke as counsel. Clarke put up a strong plea in defense, and Sam was acquitted. Afterward the pair met outside the court room.

"Now, Sam," said the young lawyer, "you know the court allows the counsel very little indeed for defending a case of this kind. I worked hard for you and got you clear. I'm really entitled to a good big fee and you should dig up some money and pay me. Have you got any money at all?"

"Yes, sah," replied Sam, happily, "I still done got dat ten dollahs."

Indisputable Proof.

A druggist was boasting in the company of his friends of his well-assorted stock in trade. "There isn't a drug missing," he said; "not even of the most uncommon sort."

"Come now," said one of the bystanders, by way of a joke, "I'm sure you don't keep spirits of contradiction, as well stocked as you are."

"Why not?" said the druggist, not in the least embarrassed. "You shall see for yourself." So saying he left the room and returned leading his wife by the hand.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Horses Still Numerous.

Despite the large number of motor cars and trucks made in America, horses and mules seem to be holding their own, according to a recent trade statement.

Although 7,700,000 automobiles have been produced in the United States since 1899, half of which were manufactured since 1915, there are now 21,584,000 horses and 4,925,000 mules in the country with a total value of $2,800,000,000.

CLINIC HAS PROVED WORTH

Organization Established by Boston Firm Well Worthy of Imitation by Other Employers.

A pioneer medical clinic, established 15 years ago to protect the health of 900 employees, and gradually enlarged and expanded until it now cares for a total of 2,700—that is the record proudly held today by a well known Boston firm. At the time of its organization the medical director was in charge of the clinic in the capacity of director and visiting nurse. Now the clinic is in charge of a practicing physician and surgeon, assisted by three full-time graduate nurses.

During the influenza epidemic of last winter, over 350 employees were treated per day, with only six deaths during the entire course of the dreaded disease. All cases were given careful individual attention and, in instances where no family doctor was in attendance, immediate arrangements were made for medical care.

It is the policy of the nurses in the clinic to advise all employees with whom they come in contact to be insured, an activity which the firm itself handles through employees' organization. The purpose of such advice is to secure insurance for all employees in order that they may receive its benefits after one week's illness.

This arrangement does not place a premium upon the employees being ill, and at the same time the clinic cooperates in the matter of insurance.

A dental clinic is in a formative state and, no doubt, will be established in a short time. The plan and method of administration and organization is simply in the making, but it is safe to say that the dental clinic will be as efficient as the medical clinic.

The Modern Hospital, in describing the clinic, says that it has fully proved its value in protecting the health of the employees of this particular company and merits the commendation and imitation of other mercantile and industrial establishments.

SEEMINGLY NO AGE LIMIT

Applicants for Divorce Are by No Means Always in the Days of Their Callow Youth.

There is no age limit to divorce. In Oregon a woman at the age of eighty-two years is suing for a decree from her husband, who is a callow stripling of seventy-one summers. This seems to be another case of too much mother-in-law, as the wife asserts that her husband's love has been alienated and undermined through the work of his mother, who is now ninety-four years old and who never did like her, anyhow. They have been married some ten years now, and the wife said that when the husband took her money to buy an auto for his mother and wouldn't let his wife ride in it, she knew that his love was dead. When she remonstrated the husband coldly informed her that she could leave the house. When the wife said that the home was her own and bought with her own money the husband replied that might be so, but he had thoughtfully had the deed recorded in his own name. Now she has to appeal to the courts. It is rather rough when a bride of eighty-two has to compete with a ninety-four-year-old mother-in-law for the affections of her husband.

A Foreign Ship.

Homer L. Ferguson, president of the chamber of commerce of the United States has stirred up the patriots over the reproduction of a foreign ship being on our twenty-dollar bills. Making a speech recently, and seeking to impress his auditors with the fact that this country has entirely too few ships, he whipped out a twenty-dollar bill and declared:

"Why, even the ship reproduced on this bill is one that was taken over by this country during the war. It flies the American flag, all right, but it is a foreign-built ship."

Examination proved he was absolutely correct. The ship has four funnels, and there never has been a four-funneled ship built in this country for our foreign trade.

The Mean Man.

Everybody knows the story about poor Tom Sharkey, who electrified the loungers in his saloon one day by saying heartily, "Well, boys, what are we going to have?" And then, as the loungers gathered round the bar, he added, "Rain or shine?"

Representative Gordon Lee of Chickamauga told a story of a similar kind about a mean man at Atlantic City. Some friends visited him on a hot evening and after they had sweltered a while in the sitting room he said:

"'Well, friends, could you stand some refreshments?

"'We certainly could!' the visitors replied, and they moistened their dry lips in pleasant anticipation.

"'Then,' said the mean man, rising, 'we'll open this window. There's promise of a breeze.'"

The Uplift.

A senator, apropos of the huge quantity of army meat which it was proposed should be sold to the packers for less than half the price paid them by the government, said:

"Why sell this meat to the packers? Would it not be better to sell it to consumers direct and thus aid in reducing the cost of living?"

The senator added bitterly:

"The high cost of living! We heard a lot about the uplift movement to be expected as the result of the war, but we didn't expect the uplift to be concentrated on prices."

$45,000,000 THEFTS FROM CARS SHOWN.

Booty Double That in Any Pre-War Year.

Wholesale looting of merchandise in transit on the railroads of the United States caused a loss of approximately $45,000,000 in 1919, according to United States Railroad Administration statistics made public recently.

This is estimated to be more than double the losses sustained in any pre-war year, but it is pointed out that the increased cost of the commodities stolen, roughly estimated to average 85 per cent, must be taken into consideration when comparing the losses in the days of low prices with losses now. Nevertheless there has been a steadily increasing number of packages stolen, and the organization combatting the thieves have met an increased ingenuity in diverting goods from their owners.

A technique of robbery has been developed so highly that the methods of "master thieves" are similar in the United States, England, France, Italy and Argentina, according to a recent report of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Argentina. Detectives, however, are inclined to discredit that organization's belief that a "widespread international organization" is at work stealing merchandise.

Substitution is the usual method used by the thieves. Sometimes boxes supposed to contain velvets are found at their destination to be filled with calico or other cheaper grades of cloth, but as a rule, waste paper is found. These are referred to as "concealed losses" by railway men and are especially difficult to trace, as the shipment leaves and arrives apparently in good condition, and it is almost impossible to discover at what point the theft occurred.

The silk industry has been one of the most severely hit in the last year, and so great has the risk become that the Railroad Administration has been considering excluding raw silks from the privilege of freight transportation by rail. The Merchants' Association of New York, through its traffic bureau, has protested against such an exclusion, advocating some less radical measure to minimize or prevent the theft of silk in transit.

PRODIGIES PROVE A PUZZLE

Psychological Experts Unable to Account for Their Amazing Prevalence in England.

Infant prodigies are being discovered in England almost daily. Some connect this with the psychology of war. One of the youthful marvels is Pamela Bianco, a thirteen-year-old girl artist, whose drawings were given the place of honor in an exhibition at one of the principal London galleries.

Critics dealt with them quite seriously and said that the work was suggestive of Botticelli and some of the other old masters. Pamela is an Italian girl who was born in England and never had taken any drawing lessons.

Ronnie Routledge, four, little more than a baby, whose parents know nothing of music, has enjoyed six months of tuition on the violin. At the Grimsby College of Violinists recently he outranked 43 competitors, most of them in the twenties, and scored 119 points in a possible 120. Professor Danton describes him as a miracle.

Little Robbie Day, aged seven, of Brighton, son of a motor mechanic, has wonderful powers of clairvoyance, according to the Weekly Dispatch. Blindfolded, he described a number of articles. These included a treasury note (giving its color, numbers and writing on the back), the color and texture of a piece of fabric he had never seen, the correct answer to a complicated sum in mental arithmetic and figures written down at random.

After five minutes' test he complained of feeling icy cold. "I just see little pictures and I just say them," is Robbie's explanation.

Medical Education in China.

The China medical board of the Rockefeller foundation will soon have in operation in Peking a splendid institution for medical research and teaching—the Peking Union Medical college. A group of 15 buildings is in course of construction. On account of their green-tiled roofs the new buildings have already acquired the name of "the Green City." The college will open in the autumn of 1919. A preparatory school was opened two years ago. It is expected that the whole establishment, including a new hospital, will be running by the end of 1920. The board plans to open another medical institution in Shanghai.—Scientific American.

ODDFELLOW LODGES HOLD BANQUET

A joint meeting of Mount Hebron Lodge, 56, and Hiawatha Lodge, 66, was held last night to meet Grand Patriarch Malcolm Sinclair, of the Grand Encampment of Ontario, I. O. O. F. The lodges assembled in the banquet room for supper at seven o'clock with Patriarch Col. J. W. Miller occupying the chair.

After a hearty repast had been enjoyed the gathering adjourned to the lodge rooms, where a large class of candidates were initiated into the Order. After the regular work had been completed addresses were given by Grand Patriarch Sinclair, District Deputy Grand Patriarch R. Ford of Peterborough, Messrs. R. M. Jones, W. A. Barrie and Col. Miller.

Grand Patriarch Sinclair dwelt on the work of the Order under the jurisdiction of the Ontario Encampment, giving some interesting facts in connection with the same. He pointed out that in the present age we were living figuratively on the edge of a precipice, and that the fellowship of fraternal societies was necessary to prevent falling into the chasm. The objects of the Order were the creation of universal brotherhood and to prevent the continued flying at one another's throats on the least provocation, as seemed to be the practice everywhere in the world today. He stated that there were more candidates for admittance to the Order this year than there had ever been before, and he looked upon this as a very encouraging sign for the future of the Order and the world at large. The other speakers spoke along similar lines.

Brother Dawes, a visitor from the United States, also addressed the gathering, commenting favorably on the success shown in the past by the local lodges and referring to the utilizing of the Order for good work as was being done throughout Canada at the present time.

Arrangements for the supper were in the hands of the Rebekah Lodge, which is a lodge composed entirely of ladies. All were agreed that Rebekah Lodge had excelled itself in the preparation of the supper, and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the ladies of that lodge by the chairman. The party dispersed at about midnight after having spent one of the most successful evenings in the history of the Order in Peterborough.

CURLING NEWS

After successfully defending the Lead cup three times in succession, Tom Donaldson lost it last night to T. Moore. The result caused a mild sensation among the spectators as up till very near the end of the game Donaldson appeared to have a safe lead.

Inspite of the efforts of the weatherman to prevent it the local bonspiel announced for tonight will be played as scheduled. If the weatherman has any intention of interfering with the local curlers he will have to try harder than he has done up to the present.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

The junior Employed Boys of the Y. M. C. A. wil play a return game tonight at Brock street rink with the First Form Colegiate Scouts. On the last occasion on which these two teams met the Employed Boys corraled a victory by a score of 2-1, and it is anticipated that tonight's game will be very close.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. are holding a sale of home cooking Saturday afternoon at the "Y." Afternoon tea will be served there from 3 until 6 o'clock and all are invited.

The new curtains have all been hung, and those interested in the appearance of the Y. M. C. A. are invited to visit the building on Saturday and see for themselves the wonderful difference that these improvements have made.

NOTED VOCALIST TO BE HERE

Mr. W. S. Hamilton at Knox Church Tomorrow Evening

The concert which is arranged to be held in Knox Church tomorrow night under the auspices of the choir promises to be a real musical treat. Besides the numbers to be given by the choir under the able direction of Mr. F. E. Walden, a number of prominent artists will be heard in solo work. Mr. W. S. Hamilton, a native of "Bonnie Scotland," and the possessor of a splendid tenor voice, is in himself sufficient attraction for the lover of good music to be present at the concert. Mrs. Bingham and Mrs Hughes are always welcome to Peterborough audiences, while in Mr. Whitehouse and Mr. Smith, who will be heard in solo and in trio with Mr. Walden, the program boasts two artists who excel in their respective musical lines.

The committee in charge of arrangements expects that the congregation and the public generally will avail themselves of this opportunity to hear a delightful musical treat.

: : AT THE GRAND : :

One of the most important theatrical deals ever concluded for the engagement of a single artist was put through on Monday by H. Wyndham Beauclerk and George F. Driscoll, representing Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, in New York City.

Wilkie Bard, the famous English comedian, who today occupies the premier place on the English music hall stage, was engaged to make a complete tour of the Dominion from Halifax to Vancouver, commencing December 17th, next.

Mr. Bard's services were sought by a number of English and American syndicates for transcontinental tours, but Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, although compelled to bid against enormous odds, comprising the biggest theatrical interests in the United States and England, succeeded in engaging Mr. Bard for this tour.

The deal involves an enormous figure. They had to compete against big European and American interests seeking to contract with Mr. Bard for years ahead. The deal is one of the biggest ever put through here for a single artist.

The comedian sails for England shortly, and will return to the United States in August. He will play the Keith time, finishing in Cincinnati about Christmas. He will thence go direct to Halifax, opening there December 27th. Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, will supply Mr. Bard with a private car in which he will make the "jumps."

So that every community throughout the Dominion may have a chance to hear him, Mr. Bard has contracted to play single matinees and "one night stands" in the small towns, in addition to the longer engagements in the bigger centres. He will be heard at the Grand Opera House during the season.

Pluck losses no time on account of hard luck.

GAVE LESSON ON HOW TO SET BROKEN BONES

FIRST AID INSTRUCTION CONTINUED FOR BENEFIT OF C. P. R. EMPLOYEES

The weekly First Aid lectures were continued at the C. P. R. by the travelling instructor of the company, Mr. Noble, yesterday afternoon. At 2 o'clock a class was given to the men of the freight sheds and also to the local police force, who are taking great interest in the course. At 3 o'clock a class of women was instructed in the Board of Trade rooms, and at 4 o'clock a class of the passenger station employes and section hands was held at the passenger station.

Mr. Noble confined his instruction yesterday to the treatment of broken bones, fractures, etc., and the methods to be adopted in bandaging them so as to prevent complications arising. With the aid of a chart he showed the different breaks which generally occurred, including broken ribs, collar bone, thigh and jawbone. In a clear manner he explained the way to set some of these breaks.

At the opening of the class Mr. Noble asked a few questions covering the work done at the previous class, and the ready response given by the employes gave evidence of the fact that great interest in the classes was being taken, and it is expected that a large number will be successful in gaining the St. John's Ambulance certificate for First Aid.

To stimulate the interest the company has added as a prize an extra trip pass over the division to all employes of the company gaining the certificate. This is in addition to the annual trip pass alolwed to each employe at the present time.

With Finding of C. G. E. Conciliation Board.

The finding of the Conciliation Board with regard to the demands made by the Winding Department of the Canadian General Electric is favored by neither the company nor the employes. A representative of the employes gave The Review to understand that they were far from being satisfied, but he could not say what action would be taken. The company's representatives on the Board recommended that a ten per cent. increase for one year be granted. The men's representatives recommended that a 15 per cent. increase for three months be granted. Finding gave 15 per cent. for one year.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

BRISCO—LONG.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Baptist parsonage, 255 Reid street, on Tuesday, March 9, when Miss Alvera Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Long, was united in marriage to Mr. Alfred Brisco. The groom was supported by Mr. H. Spargo and the bride by Mrs. Marion Spargo, the ceremony being performed by Rev. D. Brown. The young couple will reside in Windsor.

REID—CHAMBERS

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, March 3rd, when Mrs. Marry Ellen Reid became the bride of Mr. B. C. Chambers of Alberta. The bride, who was dressed in grey silk poplin and wore a corsage bouquet of pink roses, was attended by Mrs. J. W. Tighe, sister of the groom. Mrs. Tighe wore a gown of pearl grey georgette and crepe de chine, and a bouquet of pink roses. After the ceremony the party enjoyed a sumptuous breakfast in the dining-room, where the tables were nicely decorated with flowers. The bride cut the cake, and the guests enjoyed themselves very much. Then Adjutant Bunton called upon Mrs. W. H. Gibbs, who is a veteran member of the Children's Aid Board, to propose a toast, and in doing so Mrs. Gibbs, after wishing the couple every happiness, reminded the groom that he had now the second best woman in the world, Mrs Gibbs claiming first place. Mrs Gibbs regretted the loss the Shelter sustained by the bride's resignation.

Adjutant Bunton spoke briefly, remarking that he heartily congratulated the bride upon her choice, and concluded by saying much of the good qualities of the bride. In replying, the bride said she would always remember the kindnesses that had been shown her by the Board. The groom remarked that it was the first time he had been married, and that he was not used to speech-making. He expressed his gratitude for the reception he had received at the hands of the many friends he had met while he was here, and thanked all the friends who were so sociable toward him.

Among those present were: Mr and Mrs. J. T. Brannd, Mr. and Mrs Grant, Mrs. Hirst, Miss Hirst, Mr. A Read, Mr. W. Read, Mr. R. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Tighe, Mrs Gibbs, Mrs Stocker, Mrs. Bralley, Mrs. Kimberley, Mrs. Barrow, Adjt. and Mrs. Bunton, Mrs. Weir.

Mr. and Mrs. Chambers left on a honeymoon trip to Toronto and other points, and will leave for Alberta in a month's time, calling at Winnipeg for a week's stay enroute.

BURKHOLDER—SMITH.

On Thursday, March 4, 1920, at the George Street Methodist parsonage, the marriage was solemnized by Rev. A. J. Thomas of Laura Annie Smith, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Smith, Hastings, and Walter Herbert Burkholder, of Stouffville.

Mrs. W. H. Bartlett of Brampton, has been called to this city owing to the serious illness of her son. Mr. E. H. Bartlett, 216 London street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jones of Toronto have returned home after visiting friends in the city.

Miss Olive Cavanaugh of Ennismore is spending a few days with friends in the city.

Mr. G. H. Cutmore, of Oxford England, accompanied Messrs. Pratt and James on their return from the old country this week. Mr. Cutmore saw considerable service in the war with the naval division, and will spend an extended holiday in Peterborough.

A meeting of the Executive of the G. W. V. A. will be held tonight, March 10, at 8 o'clock.

DIED.

TIVEY—On Wednesday, March 10, 1920, at 137 Stanley avenue, East City, Hanna Tivey, beloved wife of Roland Tivey, aged 78 years.

MARRIED.

BURKHOLDER — SMITH — On Thursday, March 4, 1920, at the George Street Methodist parsonage, Peterborough, by Rev. A. J. Thomas, Laura Annie Smith, of Hastings, to Walter Herbert Burkholder, of Stouffville, Ont.

Brantford's tax rate has been fixed at 40 mills.

J. Arthur Dizell, of Burnhamthorpe died on Monday, aged 29.

THE WAY TO THE KINGDOM

Subject of Address by Rev. W. Millson at George Street.

Rev. W. E. Millson, whose singing and messages are arousing great interest in the series of special services now in progress at the George Street Methodist Church, will speak tonight on a most important theme, "The Way to the Kingdom."

A large chorus choir is in attendance every evening, and they will sing special numbers tonight. The meetings open at 7:45 sharp with a congregational song service, which is one of the enjoyable features of the campaign.

Mr. Milson's theme last night was "Backsliders — Are There Any?" While he stated his belief that it is possible for a person to lose the Christian experience, he also declared there are fewer backsliders than is charged, for some have never had an experience to lose. He referred to many cases of spiritual declension and called upon the people, if they had become cold and indifferent, to seek to regain the joy and power which once they possessed. It was a heart searching message and was delivered with intense earnestness and profound tenderness. Mr. Millson's stay in Peterborough will be of short duration, and the public are heartily invited to avail themselves of the opportunity which such meetings afford. On Thursday the subject will be "The Judgment" and on Friday "A Last Chance."

OBITUARY

MRS. MARY MITCHELL.

The death took place last night at the family residence, Lot 16, Concession 5, Smith, of Mary Brown, beloved wife of Thomas R. Mitchell, after a brief illness. Mr. and Mrs. Brown formerly resided in the city on Hilliard street, but have lived in Smith Township for the past year.

She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, and one sister in Massachusetts. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery. Service at the house will be at 2 o'clock.

MRS. R. TIVEY.

A prominent citizen of Peterborough passed away this morning in the person of Hannah Povey, beloved wife of Mr. R. Tivey, Stanley street. Mrs. Tivey had been ill for more than two years, but recently complications set in in the form of pleurisy, resulting in death at an early hour this morning.

Deceased was born in England 77 years ago, but had resided in Peterborough for the past 37 years. During that time she had always been a well known and highly respected member of St. Luke's Church. Of recent years she had been unable to take a very active part in the work of the church, much to her sorrow, but she was a prominent member of the women's auxiliary, rendering her support to all the good work of that organization.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides a sorrowing husband, four daughters, Mrs. John Howden, city, Mrs. T. H. Adams, city, Mrs. (Dr.) Leach, Hamilton, Mrs. Storey, Ottawa, and two sons, Sydney, of Calgary, and Albert, at home.

The funeral arrangements will be announced upon the arrival in the city of other members of the family. OBIT

MRS. JEAN PERRY.

Mrs. Jean Perry passed peacefully away early this morning after an illness lasting one week. Mrs. Perry was taken sick with pneumonia and in spite of all that could be done she grew worse until the end came this morning.

Mrs. Perry was born in Manchester 55 years ago, but has resided in Peterborough for many years. She was a member of St. George Anglican Church where she was held in high respect as an ardent church and social worker. She was particularly active in the war work of the church, and will be greatly missed by her fellow parishioners.

She is survived by one son, Harry, of Lindsay, two daughters, Mrs. Robinson, 104 Gladstone avenue, city, and Mrs. Skipper, of Toronto, and one sister living in England. Her husband predeceased her a number of years ago.

The funeral will take place from the residence of her daughter, Gladstone avenue, tomorrow afternoon, to Little Lake Cemetery. Service at the house will be conducted by Rev. James Price, rector of St. George's Church.

R. H. Merigold, proprietor of the Market Hotel at Hamilton, is dead.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY AGAIN TURN DOWN MRS. ROWE'S REQUEST

Atterney Widdifield Fails in Attempt, to Have Woman's Children, Now Wards of the Board, Returned to Her, Mrs. Read to be Presented With Club Bag.

Much business of importance was taken up at the monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society held yesterday afternoon. The chair was occupied by the President, Rev. Father Phelan. The Matron's report, presented by Mrs. Read, was read by Dr. King. It showed everything to be satisfactory at the shelter. On the motion of Mrs. Gibbs, seconded by Rev. F. E. Mallot, the report was adopted.

Mr. Widdifield, on behalf of Mrs. W. T. Rowe, 426 Driscoll Terrace, presented an application for the custody of two of her children at present under the supervision of the Children's Aid Society. Mrs. Rowe was bereaved by the war. Mr. Widdifield gave facts concerning the income of Mrs. Rowe to show that she was capable of supporting the children. Continuing, Mr. Widdifield made an eloquent plea for the return of the children.

The matter was thoroughly discussed by the Board, various opinions being expressed, but the general tenor was against taking any action in the matter as it was thought that the two children she had already were enough for her to look after. Father Phelan favored giving her one child back on probation.

Dr. King moved and Mrs. Parsons seconded that no action be taken with reference to the application.

A letter from Mrs. Read asking that her resignation as matron of the Children's Shelter be accepted was read.

A letter from Mr. Powell was also read, requesting an increase from $720 to $1,000 a year, pointing out that it would be less than such officers are receiving for the same work in other places.

Mr. Wearing suggested and Dr. King made it a motion that Mr. Edgar, Chief Thompson and Sergt. Whatley be a committee to enquire into and report on Mr. Powell's request. The motion was carried without opposition.

Moved by Dr. King that a matron be advertised for to take Mrs. Read's place, applications to be in by Mar. 20th, and that a special meeting be called on March 25 to consider the appointment.

Mr. Malott moved that the chairman appoint a committee to deal with the application for the position of matron at the Shelter and this was done forthwith.

It was requested that the names of the committee should not be named by the press as it might subject the members to much inconvenience.

The Purchasing Committee reported purchases for the month amounting to $104.62. Mrs. Gibbs moved that the report be adopted. Carried.

With reference to a request received from a women in New York that two of her children be returned to her, the agent was instructed to write for further information from the Children's Aid Society in that city.

The chairman suggested that a presentation should be made to the matron in view of her past services and showing the society's appreciation and wishing her well in her future home in the West. With their usual faculty for knowing what was suitable, the ladies suggested a club bag. Chief Thompson moved that the ladies be a committee to select a present for Mrs. Read and present the bill at the next meeting.

The agent's report, presented by Mr. Powell, showed that nine applications were received during the month, 34 children had been involved, 6 children had been made wards. Three complaints had been received and these had been investigated. Three hundred miles had been travelled by the agent in the course of his duties during the month. He had attended Police Court in connection with Children's Aid work six times. One warning had been issued. There was $108 in the bank and $40 due for board at the end of the month.

Those present were: Rev. Father Phelan, Rev. F. E. Malott, Mrs. Sanderson, Mrs. Gibbs, Mrs. Knox, Mrs. Stocker, Messrs. Parsons, Peck, Edgar, Wearing, Powell, Chief Thompson and Dr. King.

GEORGE LYNCH, WELL KNOWN DRAMATIC AMATEUR, HAS WRITTEN AN IRISH PLAY

His Irish-American Comedy Drama Will be Presented at the Grand Opera House Next Wednesday, St. Patrick's Day.

Peterborough's stellar amateur company, the St. Peter's Dramatic Association, have for years staged a performance on the evening of St. Patrick's Day at the Grand Opera House, and never failed to draw a crowd and to please their patrons. Next Wednesday the public is promised a double treat in amateur drama. Not only will the play be suited to the occasion, but it will be the first venture in dramatic authorship by Mr. George Lynch, who has for years been the director of the organization. The actor usually aspires to produce a drama of his own. Mr. Lynch was no exception to this rule, but few have been either fortunate or able enough to score the success which is likely to crown the new author's first great literary venture. In former years his efforts in this line have been confined to adapting standard Irish plays to local conditions.

The new play is called "On the Level." The date of action is 1912, and it will be a novelty in that there will not be any of the antiquated Irish costumes so often in evidence used in the production. America and Ireland are both featured in the plot, and everything is up to date.

The story is interesting from the opening scene to the sequel. The play depicts every phase of Irish character, from native pugnacity to the charming art of love-making, which seems to be an instinct with the swains of the Emerald Isle. It sparkles with Hibernian wit, and the dialogue never drags.

Mr. and Mrs. Dolan, well to do and living in a fashionable suburb of Dublin, early in their married life have a lover's quarrel, and the peevish husband leaves for America, where he goes into the oil business and acquires a fortune. He writes home, but an enemy of the family intercepts his letters. Dolan on his deathbed arranges for his partner and a Chicago detective to go to Ireland to find his family and secure to them his fortune.

In the meantime Dolan's son, Gerald, has taken a position in a Dublin bank, in which is also employed the enemy of the family referred to. The latter puts up a job on the young man by which he is made to appear as an embezzler, and offers to pay his expenses to South Africa. His object is to get the young man out of the way and to keep the mother in ignorance of her husband, intending to go to America and by personating the son, claim the estate. The detective from the United States breaks up his plans, and the plotter who is disposed to boast of his scheme, declares that he did it not from malice or for the love of money but from thirst for excitement.

The cast in the play, which is being rehearsed constantly, contains many of the old favorites. The author himself takes the role of the detective. Miss Annie McGuire is Mrs. Dolan, the disconsolate and long suffering grass widow. Mr. Collis is her victimized son. Little Gregory Wolfe, the youngest actor before the Peterborough public, is an adopted ~~member of the same family~~ in which the bright and piquant Miss A. Murray serves as maid. The other members of the cast are Miss Maud Lahey as Mrs. Harrigton, James O'Brien as Gerald Maloney, Cecil Wolfe as Fred Richmond, the villain, T. Dineen as Darby Rooney, Egbert Kelly as Bill Davis, Miss G. O'Hearne as Helen Fitzgerald. Miss A. Doris acts as accompanist.

There will be chorus singing during the performance, and Mr Collis will sing "Mother Machree" and other Irish melodies, and the stage at the Grand Opera House next Wednesday evening will look like a section of the suburbs of the city of Dublin.

One of the features of the performance next Wednesday will be the appearance on the stage of a live horse attached to an Irish jaunting car, or a vehicle as nearly like that famous style of carriage as can be found in Peterborough. This equipage will be under the care of T. Dineen, the only member of the cast in costume. Mr. Dineen plays the part to perfection, even in rehearsal, and is in every way a true representative of the cab driver, courteous to his passengers, loud in the praises of his steed, and ready to fight at the drop of the hat and to be the first to throw down the headgear.

LOUIS JOFFE SPEAKER AT KNOX CHURCH

SPOKE ON RUSSIAN LITERATURE SUPERSTITIONS, AND FOLK LORE

The address given before the Young People's Guild of Knox Church and their friends on Monday night by Mr. Louis Joffe on Russian Literature, Superstitions, Proverbs and Folk Lore, was delightfully instructive. After emphasizing the fact that no generalization can do accurate justice to every case within its scope, he proceeded to give his hearers a bird's-eye view of Russian life as revealed in the departments mentioned in the title of his address. It was of special interest to hear him say that he considers the works of such masters as Lermantoff and Pushkin the classical expression of the cravings of the soul of the Russian people. Count Leo Tolstoi, while a Russian, was at the same time more than a Russian, that is, his works have a universal character, and to this is due the comparative familiarity of Tolstoi's works in lands outside of Russia. Mr. Joffe pointed out that the works of Lermantoff and Pshkin are distinctively and particularly Russian, and that in them we get a glimpse of the soul of Russia. He pointed out the stages through which Tolstoi passed in his spiritual experience in emerging from the chaos of indefinitism to the definite acceptance of the definite philosophy of Christianity, culminating in his masterpiece, "Resurrection."

He then told his audience of a number of Russian proverbs, which elicited repeated rounds of laughter. He pointed out that the superstitions of the Russian peasants are crystallised in their minds in a manner that Canadians are not familiar with. In dealing with Russian folk lore, he sang a number of songs, which expressed the cry of woe of a suffering people, concluding with the declaration that when the filthy stream of Bolshevism has run its course in Russia the great Russian people will afford a wide field for real Christian missionary work.

The address, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all, drew for Mr. Joffe a most hearty vote of thanks from the audience.

Mr. and rMs. Nathaniel Hammond, an aged couple of Thamesford, died on Sunday at about the same hour both of heart disease.

ONTARIO EXECUTIVE OFFICERS OF THE WAR VETERANS REACH CITY TODAY

Get Here Early in Order to Arrange Preliminaries for the Convention—Delegates are Expected Tomorrow Morning and Will Receive Billets Upon Their Arrival.

The Ontario Executive of the Great War Veterans' Association will arrive in the city this afternoon and will commence the preliminaries for the big convention immediately.

Information to this effect was received from Secretary W. E. Turley, by telephone, from Toronto, this morning.

It is not expected that the delegates other than the executive will begin to arrive before tomorrow morning at the earliest as the proceedings do not commence until nine o'clock, Wednesday morning. At ten o'clock, Mayor McIntyre will formally welcome the delegates to the city in the name of the citizens of Peterborough.

Several interesting diversions from the business program will take place during the convention. On Thursday evening the delegates will attend the Grand Opera House in a body. Manager Dahn has arranged for a special program of high class vaudeville for the occasion, which will be one of the happy sidelights of the convention. On Friday night, a banquet will be tendered to the delegates and invitations are already out for this event.

REV. C. E. JEAKINS

of Brantford, Ont. Retiring President Provincial Command G. W. V. A.

W. E. TURLEY, Toronto Secretary, Provincial Command G. W. V. A.

Secretary Whatley is endeavoring to have some space in the hall, set apart for the use of the public, who care to attend and also the local veterans, but it is not known at present whether the accomodation will be sufficient to allow for this.

In arranging for the billeting of the delegates, the local committee has considered even the smallest details. A deputation will meet them at the station and will escort them to the G. W. V. A. Hall, where they will receive introductory cards to the persons upon whom they will be billeted. Cars will be waiting at the Hall to convey them to their destinations which may be private homes, the Y. M. C. A., or hotels. Everything is indexed at the G. W. V. A. in conection with this part of the program and the members of the committee are confident that not the slightest hitch will occur.

New Political Party In Great Britain

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 15.—A joint manifesto, which will be signed by Lloyd George and Andrew Bonar Law, will be issued in a few days, stating the principles of a new party to be led by the Premier, says The Daily Mail. It will be accompanied, newspaper declares, by an important reconstruction of the ministry and it is said that for this reason an announcement of appointments to the portfolios of Labor, food and the Board of Trade, now vacant, have been postponed. According to the present intentions, the name of the new party will be "The National Democratic."

In addition to the meeting of Liberals next Thursday, arrangements are being made for a conference of Unionists, at which Bonar Law will announce his resignation from the leadership of that party, and will invite the members to join the new organization. Unionist leaders who have been adherents of the Premier are said to have decided to support him, but there are indications that the party will not be united in adherence to the new combination. A revolt under leadership of Lord Robert Cecil and Marquis of Sailisbury is expected, says The Mail.

MONARCHY RESTORED IN BAVARIA TODAY

MESSAGE TO BERLIN AND PARIS NEWSPAPER CONTAINS THE ANNOUNCEMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 15.— Re-establishment of the Bavarian Monarchy has been proclaimed at Munich, according to the telephonic message received in Berlin from the Bavarian capital this afternoon, and telegraphed to Temps."

J. H. Beemer, C. P. R. station agent at Wingham, has decided to retire.

BOARD OF COMMERCE IN SUPREME COURT

QUESTION OF JURISDICTION RAISED—"THAT MAN O'CONNOR" FOR DEFENCE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 15.—A defence of Section 17 of the Combines and Fair Prices Act, investigating the powers of a court of criminal law in the Canadian Board of Commerce was made this morning before the Supreme Court in full session by W. F. O'Connor, K.C., acting chairman of the Board, and appearing as counsel for it. His argument was based on the power of Parliament to enact legislation to control combines and in the interests of the public good, what is termed "big business."

The hearing in the Supreme Court today is with reference to a test of the jurisdiction of the Board of Commerce as appointed under the Combines and Fair Prices Act, and an array of counsel will plead.

MARSHAL FOCH ADVISES THE ALLIES TO OCCUPY GERMAN INDUSTRIAL CENTRES

New Government Pour Contempt Upon Ebert's Administration for Fleeing From Berlin Without an Attempt to Defend Itself—Says That Regime Can Never be Restored.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 15.—Marshal Foch has recommended that Allied troops occupy Duhr industrial centre and Essen, according to unofficial reports circulated here today.

The latest advices to the French Foreign Office from Berlin, it was said today, indicated that the revolution in Prussia had thus far been confined to the military and Pan-German party and was without other political support. The leaders of the Conservative parties, it was declared, had condemned the movement.

MOVEMENT CONFINED TO BERLIN.

France contemplates sending three more army corps to Rhineland, thus doubling her forces along the Rhine, according to the Petit Parisian. Information received here would seem to indicate that the utmost calm is prevailing in Germany.

Although severe censorship in Berlin may be responsible for the lack of detailed news from that city, advices from other sources indicate that the reactionary movement begun on Saturday is confined to Berlin. A general strike, affecting all public service, has been called at Kiel, Bremen, Hamburg and Regensburg, while public sentiment in favor of the Ebert Government is declared to be increasing in Cologne, Dusseldorf, Essen, Duisberg, Spandau and Frankfort. In these cities a general strike is expected today.

CONTEMPT FOR EBERT'S GOVERNMENT.

Berlin, March 15.—A proclamation issued by the new government this morning says:

"In order completely to exterminate the Monarchist idea from the minds of the German people, the former Government and especially the Socialist members, poured out their venom and contempt on the flight of Emperor William, which they characterized as a desertion of the colors, although that flight was accomplished in circumstances justifying a less severe condemnation. That same Government has now forsaken its duty and left Berlin without so much as an attempt to defend itself, as it had every possibility of doing. This desertion will stigmatise the old Government in the eyes of the German people and will make its return impossible for all time."

GOOD LUCK ALONE SAVED U.S. TROOPS FROM DISASTER

ADMIRAL SIMS TELLS OF MORE OFFICIAL INEFFICIENCY OF NAVAL DEPARTMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, March 15. — Only a measure of "good luck" brought the first convoy of American troops safely to France, Rear-Admiral Sims today told the Senate investigating committee.

The Admiral recounted a series of blunders made by the Navy Department in connection with the convoy of the troops. The policy of the United States Government in this connection Admiral Sims declared to have been insistence upon making decisions based upon complete misinformation.

German submarines were enabled to attack the first American convoy, the Admiral stated, because the department insisted upon using an unsafe code, which was easily intercepted and deciphered by the enemy. This despite his warning and the fact that all other Allies were using new war-time codes. The United States code had been in use many years, but Washington officials refused to change it.

The commencement of the sailing of the first American destroyers was printed in Berlin four days before they arrived at Queenstown, declared the officer.

The United States naval attache at Paris had obtained his first word that troopships were sailing from a woman whose husband had read that information in a business message.

CURLING STILL VOGUE

Cold Weather Gives Game New Lease of Life.

A new lease of life was granted to the curling season by the sudden change in the weather for the latter part of last week. Curling for the local bonspiel was resumed on Saturday night and will be continued tonight and through the week until the competition is finished, weather permitting. The results of the games played on Saturday night are as follows:

CAUCUS TOMORROW ON NAVAL POLICY OF GOVERNMENT

DETAILS OF BILL TO BE BROUGHT DOWN TO BE DISCUSSED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 15.—Canada's naval policy is to be discussed, it is understood, at a caucus of Government supporters tomorrow morning. It is expected there will be a full discussion on Admiral Jellicoe's report, and that it will have much to do with the drawing up of the naval bill by the Government. Liberal members of the House will also meet in caucus tomorrow morning, when it is expected their discussions will be along somewhat the same lines.

BAKERS' UNION HAS NO SERIOUS GRIEVANCES

IS NOT IN FAVOR OF RADICAL DEMANDS MADE BY TORONTO WORKMEN

Local bakers are not enamored with the pugnacious attitude adopted by their Toronto brothers in demanding daylight baking and $8 a day wages. "We don't get anything like that here and they are not likely to get it there," was the comment made to a Review reporter today by a member ow the local bakers' union, who was in a position to know what he was talking about.

The situation with regard to Peterborough as he explained it was that in the new agreement being drawn up for the present year an eight hour shift for night work was being granted but while the union were making no special demands in regard to daylight baking they were willing to sacrifice the eight hour day principle and agree to a nine-our day as a concession to obtain daylight baking. Up to the present however, nothing has been done in this matter. There is no dispute at the present time with regard to wage in the baking trade

WORK OF FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The fire department was called out twice on Sunday morning, but neither call proved to be anything of a serious nature. The first run was at 6:47 a.m. to 178 Downie street, where a chimney had caught fire. One of the chemicals removed all traces of fire in a few minutes. The second run was at 11:45 a.m. to 555 Albert street, where overheated stovepipes had ignited the woodwork. The damage in both instances was negligible.

LAY TEACHERS TO BE REPLACED BY S. S. BOARD

MEMBERS OF RELIGIOUS ORDER WILL DO TEACHING IN CATHOLIC SCHOOLS

Ottawa, March 15.—It is only a matter of time, according to unofficial information received by The Journal, when the greater part of the lay teachers in the Ottawa Separate Schools will be replaced by male and female teachers belonging to religious orders. It is well known that the Separate School Board funds are very low and the demands of lay teachers for higher wages will further deplete the contents of the treasury. In order to safeguard the finances, and it is explained to raise the standard of education in the schools, the change from lay to secular teachers is to be made gradually.

When questioned on the matter members of the School Board were reluctant to speak. There was no denial of the subject, one trustee going to the extent to beseech that the news be withheld. The belief is expressed that the changes will be made during the summer holidays. The board will gain considerably by having the religious teachers, one fact being that there will be no strikes.

Want More Money.

In the French schools the teachers practically all belong to religious orders. It is possible that the board will send to Ireland for the Christian Brothers, and Canadian convents and institutions will supply other teachers.

The teachers in the English-speaking section of the Separate Schools are forwarding a communication to their section of the board asking for a conference on the wage question. The teachers feel that they should get higher salaries in view of the fact that the teachers in Public Schools are now enjoving higher schedules. Mr. M. J. O'Farrell, secretary of the Teachers' Association, stated this morning that the communication requesting a conference with the trustees would be forwarded in the course of a few days

Principals Boosted.

At the last meeting of the board increases in salaries were granted to principals, but the other teachers were not included. What has been provided for in the estimates is not known.

Rev. Father Cornell, chairman of the English-speaking section of the board, stated this morning that he had not received any communication from the teachers on the subject of higher wages.

CANADIAN MINISTER TO GO TO WASHINGTON

WIL BE IMMEDIATELY UNDER BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO THAT COUNTRY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Dec. 15.— The Daily Mail understands that the question of Canadian representation at Washington at last has been settled by the agreement of the foreign office to the appointment of the Canadian Minister Plenipotentiary, who will be immediately under the British ambassador to United States and in the absence of the ambassador will be charge of the Embassy.

As London Views It.

The Daily Mail, in allusion to the importance and difficulties of the British ambassador at Washington, indicates Canada's relationship to the United States, in regard to the League of Nations, as a kind of delicate situation it has in mind, and it trusts the Government will take the first opportunity to reaffirm the national status which the overseas dominions hold as by right of the League. The paper thinks Canada's special interest in Anglo-American relations has received remarkable emphasis by the British Government's assent to the appointment of the Canadian minister at Washington.

BELIEF EXISTS IN BERLIN THAT REVOLUTION WILL BE SHORT LIVED

Party Now in Power Said to Lack the Support of Conservatives and Reactionary Leaders—A "Toy Balloon" That Will Collapse Shortly—Greatest Danger is General Strike.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, March 15.—The conviction has prevailed from the first among men not identified with the present revolution that it will be short lived as it is outwardly without the support of the Conservatives or reactionary leaders and it is viewed in many quarters as a "trial balloon," which will collapse shortly.

The most immediate danger is recognized as a general strike throughout Germany, which has already been proclaimed in many of the principal cities including Berlin. In the meantime the old Government is recovering its nerve and seems to have very liberal support from the Federal states.

May Avert Strike

An unconfirmed report was current late last night that the new German Government had reached an agreement with the Ebert Government in order to avert the threatened railway strike. It is reported that the South German generals and Saxon troops have given their adherence to Gustav Noske, Minister of Defence in the Ebert Government.

Socialists Take Action

Paris, March 15.— The Independent Socialists and Communists met yesterday at Mannheim, and decided to take advantage of the present situation in Germany and proclaimed a Soviet Government, according to advices from Bahle, the news having reached that city by telephone.

Ask For Recognition.

London, March 15.—One of the first acts of the new government in Berlin was to request recognition from the Allied commissions in Germany, according to an official British message today. The request was ignored, the commissioners taking the attitude that they would not extend recognition even to the extent of answering the communication.

An official message filed at Berlin last night said there was no confirmation of the reports that the sailors at Kiel and Alton had gone over to the new government.

SIR ADAM BECK RETURNS TO HOME IN LONDON

HEAD OF HYDRO COMMISSION GIVEN WARM WELCOME BY FELLOW CITIZENS

London, Ont., March 15.—Completely recovered from his recent severe illness, Sir Adam Beck returned to London after an absence of three months in England, whither he went because of the serious condition of Lady Beck. Sir Adam himself was attacked there by double pneumonia. Lady Beck is doing splendidly, following her operation, but it will be two or three months before she will be able to sail for Canada.

A party of prominent Londoners, composed of members of the City Council, London Railways Commission, the Utilities Commission the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club and others, went to St. Thomas and met the Power Chief when he alighted from the Michigan Central Express. The Mayor and other dignitaries of St. Thomas were also present. He was escorted back to this city and tendered a luncheon at the Tecumseh House, Sir Adam and the party being the guests of Philip Pocock, Vice-Chairman of the Railway Commission, and Thos. W. McFarland, Chairman of the Utilities Commission.

In reply to a toast to his health, Sir Adam said he appreciated more than words could tell the thoughtfulness of his friends in organizing the welcome, because at this time, owing to the illness of Lady Beck, he was returning to a cheerless home.

COMMITTEE OF 48 NUCLEUS FOR PARTY

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE TO BE NAMED BY THEM IN JUNE

St. Louis Mo., March 15.—A new political party, with the Committee of 48 as its nucleus, will have candidates for President and Vice-President in the forthcoming election, it was announced here.

Paul Harris Drake, of Boston, a director, said the proposed party would be composed of "liberal" organizations such as the American labor party and various farmers' societies. Candidates will be selected at a national convention to be held probably here next June, he explained.

The committee of 48 is a national organization of "constructive liberals" formed a year ago in New York. J. A. H. Hopkins, of New York, is chairman of the executive committee of the organization. At a conference of liberals held here last December resolutions were adopted demanding public ownership of public utilities and all natural resources.

Halifax A. O. H. will hold a parade on March 17th.

PRESIDENT WILSON TO SETTLE STRIKE

WILL TAKE HAND IN DISPUTE WITH WORKERS OVER WAGES

Washington, March 15. — President Wilson again has entered the coal controversy in person, it became apparent when it was announced at the White House that the President himself would make an effort to compose the differences between the majority and minority of the Coal Strike Commission. The commission came to a definite deadlock yesterday on wages and hours of labor. Two reports were prepared to be tendered Mr. Wilson.

Pleas Kept Secret.

Officials said that neither the majority nor minority report would be made public if there was a probability of bringing the members of the commission to an agreement.

John P. White's minority report was to be submitted today to the President. Meantime he is studying the majority report, completed yesterday.

Mr. White, the miner's representative on the commission, refused to discuss his recommendations, but it was understood that he had held for an increase in wages of approximately 25 per cent and no changes in hours and conditions of work, in the majority report.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who hurried here last night from New York, where he attended the anthracite wage conference, conferred today with Mr. White and William Green, secretary of the miners' union, familiarizing himself with the facts.

He still declined to make any statement, but it was expected that the full executive committee of the miners would be summoned to consider the future action of the workers.

JAP TROOPS SAID TO HAVE JOINED THE REDS

DESPATCH SENT OUT BY SOVIETS TODAY, HOWEVER, LACKS CONFIRMATION

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 15.—A revolt has broken out among several units of Japanese troops in Siberia, according to a wireless despatch sent out by the Soviet Government at Moscow. The soldiers ripped off their shoulder straps and substituted red straps, the despatch says. The growth of the revolutionary movement in Korea is also reported by the despatch, which says that the Japanese authorities have made numerous arrests. At the same time, the Soviet message asserts, the Japanese government is taking special measures to fight the communist movement at home.

THE NEED FOR MORE HOUSES.

THERE IS NO QUESTION as to the shortage of houses in Peterborough. Five families who recently lost their homes through a fire in an apartment, met with almost insurmountable difficulties in finding accommodation either in hotels or boarding houses, while such a thing as renting a house or quarters in a modern apartment was beyond the range of possibility.

Conceded that there is a local dearth of housing accommodation, the problem then resolves itself into one of ways and means. What is to be done to remedy this condition? Private capital is timid, and little in the way of relief is to be expected from this quarter. Is the city, then, to step in to save the situation?

That seems to have been decided upon by the City Council as the only means of providing for an increase in the growth of the population, and application will be made to the Legislature for a loan of $200,000, this amount to be expended under civic supervision in the erection of houses suitable for the accommodation of families of moderate means, the occupants to become the owners of the property on easy terms of payment.

The conditions which govern this system of housing have been thoroughly explained from time to time. There is little risk attached to the enterprise. The Legislature is secured against loss, and so is the municipality, by the exercise of ordinary business caution. The rate of interest is low and charged only on the various amounts as they are paid out for the building. The advantage of this part of the plan is manifest. The man who borrows money from a bank for building takes the whole amount before or as soon as building is started, and pays interest from the start.

Peterborough cannot hope to expand unless more housing accommodation is provided. No one realizes this more than do the manufacturers, who are complaining of a shortage of help. The manager of one of the largest local industrial concerns said the other evening in a public address that the manufacturers were opposed to having any more plants brought to this city until houses were erected for the workers. Manufacturers who are thinking of locating in any city enquire first of all as to the conveniences for taking care of the prospective increase in the working population.

Beyond all question the C. G. E. bylaw will be carried when it is submitted to the people on March 22. This means the erection of an addition to the already huge plant and a doubling of the working force, which already numbers about three thousand.

A working force of three thousand men represents a total population of at least ten thousand. To care for these is a serious problem. How can it be done in this city under conditions such as exist today? The providing of houses for the new population must be carried on simultaneously with the erection of the new plant if the latter is to be started on scheduled time.

The directors of the C. G. E. can see as far into the future as can any municipality. They are not procrastinating in the hope that the cost of building material will take an early drop. There is little prospect of anything of the kind, at least for years to come, and in the meantime the City Council cannot submit quietly to a policy of stagnation.

WHAT UNION GOVERNMENT HAS DONE.

THE ARTICLE in The Review on Saturday under the above heading was the contribution of a prominent local lady who is associated with all forward movements, and by an oversight the signature "The Woman's Century" was omitted.

Union Government has certainly accomplished all—and more—with which it is credited in that article. The inception of that coalition of the two leading parties will always stand as one of the most magnanimous pieces of statesmanship ever eventuated in the history of politics. It was one of the many masterpieces which distinguished the conduct of public affairs in Canada during the war. Sir Robert Borden conceived the idea and worked it out to completion in spite of discouraging opposition within and without his political household. Results justified the righteousness of the idea.

Union Government was not, as so many of its destractors claim, organized to save a political party from defeat. Had it never been formed, had the Borden Government faced the electors in 1917 on the old lines the result would have been the same, only perhaps less overwhelmingly so. The same issues would have been passed upon by the electors. There would have been the same factional and sectional alignment of the voters.

But coalition solidified the patriotic elements in the country during the most serious crisis through which the nation ever passed. It afforded a haven for the members of the Opposition who could no longer follow the war policy of their leaders.

The purpose for which Union Government was formed has been accomplished. One of the conditions of the coalition was that no controversial topics were to be taken up during its existence. All that the Conservative party stood for as regards the tariff was to be waived.

The tariff, now that the war is over, assumes its old place as the leading issue of the country. It is being assailed from a new quarter. The party that fathered that policy and has nurtured it through sunshine and shadow for nearly half a century, must come to its rescue now. If within that party, by whatever name it may now be known, there are those who oppose the principle of protection, whether such opponents be in the Cabinet or in the ranks, they must be eliminated. But for those who are willing to accept what to them is a new faith there is still a place.

THE SITUATION IN GERMANY.

THERE NEVER WAS an uprising in any country, even if the masses attain their object with what looks like decisiveness, that was not met sooner or later by a counter revolution that, temporarily at least, restored the old order. The first revolution in France was followed by the re-establishment of the monarchy, which later was in turn destroyed following the disastrous Franco-Prussian war.

It was too much to suppose that the monarchist party in Germany, with centuries of power and tradition behind them, would surrender the reigns of authority to the common people, whom they had held in subjection so long, without a struggle. With the deposed kaiser only a few miles away from his former capital, his followers at home, in daily communication with him if they so desired, had sufficient inspiration for the course which they adopted on Saturday. The army revolted against the ruling powers. The Ebert Government was deposed and the party of the Fatherland took charge of affairs.

It is announced that the German form of government is still to be republican, with Hindenburg as the new president and Dr. Kapp as chancellor. No one will be deceived by any such announcement. Such an arrangement, even if it is given effect, would be but a preparatory step to the recall of the ex-kaiser and the restoration of the dynasty that the war was supposed to have deposed for all time.

If the ex-kaiser and his cohorts ever do regain control, they will have only one ambition, one mission, and that will be revenge. They will bend all the resources of the nation to retrieving the past and of regaining what has been lost in prestige. To accomplish this it would be necessary to grind down the masses more than ever, and to wring from them the limit of which they were capable in the way of taxation and military service.

It will be a dark day for Germany if the ex-kaiser is ever recalled to Berlin. It will be no less dark for the entire world. The old menace that hung so long over civilization will again threaten the general peace. The return of Napoleon from Elba was no less a world-reaching misfortune than would be the restoration of the head of the house of Hohenzollern, and would beyond all question precipitate the same results.

The war was won after four years of effort that entailed sacrifice in treasure and life never before heard of. The soldiers of the Allies in the field never faild, never faltered in their duty. It will be unfortunate now if all that sacrifice proves to have been in vain through the bungling of those charged with the duty of drawing up the conditions of peace. The Allies have recognized the new German Government and for over a year have been carrying on negotiations with it. They have in Germany an army of occupation to preserve the peace in the former empire. That army appears to have been defied by what is left of the military force of Germany and the Government that the Allies recognized has been overthrown. This action automatically sets at naught all the peace negotiations that have been agreed to. The situation is now just as it was any time before the first clause of the Versailles Treaty was ever written.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

THE RENT OF HOUSES.

(Hamilton Herald.)

In Pittsburg the city council is inviting citizens whose rent has been raised as much as 25 per cent. to come forward and state their grievances. If a similar invitation were given in Hamilton, it might take all year to hear the facts.

UNIMAGINABLE.

(Baltimore American.)

The Allies are granting modifications of peace terms, but imagine a victorious Germany making concessions to a defeated enemy.

THE TRUE TEMPERANCE.

(London Daily Chronicle.)

We do not favor the policy of prohibition, to which public opinion in this country is opposed. It would be the imposition upon the majority of a standard and habit of living adopted by the minority. But the nation as a whole demands that conditions which make for insobriety be removed.

MORE TO THE PURPOSE.

It would be more seemly if cites boasted less of their gains in population and more of increased housing facilities.

THE POWERFUL ST. LAWRENCE.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

J. H. Finney, an electrical engineer of Washington, D. C., says the St. Lawrence River is capable of developing 2,000,000 horse power, and adds: "The value of the power developed would carry the whole cost of canalization." This power, he believes, can be profitably transmitted within a radius of 400 miles.

SOCIAL LIFE FIVE CENTURIES HENCE

These are some of the conditions of social life in 500 years' time, predicted by Dr. A. M. Low, a well-known consulting engineer, who invented a motor-scooter and has produced an apparatus for seeing simple objects by wire:

Delightful underground avenues.

Drawing-rooms travelling 100 miles an hour on roads as smooth as a billiard ball.

"The happy people in those days," he said, "will look back upon our conditions today with just such feelings of amused pity as we show for the state of the savages of prehistoric times.

"Humanity, having continued to develop the 'coddling' process of civilization, which has so far had the effect of making it necessary to wear clothes, live in warm houses, and to seek all sorts of enervating luxuries and comforts, will have reached so delicate a physical condition that people, he will not proceed, as he does now, to the common elements of nature, such as wind, cold, rain, snow, excessive heat.

To Live Underground.

"They will tend to live underground. There will be underground streets, through which all traffic will proceed. Roads will be absolutely smooth and not rough-hewn and bumpy as they are today.

"When a man sets out for business he will not proceed, as he does now, by tramway car or train; he will pass along delightful avenues underneath the surface of the earth.

"Hyde Park and other places of public resort and beauty, will be roofed in.

"Motor cars and all motor vehicles will proceed by wireless power and not by the crude method of using petrol.

"Under modern conditions every two shillings' worth of petrol used to drive a car gives a return, measured by its ultimate power of propulsion, of exactly one-halfpenny. The other is 11 1-2d. representing wastage, which can be avoided.

Wireless Motoring.

"Motor cars will be fitted up like luxuriously appointed drawing-rooms, and will be driven (by wireless) at a rate of 100 miles an hour. Wireless telephones will be installed, as well as every kind of appointment making for luxury and comfort. Many people will own these cars.

"People will live in a condition of splendid physical isolation. Television—that is, the ability to see your absent friend over a distance of many miles—and wireless telephony, which will enable you to talk to him (or her) in comfort, will lead to this condition.

"There will be less desire in those days for close physical communion. That desire is a relic of barbarism.

"Savages will not touch a telephone. They prefer to travel to the presence of the one they wish to speak to. Many people still are not content to talk to their friend over the telephone merely because they like to see and touch him.

"That relic of the barbaric age will probably disappear in the next 500 years.

Still To Be Classes.

"There will still be the wealthy classes and other classes less well off financially. That will mean that there will still be servants in the house to do the necessary housework. But that will not interfere with the condition of splendid physical isolation, because these servants will not be intimate associates.

"This vision is not an extravagant one or wild set of theories. It is the direction in which scientific discoveries and experiments tend. It is no more and no less 'wild' to us than our present social conditions would have appeared to our forbears generations ago.

"Many scientific men have come face to face with discoveries and inventions which are only separated from actual realization by a simple little difficulty which will certainly be overcome in time."

WHEN KAISER FLED EBERT TOOK HOLD OF GOVERNMENT

HE ENABLED THE ALLIES TO CONCLUDE PEACE WITH THE GERMANS

Friedrich Ebert, formerly head of the main committee of the Reichstag, and a leader of the Social Democratic party, was elected first president of the new German Progressive republic for a term of seven years on February 11, 1919, by the National Assembly at Weimar. He has been characterized as a type of pan-German or imperialistic Socialist. It was the Ebert Government which arose from the ruins of the Hohenzollern dynasty and which enabled the Entente Allies to conclude peace with Germany.

Assumed Command.

On November 10, 1918, when former Emperor William abdicated and fled, Ebert was the imperial chancellor, having succeeded Prince Maximilian of Baden, who was instrumental in negotiating the armistice. He at once assumed command and succeeded in quelling revolutionary outbreaks.

The Independent Socialists, including a Radial elect favorable to Bolshevism, and known as Sparticides, complicated Ebert's problem. When he became chancellor many of these radicals, including Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, were freed from prison, and the two mentioned were subsequently assassinated.

Adopted New Constitution.

The National Assembly, which elected Ebert, was formed for the purpose of adopting a constitution. Its document, which was approved last August 2, provided that "the executive power lies with the people." The power of the Upper Chamber of the Reichstag was limited similar to the British House of Lords. There were special protection for labor and "generally accepted rules of international law" were incorporated in the new instrument. Ebert took the oath of office on August 23 and two days later the National Assembly ceased to exist, it being superceded by the new Reichstag.

Philipp Scheidemann was the first Premier of Germany under Ebert. Gustav Noske, formerly Minister of Demobilization, and before that Governor of Kiel, was named the first minister of army and navy. By reason of his drastic enforcement of new regulations he became known as a "dictator."

Underwent Many Changes.

The first real crisis to threaten the Ebert regime, however, arose over the question of accepting the Peace Treaty terms. Ebert, Scheidemann and other leaders were opposed to yielding to the Entente demands. Scheidemann resigned and a pro-treaty Cabinet, including Dr. August Mueller and ex-Labor Secretary Bauer, former Socialist member of the Reichstag, was organized. Baeur in a speech at Weimar before the National Assembly, announced the Government's decision to sign.

Backed by Moderates.

President Ebert had the backing of the moderates of Germany almost from the beginning. One reason for this was that when he succeeded Prince Maximilian he announced that property rights would be respected, that no banks would be seized and that the Government would uphold the German war losses and pay all claims on the state. The President, in a new year manifesto said that 1920 would decide whether Germany would maintain herself as a nation. A week later he was threatened by a mob in Stuttgart. Ebert Cabinet's fall was reported as likely as a result of the Allied demands over the Scava Flow sinkings.

BUILDERS MUST GIVE REPORT OF ALL COSTS

THIS IS REQUEST IN ORDER ISSUED BY THE BOARD OF COMMERCE

According to orders No. 37 and 62 of the Board of Commerce, Ottawa all local dealers in building materials are compelled to supply the Board with information as to the cost price of each article or class of the different materials they handle, and the selling price of the same together with the date upon which such quotations were given. This information must be supolied by March 30. A long list of materials upon which the information is demanded is appended to the order.

A copy of this order is at present in the hands of the local Board of Trade and may be seen upon request.

FROM FAR AND NEAR

A pool of asphalt six miles east of Los Angeles is the most remarkable puddle in the United States, having served for ages as Nature's trap to catch all kinds of luckless animals. It is five hundred feet in diameter and solid at the edges, while softer and thicker toward the middle. It has invited animals to take a short cut across, and once a foot was caught, struggles to escape were hopeless.

Since very ancient times the puddle has been a place of burial for countless victims, there being sekletons of elephants, camels, mastodons, sabre-toothed tigers, huge cats and antelopes. Deeper down are skeletons of animals no longer known on earth. In the pool are even the bones of birds, eagles and condors, which were doubtless attracted by animals struggling in the trap. One species of bird represented was of gigantic size, with leg bones bigger than those of man.

This notural trap has offered valuable instruction to science, it being the greatest opportunity ever afforded for the study of the evolution of animal life in continuous series from ancient times to the present.

There is nothing narrow about the temperance forces of Ontario now in convention at Toronto—"World-wide prohibition" is their slogan.—Hamilton Spectator.

Thibetans, who are perhaps the most primitive and unchanged branch of the Chinese race, and adhere closest to the ancient customs, make tea with butter and salt in place of milk and sugar. The butter, according to F. Kingdon Ward, in the Wide World Magazine, is apt to be hairy owing to the playful method of manufacture, which consists in kicking about a yak-skin of milk, the hairy side of the skin being turned in. The drink, he says, is pleasant enough, though to really appreciate it one wants to look upon it as soup and not as tea. The beverage, which is a frothing, chocolate colored fluid, is one of the staples of Thibetan fare, and no Thibetan ever travels without his wooden box of buter, his brick of tea and little bag of gritty salt.

Hamilton has another murder mystery. That Ontario city seems bound to hold the murder mystery record for the Dominion, if not by fair means, then by foul.—Calgary Herald.

Of the more than 700 ships in the United States navy, not one is without a mascot, and the collection is so great and varied that it would stock a modern zoo. The more unusual the mascot, the more the sailors like it.

Describing the "four-legged" sailors, as mascots are termed in the navy, a frolicsome pup, a curly-tailed porker, a bewhiskered goat, or a monkey are always welcome and considered by the crew as an omen of goodfortune. The variety of mascots ranges from roosters to bears and camels, and, it is said, in one instance a wild boar was obtained and treated as kindly as if it were a lap-dog. Many ships have a dozen mascots.

The most popular animal is said to be the dog. A dog's intelligence and faithfulness instantly win the friendship of the sailors. The ranking "four-legged" sailor of the navy is "Mick," the dog belonging to Admiral Rodman, commander of the Pacific fleet. He lives aboard the super-dreadnought New Mexico, surrounded by luxury and ease. His friendship does not end with the officers, and he is said to be content with the humblest sailor.

The mascots' service records are kept, and when the owner of one is transferred, the service record and mascot go with him. It is stated that only one "deserter" has been recorded—a big mastiff from the Nashville. Becoming tired of sea life, he went ashore one night at Havana and did not return.

The salary of the British ambassador at Washington is fixed at £2,500; but he is allowed £17,500 for "entertainment." Now that Washington, as well as the rest of the U. S. is "dry," isn't the entertainment allowance pretty high? — Hamilton Spectator.

Many of Dickens' pen caricatures are said to have been inspired by Harold K. Brown, better known as "Phis," an artist caricaturist, with whose humor the author is said to have felt the temptation to keep pace. A number of Browne's illustrations of Dickens are immortal, notable among them being "Phiz's" indescribably jaunty Micawber.

Andrew Lang in his "Lost Leaders," says Browne never had much success in drawing pretty faces. He tried to improve in this respect, but either his girls had little character or the standard of feminine beauty had altered.

Browne inherited the old vein of exaggerated caricature from the taste of an elder generation. In his later years his work became more and more unequal, until he was apt merely to scribble hasty scrawls.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

The first real speech in the British House of Commons by Lady Astor, the first woman to hold a seat in the Mother of Parliaments, seems to have been an unqualified success. Naturally she received the closest attention. It was a unique experience for the House and it roused a general interest. Possibly many fellow-members were surprised, certainly none of Lady Astor's friends were disappointed. At the outset she was somewhat nervous, but this soon wore away, and from that point to the end of her remarks her voice was firm and carried well; her words came readily and her sentences were well formed. Her subject was one in which women have always taken a deep interest and over which they have exercised a guiding influence. It was the restriction of the liquor traffic. Present prohibition in Great Britain she did not expect, but she urged the retention of some of the restrictions that had proved so beneficial during the years of the war.

NATIONAL DRESS IS PROPOSED FOR CANADA'S WOMEN

NAVY BLUE SERGE TAILOR-MADE SUGGESTED, BUT IDEA OPPOSED

On Wednesday last a meeting took place in one of the down-town restaurants (with an old-world name), in Toronto, in the pretty top floor room, whose colonial furnishings and decorations formed an attractive background for an important group of bright women known as the Costume Designers' Club (with Miss Charlotte Storey as president), who had met together, first in social intercourse, over the coffee cups," with the addition of something quite substantial, and later in earnest discussion as to the efforts to be put forth in their particular branch of work, led off by Mr. O'Connor, manager of one of the large firms of the city, and the one man guest present, who gave a helpful and interesting talk on how Canada may rise above her present conditions, how her efforts should be redoubled in production, that no country offered such advantages to every individual, great and small.

Canada's Heavy Burden.

Canada was at present suffering the penalty for doing good service; she had been willing to take on heavy burdens without counting the cost, but she will not continue to suffer from adversity if each individual makes a supreme effort to produce in some way and to confine purchasing to "homemade" or "home-grown productions, and our depreciated currency need not be so much regretted if it led to greater activities. The speaker considered one of the advantages of Canada was its freedom from class distinction. What constitutes manhood or womanhood, and real citienship, was considered of highest importance to right thinking people, and from coast to coast were to be found striking examples of such good citizens, who had risen from the humblest walks of life. Mr. O'Connor thought that Canadians needed more vision—that we ought to try and rise above the "humdrum." In applying his remarks to the designing and making of costumes, he thought environment had much to do with the beauty of the article produced. The French, for example, who had led the world in fashions, wished to produce art while in Canada, the artistic is much lost sight of in the mere commercial point of view. Here it was, "How quick and for how little." The idea we wanted to work on was "a higher standard."

A National Costume.

A short debate followed as to the feasibility of adopting a Canadian national costume. Miss Cresham took the side of the affirmative, and suggested the navy-blue serge "tailor-made," as a national form of dress, as in no other country was it so generally worn, or made to look as well, and so well suited to the style of Canadian women. Miss Dean followed with the negative side of the matter and maintained that a national costume would be an impossibilty, as it would first of all lack in individuality, and also that one form of dress would reduce production, that there would be no process in manufacturing. To Miss Dean fell the prize, as it was admitted by all present that one style of costume would not suit the needs and desires of Canadian women.

Brown Bear and Grizzlies.

The law protects the great brown bear of the Alaskan peninsula and nearby islands, which is the largest existing carnivorous land animal; likewise the grizzlies of the Arctic territory.

Nevertheless they are shot whenever the natives or white settlers get a chance at them, and if anybody is arrested for such an offence a conviction cannot be obtained. This is because public sentiment in Alaska is dead against the beasts in question, which are not only destroyers of livestock but dangerous to human beings.

The popular notion that a grizzly will not attack a man if unmolested is without basis in fact. Most formidable of living creatures, it is very intelligent, recognizes human beings as its enemies and will assail them whenever a good opportunity offers. A grizzly has been known to follow a man's trail, steal up behind him and tear off the whole top of his head with a blow of its tremendous paw.

Alaskan settlers declare that the great brown and grizzly bears are protected for the sole benefit of non-resident sportsmen. But they add that they are entitled to protect themselves, and they do it with a gun.

A Source of Riches.

C. C. Jones, chairman of the Fur Industry and Wild Life Conference, stated recently that Canada will soon become one of the leading fur markets of the world, and Montreal may once more become the great centre of the fur trade. Mr. James White, chairman of the Commission of Conservation, pointed out the valuable influence of the fur trade on the development of Canada, without which British colonization would probably have never gone further west than Lake Superior. Canada's exports of furs to the United States had increased from $1,800,000 in 1915, to $13,800,000 in 1919.

House of Coutts Disappears

WITH the approaching merger of the historic English banking house of Messrs Coutts & Co. with the National Provincial and Union Bank of England disappears the name of an institution which for more than two centuries has stood foremost in international finance. For, directly or indirectly, the house of Coutts has been associated in that period with every event which affected the welfare of Europe and her peoples.

From the days of the Georges Coutts & Co. have been bankers to the royal family of England and to most of the nobility. And until 1904 when they moved to new quarters their dingy old brick house in the Strand, near Norfolk street, was one of the landmarks for sightseers.

The family of Coutts, stretching back in unbroken sequence for 500 years, is of ancient Scottish stock which up to the middle of the seventeenth century had been of Auchintoul, until one of its members in 1650 started business as a note broker and exchange banker at Melrose.

It was in 1690 that John Campbell, born in Auchintoul, was carrying on a small banking business at the sign of the Three Crowns. He built the house which was to remain the headquarters of the firm for 214 years. Upon his death in 1712 his partner, George Middleton, assumed the management of the business, aided by the younger Campbells, until in 1742, they were joined by James Coutts, son of John Coutts, a financier who had attained the position of Lord Provost of Edinburgh.

James Coutts had already established a London branch of the Edinburgh business in Middleton, in 1747. With the retirement of the last of the Campbells in 1760, James Coutts became sole manager and took into partnership his younger brother, Thomas, greatest in a long line of brilliant financiers, and known to all of his time as the "shabby little man in the threadbare suit." It was with Thomas that the real eventful history of the bank begins.

Few men have enjoyed the unbroken success of Thomas Coutts, or worked harder to attain it. Few men possessed as he did the magnetic quality which wins friendship alike in high and low places.

His eccentricities of dress and manner—always a gentleman's manner, however—have been the subject of innumerable stories.

In the height of his power, when he had become financial agent or almoner to half of fashionable London, he was the guest of the Prince of Wales, afterward George IV., at the Pavilion Brighton. Early one summer morning Thomas Coutts, in his rusty brown suit, with stockings that hung loosely around his legs, took his seat according to his custom on a bench in the little park outside the pavilion. A benevolent old lady out for her morning walk, noticed a seemingly miserably poor old man and her heart was touched.

"My dear man," she said, "you have plainly seen better days. Pray accept this trifle for a breakfast." And she handed him a note for ten shillings on his own bank.

Then she added, "I will see you here again to-day, and shall raise a subscription for you among my friends."

Mr. Coutts, with a courtly bow, thanked his benefactress and assured her that he would certainly be on hand by the same bench at dinner time.

Then he returned to the pavilion, but in the course of the dinner managed to slip away and get back to the park bench.

Presently the old lady appeared again, this time accompanied by a party of friends.

"There he is," she said. "There is the poor old fellow for whom I asked your aid."

But before he could utter the name the Prince of Wales came out of the pavilion and slapping Coutts on the back, said: "Tom Coutts, you old mole, we've fined you a bottle for leaving your glass."

Mr. Coutts' benefactress was overwhelmed with embarrassment. But her equilibrium was restored when, two days later, she received by messenger a parcel containing a superb diamond necklace, with this little note:

Coutts was already the richest man in England and the confidant of monarchs and statesmen, when, ignoring the palpable advances of the many titled ladies who would have been willing to share his fortune, he suddenly married Elizabeth Starky, a handsome rustic girl who had been housemaid in his brother's home, his only expressed reason being that he had seen her grow up from childhood and she was sensible and good as well as beautiful.

Mr. Coutts' eldest daughter became the wife of an earl, the second, Frances, became Marchioness of Bute, and the youngest, Sophie, was married to Sir Francis Burdett, famous in the politics of the day.

At his wife's death he married Harriet Mellon, and to her he bequeathed the whole of his fortune of $4,500,000 in the full assurance that she would dispose of it with wisdom, justice and generosity." Five years later his widow become the Duchess of St. Albans. But that Thomas Coutts' confidence in her innate nobility of character was not misplaced was shown when, on her death in 1837, ten years later, she made the daughter of Sir Frances Burdett her sole heiress, thus giving back to the Coutts family the fortune she had received from it.

WINTER IN QUEBEC.

Quebec is beautiful both in winter and summer, but possibly its charm is greatest when King Winter has spread his ermine over the historic heights and the Citadel and when the great ice fleets flow and ebb each days in the majestic St. Lawrence.

The old city has real winter weather, with dry, hard snow. On Saturdays and Sundays particularly thousands of its citizens don their skis or snowshoes and take long trips through the picturesque country or throng the great toboggan slide on Dufferin Terrace. Here they enjoy the wild rush from the top of the slide, near the king's bastion of the famous old fort which Montgomery and Arnold vainly endeavored to capture away back in 1775.

Although the Norwegian ski has become very popular in Canada during the last few years, the snowshoe still numbers its devotees by thousands. The American Indian is generally credited with having devised the snowshoe; the early French Canadians were not slow in adopting it as a means of crossing wide stretches of deep snow, and their numerous descendants in Quebec are experts in its use to-day.

One of the most flourishing organizations in Quebec devoted to winter sports is the Union Canadienne des Racquetteurs, which was a conspicuous feature of the great parade through the city on February 14, when two thousand snowshoers were in line, and of the church parade February 15.

The sport loving people of Quebec, like those of other cities, have their work to do each day, and such big snowshoe parades as that of February 14 are staged at night. On this occasion an army of snowshoers formed in line at the drill hall and, dressed in their picturesque costumes, paraded through the principal streets.

One of the favorite resorts is the Dufferin Terrace toboggan slide. The big slide is a beautiful spectacle at night, when it is thronged with picturesquely costumed tobogganists of both sexes and when the brilliant lights are reflected from snow and ice. The total length of the slide from high up on the shoulder of the Citadel to the snow embankment terminus near the Chateau is a quarter of a mile. There are three tracks between which are partitions of ice six inches high, so that no matter if the tobogganist does the quarter of a mile in twenty seconds there is no danger of collision or of being thrown out of the particular groove in which he is sliding. Every day eighteen barrels of water are sprinkled upon the tracks, so that each one is a glare of ice, and very swift. The toboggans line up three abreast at the top of the slide, where they are held by steel triggers. When all are ready the triggers are released, and down the steep descent the three toboggans rush at forty miles an hour.

Because of its hilly character Quebec is an ideal place for ski running and jumping. The glacis of the old Citadel is high and steep, and on Saturday afternoons and Sundays is a favorite rendezvous for lovers of this thrilling sport. The pretty, red-cheeked French-Canadian girls are clever and daring skiers. Four of them abreast, holding hands and looking like colored paper dolls against the white snow, glide down the long slope of the glacis at high speed without mishap. Now and then they get tangled up at the bottom of the slope and tumble in a heap, but this only adds to the fun. The only really difficult thing about skiing is getting up after a spill into the deep snow, for skis are very long and unwieldy, and in the language of the old song

When you're up, you're up,
And when you're down, you're down.
But when you're only half-way up
You're neither up nor down!

Envied by all the other enthusiasts are the ski jumpers, who make long and hazardous flights through the air from some high take-off and even loop the loop on some slide particularly fitted for this thrilling performance.

Chinese Labor in Samoa Makes Serious Problem For the New Zealanders

THE problem with which the New Zealand Government is faced in western Samoa, in the matter of Chinese labor, is one of peculiar complexity. Samoa, under German rule, was subjected to the exploitation everywhere characteristic of the German colonial policy. Copra, rubber, cacao, kapoc, in fact, all the tropical products, can readily be grown on the islands, but the Samoan has not the least desire to grow them; and nothing, so it would seem, will prevail upon him to produce them, or assist in their production, beyond the amounts necessary to supply his very scanty needs. Even the Germans, apparently, could not overcome this reluctance to undertake continuous manual work, and so they proceeded to import coolies from China, in large numbers, and on the indenture system.

When the New Zealand Government, as mandatory, took over the islands and fell heir to the German plantations, it was faced with the alternative of either continuing this system of indentured labor or abandoning the plantations. For the Samoans refused to work, and white labor was impossible. The Government decided on a compromise. When the New Zealand troops took over the colony there were some 3,000 coolies engaged on the plantations; of these about 2,000 were allowed to return to China as their indentures expired; but the Government decided to continue the system, with the provision that the number of indentured laborers should never exceed 1,000.

Now the question of indentured labor is one which is constantly coming up for judgment in various parts of the world, from the point of view both of its morality and of its value. There is a wide divergence of opinion on both issues. But there can be no doubt whatever that there is a growing tendency to condemn the practice, no matter how carefully the interests of the laborer are apparently safeguarded. It was just about fourteen years ago that the question of Chinese labor in South Africa was so largely instrumental in bringing about the overwhelming Conservative defeat in Great Britain, at the general election held in that year, and no British statesman has dared to advocate "Chinese slavery," as it was characterized, since. Then, early in 1916, Lord Hardinge, at that time Viceroy of India, pronounced himself emphatically in favor of abolishing the system of Indian indentured labor in such centres as Jamaica, Trinidad, British Guinea, Fiji, and Dutch Surinam; whilst any proposal to revert to it is sure to call forth a flood of protest from many quarters.

This is just what is happening in New Zealand at the present time. The New Zealand Labor Party will have none of indentured labor in Samoa. It is quite in vain for the Government to contend that Samoan labor is not available at the present time; that the Samoans have yet to be educated to the necessity of work; that such education is being undertaken; but that, in the meantime, the necessary workers must be imported; and that whilst the natives are idling they are actually "going short of necessities, such as an adequate water supply." Labor, at once, comes back with the retort that indentured labor is a form of slavery; and that if the Samoans do not want to work as industrialists on plantations, "to make money for white owners," why should New Zealand attempt to force them to do so? "They are quite happy if they are left alone." The Government at Wellington may reply with all manner of carefully reasoned argument, but New Zealand labor, and a very large public opinion in New Zealand, remains entirely unconvinced. Already labor is fighting an election on the issue, and altogether it would seem as if the Government would be compelled to find some other solution of the question than the present one. That a satisfactory solution can be found cannot, of course, be douted. The mining industry of the Rand did not come to an end on the day that the last of the Chinese coolies was returned to China.

Australian Small Notes.

Though the 10-shilling note has become popular in Australia no attempt has been made to introduce a medium of exchange equivalent to the dollar bill. The high cost of silver, however, is rendering it prohibitive for coinage purposes, unless a durable ringing coin difficult to counterfeit can be produced with a small percentage of silver. While the Commonwealth mint is endeavoring to solve the problem of percentage everything is in readiness for the immediate issue of five-shilling bank notes by the Federal Treasury. There is no apparent reason why these notes should not become popular at once and restrict the use of silver to the half crown and smaller denominations, though again, nickel coinage is likely to supersede silver even there.

Making Daylight.

An apparatus which is said to produce artificial daylight was recently exhibited at a meeting of the Illuminating Engineering Society in London, England.

The apparatus is surprisingly simply, and it is possible to obtain results with an electric lamp of 300 candle power. Below the bulb an opaque reflector is fitted in such an way that the rays are projected upwards against a screen of various colors arranged in small patches. The light which falls from the screen presents colored material in its daylight hue.

HISTORY OF LOCAL BRANCH.

THE PETERBOROUGH BRANCH of the G. W. V. A. was originally known as The Returned Soldiers' Club, and was formed in the Armouries on November 6th, 1916, its first President being Sergt. P. Victor, of the 2nd Battalion. Pte. R. H. Muir, of the 21st Battalion, was first Vice-President. Farrier-Sergt. T. R. Cooper, 4th Battery, was appointed Secretary. The first rooms in which business was transacted were in Victoria Hall, which were obtained through the generosity of Comrade Col. C. H. Ackerman, who pledged himself to pay a year's rent besides assisting financially in other ways. Much of the success of the Club at that time was due to his kindly spirit, and was very much appreciated by the members.

ALD. G. N. GORDON, the legal friend of the Veterans.

COMRADE R. E. LAYFIELD, Chairman Building Committee.

After a time it was felt that more comfortable quarters were needed, and through the instrumentality of the Otonabee Chapter of the I. O. D. E., two club rooms were obtained at the Barrie Buildings. These rooms were generously loaned to them by Mr. Thomas Barrie, who has always taken a kindly interest in the Boys. They moved to these new quarters on the 12th of March, 1917. At this time it was felt that some kind of co-ordination of the small Branches throughout the Dominion of Canada should be obtained. With this end in view, a number of representatives of all the Soldiers' Organizations met at Winnipeg, when it was decided to form a Dominion-wide Organization to be known as the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada. This branch was represented at the Convention by Sergt. P. Victor, and on his return it was decided to amalgamate with the G. W. V. A. This took effect on March 22nd, 1917, and the first officers elected in the new organization were:

President—Comrade P. Victor.
Vice-President—Comrade R. H. Muir.

The first Annual Tag Day was held on April 22nd, 1917, and $1,896.00 was realized. This was followed by the Annual Church Parade to commemorate the second battle of Ypres, and was held at Knox Church, and was followed by two successive parades to St. John's and St. Peter's.

This Branch has also instituted an Annual Decoration Sunday, when the graves of their comrades, who died here whilst in the service, and those who have died since their return, have been visited and a wreath of flowers, together with a miniature flag, placed on their graves as a token to their memory from their former Comrades-in-arms.

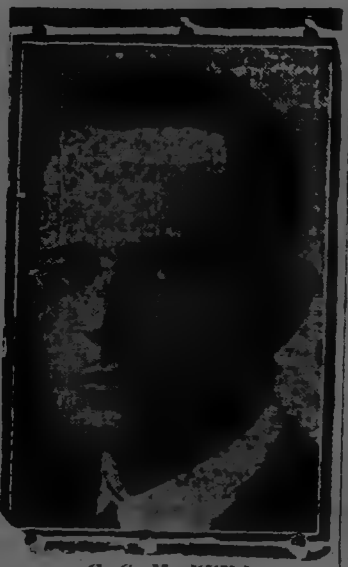
September, 1917. A special meeting was called, and the election of officers took place. Comrade H. J. Staunton was elected President, and remained in office till 1919, when Comrade R. H. Muir was elected by a large majority. This was singularly appropriate, as he was one of the founders of the Branch, besides being one of the first representatives to the first Provincial Command.

During President Staunton's term of office great progress was made. At an Annual Convention, held at Hamilton, he was elected as a member of the Provincial Executive, and was again re-elected in 1919 at Windsor.

In the Spring of 1918 the need of larger quarters was felt, and with the aid of the Ladies' Auxiliary, which was formed under the presidency of Mrs. (Col.) J. Mills, were successful in getting a large room over Moncur's drug store. This was beautifully furnished, and an English billiard table together with a pool table was installed, and which was much appreciated by the boys.

Much credit is due to the various officers of the Branch together with the Ladies' Auxiliary for their indefatigable efforts in securing and furnishing these rooms, and also to the many public-spirited ladies and gentlemen who so handsomely donated toward this object.

CITY CLERK S. R. ARMSTRONG.

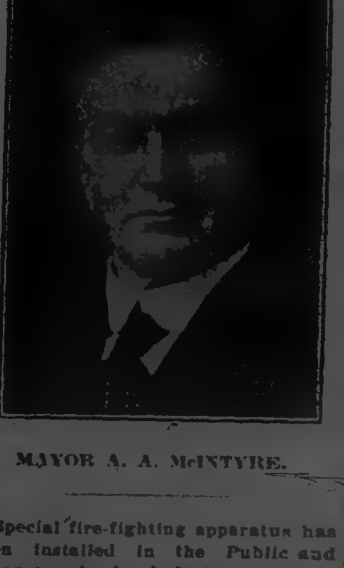


C. G. MacNEILL, Secretary-Treasurer Dominion Command G. W. V. A.

The membership at this time was barely two hundred, and the quarters were then large enough to accommodate them. When the Amistice was signed and demobilization took place, it was immediately seen that larger quarters would be necessary in order to accommodate the ever-increasing membership. Consequently, in 1919, a committee consisting of Comrades Layfield, Widdifield and the Secretary was appointed with full power to act, to approach the City Council for a grant toward purchasing property suitable for our work and to accommodate our members. The efforts of the committee were more than successful, and a grant of $10,000.00 was secured from the Council, which was the first step in securing our present home. Comrade Layfield and his committee than started to work to locate a suitable property. This was found in the old Murray Street Baptist Church, which had been lying empty for a number of years. This was purchased. Then it was found necessary to raise another $10,000.00 in order to reconstruct it along lines suitable for the work and recreation. In the appeal to the public a generous response was met.

One feature in connection with the structural alterations is the fact that this was done entirely under the supervision of the Building Committee under the able direction of Comrade Layfield, and all artisans and laborers employed, with the exception of one solitary person, were Veterans. The result of their work is that we have a building which is second to none of its kind in the Province of Ontario as far as G. W. V. A. halls are concerned. Special reference should be made of Comrade Layfield, who gave unstinted service throughout the management of this work, and the result will forever stand as a monument to his genius.

The Annual Provincial Convention of the G. W. V. A. is being held in this hall on March 17-20 of this year, and the Peterborough Branch has established a precedent in this respect, as it is the first time that a Convention has been held in a hall owned and controlled by a Branch of the G. W. V. A., Peterborough Comrades extend a cordial welcome to Delegates attending the Convention, and hope that their stay will be a pleasant and profitable one.



MAYOR A. A. McINTYRE.

W. P. PURNEY, President, Dominion Command G. W. V. A.

Special fire-fighting apparatus has been installed in the Public and Separate schools of Kitchener.

Owing to two cars being derailed on the G. T. R., near St. Mary's, traffic was cancelled for some time.

Fire destroyed the house owned by A. McIver, a mile and a half west of Ripley, caused by a defective stovepipe.

NO SERMONS BY "MOVIES"

Two Toronto Pastors Are Opposed To Modern Idea.

Toronto, March 15.—"It will be a long time before the moving picture competes with the still picture combined with the speaker's voice," stated Rev. S. T. Bartlett, of the Methodist Picture Department, in regard to a dispatch from New York that the Methodist Episcopal Church would run "movies" in the pulpit, believing there would be more people in the pews.

"The congregations across the border are using moving pictures in individual churches, but they have not adopted it as a policy. The plan was brought up to form a company, but this fell through.

"Canadian churches are using both moving pictures and the still slied, but there is nothing like the slide. The motion picture is for general educational purposes."

"I don't think that it has even been suggested that they (moving pictures' be used in that connection," declared Rev. S. W. Dean, acting General Superintendent of the Methodist Church on Canada. "I am satisfied though, that it is a magnificent way of instructing, and that the people haven't yet awakened to the value of them. We are fields, the work, etc., but not for sermons."

Mr. Dean stated they had witnessed a motion picture of "The Crucifixion," but it "cheapened it" and therefore was refused. He had also seen the "Passion Play," but it was not impressive.

VICTIMS OF LOUIS RIEL

Grand Orange Lodge of Manitoba Seeks Evidence as to Grave

Winnipeg, March 15.—To establish definitely the final chapter of the tragic end of Thomas Scott, the young Orangeman executed by Riel in old Fort Garry, in 1870, the Dominion Orange Order will seek and record all available evidence to be incorporated in the memorial to that intrepid victim to the rebellion. The Manitoba Grand Lodge today appointed a committee to take evidence as to Scott's last resting place and the manner of his burial. Numerous reports handed down by old-timers assign to Scott burial in the river by the firing squad, secret interment by loving friends, cremation by the rebels and substitution of another body and similar sensational circumstances. The victim is known to have had his throat cut after he lay on the ground by one of his executioners and the body disappeared that night.

ONLY TABLETS MARKED "BAYER" ARE ASPIRIN

BAYER

The name "Bayer" is the thumb-print of genuine Aspirin. It positively identifies the only genuine Aspirin,—the Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years and now made in Canada.

Always buy an unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" which contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Joint Pains, and Pain generally.

Tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer"

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

SPLENDID SERVICES AT GEORGE ST. SUNDAY

Twenty-Three Young People Volunteer to Give Their Lives to Definite Christian Effort as Missionaries, Deaconesses or Social Workers.

Large congregations, and services full of inspiration and blessings to many, was the record for George Street Methodist Church yesterday. Rev. W. E. Millson preached morning and evening, and also addressed a large mass meeting of young people at 4 o'clock, as a result of which over one hundred young people signified their willingness to commit themselves to God and to do His will whatever that will might be. Twenty-three volunteered to give their lives to definite Chistian service, as missionaries, deaconnesses or social workers.

A strong appeal for decisions for Christ was made following the sermon at the evening service, to which about thirty persons responded.

Services will be held every night this week except Saturday, beginning with a song service at 7:45 o'clock. This will be the last opportunity of hearing Rev. Mr. Millson, who will sing and speak at every meeting.

These meetings are not for George Street people only. They are for the city of Peterborough, and it is hoped that every one, young and old, will take advantage of this opportunity to hear Rev. Mr. Millson, he is a strong, virile speaker, with a heart-searching message for every one. Visitors are extended a very cordial invitation. No collection is taken.

Afternoon Meeting.

At the large mass meeting in the afternoon Mr. Millson's subject was "The Sin of Waste," taking his text from Phil. iii:12—"I follow after if that I may apprehend that for which also I am apprehended of Christ Jesus." This epistle was written by Paul from Rome under exceptional circumstances, and yet even under these circumstances Paul is making it his chief business to know what is God's purpose and plan for him.

In leading up to his main points on the sin of waste, Mr. Millson gave several illustrations. He spoke of how wastefulness was brought home to us during the war and of the commissions which were appointed to go through the country preaching thrift and economy. Another incident cited was that of the great wastage at one time in connection with the petroleum refineries at Petrolea. It was finally discovered that the material which used to run down the ditches was of even more value than that from which the coal oil was made.

A few years ago master mechanics representing the great machinery industries of America met in convention in Toronto. One delegate present said he would guarantee any plant there represented that by the proper education of the men employed and without any increase in the number of men, the output of the plant could be increased ten per cent. The method of instruction would be to teach a man the relationship between his brain and his muscle, the tool he worked with and the stuff with which he was working.

Up until recently we have been endeavoring to put all our children through the same mold in the matter of education. Now, however, we are beginning to talk about vocational training, etc., which simply means the cultivation and development of the natural tendencies of the individual which God has put there.

"The message that is on my mind and heart," said Mr. Millson, "is that God Almighty has a plan for every one of you—a distinct place for you in the world. The place is there, and He has given you the ability to fill it. The biggest job that any young man or woman can do in the world is first of all to know God and then find out His plan for them. I believe that every man is called to a definite and specific business," said Mr. Millson. "If God hasn't a definite place for you in the world, you are the only thing which He has created for which He hasn't a special place."

Important as it is to discover the wastages in the business world, it is much more important that we should not waste our lives in doing things which God never intended us to do. "Don't you see the absolute waste in your life," he said, "if you go on doing the things now that will unfit you for what God wants you to do?"

Mr. Millson told his audience that he left night school when he was eleven years of age, thinking he knew all the teacher could teach him. At the age of twenty-one he went back to the public school to get his Entrance. "I often think," he said, "that I might do something really worth while for God if I hadn't wasted so many years. I am letting you into my inner secrets in order that you may avoid doing likewise."

How may we know what is the plan God has for me? By an absolute commitment of ourselves to God—an abandonment of self and a willingness to do what God wants us to do. "If you want to be the happiest you can be in this world," he concluded, "be in the place God has for you."

Evening Service.

At the evening service Mr. Millson opened his discourse with the statement that he was going to make a straight, honest appeal to those who were not Christ's followers to take a stand for Him. Taking as his text Luke xiv.:17, "Come, for all things are now ready," he said: "Tonight, my brother and sister out of Christ, I invite you to a glorious feast." The Lord has the banquet ready and has been waiting patiently for many years for many who have been delaying their decision. "I am glad," he said, "that no one need leave this building tonight without first feasting on His love."

Mr. Millson then spoke of the wonderful love of Jesus Christ which compares to nothing so much as the love of a mother for her son. Many mothers have sons who are breaking their hearts through carelessness and dissolute living. Yet those mothers are praying for their boys and hoping they will come back. Young men are led astray by companions who sneeringly accuse them of being tied to their mother's apron strings. "Young man," said Mr. Millson, "you had better be tied to your mother's apron strings than be tied hand and foot to some evil habit that will damn your soul." The cry of a mother's heart is, find my boy and bring him with all his blight. I never saw a boy whose mother forsook him, yet if there be such an one, Christ says, "When thy father and mother forsake thee I will take thee up." Such is the wonderful love of Jesus.

Not only is Christ ready, but the Holy Spirit is ready, the great wooer and prompter of men's lives. There is an idea that the Spirit of God does not strive with people as it once did. "Don't fool yourself," said Mr. Millson. "There is not a good impulse in man which is not prompted and given by the Holy Spirit." There

IRISH STILL TRUE TO FAITH TAUGHT BY GREAT MISSIONARY, ST. PATRICK

Rev. Father McGuire Preached a Timely Sermon at St. Peter's Cathedral Last Night—Religious Persecution Haas Depleted the Population of the Emerald Isle.

In St. Peter's Cathedral last night Rev. Father McGuire preached a stirring sermon on the life of Saint Patrick, taking as his text the words of Jesus Christ, "Go ye into the world and preach the gospel to all creatures." Father McGuire, who is Irish through and through, was well fitted to preach on the patron saint of that country, and the news that he was to preach on this subject added greatly to the atendance at Vespers last night.

He told of the early life af Saint Patrick and how he had received a thorough religious education at his mother's side before he was captured and sold as a slave in Ireland. Father McGuire passed over the question as to where Saint Patrick was born, saying that it was a point which mattered little. For over thirty years after Saint Patrick escaped from Ireland he studied under the greatest teachers and saints of Europe for the purpose of fitting himself for the task of returning to Ireland and converting the nation. At the completion of his training he went to Rome and secured the authority of the Pope, who consecrated him the first Bishop of Ireland, and it was in this capacity that he landed in Ireland in the year 432. Up to that time the country was entirely pagan. He began his mission, which was a gigantic one, at an age when most people nowadays thought of retiring, for when he landed in Ireland, after his thirty years of study, he was sixty years old.

Ireland was the only country in the world which had been converted to Christianity by the efforts of one man. Further, it was the only country which in the fifteen hundred years which had elapsed since the time of its conversion had not faltered in the least in its faith, and was as strong today in its religion as it was in the time of Saint Patrick.

Father McGuire avoided comment on anything which might be regarded as political, stating that the church was no place for that, but he expressed the opinion that Ireland's misfortune had been the fortune of other nations, as, wherever the Irish went they carried their faith with them. In the United States there were today over twenty million Irish descendants of those whom persecution had compelled to leave their native land for religions freedom elsewhere. The result of the persecution which had been visited on Ireland was that, while there were twenty million Irish in America, there were but four millions in Ireland itself. If Ireland had been allowed to manage its own affairs there was no reason why there should not be as many Irish in Ireland today as there were in America.

FACTORY EMPLOYES ARE FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING

TEST VOTE SO FAR TAKEN SHOWS AN OVERWHELMING MAJORITY

At a recent meeting of the Manufacturers' Association it was decided that the members should take a test vote on the daylight saving question among their employes in order to obtain the opinion of the workers with regard to this important question. The results, although not quite complete, give evidence that there is almost a unanimous feeling among the employes of local factories in favor of the re-introduction of daylight saving. Some of the big factories even voted for it to a man. The following are the results received to date:

B. F. Ackerman & Son—90 per cent. for.

Canadian Canoe Co.—80 per cent. for.

Canadian General Electric — 75 per cent. for.

Colonial Seaving Co.—80 per cent. for.

De Laval Co.—64 per cent. for.

G. Walter Green & Co.—63 per cent. for.

Henry Hope & Sons—90 per cent. for.

Peterborough Lumber Co.—75 per cent. against.

J. J. Turner & Sons—99 per cent. for.

Wm. Hamilton Co.—100 votes for, 70 against.

SAYS CONSERVATIVE PARTY MUST BE RESURRECTED TO NEWNESS OF LIFE

Toronto, March 15.—The war horse, resting in Wellesley Hospital, sniffs the battle from afar. When the doctors permit him to return to the fray—he thinks in a week or so—it will become evident that his neck is clothed with the ancient thunder. In England Lord Fisher makes of The Times his quarter-deck. With us, Sir Sam Hughes turns his spacious bay-windowed apartment on the ground floor of Wellesley into a sort of political orderly room.

You find him in an armchair, his feet up, with correspondence lying on a couch, a typewriter on a nearby table, and a few books, including Lord French's "1914," at hand to show that strategy and achievement engross the general's mind.

M.P. Rather Than Warrior.

He has visitors a-plenty. While you sit with him two soldiers, out of khaki—a major and a general—drop in, talk awhile, take their leave, and Sir Sam resumes the conversation at the exact point at which it was interrupted.

It is the member of parliament, rather than the warrior, who talks at Wellesley. He is concerned about the country's future, and finds in this week's caucus at Ottawa confirmation of his faith in the Liberal-Conservative party.

"Sir John Macdonald," he says, "always referred to it as the Liberal-Conservative party. I see Sir Thomas White tried to get caucus to make a fresh start as the National Liberal-Conservative party. But what does the caucus amount to in a vital matter like this? Neither this cabinet nor its friends and tools has any real standing in the matter.

"During the war tens of thousands of Liberals came in with us for war purposes, and would have stood by us to the end. There was no need to make a so-called Union government. That measure, in 1917, meant the destruction of the good old party. For that calamity Sir Robert Borden was responsible. And now, having destroyed the Liberal-Conservative party once, some of the fellows down there are calling for him to come back and prevent it having a healthy resurrection.

"It's mighty curious that the gentleman who tried many times to supplant him before and during the war is the loudest in his praise now—all for his own purposes, of course."

Another Face of Things.

"You mean?"

"Just what I say. I mean Sir Thomas White, who tried to get Sir Robert out by staying in, and then tried to get him out by resigning himself, but never going to sleep over his intention. The profiteers have got their nominee for the premiership today, just as they had during the war. At one time the game was to put Borden out, replace him with Laurier for about a year, and then the fine-looking financial "floorwalker" was to take charge.

"Now another face of things is seen. Get the boys to cling to Borden; Borden can't cling long to office, then the profiteers' white-haired boy will come in and the whole country will be expected to dance to the tune the floorwalker puts on the gramophone.

"But caucus showed that it was on to the game, and I'll tell you why. The government support is mainly Liberal-Conservative support. The members know that what the country needs is the old party resurrected, as the preachers say, in newness of life. They know, too, that it can't get a new lease of life by trying to galvanize the dead ones, or by handing the country over to those who served it least during the war.

"The Liberal-Conservatives all over the country must have a chance to assert themselves. Until that happens what goes on in Ottawa is like so much crackling of thorns under a pot. We have got to put something in the pot, and then make it boil with good live fuel. Do you get me?"

"You want to see the Liberal-Conservative democracy on the job?"

Convention of Three Thousand.

"That's it exactly. The old machinery is in existence. It's suffering from suspended animation—that's all. There should be a national convention with three thousand delegates, selected by the local Liberal-Conservative associations, from all those who want to see a big, safe party that will appeal to the country at the next election with an assurance that the King's government will carry on. The local conventions would be the wide open door for any, who formerly belonged to the Liberal party to come in with us—and there are thousands of them.

"Get the big convention, and let it decide on a policy first, and then select a leader who can lead, and know what and where he leads. He will have an army—not the incoherent units that are at Ottawa now responsible to nobody, and acting like it."

"And what would the policy be, Sir Sam?"

"That isn't for me to say. But anybody can see that we have got to prepare to do more for ourselves with our own resources—with coal for instance. But those things must wait till the party can get together. The party is there right enough, and when it gets into a big enough stride it will find its leaders and convince the country that it can supply the good government that is so badly needed.

"Following the caucus the other day I still have faith in the sound common-sense of the majority of the members. Good-day, much obliged to you for giving me a call."

RAILROAD MEN PLAN CO-OPERATIVE STORE

MAINTENANCE OF WAY BROTHERHOOD TO OPEN ONE SOON IN CHATHAM

Windsor, March 15.—With the increasing interest manifest everywhere in the extension of the co-operative movement, particularly as it applies to a reduction in the costs of daily household necessaries comes a very definite report that in addition to a co-operative concern formed here a week ago, which has ranches in several of the larger Canadian centres, the Maintenance of Way Brotherhood of Canada, with a membership of more than one hundred thousand, will shortly open a store in this city to handle general lines of merchandise for the benefit of its members. While it is the intention to conduct the business solely for the benefit of the railroad organization, those identified with other Labor organizations will not be refused the right to purchase goods at the lower cost.

J. D. Robson of Detroit, who came to Windsor looking for a possible location for such a store, found downtown rentals so excessive that it is probable the new enterprise will be located not in the business section, but rather at a point where a suitable building with warehouse attached can be had for a moderate figure.

ONTARIO HAS MANY WOLVES

Algonquin Park Said to be Infested With Them This Winter

Dismal howling of wolves has sent tremors up and down the spine of more than one timid visitor to Algonquin Park this winter. Wolves, though not dangerous to humans, have been quite numerous in the woods, and the park rangers as usual worked hard to destroy these animals, which are the deer's worst enemies. Poisoned bait was laid out in abundance, as that is about the sole means by which the wily animals may be taken—and they are wary even of that. Unfortunately many of the smaller fur-bearing animals—foxes, lynxes, martens, fishers and minks—picked up the bait. And it was obvious from their tracks that they had crawled off to their holes and died. The Government, which is seeking to preserve these fur-bearers, could not even recover the skins of those thus accidentally poisoned. So an order promptly went out that all bait was to be gathered up and no more set out.

Porcupine Meat for Feast

A Toronto visitor lately returned states that one day an order came in from the Government that 150 pounds of porcupine meat was to be collected and shipped off to New York as a delicacy for the annual Canadian Club dinner. The visitor went out with one of the rangers on snowshoes, and after many miles of tramping through the woods they tracked down several "porkies" whose whereabouts was evident from the trees they had literally stripped of branches and bark. The quilly coats were stripped off and the choice cuts of meat sent south. Porcupine is a dish concerning the palatableness of which there is considerable difference of opinion.

Visitors report trout, which are caught through holes in the ice, as being very plentiful. Lots of deer were in evidence, and very tame.

A youth named Dillon of Ogdensburg was drowned at Prescott in a passage in the ice made by the car ferry.

"LISTEN LESTER" FILLED WITH MUSICAL GEMS

POPULAR SONGS THAT WILL BE HEARD AT THE GRAND TONIGHT

The music of "Listen Lester," which comes to the Grand tonight, with the entire New York cast chorus production and special company orchestra has become nationally known its melodies are as familiar to the average small boy as the features of the triumphant Jack Dempsey. Its songs have been published and played in hotels and restaurants from coast to coast; one phonograph com[illegible] has exclusive rights to many o[illegible] melodies, but the small boy w[illegible] verdict abetted by this whistle f[illegible] the success of the songs of a musical comedy, long ago proclaimed a victory for the songs in "Listen Lester."

"Two is company," is a captivating song sung by Mary Dodge and Jack Griffen, her sweetheart, and into which William Penn, Junior, the hotel clerk intrudes, much to the displeasure of the others. "A very good baby in the daytime, but a bad, bad, baby at night,' is a childlike confession from one Arbutus Quility, the pretty villainess, who comes to Florida to track her former suitor. I'd "I like to" is another song sung by Arbutus Quility, who is accompanied by the hotel clerk who agrees with her without reserve. "See her first," is a bit of sage advice given by said clerk, who in the years spent at a bathing beach has become wise to the illusions cast by layers of garments. He would pass a law advocating bathing suits for women as a national uniform.

Altogether, "Listen Lester," which is under the management of John Cort and the work of Harry L. Cort Geo. E. Stoddard, and Harold Orlob is a grand collection of dance, women and song which will linger long and be cherished in the memory of Peterborough theatregoers.

Rousing one's self out of a sound slumber is unpleasant enough at the best. How would you like to be awakened by feeling the cold nose of a revolver pressed against your left ear? In "An adventure in Hearts," the motion picture starring Robert Warwick at the Grand Theatre Tuesday matinee and evening, the hero is a secret agent who escapes from the clutches of government officials and spends his first night of freedom in a haymow. His pursuer's gun is his alarm clock in the morning. Some idea of the speed with which this entertaining screen romance moves may be gleaned from the fact that the next night Warwick spends in the exquisitely decorated guest chamber of an Italian nobleman. The mewing of a cat outside his room at midnight starts a delightful love affair and plunges the soldier-star into a fine melange of blackmailers, estranged husbands and wives, and scheming villains.

"An Adventure in Hearts" is a picturization of Anthony Hope's well known novel, "Captain Dieppe." The cast supporting Mr. Warwick includes the beautiful Helene Cradwick, Juan de la Cruz Winnifred Greenwood Walter Long and Howard Gaye. The picture is a Paramount-Artcraft and was directed by James Crue.

"BATTLING" CHARLES RAY

Jess Willard might have taken a tip from Charles Ray and trained for his big battle by wrestling egg crates. In his newest Paramount-Artcraft- Ince film, "The Egg Crate Wallop," on view at the Grand theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday Mr. Ray has the role of Jim Kelly, assistant to the village express agent. A sum of money is mysteriously stolen from the express company's safe, and Jim is accused of the theft. He thinks Dave Haskell his boss and his sweetheart's father, is the guilty person and leaves town to cover him up.

In Chicago he becomes sparring partner for a pugilist and at the last moment steps in the ring to substitute for a crooked fighter and lands the victory with his "egg crate wallop." His opponent proves to be the man who stole the money— a fact which Jim discovers in an ingenious fashion.

Colleen Moore and a competent cast support Mr. Ray.

TO THOSE WHO DIED

Connecticut Town Has Memorial for All Time.

Plot of Ground, Well Called "Tract of Glory," Will Be Henceforth the Most Cherished Spot in Norfolk.

In the little Connecticut town of Norfolk is a triangular piece of ground belonging to the people. For years it stood useless, almost abandoned, and to a certain extent unnoticed. Norfolk sent to France early in 1918 a score and a half of her boys to fight in the American armies. Other boys followed.

A few months after the first contingent marched away Norfolk began to receive its share of tidings from the front. Names of boys known to every one in the town were found in the lists of those "killed in action." Boys whose faces were bright and shining and whose voices were strong and cheery were never to return. They were lying in the fields of France.

The return of these names to Norfolk instead of flesh and blood that went away gave Norfolk its inspiration. The little green triangle became a tract of glory. No more will it be looked upon as a waste, no more will the people of Norfolk call it worthless. For some one thought of a way to make it rich, the most cherished spot in Norfolk.

On Flag day in the year that the war made heroes of these lads from Norfolk the people of that place dedicated the point of this triangle to the memory of those who were not to come back from France. At that time four of Norfolk's boys were lying in France under little crosses of wood, and on this day four little crosses of wood similar to those in France, with a name and a date on each, were driven into the ground at the point of the triangle. There they will stay until they are perhaps replaced by more enduring and impressive marks of tribute.

But the little crosses of wood are not all that the people of Norfolk placed in the village triangle in memory of the boys who will not come back. Something that will live and thrive and beautify the barren triangle was placed there for each boy, and it is named for him. For each hero a tree was planted, and it will always be known as his tree, by his name; and long after the great-grandchildren of those who now live in Norfolk are dead and gone these trees will still stand and will be known through all the sunshine and storm of the ages by the names they received at the christening. They will grow to be tall and mighty and spread their branches over the cross that was won on the battle fields of France—the simple cross of honor that every man wins when he gives up his life for his country.

The thought is beautiful. That little triangle in Norfolk will have more trees and crosses; the boys who died in France will live and grow to an age far beyond the years of the oldest of men. How simple this way of commemorating the deeds and the spirit of the boys who go forth to the war never to come home again! A little cross of wood for the present, a towering tree for the future, and the name of a hero preserved for an age to come.—George Barr McCutcheon.

Save Garden Surplus.

An example of the success brought about by co-operation is shown in a report received by the United States department of agriculture from Gila county, Arizona, where the local home-demonstration agent and county agricultural agents united their efforts in developing methods for conserving $81,200 worth of surplus products grown on more than 100 acres of irrigated land divided into one-eighth acre gardens. A co-operative marketing store was established near the gardens on the edge of town on the main traveled road. A community canning kitchen was also operated under the supervision of the home demonstration agent, no charge being made to the co-operating gardeners who wished to make use of it. This plan also presented an opportunity for teaching the most approved and economical methods of canning and drying.

Somewhat at Fault

By T. B. ALDERSON

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

Hector Warne was the reliable standby of old Mark Seaton, but Hal Preble was his favorite. They were cousins, close and affectionate as own brothers, but were direct opposites. Warne was staid, dependable, of rather a serious turn of mind. Hal was naturally a rover, loved changes.

"I want to have a talk with you, Hector," said Mr. Seaton one day. "I have heard from Hal. He is at Cresson and I fear is in love again."

Hector smiled quaintly. Hal was in love, and always with a new object of choice, half a dozen times a year.

"I have always feared that some scheming adventuress would get hold of Hal," continued Mr. Seaton. "I have been making some inquiries and learn that for a month past he has been regularly calling upon a Miss Deverll, who lives a few miles from Cresson."

"And she is the siren you dread?"

"I don't know it for a fact," replied the uncle, but I want to know and intend to. That is why I am going to ask you to sort of look Hal up at Cresson, and particularly to go to Roxbury and find out what kind of a girl this new flame of his is."

"I don't like the task," said Hector quickly. "Playing the spy is not in my line."

"No, but you think enough of Hal to join me in striving to protect him, don't you?" and Hector bowed silently and two days later reached Cresson.

He kept himself completely out of the way of Hal, but learned that his cousin had a suite of rooms at the best hotel, was a gentleman of leisure complete, usually spent his week ends at Roxbury and to that picturesque little town Hector transferred his abode. Judging from the information Hector received Miss Deverll was entirely worthy of the choice of any man.

She was the daughter of one of the most reputable and favorably known residents of Roxbury, Judge Joshua Deverll. The latter was quite prominent in the public eye. Roxbury had its bad quarter in which a full compliment of the dissolute and criminal lived. He had been stern and exacting in striving to wipe out this black spot in the community by severe court sentences, and this had brought to him the enmity and hatred of the vicious element. He was possessed of considerable wealth and his daughter was a popular social favorite.

From a distance his first Saturday evening in Roxbury Hector saw the pair together. Never in his life had he gazed upon a young lady who in face and bearing so attracted him. The next day the pair were joined by another young lady, a dark, flashing beauty, with whom Hal seemed to divide his attentions. Hector learned that this was a Miss Marcia Lowell, from the city and a close girl friend of Miss Deverll.

Upon Monday morning Hal took the train for Cresson and Hector had a clear field for investigation. Several times he passed Miss Deverll upon the street and returned to his hotel to dream about this paragon of grace and beauty, secretly envying his cousin his great fortune.

By the middle of that week Hector had made up his mind that a report was due his anxious uncle. He wrote a letter stating that the latter need have no apprehension as to the eligibility of Miss Deverll as a niece-in-law.

That evening Hector decided he would not prolong his stay. He, however, coveted one last glimpse of Lois Deverll. It was after dark when he strolled by the Deverll mansion. He skirted the lawn and posted himself behind a bush. Peering past it he could see the object of his interest seated at the piano. Then Hector Warne saw something else that thrilled him into vivid action. A man stealthily approached the side of the house. He carried a round, sinister looking object from which trailed a fuse. He lit this, placed it under a veranda and started to leave the spot.

In a flash Hector comprehended that he must be some of the criminal enemies of Judge Deverll. He rushed forward, seized the spurting end of the fuse and jerked it loose. There was a flare the sharp snap of percussion, the man dealt him a blow with a cudgel and Hector went down like a shot.

Hector opened his eyes to find himself lying on a comfortable couch in the Deverll home. Two men were standing near, one of them palpably a physician, for he was saying: "A painful burn on the arm and the shock, but that will soon pass by." The other advanced to the couch. He was Hal Preble.

"Well! well!" he railed. "Been playing the hero? The good people here found a letter in your pocket in which I was mentioned, guessed who you were and wired me. What ever put it into your head that I was going to marry Lois Deverll?"

"Aren't you?" cried Hector in an eager gasp.

"No, her friend, Marcia Lowell, whom, as an intermediary, Lois has helped me to win, is the happy one—with myself." There were two other happy ones before Hector left Roxbury. He did so to arrange with his uncle for a double wedding.

He Got His Car.

A Chinese general, with his seven wives and a small bodyguard, walked into the station at Harbin as the Vladivostok train was about to start and demanded accommodation for himself and party.

The Chinese Eastern, although a joint Russian-Chinese property, is operated by the Russians in conjunction with the Siberian railway.

The Russian station master consulted his watch, shrugged, and said "Nitza," which is the Russian equivalent for "It can't be done." He explained that the train was full and it was leaving then.

Without further parley the general dispatched members of his bodyguard to hold the train. One man clambered into the locomotive and covered the engineman with a revolver. Others mounted guard on the car platforms.

Then the general ordered the stationmaster to procure a car "quï qui," which is Chinese for "instantly without any back talk," on pain of very serious consequences to himself.

Twenty minutes later the train pulled out with the Chinese general and his seven wives aboard in a spacious private car.

Saloniki.

The city of Saloniki had in normal times a population of about 120,000 to 170,000. This has been increased to about 400,000 through the influx of refugees from Serbia, European Turkey, Bulgaria and that part of Greek Macedonia until recently in the hands of Bulgaria. During the last few years the character of the population has been steadily changing. The Greek element has more than doubled itself and at this time stands first in numbers. Turks, formerly the most numerous class, are now third in rank and are steadily decreasing. The Jewish population stands in second place and is the most important commercially. A mixture of Bulgars, Serbs and Roumanians and Russians make up the remainder of one of the most heterogeneous populations in the world. Differences of race, religion and customs tend to make the commercial developments of Saloniki slow.

MAGEE THREATENS TO SUE HEADS OF BASEBALL BECAUSE OF BLACKLIST

Some Interesting Information Will Come out if He Carries the Matter Into Court.

If Lee Magee, the ball player who was unconditionally released by the Chicago National club a month ago and then found it impossible to gain another engagement in the major circuits, makes good his threat to carry the matter into the courts, the magnates will not feel worried. If Magee sues the owner of the Chicago club for breach of contract and other major league clubs for conspiracy on the ground that he has been secretly "blacklisted," as he says, for betting on ball games, the magnates will have an opportunity to tell judges and juries what has been going on behind the scenes.

John Arnold Heydler, president of the National league, refused to discuss Magee's case when asked for information, except to say that he had read the player's detailed statement published in the newspapers on Saturday. William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs, on the other hand, was quoted as saying:

"If Lee Magee believes he has been materially damaged through being released by the Cubs we will welcome a suit in court if he so desires. Magee knows why the Cubs released him outright."

In Magee's statement, he set forth that "I have in my possession evidence that, without cause, the owners of the major league teams have unlawfully 'blacklisted' me;" also that neither Manager Mitchell of the Cubs or any one else has ever accused me of improper betting on games."

Legal proceedings by Magee will turn the light on the baseball betting evil which has been a live topic ever since Christopher Mathewson, when manager of the Cincinnati Reds, brought charges against Hal Chase, who was tried and acquitted a year ago. The stories of collusion between professional gamblers and certain Chicago players who took part in the world series, while hard to believe, never have been disproved to the satisfaction of the fans.

The dropping of Magee and the absence of other noted players from the big league training camps would seem to indicate the magnates are trying to accomplish something for under the surface. But for the interests of baseball the veil of mystery should be lifted, and for the reason the fans hope that Magee will "go through" with his lawsuits.

Might Be Hard To Prove "Blacklist."

It might be hard to prove that the major league magnates had actually "blacklisted" Magee. It's a sure thing that the club owners have studiously avoided the use of this unpopular word in dealing with Magee and two other players, said to have been driven out of the sport for betting. Magee, in order to establish a case, would have to prove that the National and American league clubs had entered into a binding agreement to keep him off their teams. Incidentally, Magee would have to submit to a cross-examination, which might disclose interesting particulars regarding what happened when he and Chase played ball with the Cincinnati Reds in 1918.

Betting isn't a crime, it must be remembered. If Magee made wagers on ball games he could not be charged with dishonesty, but in the opinion of magnates, critics and fans, he would be guilty of "indiscretion," inasmuch as baseball and betting should not be mixed.

Magee's reference to betting in his published statement naturally creates the impression that the magnates have been investigating. Yet league officials and club owners will not admit that they have in their possession a detailed "confession" of a certain ball player which contained startling charges against at least one major league star who has quietly left the game.

Should Clear Atmosphere.

It is surmised that the major league men have investigated the getting evil in secret and are determined to suppress scandal. The magnates have had enough of the courts and are anxious to make the game go along smoothly hereafter. But the baseball atmosphere must be cleared before the confidence of all the fans can be restored.

It would be far more satisfactory to make public the reasons why certain players will not return this year. By naming the supposed culprits who are said to have been dealing with professional gamblers, the honest players would conceive a square deal, to which they are entitled.

JESS WILLARD ANXIOUS TO MEET DEMPSEY AGAIN

WRITES TEX RICKARD OFFERING THE PROMOTER ALMOST ANY TERMS

Not withstanding reports to the contrary, Jess Willard does want to "come back." He has written Tex Rickard several letters on the subject, offering to do all manner of things just for another chance at Jack Dempsey. For instance, he would go in the mountains for six months or put himself under a course of Billy Muldoon's strenuous training; anything, in fact, to get into the best of condition. Strange to say, Willard has no great desire to become champion again. He simply feels that he did not do himself justice in that ring in Toledo on July 4 last, and wants to prove that, in proper condition, no man of Dempsey's weight and size can reduce him to the pulp he presented when the towel went up in ackonwledging his defeat.

Willard probably is honest in his desire to meet Dempsey again or he wouldn't write letters to Rickard asking him to arrange another match with his conqueror, but he might go about the matter in another way. He might, for instance, seek a match with Fred Fulton and use that as a stepping stone to a second meeting with Dempsey.

SPEAKER COMES NEAR HAULING DOWN A BET

BELL SOUNDS JUST AS HE IS ABOUT TO WAGER ON LONG SHOT

New Orleans, March 15.—Tris Speaker, the Cleveland manager, is off the individual betting system that prevails at the local race courses, and thereby hangs a bit of a yarn.

The Indians' boss rode out to Jefferson Park after Saturday's practice and tried to pick a few winners—a rather difficult task at any time and particularly so on the past Saturday, when all the favorites failed to get down in front.

Along about the sixth race "Spoke" hadn't cashed a bet. If he played 'em to win they ran second; to place they ran third—always one position further back than was necessary to cash. Then someone gave him Simpleton, a 20-to-1 shot. "Spoke" went shopping for odds but as Simpleton was a well-meant hoss, and hot, the price soon tumbled to 8 to 1. However, Speaker landed a "layer," as the bookies here are camouflaged, who was willing to lay 12 to 1 hurriedly. He made out his ticket and was just about to hand it over when the bell rang, sending the racers off.

"Too late," smiled the "layer." Tris then went on the lawn to see Simpleton canter down in front in record time, but he couldn't find it possible to lend his voice to that of the multitude, which yelled in glee when the long-shot passed the wire.

It was just like hitting one over the fence with the bases crowded and having a short-sighted umpire call "Foul," only he didn't get another chance to bump off that layer.

FORMER WIFE OF JACK DEMPSEY TO TESTIFY

RELATED STARTLING STORY WHICH SHE WILL REPEAT TO JURY

Los Angeles, Cal., March 15.—Maxine Wayne, former wife of Jack Dempsey, heavy weight pugilist, who appeared at the Federal Building here under the escort of a special agent of the Department of Justice, "related a startling story and will repeat it immediately to the Grand Jury," according to Gordon Dawson, assistant U. S. District Attorney.

Before being taken to the District Attorney's office, Mrs. Wayne said she was ready and willing to tell anything she knew about Jack Dempsey's alleged efforts to evade the draft.

Mrs. Wayne arrived here from Tijuana, where she was found by an agent of the Department of Justice.

GEERS, VETERAN DRIVER, STILL GOING STRONG

"POP" IS 70 YEARS OLD BUT REMAINS TOP OF THE PROFESSION

Advices from Billings Park, Memphis, are to the effect that the dean of reinsmen, "Pop" Geers, now in his seventieth year and with a career of nearly half a century on the harness turf behind him, has a very promising lot of horses for the 1920 Grand Circuit campaign. The silent Tennesseean was a star among reinsmen long before the advent of the present generation of racegoers; is one of the hardest workers among the drivers, has been involved in innumerable acidents, many of them of a serious nature, yet he demonstrated on more than one occasion last season that his hand had lost none of its cunning when it came to driving an artistic finish; losing nothing by comparison with the greatest of his younger rivals.

"Pop," who at one time was thought to be a specialist with aged horses and not a great colt trainer but who proved the contrary with such stars as the Harvester, Etawah, Sparkle Watts, Brusiloff and Molly Knight, has designs on the rich futurities for three-year-olds this season and the candidate of the veteran trainer is one which is liable to give the owners and trainers of other futurity candidates many anxious moments before the season is over. Dudette is the name of the rather frail looking filly and "Pop" has more than the usual amount of sentimental interest in the little filly on account of her breeding. Both her sire and dam made sensational campaigns in the Geers stable and each has to its credit several of the classics of the harness turff.

DETROIT POLICE AND FIREMEN ASK FOR AN INCREASE

LATTER REQUEST CITY COUNCIL TO SET MINIMUM SALARY AT $2,300

Detroit, March 15.—Disintegration of the police and fire departments such as obtains at present in the United States postal service is inevitable unless pay of firemen and policemen is increased above the minimum set in the department budgets and approved by the Mayor, members of the Council were told at a hearing Friday afternoon. A minimum salary of $2,300 instead of the $2,060 allowed was asked.

Four hundred firemen and policemen crowded into the Council chamber to attend the hearing. Even the minimum asked would scarcely meet the needs of the men, Robert J. Gallagher, president of the Metropolitan Club, said.

Gives Cost Table

"We have placed as an average rental the sum of $35 a month," he said. "Let me make the statement that since this budget was compiled many of the men have had their rents raised so that they are compelled to pay $45.

"For clothing and shoes for a family of five we have estimated $400, an avergae of $80 a month. Other items are: Life insurance $108; fire insurance, $3; medical service, $25; gas, at $2.50 a month, $30; electric light, at $2 month, $24; ice for summer months, $10. This totals in excess of $2,300 and includes nothing for charity, recreation or for any contingency that may arise and that would compel an expenditure.

"In six weeks the cost of living, according to Government statistics has increased 200 per cent. The value of the dollar now in comparison with its value in 1914 is only 33 1-3 per cent. Our men are not predatory, they do not wish to plunder the public treasury, but they do seek to obtain a wage sufficient to enable them to support their wives and children."

Many Vacancies

Mr. Gallagher mentioned that the police department is short 220 men while the fire department has 107 vacancies, due to the unattractive pay received by the men. He insisted that the men were loyal and had demonstrated their loyalty. He presented a bundle of petitions containing the names of 36,575 people who believed the men were entitled to better salaries.

The Council will take action on the budget next week after the hearings with departmental heads have been concluded.

Best Paid in World

New York, March 15.— Figures obtained here by Dr. James W. Inches, police commissioner, show that the raise to $2,060 a year approved by Mayor Couzens and the Council, makes Detroit's first class partolmen the highest paid metropolitan policemen in the world.

Five years after starting on the force, a Detroit policeman will have earned $2,490 more than a New York policeman.

It takes a New York policeman five years to become a first-class patrolman. He works three years at $1,450 a year; one year at $1,600; six months at $1,700 a year and six months more at $1,750 a year, making his total earnings for the five-year period $7,675.

A Detroit policeman works three months at $1,840 a year and nine months at $1,940, becoming a first-class patrolman and eligible for the $2,060 salary at the end of his first year. New York stands next to Detroit in salaries.

Dead Air and Disease.

Dr. Leonard Hill, whose experiments a few years ago proved to the world that it is not impure air but still, humid, dead air that induces disease, delivered recently a lecture on infant mortality before the Royal Society of Arts. In this he said that babies died from being too much clothed as well as from being improperly fed. They should not be kept too warm or too quiet, but should be allowed at times to be quite naked and should be played with just to give them exercise.

Dare to Act—When Right.

Most men are afraid of making mistakes. I like men who make mistakes, who have the dash, the energy, the warm blood in their veins, to make mistakes. Everything in life is more or less a gamble. Timidity never accomplished anything in this world. Faith is the mainspring of enterprise. Mistakes make the game interesting. They lift it above the dead level, stimulate imagination, and keep hope

Watches Made of Cannon.

War souvenirs in the shape of watches made from the steel of Belgian cannon which were in active service on the Belgian front since the beginning of the war in 1914 till October 29, 1917, are being manufactured in Switzerland by order of the king and queen of the Belgians.

The watches, which bear inset in gold on the cases the monogram "A E" of the Belgian sovereigns, are to be presented by King Albert and Queen Elizabeth to soldiers who have specially distinguished themselves and also to prize winners of military competitions.

Holds Receiver in Position.

Free use of both hands while telephoning is made possible by a wire device, lately invented, that holds the receiver in convenient operating position. The bracket is so constructed that it normally depresses the receiver hook. To release the latter a thumb-piece is pressed. The hook is drawn down and the bracket member moves in the opposite direction when one ceases telephoning. The device is convenient for both home and office use and specially in public telephone booths.

Value of Furs.

The value of the skins of our fur-bearing animals has increased enormously in recent years. A mink, once worth only 40 cents, is now valued at between $13 to $20, and a musk rat, which was once bought for 12 cents, is now bought for $5.50.

Put Character Above All.

One of the sayings of the late J. P. Morgan that will be remembered after his art collection's glories have been forgotten, was: "I will loan any amount of money to a man of character, but nothing to a man of bad repute, no matter what his security."

Poor Advice.

"Don't marry the first girl you fall in love with; wait until you've seen the rest," advises the Montgomery Advertiser. Yes, and by the time you've seen the rest someone will have carried off the one you were in love with.

Thomas Jefferson, according to William M. Curtis, one of his biographers, was devoid of a sense of humor. Says the latter: "He rarely told a story and seldom enjoyed one, and witticisms were wasted in his presence."

When a man applies for Life Insurance he is taking up the most important deal of his life, for, presumably, he will not be here when it is settled.

How important then that he select the best obtainable.

The record of the Sun Life of Canada for the past 49 years of its existence has been an unbroken march of progress, obtained through square dealing, and the past year has surpassed all others with its Assets of over ONE HUNDRED MILLION and Income of TWENTY-FIVE MILLIONS and Surplus, on Government standard, of over TEN MILLIONS. Where can you find its equal?

Is it not to your interest, therefore, to place your Life Insurance with the

TEMPLE SONGSTERS WILL GIVE CONCERT MAR. 22

FINE PROGRAM OF MUSIC IS PROMISED— MR. TOOMS TO PRESIDE

An announcement, which will be greeted with pleasure by music lovers in Peterborough, is that the Peterborough Temple songsters are preparing another huge concert to be staged in the Salvation Army Temple on March 22nd. The entire program is one that will appeal to all for its simplicity and pure music. The Temple Songsters have recently been strengthened by the addition of Miss Hilda Brown, a gifted musician, who was a prominent organist in Leeds, from where she has recently arrived.

Mr. T. Tooms, M. P. P., has kindly consented to act as chairman for the occasion and a very enjoyable time is promised to all who care to attend.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. R. J. Mills and children of Toronto have returned home after spending the week end with friends in the city.

Miss S. Johnson of Toronto spent the week end with Peterborough friends.

Mr. J. Smith of Hamilton has returned home after an extended visit with friends in the city.

Mr. Thos. Wood spent the week-end in Lindsay.

Mrs. Gordon Grahame of Brantford is visiting in the city the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Grieve, Brock street.

Mrs. E. C. S. Huycke is visiting with friends in Toronto.

Mr. E. H. Bartlett had a fairly good night last and his condition was slightly improved this morning.

OBITUARY

MR. JOHN LOCKHART

An old and highly respected resident of this city, in the person of Mr John Lockhart, passed peacefully away on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. A. E. Micks, 425 Stewart street. Deceased, who was 9? years of age, had been in good health until a few days ago, death coming as a result of old age.

Born in Ireland, when he spent all his early youth, Mr. Lockhart came to this country as a young man, making his home in Peterborough, where he has resided ever since, and where he was well known as a member of the firm of Lockhart and Chown. A devoted member of the George street Methodist church and one of the oldest trustees on the bard, he will be missed from the circle of friends who knew him.

Rev. A. J. Thomas officiated.

MRS. SUSAN SQUIRES

The death took place at 8 o'clock this morning of Susan Squires, beloved wife of James Squires, of Cobourg, at the age of 75 years..

Mrs. Squires had been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Flannery of 262 Dubing the first part of last week she ing the first part of uast week she complained of feeling ill, but it was not until Friday that any serious developments took place and on that day she contracted pneumonia. Her advanced age proved a serious handicap and she grew worse until the end came this morning. An unfortunate coincidence is that her husband is seriously ill with influenza in Cobourg at the present time and it is feared that the news may have a serious effect on the chances for his recovery.

She is survived by a husband, five daughters, Mrs. Gregory, Winnipeg Mrs. Lytle, Calgary, Mrs. Pearl, Toronto, Miss Marjorie at home; and two sons, William of Toronto and Victor, at home. The remains will be coneyed to Cobourg on the eight o'clock train tonight for interment.

JOHN MACFARLANE

John Macfarlane of Water steret passed away at 11:20 this morning, after an illness lasting a week. Mr Macfarlane was stricken down with pneumonia just a week ago today, and in spite of all that medical attention could do he passed away this morning.

Mr. Macfarlane was born in Lanark, but moved to Keene as a young man, and resided in the latter place for thirty years. In Keene he was well known and held in high esteem by his neighbors. Three years ago he moved to Peterborough and became associated with George street Methodist Church, of which he had been a prominent member ever since Although he never took a very active part in fraternal societies, he was a respected member of the I. O. F. and at different times held official positions in the lodge.

He is survived by a wife and four daughters: Laura, Amy and Marion, at home, and Lillian, residing in Toronto. There are also four brothers residing in the West, and one brother and two sisters in the Maritime Provinces.

The funeral will take place Wednesday. There will be a service at the house at 10 a.m. conducted by Rev. A. J. Thomas, pastor of George Street Church, and interment will be made at Keene in the afternoon, the remains being forwarded on the 2 p.m. train. The funeral is strictly private.

H. S. Johnston of Calgary has accepted a position as hydraulic engineer of the Nova Scotia Power Commission at Halifax.

A match or a cigarette stub was the cause of a fire at Lorriman's pool room in Chatham, which might have proved serious but for the prompt action of the firemen.

MOTHER LOVE LIKE THAT OF HEAVENLY FATHER

INTERESTING SERMON PREACHED BY REV. J. R. WEBB AT MURRAY STREET

The sermon at Murray Street Baptist Church last night was really the sequel to that of the previous week when Mr. Webb spoke on "The Closed Way to the Tree of Life."

"Eve, a Mother," the subject of last night's discourse, was a gospel presentation of the promise that "The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head."

As may be assumed, the old beaten track was not followed, but the coming of the Saviour, according to God's first promise, was held up as the only hope of either the individual or the world.

The pastor of Murray Street looks upon motherhood as the supreme agency by which Christ may be brought to the lost. He said: "From the days of Eve to those of Rizpah and from the days of Rizpah to the days of Monica and even to this day, these mothers of ours have a touch with the throne of God that makes it perilous for us to disregard them." He quoted Tolstoi, who said that in the presence of a mother we are not only in the company of that which is regal, but superhuman; that motherhood is not only a partnership with God, but that usually the mother has a preception of God which few others know. That in matters spiritual her instincts are more reliable than man's reasoned judgments.

Eve, in her fallen condition, had such absolute confidence in God and in a coming redemption that she actually thought when her own first child was in her arms, that the Redeemer had come.

Eve is not only a character of long ago. She lives today. By her faith, she teaches us to take God at His word, by her hope she sees possible restitution where most would see naught but irreparable havoc and by her love she follows the wanderer night and day breathing in her prayer the name of one of whom his father has despaired long ago.

The sermon was an earnest gospel appeal which used the mother as the human illustration of the boundless love of od and the human instrument by which the Divine Redeemer should come to lost men.

Joseph Schram was arrested in Dresden, charged with operating an illicit still, and his case will be heard today.

NOTED SINGING EVANGELISTS BEGIN SPECIAL SERVICES AT LOCAL TEMPLE

Col. and Mrs. Adby Will Work Under the Auspices of the Salvation Army for the Next Two Weeks—One of the Most Successful Salvationists Now Before Public.

An unusual opportunity is being accorded the people of Peterborough during the two weeks' revival services which are being held at the Salvation Army Temple to hear one who has had much prominence in the religious work of the Army both in Canada and in England, and whose experiences, stretching over more than a third of a century of continuous service, are some of the most interesting ever heard in Peterborough. Col. Adby, who is conducting the services, which commenced on Saturday night, is an old veteran in Salvation Army work. He has just returned from Newfoundland, where he had charge of all the work of the Army in that country.

This is not the Colonel's first visit to Peterborough. Eleven years ago, when he arrived in this country from England, he conducted revival services all through Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and on the return journey he spent some days in this city. Therefore, when he found that he had some time on his hands before taking up a new appointment, he elected to return to Peterborough and help the work of the Salvation Army here.

Col. Adby has had many different charges in this country during the past eleven years. His first permanent charge after his tour of the country was at St. John's, N. B. From there he went to Hamilton, and later to Toronto, where he accomplished much good work.

In England Col. Adby worked extensively in the cause of the Salvation Army. It was he who welcomed Dr. Torry and Mr. Alexander to Cardiff just previous to the great Welsh revival, and he was present in Wales during the revival fifteen years ago. Col. Adby, who has a beautiful tenor voice, is a great believer in the song service. During the life of the late General Booth he used to sing at the meetings held in the Salvation Army headquarters, Exeter Hall, London, and also in the provinces. He assisted in this way at two days meetings of the Salvation Army which brought the Army into prominence in the Old Country.

When asked as to his reception here, Col. Adby expressed himself as greatly pleased with the turnout for the opening service Saturday night, and felt confident that the two weeks in Peterborough would be well spent in the interests of the Army and help-ful to the local Salvationists and to all who cared to attend the meetings. At the services both Col. and Mrs. Adby lead the singing, which adds greatly to the interest and to the attendance, which on Saturday and yesterday was very large.

From here Col. Adby will go to Ottawa, where he will also conduct revival services, and from there he expects to take over a permanent charge, although he has no knowledge at present as to where his next station will be.

OVER THOUSAND DOLLARS FOR ORPHANS

Results of Tag Day Saturday are Most Gratifying—Increase Over Last Year.

The tag day results in aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage on Saturday exceeded all expectations. At all masses in St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday Father Phelan announced that the splendid sum of $1,041.35 had been raised. This represented a big increase on last year's results and is practically equal to the results achieved on any tag day held yet.

This is particularly gratifying as the inclement weather led to the belief that the collection this year would be smaller than last year.

In expressing his thanks yesterday to the givers, Father Phelan especially mentioned the non-Catholics whose contributions had been most generous. He also thanked the ladies who had so loyally worked all through the cold day to make the tag day a success. He referred to the assistance given to the cause by the young ladies of the Normal School, who had volunteered in large numbers to act as tag-sellers. In closing, Father Phelan drew attention to the fact that it was nearly always the same few who were instrumental in making these events successful and he urged all to share such burdens alike and remove the responsibility from the few loyal workers.

Women's Art Association's Musicale

The musical afternoon, under the auspices of the Women's Art Association, in the Conservatory studio last Saturday, may well be referred to as being in a class by itself. This, because of its refined originality. Both the program and decorative appointments, these later adhering closely to the emerald tints of St. Patrick, merited any number of verbal bouquets, by reason of their general excellence.

A charmingly arranged teatable in green and white, was such as to please the most exacting artist, presenting as it did, a picture of green leaves against a snow-white background, and laden with delicacies to tempt the appetite. The opening number by Messrs. Gliddon, Smith and Buck, a beautiful combined selection was a musical inspiration in itself, and rendered with the minute regard for technique that bespeaks perfection, this number put the audience in excellent mental tune for the treat thae was to follow. Mr. Maurice Park was heard to splendid advantage in a vocal selection: "There are birds in the valley." Mr. Park, already known to Peterborough audiences, interpreted this number in a fine, well-modulated voice, the beauty of which was not lost on his listeners.

Another singer, Mr. Walter Evans, created a pleasing impression when he sang with the clear expressive voice that is his own, that pretty Irish number: "A Little bit of Heaven;" "I hear you calling me," was sung by Mrs. Maurice Park, and this singer's exceptionally fine vocal power and depth of expression, was thoroughly appreciated.

There was also a piano solo, and violin selection, and it can only be said that both artists by their splendid effort contributed much to the pleasure of the afternoon.

A delightful tea, reflecting credit on the ladies in charge, concluded this most refreshing entertainment by local artists. Mrs. Goodwill and Mrs. Roy were the hostesses on this occasion, assisted by Mrs. McPherson, Miss Patterson, Mrs. Wightman, while the following program was arranged by Mrs. G. N. Gordon:

Piano, Violin, Cello Trio: Messrs. Gliddon, Smith, Buck.

Vocal. "I hear You Calling Me," Childs Marshall, Mrs. M. Park.

Piano: (A) "The Merry Merry Lark," Nevin; (b) "Valse in A Major," Schubert-List, Mrs. Porter.

Vocal: "A Little Bit of Heaven," Ball, Mr. Walter Evans.

Violin: "Paraphrase on a Bohemian Folk Song," Friel; Miss Harrington.

Vocal: "There are birds in the valley," Lyman, Mr. Maurice Park.

Miss Ida Sanderson, accompanist.

SPLENDID SERVICES

are people who do not hear the call as they once did, but they may have become calloused and are freezing to death spiritually, just as a man who is freezing to death physically feels warm and comfortable. Any call one hears and does not obey, in a short time, by refusing to obey it, one ceases to hear it at all.

The Church is ready to receive the penitent sinner. It is not perfect, it has its faults, but there are men and women in it who are praying Christians and whose hearts throb for the salvation of the people.

Not only is Jesus, the Holy Spirit and the Church ready to welcome the penitent, but "there is joy among the angels over one sinner that repenteth." "I believe," Mr. Millson said, "that if the angels joy over repentant sinners, then our departed dead in glory hear it. Many a son has promised his mother on her dying bed to meet her in heaven, and these pledges should be kept."

Everything has been done by God for us, even to His last great gift, Jesus. Anything else must be done by the individual who is responsible for the step.

FIND GOOD IN OTHERS AND MAKE THAT GOOD YOUR ALLY

"There is good and bad in every person and one of the practical problems of life is to discover the good in other people and make that good your ally and friend instead of provoking the evil in them and making it your enemy. You may have to pay a rather heavy price to achieve the former and avoid the latter; but any price that does not involve the sacrifice of principle or the loss of self-respect will pay big dividends on the investment. That is the kind of first mortgage a man can afford to give on his life."—Rev. James Rollins preaching in St. Andrew's church on "What Became of the Favorite Son."

DR. KAPP HAD PLANNED TO LAUNCH WAR OF REVENGE AGAINST ALLIES

Chancellor Bauer Causes Sensation by Making That Announcement at Meeting of Assembly—Serious Fighting With Many Casualties is Reported From Various Parts of Germany.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berne, March 19. — Chancellor Bauer caused a sensation at yesterday's sitting of the German National Assembly at Stuttgart when he revealed the conditions presented to the Government by Dr. Wolfgang Kapp and Gen. Von Luettwitz before they entered Berlin last Saturday morning.

"They wished to prepare for a war of revenge, and plunge country into another cataclysm," cried the Chancellor.

"Pitiless punishment must come to these offenders, their fortunes must be seized and they must be tried before the Supreme Court at Leipsic," he said.

Phillip Scheidemann, leader of the Majority Socialists; Herr Burlage, of the Centre Party; Herr Kron, of German Nationalists, and Herr Becker, of the People's Party, are unanimous in their condemnation of the attempted revolution, according to advices received here.

Assembly Meets Sunday.

Coblenz, March 19.—The Ebert Government will return from Stuttgart to Berlin on Saturday, it is learned. The National Assembly and Prussian diet have been convoked to meet in Berlin on Sunday.

Twenty Persons Killed.

Twenty persons were killed when General Von Luettwitz's troops fired into a crowd as the soldiers were leaving Berlin yesterday afternoon, according to [illegible] advices received here. Troops of the Ebert Government are now guarding the city, and the advices which state that a general Communist outbreak is still threatening. Information direct from Berlin is that the Independent Socialists have decided to continue on strike. Food conditions are reported serious as no trains have come into Berlin for five days.

Fighting at Leipsic.

Stuttgart, March 19.—Fifty persons were killed in most violent fighting at Leipsic, it is reported. Workmen, in their clash with troops, threw up barracades, dug trenches and fought almost organized warfare. Mines were exploded near the railway station.

Germany Is Rebellious.

London, March 19.—All Germany with the exception of the southern states, is rebellious and Berlin is a "barrel of gun powder which may be ignited at any time," says a Berlin despatch to the Exchange Telegraphic correspondent at Berlin yesterday. Workmen are especially provoked at action of Von Kapp's troops in turning their machine guns on the crowds as they left Berlin.

No Cause For Alarm.

The Hague, March 19.—The Handelsblad takes the view that no one should be frightened by the dispatches, announcing that Soviet republics have been proclaimed here and there in Germany. These proclamations, says the paper, are only the work of troops and armed laborers, supported by army deserters whose political convictions "depend largely on a couple of hundred marks and a piece of bacon."

"They occupy the town hall, chase out the trembling burgomaster, install themselves comfortably behind a green table and proclaim a Soviet republic," the newspaper adds. "This is only a matter of a few minutes, but to chase the whole Government away would take longer."

SOLDIERS JUSTIFIED IN THEIR COMPLAINTS

COMMISSION INVESTIGATING CONDITION AT KAPUSKASING CAMP SEND FINDING

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, March 19.—The commission which investigated the Kapuskasing camp finds that many of the soldiers' grievances were justified and recommends that the soldiers be given the privilege of staying or leaving and that compensation be given. Speedy action is urged in closing up the organization as it exists at present.

J. H. BURNHAM ASKED TO RUN AS INDEPENDENT

It is reported that Mr. Burnham, M.P., has been approached to stand as an Independent at the coming general election in order that Liberal protectionists and others now Conservative may endorse more freely the independent stand which he has taken in Parliament. It is not stated what reply the member has given to these representations.

SOLDIERS AND MINERS IN DEADLY COMBAT

FIGHTING IS REPORTED IN ALL THICKLY POPULATED GERMAN CENTRES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 19.—Hundreds of persons have been killed in the mining districts of Germany in collisions between the miners and troops, it is declared in reports from Germany received at Copenhagen, the Central News correspondent says. Telegrams received from big towns in Germany, the message states, show that fighting is proceeding in nearly all thickly populated centres where soldiers and workers are opposed.

FIVE LIVES LOST IN TENEMENT HOUSE FIRE

MOTHER, THREE CHILDREN AND RELATIVE PERISH AT ST. JOHN'S, QUEBEC

(Canadian Press Despatch)

St. John's, Que., March 19.— Five lives were lost in a fire which destroyed the residence of Phillippe Lariviere, 34 Queen street, St. John's, Que., last night. The victims are Mrs. Philippe Lariviere, aged 29; Salin Bessette, her brother-in-law, aged 30, and three Lariviere children. The house was a double two -story tenement and the fire started in the sleeping quarters of the Lariviere house, presumably by the explosion of an oil lamp attached to the wall. Mr. Lariviere, who had arrived home a short time before and retired, was awakened and seizing one child, he jumped from the window, but as he jumped he dropped the child and it fell back into the blazing room.

OBJECT TO DECISION OF HAMILTON MAGISTRATE

RETURNED SOLDIERS WILL HOLD A MASS MEETING TO FORMULATE PROTEST

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Hamilton, March 19.—Returned soldiers have called a mass meeting for Saturday night at the market square to protest against the decision of Magistrate Jelf's releasing a colored man charged with assault on a fourteen-year-old girl.

ANOTHER ELECTION IN SOUTH AFRICA NEEDED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 19.—Discussing the South African elections, Manchester Guardian says there must either be a new election shortly, or General Smuts must be kept in office by the Hertzogites or Laborites, probably by the latter, who although extremists, have been more in sympathy with Smuts than the other parties have.

COMRADE O'FLYNN OF BELLEVILLE IS UNANIMOUSLY ELECTED HEAD OF G.W.V.A.

All Other Nominees for the Provincial Presidency Withdrew in His Favor—Sudbury Chose as Meeting Place for Next Year—Amendment, to Constitution Opening Door of Membership to the Organization Endorsed by Large Majority

The Ontario Convention of the G. W. V. A. at the morning session today decided by a vote of 18195 to 5386 in favor of amending the constitution of the Association so as to admit to membership any persons who have served in the military forces of Great Britain or her Allies during the Great War whether that service was in Canada, England or France. The only opposition to this action was on account of the fact that such a clause would permit some 17,000 conscripts who never left Canada to join the Association and enjoy the same privileges as the veterans.

The most important business which came before the morning session of the Ontario Convention of the War Veterans was the election of officers. Comrade T. O'Flynn, of Belleville, one of the pioneers of the organization, was unanimously elected president, all other candidates withdrawing in his favor. The session was prolonged by the postponement of the election of officers from 10 a.m. until 11 a.m., and lasted until well into the afternoon.

Election of Officers

Nominations for president were called first and were as follows. T. O'Flynn, Belleville; Comrades Wilson, central Toronto, C. E. Jeakins, Brantford, Hossack, Westboro, McKessock, Sudbury.

Comrade Jeakins said that while he appreciated the honor, he decided to withdraw. Comrades Hossack and McKessock followed suit. Comrade Wilson then retired and T. O'Flynn, Belleville, was unanimously elected President of the Association.

Comrade O'Flynn

President-elect O'Flynn stated that he sincerely appreciated the honor of being elected as president of the Provincial Command and he only hoped that at the close of the year the delegates would be satisfied. It was the "back-door" talk which harmed the organization. They should respect the other fellows' views. In conclusion, he hoped that the policy of the Great War Veterans would lead to a freer and better Canada.

Nominations for 1st. Vice-Pres.

Comrades Harrison, Windsor, J. B. Allen, Cobalt, Shute, Brantford, Appleyard, Woodstock, Armstrong, Mount Dennis and J. Hossack, Westboro, were nominated for the vice-presidency.

Comrades Allen, Appleyard and Armstrong withdrew, leaving Comrades, J. Shute, J. Hossack and R. Harrison in the field. Comrade R. Harrison of Windsor was declared elected.

Other Officers Chosen.

For representative of the Ontario Command on the Dominion Executive, the election went to Comrade C. E. Jeakins, of Brantford. The election to this office was by a per capita vote.

The lowest man, Peart, was here ruled out, and the delegates balloted again on Jeakins and Wilson, who secured the highest votes of the three nominees.

The second ballot resulted in 12705 votes for Comrade Jeakins and 9,747 for Comrade Wilson, who wash declared elected, amid quite an ovation.

Secretary-Treasurer

The Secretary-Treasurer is appointed by the Command's Executive.

Comrade Smeade of Hamilton mover of the resolution, briefly stated that it was against the interests of the Association to discriminate against the conscript or man who never left Canada.

Comrade Ambrose, Hamilton, seconder of the resolution, claimed that there were no less than 18 organizations opposing the G. W. V. A. in Hamilton. Many were willing to join the Association but were prevented from doing so by the constitution.

Comrade Warburton, Kingston, wanted to make sure that this did not include munition workers and the mover replied that he was willing to make any alteration in his resolution to prevent that.

Comrade Peart didn't mind admitting everyone into the Association who had left Canada, but he objected to the 17,000 conscripts who were never across the sea, joining the G. W. V. A. He claimed that by service in France a conscript redeemed himself and was entitled to join the Association.

Comrade Marshall of Riverdale stated that his branch would not support the admittance of conscripts who remained in Canada. He moved an amendment that the result of the Ontario referendum on the membership question be endorsed by this convention and that it be supported at the Dominon Convention.

Comrade M. M. Hood, Kingston, opposed the amendment. He challenged the referendum on its phraseology, which was not clear to the vote. He claimed that a Greek or Italian who was in the army of his country 20 years ago could join the Association, according to the reading of the referendum.

Comrade Hope favored the admission of all volunteers into the Association, but he was "dead against" the inclusion of the man who was forced all the way from Canada to England. He thought there was much injustice in the present system of membership.

Comrade Weatherhead, of Welland, referred to the soldiers who guarded the canal. It was a vital point in his branch and the removal of the ban to these men would increase the membership of his branch 200 per cent. Many of those men guarded the canal because they were physically unfit for anything else.

Comrade Haight of Toronto thought that the men who were conscripted and never left Canada would be better serving their country in jail than in the army and he didn't want them in the Association.

The question of the "open door" came up for discussion at 10 o'clock

VETERANS CONDEMN ACTION OF McGILL UNIVERSITY IN ENGAGING A GERMAN

Number of Resolutions Were Discussed at Session of Convention This Morning.

From nine o'clock until ten and during the period of waiting while the results of the balloting were being counted numerous resolutions were brought before the convention of the G.W.V.A. today for consideration and endorsation prior to being presented to the Dominion convention next week. Of these one of the most important dealt with was the Board of Commerce and was worded to the effect that this convention goes on record in support of the Board of Commerce in its earnest efforts to combat the high cost of living and expresses the hope that the existence of the Board will continue, and that its efforts will be renewed with [illegible] vigor. Carried. Other resolutions were as follows:

"That this convention recommends to the Dominion Command that the president of the Dominion and Provincial Commands shall receive remuneration for their services provided that they devote their whole time to the work of the command." Carried.

"That this convention express great indignation at the action of the Board of Directors of the McGill University in employing a professor of German nationality and in permitting the resignation of Dr. Elder, a returned war veteran, to take effect." Carried.

"That the decision of this convention shall be unitedly supported by the Ontario delegates to the Dominion convention, where thought advisable." Carried.

"That a tax be levied by the Government on all unearned increment." Carried.

"That the regulations of the Soldiers' Settlement Board be so amended so as to permit applicants taking out small holdings of 5 acres and under for the purpose of market gardening, fruit growing and chicken raising under the same conditions as in large holdings." Carried.

"Recommending that a section be added to the constitution so that any branch with one year's areas of per capita tax be suspended until such areas are paid." Carried.

"That the pensions awarded to children of pensioners should be continued until the age of 21 in case of a boy and 18 in case of a girl where it is the desire of the parents to keep such children at school for high education." Carried.

"That recommendation be made to the Dominion convention for the establishment of juvenile branches and the introduction of a suitable badge." Carried.

"That soldier students be permitted to give their own promissory note as security for a loan up to $500 provided that such a note is endorsed by two reputable citizens and in case the student cannot provide that chattel mortgage as required in the re-establishment plans." Carried.

"That a member of the rank and file be appointed to the Board of Pensions." Carried.

"That the Soldiers' Settlement Board be petitioned to issue agreements, receipts and full particulars in connection with all payments with reference to land settlement." Carried.

At the per capita vote on "the open door" question, Peterborough delegates voted against any amendment to the constitution to permit the entry into the association of men who had not seen service overseas.

Transportation Committee.

On motion of Comrades Pugsley and Cole, the incoming executive wer instructed to appoint a transportation committee for the next convention.

Must Get Just Dues.

The convention resolved to agitate for the appointment of a permanent Canadian Veterinary Corps.

As returned men are not getting their just dues, according to the convention's conclusions, it was decided to represent to the Dominion Command's convention the advisability of an organic union of all veterans' organisations so as to present a united front to the Government when pressing for just consideration of what is coming to the veterans.

Patriotic Funds.

The convention decided to instruct all G. W. V. A. branches to insist on representation on Patriotic Fund committees.

Cannot Be Altered.

The convention was unanimous that there be filed a resolution that the Ontario Command's adoption of the re-establishment scheme spreads policy which cannot be altered or confined.

Per Capita Tax 40c.

The ways and means committee reported the estimated expenditure by the Ontario Command from January 1 to December 1, 1920, to be $20,000. To meet this expenditure the committee moved that the per capita tax be increased from 10c to 50c.

An amendment to fix the per capita tax at 40 cents, carried.

Question of Badges

Pay At Par

A resolution was carried that the Dominion Command request the Dominion Government to negotiate with the American Government to arrange, if possible, that pension cheques of Canadian Soldiers in the States be payable at par.

VETERANS URGE RESTRICTION OF CANADIAN TIMBER TO STATES

Convention Also Moves for Increased Trade Within Empire and Development of Canadian Industry—Advocates Government Aid to Put Transportation of Canadian Coal on Equal Competitive Footing With American Product.

Yesterday afternoon's session of the Ontario G. W. V. A. convention, proved four hours of intensive bombardment by resolutions— most of them forwarded by local branches, for action, and some of public import generally.

For instance, the Convention unanimously adopted a resolution by Comrades Haight and McNamara, that there be forwarded to the Dominion Government the advisability of encouraging the production of Canadian mined coal by county, reduced freight rates, as by other means so as to enable Canadian miners to overcome the disadvantage of longer hauls, and to meet on even terms American competition.

Such action, as suggested above, it was pointed out, would tend to make Canada independent of the whims of American legislation or labor conditions, adverse to this country's fuel needs.

Comrade Haight asked the united support of this resolution in encouragement of Canadian railways, as a necessary military measure, and a move to the advantage of both ex-soldiers and citizens in general.

After Hearst

As might be expected, the Convention did not let opportunity pass to get after W. Randolph Hearst and his anti-British publications, the circulation of which, in Canada, was banned during the war, and should be prohibited again, owing to their propaganda of hatred to Britain and of all things British.

In this connection, the Convention adopted with clapping of hands. A resolution from the Brantford branch that the G. W. V. A. earnestly protest against the W. Randolph Hearst American newspapers being allowed access to Canada; and further that such action be taken as will cut off the supply of Canadian newsprint to any company directly or indirectly owned or controlled by Hearst interests. Also that a copy of this resolutin be forwarded to the Secretary of State for Canada for necessary action. Then a resolution from Niagara Falls asked that the ban on the Hearst publications, recently lifted, be again put into force. This resolution carried amid cheers.

An Economic Measure

That in view of the appalling high price of butter, and in view also of the fact that oleomargarine is a very good substitute for butter, and also having in mind the tremendous jump in the price of butter, which will, undoubtedly occur if the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine is prohibited, be it resolved that this Convention protest against any prohibition of the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine.

Juvenile Courts

The convention will draw the attention of the Ontario Government to the desirability of establishing juvenile courts where they do not already exist.

Anglicize Aliens

The delegates also approved of the action of the Manitoba Government in legislating for the education of resident foreigners in the English language.

Voting Rights.

The Ontario Government will be memorialized to amend the municipal act to give returned soldiers the same right to vote at municipal elections as at Dominion and Provincial electons.

It was also decided to memorialize the Ontario Government that returned soldiers and all citizens be allowed the privilege, without property qualifications, of election for Mayor, Reeve and Councillors.

Comrade Evans of Galt said, all civilized countries are eliminating "property qualifications for municipal office. Speaking for citizens generally, he could see no reason why the qualification clause in the municipal act should exist.

Comrade Payne was opposed to above action on the ground that it would, in effect, permit undesirable men to attain a voice in public expenditures—men with no interests at take and who therefore might not hesitate to engage in reckless expenditures, the burden of which would have to be shouldered by ratepayers.

A motion that the Government tax all monies sent from Canada to Germany, Austria and Bulgaria to the extent of fifty per cent of value of such monies, was lost.

Representation was made that postal regulations cover this proposition. A proposition that rehabilitation plans in the re-establishment scheme shall provide for the extension of vocational training to include all lines of business and industry, and up to the highest degree of professional education—open to all classes of ex-service men—was sent to the Dominion Command's Convention.

Fallen Comrades

A resolution to take steps to preserve the memory of fallen comrades by the erection of a "Hall of Fame," to be built by public subscriptions in some one city designated by the Convention, was lost.

The Housing Scheme

The Housing Committee reported that as housing is one of the best platforms in the G. W. V. A.'s platform for re-establishment, that this Convention leave the question of housing over until the re-establishment scheme is definitely decided. The second clause of this report recommended that any gratuity granted may be applied to payment on houses already built and also to the renewal of mortgages on ex-soldiers houses.

It was here pointed out that the Convention yesterday deleted the questionnaire clause in the re-establishment plan, which provided for the application of the principles embodied in the second clause of the committee's report; and in view of this fact, Comrade R. Harrison, of Windsor moved that the report go back to the committee. This carried.

Health Policy

As the health of a large number of Canadians engaged in industries falls below the class or standard, as infant mortality in the province is greater than it should be, as tuberculosis, cancer, influenza and other diseases are prevalent, venerial complaints not receiving the attention they should, it was concluded to memorialize the Provincial and Dominion Governments to recognize the need of an adequate health policy.

Conserve Resources

The Convention took exception to, according to latest reports, eighty-five per cent of Canadian timber finding its way to the United States, where it was selfishly used in conservation of their own timber, resulting in high-level prices here. It was therefore, resolved to protest against such waste to Canada of her own natural resources, and to petition the Government to place an embargo on as prohibitive charges against timber exports. Also to ask that greater efforts be made in the direction of re-forestation to foster the growth of young timber.

Medical Treatment

It was also resolved to apply for the extension of free medical treatment of ex-service men to three years and that competent medicine practitioners be selected by the soldiers needing treatment.

Immigration vs. Emigration.

A brief debate on the question that something should be done to check the tide of emigration to the United States and to induce Canadians in the United States to return to Canada. Comrade Foster, of London, advocated inaugurating a propaganda to demonstrate the advantages of living and employment conditions in Canada, as an inducement to ex-soldiers and ex-sailors within the Empire to settle in Canada.

No definite action resulted.

Comrades Smeade of Hamilton and McGill of Brantford, moved that all unnaturalized aliens be examined by a properly constituted court to see if they are desirable or not for citizenship. Should such persons be pronounced desirable, and if they be prepared to assume all the responsibilities of Canadian citizenship—military and otherwise—then their naturalization should be accepted. But all who are found to be undesirable should be deported to whence they came. This carried.

A motion that Germans, Austrians,

AMERICA AND ARMENIA.

MEANWHILE we note, says the Westminster Gazette, that a hundred American bishops have sent a message to the Archbishop of Canterbury, in which they say that, "any compromise with Turks will be condonation of crime, and will outrage conscience of Christendom." The bishops "appeal to people of Great Britain to prevent the perpetration of a fresh act of injustice against martyr Armenia." It is suggested with all respect that the bishops should also address an appeal to the American people. The Americans played their part in the war, and it is for them to play their part in the making of peace. To the refusal of America to accept the mandate for Armenia much of the difficulty of the present situation is due. The Archbishop of Canterbury quite properly replies: 'We have counted on America's co-operation in this matter, and hope we may feel assured that she will bear her part in the protection of oppressed Eastern nationalities." There is no part of the peace work in which American aid and American sentiment could be more helpfully employed.

THE CRAFTY TURK.

THE SUPREME COUNCIL goes forward with its "provisional decisions" as regards Turkey, while the Turks under Mustapha Kemel massacre Armenians in Cilicia. The Rev. Harold Buxton, who has arrived in England after some months in Cilicia as agent of the Lord Mayor's Fund, warns the people that there are in the plains of Cilicia between 40,000 and 50,000 refugees whose lives are in jeopardy unles sthe Allies strengthen their forces. The saving of these people is an imperative duty upon the Supreme Council, and it is not to be accomplished by concessions to the Turks at Constantinople. The Turk has been encouraged to believe that he can better his future position in Europe if he stops the massacres. May he not also believe that even better terms can be obtained if he holds a greater number of Armenians at his mercy? The Allies have, in fact, left the impression that they can be blackmailed, and the Turk is fairly certain to act on that belief.

REALLY A BOGEY.

AN APPEAL IS signed by Sir Rider Haggard, Mr Rudyard Kipling, and Lord Sydenham, for funds to fight Bolshevism in England. It would be interesting to know what exactly it is that this new group think they are going to fight against. The only definition of Bolshevism they give is that it is "the reverse of all that mankind has built up of good by nearly two thousand years of effort. It is the Sermon on the Mount writ backward." The British workman being, as they say, "sound and upright," it would scarcely seem necessary to fight against so obvious a hobgoblin. But their campaign will at least have the merit that its pamphlets will possibly be better done than others we have read. Sir Rider Haggard and Mr. Kipling are writers of imagination, and no doubt they will conjure out of the vasty deep spectres that will haunt Mayfair and Belgravia, and may even amuse East London. If they really want to fight Bolshevism they may even go so far as to preach a more startling creed. They would need to go no further than that same Sermon on the Mount.

MODERN "MIRACLES."

IT IS OFTEN SAID that the age of miracles is far behind us, and that now we are under the reign of law. But a story comes from New Orleans of a man who is making the blind to see and the lame to walk and who is kept busy night and day by the demands upon him. The man's name is John Cudney, and he is a humble kindling peddler living in a ramshackle houseboat on the Mississippi. The press was so great on an occasion described in the despatch that twenty-five policemen were assigned to maintain order along the river bank, and on a rumor that the healer was about to appear, the rush was so strong that five of the guards were borne into the river. Fortunately all were rescued. The report adds that Cudney worked all night and retired only at dawn when threatened with physical collapse. He takes no money for his services and prescribes no medicines. Therefore the authorities are unable to interfere with him.

But why should the authorities seek to interfere with him? asks the Woodstock Sentinel-Review. If he really possesses the power of healing, should he not be encourage to exercise it, even if he refuses to accept pay for his work? And in the face of the evidence offered can it be said in an off-hand manner that he does not posses sthe power of healing? If human evidence is at al reliable, men and women have arisen in all ages possessing such power. There has been a great deal of fraud, of course, and a great deal of failure; but after liberal allowance has been made for both fraud and failure, something remains which cannot be so easily disposed of. As a matter of fact, we have it on the authority of the late Professor Osler that faith-healing plays an important part in the success of all physicians. It may be faith in the man or faith in his medicine. And the same would apply outside hte medical profession. Faith in the relics of a saint, genuine or not, faith in the healing waters of a holy well, faith in John Cudney, would be quite as efficacious as faith in a doctor or his medicine. Modern scientists recognize the reality of faith-healing, though they restrict it to certain classes of ailments, and they do not recognize the results as miracles, but as the outcome of the working of natural law.

CANADA'S NAVY.

JUDGING BY the appearance of things at Ottawa, both parties are somewhat disposed to "mark time" on the question of Canada's future naval policy. If anything is done this session it will likely be of a tentative character, preliminary to a definite plan to be adopted when the outlook is more certain, says the Guelph Herald.

The general view seems to be that until naval experts have agreed, in the light of war experience, as to what will constitute the most effective naval agency of the future, until the question as to whether the United States is to enter or hold aloof from the League of Nations is decided (a matter which may have a decided effect upon the futre of armaments), and, finally, until the coming Imperial Conference clearly determines a number of inter-Imperial problems, involving the question of defnce, it would not be wise for Canada to launch upon any particular line of naval effort.

PUNCTUALITY AS A VIRTUE.

(Orillia Packet.)

THE DECADENT manners of the time, in Canada at least—might not one even say decadent morals?—are in nothing more evident than in the common lack of punctuality. If Royalty, or other people of quality or high station from the Old Country, happen to be touring the Dominion, they invarialy set an example of rigid adherence to time arrangements, but the lesson appears to be quite lost on others. The moral as well as the ethical, obligation, not to break faith, and in breaking faith rob others of time which may be valuable, and in any case is their own, ought to be as self-evident as the obligation to keep one's hands out of one's neighbor's pocket or one's neighbor's till.

FRANCHISE FOR THE INDIANS.

THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT, it seems, has finally decided to do something to establish the Indians as citizens of the country, and legislation to that effect has been introduced at Ottawa. The terms of the bill are drastic, and if the measure passes, as it probably will, all the old-time distinctions between Indians and white men will disappear. The most important clause in the bill is as follows:

> "On the report of the Superintendent-General that any Indian, male or female, over the age of twenty-one years, is fit for enfranchisement, the Governor-in-Council may by order enfranchise such Indians, and from the date of such order the provisions of the Indian Act and of any other Act or law making any distinction between the legal rights, privileges, disabilities and liabilities of Indians and those of His Majesty's other subjects, shall cease to apply to such Indian or to his or her minor unmarried children, or, in the case of a married male Indian, to the wife of such Indian, and every such Indian and child and wife shall thereafter have, possess and enjoy all the legal powers, rights and privileges of His Majesty's other subjects and shall no longer be deemed to be Indians within the meaning of any laws relating to Indians."
>
> An adult Indian enfranchised can choose his old Indian name or any other by which he wishes thereafter to be known. If he holds any land on a reserve, letters patent will be issued to him for that land, provided that he pay to the funds of the band such amount per acre as the Superintendent-General considers to be the value of the common interests of the band in such land. Such payment shall be a charge against he share of such Indian in the funds of the band.
> Upon enfranchisement each Indian will be paid his or her share of the funds to the credit of the band, including an amount determined by the Superintendent-General as to his share of the value of the common interests of the band in the interest of the reserve, or share of the principal of the annuities of the band, capitalized at 5 per cent., out of the moines provide by Parliament or otherwise available for the purpose. Non-treaty Indians and Indians not belonging to the band also get letters patent to land in a reserve, provided they pay to the credit of the band the value of the common interest of the band in such land. When the letters patent are issued such Indians cease to have claims against any common property or funds of the band.

It would appear that the franchise, with the conditions which it entails, is not to be thrust upon all Indians indiscriminately, but that the recipients of this administrative favor are to be allowed self-determination in the matter. This provision will meet with the approval of those members of the race who are opposed to any change in their present status. There are such members in the reservation at Chemong, as was shown some time ago by communications from them appearing in the local press. They took the ground that they had been wards of the Government too long, that they had been so kept down for years, that they were not in a position to enter into competition with the white man in the struggle for existence.

It seems, from the bill now before Parliament, that any Indian who accepts the franchise thereby forfeits anything in the way of special consideration which he has hitherto received from the State. This is exactly as the Indian who seeks the rights of good citizenship would have it.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, Roman emperor, surnamed the philosopher, was born in 121 A.D. He died in 180 A.D. His reign began in 161. Scholar and philosopher, he was deeply interested in Greek art and literature. His birthname was M. Anninus Verus, but he had been adopted by his uncle, the Emperor Antoninus, thus taking the new name of Marcus Aurelius Antoninus. The bent of his mind towards Stoic principles seems to have been fostered most by Julius Rusticus, to whom he owed the reading of Epicecus. He was a successful warrior, but the influence of his humanitarian views and his philosophy touched event the gladiatorial shows and ameliorated the condition of slaves. He died at Vienna on this date in 180. In the Palazza Colonna in Rome stands a fine monument to his memory, but his greatest monument are his twelve books that he wrote. They are the jottings of the lontly reflections on the moments snatched from rest or action during his campaigns

TONIGHT IS CLOSE OF SERVICES AT GEORGE STREET

REV. W. E. MILLSON WINDS UP SUCCESSFUL CAMPAIGN OF TWO WEEKS.

The attendance at George Street Church last night was the largest of any of the week-night services since the campaign commenced, the body of the church being well filled. A large number of those present were young people and several decisions were made for Christ.

Mr. Willson's text last night was taken from Rom. 1:16, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." However much Paul may have been responsible for establishing the church to which afterwards wrote his letter to the Romans, if we read his letter we will be immediately convinced that a number of the members of this church did not show up very well. There were many things that would cause one to be discouraged. Mr. Millson said he has seen many discouraged preachers in his time, and many who sometimes wondered if it was really worth while. But he has never seen a preacher who had as much reason to think of failure on the part of his people as had Paul. In the face of it all, however, Paul cries out: "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ." He wasn't ashamed to declare his allegiance nor his faith even amidst all the criticism, slurs, sneers and taunts.

"I want to say with all the positiveness of my nature," said Mr. Millson, "that I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ. I am not ashamed because of what I know He has done for me, because of what I know He has done for others and because of what I know He can do for you."

By the use of several forceful illustrations Mr. Millson told his audience why he was not ashamed of the gospel because of what it has done for him.

In dealing with the second phase—what it has done for others—the speaker pointed out that there are a lot of people who, apparently, have not gotten along very far in religion. They are failures in religion as well as in other things. When setting out for an ideal, however, why look at the failures. Set us rather think of those who have made a success of religion. We all know of people who have made a positive success of their religion.

"Because of what I know it has done for me and for others," said Mr. Millson, "I am not ashamed to advocate this religion for my brother out of Christ. Your relationship to God is the most vital issue of your whole life. The longer you put it off, the harder it will be to make good. If you wait until you are perfectly sure in your own heart that you will make a success of religion, you will never find the kingdom. Do you believe in the religion of Jesus Christ? The greatest thing for you to do is to surrender your life to Jesus."

Tonight is the last night of series five. In a campaign of this nature the last night is oftentimes the most crucial service of all. It is anticipated that a large gathering of earnest people will rally to this service. These services are not for George Street people only. Everyone is welcome. Mr. Millson will sing and speak tonight.

U. S. Pacific and Atlantic fleets will met off the Pacific Coast of Panama next January in joint manoeuvres.

ONTARIO'S PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM

(By Rob Roy in Farmer's Sun.)

What is education? Some claim it is imparting a craving and desire for knowledge. Others that a true education is fitting the boy or girl for the duties of life. Some emphasize the cultural, others the utilitarian, but all seem to unite at the present time n denouncng our educational system for rural depopulation, high cost of living and all the other evils from which we are suffering.

The friends of the Government will be unanimous in approving of the proposed survey by the Massey Foundation being turned down. Any survey that is to be made, the people themselves, through the Government, want to make at their own expense. The personnel of the proposed commisson did not enthuse the people along the concession lines. There is no doubt that our educational sytem has stripped the farms of the young men. For half a century the ideal of all teachers and officers, from the Minister of Education down to the teacher in the kindergarten, has been that a boy was a dullard and a failure if he became a farmer, a laborer or mechanic. Their ideal of a clever boy ws one that would get into the High School, then the University and enter one of the so-called learned profession. To them as preached, no matter how stupid, a lawyer or doctor, however inefficient was away above a farmer, no matter how clever or prognastic. Our schools got the children at a tender age, their first taste of the great world. For years it saturated them with the ideal, wear the blue shirt and belong to the great producing army—you are a failure. Struggle into Hgh school or University, wear the white shirt, be a member of some profession— you are a success, no matter how poor a professional man you should be.

The scarcity and high price of food is wakening up the people with a vengeance. Everybody is shoutng form the husetops. "We must have more people on the land," and each one is urging the "back to the land" movement on somebody else.

What is the ideal of the present day? Never did any age worship any God more devoutly than does the present generation worship money. Preachers, doctors, lawyers are leaving their professions to gamble in real etate, stocks or something where there is a chance to make a fortune. Farming offers a fair compensation to an industrious person, but no chance to become rich, as people today consider riches. The mad whirl of business in cities leaves many terrible shipwrecks, but youth does not look on them. They see the possibilities of great fortunes and are lured on by this wil o' the wisp.

While the ideal of the age is securing immense wealth and figuring large among our captains of industry in the cities, our ambitious, bright boys and girls will go to the cities in increasing number. The fact that the boy from the concession line almost always outstrip the city boy in the race, gives the rural boy a greater zest for the fight. For a quarter of a century our different governments have been trying to keep us on the farms, travelling dairies, Farmers' Institutes, stock-judging classes, classes on household science, calf clubs have been started. Our rural mail routes were loaded down with tons of bulletins that were seldom read. What has been the result? Rush from country to city becoming greater every year. The young people apparently flying in terror from the host of educators let loose on them.

During the depression of 1913-14 there was a real movement back to the land. Factories were closed, idle men by the thousands walked the city streets. With actual want facing them, the modest wages on the farm looked good to them in comparison.

This is a selfish age. And it is only when the farm offers as great and greater financial returns than the cities that our young people will stay on the farms and a real back to the land movement arises.

Some talk of improving the country church so as to keep people on the farms. How to improve the churches when every preacher in the country is ready to fly to a city church whenever he gets a chance is hard to see. No other institution is so completely controlled by the money power today as are the different church organizations. The real Church, the Church invisible, Christ's spirit in the heart of men can never be controlled by money, but the visible can and is. The efforts put forth by the different organizations are quite futile.

The present drift citiwards will no dubt correct itself in time. The cost of food will increase to the breaking point. But before the people are driven by actual hunger back to the land to produce food for themselves, there will be serious troubles in the large industrial centres.

There never was a time when wise, sane legislation was so urgently needed, when the people needed a new Moses to lead them into new and safe paths.

The people are ready to give Mr. Drury a chance. They are willing to pardon mistakes if he only does something. But they are terribly disappointed that apparently he has no idea of leadership on the matter of education. He lamely promises to call the inspectors together and ask them for a policy. The inspectors are the servants of the people, sometimes rather indifferent ones. The people are waiting for leadership, not from the outside but from their own Government.

CLEANLINESS IS HEALTH

By the use of Gillett's Lye, house cleaning is made a pleasure instead of a drudgery. It softens the water and cleans thoroughly whether the dirt is visible or invisible. Destroys all bacteria and infectious germs, removes obstructions from drain pipes, closets, sinks, etc. Refrigerators are made delightfully fresh and clean by using one teaspoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in two gallons of water.

VETERANS URGE

Turks, Bulgarians, apparently to the war, and who are holding able to assimilate Canadian istics, who have contributed sitions to the exclusion of soldiers, be deported, was lost.

Canadian Trade.

The Convention endorsed all timate movements toward de home industry, and trade within Empire until such time as the U ed States adjusts its exchange on an equitable basis. They also on record as favoring any tion to assure preference to an products.

Comrade Layfield of Peterbo spoke strongly for diverting an dollars now going to the Un States to England. Reasonably, he been instrumental in no small ure of such diversion.

Women's Convention

The Convention approved of Ontario Women's Auxliary of the W. V. A. meeting in convention to tablish a uniform constitution for guidance of all auxiliaries.

The activities and objects of auxiliaries were also heartily ed.

Weekly Paper.

The Command's executive submi a plan for establishing a weekly per in the interests of the O Command, on similar lines to "Alberta Veteran."

Some of the press of the prov The president said such a paper were characteried as unsympa essential to satisfactory organiza

Comrade Peart contended that enterprise could be safely by doubling the per capita tax.

Comrade Layfield would quash motions to this end. The Associa he said, could place their trust the local press, which had inva given great assistance to the of returned men. What local want, he said, is co-operation wi their own little press in their little towns. "If we don't stay wi our newspapers in this city and ot places, we are not going to progress."

The Convention decided to place this question in the hands of newspaper experts to report if the scheme can be put into effect without the danger of ultimate financial embarrassment.

This committee is composed of Comrades Peart, of Hamilton, Liv- of St. Catharines, Haight, of Toronto, Hood, of Kingston, and Layfield of Peterborough.

Military Funerals

The military authorities will be asked to supply a gun carriage and all equipment in every convenient place where a returned soldiers' organization is established.

The idea of this is that facilities for burying deceased comrades with military honors shall be available where they are not at present.

Armistice Day

The Convention resolved that the Association officials recognize Armistice Day each year, and that memorial services be held annually on or about November first.

Comrades Whithers of Brantford and Shute of Brantford, moved for action to remove the legal technicality which prohibits ex-service men from accepting positions of trust.

The technicality complained of is a provision that returned men, to secure certain Government positions are barred because of not having practiced their avocation three years before applying for such positions. Many ex-service men who went overseas young, are affected by this technicality.

A Vocational Question.

It was resolved that the Government be memorialized to allow minors taking a vocational course or having taken one the same $60 bonus grant as allowed other vocational students.

Our comrade pointed out that this bonus when claimed by minors, on the ground of disability they get but if claimed as a minor the bonus is refused.

The Convention regretted that the new franchise act does not provide for disfranchising men physically fit who evaded doing their duty n the war, and deserters also. Convention resolved that the Government be memorialized to disfranchise such men for a period of twenty years.

Judge's Bench

Convention endorsed a resolution that in cases of existing and prospective vacancies on the bench it is desirable that a man having a knowledge of the problems of returned soldiers, be appointed. And that the Governmbent be approached with a view to preference being given, wherever possible, to eligible barristers who have seen service overseas. Also that a list of such barristers be furnished the Government.

Added to the resolution was a similar request in regard to the coming appointment of King's Council.

EUREKA CLEANER

Grandmother was a good housekeeper, who kept the house swept and garnished, and, considering the tools she had at her disposal—the broom and the scrubbing brush—she did a good job. Houses in those days looked clean; there was no visible dirt. But were they really clean?

Since Grandmother kept house, ideas of true cleanliness in the home have changed. We know now that we must do more than remove visible dirt and dust, and to do this we suggest The EUREKA VACUUM CLEANER. (It gets the dirt, not the rug.) The Eureka sucks the dirt out of the rug, cushions, draperies, etc., but does not spoil them, such as a broom or brush does. Eureka supremacy is based upon these two things — great volume of air and the high velocity at which it travels.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson XII (XXV). Mar. 21, 1920.

JOHN'S PICTURE OF WORSHIP IN HEAVEN.

The Golden Text—"Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honor, and power, and

The Lesson Text, Rev. 7:9-17.
The Time—Probably the last decade of the first century, A.D.
The Place—Patmos.

LESSON TEXT ILLUMINED.

9. After these things I saw. The vision of the great multitude of the redeemed. In the previous vision, red and forty-four thousand who had been "sealed" as witnesses of the gospel. Suddenly the seer's horizon expands. Every barrier of race and nationality has disappeared. The second vision does not contradict the first, but grows out of it, teaching really what a difference Christ has made. For the Kingdom of heaven, revealed it, is open to all who believe. A great multitude which no man could number. The saved of the Gent'les who had come out of great tribulation. V. 14.

10. They cry with a great voice. There are in all seven "songs" in the book of Revelation. That contained in this chapter, and printed in the Revised Version as poetry, is the third in order (1) of creation, ch. 4:8-11; (2) of adoration, ch. 5:8-14; (3) of salvation, ch. 7:9-12 (4) of triumph, ch. 11:15-17; (5) a new song—the words a secret! ch. 14:1-5; (6) of thanksgiving, ch. 15:2-4; and (7) of victory, ch. 19:1-8. Salvation. Including here the complete Messianic victory, as well as deliverance from the enemy. This is the main theme of the song; it is ascribed to God sitting on the throne, and to the Lamb.

11. And all the angels. Angels take up the song, and expand it, and make it their own, sealing it fore and aft with an "Amen." V. 12. The four living creatures. Supernatural beings, introduced in the book of Revelation as supporters or vehicles of the divine power. Cf. ch. 4:6.

12. Blessing. The ascription is one of sevenfold praise.

13. And one of the elders answered. As the celestial interpreter of the vision. Arrayed in the white robes. Garments which signify honor and victory, but also service. Who are they? Those crowned to serve.

14. These are they that come out of great tribulation. Referring to the time of martyrdom foretold by our Lord, Matt. 24:21, but capable of adaptation of all periods of severe persecution in all time. The word "tribulation" has a history. Etymologically it springs from the Latin trubulum meaning a threshing machine, an instrument for cleansing corn and wheat, for separating straw from grain. So tribulation is God's way of separating evil from God's saints. And they washed their robes. On this passage Cowper based his hymn, "here is a fountain filled with blood." Primarily the reference in the passage is very probably to the persecution under Nero, A.D. 64, as Renan maintained; but it cannot be restricted to it.

15. And they serve him day and night. God saves men to serve. What blessed work they are in heaven commissioned to do, Who can say? Milton in on eof his majestic moments, speaking of the heavenly hosts, said:

Thousands at his bidding speed,
And post o'er land and ocean without rest;

In his temple. The heavenly temple not made with hands. Shall spread his tabernacle over them. As the "Word became flesh, and dwelt (tabernacle) among us." John 1:14. The thought has to do with the overshadowing presence of the Shekinah. Only John uses this verb. The idea of the passage is probably this, "He that sitteth on the throne shall spread his tabernacle over them; for the redeemed have not yet, in John's vision, actually accomplished their warfare" (Cook).

16. They shall hunger no more. Cf. Isa. 49:10. Neither shall the sun strikeupon them. Cf. Ps. 121:6.

17. For the Lamb. "The Lion that is of the trible of udah," ch. 5:5; "standing, as though it had been slain," ch. 5:6; and referred to twenty-eight times in the Apocalypse. Christ, of course, is meant. That is in the midst of the throne. Between him who sits upon it and the four living beings with the twenty?four elders who stand ground where a Mediator might naturally be! Shall be their shepherd. Literally, "shall shepherd them"; ch. John 21:16, "tend my sheep." Unto fountains of waters of life; or, "unto life's watersprings"; the emphasis being on the word "life." Cf. Rev. 21:4. What a comfort these promises bring the human heart. Even Robert Burns in a letter to his father, written out of a fit of youthful melancholy, alludes to this passage thus: "I am more pleased with the fifteenth, sixteenth, and seventeenth verses of the seventh chapter of Revelation, than with any ten times as many verses in the whole Bible, and would not exchange the noble enthusiasm with which they inspire me for all that this world has to offer."—By Prof. Geo. F. Robinson Ph.D., D.D.

HAMILTON MAN IS SHOT BY LITTLE BROTHER

SMALL RIFLE, WHICH BOY WAS HANDLING WENT OFF UNEXPECTEDLY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Hamilton, March 19.—Stanley Young died in hospital this morning as a result of a bullet fired by his brother Jacob, aged 13, while at target practice in the cellar of their home, with a 22 calibre rifle which clogged and went off unexpectedly. Joseph is held by the police.

HAIR SOON TOO SHORT TO DO UP

A little "Danderine" stops your hair coming out and doubles its beauty

To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of delightful "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter for a few cents, take a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair usually stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Help your hair to grow strong, thick and long and become soft, glossy and twice as beautiful and abundant.

Party-Line Consideration

A two-party line is a single circuit, shared in common by two subscribers. It is not reserved for a single user and should be used on the share-and-share-alike basis.

On a two-party line, it is possible for both users to try to talk out on the same circuit at the same time. There is also the liability of both being wanted at the same time to receive incoming calls.

Therefore, there are special considerations which we urge a party-line user to keep in mind:

1. Long conversations prevent the use of the line by the other subscribers; therefore party-line talks should be as brief as possible.
2. Whenever another party-line subscriber requests the use of the line for an emergency, courtesy should prompt the first user temporarily to give up the use of the line.
3. Whenever a party-line subscriber takes the receiver from the hook and finds the line in use, the receiver should be replaced at once in a careful manner.
4. At the end of a conversation the receiver should be replaced upon the hook immediately, otherwise the other subscriber cannot signal the central office.
5. Be sure always to give the operator the letters W or J in calling a party-line subscriber.

$5.95 Sample Voile Blouses, At $3.98

For the business woman who wants something that will launder, or the separate skirt that needs a companion to complete it, they will be ideal.

Some are French and others English voile—all are beautifully fine. There are various styles arrayed for your choosing. Filet, Val, Venice and Macrame Lace, and dainty tuckings are discreetly used. All sizes.

A Tweed Coat Can Be Had For $27.50

You have become weary of slipping your winter coat over your smart dress, and you want something jaunty and new. These swagger tweeds will satisfy your need. They are made on straight lines with smart belts, pockets and collars. The material is a Donegal tweed, and the colors are gray and fawn mixtures.

$39.00 and $42.00 Serges Dresses, For $34.95

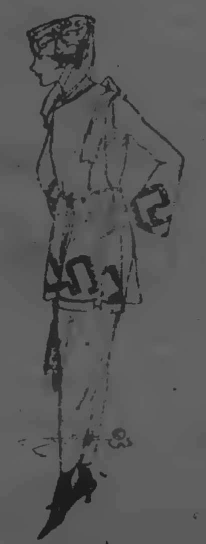
All-wool botany serge is the material and is garnished with braid and embroidery touches on the sleeves, bodice and skirt. You have choice of black, navy and fawn. The woman who requires a costume dress and has set aside this price for it, will find them difficult to resist.

Our First Spring Sale of Ladies' Silk Hose, They Are Holeproof Seconds and Will Sell at 98c Pair, or 2 Pairs for $1.85

We purchased these slightly imperfect Stockings direct from the makers, and this enables us to give Peterborough women an opportunity to buy silk slight hosiery at a price that sounds like a quotation of three or four years ago. We had to contract for a large quantity to secure them at a price that permits us to sell them at such a low figure, but we know we can easily dispose of them.

It is difficult to find the imperfections in most cases, and when your search is rewarded you will usually discover that the flaw is a slight irregularity in the weave in the lisle portion of the foot. The color range includes: black, white, champagne, brown and a few navy. Early shopping is advisable, for if past experiences are a standard to go by, we will have hundreds of eager buyers. All sizes, 8½ to 10

Some Decided Reductions From The Redfern Store



$49 SERGE SUITS FOR $42

The coat boasts of a pretty ripple effect and is trimmed with braid. The collar is shawl pattern, and the waist is encircled with a belt. The skirt is gatehred under a narrow belt. Can be had in navy, black or castor.

$30.95 TWEED COATS FOR $27

The colors are in dark hues, and an inverted pleat extends down the centre of the back. The fulness is restricted by a narrow belt that fastens with a bucklo. The principle trimming is buttons, and the collar is convertible pattern.

A HOUSE DRESS FOR $1.69

Neat, good looking garments for the mornings that you need not be ashamed of when you are called to your front door.

They are made of a good quality striped print—blue and white mostly—made on a comfortable style with a sailor collar and ¾ sleeves. Sizes 36 and 38.

SEVERAL $35 TAFFETA SILK DRESSES THAT WE HAVE TO SELL AT $27.50

They are fashionable models and in most instances they are combined with georgette and are trimmed with dainty embroidery touches. The colors are brown, navy, taupe and black.

$3.95 VOILE BLOUSES CAN BE HAD FOR $3.19

The voile is a fine French quality and is trimmed with dainty clusters of pin tucks and narrow lace. You have choice of either convertible or sailor collar; all have long sleeves.

$1.75 Stamped Gowns, $1.29

You can use your idle hours to good advantage with needle and thread and have something handsome and useful at the finish.

These gowns are made of a good quality cloth and are stamped with pleasing designs. They are hemmed and ready for use.

SECRETARY TURLEY IS POPULAR WITH HIS COMRADES

ATTEMPT BY WEST TORONTO TO FORCE HIS RESIGNATION FALLS THROUGH

At the morning session of the convention today an attempt, emenating from the West Toronto branch, was made to force the resignation of Secretary Turley of the Provincial Command of the G.W.V.A. The claim was made that his resignation had been demanded from all over the Province and that in spite of this the Executive Committee had refused to take any action. It was also claimed that the fact that Secretary Turley was remaining in office was resulting in a loss of membership all over the Province.

In announcing the resolution requesting his resignation, President Jeakins stated that as the Executive Committee had the power to appoint the secretary without consulting the convention, he ruled that this resolution would only have the effect of an expression of opinion.

The resolution was greeted with signs of dissent and although discussion on the matter was ruled out of order delegates from various parts of the Province managed to make it well known that they did not support the action of West Toronto. When the vote was called West Toronto was only supported by the Welland delegates and when the result vindicated the popular secretary, cheering commenced and lasted for several minutes.

WHO GOES THERE?

By Rev. E. G. Ross

"Oh, its you, Jack! Well, what's all your hurry?"

"My hurry? Well, if you had as much on your nerves as I have you'd be on the run too. Why, its all excitement at our house, and has been so for mor'n a week."

"But you haven't told me the cause of the excitement. Is anybody sick or has there been a fire or robbery? What's up anyway?"

"Well, as near as I can figure out, its all about some 'old time,' 'hard time,' 'cheap time' affair at Mark Street Church."

"At Mark Street Church? Well, sir, I never heard of such a church as Mark Street. All at it. Always at it. The people's church. Everybody welcome, pay or no pay. One man as good as another. Now when is this affair, as you call it, coming off?"

"Oh, on Friday night next, the 19th. And the comical thing about it is that you can wear old clothes, and be just as welcome as if you wore broadcloth; yes, and welcomer, and if you can scrap up 20 cents, you can take your place among the best of 'em."

"Well, whose getting this up, the Ladies' Aid?"

"Well, who else? Say, let's boost this, and pack the building next Friday night."

By-law No. 2237—

A BY-LAW TO REGULATE THE CLOSING OF BARBER SHOPS IN THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH.

PASSED THE 16TH DAY OF MARCH, 1920.

WHEREAS an application has been presented to and received by the Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough praying for the passing of a By-law requiring the closing of all barbers' shops situate within the City of Peterborough, under and by virtue of FACTORY, SHOP AND OFFICE BUILDING ACT, and the said Council is satisfied that such application is signed by not less than three-fourths in number of the occupiers of such barbers' shops within the Municipality of the City of Peterborough, and belonging to the class to which such application relates, and in accordance with the terms and provisions of the said Act above mentioned, it is compulsory upon the said Council to pass the By-law.

AND WHEREAS it has been made to appear to the satisfaction of the said Council that more than one-third in number of the occupiers of barbers' shops within the City of Peterborough are opposed to the continuance of By-law Number 2089 being a By-law to regulate the closing of barber shops in the City of Peterborough and desire that the same be repealed;

BE IT THEREFORE ENACTED BY THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH AS FOLLOWS:

1.—Under and in accordance with the FACTORY SHOP AND OFFICE BUILDING ACT, all barber shops within the City of Peterborough, shall be closed on each day of the week (except Saturday and the day before every public holiday) at and during the time between the hour of seven o'clock in the afternoon and five o'clock in the forenoon of the next following day, and shall be closed and remain closed on each Saturday of the week at the hour of ten o'clock in the afternoon until five o'clock in the forenoon of the next following Monday and on each and every day before a public holiday between the hour of ten o'clock in the afternoon and the hour of five o'clock of the next following day.

2.—Any occupier of a barber shop within the City of Peterborough, refusing to close and keep closed, the barber shop which he occupies and in which such business is carried on at and after the hour named for the closing thereof on each day on which the same is hereby required to be closed, according to the true intent and meaning of the said Act and of this By-law, shall on conviction thereof, be liable to a fine not exceeding FIFTY DOLLARS and costs, to be levied in case of non-payment thereof by distress and sale, of the goods of the offender, and in default of sufficient distress, such offender shall be liable to be imprisoned in the common goal of the County of Peterborough, for any period not exceeding six months, unless the fine inflicted and the costs (if any), including the cost of distress and of the committal and conveyance of the offender to the said goal, are sooner paid.

3.—By-law Number 2089 of the City of Peterborough is hereby repealed, but nothing herein contained shall revive or bring into force and effect By-law Number 1461 repealed by said By-law Number 2089.

4.—This By-law shall take effect on the 29th day of March, 1920.

5.—This By-law shall be published by the insertion of a copy thereof, once in the following newspapers, published in the City of Peterborough namely: The Evening Examiner and The Daily Review.

THEATRICAL

NEW ENGLISH BOOKINGS MADE BY TRANS-CANADA THEATRES FOR CANADA

TYRONE POWER WILL TOUR DOMINION AGAIN DURING NEXT THEATRICAL SEASON

An announcement of great interest to theatregoers is made by Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, the new All-Canadian theatrical organization. It has already been made public that Mr. Tyrone Power, now touring in "The Servant in the House," and "The Little Brother," will cover the same ground from coast to coast, next season in "A bunch o fViolets," and "The Middleman." Further plans now embrace the return of this distinguished artist over the same territory in "Claudius," made famous by the late Wilson Barrett, and "The Red Lamp," Conan Doyle's fascinating romantic drama.

In addition to this, Mr. Power will be followed over the Trans-Canada circuit of playhouses next season by two notable All-English production, Grossmith's famous farce-comedy, "The Night of the Party," and a new play, "Lucky Durham," which has been drawing crowded houses through out the English provinces, and which is still on tour across the water.

The success which attended the opening of Mr. Power's tour in "The Servant in the House," is beng duplicated all along the route. From the middle West on he will play that drama and "The ittle Brother," in which he made a big impression in Toronto, alternately.

The All-Canadian tour of Mr. Wilkie Bard, the greatest of all comedians now upon the stage, will embrace two acts by Mr. Bard and a series of first-clas vaudeville attractons in addition. The selection of the acts in which Mr. Bard will appear has not yet been made, but it will most likely include at least one in which he has never before been seen on this side of the Atlantic.

MOST POPULAR FARCE COMEDY YET PRODUCED

"NIGHTIE NIGHT," THAT COMES TO GRAND OPERA MOUSE MARCH 27th.

"Nightie Night," which comes to the Grand Opera House Saturday matinee and night, March 27th., was hailed in New York as the most popular farce comedy produced since the delirious "Seven Days" period. Other farces have caused more talk, but "Nightie Night" is credited with making the most legitmate comedy hit in recent years for the reason that it was written to amuse every member of the biggest family in the country, from the patriarch to the high school youngster. It is a farce without heads or blushes, although it is only fair to state that one of the leading figures in this comical complicaton, involving two young married couples, is a pink pyjama girl. She is the innocent cause of the mad adventures that follow her accidental invasion of an apartment occupied by her friend Billy Moffat and his green-eyed wife. The pink pyjama lady's belligerent husband also arrives in time to put both feet into the merry mix-up. But there is no scandal—nothing but screams of laughter from the audience. "Nightie Night," of which Aloph Klauber is the producer, had a five months' record-smashing run at the Princess Theatre, New York, with the same company to be seen here. The featured member of the cast is Francis Byrne, a comedian of the suave Collier type, and with him are Dorothy Mortimer, Grant Mills, Marie Chambers, Suzanne Wills, Malcolm Duncan and other gloom-killers.

"FLO FLO" COMES TO GRAND WEDNESDAY NEXT

One of the most tuneful and spectacular of all the musical show which captivated New York for a entire season will be the special offering at the Grand Opera House, on March 24th, when John Court bring here his sensationally effectiv fashion show production of "Flo Flo following its successful Boston and Chicago engagements.

"Flo-Flo" has all of the graces of the musical comedy of the past an any number of new ones which are essentially her own including that much written of famous chorus of matchless beauty and grace a scenic background of which has never been equalled in loveliness and a typical John Cort cast, which includes Hazel Algers, W. J. McCarthy, Carl George, Eddie Lloyd, Augustus Buell Rhea Norton, Elinore CcCune, Marie Dantes, Robert Dale, Frank Masters and Frank Hodgins. The chorus incidentally, numbers nothing but "perfect thirty-sixes" and has that rare quality a sense of humor which is seen in a series of eccentric dances.

"Flo-Flo.. gives ocasion for a spectacular fashion display that for richness and costliness excells anything hitherto presented on the American stage. The twenty musical numbers are said to be heard at their best as played by the 'Flo-Flo" augmented orchestra.

Mothers' Advice

The responsibility for a daughter's future largely rests with the mother. The right influence and the information which is of vital interest to the daughter imparted at the proper time has not only saved the life but insured the success of many a beautiful girl. When a girl's thoughts become sluggish with headaches, dizziness, or a disposition to sleep, pains in back or lower limbs and a desire for solitude, her mother should come to her aid and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, will at this time prepare the system for the coming change and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities. Thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtues of this medicine, and what it has done for their daughters.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for my daughter. She was 15 years of age, very sickly and pale and she had to stay home from school most of the time. She suffered agonies from backache and dizziness and was without appetite. For 3 months she was under the doctor's care and got no better, always complaining about her back and side aching so I did not know what to do. I read in the papers about your wonderful medicine so I made up my mind to try it. She has taken five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and doesn't complain any more with her back and side aching. She has gained in weight and feels much better. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers and daughters."—Mrs. M. Finora, 516 Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Field Water Service.

The British had the best system of piped-in water, though the system along parts of the Italion front was admirable. One sanitary officer informed me with pardonable pride that the supply for three army divisions was piped from a small lake a mile or more within the German lines! This same officer was able to pipe water after a great battle to the new ground won—three miles farther forward—within five hours.

English sanitarians devised one of the most perfect combinations of pumping and purifying machines that could be imagined. Its crew could dip its intake pipe into a pond of scum-covered, pea soup-colored, stagnant water, start the engine, and out from the discharge pipe would flow a steady stream of clear, sparkling, pure, well tasting water, at the rate of 1,000 gallons an hour. To look at the pond and at the water pouring into the drinking tank is said to have given anyone a positive shock.—Woods Hutchinson in "The Doctor in War."

Bones or Pins.

There are various kinds of protection exercised by governments for the people. A new one has developed in the state of Maine. The law forbids any one who did not himself catch it, to sell a pickerel. The fish are not allowed in market and even the man who caught them must have done that "legally." It is well-known to people, who, for fear of starving, have eaten pickerel, that their bodies are made up of 90 per cent sharp bones and 10 per cent flesh. When it comes to a choice between frying the family pincushion and eating a pickerel, most people prefer the pickerel, but it is evident that the legislators of Maine do not mean to expose their constituents to the perils of the diet when it can be avoided. There is no law in Maine against selling pincushions.—Hartford Courant.

May Revolutionize Shipbuilding.

Remarkable claims, which may have far-reaching consequences in the shipbuilding world if substantiated, are being made for a new concrete mixture, with which it is proposed to build vessels that are much lighter than those now being built, and yet far more durable. Its ingredients have not been made known. The assertion is made that vessels built of the new material will be one-fifth lighter than those of wood, and at the same time more durable than those of steel. It appears that the discovery can also be made use of in applying a covering for concrete ships now under construction, for the purpose of giving them greater power to resist impact.

Guillotined High Heels.

No one could be at his best without a minimum of four or five miles' walk a day, or some other form of open-air exercise, said Dr. Truby King lately at the National Health society.

Before women could take reasonable exercise they would have to give up absurd high-heeled boots, he added. In the mental hospital to which he was attached, the first thing done on the arrival of a woman patient was to guillotine her boot heels.

:-: INDOOR BASEBALL :-:

Two of the best indoor baseball teams met last night in the armories and proved a very exciting game.

The score was: Belmonts 15, Y.M.C.A. 6. Umpires, Capt. Cobb and Sergt. Williams, C.M.G.C.

Harrison of the Belmonts showed his usual speed, while Flowers of the Y.M.C.A. was a close second.

The line-up:

Belmonts — Lawes, Holliman, Harrison, Jobbitt, Haskill, Head, Stuart Sterling, Moore.

Y.M.C.A. — Tudhope, White, Doughty, Bergoine, M. Long, H. Long, Flowers, Armstrong, McIntosh.

VETERANS ATTEND EVENING SESSION OF GRAND AS GUESTS OF LOCAL BRANCH

Patriotic Features in the Splendid Program Provided Make a Hit With the Delegates.

A relaxation of the stern business sessions of the Ontario convention of the Great War Veterans' Association took place last night when the delegates accepted the invitation of the local branch to attend a theatre party at the Grand Opera House. The delegates met at the Veterans' Hall on Murray street and, headed by the Veterans' Band, playing an old familiar marching song known to every battalion in the Canadian Expeditionary Force, they marched in a body, several hundred strong, down George street to the theatre. As they reached the corner of George and Brock streets the music stopped and three cheers for the city of Peterborough were heartily given.

Arriving at the theatre a trifle early for the performance the Veterans proceeded to amuse themselves using Comrades Peart, of Hamilton, and Armstrong, of Mount Dennis, as the "goats." "The sky-pilots," President C. E. Jeakins, of Brantford, and Comrade Appleyard, of Woodstock, were the humorists of the evening. Comrade Teale, of Carlton, took the piano and a sing-song went on until the opening of the program. Comrade Edwards rendered a solo, "A Perfect Day," for which he was heartily applauded. There was a spirit of levity among the boys which fast spread to the rest of the crowded house.

Miss Cinko Panno, in a novelty European musical act, created the hit of the evening in the estimation of the delegates. She had been rendering both classics and jazz music with great success and was encored for a second time, whereupon she requested the orchestra to play "The Maple Leaf." While she rendered it on an instrument. The delegates immediately arose and remained standing until the conclusion and the rest of the audience followed suit. Three cheers were then given for the patriotic actress.

The Program.

Manager Dahn of the Opera House went to some trouble to assure himself of a program worthy of the delegates who were to witness it and the hearty applause with which every number on the program was greeted was proof conclusive of the success which crowned his efforts in this direction.

Three special acts of vaudeville were put on including the one already mentioned, Leonard and Wright in some fine dancing, and Johnson Bros. and Johnson Minstrels of the first class.

Besides these items there was the usual Paramount Magazine full of interesting scenes from all over America and Tom Mix in a short but snappy western picture of the style in which he is always so popular.

The main picture of the evening was a Paramount-Artcraft production featuring Charles Ray in "The Egg-Crate Wallop." Those who have seen Charles Ray before know without telling how good he is and those who have not seen him should certainly take this opportunity of doing so.

The story concerns a Western country boy who developed his biceps juggling egg crates as helper to the express agent at Pitt's Junction. To clear his boss, who is also his sweetheart's father, of a serious charge, he leaves town and secures a job as sparring partner for a pugilist. Later he appears in the roped arena and lands a knock-out blow, which gains fame as the "egg crate wallop," on the jaw of the man who tried to frame the fight. Through his victory he discovers some things that enable him to straighten out the tangle in his home town and claim the hand of his girl.

Thomas H. Ince has provided an extremely realistic setting. The fight takes places in a ring that is regulation to the last detail. DeWitt Van Court, who trained Jeffries and Corbett in his day, is referee, and the fighters, besides Charles Ray, include Al Kauffman, Ray Kirkwood, and Izzie Glasser.

Among the bookings for future dates at the Grand is "Flo-Flo," presented by John Cort, with a perfect chorus of 36, which will be here on Wednesday next for one performance only. The reputation of this play made in other cities is such that it is well worth seeing.

NOTED FIGURE AT CONVENTION

Comrade Reason of London, Ont., gave a banquet last night in Hooper's Restaurant to the members of the Resolutions Committee of the G. W. V. A. Convention, of which committee he was chairman.

A very enjoyable time was spent by all.

Col. Reason is a new figure at the G. W. V. A. Conventions, this being the first one that he has attended. It was noticeable that for such a recent arrival on the scene he had made quite an impression among the rest of the delegates. The Colonel's war record is a very proud one as he is the bearer of the D. S. O. and the O. B. E. Serving first as a medical officer to a fighting battalion, during which time he was awarded his D. S. O. for devotion to duty and bravery, the Colonel rapidly rose in the Medical Corps until he was placed in command of a big stationary hospital at Etaples. He was in command of this hospital at the time that the German aeroplanes bombed it and caused many casualties among the Canadian nursing sisters and doctors.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

FAULKNER—HARRISON.

A very pretty wedding took place at the Omemee Methodist parsonage, March 17th, at 4.30 o'clock, when Ada, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harrison, Emily, became the bride of Elwood W. Faulkner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Faulkner, also of Family.

The Rev. Mr. Herrington, of Bethel Church, officiated, while Miss Della Faulkner acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Gordon Harrison supported the groom.

The bride looked charming in a navy blue suit and black lace hat with touches of silver and wore the groom's gift, a beautiful pearl sunburst.

After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's parents where the guests awaited them. A sumptous wedding supper was served and the usual social hour enjoyed.

The young couple received many useful and beautiful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner left for their home amid showers of confetti and good wishes of the guests.

Mrs. R. C. Braund and Mrs. A. Wilde, of Havelock, are visiting Mrs. G. Green, 423 Annette street, Toronto.

Mr. Kenneth Crane, of Toronto, is spending the week-end in the city.

Mrs. John Bernie, of Owen Sound is in the city the guest of her mother, Mrs. W. A. Sanderson.

Mayor McIntyre and Mr. J. J. Turner returned last evening from a business trip to Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stewart returned to the city last evening after visiting in Toronto.

The weekly dance of the Peterborough Great War Veterans' Association held in their hall last night was one of the most successful ever held since the organization of the association. There was a greatly increased attendance and many of the delegates who are attending the convention were present.

The members of the orchestra kindly consented to continue until two o'clock as a special consideration for the visiting veterans. A great impression of the social life of the Peterborough Great War Veterans' Association was made on the visitors. Secretary Turley of the Provincial Command, who was present for part of the evening, stated this morning that he had never seen anything to equal last night's dance in any War Veterans' hall yet.

A LETTER OF THANKS

Editor Review.— I have learned with pleasure an satisfaction of the sympathetic attitude of your newspaper toward this mission and of the splendid campaign for funds recently conducted through its columns. On behalf of Dr. Grenfell and his worthy associates, I wish to extend to you hearty thanks and appreciation for your valuable assistance in placing the facts before your readers in such attractive form. I personally visited the Grenfell hospitals in Newfoundland and Labrador last summer and saw for myself the great need and how it is met. No man ever gathered about him professional men and women of greater ability and devotion than has Dr. Grenfell in the establishment and extension of this work among the fisherfolk of the North Atlantic coast.

I also desire to thank the management and editorial staff of the Review Printing Company, on behalf of the Press Committee of the Peterborough branch of the Labrador Medical Mission, for the generous amount of space allotted to them in the recent campaign and also for their co-operation and encouragement.

Yours faithfully,
ANNIE M. WARNE,
Secretary.

ELEVEN YOUNG WOMEN TAKE PLEDGE TO DEVOTE LIVES TO CHRISTIAN WORK

Impressive Service Held at Mount St. Joseph This Morning Guelph Pastor Preached the Sermon.

The pretty little chapel of Mount Saint oJseph was the scene of a beautiful and impressive ceremony this morning when eleven young postulants received the holy habit of the Order of St. Joseph, in the presence of a large number of clergy and friends.

Before an altar made beautiful with flowers and ferns the young women pledged themselves to renounce the world with all its allurements and henceforward live a life of seclusion, chastity and prayer beneath the shadow of our Saviour's Cross. The ceremony, which took place during the high mass, is one which will linger long in the memory of the friends and relatives of the postulants, and in fact all who had the privilege of witnessing it.

Each young lady, beautifully gowned in a bridal costume of white satin, lace trimmed, with clinging white voile, and carrying a bouquet of roses, was accompanied by a little flower girl dressed in white. The picture presented by the little procession as it proceeded from the chapel to receive the holy habit, while the sisters' choir rendered an appropriate number, was a most impressive one.

The Sermon.

Rev. Father McNiff, S.J., Guelph, who conducted the retreat, preached a timely sermon. He spoke of the attractions of the world and the prizes it had to offer—wealth, pleasure, position—and it was but natural that we should desire these things.

It was the yearning of the human heart after that which it fondly imagines was happiness. But even though we reach the summit of our ambitions—even though we mount to the pinnacle of our existence and are surrounded by all these transient things that we have longed for—will we be happy then? Will peace and contentment reign in our hearts amid al this luxury, when we see the world slipping away from us? No, it is not in the human heart to be satisfied with material things—the things of the world. It would still crave for more. Nothing but the supernatural can satisfy the longing of the soul. And considering this, was it not a beautiful sight to see these young women, in the bloom of youth, turning away from a world that could never give them lasting happiness, and choosing a life of prayer and charitable labor?

Continuing, Father McNiff spoke of the good work acomplished by the order, an order which had started with "a handful of earth, a debt, and God's blessing," and had gradually grown into the flourishing community it is today.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, in a brief and eloquent address expressed sentiments of pleasure on the occasion of this sacred occasion, an event which is inspiring and almost divine, and toched at some length upon the splendid work of the sisters in teaching the young, caring for the sick, and loking after the humble poor.

The following clergy were present: His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Rev. Dean McColl, Rev. Fathers McGuire and Cote, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Rev. Fathers O'Brien and Gorman of the Sacred Heart Church, Rev. Fathers Cantillon and Costello, of St. Peter's Cathedral: Rev. Fr. Meagher, Lakefield; Rev. Fr. McAuley, Ennismore; Rev. Fr. McCarthy, Norwood; Rev. Fr. Ferguson, Warkworth; Rev. Fr. Quiltie, of Douglas; Rev. Fr. Letang, Calumette Island; Rev. Fr. Garvey, of Trout Creek; Rev. Fr. Williams, Toronto: Rev. Fr. McNiff, Guelph.

Those Who Took the Habit.

Following are the postulants who took the habit, with the names by which they will now be known:

COMRADE O'FLYNN

in place of the election of officers The resolution put was to the effect that the membership of the Association be extended to include all who have served in the military forces of Great Britain and the Allies, irrespective of time or place, in the great war.

Comrade Appleyard of Woodstock claimed that there was one point which had been overlooked. The object in view was one great union of veterans. To take off the door entirely would prevent one great union of soldiers from affiliating with the association and the end would be defeated. He urged a medium policy which would ultimately bring in all soldiers. There were many drafted men who wanted to go over but who were prevented by the lamentations of parents, etc.

Comrade Pratt of Simcoe said his branch was at one time fairly large, but the membership was gradually dropping off for various reasons. He thought that the open door would have a good effect on the branches situated in the same position as Simcoe.

Comrade L. Taylor, Preston, claimed that the war record of Canada was made during the time of the drafted men's service in France just as much as before. He spoke of the German element and the sway of the parents, which prevented many men from enlisting, although they really desired to do so from the start.

Comrade Rigby of Ottawa stated that he was instructed by his branch to put two thousand votes against any amendment to the constitution, and he was, therefore, compelled to demand a per capita vote on the question. The poll vote, which took up about 20 minutes, resulted as follows: Yeas, 18,195; nays, 5,386.—Carried.

The following comrades also spoke on the open door question: Hatton, of Penetang, Marshall, of Riverdale, Slemin, of Brantford, Armstrong, of Mount Dennis, Jones Bateman, of Cobalt, McFeat, Ottawa (against); Hoe, of East Hamilton, Weatherhead of Weland, Haight, of Toronto, Hazey, of Kitchener, Harrison, of Windsor, Davidson, of Riverdale, Appleyard, of Woodstock, Devlin, of London, Allen, of Cobalt, Fisher, of Niagara Falls, Turner, of Ottawa (against). Evans, of Galt, Pugsley, of Iroquois Falls; Taylor, of Preston, Ford, North Toronto; Dunwell, Riverdale, and Hossack, Westboro.

Sudbury for Next Year.

Invitations were received from the Guelph Chamber of Commerce, the Guelph Branch of the G. W. V. A., Sudbury G. W. V. A., the Woodstock Branch and civic authorities; Kingston Branch, St. Thomas Board of Trade; Niagara Falls, Mayor and G. W. V. A.; Port Arthur and Fort William Branch, for the 1921 convention. "The city is yours," was the statement in the Niagara Falls communication.

By a standing vote it was decided to hold the next convention at Sudbury. In the vote, Guelph came a close second.

Housing Problem.

Comrade Hood, of Kingston, moved, that the Government be again urgently requested to deal at once with the housing situation, and to provide a direct measure of assistance to the veterans to build or purchase homes by means of long term loans independently of the action of the municipality in which they live and that the administration of this scheme be place dunder the Soldier Settlement Board.

Ther was some discussion on the question, during which many members pointed to the inadequacy of the present system and the need for a change as far as the returned soldier was concerned. This carried unanimously.

A Strike Question

The Convention discussed a resolution from London to the effect that the Ontario Command in conventon, pledges support to Labor in its just demands constitutionally pressed for, and influence members of the G. W. V. A. to refrain from taking the places of strikers.

I. H. Hagey, of Kitchener, declared that as no strikes are legalizzed by the Government, we who wish to uphold law in the Dominion must not say that we shall or what we shall not do in the case of strikes.

Convention was most decided in its rejection of this resolution.

Thousands of dollars damage has been done during the past few weeks to fruit trees in Rhode Island by field mice and rabbits.

PETERBORO CITY BANQUETS ONTARIO'S FIGHTING SONS IN RIGHT ROYAL STYLE

Sends Delegates Back to Whence They Came With Memories of Heartiest of Hearty Appreciation—Convention Visitors Composed a Measure Full and Overflowing With Splendid Representation of Canadian Citizenship.

Peterborough city, through official representation, and the local branch of the G.W.V.A., at a dinner in the Veterans' club rooms last night bade farewell and God-speed to delegates to the convention of the G.W.V.A.'s Ontario Command closed yesterday afternoon.

It was a happy, jolly crowd at [illegible] sat down to the excellent menu furnished by mine host Thos. Hooper, and served so acceptably by a patriotic body of G.W.V.A. Auxiliary ladies.

There was also a feast of song and oratory in the stirring after-dinner program, peculiarly befitting the occasion, and arranged by the local boys with the same degree of irresistibly with which Canada's veterans went over the top in France and Flanders. The whole function reflected as full a degree of commendation on those in charge and on those who participated in it, as should be tendered to the visiting delegates who in order to clean their slate of business sat in session from 9 yesterday morning till 4.15 in the evening without lunch.

Over 200 strong they sat down at the festive board, a galaxy of Canada's fighting sons, in quality measure full, heaped up and over-flowing with a splendid representation of Canadian citizenship. A spirit of humor and badinage prevailed, coupled with song acclaims of the several speakers. The atmosphere was punctuated with such popular after-dinner odes as "[illegible] a Jolly Good Fellow," "See Him Smiling" and "Don't Believe Him," with one original and personal refrain evidently composed for Judge Huycke's exclusive benefit. His Honor was certainly a favorite with the gathering, which bombarded him with cheers and laudatory song when he rose to speak.

Mrs. Joseph Mills, president of the G.W.V.A. Ladies' Auxiliary; Mrs. W. A. Morris, also of the same patriotic organization, and President Muir of the local association, each in graceful terms welcomed the visitors to the good time prepared for them.

The city was represented in the persons of Judge Huycke, Mayor A. A. McIntyre, G. A. Gillespie, ex-M. L. A., Rev. F. E. Malott, Ald. Whitehouse, Ald. Gordon, Ald. Morrison, Ald. Crowe, Ald. Gainey, S. R. Armstrong, city clerk; President Boswell of the Trades Council, Roland Denne, chairman of the Board of Education and president of the Peterborough Industrial Board; Leonard Fraser, secretary of the Board of Trade.

Vocal numbers in appropriate selection were given in good voice by Comrade M. Park, D. Carlisle and Comrade Hotston, a cornet solo was rendered by Comrade Everett, a ladies' chorus was sung by members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A., the local branch's band contributed entertaining numbers, and Comrade Charlie Ackerman served at the piano.

The soloists had also stirring accompaniment from the small army of guests present, who needed no coaxing to join in choruses with heart and voice.

Presentations.

During the evening Retiring President Jeakins, who was jocularly named by his comrades "Out of Order," presented, on behalf of the local branch, Comrade Harvey Staunton (ex-president) with a handsome silver cup in recognition of his earnest efforts in behalf.

Comrade Staunton has been a member of the Ontario Command's executive the last three or four years.

Retiring President Jeakins also presented to Mrs. Joseph Mills, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A., for self and comrades, a beautiful bouquet of red roses in appreciation of their efforts this night in catering to the physical comforts of the gathering. I give you also, he said, the soldiers' salute to Canada's splendid womanhood, and that salute is:

"Our arms your defence.
Your arms our recompense;
Fall in!"

Sorry to Part.

This banquet closed a three days' visit to Peterborough of one of the finest body of men ever sent here on any convention—men of intelligence, men loyal and true to King, country and Empire, men representing not only Canada's fighting strength, but Canada's Christian, professional, industrial and mercantile life, men of whom the communities from which they came may well be proud; and Peterborough sends them home again with best wishes for themselves and their organization, for they have left with those with whom they came in contact that beautiful sentiment: "Happy to meet, sorry to part and happy to meet again."

Wonderful Service.

Ald. G. N. Gordon, in proposing the toast to "Our Empire," declared the warmth of this function was adduced by the wonderful service to the Empire rendered by the men around him. While the British Empire was the greatest Empire the world had seen and ever will see, she emerged, he said, through the veterans' efforts into an empire with broader and wider influence and ideals than the imagination of man could visualize before the war. The result of her sons' service had been to demonstrate the solidity of our empire even in the most remote colonies beyond the seas. Britain bases her might and power, he continued, on a policy of justice, equality and fraternity, and those are the basic principles on which the G.W.V.A. has been erected. England recognizes the rights of all her dependencies alike even to the weakest, all of whom are held together in unity on principles of integrity and freedom. He believed the G.W.V.A. was building up the greatest organization ever known, an organization influential for the welding together in harmony of public opinion, to keep pure the thoughts of the people, and to maintain that spirit of integrity, liberty and justice which animates this great Empire. In conclusion, Ald. Gordon felt that the G. W. V. A. will be a valuable instrument in directing the affairs of an Empire that protects the rights of those who need protection most.

Struck a Resounding Cord.

In responding to the toast of the G.W.V.A., Past President C. E. Jeakins of Brantford, Ontario, was greeted with a great ovation. He stated that the comrades throughout the association deeply appreciated the words of Judge Huycke. He had struck a cord that would resound throughout the organization. He had properly stated the objects of this association. "The nations that have wondered at her in war shall copy her in peace," were the sentiments which he (the speaker) had in mind at the present time.

We were not meeting tonight as president and executive, but as comrades of one great organization. In this association we believe that we have one of the "best sellers" in the Dominion. He felt confident that this convention had been a great success. He believed that comrades present at this convention were thoroughly embued with the principles expressed in the convention. It had been said that life was one "blank" thing after another, but he said life was one "blank" Flynn after another.

Last fall one Flynn was after us and we were after him. Now Flynn was after us or we after him. It was a great pleasure to welcome such a great successor as Comrade Eddy O'Flynn, of Belleville. He would give his hearty support to the work of the new president.

"Let me pay a tribute to the comrades of the Peterborough branch and to citizens of Peterborough," said Mr. Jeakins. The citizens had furnished a splendid club house and

THE NEW PRESIDENT

The election of Comrade "Eddy" O'Flynn of Belleville, as President of the Ontario Command of the Great War Veteran's Association, may justly be laimed as a victory for this city in the Convention. He has had a real association with the city of Peterborough and, as the only nominee for the presidency with any local connection, he was unanimously elected.

Comrade O'Flynn who, in civil life is a prominent lawyer of Belleville, donned the khaki at the first call and left Belleville for Valcartier as a lieutenant in the second battalion of the First Canadian contingent. With the contingent he endured the terrible hardships which were met on Salisbury Plains and went through the second battle of Ypres that is to say the first battle of Ypres as far as any Canadian was concerned. For sixteen long months he served with the second battalion riisng to the rank of major and the appointment of adjutant of the batallion.

After the Zillibeke engagement in June, 1916, he was invalided to Canada and became second in command of the 247th. Battalion, under Col. Ackerman in this city. While stationed here, together with H. J. Staunton, President Mupir of the Peterborough branch G. W. V. A. and others he founded the present branch of the Great War Veteran's Association and was for many months one of its charter members. For this fact alone Peterborough veterans rejoice in his election as much as if the successful candidate had been a Peterborough man. The feeling of the candidates for the president who withdrew, which was that this honor was more than due to Comrade O'Flynn for his service in the war and in the work of the G. W. V. A., was also felt by the delegates assembled at the convention and the elimination of all other candidates from the field was greeted with much applause.

ALBERTA SCHOOLS CLOSE FOR LACK OF TEACHERS

SINCE FIRST OF YEAR 377 HAVE BEEN OBLIGED TO SUSPEND

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Edmonton, Alta., March 19. — Hon. Geo. P. Smith, Minister of Education, stated, in giving further information relative to educational problems in the province, that 557 schools are closed at present for lack of teachers, 377 being closed since the first of the year.

FORTY YEARS ON THE FORCE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Regina, Sask., March 20.—Assistant Commissioner John McGibbon of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, will retire for life on April 1 of this year when he will start a six months' leave of absence which has been granted him. He has served with the force for 40 years, being the 427th man to join the force.

WINNIPEG CHANGES THE FISCAL YEAR

RATEPAYERS WILL GET OFF LIGHTLY FOR 1920 AS A RESULT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, March 20.—Ratepayers will be required to pay approximately $1,500,000 less this year than during the fiscal year 1919-20 owing to the city's decision to change the civic year to conform with the calendar year. This year's taxes will only cover eight months from May 1 to Dec. 31, or two-thirds of the average year. Full-year tax levies will be resumed next year.

FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver B.C., March 20.—The Vancouver City Council has formally endorsed the principle of daylight saving and will probably exercise the power of local option in adopting it, provided the Legislature extends the same privilege in that respect as last year.

COMMUNIST PARTY IS PROPOSED IN BRITAIN

ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE BY HERALD ORGAN OF UNION LABOR

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 20.—Steps are being taken in Great Britain to form a Communist party affiliated with the third international, the ultimate aim being to create a Revolutionary Communist party, says The Daily Herald, the organ of Labor. It is hoped to form a party from a fusion of the existing left-wing organization, the newspaper says, and in the meantime active work for organization of local Communistic bodies called social Soviets is going on.

EBERT TROOPS BOMB PUBLIC BUILDINGS

SEVERAL HUNDRED ARE KILLED IN ACTION TO DISLODGE WORKMEN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 20.—Ebert Government troops have bombed public buildings at Leipsic in an attemot to dislodge the erman Workers' forces and several hundred persons have been killed as a result, says a Berlin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. The message says 100 were killed and 200 wounded in street fighting in Berlin on Thursday.

LORD MAYOR OF CORK SHOT IN COLD BLOOD

MASKED MEN INVADED HIS HOME THIS MORNING AND MADE ESCAPE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 20.—Advices from Cork indicate that a state of excitement prevailed this morning following the murder of Lord Mayor Thomas MacCurlin, Sinn Feiner, of that city, by a gang of so far unidentified assassins at 1 a.m. today. Mayor MacCurlin was shot down without being given a chance to defend himself by six masked men who invaded his home. His murderers escaped in an automobile.

UNSKILLED LABOR MAY EXCEED THE DEMAND

THAT IS THE OUTLOOK AS IT APPEARS TO EMPLOYMENT OFFICIALS

It was intimated this morning at the local Employment Bureau that within the next few months the supply of unskilled labor would be much greater than the demand and that considerable trouble would be experienced in placing all applicants. The situation at preseint is that while the demand for skilled labor is far greater than the supply, the supply and demand of unskilled labor is about even. There is a great call at the present time for farm labor, and very few applicants for this class of work.

During the week there were 38 applicants, 40 vacancies and 31 men placed locally. One molder was sent to Windsor.

ALLIES ARE PREPARING TO MOVE THEIR ARMED FORCES FURTHER INTO GERMANY

This Action to be Taken Unless the Country Settles Down Report Today States—Two Thousand Persons Have Been Killed Since Revolution Started One Week Ago—Spartacans Proclaim Republic.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 20. — There are many indications, according to despatches from Cologne today, that the Allies are preparing to advance their concentration of troops at Strassburg and Metz further into Germany if the country does not quiet down soon, an Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Amsterdam reports.

Two thousand persons have been killed to date in fighting incident to the German revoltionary movement, and the distrbances of the past week, it is estimated in Berlin.

The capture of Essen was effected on Friday by a Spartacan army of about one hundred thousand men with 77 guns and an equipment of armored automobiles, acording to advices from Aix-la-Chapelle today. The Spartacans proclaimed a Soviet republic there.

The German National Assembly will continue its sessions at Stuttgart until the conditions at Berlin are normal, says a Stuttgart despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

Allies Extend Congratulations.

Berlin, March 20.—Representatives of Great Britain, Italy and Belgium in this city visited Vice-Chancellor Schiffer yesterday and congratulated the government on "the speedy removal of the Kappist usurpers," according to a semi-official news agency announcement. They assured Herr Schiffer, it is said, that the Entente representatives had not recognized the leaders of the revolt, but had remained sympathetic to the constitutional government and expressed the hope that the crisis caused by the general strike might be quickly overcome.

Schooner Captured.

Hamburg, March 20. — The German schooners Schwarzburg, Regensburg and Wittlesbach were taken possession of at Kiel without bloodshed yesterday morning by sailors at the naval station after the government troops in the station had been disarmed, according to reports from Kiel received here. The officers on the cruisers were deposed and the white flag was hoisted over the vessels. The captain of the Wittlesbach, the report adds, committed suicide by shooting.

TURKS ARE PEEVED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Constantinople, March 20 — The Turkish chamber of deputies adjourned sine die on Thursday as a protest against the Allied occupation of this city and the deportation of a number of the Turkish Nationalist leaders.

MEXICO'G PRESIDENT ISSUES NEW, DECREE

DEFINES UNDER WHAT CONDITIONS CONCESSIONS MAY BE GRANTED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Mexico City, March 20.—A presidential decree issued today authorizes the granting of concessions for the exploitation of oil land in territories belonging to the nation. The decree provided that the concessionaries must comply with existing laws regulating the petroleum industry, including their assent to the organic petroleum law, which a future congress must enact. In addition to affirming national dominion over both surface and subsoil of those national lands which are to be opened to exploitation, the decree reaffirms the national right to the subsoil of all oil lands in Mexico.

SENATE RETURN TREATY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, March 20—The Treaty of Versailles was formally returned to President Wilson today by the Senate after it had failed of ratification last night for the fourth time.

AIRPLANE SERVICE FOR FORESTS IN ALBERTA

NEW PLAN TO BE TRIED TO SAVE TIMBER FROM FIRE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Edmonton, Alta., March 20.—The scheme to establish an air patrol of Alberta forest reserves will be put into effect during the coming summer, according to Col. R. H. Palmer, chief fire ranger for the northern section of the Province. A patrol of the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, beginning in the south, is to be carried on this year. It will be entirely experimental at first. Suitable landing places must be located before the patrol can really be established and wireless stations will also be a necessary part of the scheme. Two machines are already on the way. The plan is that the aeroplanes will be used for the purpose of locating fires, the fact that a 65-mile range is possible at an elevation of 5,000 feet indicates the great usefulness of the air patrol as an addition to the other protective measures.

STRONG EXECUTIVE OF ONTARIO'S G.W.V.A. COMMAND FOR THIS YEAR

Harvey Staunton of Local Branch Again Gets Appointment, Delegates to Big Convention Went Without Lunch Yesterday Rather Than Leave Business Unfinished.

The Convention of the Ontario Command of the G. W. V. A. closed at four-fifteen yesterday afternoon with the resolutions of thanks customary on such occasions.

The delegates sat through from 9 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. without lunch What was designated as a "Past Master's Badge," was presented Retiring President Comrade C. E. Jeakins. The presentation was coupled with eulogism of his executive services, which, it was declared, nothing could repay. Existing unanimity in the Association was attributed to a large extent to his good judgment.

Ex-President Jeakins suitably acknowledged both presentation and kind words and the assembly made the rafters ring with their heartest of hearty cheers for the retiring president.

Comrades McKegney, of Clinton and Wills, of Parkdale, extended a vote of thanks to Peterborough citizens and the press, the local branch G. W. V. A., for all they had done to further the success of the Convention. The motion included the fullest measure of appreciation of entertainment offered by the local branch and by citizens on whom the visiting members had been billeted. It also paid a warm tribute to the G. W. V. A. club rooms and the local branch's methods of administration, the study of which methods will stimulate emulation by other branches.

A vote of thanks also went to the retiring executive, its office staff and Secretary Treasurer W. E. Turley.

The New Executive

At a late hour the following executive for the current year were elected by ballot:

C. E. Wilson, Central Toronto.
A. E. Appleyard Woodstock.
A. H. Peart, Hamilton.
J. Armstrong, Mount Dennis.
G. Cole, London.
H. J. Staunton, Peterborough.
W. D. Sharpe, Brampton.
J. Jones-Bateman, Cobalt.
J. B. Seggie, Ottawa
S. McKegney, Clinton.
T. K. Demorest, Sudbury.

Department of Industry

A motion that a Government Department of Industry be appointed was lost. The idea of this motion was the furnishing of loans to bona-fide Veteran bodies who wish to establish industries

Mothers' Allowances

The Convention endorsed the Ontario Government's principle of mothers' allowances to support widows and orphans, so that the manhood of Canada may be brought up in a way acceptable to the nation.

Pensions While Training

It was resolved to memorialize the Government to so amend the vocational training regulations that pensioners undergoing training do not period of that training.

Civil Service Posts

Owing to the large amount of unemployment of returned soldiers, it was resolved that the Government be urged to wherever possible, replace Government civilian employees with qualified returned men. It was also [illegible] that as according to representaion to Convention, some employers are taking advantage of ex-service men receiving pensions by offering them less pay than is being drawn by civilians for the same work that the Government be memorialized to make such action on the part of employers a civil offence.

Free Tuition.

The Provincial Government will be asked to make attendance at Collegiate Institutes free to all. Also for a greater extension of technical training to foster the growth from the existing number of unskilled returned soldiers into skilled men. The Government will also be requested to extent vocational courses to meet every class of employment, and to make such provision that each student may be given opportunity of taking up the best course suitable to his own particular line of occupation.

Public Accounting

In regard to trustees of funds of battalions, military units and of band instruments, acquired by public subscription, it was resolved to seek legislation to call for a public accounting for such funds and instruments.

Remission Taxes

This Provincial Command will, as a result of a large affirmative vote, urge the Government to remit all taxes on War Memorial Halls and Veteran's Club Houses, so long as same are used for Veteran purposes. And that receiving revenue from its renting of such club houses or halls shall not affect the remission of taxes, if such revenue is applied to patriotic purposes.

A. Badge Question

This Command will protest against the distribution of class A service badges to men who did not go to France until after Armistice was signed.

Continue Salaries

This Command will also move for payment of salaries to men engaged in Government work during the time they may be absent from duty, by reason of disability resulting from service with the C. E. F.

Vote For C. G. E. Bylaw Tuesday

Editor Review: Permit me to call the attention of the electors to the vote to be taken on the Canadian General Electric Company bylaw on Tuesday next.

The extensions which the company will make to their works here, if the bylaw is carried, are very extensive. The illustrations given in Ald. Turner's letter are very striking. For instance, that they will be equal to a building fifty feet wide and extending from Hunter street nearly to Dalhousie street. Such an addition to our industries will certainly be of inestimable advantage to the city.

The company's pay roll is now about $120,000 a month, and with these additions Senator Nicholls estimates that it will be about doubled.

A new industrial concern that would spend $1,000,000.00 in buildings and machinery, and that would have a pay roll of $120,000.00 a month, would be prized by any city, and that is what the Electric Company proposes to expend here, if the electors endorse the bylaw.

If the bylaw is not passed the extensions will not be put up here.

And that is not all, for if the bylaw should not be carried the company will not only erect these additions to their factories in Toronto or Montreal, but future extensions will follow this one—and we will have no further large additions to the Electric Works here. That is something that we cannot afford.

It is in the interest of the city that this bylaw should be endorsed and I hope that the electors will turn out on Tuesday and support it. A little time given by each one on that day will help the city a great deal.

Yours sincerely,
A. A. McINTYRE, Mayor.

THE C. G. E. BYLAW.

THE RATEPAYERS of the city will on Tuesday next be called upon to vote on the bylaw which, if endorsed, will provide a fixed assessment for another ten years for the C. G. E. plant. The company have for the past ten years been paying taxes on an assessed valuation of $250,000. They now propose to put up an addition to their plant which will practically double their capacity, and they ask that their assessment be not increased in this respect but that the concession be extended within legal limits.

The increase in the working capacity of the plant will probably mean the employment of about three thousand men, the same number of wage earners who already find work there. This represents a population of about ten thousand persons, enough to constitute a city by themselves. The erection of the addition here, the directors announce, is contingent upon the adoption of the bylaw. If the bylaw is rejected the extension will be made in some other city where the company has already a plant in operation and where the people are alive to their opportunities.

It should be necessary only to call the attention of the qualified voters to this matter to enlist their hearty co-oeration in supporting the bylaw. There is not a workingman in the city who does not understand the advantages of the proposition. No matter what his ideas may be on the question of bonusing industries, he must remember that the present system is not only legalized but that it is in general operation. Peterborough cannot hope to grow without new industries, and it is impossible to secure these unless something in the way of inducement is offered for their establishment here.

This question has been thoroughly discussed already and all the details have been laid before the people. Ald. J. J. Turner, ex-president of the Board of Trade, in a recent communication in the local press, put up an admirable and unanswerable argument in favor of the propositoin. A statement by Mayor McIntyre in another part of the same issue sheds further light on the subject. Not a single valid reason for opposing this bylaw can be advanced. The arguments are all on the other side of the question. There is little doubt as to the result, unless indifference on the part of those who are really in favor of the bylaw keeps them from the polls on Tuesday. There is a double opportunity before the ratepayers. By supporting the bylaw they can benefit themselves as well as the city as a whole.

The fact should not be lost sight of that even if their assessment is fixed the C. G. E. will pay school taxes upon the fully assessed valee of their plant, and the proposed extension will help to swell the civic revenue for this important purpose.

THE VETERANS' CONVENTION.

THE PROVINCIAL Convention of the G. W. V. A., which wound up a three-days' session with the rousing banquet last night, was one of the biggest function ever brought to this city and is beyond all question certain to be most far reaching in its results. Scores of the delegates who attended that convention had never been in this city before. Perhaps none bad heard more than a casual mention of the same. They return to their several homes duly impressed with the importance of this city as a manufacturing centre, as a desirable place of residence, and with the hospitality of the citizens as a whole. The convention has been the greatest advertisement the city of Peterborough has ever received, and has in every way been worth, many times over, the civic expenditure which it entailed. Besides the material advantage which may accrue, there is the inestimable honor and pleasure which the citizens as a whole must feel in having been the hosts of such a distinguished body of visitors. The latter, too, will leave for home with a higher opinion of a community that has made it possible for the returned heroes to acquire club quarters that are admittedly the best of the kind to be found anywhere in the Dominion. What Peterborough has done in this regard is sure to be told in every part of Ontario where there is a branch of the G. W. V. A. to be found.

If the visitors have been impressed, as much can be said of the people of this city. They expected to greet a distinguished and intelligent body of men, but the actual results far exceeded al lexpectations. The half had never been told, to the credit of Ontario's returned soldiers, the men who are now unmistakably well qualified to advance in the highest sense the interests of the country on whose behalf they made so many unselfish sacrifices. The soldiers represented the best of the manhood of Ontario. The delegates in their deliberations showed a high sense of their new duties and responsibilities. They can talk as well as they fought legislate for their country's weal with the same patriotic devotion that inspired them in their work in Flanders. If even half the resolutions which the convention adopted could be implemented, the Canadian people would most certainly be the gainers by the convention of the past three days. The delegates planned for the general good instead of confining themselves to matters intended to promote their own interests. Still, no measure even if specially designed for the benefit of such a representative body of men could not fail to be other than of merely class application. In all that was finally agreed upon in the convention, there was not a single element of danger to the future welfare of nation or Empire. The same patriotism that inspired these men to don the uniform prevailed throughout all their deliberations. There was the ring of true statesmanship in everything that they did.

The visitors are loud in their praises of their reception here. It must be said on behalf of the local branch that they did themselves proud in their handling of the rather difficult situation. It is no easy matter to play the host to such an immense gathering, but there was not a hitch in the arrangements anywhere. The local veterans undertook a task, and with characteristic thoroughness saw it through. The handsome gift of a silver cup to ex-President Harvey Staunton is a substantial token of the sentiment of the visiting delegates and their pleasure at the royal reception tendered them.

THE CHILDREN ORPHANED BY THE WAR.

THE SYMPATHIES of the returned soldiers are extended to the women who have been widowed and the children who have been orphaned by the war. This was manifest all through the deliberations at the recent convention here. The helpless among their comrades were not the only care of the delgates, but throughout, that of the children of those who fell in battle was never for a moment lost sight of.

One of the resolutions adopted embodied the recommendation that the Government assistance allowed orphaned children shall be continued in the case of boys until they are twenty-one years of ago, and to girls until they are eighteen, in case such children are ambitious to secure education in the higher branches.

What could be fairer than this? The father of these children, their natural provider, lost his life in the service of his Empire. The State steps in to assume the care of his dependents, a sorry and unsympathetic substitute at the best. But it is the duty of the State, nevertheless, to do, as far as possible, as much for such children as their own father would have done had he not fallen a martyr to duty. His parental oversight would have been continued until the children had reached the respective ages designated in the resolution. They would not have been denied the privileges which the surviving comrades of their dead father would secure for them. The duty of the State is to see that none of the bereaved be doomed to a blighted or circmscribed existence, for no other reason than the fact that their fathers did not hesitate to discharge the highest duty that mankind can be called upon to perform.

FOR A CIVIC BAND.

IT HAS BEEN suggested that a purely city band be secured for Peterborough by the amalgamation of the three musical units now before the public, one of the arguments used in support of the idea being the statement that in this way the vexed question of dividing the annual grant made by the City Council would be disposed of.

The contention that a band is an essential in the equipment of any city is likely to pass unchallenged. There are occasions when music is required at public functions. It is, however, maintained by some who are in a position to know that the idea of an amalgamation of the three bands now in the city is impracticable.

The Salvation Army band exists for a specific purpose and would never consent to merge its identity with that of any other organization, losing as it would the very object for which it has been organised.

The 57th Band, Peterborough's old-time and distinguished musical organization, the band that has won honors all over the Province, is a regimental band subject to military orders, and as such could never be placed under the control of the civic authorities.

The G. W. V. A. band, that is making such a steady growth both as to numerical strength and efficiency, is the nearest approach to a civic band. When it was voted the instruments of the old 93rd Band by the City Council, one of the conditions was that the band was to play at civic functions whenever called upon. If the city wants to have a band of its own, under its orders in every respect, including the furnishing of music in the public parks, the way is easy. City uniforms for the Veterans' Band will accomplish the end in view.

Chats About Books and Their Authors

(By F. M. D.)

Archibald Marshall is an English novelist whose books are becoming increasingly popular on both sides of the Atlantic. It is a good sign as he is a man who is eminently sane and whose writings show that he is not in the least bit tinctured with the prevailing taste for dabbling in the sordid cess-pools of life. A few years ago his name was hardly known in Canada. Today most libraries would concede him a place amongst the more widely-read authors in their clientele. He has written several books, of which "Richard Baldock," "The Honor of the Clintons," "The Graftons" and "Watermeads" are probably the best known. "Richard Baldock" was published in 1906, and although interesting, is not as well-developed as some of his later stories. It is a psychological study of a young man's struggle against his environment. His father, a clergyman, is desirous that his son should follow in his footsteps and the story revolves around the question as to whether or not he shall carry out his father's wishes. "The Honor of the Clintons" is a story of English country life as most of Mr. Marshall's books are, and its portrayal of real English men and women constitutes perhaps its chief value. For it shows them as they are and not as idiotic moving pictures and stage caricaturists sometimes love to exhibit them. Mr. Clinton's daughter-in-law is here depicted as a thief sheltering behind another woman's theft. Mr. Marshall is a deft hand at characterization and this power exerted in an interesting plot makes of "The Honor of the Clintons" a very readable story. He has written many books. "The Greatest of These" is a tale of life in an English country parish. "Abington Abbey" deals with the lives of George Grafton, a wealthy London banker, and his three lovely daughters. He purchases a country seat and in that rural paradise most of the incidents that go towards the making-up of the novel occur. The inevitable clergyman figures in its pages. "The Graftons" carries on the story begun in Abington Abbey and exhibits Mr. Marshall probably at his best, as a splendid exponent of the character, temperament and ways of life of the English gentry. His books as a whole would not appeal to lovers of the novels of Oppenheim or of Ridgwell Cullum, but to the middle-aged and the elderly and all who prize restful reading, the works of Archibald Marshall may be unreservedly recommended. The novelist to whom he approaches nearest in treatment and in choice of theme would seem to be Anthony Trollope.

"The Young Visiters."

There is a book which for the past year or so has been giving critics and the general public alike a good deal to talk about. I refer to that youthful effusion of Miss Daisy Ashford, "The Young Visiters." Notwithstanding, Sir James Barrie's direct denial that he had absolutely nothing to do with the writing of it, even to the placing of one comma or semi-colon, and the further assurance by Mr. Frank Swinnerton, the well-known novelist, who acts as reader to Messrs. Chatto and Windus, that he had not "touched it up," there are still many people who persist in believing that it must have been written by an adult hand. Those who are of this opinion can know very little indeed of the psychology of English life. England is full of homes where children of tender years are encouraged by every means in the power of their parents to amuse themselves in literary composition. In the quiet seclusion of the Yorkshire rectory the Bronte sisters first learned to plot out those stories which were destined to make them famous. In many another home at the present time, we may rest assured that one of the chief joys of the children is to be found in attempts at composition. I have in mind as I write, one family where such juvenile efforts were carried out consistently and developed such a taste for writing that even when the family grew up and the boys went out to the four corners of the world to engage in life's struggle, the idea was still carried on. The sister left at home engaged to act as editor, and from Canada, from Australia, from India, from the United States and from Egypt, articles dealing with the varied lives of the brothers and cousins found their way to England to be incorporated in a family journal, named after the parental roof-tree, the "Craigfoot Family Papers." Those journals are still in existence and contain not only productions quite as juvenile and humorous as "The Young Visiters," but most interesting and illuminating accounts of life in Texas, on the sheep-runs of Australia, on the battle-fields of Isandula and Tel-el-Kebir and on the prairies of Western Canada. Allowing for the difference in moral atmosphere in home training and in general outlook on life, which form a line of demarcation between England and the self-governing dominions, it does not seem by any means a wonderful thing that a young girl should have been the writer of "The Young Visiters."

The book is simply a recital of life as it presented itself to one innocent of the ways of the world and who viewed it through the rose-colored spectacles of a child's imagination. The strangeness of the names in the book seems to puzzle many people. They ask, "How could a child think of such a name as Salteena or Procurio?" There is no definite answer to be given to such a question, but such names might easily be coined in a home where games with a literary flavor held sway. Young people can do and say most surprising things. One needs but to turn to the pages of Lady Glenconner's "Sayings of the Children" to gain abundant evidence of this. When a youngster of six or seven can talk of honey as "bee-jam" and describe the way in which he broke an egg by saying, "I took off the top, and I only just put in the spoon, and all the egg came caterpillaring out," or speak of the sensation produced in his throat by a cold as "I've got a sort of feeling in my throat as if the moon was there, the pointed moon, scratching it, or the sun sticking his beams into it," one need not be unduly sceptical as to the authorship of "The Young Visiters."

Another Precocity.

As additional evidence of youthful precocity I can cite the case of a young boy of twelve who felt impelled on one occasion to write a letter to his big cousin, a cadet at Woolwich. His cousin told him in his reply that he had greatly contributed to the merriment of the Prince Imperial and the other officers of the mess by reading to them extracts from the letter. The Prince, he said, was overcome with hilarity at the boy's reference to the other boys at his school as "merely a horde of natural phenomenons." There is really no limit to the strange and unexpected flights, humorous and otherwise, that a child's imagination may take.

SPRING WEATHER HARD ON BABY

The Canadian Spring weather—one day mild and bright; the next raw and blustery is extremely hard on the baby. Conditions are such that the mother cannot take the little one out for the fresh air so much to be desired. He is confined to the house which is often over-heated and badly ventilated. He catches cold; his little stomach and bowels become disordered and the mother soon has a sick baby to look after. To prevent this an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets should be given. They regulate the stomach and bowels, thus preventing or relieving colds, simple fevers, colic or any other of the many minor ills of childhood. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

Athletes everywhere are preparing for the Olympic games which will be held this summer in Belgium. The marathon runners are in full training for that strenuous race, the stellar event of the games, which requires long and careful preparation.

Which calls to mind the feats of Mensen Ernst, the greatest endurance runner that ever lived. I speak of this man because he seems to be entirely forgotten. I have never heard his name mentioned, although there are books written about this iron man of Norway whose marvellous cross-country running is unapproached by man or beast.

Here is a brief account of his career. Note his records carefully and remember that it is doubtful if the man lives today who can run 100 miles in one day, let alone average 125 miles a day for two weeks as Ernst did.

Mensen Trnst war born in 1799 in Bergen, Norway, and went to London in 1820, after having been a sailor on East Indian traders for some years. He entered the then popular cross-country races being held in England and made good from the start. He ran races between London and the cities in the north of England and after some years was considered unbeatable. He also ran races on the continent and astonished people everywhere by his speed and endurance.

In 1832 British sportsmen arranged a race for him from Paris to Moscow. There was heavy betting on his time between the different places of control on the route. He started from Paris June 11 and arrived in Moscow June 25, having covered 1,625 miles at an average of 125 miles a day and swimming across 13 big rivers on his way. He surprised even his most ardent admirers by this remarkable performance.

In 1833 he ran from Munich, Bavaria, to Nauplia in southern Greece, from June 6 to June 30, a distance of 2,060 miles across rough and hilly country, averaging 86 miles a day.

He was engaged as courier by the British East India Company for some time and in 1836 he took an important message to Lord Auckland, then governor in Calcutta. He started from Constantinople and returned with the reply, having covered a distance of 5,625 miles across Antolia, Persia, Afghanistan and Northern India and back, in 59 days, averaging 95 miles a day.

In 1843 he poined a British expedition to Africa and died of fever the same year in Egypt. An account of his life was published by Rieck in Leipzig in 1844.

GUARD AGAINST THE 'FLU

Serious Outbreaks of Influenza all over Canada

GOOD HEALTH IS THE SUREST SAFEGUARD

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brings Vigor and Vitality and Thus Protects Against Disease

There can be no doubt that the situation regarding the spread of Influenza throughout Canada is one of grave concern. It is quite true that the number of cases does not constitute an epidemic such as caused the suffering and sorrow during the terrible days of 1918. Yet there is no disguising the fact that everyone should be on their guard against the disease.

In Montreal alone, from January 20th to February 21st, three thousand, one hundred and twenty-two cases of Influenza and 139 deaths from the disease were reported to the Health Department.

If the outbreak had come at the beginning of the winter instead of the end, we might reasonably feel that the very cold weather would check the spread of the disease. But coming as it has, at the end of the winter, there is grave fear that an epidemic may occur. For spring, with its slush and rain under foot, its dampness and chill, its constant changing from cold to warm and back again, is a prolific source of coughs and colds, pleurisy and pneumonia.

Those who are not as well and strong as they should be; those who are underweight; those who are "run-down" through overwork or sickness; should build up at once. What they need is a Blood-purifier, a body-builder, a strength-giver, like "Fruit-a-tives", the wonderful fruit medicine.

"Fruit-a-tives" regulates the kidneys and bowels, causing these organs to eliminate waste regularly and naturally as nature intended. "Fruit-a-tives" keeps the skin active, and insures an abundant supply of pure, rich blood. "Fruit-a-tives" tones up and strengthens the organs of digestion, sharpens the appetite, brings restful sleep and renews the vitality of the nervous system. "Fruit-a-tives" contains everything that an ideal tonic should have; to purify the blood, to build up strength and vigor, and to regulate the eliminating organs, so that the whole system would be in the best possible condition to resist disease.

Now is the time to build up your health and strength, not only as a precaution against the ravages of Influenza, but also to protect you against "spring fever" and the inevitable reaction which comes with the appearance of warmer weather. Get a box of "Fruit-a-tives" today and let this fruit medicine keep you well.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, trial size 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Queer Turn of Fate's Wheel.

An announcement on the cables from Paris a few days ago showed a queer turn in the wheel of fate. It said that James Hazen Hyde had been made an assistant to Harvey D. Gibson, with the American Red Cross in Paris. Only a few years ago Mr. Hyde was an outstanding figure in American finance, and Mr. Gibson at the same time was an express clerk earning less than $80 a month. Mr. Hyde was the son of the founder of the Equitable Life and inherited his father's vast wealth. He was a striking figure for a time. Then came the Hughes investigation of the insurance business and Mr. Hyde fled to Paris, where he became an ornament of the boulevard cafes. Mr. Gibson in the meanwhile had gone steadily upward, became very wealthy, and because of his business ability was selected by Henry P. Davison to become general manager of the American Red Cross. It is said that Mr. Hyde is no longer the social butterfly he became after landing in Paris, and may again rise to great heights.

Why Lake Disappeared.

Mr. Peerabout was the typical tourist, so when on his wanderings he came across a depression in the ground, covering several acres, he pounced upon a native eagerly, firing his questions at him:

"What is this depression, can you tell me, my good man?"

"That is the bed of a lake."

"Is that so, really? And what has happened to the water?"

"It was this way. There was a picnic here last year, and they had a spare case of anchovy, and as they didn't want to carry it home they threw it in the lake."

"Yes; I see! But what has that to do with it?"

"Everything. The fish ate them and the salt diet made them so thirsty they drank all the water."

The Change.

"Ah, what changes one short year has wrought! But 12 months ago, standing at the threshold of the new year, little did I think—"

"I see!" interrupted old Festus Pester, "little did you think then, and now you don't think at all. Is that the idea?"—Kansas City Star.

After the Years

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

It was like a fair dream to Gerald Rolfe, that bright, sunshiny afternoon, but a vivid one, the memory and influence of which was to remain with him through life. He was a manly little fellow of ten, and for two whole blissful hours he had wandered about a beautiful garden with a charming miss two years his junior, she courteous, then gracious, and finally indulgent and affectionate.

Why his widowed mother had brought him from Belleville to call upon Jared Marston, the rich manufacturer, Gerald had then no idea. He was only glad that she had left him to play with the little girl while she, serious-faced and at times weeping, sat on the porch conversing with Mr. Marston, who seemed sympathetic and interested.

"I like you better than any boy I ever knew, Gerald Rolfe," said Beulah Marston, earnestly. "I won't ever forget you."

"Nor I you," replied the lad staunchly. "See, I found two four-leaf clovers. I'm going to press mine and keep it always in this old memorandum book my father always carried."

"And I shall put mine in the little locket I wear with mamma's picture in it," said Beulah.

"Oh, papa!" she added, as her father and his visitor approached, "Please can't he stay and then come again? He is a grand, good boy, and I love him so much!" and both children were in tears at the parting, and then they clung to each other and kissed, Beulah sobbing out her grief and disappointment.

"We are going to leave Belleville tomorrow, Gerald," said Mrs. Rolfe, when they had arrived home. "Your poor father has left nothing and we are going to the city. I shall visit his grave early in the morning and I wish you to go with me."

It was beside the newly made mound that Mrs. Rolfe drew Gerald to her side. "I have something very solemn and sacred to tell you," she said, "something you must never forget and which will be the guiding impulse of your life. Your father died of a broken heart. It was not because he had lost everything, but for the reason that he had innocently involved an estate of two orphans of which he was trustee. That fact drove him nearly insane. When Mr. Marston generously paid up every debt it brought to your father joy and relief and he died blessing this noble benefactor. Gerald, I want you to take a solemn vow that if ever you can serve Jared Marston or his family, even at the cost of all you possess, you will make the sacrifice ungrudgingly."

"I shall never forget," pledged the boy solemnly, and he never did. The vow was as sacredly regarded as was the life remembrance he had promised little Beulah.

Mrs. Rolfe died nine years later, not, however, until she had seen her son secure in a promising position. At twenty-one Gerald was a comparatively wealthy man. Just after that he went down to the home of the Marstons. Incidentally through the years he had kept track of them. Latterly he had learned that Mr. Marston had failed in business. When he arrived Gerald discovered that father and daughter had taken up humble quarters in a little cottage. Mr. Marston had not found employment and Beulah was earning their living as a teacher of music.

It was Beulah who answered his ring at the door bell and informed him that her father was absent. She had grown into a creature so lovely that Gerald sat like one dazzled. He noted that she fixed her eyes penetratingly upon him several times. Finally she said:

"Have I not known you before?"

"Many years ago, yes," he replied.

"Then you are Gerald Rolfe," spoke Beulah. "We were little children then, but I have not forgotten, and father has often wondered what became of you."

"My mother died four years since," said Gerald. "I have come to tell your father of the gratitude and regard of my dear mother," and he recited that solemn promise made at the grave of his father. "Miss Marston, the money your father so generously advanced, with the interest, representing nearly ten thousand dollars, I shall repay, and my partners in business have authorized me to solicit his services as an experienced man in our line."

A few weeks later the Marstons had moved to the city and Gerald called at their new home. He came to confess his love and offer Beulah his heart and fortune. She regarded him thoughtfully, but there was a tremor in her voice as she murmured with a longing smile:

"Are you very sure, Mr. Rolfe, that an overestimate of my father's act of kindness has not influenced pity, charity, an interest that has impelled you towards a sense of duty, rather than—"

"Love?" questioned Gerald quickly. "Let this answer," and from the tattered, cherished old memorandum book he drew forth the four-leaf clover.

And flushing, but happy-eyed, Beulah removed the locket at her fair, white throat and produced the counterpart of the love pledge of the long ago.

JAPS DEVOTED TO WRESTLING

Great Crowds Gather to Witness Contests Which to Western Eyes Would Be Tame Exhibition.

The wrestling hall covers an acre and seats 13,000. Entering the circular hall one snatches glimpses through open doors of greenroom life—wrestlers getting their topknots greased and dressed in most meticulous fashion, and "geishas" watching the operation with suppressed giggles. Inside tiers of seats slope down to the arena in the middle. The affable editor takes me into a large empty box commanding a fine view of the arena and whispers that the box of the crown prince is the next one to the left, Elsie F. Weil writes in Asia Magazine. A vast impersonal fusing together of thousands of heads, a dizzy hum of countless conversations tiring to unaccustomed foreign ears, a curious impression of somberness produced by the enormous patches of black and mouse-gray and blue that predominate in any large Japanese group. The people are dividing their time between sipping tea, smoking their infinitesimal pipes, eating bowls of rice and watching the matches.

Down in the center is the arena, covered with a sloping roof like that of a Shinto shrine, gracefully recalling the time when wrestling matches were given in the court of a temple to trample the ground for building and the proceeds of the contest went to repair temples and shrines. Up in the roof is a little shrine to Nomi no Sukune, the patron deity of wrestlers, to whom offerings of rice are made before the matches. In the first century before Christ the emperor of Japan had an overbearing and insolent officer of the guard, one Keheya. The emperor ordered the strongest men of the realm to wrestle with the herculean bully. Nomi no Sukune challenged him to a bout and trampled him to death, and received as an imperial reward a great estate. As a posthumous honor he was deified as the first to reduce wrestling to an elaborate science. The four pillars supporting the roof of the arena, each draped with a different color, white, blue, red and black, stand for the four seasons. The purple curtain with white wave pattern draping the eaves signifies passion calming the elements. At each of the four posts sits motionless, like a Buddha, one of the elders, or "toshiyori," retired wrestlers who have attained champion rank, and now organize matches, administer finances, take pupils and receive a pension from the wrestling association.

No pestilence in years has caused more widespread suffering than the epidemic of influenza which swept over Canada in the fall and winter of 1918-19 and again this winter. The danger from this trouble is seldom over when the characteristic symptoms, the fever, headache and the depression of spirits have passed away. Influenza leaves behind it weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and over-sensitive nerves. Men and women who were robust before stricken with influenza find their bodies racked by pains previously unknown to them. This condition is due to an abnormal thinning of the blood and leaves the system an easy prey to other serious troubles. This is the time when the convalescent from influenza should build up the blood, with a reliable blood-making tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Weak blood means impoverished nerves, impaired digestion, a feeling of tiredness after even slight exertion, and sometimes even more serious symptoms. When the blood regains its rich red quality the nerves recover their strength and the organs of the body function naturally. In fact building up the blood will vitalize the whole system.

The experience of Mr. Andrew Marty, Bathurst, N.B., will prove of value to a host of influenza sufferers who still suffer from the effects of the disease. Mr. Marty says:—"The new life and consequently new hope brought into my life through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is almost beyond my power of expression. Following a severe attack of influenza in 1918 I found myself rapidly failing in health, and was naturally much alarmed. I began to lose in weight, could not eat, did not sleep well, and in a word I was reduced to a mere shadow. I was forced to discontinue work because of my weakened condition and things had a very blue outlook. I tried a number of suggested remedies, but without benefit. And then one day Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were suggested to me. I acted on my friend's advice, began taking these pills and soon felt an improvement. Every day I seemed to grow stronger, and after four weeks' treatment I felt fully restored to my old-time health. From my own experience I feel that if given a fair trial, there is no medicine superior to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in building up a run-down system."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic not a stimulant. They build up the blood, and not only the disastrous after effects of influenza but also troubles due to poor blood, such as anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion and the general worn-out feeling that affects so many people, disappear. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Torture of the Inquisition

A Modern Example of Suffering

People suffer—suffer torments—with help at hand. Gin Pills can overcome pain in the most marvelous way—all the suffering which follows in the wake of weak or diseased kidneys, such as rheumatism, sciatic neuralgia, stone in the bladder, excruciating backache, stiff and swollen joints and ankles, yields quickly to the soothing, healing, strengthening power of Gin Pills, which contain Juniper and seven other valuable diuretics and antiseptics.

Mr. Arnold McAskell, of Hants, N.S., writes as follows:

"For a long time I suffered from a pain in my back and could not move without agony. I grew worse until confined to bed. A friend advised me to use Gin Pills. Before I had used one box I began to feel better. By the time I had finished two, I was completely cured. I cannot say too much in favor of these pills and I recommend them strongly to anyone suffering from kidney trouble."

HOW KOREANS HONOR DEAD

Weird Ceremonies Commemorative of the Departed One Described by American Woman Traveler.

A little round-faced nun from the nunnery up the mountainside above the monastery was giving a commemorative service for her dead parents. We went into the temple about eight o'clock. It was almost dark inside. The one large standing Buddha was dimly lit by four tapers set in high stands. Before him on the altar stood 13 copper plates piled high with different kinds of breads and above these were heaped cakes and fruit between the artificial flowers. To one side were the nuns from the nearby nunnery with shaven heads, and baggy white trousers and long gray robes exactly like the priests. The faces were indistinct in the dimness. Hour after hour we sat cross-legged on mats. All around us was the sound of intoning "Kwanzeun Posal, Kwanzeun Posal, Kwanzeun Posal, Kwanzeun Posal," with slow genuflections, till the head touched the floor, slow risings, the genuflections, endlessly repeated. The abbot struck on a wooden gong, faster and faster came the calls to Kwanzeun Posal; the incense from the censer filled the room. The reiteration of the liturgy grew almost hypnotizing—then suddenly when I felt that I could bear it no longer, the neophytes carried in numbers of little tables, one for each priest, lighted a candle on each, spread out one of the holy books and retired silently. The candles brought the faces into sudden relief against the darkness. At a signal the bonzes opened their books; each chose whatever passage he wished and began intoning, each voice at a different key and rhythm and words, yet all blending together into a twisted strand of sound. And over the genuflecting monks and the funny wrinkled round-faced nuns stood the one dim golden Buddha with folded hands. At two o'clock in the morning beneath a westerning moon the priest, led by the abbot, filed out and performed what looked for all the world like a solemn snake dance in the middle of the court. We were each presented with a large pink lotus, and then all marched to a lower terrace, where in the shadow of the gateway they read for a last time the names of the dead, and then consigned the heaps of flowers to the fire, that writhed like a tortured dragon spitting out sparks of burning petals high in the air.—Elizabeth J. Coatsworth, in Asia Magazine.

Smallest Bird.

The golden-crested wren is the smallest of all European birds. Its average weight is only about eighty grains troy, so that it would take seventy-two of the birds to weigh a pound. The length of the feathers is about three and a half inches. When the feathers are off, the body is only an inch long.

Woman's Sphere in Japan.

"Most servants in Japan can only cook a little rice in plain, hot water," says a Tokyo lawyer. "They know nothing about fixing all the good things that go with the rice. That is why the women of Japan are too busy to get lonely or to need clubs."—Adelaide Lyons in World Outlook.

Experience.

It seems to me it is the same with love and happiness as with sorrow—the more we know of it the better we can feel what other people's lives are or might be, and so we shall only be more tender to them and wishful to help them.—George Eliot.

First Branch, Then Root.

How the branch of a tree may turn into a root and later become a branch again is illustrated by the behavior of some of the vegetation of the shifting sand regions of Indiana and Michigan, on the shores of the Great Lakes.

Pigeons Are Speedy.

In calm weather a carrier pigeon can fly at the rate of 1,200 yards a minute. With the help of a moderate wind it will attain a speed of 1,540 yards, and before a high wind, 2,000 yards.

BEGIN TO RENEW FORESTS

England and Scotland Have Already Started to Replace Trees Cut Down During the War.

England and Scotland are preparing to replant forests which have been cut to provide war supplies. They are not waiting until peace is concluded, but are doing it now. Never before have those countries been so bare of timber. Hunting ranges and sporting grounds have been sacrificed to supply munition factories at home and armies abroad. The old forests were primarily ornamental and incidentally useful, but those which are now being provided for will be primarily useful and incidentally ornamental, says Robert H. Moulton in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

In the United States we are not in so much need of tree planting as they are in the British isles. But there are two kinds of timber which the war demand has greatly depleted, and they are kinds of much importance—locust and black walnut.

There is another point to be considered in the planting of these trees: They can be grown on sandy tracts of land which are now considered of no value, and thus reclaim the land.

An excellent illustration of what can be accomplished in the way of reclaiming useless land through the planting of trees has been carried out during the last six or eight years by a resident of Whiteside county, Illinois. In these years he has accomplished the seemingly impossible task of turning some 70 acres of sand, formerly as barren as the desert of Sahara, into a flourishing forest. Nor is that all; for this forest, acting as a sand binder, has been the means of saving other fertile acres from the inroads of the drifting sand, and the total result being that the farm has increased several times in value. The sandy tracts, which, before being planted to trees, were practically worthless, are now worth anywhere from $50 to $100 an acre.

HOLYOKE HAS LOST HONOR

Town Officially Declared Not to Have Been the Birthplace of Junius Spencer Morgan.

Holyoke, Mass., which has long claimed the honor of being the birthplace of Junius Spencer Morgan, grandfather of the present J. P. Morgan, has been shorn of this fame by the town of West Springfield. This decision has been rendered by the Connecticut Valley Historical society.

The explanation lies in the fact that the present city of Holyoke was formerly a part of the town of West Springfield and that, contrary to Holyoke's contention, and the assumption of the Morgan family, the site of the ancestral home of Junius Spencer Morgan is still included within the boundaries of West Springfield, though by a narrow margin.

The present J. P. Morgan received an opportunity to perpetuate family history in West Springfield through the instrumentality of any public gift which appealed to his fancy. Though Mr. Morgan was unresponsive, the contest between Holyoke and West Springfield for birthplace honors progressed merrily and was settled only recently.

Aviators' Ailments.

Rarefied air affects the aviator as well as his engine, and those who plan to make flying a regular vocation or to make frequent flights to a considerable height are liable to find difficulties in adjusting themselves to the new conditions. Etienne and Lamy reported to the French Academy of Medicine that enlargement of the heart develops in all aviators. In ascending to an altitude where the atmospheric pressure is half that normal to the body or less, extra work is suddenly thrown upon the heart, and if this is repeated often or long continued some adjustment is the natural course. The hypertrophy seems to vary in degree with the height frequented. Chasing and bombing airplanes usually fly above 15,000 feet, and the heart enlargement induced is greater than among the groups of fliers who keep in the zone from 3,000 to 10,000 feet above sea level.

Bonfires in England.

The bonfires which lit up London during the armistice celebrations were familiar sights in London in Henry VIII's reign. At the sunsetting, in the months of June and July, says Old Stow the Chronicler, "bonefires," as they were called in his day, were made in the streets, "every man bestowing wood or labor toward them." Citizens set out tables near the fires, with plentiful refreshments, on festival days, and thereunto they invited their neighbors, and "passengers" also, "to sit and be merry with them in great familiarity." These "bonefire" celebrations were considered good opportunities for the closing of old disputes, and for the bringing of good amity among neighbors.—Christian Science Monitor.

GOVERNMENT FORCES HOLD CAUCUS TODAY

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM REVIEWED—DEBATE ON ADDRESS TO BE CURTAILED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, March 19.—The Ontario Government's legislative program was further reviewed at a caucus of Farmer and Labor members at Queen's Park this morning. Various measures were under discussion during the meeting. It is known that the Government is now determined to wind up the speech from the throne with all possible speed, in order to clear the way for fresh business. No efforts would be spared to bring the debate to a close before the end of next week, although the list of speakers is still a lengthy one. Private members' day in the House this afternoon means a light session.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

BRITAIN WILLING TO PRESENT WARSHIPS

DETAILS OF ADMIRAL JELLICO'S NAVAL PLANS ARE LAID BEFORE PARLIAMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 19.—The examination of the report of Admiral Jellicoe recently tabled in the House of Commons, shows that the British Government is prepared to present to Canada a fleet of ships which at pre war prices would be worth $16,500, and at present prices would have a much higher value. Admiral Jellicoe's scheme provides for an increase by construction of new cruisers in Canada, but this need not be undertaken until the finances of the country would warrant it. Until these vessels are built the annual expenditure would be between four and a half and five million dollars.

A Newcastle, Pa., newspaper published celebrated his birthday by placing a notice in the paper that he would present each baby born on that day with a $5 gold piece. So far he has reports of eight births.

PETERBOROUGH CITY

it would be the object of the delegates to go home and preach to their comrades to follow the example of Peterborough. Its cleanliness particularly struck the speaker and he thought that the building also represented the spirit of the men.

There was still an important duty devolving upon him at the present time of presenting a splendid cup to an honored member of the Peterborough branch and Provincial Executive, Comrade H. J. Staunton. His comrades of the local Command had asked him to present this cup. (Loud applause). It was a tribute for the untiring efforts of Comrade Staunton on behalf of the Peterborough Command.

Comrade Staunton, in replying, stated that he was deaf and dumb with emotion. But he thanked all very much for their kind consideration.

The Incoming President.

The toast to the incoming president of the Provincial Command, G.W.V.A., was proposed most eloquently by Comrade Appleyard, Woodstock, in the absence of Dr. Sharpe, who was scheduled for this task. He felt it was a little out of place to ask him to propose such a toast. There were three necessities for a good speaker. The first was to "get up." The second was to "speak up," and the third was to "shut up."

The new officers would need a very wide vision looking after the good of the association for months ahead. He wished them the best of success. The Peterborough Veterans' home was worth all the good words that had been said about it and had given the delegates a vision of what they might do to their own branches. The executive would do their best to realize the great principle laid down at the convention so that the Ontario Executive would be the premier executive of the Dominion.

Comrade Dr. Wilson, Toronto, said that it afforded him a great pleasure to welcome the incoming president. No one realized more than Comrade O'Flynn that this association was one of the greatest associations in Ontario. This association properly controlled and conducted would become one of the greatest forces for good in the Province. All that was needed was unity among ourselves. He was proud to be able to say that we have a leader of character who held the confidence of the association.

A Great Force for Right.

President "Eddy" O'Flynn spoke words of praise for the ladies. He wished to pay special tribute to the city of Peterborough and to the ladies of Peterborough. He remembered the difficulties under which these ladies had worked. He was confident that to their efforts was due the erection of this great hall. The trials during the war had been tremendous and in many cases heartbreaking.

We all realized that our main motto is "service. "Our first duty is to help the widows and orphans of our fallen comrades." declared President O'Flynn. He then related the objectives aimed at by the association and the reforms which were required. He was confident that the association would move on and be a great force for right in this great Province of ours.

Comrade Armstrong, Mount Dennis, proposed the toast to the incoming executive. As he was in much of a hurry to catch the late train out of Peterborough he made it a toast without a speech.

Comrade R. Harrison, Windsor, responded on behalf of the new executive. He thought that there was little left for him to say. Words could not express the confidence placed in him when they elected him 1st vice-president. He assured them on behalf of his comrades that they would fight on for the great ideals for which the association stood. He was proud to be associated with such comrades in such work. Judge Huycke's eloquent address brought back to his mind forcibly those responsibilities upon their shoulders. He wished that address could be framed and kept before them. So well did his address express the ideals of the Great War Veterans of Canada.

At the close of the program Comrade Jeakins proposed the toast to Comrade Muir, president of the local command.

Comrade Muir replied that "he came on the scenes a very nervous man," but as the evening developed he had gained confidence and done his best to fill the office of chairman.

Built Up By Trade.

Rev. F. E. Malott, in response to the toast to "Our Empire," said the British Empire needs very little defence of her empire-building, which has mainly been prosecuted on trade rather than military lines. Wherever the British flag flies, he declared, all men find just and equitable protection, and all who have come under British institutions have found freedom for the best expression of their well-being. It was, he said, a source of marvel, that Britain has raised up men willing to go to the very outposts of this great Empire—like India and Egypt—and play the parts of men. He believed the British Empire had a mission under Providence to rule such nations as Hindoos and Egyptians in the development of advanced civilization and the principles of freedom.

"Our City."

President A. J. Bolwell, of the Trades and Labor Council, proposed this toast in fitting terms. He did not, however, purpose taking up the time of such a happy evening in extolling this city's many excellent institutions and its natural advantages. He was sure that the citizens of Peterborough had enjoyed the delegates' visit as keenly as he hoped those delegates had enjoyed their stay here. He also hoped all would return home with kind words for this fair city.

Peterborough Honored.

Mayor A. A. McIntyre, in reply, said:

We feel that Peterborough is indeed honored when a toast to the city is drunk by the company gathered here. We regard yo not only as veterans of the great war, but as representing all the Great War Veterans of the Province of Ontario, and it warms our hearts to have our city honored by such a brave company of brave men.

Your presence brings to our minds the long and anxious days of the great struggle. There were many reasons for anxiety, our personal reasons in the fears for the safety of those we knew. National reasons for the flag we loved, and the success of the armies of the Empire to which we belonged, and anxiety for the liberties and freedom of humanity.

It was more than the existence of a nation or an empire that was at stake in the fields of Flanders and France, for, while you defended the trenches or charged the foe, it was the continuation of our civilization that hung in the balance.

It is to you who endured the trying times of the trench, the dugout and the mud, who held your ground against great odds in numbers and in armament, and who finally drove back and conquered the foe who con-

MISS MABEL S. DESCHANES, a popular and attractive young woman of Lewiston, Maine, is now an ardent champion of Tanlac, since she began using it a few weeks ago.

Miss Mabel S. Deschanes, a popular and attractive young woman residing at No. 7 Bartlett Street, Lewiston, Me., is now an ardent champion of Tanlac, since she began using the medicine a few weeks ago.

"I prize Tanlac above every other medicine, even that which was prescribed for me," said Miss Deschanes in relating her experience recently. "I dislike publicity, but there are so many others who, no doubt, suffer as I did, I feel that I ought to tell them about it.

"I had been a great sufferer from indigestion and had been under the doctor's care for six months without relief. At the time I began taking Tanlac I was on a very rigid diet and at times could not retain food of any kind. Even cold water would cause extreme nausea. I suffered from loss of appetite, severe cramping pains after eating and extreme nervousness.

"Finally my condition got so bad I simply had to give up and go to bed until I got relief. I was unable to go down town to do my shopping and, although I had been under treatment for six months, there seemed to be no relief for me. Honestly, I don't believe I would be alive now if I hadn't gotten Tanlac, for I was suffering terribly and getting worse all the time.

"Finally my sister persuaded me to try Tanlac. I improved from the very first and one bottle did me more good than the six months' treatment. Why, I actually gained four pounds in weight while taking this one bottle. I have now taken four bottles and I feel just like a different person and am eating just anything I want; in fact, everything seems to agree with me perfectly. I am now able to do my shopping without becoming fatigued in the least and am no longer nervous like I was.

"Tanlac is simply wonderful, and I can not praise it too highly."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by The Warne Drug Co., and by the leading druggists in every town.

EX-PRESIDENT TURNER OF BOARD OF TRADE FAVORS C.G.E. BY-LAW

In Clear and Concise Terms Shows Why the City Should Grant the Company the Fixed Assessment Asked for Vote to be Taken on March 23.

Editor Review: On Tuesday, March 23rd, the lectors of Peterborough will have to decide a question which is one of the most important for the future of the city that has ever come before them, when they will be called upon to vote upon a bylaw to fix the assessment of the Canadian General Electric Company. It is not too much to say that the establishment of the Electric Works here was the foundation for the expansion of the city that has taken place. The increase in population in the last Dominion census decade was 63 per cent., which was greater than in any of the smaller cities of Ontario, including Brantford and Windsor. This was a remarkable record, and, while other industries contributed largely to this growth, we should remember that the repeated enlargements of the Canadian General Electric Company's factory were a very important factor. The first factory building erected by this company was considered a large one, and rightly so considered, but it forms now a small part of the whole extensive plant of the company. The city is deeply, even vitally, interested in the continued expansion of this industry. The company's business will continue to grow, and it will add to the employment it gives, and the question that will be decided on the vote on this bylaw is whether this increased growth and augmented employment will take place in Peterborough or in Toronto and Montreal.

Two Considerations.

Two considerations should be taken into account. One consideration is the agreement that was made and the bylaw that was passed in 1906, and the other is the extensive additions the Electric Company proposes to make now.

Bylaw No. 1228, passed on the 16th day of May, 1906, provided that if the Canadian General Electric Co. constructed buildings "of substantial material suitable for its manufacturing business at the cost of at least $200,000," the lands, "personal and other property of the company for a period of twenty years, computed from the 1st day of January, 1911, shall be annually assessed for all purposes en bloc at the sum of $150,000 and no more as a fixed assessment, including business assessment, and the said lands and premises and property shall be for such time exempt from any further assessment."

At that time the Municipal Act provided that such a bylaw should only be effective upon being favored by a vote of two-thirds of all the electors on the voters' list. This was an impracticable provision, impossible of being carried out, for even at an annual election that many voters did not poll their votes. The practice of the Council, in view of this, was to apply to the Legislature for the confirmation of industrial bylaws. Such an application was made with respect to this Electric Company bylaw. The Legislature confirmed it except that they made the company liable for full school taxes and made the period ten years instead of twenty. In regard to the period, they said that the general law provided that "exemption from taxation or a fixed assessment shall not be for longer than ten years, but may be renewed from time to time for further periods not exceeding ten years at any one time," and that they would make the bylaw comply with this, leaving the question of renewal for another ten years as it was in the general law.

Request for Renewal.

The company now ask for that renewal. They say that they carried out their part of the bargain then made, which they did, and that the city can now carry out its part of the bargain by passing the present bylaw and thus keep faith with the company. Senator Nicholls based his request on this ground, that they having done their part fully, the city should keep faith and do its part.

It is true that, the Legislature not having confirmed the bylaw as it was passed, the twenty years' exemption is not legally binding. If it were, this bylaw now to be voted on would not be needed. But the company acted in good faith and went ahead and erected the buildings called for, and as the city can now carry out its part of the bargain if it wishes, the company will consider it an act of bad faith if it does not do so. Thus one consideration facing us is, can we, or should we, refuse to pass the bylaw, and give the impression that the city will not keep faith and will back out of a bargain made if it finds a way of doing it?

The Expansion Promised.

The other consideration is the additions the company will make to its factory if the bylaw is passed.

When he met the Council, Senator Nicholls said that the minimum expenditure would be $500,000, but that Mr. Patterson had asked for still tor Nicholls has written to the Mayor and stated tha $1,000,000 will be expended on these improvements.

The new buildings will include an extension from the concrete building to Albert street, and one from that extension along Albert street to the machine shop building. Also a building connecting the building next east with the extension along Albert street, and one connecting No. 2 building, the second west of Park street, with the stores building on Albert street. Parts of these new buildings will be two stories.

The additional floor space will be over 108,000 square feet, and it will all be addition factory space.

Let us try to visualize that 108,000 square feet mean.

The factory building of the Nashua Paper Co. (the old Cordage Works), which consists of three large working rooms (apart from storehouse, etc.) has a little over 34,000 square feet, so that the new factory buildings of the Electric Company will be over three times that size.

If the Electric Company's new buildings were all of one storey they would cover the whole block from Hunter to Simcoe streets and from George to Water streets, and also about one quarter of the next block.

The new buildings will have space equal to a building 50 feet by over 2,000 feet. That is, they will be equal to a building 50 feet wide extending from Hunter street to Sherbrooke street and on more than half way to Dalhousie street.

When the Electric Company first came to Peterborough they erected a building 272 by 100 feet with galleries. This was looked upon as a large building, a great acquisition, and it was. Yet the new buildings now proposed will be about two and a half times as large.

Not Tax Exemption.

The company is not free of taxes and will not be. In the past five years they have paid $75,587.18 in taxes, or over $15,000 a year. The new buildings, if erected, will be assessable for school, local improvement and patriotic purposes, and at this year's rate the company will pay about $5,300 a year additional in taxes on those new buildings.

The company's pay roll now amounts to $59,000 for each pay day, or half month, and Senator Nicholls calculates that with the proposed extensions the pay roll will be doubled in amount.

If a new company were coming here to put up a plant such as these extensions, I think we would more quickly recognize the value of the addition to our industries, but we should appreciate what these extensions will mean to the city.

Female Labor Needed.

One of the industrial needs of Peterborough is more female labor. Canadian Woollens, Ltd., have in contemplation further extensive additions to both their Auburn and Bonner-Worth mills, which will give employment to several hundred people. But they will require more female employes, as do other factories which are in contemplation, and these extensive additions to the Electric Works would give employment to many more men, which would mean more families and more female employes available for the other factories. Thus, the expansion of the Electric Works, great as it would be would be of even more benefit to the city than the additional employment that would be given there.

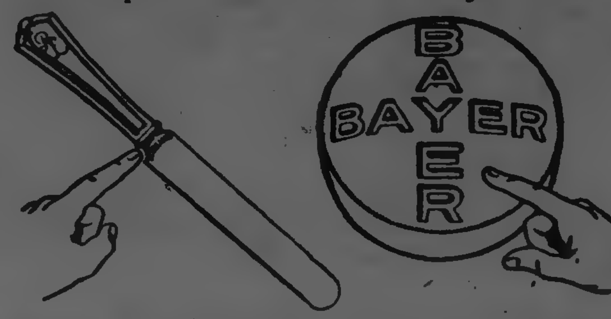
Peterborough has done well in industrial growth. But to give a proper impetus a large factory extension is needed at the present time, and the additions to the Electric Works would provide the necessary expansion and furnish the required impetus.

It is an important matter that is to be decided on March 23rd, very important for the future of the city. If the electors do not endorse the bylaw, the company will look upon it as breaking faith with them and they will not erect the new buildings here. If the bylaw is endorsed, the additional buildings will be erected and equipped with machinery and the additional employment given, and the good will of the company will be retained so that future extensions will be made here, including, I hope before long, the manufacture of electric locomotives, which the company intended to take up when the war broke out.

Yours sincerely,
J. J. TURNER.

ONLY TABLETS MARKED "BAYER" ARE ASPIRIN

Not Aspirin at All without the "Bayer Cross"



The name "Bayer" on Aspirin is like Sterling on silver. It positively identifies the only genuine Aspirin,—the Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years and now made in Canada.

Always buy an unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" which contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Joint Pains, and Pain generally.

Tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer"

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

PETERBOROUGH MOTOR SHOW ON APRIL 14, 15, 16 WILL SURPASS ALL THE PREVIOUS LOCAL SHOWS

The plans for the Peterborough Motor Show to be held in the armouries April 14, 15, 16, are rapidly crystallizing in all details.

In scope, extent and variety of attractions this year's show shall surpass that of any previous year.

At a fully attended meeting of the Advisory Board of the Red Cross Association, which has undertaken to conduct the show in behalf and with the co-operation of the Health Association, all committees reported their respective arrangements to give Peterborough a real surprise.

All available space for auto exhibits has already been allotted and the 1920 line up of cars and trucks—latest models—will be as complete as any shown in larger cities. The enthusiasm of the local dealers is evidenced in their active preparation of their respective exhibits.

To the many features of previous years carried out by the several organizations that have always contributed to the success of the show will be several entirely new exhibits, novelties and "stunts" of the different kinds appealing to all and make the show more than ever one that everyone can visit and enjoy.

No need to point out to the people of Peterborough why their support and attendance is expected. The worthy work of the Health Association in promoting the welfare of Peterborough places a duty on all of Peterborough's people to answer its calls for support—the entire proceeds of the show goes to help the association in its work.

Apart from this the show this year will be "worth your money" in amusements, motor information and from an educational standpoint.

Announcements will be made from time to time, but there are some surprises that will be held in store and remain a secret until the show is opened.

Come on— It's your show.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

DIRECTORS OF HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY HELD BUSINESS SESSION LAST NIGHT

The first business meeting of the new board of directors of the Peterborough Horticultural Society was held last night in the Board of Trade rooms. In the absence of the president, Mr. A. Weddell, through illness, Dr. J. E. Middleton acted as chairman.

Mr. K. Simpson was appointed director for two years, and Mr. E. H. D. Hall for one year. Messrs. R. M Glover and E. E. Brumwell were appointed auditors, and Mr. J. H Callander was appointed secretary-treasurer to succeed Mr. Brumwell.

The secretary was instructed to write to six other societies for copies of their option lists. A committee composed of Dr. Middleton, Mr. A Sanders and the secretary, was appointed to interview the local florists as to what was available for this year's spring options.

TOURISTS FOR STONEY LAKE

Many Prospects are Heard From By the Board of Trade

The pamphlet issued by the Peterborough Board of Trade extolling the beauty of the Kawartha Lakes and their advantages to tourists, is having its effects in places other than New York. Enquiries have been received from many tourists in the Dominion asking as to the suitabilty of the lake region for Canadian tourists this summer.

LAKEFIELD

(Special Correspondence.)

Lakefield, March 20. — A merry St. Patrick's party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Graham, when about sixty friends were asked to spend the evening with them. Progressive euchre was played, Miss Tanner winning a very pretty Chinese tray cloth as a prize, and Mr. W. Sherin a very useful case of cards. Luncheon was served in true Irish fashion, the little tables with table centres trimmed with shamrocks and green baskets, with sugar and candy, not to mention the green cakes, sweets and ices. Tea was served in the pretty drawing rooms, the curtains decked with harps and shamrocks. Little favors of real Irish shamrocks, Irish flags and pipes were carried away as mementoes of the occasion.

Mr. A. G. Lawless spent Thursday in Peterborough.

Miss Tanner and her sister, Mrs. Edwards, of Montreal, spent Thursday in Peterborough.

Mrs. Ed. Watley is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Wall, of Peterborough.

Rev. Mr. Ashton made a business trip to Peterborough on Wednesday.

Mr. Young, who has been visiting friends in the village, returned to Peterborough on Wednesday.

Rev. A. W. McKenzie spent the week-end in Toronto the guest of his father.

Mr. Sam Grylls, of the staff of the Royal Bank, Toronto, who was in the village attending the funeral of his grandmother, the late Charles Grylls, returned to Toronto Thursday.

"The River Thames, from Oxford to London," was the interesting subject for the illustrated lecture given in St. John's Sunday school hall last Monday evening. Another lecture will be given on Tuesday, March 30, the subject being "The Cathedrals and Castles of England."

Mrs. J. Payne was the guest of her brother, Mr. C. Frankish, Warsaw.

Rev. Father Meagher was pleasantly surprised when he received a large box of Irish shamrock from Ireland Wednesday morning.

Miss D. Hilliard spent Wednesday in Peterborough.

Mr. O. F. Donnecker of Peterborough was in the village on Wednesday.

Mr. T. Braden made a business trip to Peterborough on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Spence spent Wednesday in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell of Peterborough were in the village on Tuesday.

Mrs. J. H. Chant returned on Wednesday after a visit with friends in Toronto.

Mr. J. Johnson of Guelph is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Bygott.

Miss Hilda McKibbon spent Wednesday in Peterborough.

Mr. E. Bailey of Belleville was in the village on Monday.

sidered himself unconquerable. It is to you that we owe the continued existence of our beloved Empire and our liberties and freedom.

We are glad to have you back with us. Your country still requires your services and civilization still needs you. The enemies are not all silent yet. Insidious attempts to undermine the civilization you fought to maintain, and open attacks on the great principles of democracy you caused to triumph in battle, must be met and overcome wherever they are discovered.

We are pleased that you have held your convention here. We hope that it has been successful and that it will be of great benefit to your association, and we wish you continued success and prosperity.

Men, Every Inch of Them.

Judge Huycke of this city, in proposing the toast to the G. W. V. A had many appreciative eulogisms for the delegates to carry home. As to the new President-Elect E. O'Flynn, of Belleville, he was happy to say that he was the son of one of his, (the Judge's) most intimate friends. Veterans, he declared a honor to their respective communities and a protection of the Empire. When he looked a veteran in the eye he honored him as a man among men, every inch of him.

As to entering politics, his honor said he would not go so far as to advise the G. W. V. A. to do so, but he hoped to see the day when Mayors Councillors, Aldermen of communities will be soldier boys, when members of Provincial and Federal Houses will be soldier boys, and when the Prime Minister of this great Dominion will also be a soldier boy. Had he his way he would like to see municipal, provincial and dominion governments in the hands of veterans, because they had shown themselves honorable and progressive citizens. He hoped they would respond to such calls to public service as will be made upon them, in which event they would prove themselves true British and Canadians in whatever public work they may assume. You men, he said, represented us splendidly at the front in the past, and you are the men we look to, to represent us in the future. You fought for right, truth, honor and justice, and those are the principles which I feel you will strive to maintain in the future.

The Judge here declared that Britain, the past thousand years has been the vanguard of humanity, the veterans policy is based on those principles of Christianity for which the flag stands, they realized that the Empire was one worth fighting for, and they fought and laid down their lives in the battles in the Empire's defence.

In conclusion Judke Huycke paid warm tribute to the sublime ideal advocated by the G. W. V. A.'s in all parts of the Empire, embodying schemes for the advancement and purification of their countries. A nation is not judged by its wealth but by the character of its people He left the honor of Canada and Canada's dignity in the Vetrans' hands.

The Ladies.

This toast was proposed by Roland Denne, chairman of the Board of Education, and he did his delicate task well. He eulogized the Red Cross for its work in sending overseas between $2,000 and $3,000 worth of goods, and he praised the efforts of the Kitchener League, Daughters of the Empire and the G. W. V. A. Ladies' Auxiliary. The splendid club rooms in which the gathering sat, he contributed in considerable measure to the ladies' work. Without the ladies we could not have kept the home fires burning.

Comrade Ackerman, popularly known as "Charlie" seconded the toast very acceptably. Among other tributes to the war work of the ladies, he said he had been made to realize the past four or five years what the women of this city had meant to their soldier men at the front. There are none present, he said, but who realized that Canada's armies and this G. W. V. A. organization would not have been possible had it not been for the spirit of loyalty and patriotism which beats in the bosom of Canadian women.

Our Country."

Alderman Frank Whitehouse handled this toast very gracefully, especially so considering he was called on at the eleventh hour. He spoke of the Germans' objective to acquire possession of Canada, and of the part Canada's sons played in frustrating that objective. He had also a good word to say for the city in which local returned men lived.

Our Country.

G. A. Gillespie proposed this toast to what he declared to be the greatest Dominion in the British Empire, the chief assets of which are its returned men, men activated by a splendid spirit of reconstruction for Canada. He assumed the veterans of Peterborough and veteran visitors that citizens generally are ready to back up the G. W. V. A. because its sound Government appeals to right thinking men and women. Mr. Gillespie referred to the readiness of Peterborough employers as a rule to give work to the returned men, and he hoped the delegates would return home with that report, and that veterans generally would continue their co-operation in the re-construction of their country.

CAVAN

(Special Correspondence)

Cavan, March 20.—A very sad death occurred on Wednesday morning, March 10th, when Miss Clara White passed away at the General Hospital, Toronto. Miss White had gone to Toronto the Saturday before, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis. The operation was successful and she continued to improve until Tuesday evening, when blood-poisoning set in, which caused her death. Clara will be greatly missed, and the sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. White, and to her sister and brother. The funeral took place on Friday, interment being made in Fallis' cemetery, Manvers.

Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Buchanan of Havelock, Mr. White of Peterborough, Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Benson, of Peterborough, were here attending the funeral of the late Clara White.

Quite a number from here attended the funeral of the late Archie Beattie in Peterborough on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jno. White have moved to Cavanville.

Mrs. Whitefield and daughter Miss Hazel, are visiting friends in Lindsay.

Born, in Cavan, on Thursday, 11th March, to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cathcart, a daughter.

Mrs. Herron and family are recovering from their recent illness.

EDITOR'S MAIL

C.G.E. TAX EXEMPTION!

The C. G. E. asks for exemption for 10 years and some of our newspapers says, "Peterborough is in honor bound to grant it to them." They put it in the form of a fixed assessment of about one-fourth of its proper assessment. They allege that the city ten years ago offered a fixed assessment for 20 years, but that the Ontario Legislature refused to permit them to grant this for a longer period than 10 years. And now the people are to vote on the question and our papers are urging the people to vote "yes" and give the old company a fixed assessment for another 10 years.

What Does This Mean?

They have during the last 30 years been assessed for less than one-quarter of their proper assessment—the people have paid three-fourths of the C.G.E. taxes. The company has been successful, they prospered, they pay their stock holders big dividends, the stock is quoted in Toronto papers at 140. That is, $100 of stock sells for $105, and they ask the heavily burdened people of Peterborough to assume and pay for them their proper share of taxes. What they escape from paying the people have to make up.

Exemption from taxes is not legitimate, nor is it sound business. No matter what the business is, it should pay its legitimate share of taxes. Exemption from taxes was never recognized as legitimate. Peterborough exempted the C.G.E. to induce them to start here, but that does not mean that when they could stand alone and were successful and got all the capital they wanted they should be allowed to put their legitimate burden of taxes on others. The Legislative practically enacts that it won't encourage leaving burdens to be placed on the shoulders of future generations, and so, they enacted a law to prevent it. The C.G.E. have had exemptions for 30 years and now they ask more. They can pay their way, and their taxes better than can the people they are asking to pay for them. They have been kindly dealt with. The stock holders are getting big dividends. Let them carry their own burdens.

So I advise the people to put an end to this unsound practice of exemption for all time by voting down this proposed bylaw. They have demonstrated that Peterborough is a good place for the old factory. It will be equally good for the new factories.

CLOSING MEETING OF SPECIAL SERVICES IN GEORGE ST. CHURCH

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, a goodly number were present at the meeting in George St. Church last night. Had the weather been more favorable, however, the attendance woud undoubtedy have been much larger.

Mr. Millson's subject was: "Indecision, or a Help to Decision." He briefly outlined the story of Ahab and Elijah as told in the 18th chapter of 1st. Kings, taking his text from the question which Elijah asked the people: "How long halt ye between two opinions. If the Lord be God, follow Him, but if Baal, then follow him."

"If there be a God Almighty," said Mr. Millson, "who is able to save or to destroy, who with one volition of His will can lift a man to heaven or thrust him down to hell, who is all wisdom and therefore knows the innermost secrets of your life; who knows you in the shadow and the sunshine, on Sunday and n Monday who has marked every movement of your career, why halt ye between two opinions."

"If there be a hell where evil is concentrated, which means banishment eternally from the presence of God, why halt between two opinions? If there be a heaven to gain, where sin and sorrow shall not be known, why halt between two opinions?

"Some people say they will wait until they are more prosperous before becoming a follower of Jesus Christ. The strange thing about prosperity is that it never seems to turn people to God. As a matter of fact, some men who have become prosperous have lost their religion. We cannot, by any artificial means make ourselves better prepared to surrender to God.

"If God be God, why halt?" concluded Mr. Millson. "I don't think there is a man or woman in this house but believes the Lord is God. Why not own Him and stand over on His side."

LITERARY SOCIETY AT THE COLLEGIATE

SUCCESSFUL ENTERTAINMENT STAGED LAST NIGHT BY AMATEUR TALENT

The Literary Society of the Collegiate Institute, staged a splendid entertainment to a capacity audience in their assembly hall last evening.

Considering the characters as amateurs, their artistical effort was superb and they received quite deservedly all the encouragement of generous encores on the part of a pleased gathering.

A delightful scene to gaze upon was the performance of the dancing girls, in which each artist's individual deportment was marked with much easy grace, and the combined effort was very beautiful.

Another feature on the program of special merit was the chorus numbers, rendered in such an excellent manner as to reflect crdeit on the tutor.

But best of all was the play, "His Model Wife," a side-splitting depiction of the troubles, matrimonial and financial, in which a young artist finds himself engulfed, and the speed with which the embarrassing happenings follow one another is really humorous. Following was the cast:

Arthur Everett, an artist	Harold Huff
Robert Parks, his chum	Robert Breyfogle
Representative John Potts	Allan Lewis
Miss Agnes MacPherson	Margaret Malott
Mrs. Munford-Wells	Lenore Lyle
Miss Eleanor Perry	Marjorie Ingall
Miss Bello Potts	Helen Thompson
Wilhelmina, a model	Muriel Harvey
Patsy, whose mother washes	Lenore Wolstenholme

The Man She Loved

By RALPH HAMILTON

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

She had to believe that Bertram Lisle was interested in her, possibly in love with her, and when he disappeared from Creston without explanation or a farewell word, Inez Walters felt as though all the sunshine had gone out of the world. When Alfred Davis two months later asked her to become his wife, she told him wearily that she would never marry.

The latter left her chagrined, convinced of the uselessness of a further appeal and feeling secretly like a whipped cur. Inez little suspected that he had been the cause of the evanishment of Lisle under a purposeful misrepresentation. Davis had played a mean, insidious game and had lost out, and what little conscience the ardent schemer possessed upbraided him, for his efforts had gone for nothing.

Inez Walters became a changed and chastened woman. Her sweet serenity did not leave her, but she locked closely in her heart the secret pain she felt, realizing that love was a thing of the past. Bertram Lisle had been her ideal, and there was no one who could ever fill his place in her thoughts, and she took up her lonely life as a duty less than as a burden.

It was five years later when there came a thrill into her life that caused its currents to drift her into action, even if it accentuated the fear that Lisle had never really cared for her. The weekly newspaper of a town called Wooster, a hundred miles away, by chance came under her observation. Her heart beat wildly and then slowed down into dread forlorness as she read an item telling how Bertram Lisle, "our esteemed citizen, a rising architect," in defending a neighbor from robbery had been set upon and beaten by the vicious thieves, and had sustained injuries that would incapacitate him from work for many a month. The publication dilated on his heroism and an appeal to raise a subscription fund was headed with ten dollars. A wife and a little child were mentioned.

Inez Walters felt no jealous resentment. Her esteem for Lisle as a friend alone was too sincere for that. She only reflected that the man she loved was a sufferer, and she would have esteemed it a boon to nurse him back to health. She sorrowed for the hardship his affliction might bring to his loved ones. Before the week was out the Wooster publisher received a donation of $1,000, with the restriction that her identity was not to be revealed.

It was a matter of interest to Inez after that to regularly receive the Wooster newspaper. Its weekly issues kept pace with the gradual recovery of Bertram Lisle. There had been a reference to the princely donation that had put him on his feet in a substantial business way, an allusion to the great blessing the kindly mysterious almoner had conferred. Then there came an item telling how Lisle had been appointed superintendent of a construction plant at some distance, and would temporarily spend only month-ends with his family.

There came a strong, impelling influence over Inez to visit Wooster. She wondered what kind of a woman Lisle had married. Her gentle heart yearned towards the little one. She longed to get a closer knowledge of the life Lisle led.

When Inez had located the home of the Lisles, she was impelled to frame a flimsy excuse to get within its precincts. A request for a glass of water led her to be invited into the cheerful parlor of the bright, neat little cottage by a cheery-faced woman, at whose side toddled a pretty little girl. The color faded from the face of Inez as among some framed photographs on the wall she recognized that of the man she had never forgotten.

"Yes, indeed, we are very happy and contented here," answered Mrs. Lisle, in response to a remark on the part of Inez as to the homeliness of the little place. "My husband had a serious misfortune, but, oh! everybody was so kind and helpful. There was a stranger who sent us the means to tide over our darkest hours. There is not a day that I do not bless her."

"That is your husband?" asked Inez, indicating the photograph that so poignantly brought back to her the memory of Bertram Lisle.

"Oh, dear no!" replied Mrs. Lisle. "That is his cousin. They bear the same name. That is Cousin Walter. We call him that, which is his middle name. He has been out West for over two years. Before that he met with a disappointment in love that clouded his life. It was a young lady at Creston whom he fairly worshiped, only [illegible] by a successful rival of their engagement. Cousin Walter is due on his regular yearly visit to us today or tomorrow. Oh, there he is now!"

The excited and delighted woman rushed to the door. Coming up the graveled garden path was her expected guest. Inez glanced through the window and a rapt gladsomeness came into her heart.

There was he—her Bertram Lisle—and here was she, and soon they were to stand once more, face to face, this time in the clear glow of truth, and the hour and the climax betokened no further parting.

LOCAL MARKET TODAY

Eggs were a drug on the market this morning. While the crowd itself was not large, everybody inside and out seemed to have eggs for sale, and the result was that the price dropped from 70 cents last week to 59 and 60 cents today. Although chicken was more plentiful than usual the price was slightly higher. One vendor had a large goose for sale at 35 cents a pound, but there did not seem to be much demand for it.

The prices today ranged as follows:

Butter, pound, 73c and 75c.
Eggs, dozen, 59c and 60c.
Chickens, pound, 40c and 45c

Meat

Pork, pound, 26c and 28c.
Pork, pound, 27c and 29.
Beef, pound, 18c and 21c.
Lamb, pound, 32c and 35c.

Garden Produce

Potatoes, bag, $4 straight.
Turnips, bag, $1.
Carrots, peck, 40c
Parsnips, peck, 40c.
Beets, peck, 40c.
Onions, peck, $1.25 and $1.35.
White beans, quart, 25c
Cabbage, per head, 15c to 30c.
Apples, peck, 90c.

London is still the world's chief emporium of the seed trade.

Reading the Bible.

A college professor, famous as a critic of literature, tells how he read the Bible when he was a boy. His mother not only insisted that he should read the Bible, but also that he should be able to tell her something about each book. This looked serious, but the future professor of literature hit upon a plan to assist his memory. After he had read each book, he illustrated it and, after he had drawn the pictures, he found that he remembered without much difficulty.

No Thunderbolts.

A "thunderbolt" was lately said to have fallen at Cardiff, in Wales. As a matter of fact, there is no such thing as a thunderbolt, but two phenomena often give rise to a belief in something of the sort. When lightning strikes the ground it sometimes bores a hole of considerable depth and vitrifies any sandy substance in the soil. Generally, however, what pass as thunderbolts are aerolites, meteoric fragments which come from the skies, but have nothing to do with thunder.

DISEASE AND COAL

Scientific Discoveries Establish a Connection.

World Declared to Have Been Free From Physical Ills Before the Beds That Supply Fuel Were Laid Down.

One of the most curious of discussions has been started by Prof. Roy L. Moodie, a scientist of high reputation who has made a special study of the beginning of disease. Once upon a time, he says, there was no such thing as disease in either animals or plants. But it was a very long while ago. His inquiries led him to the conclusion that diseases began in the coal-forming period, when the vast deposits of our fossil fuel were laid down in peaty bogs from the luxuriant vegetation of regions then tropical—in Pennsylvania, along the southern Alleghenies and elsewhere.

In those very ancient times, ever so many millions of years ago, the earth was covered with water far more extensively than at present, and on the bottom grew fields of "sea lilies," just as they do today in marine shallows. They are oddly imitative of plants though really animals, and fossil remains of them found in coal show enlargements of the stems plainly due to attack by parasite worms. During the coal period there seems to have been an extensive development of those forms of microscopic vegetation that we call fungi and bacteria. Nearly all plant diseases are due to attack by parasitic fungi. Most diseases of men and animals are attributable to bacteria of one species or another that have acquired the habit of parasitism. Minute bacteria and fungi—traces of their colonies, that is to say—have been found in the fossil droppings of extinct species of fishes, embalmed, as one might say, in our coal deposits. In plant structures of corresponding antiquity are discovered natural "cultures" of bacteria, silicified.

The fossil teeth of long-extinct species of fishes have been found affected by "dental caries"—irregular decayed spots. Are we to suppose that those finny creatures of early days suffered from toothache? Twenty or thirty millions of years ago arrived the age of reptiles, which developed the giant lizards, that were the largest animals ever known in the world, if some modern whales be excepted. Some of their bones (preserved in the rocks) show deformities obviously due to disease. Certain of these deformities suggest chronic inflammation of the joints; others, tuberculosis. After the age of reptiles came the early mammals. They and their descendants (including ourselves) have certainly had a due allowance of disease ever since. But (if Professor Moodie's dictum is to be accepted) there was no such thing as disease in the world up to the time when the coal beds were laid down.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Want Happy Endings.

Why the unhappy ending is the stock weakness of the beginner at story writing is easy to explain. Stories with unhappy endings are easier to write. The human mind is naturally subjective and sad; vocabularies in every language have many more adjectives, verbs and adverbs to express sorrow and gloom than to express happiness and light-heartedness.

This subject lends itself nicely to a debate, but as far as the men in the war hospitals are concerned the argument has only one side: Give us happy endings!

A Red Cross nurse tells of a serial story that had been read by two of her patients, one of whom was depressed for a whole day because the heroine died.

"I wish I'd never read it," he complained. "I fell in love with that girl. If I ever found one exactly like her I'd certainly ask her to marry me!"

Man of High Ideals.

Charles Foss, bee man of Alpine, Cal., sold his season's output of honey, four tons, at 6 cents a pound when the market price was 22 cents, because he felt that profiteering at the expense of the poor, especially in war time, was wrong.

"God gave us the bee," he said, according to the San Diego Union, "and he charges us no tax on it. He gave us the flowers from which the bee draws its honey and they cost us nothing. Why, when the world is steeped in suffering and misery should any man profiteer on the poor?

"Some day I hope to look into the face of God who gave us the bee and the flowers, but I could never look him squarely in the eye if I had made a single penny out of a fellow creature's stress."

Gabriel D'Annunzio.

Maj. Gabriel d'Annunzio, the leader of the Italian airmen, is a most extraordinary personality. Famous before the war as a poet and dramatist as the creator of a new Italian literature, he has affected the language of his country more profoundly than anyone since Dante; a notable figure in society, much discussed for his luxurious tastes, he stepped into the forefront of the battle as a soldier when over fifty years old. Since then he added exploit to exploit, stealing into enemy ports in small craft at night to torpedo battleships, carrying out the longest and most dangerous air raids. When the armistice was signed he commanded a squadron of picked young airmen.

But There Was a Difference.

Here is a story concerning Sir Arthur Pinero.

It appears that he was on the point of rehearsing a new play, the rehearsal being timed to begin at eleven o'clock.

Looking around at the assembled company, he noticed that one lady was absent.

"She has permission to come at 11:30," was the reply, "as she is washing her head."

"Nonsense," growled Sir Arthur, in pretended anger, as he took off his hat, displaying his bald head. "Why, I wash my head every morning, yet I'm never late for rehearsal."

Flu Slays Poor Mexicans.

Ravages of Spanish influenza among the poor charcoal burners who live in the mountains surrounding the Mexican capital are said to be responsible for the unprecedented price which that commodity is bringing. In the last month charcoal, which is generally used for cooking purposes, has increased about 300 per cent in cost. The municipality has made arrangements to buy this product in quantities and retail it at reduced figures. One paper in the capital states that almost 90 per cent of the Indians who supplied the City of Mexico with the fuel were victims of the scourge.

DISCHARGE HIM? SURE NOT

Landlord of Typical West of Ireland Estate Highly Valued Poor Marksmanship of Lodgekeeper.

It was a typical West of Ireland estate, and the Sassenach landlord was just driving his newly arrived English guest through the lodge gates when a bullet zipped by his ear.

"Good heavens!" exclaimed the guest. "What was that?"

"O, only one of my men having a pot shot at me," replied the landlord. "I rather fancy it was my lodgekeeper."

"Great Scott!" again ejaculated the guest. "What will you do with the fellow—have him arrested for attempted murder?"

"Do with him!" repeated the landlord. "Nothing, of course."

"Not even discharge him?" persisted the guest.

"Good gracious, no!" replied the landlord. "Why, I wouldn't lose the fellow for a fortune. He's one of the worst shots I've ever had on the estate!"

FIRST STATUE IN THE U. S.

Jackson Memorial, Designed and Erected by Sculptor Who Started Life as Plasterer.

The Jackson statue, in Lafayette park, Washington, was the first equestrian statue unveiled in the United States. The famous statue of George III, which the New York patriots pulled down in 1776, was built before there was a United States. The Jackson statue was designed and erected by Clark Mills, a "self-made" sculptor, who started life as a plasterer. He had never seen an equestrian statue before he started work on this one, and the appliances for modeling and casting were made by him. The metal in the group is made of cannon captured by Jackson from the British.

The equipoise of the group is perfect, and no important balancing rods are used to keep the statue from toppling. Mills claims that he had so perfectly attained the center of gravity in the work that the group would balance perfectly on the hind feet of the rearing charger. This fact was proved, but when the statue was erected the hind feet of the horse were bolted, or otherwise fastened, to the base or pedestal, to secure it against the possible effects of high winds or other disturbing or mischievous causes.

Horse Ought Have More Sense.

A man driving an express wagon in Southbridge street appeared to be more concerned in a newspaper he was reading than in steering the horse out of harm's way. The paper blocked the view entirely in front of the driver, who seemed to be oblivious to his surroundings as the equine jogged along in what he found later to be the wrong road. When he woke up to the situation he found that he and the wagon had gone more than three-quarters of a mile out of the way and then he discovered that he had lost himself and had been doing extra work for nothing. When at last the driver lifted his head and found what had happened he cursed the horse for not knowing better than to pass by his own stable.—Worcester Evening Post.

Famous Carryalls.

The two most famous carryalls in Washington are owned by Senator Edge of New Jersey and United States Marshal Splain of the District of Columbia. The senator's conveyance, a high powered automobile, is famed because it carries license No. 1 from the state of New Jersey. The number is not much wider than a lead pencil and it certainly looks peculiar fastened on to the big green car. Marshal Splain's hack is one of the grand old one horse-shay variety. He uses it because congress has persistently refused to supply a gasoline bus for him. In order to maintain an even keel he has to sit in the exact center of the seat. If he sits on one side the hack lists heavily either to the port or starboard and he has to cling tightly to the cushion to prevent his going overboard.

Pearl Divers Have No Thought for the Morrow.

During the Brief Fishing Season They Make Much Money and Spend It With the Most Reckless Prodigality.

The Paumotu islands—sometimes called "gold mines" of the eastern Pacific—present a weird and picturesque scene during the season for pearl fishing. From August on come the natives from the surrounding islands to dive for pearls in the calm waters of the lagoon thrown open for the purpose. Within the narrow strip of sand which surrounds the fishing ground are huddled 3,000 or more, in a mushroom city, sheltered beneath corrugated iron or thatched huts. It is a motley company.

There are Paumotu divers, bronzed sea gods—who, with their ancestors have been for ages masters of the deep and conquerors of the shark in his own native element. The diver is the center of solicitude for the buyer and trader. He is the indispensable object of the moving picture man who has hastily built his theater of corrugated iron where he dispenses amusement at metropolitan prices. It is the diver who spends his earnings riding in the wheezy motorcar which the owner operates along a half-mile of sandy beach. It is his earnings which attract a host of others.

In his habits of spending his earnings the Paumotu diver is much like the American prospector and miner of the days of gold strikes and boom mining camps. In the days of his prosperity nothing is too good for him. He buys the choicest of foods and tinned goods. He is proud of the appearance of his women folk and lavishes on them silks, satins, laces Chinese shawls, high-heeled shoes, picture hats and corsets, the last a recent discovery. All of these things the trader thoughtfully has provided.

Sunday is an Easter parade, and a performance at the picture theater like an evening at the opera. In no "golden horseshoe" in the world are more observant or critical eyes, and woe betide the Paumotu belle who fancies she can attend two of these functions clad in the same costume without being subject to scornful comment.

A good diver during the season will bring up several tons of shells which recompense him well. The diver takes no thought for the morrow. He and his wife bask in affluence and enjoyment. He spends as fast as he earns. When December comes and the fishing season is over they return to their little atoll and the simple life with nothing remaining for his months of toil but some soiled finery, the memory of a good time and the anticipation of a repetition of their pleasure the next year.

Test Fish Preparation.

Testing of the most practical methods of preparing various fishery products has recently been carried out in the bureau of fisheries' experimental kitchen in Washington. Among the fish experimented with were butter fish, frozen tullibee, croakers, bluefish, spot, bowfin, whiting, catfish, squeteague, carp and gizzard shad. Particular attention was given to carp and gizzard shad, as each possesses characteristics when prepared by the usual methods which tend to lessen its attractiveness to the housewife. Other products tested were fish butter, canned black drum, buck roe, dehydrated squid and dehydrated fish chowder. Since the closing of the demonstration work on the west coast, the demonstrators have been working with the California state fish commission on some publications intended to increase the use of fish and fishery products. It now appears that it will be possible to renew the demonstrations in the near future, and it is probable that the first will be given at Stockton.

Wednesday—Coffee with vanilla ice cream in it. Hot mince pie.

Sunday—Indigestion.

Rebuilding Saloniki.

An ambitious plan for rebuilding Saloniki was outlined recently by Mr. Thomas H. Mawson at King's college London. Saloniki, he said, had been devastated by a great fire, and it had been decided to rebuild it on such a scale as to make it one of the most important cities in the East. M. Venizelos had determined to make it a more beautiful city. The city was fortunately situated in regard to parks, for it had at its disposal tracts of land which would be made into some of the finest parks in the world without a penny of purchase money being paid over.

Australian Gold Output Falling.

Gold production of western Australia continues to show a steady decline. During the six months ended June 30, 1919, the total Australian production amounted to 573,279 fine ounces, of which western Australia furnished 410,428 ounces. For the first six months of 1918 the Australian production was 641,911 ounces, the state of western Australia furnishing 443,983 ounces. During the first six months of 1917 the total production amounted to 727,995 ounces, of which amount western Australia furnished 490,466 ounces. It is stated that the cause of this decline is increased working expenses due to high wages and the high cost of machinery and materials. It is not expected that much, if any, improvement can be looked for in the immediate future.

LANSDOWNE LODGE ENTERTAINS VISITORS

MET MEMBERS OF THE ORDER ATTENDING THE VETERANS' CONVENTION

On Thursday evening, March 18, the members of Lansdowne Lodge entertained a number of the delegates to the G. W. V. A. convention who were members of the Sons of England in other places. At 8:30 o'clock the chairman, Bro. H. Wilford, after a few opening remarks, called on Bro. H. Follis for a selection on the piano, which as usual brought an encore and was greatly enjoyed by those phesent. This was followed by a varied program of vocal and instrumental music, and recitations. Amongst those contributing were Bros. H. Wilford F. Brand, Messrs. J. John, J. Ridyard, J. Plimmer, J. Knight and J. King, also Bro. Ambrose, of Hearts of Oak Lodge, Hamilton. During this part of the program a number of selections were run off on the Pathephone by Bro. P. G. Webb, and a number of choruses were sung by those present.

After the musical program the members and their guests adjourned to the banqueting hall and sat down to an excellent banquet prepared and served by Coleman Bros.

When full justice had been done to the good things in front of them in true English style, Bro. Lemmon, the president of Lansdowne Lodge, called the members to order, and the first toast of the evening "The King," was honored in the usual way by singing the National Anthem.

The next toast, "Our Visiting Brethren," was proposed by Bro. W. G. Skinner, of Lansdowne Lodge, and responded to by Bros. W. Kendricks and F. Smile, of Britannia Lodge Hamilton, Bro. F. Ambrose, Hearts of Oak Lodge, Hamilton, Bro. Pratt, Royal George Lodge, Simcoe, Bro. G. Allan, Leds Lodge, Weston, Bro. J. Parfett, of Dreadnought Lodge, Dundas, Bro. T. Waumsley, of Burlington Lodge, Burlington.

Bro. A. Follis, of Lansdowne Lodge, then proposed the toast to "The Members of the Sons of England who gave their lives in the great war to vindicate England's honor and to uphold her flag."

This was honored by the members standing in silence with heads bowed while one verse of "Nearer, My God, to Thee," was played. The toast brought back to the minds of the members of Lansdowne Lodge the memory of Bros. F. Thomas, R. Gifford, G. Sadler and J. Chandler, who went out from Lansdowne Lodge and gave their lives that Canada should be free from the menace of the Hun.

After a few concluding remarks by the president, the company returned to the lodge room and spent an hour or two in social intercourse, cards and carpet bowls. A game of carpet bowls between six of the visiting brethren, with Bro. W. Spence as skip, and six members of Lansdowne Lodge, with Bro. C. Wood as skip, resulted in a very close game, the visiting brethren winning by seven points to six.

The meeting dispersed in the early hours of the morning with everybody wel pleased and satisfied with one of the most enjoyable evenings ever spent by the members of Lansdowne Lodge.

NOTES ON THE CONVENTION

Comrades Jones-Bateman, representing Cobalt, left a temperature of 30 degrees below zero. Consequently when he arrived in Peterborough he fished out his spring suit and was seen walking around the town without an overcoat much to the amazement of local residents who felt chilly even when well wrapped up.

An outstanding figure was Comrade Rawlinson, the blind delegate from Central Toronto. When the questions concerning disabled soldiers came up for discussion he was right at home and had everything in the way of information at his finger tips. He is the author of a book, "Through St. Dunstan's to Light," which was published last fall and has been read extensively all over the country. Comrade Rawlinson had the misfortune to lose his sight as a result of a machine gun wound.

Sceptical members of the Great War Veterans who were of the belief that the inclusion of chaplains among their membership would create pretty much of a "Sunday School" atmosphere had their eyes opened during the convention. All three chaplains present, C. E. Jeakins, Appleyarde and McKegney, proved themselves to be first-class entertainers and very broad minded.

Sympathy went out from the whole convention to Comrade Peart, of East Hamilton, the star humorist who was compelled to forgo the Dominion convention and the conclusion of the Provincial convention and returned immediately to Hamilton on account of the serious illness of his wife. An expressio of sympathy was passed by the convention when the news became generally known.

Secretary Turley may think his calumniators. They gave the representatives of the Ontario Veterans an excellent opportunity of voicing their hearty approval of his work and their unbounding confidence in him. It must have done his heart good to hear the cheers which greeted the defeat of the motion requesting his resignation.

Newspaper men were well represented among the delegates. There were: Part of Hamilton, The Star representative, Westlake of the St. Catharines Journal, M. M. Hood, assistant editor of the Whig, Kingston, and Livingston of Grimsby. Haight, of Toronto, is also an old newspaper man, but is now the paid secre'ary of a Toronto granch.

Some citizens of Peterborough who does not represent the opinion of the citizens as a whole made the statement to one of: the delegates on a street car last night that "only 5 per cent. of the delegates had seen service in France." Investigation of the records of the convention showed that 99 per cent. had seen service at the front.

Mr. M. M. Hood, assistant editor of the Kingston Whig, was a prominent figure among the delegates. Mr. Hood returned from overseas about eighteen months ago. He served two years and eleven months with the 24th Battalion and was in many engagements. Mr. Hood will shortly go to Chicago to take up the position of salesman and promotion manager for the J. H. Miller newspaper syndicate there. In this capacity he will specialize in the promotion of boys' and girls' features for newspapers.

You Pay only the Same Duty on Red Rose Orange Pekoe Tea as on the Very Poorest Tea

Before the war there was no duty on tea.

To-day there is a duty of 7 cents a pound on tea brought from British possessions, and one of 10c. a pound on tea brought from other countries, regardless of the quality.

If it were levied on the value of the tea, as is the case with other goods imported into Canada, the duty on a pound of Red Rose Orange Pekoe Tea would be about double that levied on common tea.

But the duty on a pound of this fine-quality, mountain-grown tea — Red Rose Orange Pekoe Tea—is the same as that on a pound of the very poorest tea.

This is one of the reasons that this tea of extra quality—as well as our standard, well-known Red Rose brand— is so much better value than ordinary teas.

You pay less duty.

This situation is appreciated by tea lovers all over Canada. There is a greater demand for fine-quality tea to-day than before the war. And our NEW fine-quality tea—Red Rose Orange Pekoe—is already enjoying a brisk demand.

Try it. Sold only in our new package— the waxed board carton.

RED FORCES IN GERMANY DRIVE REGULAR TROOPS INTO RETREAT

Communist Movement is Spreading in all Parts of Country and Pitched Battles With Many Loses on Both Sides are Reported—Reds Have Forty Thousand Men Under Arms

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, March 22.— The Ministry of Defense announced this morning that conditions in the Ruhr district were becoming worse. The towns of Oelde, Ahlen and Drensteinfurt, in Westphalia, had been taken by the Communists it was stated, and the movement was spreading north and east. Pitched battles have been fought the ministry's information showed and two crack government troop regiments have been forced to fall back on the fortress of Wesel, on the Rhine bank of the Rhine, northeast of Essen, after heavy losses had been sustained on both sides. The Red Army, it was added, was well armed with artillery. Spartacan forces in the Ruhr Valley number at estimates place the number of forty thousand.

NO HELP FROM UNITED STATES

London, March 22.— A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Berlin says the United States diplomatic representative has informed the German Government that it will be impossible for the United States to allow supplies from abroad to enter any part of Germany where trouble prevails.

Workers Increase Demands

Paris, March 22.— Negotiations between the members of the Ebert Government and the party leaders of the German National assembly and delegates of workers, whic hahve been going on at Berlin are declared in an official British report to have been interrupted because of an increase in the claims of the workers. Eight thousand persons have been killed since the revolt broke out on March 13, according to advices received here. Of this number 850 were killed in Berlin alone.

BERLIN PRESENTS APPEARANCE OF AN ARMED CAMP

"CANNOT PAINT THE SITUATION TOO BLACK," SAY THE GERMAN OFFICIALS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, March 22.—Conditions in Germany were described by the Defence Ministry this morning as extremely serious. "You cannot paint the situation throughout Germany too black," an official of the ministry declared to the Associated Press correspondent, after surveying the reports which arrived during the night. The southern and eastern parts of Germany are reported quiet, although unrest was said to be spreading among the agricultural poulation in Pomerania and Mecklenburg. Berlin is quieter, while in the Halle district the position was reported worse from a Government aspect. The ministry cited an instance where a company of volunteers had been overpowered by Spartacan forces, its officers killed and their bodies mutilated. This took place at Johannestal. The Berlin city railway this morning began a fairly regular service. The inner city adjacent streets still present the aspect of an armed camp. The little food still obtainable through illicit dealers is bringing high prices. Of rationed fodstuffs, neither potatoes nor bread could be obtained during the past week.

INDIANS AS FARMERS

Will Take Active Part in Production Work This Year.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Regina, March 22.— The officials here are organizing a program of farm work among the Indians this year. Indications are that more land will be under cultivation than ever and the Indians will contribute no small share to the increased production of the province as a class. The livestock of the Indians has wintered well and when spring work begins the farmers among the Indians will be ready with horses in good shape to stand the work.

BIG STEEL COMPANY FOR BRITISH COLUMBIA

ENGLISH CONCERN WILL HAVE CAPITAL OF FIVE MILLION POUNDS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, B. C. March 22.—That a powerful British iron and steel company will locate in British Columbia and establish a complete plant for turning out all products of the industry is the word reaching Vancouver from England. Work on preliminaries connected with the firm's flotation for activity in this province has already started. The company will be capitalized at five million pounds sterling, and will work here with an established coal company having rail and water connections. Native ores of British Columbia are to be utilized.

IRELAND IS ROUSED BY ASSASSINATION OF LORD MAYOR

MURDER OF CHIEF MAGISTRATE OF CORK EXCITES WORLD WIDE COMMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 22. — Despatches from Ireland during the week-end show the murder of Thomas MacCurtain, lord mayor of Cork, to have produced an intense if subdued sensation throughout Ireland. In Dublin consternation was created by the assassination, and citizens are looking to the future with anxiety and alarm. The motive of the murder continues as mysterious as ever. No arrests have been reported, nor, so far as known, have any clues to the perpetrators been obtained. London has been deeply stirred by the incident, and the newspapers, which, while unreservedly condemning the crime, maintain it does not differ from those which have long terrorized Ireland.

AIRPLANE SERVICE IS PLANNED FOR WINNIPEG

TRANSPORTATION FROM THAT CITY TO THE BEACHES TO BE ESTABLISHED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, March 22.— Winnipeg is expected, this coming season, to become the hub of aviaition in Western Canada. Preparations are being made by the local companies to run aerial service from Winnipeg to the beaches. A serivce between Winnipeg, Minneapolis and St. Paul will be commenced, while flights will be made almost daily to the various towns and cities within a radial distance from the city. A scheme for a service of large passenger and freight machines connecting Winnipeg with towns and cities east, west and south is being projected. Winnipeg will be the northern station and will act as terminal, and will also be a stopping place for all trans-continental flights in Canada.

NAVAL LEAGUE PROTESTS AGAINST THE DEMOBILIZATION OF CANADA'S SERVICE

Every Member of Cabinet Has Been Memorialized to Prevent Stripping This Country of all Marine Defense--Statement of Why Demobilization Has Been Decided Upon to be Made in Commons in a Few Day.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 22.—A statement with regard to the demobilization of the Canadian naval services will be made in the Commons within two or three days. Until it is made, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Naval Service, will say nothing. It is stated, however, in authoritative circles that the news published so far is practically correct. Orders for demobilization of the service were not, however, given Mr. Ballantynne, until he had consulted with his colleagues of the Cabinet on the matter and reached with them a decision. Demobilization of the Canadian naval service follows a decision of the Unionist caucus held recently, at which it is stated plans of Admiral Jellicoe looking to establish men of the Canadian navy were turned down in a decisive manner by those present.

The attitude of the caucus and the decision of the Government to demobilize naval service men that Canada will lose a fleet of ships valued at pre-war figured at $16,500,000. Admiral Jellicoe, in his report, stated that the Imperial Government would be willing to present to the Dominion a number of specified vessels worth approximately that amount, on condition that Canada embark on a naval program involving an annual expenditure of about five millions.

Naval League Protests.

Toronto, March 22.—Protesting against the action of the Government in stripping Canada of all naval defences and abandoning the naval policy, the Navy League of Canada has issued a call to all branches of the organizaton in the Dominion to press upon the Government the imperative need for the development of Canada's naval forces. All members of the Dominion Cabinet have already been memorialized to the above effect.

To Sell the "Rainbow."

Ottawa, March 22.—Following the party caucus, in which it was decided not to inaugurate a naval policy, instructions have been issued to disorganise the present Canadian naval force; also to stop all naval work at Esquimalt, Halifax and St. John. Further, it has been reported that the vessels now in the Canadian navy will be sold.

H.M.C.S. "Rainbow" is to be sold.

Close on July First.

The dockyard at Halifax is to be closed about July 1, according to advices from headquarters at Ottawa, just received there. The captain superintendent is to proceed with demobilization of ranks by July 1. The officers residing in the dockyards will be required to vacate their residences one month after demobilization, and all the ships and boats are to be sold. There are at present between four and five hundred men employed in the dockyard and many of them are skilled mechanics. There is also an office staff of about 75.

Ald. Crowe Favors C.G.E. By-Law

Editor Review. As an alderman of the city, I ought to be able to give a reason why I am favorable to giving a fixed assessment to the Canadian General Electric Company.

Because any industries that send out representatives and have come here for the purpose of finding out what inducements we have to offer for them to locate here. They have not been established in our midst or grown up with us and we are in the dark somewhat as to their future.

We are assured of the future in the C. G. E., and on their improvements we are sure of the full amount of taxes for school and local improvements, which means one third of the tax rates for 1920.

Because: The Canadian General Electric Company gives a great deal of employment outside their shops in this city. On many occasions have the foundries in this city been short of work for their employees, and have secured contracts from the C. G. E. for castings, which enabled them to keep running and give employment. Take the G. Walter Green Company, which employs a large staff of mechanics on their work permanently. Why hold out inducements to new concerns to locate here that very little is known of and not recognize one who is needful to this city.

Because: We know all about this company that they are reliable, financially strong and a going and growing concern, with a great future for their manufactured products.

Because: They employ all classes of labor and pay just as good wages as they are compelled to just the same as do any other large firms or individuals for that matter. I have yet to work for any firm who will pay any more.

Because: They are established here and we want all the improvements and buildings to be placed here. For once that is secured, we can in future deal accordingly. Just so long as firms put up improvements that will justify encouragement, I will be favorable to them.

THE FLU IN ALASKA

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Seattle, March 22.— Influenza has spread among the scores of Alaskans who stampeded to the Katalla, Alaska, oil fields. The coastguard cutter Algonquin, with medicine and doctors has left Juneau for the oil fields. The fields were recently re-opened when the President signed the Oil Lands Leasing Bill.

ALL CAN VOTE ON C.G.E. BY-LAW TOMORROW

The polls will be open tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. to give the voters a chance to record their verdict with regard to the C.G.E. bylaw, the details of which have been thoroughly explained. Briefly the company propose to put up a million dollar addition to their present huge plant which will mean double the number of employes now carried on the payroll, provided the city continues their fixed assessment of $250,000 for ten years longer. If the bylaw is defeated the proposed addition will be erected in Toronto, Montreal or some other city. The company, even if granted the concession asked for, will pay school and local improvement taxes on the full amount of the assessed value of their plant, this will mean an important addition to the civic revenue.

The Board of Trade and the City Council are supporting the proposition and a special effort will be made to get out the vote. Every person whose name is on the municipal list of voters is entitled to a vote tomorrow and only one vote is allowed no matter in how many wards the voter may own property.

BUY FROM THE HOME MERCHANT

What's the matter with a large number of the smaller and medium-sized cities in Canada?

They are being daily drained of their resources by the mail order houses.

All who make money here, through labor or investments, and supply their personal and domestic needs from the shelves of mail order houses, help to stunt the growth of our city.

Mail order houses advertise brilliantly. They indulge in extravagant claims, but if you make intelligent comparisons you will learn that you can do as well or better at home.

This is the day for you to resolve you will not keep your own town down by sending your money away to build up some other city. This is the day. Your co-operation, please. You can't afford to withhold it. Local pride, self-interest, the civic spirit-unite to influence you to be fair to YOUR city. Give your trade to local merchants and local prosperity will follow.

JUDGE RECOGNIZES THE IRISH REPUBLIC

REQUIRES ALIEN TO RENOUNCE FEALTY TO PRESIDENT DE VALERA

Chicago, March 22.—For the first time in American history an Irishman seeking citizenship in an American court was required to forswear allegiance to the republic of Ireland. Judge Marcus Kavanaugh extended formal judicial recognition to the new republic by compelling Patrick King, a grain elevator worker to renounce featetly to President Eamonn de Valera and the de facto government of the Emerald Isle

King had renounced allegiance to King George and the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland when Judge Kavanaugh called back, the embryonic American and insisted that he make the renunciation complete by forswearing citizenship in the Irish republic. As the first Irishman to be asked to desert the Irish republic King hesitated slightly, but finally complied. The oath of allegiance to the United States was then administered.

"By compelling the oath of renunciation to the Irish republic," said Judge Kavanaugh. "I wish it distinctly understood that I intended to extend judicial recognition to the de facto Government which actually exists in Ireland with the consent of nine-tenths of the governed—the principle of self-determination enunciated by President Wilson, which the whole world applauded.

"Though the Irish Government is not recognised by other foreign nations, in that respect it is in the same position that the United States was during the years intervening between 1776 and 1783, with the difference that the proximity of Ireland has permitted Great Britain to maintain a military occupancy. The British Government maintains control in Ireland merely by force of arms, and while most of the officers of the republic of Ireland, elected by an overwhelming majority of the people are in prison or in exile, that does not alter the fact that the Irish republic is and should be recognised as a distinct entity."

BISHOP O'BRIEN LEAVES FOR ROME APRIL 24TH

ANNOUNCEMENT WAS MADE IN ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL YESTERDAY MORNING

At High Mass in St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, made the interesting announcement that he would leave New York for Rome on April 24. He stated that it had been his intention at first to go later in the year but when he heard that the canonization of Blessed Margaret Mary was to take place on May 13, he felt that he should be in Rome in time for this ceremony.

The bishop of every Roman Catholic diocese in the world is required to furnish a report to the Pope every five years, of the conditions in his diocese, and every ten years he is required to make this report to the Holy Father in person. It is in fulfillment of this duty that Bishop O'Brien is going to Rome in April.

Miss A. E. Marty, B.A., LL.D., Public school inspector, will address the Women Teachers' Federation of Oxford County, today.

PASSENGER COACHES ROLLED INTO DITCH

THIRTEEN PERSONS ARE INJURED IN RAILWAY ACCIDENT IN NEW BRUNSWICK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Yarmouth, March 22.— Thirteen were injured, a few seriously, when the Pullman and first class passenger coach of the eastbound Halifax express on the Canadian National Railway left the rails and rolled down an embankment at Belleville, eighteen miles from here this morning. A special train, carrying doctors and nurses was despatched to the scene and the injured were brought back here for treatment in the local hospital.

REVOLTING STORY OF IMMORALITY FROM LINDSAY

YOUNG GIRL SUBJECTED TO INDIGNITIES BY BRUTES IN HUMAN FORM

The Lindsay Post says: A revolting story of night life in Lindsay has been revealed, and the details are so pathetic and so serious as to call for prompt and vigorous action on the part of the authorities.

The story has to do with the treatment which has been accorded a girl fourteen years of age with wayward tendencies at the hands of monsters in human form, who have taken advantage of her youth and her moral weakness and have subjected her to indignites of a most disgusting character.

The most astonishing thing in connection with this sad case is the fact that our night authorities have been aware of the waywardness of this girl and her presence on the streets at night in the company of well-known scoundrels who delight in preying upon unfortunate females. Yet no steps were taken, the Post is informed, to protect her or to see that she was safely in her home. On one evening a room was secured for her at a late hour in a hotel; another night she was seen in a laneway on William street, and also in a lumber yard in the east ward. The saddest incident in her downward career occurred on Saturday night, when she was taken by a young man to the G. T. R. yards, where she was most shamefully treated by a number of men, two of whom are married. The Post has been informed that the names of the men who violated her had been given by the father of the girl to the night constable, but no action was taken to have these parties brought to justice. When the matter was mentioned to Chief Short this morning he was surprised at the recital of the details and stated that no information had been given him regarding the young girl. A citizen called up the crown attorney this morning, and that official gave his assurance that prompt action would be taken in the matter—that the young girl would be taken care of and that every effort would be made to bring the guilty ones to justice.

That such an incident should occur in a Christian community without those conversant with the facts making an effort to reclaim this mere child is almost unbelievable. Still it is a sad fact that this girl of tender years—years at which one of her sex is not in a position to realise what the great sacrifice means — should be a subject for the bestiality of local degenerates, and is a blot on the town.

DO METORS HISS?

Anglican Missionary at Shoal River Says They Do.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, Man., March 2.—Do meteors hiss? Rev. A. J. Warwick, Anglican missionary at Shoal River, Man asserts they do. "I was returning across the river, near the mission on his reserve when all at once there was a brilliancy through the whole air, and I turned southward, to see a most intensely white meteor, in appearance about twice the apparent size of the planet Jupiter, and issuing from that point. Streamers of very vivid sparks trailed at all angles behind, and the whole river side was as though lighted by an electric bulb." he states. "There was one peculiarity the sound of hissing, which was continuous, was without doubt present, along the whole course of the phenomenon; and was not supposition on my part. It was present with the light, the sparks and the meteor.

MORE MONEY FOR POLICE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Moose Jaw March 22.— At the meeting of the police commission it was decided to increase the wages of the members of the police force by ten per cent. No agreement has yet been reached with the civic employes who are demanding a twenty per cent increase in wages.

MOSLEM BROTHER TO CHRISTIANS AND THE JEWS

NEW KING OF SYRIA ATTEMPTS TO BRING DIFFERENT CREEDS TOGETHER

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Beirut, March 22.—Emir Feisal, the newly elected king of Syria, has declared a boycott against the countries occupying the territory of the Arabs, France and England, and has organized a commission for the purpose of bringing Moslems and Christians into a better understanding. Posters displayed at Damascus, where the Syrian congress proclaimed the independence of that country, declared, "In spite of himself, the Moslem is a brother to the Christian and the Jew. Arabs existed before Christ, Moses or Mohammed, and freedom and independence are the rights of Syria. Religion is of God, and the fatherland belongs to His children."

The Syrian congress signed a decree asking the foreigners to evacuate that region, and Palestine and Mesopotamia are reported to have been specifically included. A committee has been organized in Lebanon, which has issued a statement alleging that the district was illegally represented in the congress of Damascus when the independence of Syria was declared. Lebanon is the section of Syria supposed to be strictly loyal to France and anxious for a French mandate, but the Turkish Nationalist and Syrian movements are so general throughout Syria and Cilicia that it seems improbable that France can continue her occupation of districts there unless she receives strong reinforcements. French forces are reported to have been repulsed and compelled to retreat from Ourfa. The entire Adana section is in a ferment and the roads are infested by hillmen co-operating with the Turkish Nationalists, who make the positon of the thinly scattered French forces perilous.

WESTERN INDIANS PROTEST

Against New Fishing Regulations Given Effect by Government

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, B. C., March 22.—Indiansman have poined hands in protesting against the new fishing regulations. According to Chiefs Benedict and Louie James there are hundreds of aged, orphans and other tribal children who are unable to get work to buy sufficient food. "The Government," said James, "apparently wishes to take the food from their mouths and under these conditions we shall be within our rights to continue fishing sufficient for food.

COUNCIL TO ESTABLISH CENTRAL HEATING PLANT

MOOSE JAW HAS A SOLUTION OF THE MODERN FUEL PROBLEM

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Moose Jew, March 22.— A proposal by the Engineering Corporation Limited, of Vancouver, to install a central heating system in this city has been brought before the City Council. While the advantages of the system are admittedly usually confined to the business section of the city, economy and the elimination of the smoke nuisance are claimed among the principal benefits of the central heating system, Brandon, Man., is the only city in Western Canada at the present time with such a system. The Light and Power Committee of the Council are considering the question.

HISTORY IN A SCRAP BOOK

Valuable Work To Be Presented to University of Saskatchewan

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Regina, March 22.— A scrap book compiled by the late Superintendent Routeledge of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and now in the possession of Assistant Commissioner McGibbon is to be presented to the museum at the University of Saskatchewan. Among the host of other things, the book contains first copies of practically every newspaper printed in western Canada. It also contains a detailed history of the Red Rebellion in newspaper [illegible]

THE C. G. E. BYLAW.

EVEN IF IT BE conceded that Mr. D. W. Dumble is right in his contention that exempting any industry from its full share of taxation is unsound in principle that admission does not constitute a sufficient reason for voting against the C. G. E. bylaw, which will be submitted to the voters tomorrow. The change of civic heart would come too late to work anything but injustice to one of the leading industries in the city, one that has been long established and one that has more than kept faith with the public in all its undertakings. What reason can the city urge for departing from a long-established custom in this respect, a custom which at least has the sanction of legislative enactment? Sound or unsound, the principle to which Mr. Dumble objects is at all events legal. The granting of concessions to industries must be continued by any city that seeks to expand, so long as such inducements are offered by every live municipality in the Province. No one knows better than Mr. Dumble, after his long experience on the bench, that there must be no discrimination in the application of laws, and in his judicial position he has certainly administered the law without either fear or favor. Why, then, suspend an Act now because it is regarded as based on an error? So long as the law exists it should be observed. If it is wrong in principle, then it should be repealed and not ignored.

There were a number of industries brought to this city within the past few years, every one of which was given special inducements to locate here. Negotiations are in progress for others on similar conditions. There is an element of chance in all of these transactions, a probable doubt that the new companies in their new location will not be able to make good.

There is nothing of the nature of buying a pig in a poke in the case of the C. G. E. That company is one of the city's best assets. It has shown that it is not only able but willing to do more than it has agreed to do in the way of expansion. By itself, in the number of employes it carries on its payroll, it supports a working population almost sufficient to constitute a small city. When the new plant is erected and the number of employes increased to approximately six thousand men, it is not hard to see what such a concern will mean to the future prosperity of this city.

One fact must not be lost sight of. If the C. G. E. Company erects a new plant at a cost of one million dollars, their school and local improvement taxes will be paid in full on the assessed value of this addition. That alone should be sufficient to induce every public-spirited citizen to give his active and moral support to the bylaw tomorrow. All such measures have been endorsed when submitted to the people in the past. There is not a single valid reason that can be urged why a different course should be taken in this case. Can any industry be asked either in honor or justice to establish itself here on terms denied it but granted to other manufacturing plants in the city?

Ald. Crowe in a communication in another column gives several convincing reasons why the bylaw should be supported. Speaking as he does in his dual capacity as an alderman and a Labor man, what Ald Crowe says on this subject possesses double significance. His reference to the wage question is the idea of a practical man who knows what he is talking about and exactly what constitutes the remedy.

ONE FORM OF LOVE.

BILLY SUNDAY, the greatest living exponent of the vaudeville in religion, having exhausted all his old advertising stunts, has invented a new one by announcing himself as a candidate for the Presidency on the Republican ticket. In a long article published by a syndicate of newspapers, Billy outlines his platform and goes so far as to name the members of the Cabinet whom he will select in the event of his election. This article is carefully copyrighted to the end that it may produce revenue as well as publicity.

Greater love for money has no man than this, that a man make a commercial commodity of his religon.

THE NEW PARTY IN GREAT BRITAIN.

THE COMING of Mr. Asquith as a live figure in the current politics of the Great Britain of today has realised anticipation in the effet it is already having. In the renascence of the ex-Premier in the field of politics in the Old Country may be traced the birth of a new party under the aegis of Mr. Lloyd George. Two dominant spirits of the natures of Mr. George and of Mr. Asquith could not be expected to coalesce, and the result is seen in a new political branching forth.

Mr. George has changed a great deal from those early days in which he figured as a fiery radical with views of his own which were by no means popular at the time. Age has ripened his wisdom, and experience, with the responsibilities attached to office, has considerably toned him down.

In the new departure of the Prime Minister of Great Britain, political history is taking on a new phase. A new political force has arisen in what may be said to be the attention given to politics by the middle class in Great Britain, the black-coated part of the population which has hitherto been as it has come to regard itself, the victim of aspirations and ambitions of the Labor party on one side and of the greed of the capitalist on the other.

The middle class of Great Britain has now risen to the exigencies of the times in realising that it has been long the football of the contending elements denoted in Capital and Labor. This middle class contains the sober elements of the country and has been divided in its political convictions between the Liberal and Conservative camps. Of late it has come to realize that it has nothing to hope for from the opposing political forces. In the recent bye-elections it has paid a certain court to Labor, in that at least there was something positive to be gained from it as compared to what was denoted in the old-time names of Liberal and Conservative.

It may be that with his discerning eye Mr. Lloyd George has not lost sight of the potentiality which lies with the middle class of Great Britain, and to this regard may possibly be traced the origin of what is designated the National Democratic Party.

As in Canada today, the old political parties in Great Britain have lost a good deal of their meaning. Partyism has caught the spirit and the need of reconstruction. In the National Democratic Party may be seen what is perhaps regarded as the happy medium, in whih Mr. Lloyd George views his future hope. Color is given to this in the association with him of Mr. Bonar Law, who is a Conservative with nothing of the old Toryism in him. The old Tory spirit whih at one time dominated the politics of Great Britain is seen in the Marquis of Salisbury and his brother, Lord Robert Cecil, who carry with them to a great extent the traditions associated with the house of Salisbury and of Lord Beaconsfield whom the late marquis succeeded. Politics in Great Britain are in the making, and the outcome promises to be interesting.

POLITICAL FUTURE OF THE VETERANS.

IN HIS ELOQUENT address at the civic banquet extended to the visiting veterans Friday night, Judge Huyke expressed the hope, if not the conviction, that the day was coming when the City Council from the Mayoralty down would be composed of returned soldiers when there would be a veteran of the war Premier of Ontario, and another in the place of the Prime Minister for the Dominion.

Not an unlikely situation by any means, and one that can be attained without the formation of an independent political party by the returned soldiers. Experience in politics has shown that such an objective can be more readily reached by the adoption of the policy in this regard that was decided upon by the veterans in their convention last week. They constitute a power in the country that can be the deciding factor in every election, municipal, provincial or federal.

If the situation preditced by Judge Huyke is ever really attained, the bogey of class legislation should worry not one. Any person who heard or read the proceedings of the recent convention is satisfied that the veterans are ambitious for the general good and are not intent on securing advantages for themselves alone. Suppose the convention of last week constituted the Provincial Legislature and the same measures were adopted and given effect. Would the Province suffer as a result? Could any class claim undue discrimination against themselves or urge that selfish interests had been advanced?

Surely the men who saved an empire are the very men who can be entrusted with its government. Men faithful in one trust can be depended upon to meet any responsibility with the same degree of fidelity.

OLD AGE.

THE TAMPA TRIBUNE has been considering old age and points out that the leaders in the war, both civil and military, were not young men for the most part. Clemenceau, Wilson, Lloyd George, Pershing, Foch, Joffre and the rest were far from youthful. Clemenceau's defeat and retirement to private life was not due primarily to his age. The man who succeeds him and the one who obtains the position coveted are veterans in French politics. Britain's Premier is far more than twice the age of William Pitt when he was Prime Minister. Men of fifty and beyond today look and act much younger than did their fathers at the same age. The man who refuses to be old is apt to be taken at his own valuation, says the Tribune, and the man who refuses to be old is a wise one. Like Luther Burbank many a man is too busy to get old. Look at what trust is being put in Marshal Foch at the present moment; he is 68. It is perfectly true, make a note of it and see, that people do not count a man's years until he has nothing else to count. The arguments of the Tribune are correct, and are strengthened by Oliver Holmes' saying that "To be seventy years young is sometimes more hopeful and cheerful than to be forty years old."

NOTES AND COMMENT.

KEEP THE CIVIC FAITH. Vote for the C. G. E bylaw tomorrow.

ALL THOSE headgear jokes fall to pieces when it is realized that the name of the would-be premier of Germany is pronounced as if spelled with an "o." But even so, he did not cop the job.

MODERN METHODS OF WESTERN FARMERS

How the Work is Done on the Up-To-Date Farm in the Prairie Provinces

(Rob Roy in Toronto Sunday World.)

Most men tackling the western prairie today are men of means. The tractor draws out a load of lumber, often cut already to erect, and a small but comfortable house is put up at once. Then operations are begun.

A tractor, sixty horsepower on the belt, thirty on the bar, will draw five ploughs when breaking, with packer behind. Depending on the skill of the operator, this outfit will break from 20 to 25 acres a day. In subsequent ploughing on stubble the tractor will draw eight ploughs with packer and large harrow attached and plough from 40 to 50 acres a day (not, however, an eight-hour day).

In sowing, these large tractors would have several discs attached, throw-out machines, kneeding throw-in ones, a couple of seed dulls and an immense harrow after the dulls. This outfit will cultivate, sow and finish, 40 to 50 acres per day (again, not an eight-hour day). The seasons are short, and during seeding they live the strenuous life.

If the crop has finally conquered drought, hail and frost, then a great forest of waving gold—miles and miles of it—meets the eye on every hand. The great problem of the year now confronts the farmer, to get the crop cut, threshed and hauled to the railway before the cruel winter swoops down on the prairie.

Today an up-to-date farmer uses a tractor to draw his binders. A 15-30 tractor will draw three eight-foot binders. Another binder drawn by four horses will cut a road around a block of wheat probably 500 acres. This horse-drawn machine will cut the corner down to an obtuse angle, obtuse enough to enable the tractor with its three machines to make the turn gracefully, cutting all around. On each binder a man is seated, and each is provided with a steering wheel which enables the man in charge to guide it accurately, taking the full eight-foot sheath and not allowing it to run into or drag down the grain.

Hundred Acres in Day.

This outfit will cut more than 100 acres in a day. In rush times the tractor is outfitted with electric lights, similar to those of a motor car, a "night gang" is put to work and more than 200 acres cut in 24 hours.

The threshing is often done with steam engines, as these use straw for fuel and are more economical. Eight or ten teams are required to draw the wheat from the stooks, and a team and wagon, one driven to each side, and the machine fed from each load.

The teamster, forking on the load, can arrange it himself, not requiring a builder on the wagon to arrange the load as in Ontario.

The thresher operates in the wheat field and as it is moved every few hours, only short hauls are required.

A loader has been invented and is coming largely into use. It is drawn by four horses, sweeps whole stooks to its table just like a binder does the standing drain and elevates to a carrier. The wagon and rack are driven alongside under the carrier, and a full load will be put on in a few minutes. These loaders have a capacity greater than any threshing machine can use.

Granaries, with a capacity of one thousand bushels or over, are built on skids. These are readily moved by the engines to convenient spots beside the separator. An elevator on the separator delivers the grain into the granary. Some of it is delivered directly into the wagons.

The tractor again is a tremendous advance over the ox team. A small portable elevator, run by a small gas engine, will fill a hundred and fifty-bushel wagon in five minutes. A tractor is not allowed to cross the scales at the grain elevator. So one wagon drawn by horses is used, the horses then being available to draw the other loads on the scales.

Busy Twenty-For Hous.

Four wagons drawn by tractor and one by team will deliver 650 bushels a trip. In strenuous times the tractor is provided with electric lights, and a night gang secured, the outfit beink kept busy during the whole 24 hours. As another tractor, drawing a ploughing outfit, with packer and harrow attached, ploughs the land for another season's crop.

A farm of this kind with two thousand acres of crop would employ over thirty men during the threshing season. To board these husky fellows is a considerable problem.

The ideal plan is to get some young couples who are homesteading and who wish to make some money. Two couples without children frequently are employed. The men bring their teams and work with the threshing gang; their wives doing the cooking, incidentally making splendid wages. A large working car is built on skids, kitchen and dining room. This is moved from place to place with the tractor. Often this is done while the cooks unconcernedly are preparing dinner. A small shack is provided where the cooks and their husbands sleep, the men generally sleeping in a large tent.

The meals provided are usually first-class. The best of food in great variety is demanded by the men. The h. c. of l. is a very live question to the farmer with a gang like this to feed.

Music at Night.

Many of the crews are men of culture and refinement, homesteaders wishing to get some money while the Ontario boys are out for the experience. Almost always there are some good singers, and the violin, mouthorgan and accordion make pleasant the night. Sometimes a poet is present and a weekly paper is published.

Many tales are told in later years of oyster suppers on the last night when the boys were wont to be appreciative of the women who had attended so well to their wants.

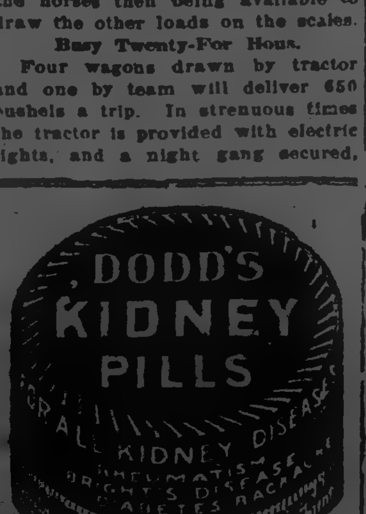
Two addresses perhaps, are artistically prepared by some skillful penman in the bunch. A couple of lamps or other gifts come as a genuine surprise to the cooks. They are taken to the shack with grateful hearts, and until the capable brown heads are silvered with recall the night when the husky, gentlemanly boys, did themselves proud.

The poet, perhaps, is also honored with a fountain pen. The entertainment that follows would surprise many a town dweller. The "boss" has provided a piano.

Artists in Overalls.

Solos are given by artists (wearing overalls, it is true), but who have oft-times stood on the boards, facing large cultured audiences. The engineer has hidden himself under an ample coating of grease in the course of the season, but now, shaved and dressed, gives "The Chariot Race" in a manner that makes all see the rushing scenes of Ben Hur all revealing the artist that has entertained large audiences in his day.

To the capable man with business ability, agriculture and mechanical knowledge, and a fair amount of capital, turning a stretch of lonely prairie into a land of industry, is both alluring and profitable.



SEED OATS FOR FARMERS

Government Comes to Aid of Western Drought Victims.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Edmonton, March 22. — Considerable activity in the shipment of seed oats from the central and northern parts of the province is reported now the drougth-stricken areas in the south having already drawn upon local supplies for their spring requirements. More than 300,000 bushels of seed oats have been supplied from the Dominion seed branch in Calgary in addition to what has been bought direct from farmers. The price is $1.11 for No. 1 and $1.02 for No. 2.

NEWSPAPERS IN LARGE AND SMALL CITIES

(St. Catharines Standard.)

Mr. Henry L. Stoddard, publisher of the New York Evening Mail, whose timely article published in his own paper charging the big city papers with the responsibility for the distress and ruin to which their extravagant use of white paper has forced many daily and weekly newspapers throughout the country, was published in the Standard a couple of weeks ago. Mr. Stoddard has now published another article, in which he tenders apologies to the readers of his newspaper for again devoting space to a frank discussion of the newsprint situation, and how the newspapers, big and little, are meeting the most vivid problem they have ever faced. But it seemed to him, he says, that "the only apology in order is one for so many years of silence on the part of newspapers about themselves." "The truth is," he says "that the newspaper is about as close to the home as the family market basket, and whatever effects it in an important way ought to be told to its readers as freely as the news in other lines is published." The only apology he offers, therefore, is for the policy of suppression, which, he says, all newspapers have pursued in the past.

The Standard has probably pursued a policy of taking its readers into its confidence to an extent exceeding the average of Ontario papers. It has noticed many wrongs under which the smaller city newspapers have suffered in this province for many, many years, and perhaps because it has not suffered in the same degree as many of its smaller city contemporaries in other parts of the province, it has felt free to give expression to its views where others have been very reluctant.

The Standard has contended for many years that the big city newspapers are unfairly aided in a disastrous competition with the smaller city newspapers by the outrageously low postal charges which are practically a bonus paid by the people of Canada, and to which the newspapers and merchants in the smaller cities contribute to an extent that is very inadequately recognized. This is brought again to our attention by the advances made in subscription rates by the two daily newspapers of London, Ontario—the Free Press and the Advertiser.

The London papers have this week announced increases in their subscription increases in their subscription rates from $6.00 per year to 7.80 per year for delivered copies, and from $4.00 to $5.00 per year by mail. No person at this day familiar with conditions in the newspaper business will say that the advances made by these papers are not justified. The highest rate will not pay for the cost of white paper alone. The question, however, may be reasonably asked, why should there be any distinction in rates? Why should not newspapers have one price whether inside or outside of a city, whether delivered by carrier employer by the newspaper itself, or delivered by a carrier paid by the Government of Canada? It is no doubt a fact that a large proportion of the mail subscription of the London papers, as of the Toronto and Hamilton papers is delivered by rural mail carriers in the cities. A condition is created by which the smaller city newspapers are constantly being unfairly handicapped.

YEARLING FILLY SELLS AT AUCTION FOR $13,500

HIGHEST PRICE EVER PAID FOR A TROTTER OF THAT AGE

New York, March 22.—Eleven months and one day old, the black filly, Hope Frisco, bred by the estate of the late L. V. Harkness, at Walnut Oall Farm, in Kentucky, was sold at the Fasig-Tipton Company's horse auction in Madison Square Garden for $13,500, the highest price on record for a trotter of her age. She was struck off to Thomas W. Murphy, one of the leading drivers of the Grand Circuit. It was said that he was acting for R. J. Reynolds, of Winston-Salem, N.C., who has paid fancy prices for two or three other trotters now in Murphy's training stable at Poughkeepsie.

J. D. Roquemore of Montgomery, Ala., was the contending bidder.

An unusual feature of the sale was that the first bid for the high priced yearling was only $500. Sanford Small and C. H. Sears, two New England horsemen, who occasionally buy promising trotters for Walter R. Cox to campaign, took part in the early bidding, but dropped out before five figures were reached.

Oope Frisco is a daughter of San Francisco, 2:07¾, the sire of St. Frisco, 2:01¾; Lu Princeton, 2:01, and other sensational horses. Harvest Hope, 2:21½, the dam of the filly, is a full sister of The Harvester, 2:01, who held the record for trotting stallions until Lee Axworthy set the mark at 1:58¼. In the direct female line Hope Frisco traces back to Clara, dam of Dexter, 2:17J, the champion trotter of fifty years ago.

Highest Previous Price $10,500.

E. J. Tranter, president of the Fasig-Tipton Company, said the highest price previously on record for a yearling trotter was $10,500, at the dispersal of Marcus Daly's stud in the Garden nineteen years ago. It was paid for the filly Miss Previous. She never distinguished herself. The highest price of recent years was paid by A. H. Cosden of Southold, L. I., for the cold General Knight, a foal of 1917 from Walnut Hall aFrm.

The twenty-nine yearlings from the Harkness stud this year brought $29,960, an average of $1,033. This is the highest average ever known for trotters of like age from Walnut Hall or any other stud.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

The loneliest woman in the world has just passed away in Bute, Scotland, at the age of 76 years. Thirty years ago she travelled far into the interior of Africa and by her practical service to a tribe of natives led them skilfully to open a school for the education of their children. For a greater part of the 30 years she was the only European woman in the territory and she acknowledges that in adapting herself to the food, customs, and climate she almost unconsciously de-Europeanized her outlook. She only saw the world within her narrow and weird sphere. In the rainy days she grew very wearied. The native friends who gathered round her would divine her loneliness and in many ways they tried to break the monotony, all of which endeared her black people to herself. Once, she determined to take a trip to Europe and made preparations accordingly, only to find that if she carried out her intention the tribe would lapse back to its fetishes. She determined to remain till she felt assured that they could be trusted to carry on their education without her aid. She finished her work, and there will be a long period of mourning for the "White Face with a Heart like the Sun."

RAIN MAKING IN ALBERTA

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Calgary, March 22.—Rain making by scientific means and human efforts is becoming an accomplished fact, and according to the announcement made by Capt. E. S. Brett, secretary of the McCall Aeroplane Company, attempts to produce rain in Calgary and district will be made by Capt. McCall whenever rain is considered necessary. Certain scientific lines will be followed, as already tested in South Africa and Tasmania.

PETERBORO MAY GET DOMINION CONVENTION

ONTARIO DELEGATES TO MONTREAL WILL GIVE THE CITY FIRST CHOICE

The business sessions of the Ontario Convention of the Great War Veterans' Association closed Friday afternoon and the delegates became the guests of the Board of Trade for a sight-seeing motor trip around the city. Despite the inclement weather, which was particularly hard on automobiles the members of the Board of Trade turned out in large numbers with their cars. Various places of interest in the city were visited including the lift locks, factory district and parts of the residential sections of the city. The delegates were greatly impressed with the city and the automobile trip alone is a great advertisement for Peterborough.

One delegate who is a business man announced his intention of returning to the city immediately after the Dominion Convention to do business and this is only one instance of the immense good which has been done by the fact that the convention was here.

May Get Dominion Convention

The Ontario delegates of the G. W. V. A., who have gone to Montreal from here have gone there with the firm intention of voting that the next annual convention of the Dominio Commad G. W. V. A. shall be in Peterborough. It was stated that in the opinion of the delegates there was not another city in the Dominion of Canada which was a well fitted to hold the convention as this city, and it is more in the interests of the G. W. V. A. as a whole that this action is to be taken.

If it is decided to hold the convention here next year Peterborough will have' carried off a great prize for there is keen competition among al the cities of the Dominion for the honor of having this gathering.

Magellan Famed as Man Who Found the Pacific and Completed the Work of Columbus.

Four centuries ago Ferdinand Magellan sailed from Seville, Spain, on the voyage during which he discovered the Pacific ocean, named the Straits of Magellan and opened the islands of the Pacific ocean to the people of Europe. His was the first circumnavigation of the earth. Had he not been imbued with the desire to be the governor of a new world, in keeping with the promise accorded him by Charles V., the great geographer might have attained even greater heights. Instead he died, before the three years' cruise was completed, while in battle with natives of a group of the Philippine islands. He had discovered them, along with Ladrone and Guam islands, and was intent on making them Spanish.

The discovery of America by Columbus had not completely convinced Europeans that the earth was round, but the findings of Magellan clinched the argument. He started with a crew of 270 men and five vessels, but the one ship that survived the cruise only took back a remnant of that party. Many died of scurvy, and some fell during mutinies and battles with natives. Magellan added much to the world's geography. He outlined the entire eastern coast of South America. His discoveries offered the Spaniards new opportunity, and they started to further explore the Pacific. Spaniards found and named California, after a character in a Spanish novel. Then for some unaccountable reason they rested on their laurels.

Fertilizers in the Netherlands.

One source of the demand for fertilizers in the Netherlands that one is apt to overlook is the fairly extensive reclamation of waste land. The process of dyking and draining that has won large sections of the country from the sea and its culmination in the project to drain the greater part of the Zuider Zee are well known.

WAGE EARNERS IN FAVOR OF DAYLIGHT SAVING

MAJORITY OF THOSE IN FACTORIES HEARD FROM WANT SUMMER TIME

The latest results in the daylight saving poll in the local factories continues to show a large majority in favor of the measure. The following results were received this week.

Canadian General Electric: 75 per cent.

Peterborough Cereal Company: 52 per cent.

Peterborough Lock Company: 52 per cent.

Lavoie Knitting Company: 76 per cent.

Quaker Oats Company: 58 against

There are still thirteen factories to here from. A complete report will be given soon as these factories announce the result of their poll.

Territory of Louisiana.

In 1800 on the first of October the Spanish government by the treaty of St. Ildefonso, ceded the territory known as Louisiana to France. The territory had been a Spanish possession for 38 years, originally ceded to Spain by Louis XV. The return of Louisiana to France was effected by Napoleon, who contemplated forming a colonial empire in America. After three years he abandoned the scheme and sold the territory to the United States.

Bicycle for One-Legged Riders.

A French firm has devised an ingenious method of adapting a bicycle to the one-legged rider. The chain is cut and one end attached to the sprocket, while the other end is secured to a coil spring from the lower frame. In this way the rider simply pushes the pedal down, and the spring draws it up again, and the usual rotary motion so difficult for the one-legged rider is eliminated.

DOCTOR URGED AN OPERATION

Instead I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Was Cured.

Baltimore, Md.—"Nearly four years I suffered from organic troubles, nervousness and headaches and every month would have to stay in bed most of the time. Treatments would relieve me for a time but my doctor was always urging me to have an operation. My sister asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before consenting to an operation. I took five bottles of it and it has completely cured me and my work is a pleasure. I tell all my friends who have any trouble of this kind what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—NELLIE B. BRITTINGHAM, 609 Calverton Rd., Baltimore, Md.

It is only natural for any woman to dread the thought of an operation. So many women have been restored to health by this famous remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after an operation has been advised that it will pay any woman who suffers from such ailments to consider trying it before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

BALD HEADS AT PEACE TABLE

Many Diplomats Had Whiskers and Mustaches, but Lacked Hair on Their Craniums.

An amusing sidelight on the recent peace conference at Versailles is thrown by a correspondent, who not only reported the proceedings proper, but took notes regarding the hair, mustaches, beards and whiskers of the peacemakers.

Two-thirds of the delegates were more or less bald. Perhaps some of them made up for this by wearing mustaches. Out of 65 men who sat round the peace table, all had mustaches but 14.

Whiskers, on the other hand, were not popular. Only three people wore them, and by a curious coincidence the names of all these three people began with V. They were Venizelos of Greece, Vandervelde of Belgium and Vassitch of Serbia. The latter's whiskers were particularly prominent.

In regard to dress, there was less formal attire than one might have imagined. The English paid no special attention to dress. High hats and frock coats, once a combination that would never have been sanctioned, were quite popular; but there' were some countries which put all they knew into their attire. These were, notably, the Japanese, and some of the South American states.

SAYS OLIVER LODGE AND CONAN DOYLE ARE BOTH THE VICTIMS OF DELUSION

M.A. Howlett of Winnipeg Lectured on Modern Spiritualism at Allen Theatre Last Night—Ouiji Board is Drawing Hundreds to the Asylum.

Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir A. Conan Doyle and other great thinkers who have espoused the cause of spiritualism are the victims of deception and will soon discover this and admit their mistake. Such was the statement made last night by Mr. M. A. Howlett, of Winnipeg, in his lecture on "Spiritualism" at the Allen Theatre. Another equally startling statement made was thatthousands of people all over the country were becoming the inmates of insane asylums through the use of the simple

"The findings of great scientists could not be placed aside with a mere wave of the hand," Mr. Howlett said. "We have got to accept their proof that they have had communication with certain agencies, but where we are forced to differ with these great men is in the statement that these agencies are those of the dead. We have only to look into the scriptures to find that spiritism is no new thing, but that it has existed even six thousand years ago. The present wave of spiritism ition of the spiritism that is mentioned all the way through the scriptures."

Mr. Howlett gave the cause of the present wave of spiritism as the result of the war, "flu," hunger and starvation during the past five years and stated that at the present time the world was in a state of semi-hysteria. Great Britain was always considered to be a very conservative country, yet today it was racked with spiritism from John Groat to Land's End. So-called communication with the dead was not really communication with the dead at all, but with the agencies spoken of in the scriptures as fallen angels. There was a grave danger in tampering with such agencies. Thousands of people were going insane through invoking the aid of these agencies. He spoke of a town in Southern California where a number of people had gone insane simply through becoming enamored with the use of the ouija board. Quoting the New York American dated December 23, 1919, the speaker pointed out that thousands of American soldiers who fell in the war were besieging the offices of the society of research, seeking messages from the dead. Professor Walter Prince of the society told that paper that these people were referred to any one of the twelve mediums working under the society. The information generally desired was proof that their relatives were really dead.

The Bible showed that these things might be expected at the present time as we were living at the close of one cosmos period and entering on a new one. Great statesmen such as Lloyd George and President Wilson had referred to the fact that "the old world must end." The speaker prophesied that within the next twelve months there would be thousands more people in the country going insane through spiritism.

"What is meant by spiritism?" he asked. The dictionary defined it as communication with the dead. From one point of view the claims made with regard to spiritism were correct, but from another point of view did not think that the people who really believed in communication with the dead were dishonest. Sir Oliver Lodge could not be called dishonest, neither could Sir A. Conan Doyle and yet because these great minds espoused the cause of spiritism thousands and thousands of people were following their example.

Mr. Howlett related a personal incident to prove that there really was such a thing as communication with agencies outside this world. He and a few friends used to meet together in an old house. One day one of the party suggested a spiritualistic seance. The party gathered round the table and placed their hands on it. The table began to rock. He was "From Missouri" and would not believe that any other human agency was causing it, but on investigating he found that none of the party were the cause of the movement. One friend became so enamored with the idea that he became what spiritualists would term a very successful medium. He used to go off in a [illegible] by the agency and he would then call for a pencil and paper and when these were given to him he would write about things that the speaker knew he did not have brains enough to know anything about. Questions were asked about which he could know nothing and they were satisfactorily answered. Another became what was termed a speaking medium. On one occasion when the rest of the party laughed at him he took the pencil and ground it to powder in his mouth and then chased them out of the house. As time went on he grew to be so obsessed by the agency that he would go off into a trance while at work until he finally got so that he could not keep his job. Another young lady was so successful as a "medium" that she could make a table walk right across the room to her. It was because of such experiments as these that great thinking men were falling in line with the idea of spiritism. Yet the claim that they were communicating with the dead was absolutely false and not in accord with the writings of scripture. He described the periods of the world as in three parts: The first, up till the flood which was under the jurisdiction of the angels; the second, from the flood up till the present day which was left to man to prove whether he could rule nations or not, and the third period was the one into which we were about to enter and which would be under the jurisdiction of the Messiah.

In the first period the angels had the power to take on material form and appear to man. Some of them had abused this power and instead of uplifting man, had degraded him. Today it was nothing more than the same fallen angels representing themselves as the spirits of dead relatives.

The speaker appealed to logic and reason against these beliefs. He quoted many cases in scripture to prove that the agencies at work today were at work thousands of years ago in a similar way. One of the most stirring quotations showed that King Saul appealed in disguise to a "witch" to raise up Samuel. When Samuel was supposed to have been raised up Saul asked him for advice as the Philistines were attacking him. Samuel was supposed to have replied that on the morrow both he and his two sons would die. This prophecy did not come true and one of Saul's sons lived to reign over Israel. Thus in the Old Testament it was proven that these agencies were lying agencies.

At the conclusion of his address the speaker declared that even the Christians of today were carrying out a practice which was not nothing more than the result of a spiritualistic practice of the Old Testament in the worship of Nimrod after he was killed. He referred to the practice of cutting the Yule Log and placing it on the fire on Christmas Eve. The fir tree represented Nimrod, who was cut into 14 pieces and hence the Yule Log. In the same way the practice of placing Christmas gifts on a fir tree was a custom derived from the ancient worship of Nimrod. He told how Nimrod, a wicked ruler, was killed by 72 men who had become convinced of the errors of the day. Nimrod's mother was what today would be termed a medium. She used this power to delude the people into believing that Nimrod had risen from the dead and was more powerful than ever.

Mr. Howlett came here under the auspices of the International Bible Students' Association. The theatre was well filled to hear him, a fact which was evidence that some interest in the subject is being taken locally.

The New Age.

Very decollete in front, the gown's bodice in the rear opened in a broad V almost to the waist. There were no sleeves to the rose-colored gown: on the contrary it was cut out under the arms like the jerseys worn by athletes. It had, to be sure, a dainty wisp of a train, but nevertheless the flimsy skirt was so exiguous that as the girl whirled about the ballroom to the wild strains of the jazz band it was frequently possible to see that her garters had ruby buckles.

A Philadelphia matron said to George Gould as the girl floated past:

"Joan is a lovely creature, but all her interests are wrapped in clothes."

"Evidently her interests only ma'am," said Mr. Gould with a cynical smile.

Death Took Old and Young.

During the war the London Times, either wittingly or unwittingly, published innumerable items about the very old men and women in the British empire who were dying off. Their great age, their longevity, formed a melancholy contrast to the slaughter of youth then going on in Europe. During six months in 1918, 312 persons over one hundred years old died in the British isles, but the figures of young men who fell during that time before the guns of the enemy and who died with influenza mounted toward a million. Not one of the old, be it said in passing, died from "flu."

A Shopping Convenience

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

Adrian Blair paced the dusty country road just beyond the limits of Elmwood in the somber and dissatisfied mood. He had been discarded by a woman who had attracted him, but that had by no means broken his heart.

Miss Blanche Worden had been to him a model of worthy girlhood—until he had found her out. The shock had come devastatingly. He had really liked the peerless beauty. One day he had covertly coaxed her pet and favorite, diminutive black and white Fifi, a novelty among canines, to follow him from the Worden home preparatory to embellishing the animal with a pretty collar.

"It will give me an excuse to hurry back and pass another delightful hour with Blanche," he felicitated himself. Then missing his tiny companion he began a search that ended in complete disappointment. That was an hour of scurrying and vexation for Adrian. He offered every boy he met a liberal reward for the recovery of Fifi. Then, crestfallen, somehow fearful, he went to the Worden home.

It was his last visit, the very last. Adrian had seen pettish girls in a tantrum but it was nothing to Blanche. She went into hysterics over the loss of her pet. She upbraided Adrian and scolded him, stamped her pretty foot, her face grew set and vicious looking. She finally fell back upon resentment. In fact she dropped the mask of urbanity completely, and when Adrian called the following morning she was not at home, and before the week was out he knew that she had dismissed him as a suitor and that Wallace Trego was now her favored chevalier.

Fifi was lost to Blanche and she lost to Adrian. When he came to think matters over sensibly, however, he was convinced that he had scored a lucky escape from a siren with a bad temper and of flitting loyalty. He did not exactly fancy being pointed to as a discard speedily superseded. He held but one further communication with Miss Worden. It was to indite a formal note stating that neither time, money nor diligence should be spared to recover the lost Fifi. Later he went for a week of rest and reorganization of his disturbed faculties to the little town of Elmwood. The road he now traversed was a part of his regular daily hike. He strode along, swinging his walking stick, when a scudding figure flashed past him. It was that of a tiny animal wearing a blanket made of some light material. This did not so completely cover the creature that Adrian could not make out color and form.

"Fifi!" he shouted, and started after the flying animal, but when he had gone hardly fifty feet, through the open gateway of a farmhouse a great mastiff came plunging with a savage growl, seized the little animal, tore its blanket to tatters, threw Fifi in the air, and was about to seize it again in its vicious jaws when Adrian reached the spot and gave the aggressor a rap that sent it howling out of view.

"You poor little exile!" spoke Adrian sympathizingly as he took up the trembling, whimpering refugee and then the cloth fragments scattered upon the ground. He noticed a spool of thread and some pieces of lace. As he placed these in his pocket a boy passed him.

Fifi snuggled confidingly in the arms of his rescuer and there was a reward for Adrian's kindness, for when he had located this Amy Pearce he found himself in the presence of a lovely creature of eighteen who listened to his story with tremulous agitation.

"Fifi was picked up shivering and crying in a ditch by uncle on his last trip to the city," she explained. "He is a dear, true friend, for I've trained him so that whenever I see anything at the town store my cousin owns, I just put a note in the pocket of the blanket and what I order comes back the same way."

The bright, lovable little maiden sat down and cried as if her heart would break when Adrian explained where Fifi had come from. He tried to comfort her by hoping that the real owner of Fifi might be influenced to allow the animal to remain in its new home, and when he went to the city the next day a memory of the innocent wild rose face of Amy Pearce urged him to plead her cause at any cost. Adrian sent an emissary to interview Miss Worden. He returned with a queer expression on his face.

"Miss Worden says if anyone wants Fifi for ten dollars they can have him," he reported. "It seems that her new lover made her a present of a Mexican hairless, the oddity of which has completely obliterated all her fancy for Fifi."

And glad of an excuse to again meet Amy Pearce, Adrian sped back to her, and her joy at being able to retain possession of her cherished pet brightened the eyes of the lovely girl with gratitude that Adrian made it a life business to nurture into love.

Owing to the flood wash of the Auzauble river the Glen power plant was compelled to shut down, leaving Arbona in darkness.

REV. F.E. MALLOTT PREACHES ON THE SIN OF AVARICE

LAST OF SERIES OF SERMONS ON "THE SEVEN DEADLY SINS"

The services at Trinity Church yesterday were well attended both morning and evening.

At the morning service, the pastor gave the first of a series of three sermons on the pre-eminence of Christ. The choir rendered very beautifully the anthem "Come Unto Me." Captain Maurice Park sang in good voice: "The Song of Lazarus."

At the evening service Mr. Malott preached the closing sermon of the series on "The Seven Deadly Sins." These sins, in the order in which they were dealt with are: pride, anger envy, sloth, lust, intemperance and avarice.

Dealing with the sin of avarice, the speaker said that while all these sins were the sins of the whole human race, that some are more prevalent among one race than another. Intemperance is a sin of Western races; lust is more common in the East. But avarice is peculiarly a sin of the great trading nations. Some think it is the chief sin in the Anglo-Saxon race. To illustrate this, the speaker quoted several great English and American writers. Dealing with the sin itself, Mr. Malott went on to say that is the sin of age rather than the sin of youth. Young men too often under-value money and become spendthrifts, when they should be saving. Avarice is the excess of a very necessary virtue. The virtue of thrift.

When the love of money gets hold of men, it will lead some to hard work and honest effort to be rich, but others it impels to dishonesty in its many forms and to even worse. Quoting from a recent writer he said: "The love of money has begotten the courage of the highwayman, it has sharpened the ingenuity of the thief, it has many a time put a knife in the hands of the assassin and for 30 pieces of silver, Judas sold his Master." But the commonest result of avarice is a miserly spirit or a spirit of selfishness that leads men to lavish upon themselves and to withold their gifts from all good and worthy causes.

Some think that avairce is uncurable. "There are considerations, however, that will save a man from this sin," said the speaker. If a man will consider that money is not the highest good, that it is a means and not an end, and that it is not a permanent good, he will not become a slave to it.

The speaker urged his hearers to regard themselves as stewards of wealth, to make all they can honestly and to use all for the glory of God and the good of men.

At the evening service the choir rendered the anthem: 'Sun of my Soul," by Turner. Miss Ila Wilson sang "Morning, Noon and Night," and Miss Atkinson, of Campbellford, sang "Come Unto Me."

CHRISTIAN PEOPLE URGED TO TAKE UP SELF EXAMINATION

REV. D. BROWN'S THEME AT PARK STREET BAPTIST CHURCH YESTERDAY

At the Park Street Baptist Church yesterday morning Rev. D. Brown, the pastor, preached on the subject, "Our Examination," taking his text from II. Corinthians, 13:5.

Paul, the writer of these words, Mr. Brown said, was not only noted for his love to Christ, but also for his love to man. This exhortation comes, then, from one who loved. He cried: "My heart's desire and prayer to God is that Israel might be saved." His love for Israel was so great that he could wish himself accursed for their sakes. To this end he travailed in spirit. He spent his strength, and at last laid down his life.

This exhortation comes, then, from one who knows our danger and need. "Examine yourselves." How shall we proceed? What method shall we follow? What shall be the standard? Let us remember it is our life that we are to examine, and it is ourselves who must do the examining. I think it fair to say we must apply the truth upon our own hearts. The point or standard about which Paul was so much concerned was their faith. To be in the faith is to be in the truth. To be in the truth is to be in Christ. To be in Christ is to have Christ in us.

This examination implies that we must bring ourselves under the searchlight of God's truth. That is to say, under the commandments and requirements of God's word.

"God has commanded men everywhere to repent." The question is, have we been obedient to the Divine requirements? The commandments of God are so many models into which our life is to be molded into the image of Christ. It is in God's word we find our religious duty and obligation. This examination will reveal to us as to whether we have His spirit witnessing with our spirit that we are the sons of God. Further, this examination will reveal the right spiritual conditions, which will be love for the word of God, and obedience to God; love for the fellowship of God, which will mean a prayer life; love for the service of God, which will mean an active life.

So it follows that to be in the faith a man must be converted. He must be born again. It also means to be what you profess. So, to examine ourselves means to talk it over with God, who has invited us to come and reason together, etc. Again, we are to examine ourselves on the ground of action. This is the data upon which God will determine our destiny. This examination asks: What is the controlling motive, pleasure or the service of God? Are we giving all diligence to make our calling and election sure?

You remember the man who asked the strange question: "Are there few that be saved?" To which Jesus answered: "Strive to enter in at the straight gate." What a surprise it must have been to the woman who came in disguise to the prophet, but as she approached, he cried: "Come in, thou wife of Jeraboam." Jesus Christ will cry to the deceiver, Come in, thou hypocrite, why judgest thou thyself as a Christian? Again, the Loadician Church (Rev. 3:17), who thought herself rich and in want of nothing, yet wretched, miserable poor and blind, and naked, proves the need of an examination.

Again, "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof is death," is a further proof. We read also: "Many shall say in that day, we did eat and drink in thy presence, and in thy name cast out devils," but he said, "I never knew you."

Yes, it is possible for us to eat the communion bread and do many good works, and yet not be in the faith. Again, the foolish virgins followed a vain delusion who thought lamps would do without oil.

We had better examine ourselves now, for God will examine us by and by. Do we live in neglect of any known duty? Does the voice of conscience harmonize with the voice of truth?

Three Islands in Hudson Bay Set Apart For Grazing.

Ottawa, March 22.—On the recommendation of Dr. J. G. Rutherford, Chairman of the Royal Commission on musk ox and reindeer three islands situated in the northern part of Hudson Bay have been reserved by the Government to provide a grazing ground for reindeer and musk-ox. The three islands are Southampton Island, Mansel Island and Coats Island.

FIRE IN APARTMENTS FORCES TENANTS OUT

Toronto, March 22.—Fire breaking out in the basement, where a stock of paints, oils and floor varnish was kept, forced a number of occupants of the flats in the St. George Apartments, at the corner of St. George and Harbord streets, to descend by the fire escape in their night clothes early on Saturday morning.

The fire burned through to the floor above and put the elevator, the telephones and the electric lights out of commission. The dense smoke forced most of the tenants of the rear flats above the fire to leave, but others did not have to move out of the building.

The firemen had a heavy job in combatting the smoke, but managed to subdue the flames and save considerable damage. The loss is estimated at about $1,500 to the building, and the same to contents.

Ex-Ald. A. H. Strattan, of Peterborough, is president of the company which owns the building.

THOUSANDS MOURNING MURDERED MAYOR

PROCESSION TWO MILES LONG FOLLOWS THE REMAINS TO TOWN HALL

Cork, Ireland, March 22.—Thousands of persons resident in the city and from the surrounding country today passed through the City Hall, where the body of Lord Mayor MacCurtain, who was assassinated early Saturday morning, was lying in state.

A procession of mourners two miles long followed the hearse yesterday, when the body of the Lord Mayor was conveyed from his residence to the Town Hall. Bishop Colahan walked in front of the first body of the Cork Sinn Fein volunteers, which acted as a bodyguard and which furnished the guard of honor in the Town Hall during the night.

THREE CHIMNEY FIRES

One at Empress Hotel— All Put Out With Hand Pumps

Quite a little stir was caused at the Empress Hotel Saturday night when one of the chimneys caught fire. It was first spotted by Detective-Sergt. Newhall of the local force, who immediately sent in an alarm. A quick response from the fire department prevented any loss and the fire was extinguished by means of hand pumps.

Another chimney fire took place at 10:45 Sunday morning at the residence of Mr. Cullen, 312 Lewis St. In this instance also the quick arrival of the department ond the use of hand pumps was all that was required to put the blaze out.

A third alarm was received from box 27 on the corner of McDonnel and Water streets, last evening, but when the department arrived at the box there was no one in sight to explain matters.

CARRIERS IN DOUBT

Have Heard Nothing Definite Yet as to New Classification

Local mail carriers have as yet received no information regarding the new classification as published in the Toronto papers Saturday night. They are not at all pleased with the statement in a Toronto paper that in order to be eligible for the maximum salary a postal employe would be required to show at least five years' service. A local mail carried pointed out today that if this idea is correct it will mean that there will be only about seven local men who will be eligible to take advantage of the maximum salary under the new classification.

TEMPORARY BRIDGE IS CLOSED FOR TRAFFIC

ICE JAM YESTERDAY BROKE SEVERAL POSTS AND DYNAMITE WAS USED

Yesterday the ice on the Otonabee River began to jam against the temporary bridge at the end of Simcoe street, and before very long several of the supporting posts of the bridge had been smashed, making it dangerous for traffic. By order of the city engineer the bridge was closed for vehicular traffic and yesterday afternoon blasting operations were begun to remove some of the ice. All day yesterday and today the bridge was closed to traffic, necessitating a detour to the Smith street bridge, a distance of half a mile or so.

During the blasting operations yesterday quite a large crowd of interested spectators gathered to watch the work, and the men in charge experienced some difficulty in keeping the people back from the danger zone.

It was stated in the city engineer's office this afternoon that the bridge would be open again for vehicular traffic either this afternoon or tomorrow morning when the damaged posts had been replaced.

INDOOR BASEBAL

The Collegiate indoor baseball team added another to their string of victories on Saturday afternoon when they defeated the Y.M.C.A. team by the decisive score of 35 to 5. At no time in the game had the "Y" team ay chance and right from the start it was merely a matter of just by how many runs they would be beaten.

The line up was as follows:

Collegiate—Catcher, E. Legon; pitcher, K. Hunter; 1st base, K. Kirn; 2nd base, B. Mowett; short stop, F. Green; 3rd base, J. Fanning; r. field, H. Bleaker; centre, F. Brooks; l. field, T. Gilchrist.

Y.M.C.A.—Catcher, C. A. McIntosh; pitcher, P. H. Tudhope; 1st base, M. Brownscombe; 2nd base, C. Burgone; short stop, R. Pogue; 3rd base, A. Doughty; r. field, C. Armstrong; centre, K. Anderson; l. field, A. McLeish.

TO DISCUSS AMENDING THE B. N. A. ACT

PROVINCIAL ATTORNEY GENERALS WILL HOLD CONFERENCE AT OTTAWA

Ottawa, March 22.—Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Acting Premier of Quebec, was in Ottawa Saturday to see Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, with regard to various matters, including the proposal to ask the Imperial Parliament to amend the British North America Act so that hereafter the Canadian Parliament will be able to amend its own constitution, subject to the consent in each case of all the Provinces.

It now appears that there is a general willingness on the part of the Provincial Attorneys-General to concur on the general principle. Since that time, however, questions of detail as to the exact form in which such an amendment would be put and as to the consequences which would flow from it have been raised.

It has become exceedingly probable that a conference of Provincial Attorneys-General, or their representatives, will be called some time this spring to go into the question exhaustively from every point of view.

DOMINION G. W. V. A. OPENS CONVENTION

IMPORTANT GATHERING OF RETURNED MEN FROM ALL CANADA IN MONTREAL

Montreal, March 22.—Over two hundred delegates, the advance guard of the Dominion Great War Veterans' convention which opens today, were registered here last night. The total attendance is expected to reach 400 and at the usual executive meeting Sunday all members of the Dominion executive were president, including President W. P. Purney. He is not in good health and it is probable that the duties of chairmanship will fall upon R. B. Maxwell, of Winnipeg, first Dominion vice president.

Travels a Month.

Among the delegates registered last night was J. L. Johnson, of Dawson City, who after travelling nearly a month by dog sleigh and train, has arrived to represent the ninety-six members of their G.W.V.A. in the Yukon.

The first woman delegate ever to represent a branch is Mrs. W. Garland Foster, a former nursing sister, who is here to represent the Nelson, B.C., branch.

Approximate numerical strength of the delegates is:

Ontario, 200; Manitoba, 30; Saskatchewan, 30 to 40; Alberta, 40; British Columbia, 20; Nova Scotia 25; New Brunswick, 20; Prince Edward Island, 5; Quebec, 27; Newfoundland is not represented, that colony having an independent organization.

The convention opened at ten o'clock this morning, the first business being registration of credentials.

FRESHET AT BELLEVILLE

River Moira Goes on Annual Rampage Sunday

Belleville, March 22.—The annual spring freshet of the Moira River took place Sunday. While not so serious as that of two years ago, when heavy losses were sustained by merchants and property-holders, water and ice invaded a number of the streets and some houses. Lower Front street was flooded and ice was piled up against the railway bridges, which, however, were not damaged. The foot-bridge and the lower traffic bridge were wrecked somewhat as the above came down the river, and numbers of buildings were damaged along the river banks. Had there not been cold weather recently, and had the merchants, householders and City Council not taken steps to prevent loss, undoubtedly there would have been quite heavy loss. Whether the situation is now to be considered safe cannot be determined, owing to the large body of ice in the river and the possibility of a further jam.

"FLO FLO" AT THE GRAND WEDNESDAY EVENING

EVERY MEMBER OF THAT FAMOUS CHORUS A PERFECT "36"

The stage may have its fun producing features, but musical comedy has but one Mosher and Simpson. The firm assists materially in the plot of John Cort's "Flo Flo" which will be the attraction at the Grand Theatre on Wednesday evening only.

"FloFlo" which remained one year at the Cort Theatre, New York is concerned with an international romance, although the nobleman turns out to be bogus, and the love affair of the vampirish Flo-Flo, model in the exclusive Bride-Shop. The author has included an American heiress, a Spanish Count, a match-making mother and the unforgettable Pinky and Aloysius, whose theft of the bride's trousseau further complicates the action of the piece.

Every member of the "Flo-Flo chorus is a "perfect 36" and lends admirable support to the splendid cast of well-known musical comedy artists including: Hazel Alger, W. J. McCarthy, Carl George, Eddie Lloyd, Augustus Buell Rhea Norton, Elinot Mc Cune, Marie Dantes, Robert Dale, Frank Masters, and Frank Hodgins.

"Flo-Flo" comes to this city following a successful Boston engagement.

GREATEST FARCE COMEDY NOW BEFORE PUBLIC

"NIGHTIE NIGHT" WILL BE AT THE GRAND NEXT SATURDAY

"Nightie Night," the hilarious farce-comedy which will be presented by Adolph Klauber (in association with the Selwyns) at the Grand Opera House Saturday matinee and night, March 27th, comes directly with the original company from a record-braking season's run at the Princess Theatre, where not only have the attendance records been broken, but according to Broadway critics, "Nightie Night" smashed all smileage-per-minute records."

Francis Byrne plays the role of a misunderstood Billy Mofat who makes the mistake of his life by offering to mend a wrist watch for his friend Trixie Lorraine, played by Suzanne Willa. The complcations resulting from the watch, Trixie's pnk pyjamas and a tailor who keeps holidays religiously, are partly due to the unreasonable suspicion of Mollie Moffat, charmingly enacted by Dorothy Mortimer. Other members of the company are Malcolm Duncan, Marie Chambers, Grant Mills, Ruby Craven, Cyril Raymond and George W. Pierpont.

"Nightie Night" is one of the sensations of the New York season in its bedlessness. Despite the naughtiness of Trixie's pyjamas and of Mollie's negligee, the production has been passed by the most censorious of critics as the best farce in years and the most wholesome. There is occasion for an abundance of chuckles, grins, gasps, and roars, without any undercurrent of suggestiveness. It is the sort of play that New Yorkers have taken Aunt Maria and Uncle Luke as well as the critical out-of-town buyer to see and enjoy. The troubles that have been laughed away at one performance of 'Nightie Night" this season would fill a catalogue, and the laughs would fill a library.

Averse to Borrowing Trouble.

Jimmy has been rather unfortunate lately in the way of minor accidents, and his mother has grown quite cautious about his taking chances. One day he came in and wanted to ride his tricycle down to his auntie's house. His mother hesitated before consenting to his request, and Jimmy cut in with the comforting assurance, "Maybe there won't be a thing happen, mother, so don't make a worry for yourself till it does."

Success.

Life is indefinite—a bundle of contradictions. We men, with our ideas strive to give it a particular shape by melting it into a particular mold—into the definiteness of success. All the world conquerors, from Alexander down to the American millionaires—mold themselves into a sword or mint, and thus find that distinct image of themselves which is the source of their success.—Rabindranath Tagore.

Would Be Up to Date.

Minnie, five years old, lives in the country. One summer she was taken to visit in town, where she was much interested in the electric lights. The first time the faithful kerosene burner was lighted after her return home she looked at it with evident disfavor, then ran to her father with: "Papa, let's give our lamps away and get us some gas lights in bottles."

A Mild Call.

NOT ALWAYS FAIR

Psychology Expert Decries Some Popular Tests.

Wrong to Judge Character and Intelligence by Means of Handwriting and Photographs, Is Assertion of Prominent Kansan.

Judging character and intelligence by means of photographs and handwriting is a senseless custom, in the opinion of Dr. J. C. Peterson, assistant professor of psychology in the Kansas State Agricultural college. Even though the custom is maintained by at least two-thirds of school boards, a large number of employment agencies, and many leading universities, it has no basis of proven accuracy as an excuse for its use, according to Doctor Peterson.

Persons applying for teaching positions or for fellowships in colleges are almost always required to submit applications in their own handwriting and to send photographs with the applications.

"Too often," says Doctor Peterson, "a pleasant smile and clear, regular penmanship outweigh years of experience and testimonials of scholarship.

"A belief in the claims set forth by handwriting and feature-reading experts has become widespread. And no one will deny that a few persons of more than ordinary insight have been most successful in determining character and mental endowments by a study of features and handwriting. But these experts have not been able to explain their methods so that others, less gifted, could follow them and obtain satisfactory results.

"Twelve children, ranging from the weak-minded to those of superior intelligence, were tested for mentality by the psychology department of the Ohio State university. Photographs of the children were then submitted to 63 judges, among whom were physicians, psychologists, teachers, college students, and business men and women.

"When the estimated intelligence reports were compared with the actual mentality determined by the mental tests, it was found that they did not correspond. One girl who was an inmate of an institution for the feeble-minded was judged by most to be of superior intelligence, while a boy who was really superior was judged to be on the border line of feeble-mindedness.

"Handwriting tests have shown largely the same results. Handwriting experts are almost unanimous in the opinion that pride and ambition are shown in an upward slanting of lines; that bashfulness is indicated by fine lines; force, by heavy lines and heavy bars on t's; perseverance, by long bars on t's; reserve by closed o's and a's, etc., and that lack of these qualities is indicated by a lack of the corresponding characteristics in penmanship.

"Holding that a person's traits of character can best be determined by the combined judgment of many acquaintances, psychologists of the University of Wisconsin judged 17 students of the university, ranking each according to the degree of each trait possessed. Specimens of handwriting, all written under the same conditions, were then secured. These were carefully measured and graded, and the result compared with the ranking previously given. There was no appreciable correlation."

The Joy of Living.

With all my heart I believe in the joy of living; but those who achieve it do not seek it as an end in itself, but as a seized and prized incident of hard work well done and of risk and danger never wantonly courted, but never shirked when duty commands that they be faced. And those who have earned joy, but are rewarded only with sorrow, must learn the stern comfort dear to great souls, the comfort that springs from the knowledge taught in times of iron that the law of worthy living is not fulfilled by pleasure, but by service and by sacrifice when only thereby can service be rendered.—Theodore Roosevelt.

Can't Lose It.

Adolph Tandler, symphony orchestra leader, was commenting on the demand that music by German composers should not be played.

"There is so much music that is German, that I doubt if it can be done," he remarked, and added, with a laugh, "besides, they tell me that they are using it at the peace conference, or, at least, that is the claim of a certain German musician I used to know.

"This German, after listening to the uproarious discord attending the peace celebration, cried:

" 'Ha! Observe that in order to celebrate they have to raise to the Wagnerian style of music!' "

There in Profusion.

Mary had been promised a visit to a certain camp, which was in an adjoining town. The promise was fulfilled one pleasant day and Mary, on tiptoe with excitement, started on the trip. Each time a soldier appeared she exclaimed: "Oh, see the khaki boy." But when the camp was at length reached Mary had nothing to say. Her mother, noticing this, asked her why she did not talk about them. Drawing a long sigh, Mary exclaimed: "Oh, mother! there is a whole forenoon full of them."

"If, as you say, your daughter has been simply trifling with my son, she is a heartless flirt!" declared Martin Denby sternly.

"And your son is a scheming fortune hunter!" came the wrathful response of Adam Truston.

"Hector does not have to be that," observed his father. "You make great claims in your purse-proud haughtiness, but I fancy I could discount your boasted resources doubly. You have always hated me as a business rival. You have some wild idea that no one is good enough for your daughter, unless he is a prince or a count at the least. Go ahead, then. Buy one, if that is your ambition, but just as fully as yourself I have no overpowering ambition to be connected with your family in any way."

"Your son has, but he won't!" observed Adam Truston spicily.

"Hardly, if I can help it. I have sent him away to Long Prairie, and a month's sojourn will cure him of this ridiculous love folly."

Adam Truston did not know where Long Prairie was, and firmly made up his mind that neither should Adella. He smiled whimsically as he recalled that he had dispatched his daughter to an aunt living at Shortville the day before. After that he boasted to his familiars as to how he "had sat down hard on those Denbys," but more than once felt nettled to realize that the elder Denby as persistently as himself opposed the possibility of the two young people going together.

"I am afraid we have used undue harshness in dealing with Adella," his wife told him about a week later. "I have received two letters from her, and both exhibit gloom and unhappiness."

"I have arranged to motor down to Shortville Saturday," announced her husband. "My friend, the banker there, has commissioned me to purchase some securities for his institution, and I shall stay over Sunday with Aunt Selina and Adella."

Truston started out on his trip late Saturday afternoon, driving his automobile himself. He had never been to Shortville, except once by train, and at dusk, as he entered a village garage well on his route, a disturbing discovery troubled him not a little. A rainstorm had come up, and he sought shelter for himself and the automobile until it was over.

"How far is it to Shortville?" he inquired of the garage man.

"Six miles. You see, this is Long Prairie, named after the long stretch between the two towns."

Truston was warned that the prairie road was a short cut, unpaved, might be sort of rutty on account of the rain, and was advised to take the regular turnpike. Learning, however, that the latter route was indirect and much longer, he determined to face darkness and uncertainty, and started out to get to Shortville as quickly as was possible.

Two miles covered, Truston knew that he had fallen into a nest of difficulties. In some way he had strayed from the shallow dirt road and was humping over clods and stones. It had begun to rain again. He passed no one on the route, nor any house, and Long Prairie he found well fitted its name, and was very long indeed.

Truston tried to locate the wagon trail again, and made for a glow as of a camp fire at a little distance. He drove up to it, to find two rough-appearing fellows resting on the ground in the glow of the fire where a thicket of saplings afforded some shelter.

"Can you help me find the road and direct me to Shortville?" he asked.

"Sure, we can," replied one of the men, and both approached the automobile. Their shrewd, sinister glance ran over the well-dressed motorist, noting the heavy watch-chain and the opulent diamond ring he wore. Then one of them spoke rapidly in a low tone to the other. Truston was suddenly seized and dragged from the machine. It was useless to struggle, for his assailants were great, husky specimens of the hobo class, and outcry was useless. They proceeded to despoil Truston of all about him that was of value, and the portfolio containing the securities.

"You can walk the rest of the way," chuckled one of the men. "We need the auto to make our getaway. I say—"

Whack! Out of the dusk into the fire glare appeared a young man, wielding a heavy walking stick. Whack! Just as stroke one had knocked flat down one man, the second performed the same service for his companion. Coolly the intruder picked up their scattered plunder, thrust it into the auto and turned to the amazed victim of the footpads with the words:

"Now, then, Mr. Truston, I presume you were headed for Shortville. Get in. I'll take you there."

"But—but—" stammered the rescued man. "You are Roy Denby! And you have saved me a small fortune. And how came you here, right in the nick of time?"

"Oh, I was walking home to Long Prairie after a call on Adella," coolly replied the young man. And, knowing not which to admire, his audacity or his courage and fortunate presence, Adam Truston mentally decided that he would not further oppose the course of true love.

TOOK FOXES IN NEAT TRAP

Probably Only Instance on Record Where Youngsters Were Caught in a Horse Blanket.

How four foxes were caught in a horse blanket is a quaint tale told by H. A. Hutmacher in the Hunter-Trader-Trapper of Columbus, O.

"I happened to be driving south of Rapatee, Ill., with the implement dealer of that town, making business calls on several farmers of that section, when, to my surprise, I saw on a very steep hill in the distance several young foxes playing about as if no human was near," says Mr. Hutmacher. "My partner and I decided to try our luck at catching them, so driving on a little farther, we tied our horses and set out across the field after them.

"When we reached the hole, they were all up over the hill chasing each other, so telling my companion to go around the hill and chase them my way I threw a horse blanket over their hole and waited. As they came rushing for the hole I raised one end of the blanket just enough to hide myself and at the same time form a trap of it for them to run into.

"They all got to the hole about the same time, when I threw one end of the blanket over them, the other end being over the hole. In the excitement I succeded in catching all four in the folds of the blanket.

"We went back to the buggy and drove to town, my companion taking two of the foxes and I two. Possibly the explanation of our good luck is the fact that the foxes were not much more than six weeks old when captured."

WHERE THEY FOUND THE HAT

Joe's Use of Brother Agent's Headgear, to Say the Least, Had Not Improved It.

Attorney General Palmer instructed the New York branch of the department of justice recently to gather all the German propaganda evidence it had accumulated to prosecute enemy aliens during the war and forward it to Washington, where it could be stored in the state department vaults. The books, papers and documents were placed in a wooden case five feet high, four feet wide and two feet deep, which was put in a special baggage car accompanied by two special agents of the department.

One of the agents became tired of sitting watching the case and said he would take a nap on it. He turned the case over on its side and laid down on it, using his handbag as a pillow, while the other laid on the floor of the car alongside the big box. In the morning Special Agent Joe, who slept on the box, awoke and found Agent Bill searching all through the car for something. He asked what he had lost and Bill said that he certainly had a hat when he entered the car but it was missing. They could not find the hat and finally turned the case right end up and there lay Agent Bill's new fall derby under it mashed perfectly flat. Tableau.

Origin of Names of States.

Connecticut is an Indian name meaning "Long River;" Maine is regarded as of French origin from the province of Maine; Massachusetts is an Indian word meaning "Place of Great Hills;" New Hampshire is English, coming from Hampshire county, England; Vermont is French, Vert Mont, meaning "Green Mountain." With reference to Rhode Island there is a difference of opinion, some claiming that it was named for the island of Rhodes and others for a prominent settler named Rhodes.

Must Show Loyal Strain.

Members of the Daughters of the American Revolution must show an ancestor who fought in the Revolutionary war or who was a member of the Continental congress, or the congress of any one of the colonies, or who was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, or who was an official who actually assisted in the establishment of independence by rendering service during the war and who, in any case, was consistently loyal to the cause of independence.

PETERBORO CURLERS MAKE SUGGESTIONS

Would Simplyfy Ontario Tankard by Adopting Group System Similar to O. H. A.

Peterborough Curling Club has been circularizing various clubs in the Ontario Curling Association, suggesting a change in the playing arrangements and rules of the Ontario Tankard.

In brief it is suggested that a system much similar to that of the O.H.A. be given a trial, whereby clubs in the Tankard will play down to groups, and by the elimination process two clubs will meet in the finals, instead of having a number of clubs waiting to play down in Toronto. The following is the circular:

Dear Sir,—At the last annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club the following resolution was passed by a unanimous standing vote of the club:

"Whereas the Peterborough Curling Club is of the opinion that complete justice is not carried out with the several curling clubs throughout the Province of Ontario, which to a great extent compose the Curling Association of the Province, in calling the finals for the Ontario Tankard to be played off in the city of Toronto every year, we are of the opinion and are most desirous that a change shall be made in this regard if the best interests of the association at large are to be conserved.

Enlarging upon the above resolution the Peterborough Curling Club submit the following reasons why such a change should take place and ask your co-operation to bring about the result desired at the next annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association in the city of Toronto.

1. Ice conditions in the city of Toronto are not the most favorable at all times for the Ontario Tankard finals. Experience has shown that the game may be started on very good ice but before the games are completed mild weather has supervened with the result that on many occasions in recent years they have been finished on soft ice or in the water. This condition is not conducive to good curling and is very irritating to the curlers. It is a well known fact that the best curling is done on the hardest ice; this does not always obtain in the city of Toronto.

2. The prevailing idea of eliminations down to sixteen groups should be done away with and the groups reduced to four. There are many cogent reasons why this should be done. (a) The time and expense—a very large item those days—it takes to complete a sixteen group schedule; (b) Few men can spare the time from business, generally three days under the present system, to uphold the "roarin'" game; (c) The possibility of running into soft ice, especially in Toronto, on a long-drawn schedule; (d) Grouping should be reduced to the extent that only one day's play should be required to declare the winners.

All the foregoing arguments offered on the subject apply just as forcibly in connection with the district cup championship.

Knowing the interest that your club has taken in this splendid game in the past, we would ask you to kindly devote a little of your attention to a discussion of the foregoing subject and of any suggestions which you may have to offer. Please advise us of your deliberations.

We would also ask, if favorably inclined to the proposed changes, to be sure and instruct your representatives, or proxies, at the next annual meeting to use their best endeavors to bring about the desired changes.

Yours very truly,
G. H. GIROUX,
President of Peterborough C. C.

:-: INDOOR BASEBALL :-:

The Machine Gun Section Indoor Baseball team was unable to emerge from the rut which it has been in since the opening of the season and Friday night, the Collegiate boys gave them another trouncing with a score of 30 to 2. This score was spread all through the game and there was never any hope for the Emma Gees although they battled bravely to keep the odds as low as they could. Since the opening of the season the Collegite team has made a very good showing and stands a good chance of running away with the championship although in order to do this they will have to consider a very good team in the Belmonts.

No. 3 Machine Gun unit was organised at the Armories in Stratford last night.

BOOSTING FATHER GORMAN

Peterborough Would Like to See Him President of Baseball League

Bro. "Sandy" Lockington, of the Port Hope Guide, is liable to have opposition for the presidency of the Central Ontario Baseball League at the annual meeting in Peterborough next Wednesday, if Dame Rumor can be relied on. It is stated that Peterborough and Belleville clubs are boosting for Fr. Gorman of Peterborough.

Fr. Gorman is well known in most of the eastern towns, he having been manager of the Peterborough intermediate hockey team. He is absolutely fair and impartial, and a lover of good, clean, wholesome sport.

PERCY KING ROLLS THE RECORD SCORE OF 299

COME WITHIN ONE POINT OF MAKING A PERFECT SCORE ON TEN PINS

On Friday night at the Water St alleys Mr. Percy King showed the nicest ten-pin string ever rolled in Peterborough, rolling 299, and only short one pin of reaching the possible, which is 300, being in eleven strikes and leaving one pin standing on his twelfth ball. The highest single score previously put up on these alleys was 289, made by J. Green.

Grocers Won Two.

On Friday night in the Ten Pin League the Grocers won two out of three games from the Quaker Oats. For the Grocers, Dawson was high man with 593; for the Quaker Oats V. Miller was high with 561.

Tonight the Grocers will play the Business Men.

UMPIRES TO ORGANIZE.

A Start Will Be Made at a Meeting This week.

The amateur baseball umpires of Ontario are to form an organization to look after their affairs. The initial start will be made this week, when all local umpires are invited to attend a meeting in Toronto, the date of which will be anonunced later. The object of this organization shall be the perpetuation of baseball as a sport, protection of the umpires, the training and advancement of umpires, teaching of the rules of the games to the teams; development of friendship among the umpires, rendering of a service to the community, and assisting the Amateur Commission and the Park Board.

Regulating Immigration.

Until 1882 congress did not make any law restricting foreign immigration. On the other hand, everything was done to encourage immigration without regard to its character or quality. In 1882 a law was made excluding escaped convicts, idiots and persons likely to become a public charge. Since then laws have been passed excluding persons afflicted with any dangerous contagious diseases, persons guilty of serious crime in their native country, anarchists, paupers and professional beggars. Foreigners deterred by law are sent back to the country from which they came. During 1916 the report of the commissioner of immigration shows 5,256 aliens, morally, mentally or physically below the standard were returned, 4,257 of whom were debarred from entering, the remainder having been arrested and expelled.

To Breed Rabbits for Their Fur.

An organization known as the Beveren club has been formed in London, England, to breed rabbits for their fur. The scheme is being run on co-operative lines.

The blue Beveren and the Havana rabbits are the strain which the club intends to rear. The fur of the blue Beveren is of lavender blue and is long, lustrous, fine and silky. That of the Havana is of a rich chocolate color and is thick, fairly long and fine.

It is hoped to produce from these rabbits natural furs the color of which will not fade.

Women Build Roads.

Five hundred Armenian women employed by the American Red Cross have built 100 miles of stone roads and reconstructed several steel bridges in this section within the last four months, an Associated Press dispatch from Marash, Mesopotamia, says. The roads were rebuilt in order to facilitate transportation of Red Cross supplies. There were no male laborers to be employed, so Capt. Edward Bickel of Seattle, who had charge of the engineering work, engaged the women, who were glad to have employment of any kind.

Wastage of Coal.

In a statement to Pennsylvania householders urging sifting of anthracite ashes, the Anthracite Operators' association says mining experts estimate that an average home wastes about three buckets of coal a week by not sifting, the loss a month being about $2.

FAMILY MARKED BY ODDITY

London Newspaper Tells of Strange Fate That Pursued Group Both in Life and Death.

There lived at Ipswich in the reign of William III a family known as the "odd family," a most appropriate name, as the following facts prove, London Answers states:

Every event, good, bad or indifferent, came to that family in an odd year or an odd day of the month, and every person was odd in manner or behavior or appearance. Even the letters of their Christian names always amounted to an odd number.

The father and mother were Peter and Rahab; their seven children (all boys) bore the names of David, Ezekiel, James, Jonas, Matthew, Roger and Solomon. The husband possessed only one leg and his wife only one arm: Solomon was blind in his left eye and Roger lost his right in an accident; James had his left ear torn off in a quarrel. Matthew's left hand had but three fingers.

Jonas had a stump foot. David was humpbacked and Ezekiel was 6 feet 2 inches at the age of nineteen. Every one of the children had red hair, notwithstanding the fact that the father's hair was jet black and the mother's white.

Strange at birth, all died as strangely.

The father fell into a deep sawpit and was killed, the wife died five days after from starvation. Ezekiel enlisted, was wounded in 23 places, but recovered. Roger, James, Jonas, David and Matthew died in 1713 in six different places on the same day; Solomon and Ezekiel were drowned in the Thames in 1723.

RECALL LEGENDS OF HAWAII

Two Idols, Recently Unearthed, Bring to Memory Folklore Tales Almost Lost to Memory.

Of the two old Hawaiian idols lately found concealed in the earth at Hookupu, Paukukalo, one, a female idol, is in a fairly good state of preservation. The idol is supposed to be that of Kihawahine, the Undine of Maui myths. Her haunts are the springs at Paukukalo, the Kauaha pond, and the matchless pools in the wooded glens around Pilholo, Makawao.

The legends about her compare with those of the German fairy folklore, and around the charms of her person as she sits combing her wealth of golden tresses at the edge of some bathing pool is woven many a half-forgotten Mauri folk tale.

In some of the latest ones she is reputed to have lured two haoles at different times on a merry chase only to see her disappear in one or another of the deep, clear-water pools among the wooded glens of Pilholo. One, a doctor, ended his aimless wanderings to her glenwood haunts by becoming a paralytic, the other, a woodcutter, never ceased to describe the charms of this "wonderful woman with the golden hair," always able to elude his embrace, but ever beckoning him on to her lair among the vines and trees and pools and crags of the glens about Pilholo.—Wailuku (H. I.) Times.

Please, Doctor, Make Us Pretty!

Dr. Seymour Oppenheimer of New York writes to the Medical Record expressing the hope that the long strides made in what is called "cosmetic" surgery during the war may not be lost to the civil population.

He says that this surgery for the sole purpose of beautifying ugly persons was always considered "rather a shady business" in which no reputable surgeon would engage.

But there are so many ugly faces and their beautification would make their owners happy, some surgeon the richer by a fee, and the world at large happier for not being obliged to look at ugliness, that this is the auspicious moment for taking cosmetic surgery out of the hands of charlatans and quacks and putting it into those of skilled practitioners.

A Drawback.

Jacob Ruppert, the New York brewer, told at a luncheon a story about a war profiteer.

"He gave a dinner one night," said Mr. Ruppert, "and when his wife entered the drawing room he was astonished to see her in a very decollete dinner gown—no sleeves, very low in the front, and lower still in the back. His wife had never worn a decollete gown before and the profiteer stared at her in bewilderment.

"'Well,' she said, 'don't you like it? Don't you like this Paris confection, darling?'

"'Sure I like it,' said the profiteer, 'but what I want to know is, honey, where the dickens are you goin' to [illegible]'"

MANY THANKS FOR LOYAL HOSPITALITY

VETERANS APPRECIATED KINDNESS SHOWN VISITING DELEGATES LAST WEEK

The local branch of the G.W.V.A. take this opportunity of extending their wholehearted thanks to the City Council, civic officials, G.W.V.A. Ladies' Auxilary and all who in any way contributed to making possible the very successful convention of the G. W. V. A. Ontario Command, which closed in this city on Friday last. Peterborough veterans especially desire to acknowledge their unqualified appreciation of the loyal manner in which ladies on whom delegates were billeted and citizens generally lined up behind the local command in extending the visitors royal welcome and entertainment.

IS STILL UNDER QUARANTINE

Mr. Stewart Promises Further Action When She is Released

Mrs. Joseph Stewart, 275 Dalhousie street, who made an attack on the M. O. H. with reference to alleged unnecessary quarantining at the recent meeting of the Board of Health, is still in quarantine, despite the fact that she insists that no one in the house has the slightest signs of sickness. She stated that she had tried to get the verdict of other doctors on the case, but when they learned that the Health Officer had the case in hand they refused to have anything to do with it. She declares that she will be heard from again as soon as she gets out of quarantine.

NO SELECTION MADE FOR MATRON OF SHELTER

COMMITTEE HAS RECEIVED ONLY SEVEN APPLICATIONS FOR POSITION TO-DATE

Up to the present only seven applications have been received for the position of matron of the Children's Shelter and the committee appointed for the purpose have reached no decision as to the successful candidate. It is expected that a special meeting of the Childrens' Aid Society will be called this week when the matter will be finally decided.

OBITUARY

SISTER ST. FERGUS CORKERY.

The community of St. Joseph suffered a sad loss in the death of Sister St. Fergus Corkery, which took place at St. Joseph's Hospital on Saturday evening, March 20th. After a long and painful illness, borne resignedly, the patient sister passed to her reward and much sympathy is extended to the immediate relatives, the community and friends in their bereavement. Sister St. Fergus, who was for some time past, a music teacher of ability at St. Marys Convent, was well known here, and many will learn of her demise with regret. The immediate family are Sister St. Dominic, of the community of St. Joseph, Peterborough; Mrs. Corkery, her mother, Lindsay; Mrs. O'Brien, Toronto; Mrs. Dwyer and Mrs. Curtain, Lindsay. The funeral will take place on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock from Mount Joseph where the funeral mass will be celebrated.

GEORGE MACFARLANE.

The death took place at noon today after a lingering illness of George MacFarlane, at his home on the corner of Reid and Murray streets. Mr. MacFarlane is a well-known resident of this city, having lived here for a number of years. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

MICHAEL BURKE.

Michael Burke, one of the oldest residents of this city, passed away at his residence, 841 Water street, on Saturday night, after a short illness.

Mr. Burke came out from Ireland, and had been a resident of the city for so many years that nearly all except his intimate friends thought he was born here. In religion he was a Roman Catholic and a highly respected member of St. Peter's parish.

He leaves to mourn his loss two sons, Patrick and Daniel, of this city, three daughters, Miss Julia, at home, Mrs. McGarthy of Buffalo, and Mrs. Casey, also of the United States, and one half-brother, James Clancy, of this city. Mrs. Holland, city, is a half sister, and Mrs. Kylev of Keene is a sister of the deceased.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from his late residence, 841 Water street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

ALLEGED OFFENCE YEAR OLD

Italian in Police Court Charged With Crime Against Young Girl

One of the most disgusting cases that has ever come up before the local police court was presented this morning when Joseph Micolucci, an Italian, was charged with offences against a 14-year-old girl in contravention of Section 301 of the Criminal Code. The offences are alleged to have been committed some time during August, 1919.

Crown Attorney Hatton asked for a remand until Friday as he wished to secure the birth certificate of the girl and was not ready to proceed with the case. When asked if he wanted a lawyer to defend him the prisoner replied that "he guessed he'd have Gordon," but later changed his mind and said that he didn't want a lawyer at all.

A bit of humor entered the case when the prisoner was asked to plead. "I don't want to plead until I know what I am going to get," he replied, whereupon the Chief asked whether he was Italian or Irish. The prisoner was remanded at the request of the Crown Attorney until Friday next.

A local man who was found drunk on Murray street paid the usual $14.10.

REAR ADMIRAL BENSON NAMED BY ADMIRAL SIMS

AS THE OFFICIAL WHO EXPRESSED READINESS TO FIGHT THE BRITISH

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, March 22.—Read Admiral Wm. S. Benson, then chief of the United States naval operations, was the official who told Rear-Admiral Sims "not to let the British pull the wool over your eyes. We would as soon fight them as the Germans," Admiral Sims testified today before the Senate naval committee.

Statement Not Official

Admiral Sims said the remark was made at the time he received final instructions from Secretary Daniels preparatory to his departure for England, on the eve of the United States' entry into the war. He added that the remark was made during a conversation, not in the course of formal instructions. The witness declared Admiral Benson repeated the admonition on two subsequent occasions, but he paid little attention to the statement as he believed Admiral Benson was intensely anti-British.

THERE WERE NINETY AND NINE

Foreigners Arrested in Toronto on Gambling Charge.

Toronto, March 22.—Ninety-nine foreigners were arrested last evening when Plainclothesmen Clarkson and Mulholland raided a cafe at 16 West Dundas street. The police surrounded the building and when the plainclothesmen walked in none of the inmates made any attempt to get out. Mike Viccigie is charged with keeping a gaming house and the other 98 are charged with being found in.

The police seized a number of slates and two large baskets full of playing cards. The prisoners claimed they were playing for the price of "soft drinks."

The raid followed many complaints of gambling going on in the building on Sunday.

LABOR CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, March 22.— A local paper states that F. J. Dixon, M.L.A., may be advanced next Autumn as Labor's candidate for Mayor of Winnipeg in 1921. He is considered Labor's strongest candidate for the position, it was said.

NEW PASTOR AT GILMOUR MEMORIAL CHURCH

REV. MACGREGOR FRASER, FORMERLY OF KENMORE, SUCCEEDS REV. JOHN GALT

Rev. MacGregor Fraser, the new minister of the congregation of Gilmour Memorial Church and Selwyn, began his pastorate yesterday in succession to Rev. John Galt, who resigned early in the year to accept another charge. As his name indicates beyond all peradventure, Mr. Fraser is of Scottish ancestry. He was, however, born in this country and is a graduate of McMaster University. Mr. Fraser is a bachelor. His former charge was at Kenmore, and he comes to this community with recommendations that bespeak for him a successful pasttorate. He is a personal friend of Rev. D. Brown of Park Street Baptist Church, having been a member of the Baptist congregation of Osgoode when Mr. Brown pastor there, a fact which is a sufficient guarantee of the soundness of his faith.

RADICAL FACTION HOLD THE WESTERN INDUSTRIAL DISTRICT OF GERMANY

Troubles Unavoidable if Government Troops Attempt to Interfere---Insurgents Clash With Regulars at Spandau.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, March 23. — The whole western industrial district of Germany is being solidly held by the Radicals and disaster is inevitable if the Government troops try to interfere there, according to information received from Berlin this morning by the Berlingske Tidend. Other advices state that a purely workers' government is on the point of formation without co-operation with the Bourgeois parties.

Heavy Fighting at Spandau.

Berlin, March 23.—Heavy fighting between the regular troops and insurgents occurred yesterday north of Spandau. Strong bands equipped with machine guns which they had plundered from the village of Postnow, encountered regulars near Henningdorf and latter were obliged to retire temporarily. Reinforced, however, they returned to the attach with artillery preparation and violent house-to-house fighting ensued. The insurgents finally retreated, leaving fourteen dead and many wounded. The regulars pursued them.

The admission was made that the Central German Government lacks power to restore normal conditions in Westphalia, where fighting continues and a large number of miners have refused to return to work. Berlin was quiet yesterday, the appearance of Spartacan proclamations on the principal thoroughfares being the only noteworthy incident.

MORE

Pillaging Continues.

Copenhagen, March 23.—A Leipsic telegram received here says that fighting at Halle and vicinity continues with undiminished violence. Both troops and workers' forces are using artillery. Halle has eben completely cut off from theo utside world. Strikes in Leipsic and Breslau have ended, and the postal and railway services are being resumed in both cities, which were quiet, according to latest advices.

Another Battle Reported.

Aix la Chapelle, March 23. — Another battle is reported in progress between the Spartacans and troops of the regular army at Wesel, 22 miles northeast of Essen. The regulars are reported to have been outflanked by the insurgents.

FINED FOR FAILURE TO PAY HIS POLL TAX

NEGLECT COST JAMES MARTIN $5 WITH COSTS ADDED

Tax Collector Green gave evidence that he means business against the defaulters with regard to poll tax in the city. This morning he charged James Martin in the local Police Court with neglecting or refusing to perform this duty to the State. It just cost Martin $5 and $2.00 costs and the moral is that as the poll tax is only $5 it is cheaper to pay up in the first instance than to wait until forced to do so. Chief Thompson anticipate a rush of delinquents anxious to settle as a result of the lesson learned this morning.

CITIZENS STRIKE WHEN BARBERS BOOST RATES

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., March 23.—"No haircuts and no shaves" is the slogan which has been adopted in a city-wide strike against the proposed increases in prices by the local barbers. It is announced that haircuts are to be advanced to 65 cents and shaves to 25 cents on April 1. The present schedule is 50 cents for haircuts and 15 cents for shaves. The announcement of the proposed increases has caused general indignation, and a movement is on foot to start an organized opposition to the new scale. One of the moves planned in the opposition is to pledge all the men in the city to shave themselves and do without haircuts until the new scale is withdrawn by the Barbers' Union.

PATRONIZE THE MERCHANT IN YOUR HOME TOWN

Loyalty to one's home town, like loyalty to a person or a cause, is an instinct; ordering merchandise by mail is a habit—a costly habit to your community.

You love your town, still you continue to send your money away to enrich other cities.

These articles are not meant to teach you how unjust and disloyal it is for you to support mail order houses in preference to your local merchants. You need not be taught that which you already know.

Therefore, these words are intended simply to REMIND you of the wrong you do your city when you patronize distant dealers. And because it is an economic wrong, it should cease.

If all keep their money at home, all at home will be the gainers. Now, don't mentally agree with us, and then act contrary to your conviction. Break yourself of the mail-order habit.

Determine that you will co-operate with your local merchants, and live true to that determination. This is the best day in the week to begin.

W.F. COCKSHUT THINKS THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS AN UNSUBSTANTIAL DREAM

Noted Member of Parliament From Brantford Addresses Local Canadian Club on After the War Problems of This Country—Healthy Optimism as to National Future.

The after the war problems of this country was discussed at length by Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, M. P., of Brantford, at a luncheon last night held in the Empress Hotel by the Peterborough Canadian Club. The chair was occupied by President G. O. Cameron, who introduced the speaker.

Mr. Cockshutt, in opening, said that while in the past few weeks he had taken many knocks at Ottawa, he hoped that tonight, while all present might not agree with him, they would at least be friendly to him and bear with his views of the subject upon which he was to speak which was. "Canada's After-the-War Problems." It was quite natural that many things should be out of joint in the country and conditions very much changed after such a war as that from which we had just emerged. The whole world had been changed and Canada had been no exception in that respect. In this regard he thought that too much was being laid to the war and that all our troubles were not entirely a result of that conflict.

Party System Commended

Mr. Cockshutt divided his subject into three phases, which were the political, social and material aspects of the situaton. Speaking of the first he stated that Canada had come to the parting of the ways politically. At this point it would be well for the people to stop and consider before they leapt, after something new whether or not what they already had was not just as good or better. It was always good business to stick to something that they knew was all right than to go after something which might not be as good. For many years back, even since the time of Confederation, the country had been governed under the party system. The system had been abused at times and some men had wrongly believed that it was the correct thing to stick to a party through thick and thin whether that party was governing right or not but still for all this the party system had more to commend itself than a system which broke up the country into factions of class, race, and religion. Warfare of this kind was far sharper and far more bitter than any party warfare. He trusted that the country would be able to settle its difficulties without breaking up into classes and cliques such as was the case of many countries in Europe.

Whatever appeal should be made in the future it should be made to all the citizens and not to any particular class. Anyone who could not appeal to the citizens as a whole was not the safest man to place in power in Canada.

A Word for the Workers

He thought that in the past the worker had been bearing too heavy a share of the burden and although he was of the employer class himself the speaker welcomed with delight the shorter hours and higher wages that the workingmen are getting. He hoped that as far as wages and hours of employment were concerned that this country would never return to the pre-war conditions. Labor should be able to take more of the pleasures of life as well as some of the more serious things.

The League of Nations

Turning to the Treaty of Peace and the League of Nations, the speaker said we heard the statement all over the country that Canada had arrived at a different status with reference to her position than she had before the war. He thought that putting both the Treaty of Peace and the League of Nations in the one document had created difficulties for all countries, Canada included. It was the first duty of the men who went to Versailles to make a sound peace with the enemy. After that, if a League of Nations could be prepared satisfactorily to all the nations all well and good but in his opinion the millenium was still quite a long way off. Mr. Cockshutt said that he did not expect to see the day and he did not think that any of the younger men in the room would live to see the day of which President Wilson spoke when he talked of a time when danger of war would be gone from the world. It was a long way to the age when the peace of the world would be permanently assured.

He deplored the fact that the representatives of the British Empire had signed the treaty as separate nations instead of one integral part of the Empire and he hoped that this fact would not create a false impression abroad of the status of Canada in the British Empire.

It was unfortunate that the United States, which was the author of the treaty and of the League and whose President had formed the other nations into line until practically all had signed it, had not adopted the treaty themselves but had already twice thrown it out of the Senate and was still at war after 18 months since the armistice, with the countries against which the United States fought. Bonar Law, six months after the signing of the armistice announced in Parliament that there were still 22 wars raging on the earth that he knew about and it was quite possible that there were some that he had not heard of.

Mr. Cockshutt did not think that the League of Nations in its present

MILITARY OFFICER EXPLAINS HIS ACTION FOLLOWING MURDER AT CORK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Dublin, March 23. — The Major-General in command at Cork, writing to the press regarding the action of the military following the murder of Lord Mayor MacCurtain on Saturday expressed regret that it was necessary for soldiers to search the home immediately after the assassination. The General was acting under orders, however, he declared.

WAY IS CLEARED FOR NEW LEGISLATION

FARMER AND LABOR MEN IN LEGISLATURE HELD CAUCUS THIS MORNING

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, March 23.—The way for the introduction of further government legislation was cleared at a caucus of Farmer and Labor members held at Queens Park this morning. A comprehensive outline of the highway policy of the administration was given by Hon. F. C. Biggs, while Hon. W. R. Rollo explained the principles of the mothers' pensions and minimum wage bills, which will now be brought down in the house at an early date.

GENERAL STRIKE ON SPANISH RAILROADS

NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN MEN AND THE ADMINISTRATION FAIL OF EFFECT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Madrid, March 23.—At a meeting of railway men early today it was unanimously decided to declare a strike at midnight tonight on all the railways in Spain.

Negotiations in an attempt to settle the differences between the railroad administration and workers had been in progress for some time. Up till last night, however, it was thought the conferences were likely to be continued this week, the men having indicated that they contemplated calling a strike by Thursday if they obtained no important concessions by that time.

DISORDERLY SOLDIERS CAUSE DUBLIN RIOT

RUDE CONDUCT OF MILITARY MEN IN THEATRE ANGERED CIVILIANS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Dublin, March 23.—One of the two persons killed in last night's riot here was a domestic servant. The other was an unidentified man. Several persons were wounded, including one of the soldiers, who was shot through the head. The conflict, according to observers, had its origin in the boisterous conduct of a party of soldiers attending a performance at the Theatre Royal. A large crowd followed the men to the barracks, and soon afterward the soldiers reappeared, firing sereval volleys, as a result of which the fatalities occurred. Official reports issued by the military and police do not say that the soldiers entered the barracks and then returned to fight the crowd.

NEW MINISTER TO MEXICO.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, March 23. — Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, was nominated by President Wilson today to succeed Henry P Fletcher as ambassador to Mexico Mr. Fletcher resigned recently because he did not agree with the Administration's Mexican policy.

STILL ANOTHER NEW INDUSTRY WILL LOCATE IN PETERBOROUGH

Agreement Reached Between City and Canadian Raybestos Co. Limited by Which Latter Will Take Over the Lundy Shovel and Tool Property--Fixed Assessment at $10.000

Still a nother new industry will locate in Peterborough—and a good one at that—if the electors carry a by-law to fix their assessment for all purposes, excepting for schools and public improvements, and there can hardly be any doubt but that the electors will carry the measure.

The industry i n question is the Canadian Raybestos Company, Limited, incorporated with an authorized capital of $250,000.

This new proposition is the particular industrial baby of Ald. Gordon and Industrial Commissioner S. R. Armstrong, these gentlemen having been mainly active in conducting negotiations with the company for this city.

The three gentlemen who visited this city and concluded arrangements for locating here, are Robert Abbot, Vice-President of the newly incorporated Canadian Raybestos Company, Limited; Sumner Simpson, President of the Raybestos Company, Bridgeport, Conn., U. S. A. and H. C. Simpson, Vice-President of the latter Company.

The Parent Body

The parent body of this new Canadian industry is located at Bridgeport, Conn., U. S. A. and that company is incorporated with an authorized capital of $2,000,000, $1,000,000 stock value of which is issued. The Bridgeport plant is situated on five acres of land and employs 450 men. It is the largest industry of its kind in the world, and it uses forty per cent of the asbestos produced in Canada, which is largely an asbestos producing country.

What They Manufacture

The American Company manufacture and the newly incorporated Canadian Company will manufacture linings for automobile brakes, high pressure sheet packing and all accessories pertaining to asbestos.

The Company's Proposition

Last evening Messrs. Robert Abbot, Sumner Simpson and H. C. Simpson met the City Council in Committee of the Whole, and reached an agreement under which the Canadian Raybestos Company, Limited, will locate in Peterborough. The new company will occupy the Lundy Shovel and Tool Compnay's property, and transport enough machinery from Bridgeport to start operations practically at once with 25 men, and at the same time start improvements on and extensions to the building and place orders for sufficient machinery to guarantee the employment of 75 to 100 or 150 men within eighteen months. This machinery must be built in the States as it is not manufactured in Canada. All labor on improvements and new buildings, however, will be local. Fifteen thousand dollars will be expended in improving the present buildings, such improvements to include a sprinkler system, an up-to-date heating plant, concrete floors, re-plumbing, new roof, etc.

But the Lundy property will not suffice the company's needs and the city has agreed to secure for them the Mrs. E. B. Edward's lot—19x152 feet—a triangular piece of land lying between Stewart street, where it paralells the Lundy building north and south and the C. P. R. tracks and Perry street, to divert Stewart street along the C. P. R. tracks to Perry street, and to deed to the new industry the E. B. Edwards land and that portion of Stewart street closed for diversion. On this lot the Company will erect a new building. The city will also endeavor to secure for the Company from the C. P. R., a very small piece of C. P. R. land lying north of the Lundy building and the C. P. R. tracks. On this lot it is intended to erect a boiler house and to provide a coal storage. Another new building, for asbestos spinning, is also hoped for.

Fixed Assessment.

It is also agreed to fix the assessment of the new industry at $10,000 for 10 years, not including school rates and taxes for local improvements. The present assessment on an idle concern is $14,000. The City Corporation will use some 500 loads of ashes in twelve months for filling in holes and low spots on the property along Bethune street.

It was the motion of Ald. Gordon and Phelan that preliminary steps be taken to get the portion of Stewart street in question diverted and to purchase the Mrs. E. B. Edwards' land, and that a by-law along the lines of agreement between the Canadian Raybestos Company and the City be drafted and submitted to the ratepayers.

Lose No Time.

When the by-law has been endorsed by the people the company will immediately bring from their factory at Bridgeport, a few looms, a shelter and furnace, with which to start initial operations.

The gentlemen from Bridgeport are carried away with the city as a desirable industrial and residential centre, and have many kind words to say of its enterprising and wide-awake citizens.

FEDERAL ESTIMATES FOR FISCAL YEAR EXCEED HALF A BILLION

Grand Total $537,149,428 or Two Hundred Millions More Than Revenue in Sight—Another Loan Will be Required to Make up Deficit.

Ottawa, March 23.— The estimates are more remarkable for what they indicate than for what they contain. With the expenditure reduced to the lowest possible point it is doubtful if our current revenue will equal current expenditure while millions are being added to our captial account. The ministers admit we must find new sources of revenue. Canada must be prepared for the future for an annual budget of at least four hundred and twenty-five million dollars and if there is to be national development on a large scale this will have to be revenue will amount to about $365,000,000 so that to be a sound business concern there must annually be obtained fifty to seventy-five million more than is at present being raised. This year's estimates called for an expenditure of $537,000,000 as compared with $900,000,000 last year.

Will Require National Loan

There will be a deficit in the total expenditure of nearly two hundred million, requiring another national loan this year. The large item is public debt, which has reached the enormous annual interest charges of $142,281,057. When to this is added nearly fifty million for railway deficits and nearly twenty-eight million for pensions, the first mortgage on our revenue leaves little for development. Soldiers' land settlement with an expenditure of $50,000,000, civil re-establishment requiring $34,000,000 and $38,000,000 to complete demobilization, nearly all our revenue is taken before the ordinary expenses are provided for.

$20,000,000 For Ships

Twenty-million for shipbuilding and sixteen million for railway equipment are the only unusually large items. The day of the post office, wharf or harbor dredging appears to have passed for the time at least. There is no money available for such purposes. With the increase in cost of labor and material the Government had to be drastic in its economic methods to keep the estimates even with the large sum announced. Members were prepared for a drastic pruning of the estimates but it is doubtful if they expected the Government to go as far as they did. There will be supplementary estimates as usual but the Government is not giving much hope that public buildings branch railways or harbors will receive much attention this year.

Militia Estimates

Under the heading of militia and defence in the estimates there is a total vote of $12,496,500, which includes several items of interest. Under annual drill, the provision is made for $1,500,000 for pay, and subsistence of officers, N. C. O.'s and men of the active militia trained at local headquarters, and at camps of annual training, including transport and all other expenses; $390,000 for pay of organizers and inspectors, and of drill instructors for cadet services, expenses of teachers qualifying at military schools, and of permanent force instructors. Uniform allowances and expenses in connection with cadet camps, under the heading of permanent force, provision is made for $6,500,000 for pay and allowances and subsistence for 490 officers, 352 warrant officers, staff sergeants and sergeants, and 4525 rank and file of the permanent force, which force is being used mainly to supply instructors for, and the administration and training of the active militia.

An interesting point is brought out in the vote for the civil service commission expense. Salaries for the year 1920-21 are placed at $189,215, an increase over last year's figures of $47 515. For contingencies, the amount of $265,000 is provided in the vote for the current year, and in this branch of the expenses there is a decrease of $152 500.

In the estimates for the naval service, which total $1,665,500, it is noticeable that almost the entire decrease of $290,000 from the figures of last year is made in the sum set aside to maintain the Royal Canadian Navy. Last year the appropriation for this purpose was $600,000. This year it has been cut in half. Hydrographic survey and radio telegraph service to provide for the building

VETERANS TALK OF LEAVING MONTREAL TO HOLD THEIR CONVENTION IN OTTAWA

Idea to be Near Government so as to be Able to Present Their Demands in a Body—Proposal to Enfranchise all Aliens Leads to Exciting Debate.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, March 23. — The procedure committee appointed by the Great War Veterans in annual convention yesterday, this morning recommended the following schedule of matters to be discussed and the order in which they will be taken up: Pensions, re-establishment, land settlement, Association constitution, labor, natural resources, policy and fraternal ideas. This report was adopted, and the pensions question was dealt with in a long resolution which supplied many suggestions for improving the pensioners' conditions.

A motion to change the venue of the convention to Ottawa in order that the entire body could present to the Government resolutions to be passed at the convention required a roll call, a show of hands failing to definitely establish the issue. At this juncture the session was adjourned with the understanding that the matter should form the first business of the afternoon.

Votes for Aliens.

The delegates had their first disagreement when the executive sought to introduce its declaration of principles of the organization. This declaration contained a clause which proposed to extend the franchise among other classes, "to all persons of foreign birth of like age, who have properly declared their desire for citizenship and who after due probation, have been naturalized and who have assumed the full responsibilities of Canadian citizenship."

The British Columbia representatives objected to the clause on the grounds of the Oriental question. A muddled debate followed, in which Chairman Maxwell, who had taken the chair on account of the illness of President Purney, had difficulty in preserving order, and finally the clause was withdrawn temporarily.

The business accomplished by the convention during its opening day included the adoption of a resolution containing greetings to the King and the Prince of Wales and others, the secretary-treasurer's report, and the bulk of the declaration of principles.

The first item on the agenda paper was the report of Secretary-Treasurer G. MacNeill, which showed that the branches of the association now established throughout Canada totalled 770 as compared with 450 last year. This announcement was greeted with cheers.

Membership Now 250,000.

The whole of the Dominion was now reached and international affiliation with the British Great War Veterans of America had been tentatively arranged. Total membership of the association closely approximates 250,000.

After reiterating steps taken to secure "a more adequate measure of re-establishment on behalf of returned soldiers and dependents from the Government, the secretary's report says:

"It devolves upon this convention to determine in what manner further demands shall be made upon the Government to complete the satisfactory re-establishment of returned soldiers and dependents."

TUESDAY, MARCH 23, 1920.

A POLITICIAN OF THE OLD SCHOOL.

W. F. COCKSHUTT, M.P. for Brantford, who addressed the Canadian Club at the luncheon at the Empress Hotel last night, is one of the most distinguished and outstanding members of the Dominion Parliament. He has for years been noted for his Imperialistic tendencies, and is recognized as an authority on all matters pertaining to the material welfare of the country as well as for his patriotic devotion to British connection. He is a fluent and interesting speaker, a man who is thoroughly conversant not only with Canadian affairs, but with the history, past and contemporaneous, of the world.

The opinions of such a man as Mr. Cockshutt, whose speeches in Parliament are reported extensively in the daily press, are tolerably well known. It is, however, one thing to read a man's published addresses and another to hear him speak in public. There is almost certain to be something said that will cause a measure of surprise to his hearers.

Mr. Cockshutt, in his address last night, made one point clear—he is opposed to anything like radical change in the relations of the Motherland with the Dominion. He is wedded to the idols that politicians of the old school—such as are left to them—have worshipped so devoutly all these years, men who see nothing but disaster in any policy that would tend to raise a colony to the status of a nation. There are still left devout statesmen who would be satisfied to see the colonies remain as so many parts constituting the tail of the Imperial kite. Such men resent the theory, for example that Canada can remain a loyal attache of Britain if this country insists upon abolishing titles, making the decisions of the Supreme Court at Ottawa final, or insisting upon the right of Parliament to amend the written Constitution known as the British North America Act.

Mr. Cockshutt has little faith in the League of Nations to accomplish what the framers of that international agreement had in mind—the preservation of the peace of the world. Had he been an American senator on the Republican side, he could not have advanced more strongly arguments against the League. His chief objection, like that of the opponents of the League in the United States, is based on Article 10, which provides that any member of the League can be dragged into war by a majority vote, to use the big stick on a nation that refuses to be affected by moral suasion or economic pressure. This, he appears to believe, would tend to weaken the autonomy of the signatories to the treaty and would not in the end prevent future wars.

Mr. Cockshutt must admit that the League of Nations is a step in the right direction, that the ideals are higher than the men who drew it up had in mind. It is simply a perpetuation of the bonne entente that the civilized nations of the world entered into to crush out the Prussian menace that overshadowed humanity for years. No one believes that even a paranoiac kaiser would have gone to war had he foreseen the forces that were to rise against him on every hand, that England would have rushed to the rescue of Belgium with all her own resources and those of her colonies, that Italy would have repudiated the Triple Alliance for the best of reasons, taking the ground that such alliance was for purposes of defence only, or that the United States would have eventually taken up the cause of the Allies. If the mad emperor of Germany dreamed of the conquest of the world, his plan was to dispose of one power after the other and not to face them in the aggregate. How long would the war have lasted had every country that before the end got into the fray taken up arms at the beginning? What nation on earth will be insane enough to declare war when confronted by such an alliance as is represented in the League of Nations?

Mr. Cockshutt says that all the wars in which England has before engaged, within his memory, Canada has taken part in only two, the one in South Africa and the recent world-wide conflict. He will no doubt be willing to admit that in no other case was the necessity for colonial assistance at all urgent.

With this country a member of the League of Nations, Canadians will have a voice in declaring for peace or war overseas, and in no other quarter of the globe is international trouble likely, as such a thing as strife with any power on this continent is a remote possibility. Britain will still dominate the affairs of the old world, and under the new order Britain will be supported by her colonies by virtue of solemn agreement. Canada made untold sacrifice in the late war. Forty thousand of the best of her young manhood laid down their lives. The country is now carrying a war debt that is almost incalculable. The prestige of the Dominion has been established as never before. The nation has risen in the respect of all the civilized powers in the world. Why, then, complain if the Motherland recognizes the fact that her daughter across the seas has grown up?

Mr. Cockshutt expresses regret that the United States has rejected the League of Nations while at the same time deploring the fact that Canada [illegible] become a separate signatory to it. The United States can at least plead the excuse that by becoming a party to the League she would not only do violence to the cherished traditions of a national lifetime, but also to the very Constitution of the country itself.

Canada can assert her nationhood without rupturing the relations which have bound her all these years to the Motherland, just as the son who starts out in life for himself can manage his own affairs in bank or mart without severing the filial ties which bind him to his old

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE PRESS.

IN HIS ADDRESS before the Canadian Club last night Mr. Cockshutt stated that the newspapers are to a great extent responsible for the feeling of unrest which prevails in Canada today, featuring as they do all the inflammatory utterances of agitators, alien and native alike.

There is no denying the fact that Mr. Cockshutt is right to a great extent. The man on the street corner, with a soap box for a rostrum, spouting sedition or wild cat economics is assured of newspaper attention which is denied the citizen who is preaching patriotism to his fellows or counselling moderation in all dealings between Capital and Labor. Less attention is given these days by a certain class of newspapers to the doctrine of the brotherhood of man than to the vaporings of the alarmist who looks at the future with jaundiced vision.

The good in the world predominates the evil. The real reason for any impression to the contrary is that, while the one so often works in secret, the chief delight of the other is to flaunt itself. Treat the agitators with the contemptuous silence that his creed merits and he will soon become a victim of self-suppression. Such creatures simply fatten upon the notoriety given them in the press.

There are more sensations of virtue than of vice under the sun in this day and generation, if the newspapers care to reveal them, more kindly acts performed, of which the world never hears. Patriotism is a heaven-born instinct and devotion to native land is a universal characteristic. Preaching sedition is only one form of mental disease, and the vagaries of the insane make poor journalistic material.

The speaker at the luncheon last night, referring to the strike at Winnipeg, said few realized how near the country was at that time to civil war. Here, again, the press is responsible for half the trouble. What the extremists said or did was featured in the despatches that went to all parts of the world. Little note was made of the readiness of the returned soldiers to preserve the peace in the community for the safety of which they so unselfishly faced death overseas. Any country that sent so many men as Canada did to the battle line in Flanders is safe from the danger of rebellion. Civil war cannot be conducted for long by a disorganized mob of alien or native agitators. No real advantages can be obtained by any class or faction by a resort to violence.

THE UNITED STATES AND IRELAND.

> In consenting to the ratification of the treaty with Germany, the United States adheres to the principle of self-determination and to the resolution of sympathy with the aspiration of the Irish people for a government of their own choice, adopted by the Senate on June 6, 1919, and declares that when such government is attained by Ireland, a consummation it is hoped is at hand, it should promptly be admitted as a member of the League of Nations.

The above is the resolution introduced in the Upper House of the American Congress by Senator Gregory and which by its unanimous adoption spelled defeat again for the attempt to ratify the League of Nations and the Treaty of Peace.

If, as has so long been suspected and openly charged, the Republican members of Congress have been playing politics with an eye on the next presidential election, then it must be conceded that they have certainly made the most of the cards which they held in their hands. It is estimated that there are twenty millions of Irish, immigrants direct from the Emeral Isle, and their descendants, in the United States. In the past, no matter in what State they were located, these have always voted the Democratic ticket to a man. The Irish vote has always been a factor—in some places the deciding factor—in an election. This vote will to a great extent be alienated from its former allegiance by the action of the Senate, and can be counted upon by the Repbblican party next fall.

The ten million or more Germans in the United States have been as solidly Republican as the Irish have been Democrats. The Germans supported President Wilson in 1916 and saved his official head on the cry that he kept the nation out of the war. They will return to their former political associations in the next presidential election, convinced as they must be that the President broke faith with them. With two such factions behind them the Republicans should elect the next President of the United States by an overwhelming majority.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

TALKING OF cataclysms, it is just one after another in Germany.

• • • • •

ONCE AGAIN President Wilson is accorded the boon of watchful waiting.

• • • • •

YES, THE WAR has changed conditions in Canada. The times call for statesmen of vision.

• • • • •

THE UNITED STATES now finds itself well supplied with excellent arguments in favor of Senate reform.

• • • • •

BUT THEN, why grumble at the high cost of living in an age when most everybody thinks in terms of billions?

• • • • •

UNTIL THE DAWN of the day when all men see eye to eye and think alike, party government will hold the floor.

• • • • •

FROM THIS DISTANCE the naval situation at Ottawa may look like a poser, but let us wait patiently for the official statement.

• • • • •

MR. TOOMS turned a trick in the Legislature when he roped in one of Hartley Dewart's henchmen to support his resolution.

• • • • •

IN THE SPRING—this one in particular—the fancies of many a member of Parliament heavily and sadly turn to the thought of an election.

• • • • •

WILL THERE EVER be another world war? Waive that question for the present and ask, "Will the earth ever suffer again from over-production?"

• • • • •

AT LEAST Quebec cannot be charged with responsibility for demobilizing the Canadian navy, no representative of that Province being in the caucus at which final action was decided upon.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

For twelve months or more lady racehorse owners in England have experienced no ordinary run of luck. Lady James Douglas, Lady Esme Gordon, Lady Queensbehhy and Mrs Gayzor to mention but a few, piled up a sequence of successes reminiscent of the days when the "Jersey Lily" carried all before her.

But the latest and youngest member of the sex to experience the smiles of Dame Fortune is the charming young Countess of Wilton, and recently the "fickle jade" has beamed upon her in no uncertain manner.

Her pretty colors have in the past few weeks been to the fore, time after time, Annoya and Hebu both having credited their fair owner with three consecutive victories, while two other horses have won at the first time of asking.

For a young lady in the early twenties to have winners pop up in this erady fashion is quite remarkable even when so shrewd a judge as young Leader is responsible for the management of the horses.

Although her financial incestments rarely exceed the humble "fiver," her lord and master at times has a tilt at the ring in the manner of Mr. Jimmy Rothschild at his best. There was one disastrous plunge in the early part of last spring, but at other times the bookmakers had rather the worst of the argument.

Lady Wilton, who is more than average height is favored by fortune in other ways, for she is exceptionally well dowered in looks, a wealth of fair curly hair with a natural wave to it, being among the chief charms.

Though possessed of a pearl necklace, which is insured for $400,000, and other jewels showered upon her by her spouse, she is by no means fond of display. Her toilettes are always the acme of good taste, but usually marked by a note of extreme simplicity.

Her natural bent does not run much on outdoor sports, though she is by no means a bad hand at golf, but she is "some hand" at "bridge" and "poker," the latter for choice. Inordinately fond of the theatre, she still finds time to entertain in her box at the opera, although it is to be feared that it is Lord Wilton and not herself who is possessed of the musical ear.

Both Lord and Lady Wilton give very cheery parties at Warren Towers Newmarket, and until recently at Cassibury Park, near Watford which they rented from Lord Essex, but are now trying to let.

One of the three Misses Peterson of whom their father, who is of Danish extraction and one of the princes of commerce, entertained largely at his home in Portland Place. Lady Wilton and her sisters have been much sought after in society from the time of their debut a few years back and all three girls early found eligible husbands.

THE MINISTER'S CORNER

A facetious hearer, describing the rambling sermons of the minister, said, "If the text had the smallpox his sermons would never catch it."

"Ah me," exclaimed a pious old lady," our minister was a powerful preacher. For the short time he ministered the word of God among us he banged the innards out of five Bibles."

An old Scotch lady gave a pointed reply to a minister who knew he had offended her, and expressed surprise that she could come so regularly to hear him preach. She said, "My quarrel is with you man, it's no' in the gospel."

A clergyman in Toronto lost his hat one evening recently and was obliged to wear home a shabbier one which had been left in its place. Next day the hat was returned by the penitent approrriator, who thus apologized: "I'll never take a minister's hat again. You cannot think what queer things I've had running through my head ever since I put that hat on."

Hon. Arthur Meighen Said to be Looking to Same Place.

Winnipeg, March 23.—Political gossip in Manitoba asserts that Hon. Arthur Meighen will seek re-election in South Winnipeg. This is George Allen's seat, but it is understood redistribution will give two seats there. It is overwhelmingly Conservative, but Hon. Robert Rogers lives there, and his friends propose to see that he gets the Conservative nomination when the times comes. BUY EARLY IF YOU THINK OF GETTING A CAR THIS YEAR

PROSPECTS ARE AVAILABLE SUPPLY WILL BE EXHAUSTED BY JUNE 15th.

"If you want to have a car this year order it early," is the advice tendered to all would be car owners by the local agents who are in a position to know just what the situation is in this regard today.

The sale prospects for the season are reported as being very good. There are many reasons which go to make this so. In the first place the prosperity of the farmer and his entire conversion to the principle of the automobile has much to do with the increase in the demand for cars.

On the other hand delivery of cars is most uncertain, due mainly to the non-delivery of American cars on account of the exchange situation and the shortage of material and labor. These are all vital points which have their effect not only on the delivery of the car but on its price also. The purchasing power of the western farmer has made it possible for the car manufacturers to demand almost any price for their cars.

Referring to the delivery of cars Mr. C. R. Banks, the well-known automobile agent said: "My own impression is that there will not be a new car in Canada unsold by June 15 or even earlier than that."

Intending purchasers will do well to guide themselves accordingly.

Owing to various elements affecting the cost of producing the car at the present time prices are not guaranteed over night. But, while prices appear to be high it is well to remember that the cars which have been designed during the last two years have incorporated in them principles of ignition and carburization, which make them much more economical to run. This fact is a point which should weigh heavily in the decisions of a prospective purchaser, especially if he is hovering between a decision to buy a new car or a second hand car of some earlier make. A dealer stated that it was a surprise to him that buyers were not more discrimminating in demanding these improvements. On account of the prevalence of a poor quality of fuel nowadays, it is most essential to have the latest and best systems of ignition and carburization in order to secure the best results. The new Overland No. 4 is equipped with all these 1920 improvements.

FARMERS OUT TO BEAT KING

R. W. E. Burnaby the Most Likely Candidate for North York

Newmarket, March 23.—A convention has been called for April 10 to select a United Farmers' candidate to oppose Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, at the next Federal election.

At the meeting of the United Farmers of North York, held here Saturday afternoon to set a date for the convention, no names were mentioned as to who the candidate might be, but it is accepted as a foregone conclusions that R. W. E. Burnaby, of Jefferson, president of the United Farmers of Ontario, will be the standard bearer.

The farmers have been busy organizing for the past two months, and it is said that they now have the strongest political machine of any party in the constituency.

PENSIONS IN AUSTRALIA

Bill Provides For More Generous Scale for Disabled Men.

Melbourne, Australia, March 23.—A Government Repatriation Bill, just introduced, raised the pensions of permanently disabled soldiers to four pounds weekly for life for unmarried men, to four pounds eighteen shillings for a man with a wife and no children, and to six pounds for a man with a wife and three children. Partially disabled men are to receive two guineas weekly.

HERD CATTLE BY AIRPLANE

Toronto Man Has Scheme To Develop Northern Lands

The Pas, Man., March 23.—Manipulation of the countless thousands of caribou and oxen by use of the airplane is the scheme of W. H. P. Jarvis, of Toronto, in planning the best means of herding these animals. It is Jarvis' theory that aviators act as drovers, and as the herds come down in the autumn drive them against the shores of the Hudson Bay and down along the coast and behind a strong fence built from a point above Port Nelson, the tide water terminal of the Hudson Bay Railway. Once they are jammed between the sea and the fence he expects to segregate the sexes, and the does could be let through a gateway and given their freedom, while the fat bucks could be driven to the Hudson Bay Railway and there slaughtered and shipped out to the Canadian and American markets.

The scheme provides for the airdromes at Fort Churchill, Lake Athabasca and Chesterfield Inlet. The aviators would be expected to go scouting with machine guns for wolves and destroy them in order to preserve the caribou. This scheme relies upon the Hudson Bay Railway entirely for its success, as providing means of transporting the meat to civilization involving 100,000 carcasses a year.

BEWARE OF DECEPTION

Statistics show that when egg albumen is used as a constituent of baking powder, the amount so used is too small (usually 15/100 of 1%) to affect the quality or effectiveness of the baking powder containing it, and when so used, is plainly for the purpose of fraud. Intelligent buyers will not permit themselves to be deceived by the water glass test.

FORMER PASTOR FINED FOR DRAWING REVOLVER

LANDLORD USED PISTOL TO COLLECT RENT FROM HIS DEFAULTING TENANT

Detroit, March 22.— Rev. B. Love, 61 years old, who claims to be a superannuated Methodist preacher, appeared in the Justice Court here yesterday charged with drawing a revolver and threatening to blow the head off Herbert Wallace, who rents a house from the ex-preacher.

To the court Rev. Mr. Love explained that no significance should be attached to his action in displaying the weapon, that he merely used it to "bluff out" his delinquent tenant who was behind in his rent.

Justice Stein told Mr. Love that threatening with a revolver was a serious offense, and he fined him $10.

N. W. MAXWELL TELLS HOW CHURCHES CAN PREVENT UNREST IN CANADA

London, March 22.— N. W. Maxwell, secretary of the Chatham Chamber of Commerce addressing the Askin Street Methodist Church Men's Brotherhood Sunday morning, declared that the admission to the United States of uneducated foreigners was responsible for very much of the trouble rampant in that country today. "Canada's plan and purpose should be the education of the foreign immigrant immediately on his arrival, not by holding prayer meetings and attempting to reach them through the agencies of the church," said Mr. Maxwell, "but by absolute educational methods under the direction of the Brotherhood.

"The movement should take in the whole country and should be not only an interesting work for the men of the country but a duty. It is the men of Canada that have made her what she is and they must see to it that the standard of the country is not only kept as a sacred trust but that it should reach out to even higher ideals.

A Double Life

By ALVAH JORDAN GARTH

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

"Oh, Mr. Randall! I hoped I should see you to tell you of my earnest congratulations."

Anice Burdell, sweet and radiant as the lovely flowers that spangled the garden plat just beyond the gateway, with shining eyes and fluttering smile emphasized the sincerity of her words.

"You mean regarding my appointment as president of the village?" asked Cressey Randall.

"Yes," she answered, but unevenly now. "I just learned of the honor so unanimously bestowed, so greatly deserved."

"May I come in for a few moments?" asked Randall, and Anice led the way to a shaded garden seat.

"I shall not accept the position tendered," he said. "I have come to speak to you three words. Then I am going away and we shall never meet again. That is best—it is the only way—I love you."

Into the bonny face of the beautiful girl there flashed an expression of overpowering agitation. Then she crimsoned, her glance fell and with bowed head she listened to the strange addendum, to the words that swept away the joy the preface had brought.

"When I came here a stranger, two years ago," recited Randall, "I found a welcome, encouragement—friends. Oh, most blessed of all, I found you! No one asked as to my past. I was given honorable employment by the kind-hearted people. I was treated as a trusted and cherished friend. It roused all my manliness and gratitude. Step by step I have been advanced, honored, until every link of my old life broken and forgotten, I was a new being in a new world."

"Your old life?" involuntarily murmured Anice, fearing she knew not what.

"Yes. To you only can I speak of it, because I love you, because you have been the guiding impulse of my life. I came here from a five-years' sentence in an eastern penitentiary and the charge against me was proven."

The girl did not shrink from him. Her frame quivered, her hands clasped more rigidly, but into that angel-like face there came an expression of pitying sorrow and sympathy.

"I was the adopted son of a man of wealth, Robert Leeds," continued Randall. "I repaid his generosity by becoming a member of a wild, reckless set, and one morning after a wine party, where gambling was introduced, I awoke in a strange hotel with everything a blank from the midnight previous. Before the day was over I was arrested, accused of having given a check bearing the forged signature of my benefactor. I had no remembrance of having signed it. My own uncertain statement condemned me. My patron disowned me, and I was sent to prison. When my sentence expired I tried to get as far away from my old life as possible. I fancied that two years of repentant, manly effort to redeem myself had blotted out all that past. Yesterday upon the street I passed a man I recognized. He was the lawyer who prosecuted me. Is my benefactor pursuing me because of resentment, or from a mistaken sense of justice? I can remain here no longer. I have sinned and I must suffer and atone for it. I am going away, and I have to tell you that I do so, loving you, and that the mere memory of your helpful regard for me will never fail to keep me safe in the straight path."

Her eyes were full of tears, both hands were clasped within his own. "Suffer? but not alone. Atone? you have done so nobly already. You must go away? Then—I will go with you?"

"You mean—"

"That no true woman who reads your soul as I do could fail to love you all the more after your brave, open confidence. I would glory in sharing with you a burden long since made light as air in the sight of God and his holy angels. True heart and redeemed soul, I would go to the ends of the world for you, with you!"

One hour later when Cressey Randall entered his office, the life currents were momentarily chilled as he found seated and awaiting him the man whose unexpected appearance had warned him that his double life was about to be exposed.

"This is Mr. Randall," spoke the lawyer, rising. "I come on a mission from Mr. Leeds—"

"The purport of which I can fully surmise," interrupted Randall. "Let us waste no words. I have satisfied the law."

"You mean the law has martyred you," responded the attorney strangely. "Six months since the man who really forged the Leeds check, dying confessed his guilt. Mr. Leeds, old, lonely, has been seeking you everywhere. I bear the message from him that he has made you his heir, and he begs, if you can forgive his injustice towards you, that you solace his fading hours by returning to the home from which he so cruelly banished you."

And so the shadow was lifted, and in its place the sunshine of perfect love and happiness irradiated three reunited destinies.

HIGH PRICES FOR DIAMONDS

Value of the Highly Desired Sparklers Has Been Soaring to Unheard-of Heights.

The economic situation of the world at large is said by jewelers to be more responsible for the present high prices of diamonds than any shortage of diamonds in the South African mines or any manipulation of the output by the De Beers Diamond company.

The following figures concerning diamond prices were obtained from Antwerp, the European center of the diamond market. An uncut diamond before the war cost $23 a carat and $32 after cutting. Immediately after the declaration of war, the price slumped. In 1915 the Germans began to get nervous regarding the value of paper money and started buying all the diamonds they could find.

France, Switzerland, Italy and England followed suit and the price went up rapidly. On the eve of the armistice, an uncut carat diamond was worth $70. Since the war ended, the diamond market has boomed, owing to the depreciation of European money, the difficulty of exchange and the embargo on the export of currency from one European nation to another. Today a carat of uncut stone finds a ready market at $150.

The Antwerp merchants no longer seek customers. The market is swamped with buyers. Credit is no longer given. The sales are for cash. The buyer frequently resells and the new purchaser sells again at fat profits. Thus the price keeps going up. Large stones are snapped up at unheard of prices.

The Kaiser's Kitchen.

In what is destined to be the last stage of its travels, the field kitchen of William Hohenzollern, which had followed the former Kaiser in all his wanderings about Europe during the war, is on its way to the United States. As if to give the changing of hands a more significant aspect, German prisoners of war were requisitioned to load the field kitchen—with all its elaborate accessories—aboard the westbound transport at St. Nazaire. The portable "kochenhaus" shows no sign of the wear and tear of war, indicating a certain remoteness to the battle front of all connected with the once imperial suite. The trophy, it is intended, shall be added to a notable collection of war relics at the American capital; whether it is to be utilized in the ways approved by the former kaiser is, of course, another matter.

form would be any advantage over the old balance of power, which had been the system in Europe for the past 300 years. In fact the League itself was nothing more than a balance of power in a little different form. The League would have the effect of lessening one's national spirit and tending to an international spirit. Instead of being British we would become international citizens of the world.

This country had accepted the obligations imposed by the peace treaty too lightly and without full consideration of their consequences. Article ten of the League Covenant provided that if after moral suasion, diplomacy and economic pressure had been applied and a country still refused to listen to reason, finally the big stick would be used and every signature on the League agreement carried with it an obligation for men, ships and money in such quantities as may be defined by the majority of the League Up till the present time Canada has been free to say whether or not she would engage in a war and the speaker remembered at least twenty wars in his time conducted by Britain and of these Canada had taken part in only two, the South African war and the war which had just been concluded. Now, however, Canada was under an obligation to provide an army and navy in any war engaged in by the League. If the League would be the means of reducing the possibility of war in the slightest degree, he wished it Godspeed, but the first duty before considering such a thing as a League of Nations should have been to have secured a just and lasting peace from the enemy.

Social Side of the Problem.

Turning to the social side of the question, the speaker said that many of Canada's troubles had been magnified but still the year 1919 had been fraught with danger for this country in a far greater measure than many people realized. Few indeed except those who were in a position to know, understand just how serious was the situation at the time of the Winnipeg strike. Had things turned out a little differently there Canada would have been thrown into something closely akin to civil war.

The Government in Ontario had been changed recently but he did not think that it had removed the unrest in the province. The unrest which prevailed in Canada was so deep rooted that no Government could destroy its causes. The cause of such unrest was in ourselves. We had moved from the lofty ideals of our forefathers and drifted to things material. We had been drifting away from the old church and the keeping of the Sabbath. There was nothing that would restore the country quicker than by returning to the old order of things and by worshipping the one true God as we did in days of yore beside our mother's knee.

The Forward Movement.

Mr. Cockshutt hailed the Forward Movemennt as a step destined to restore religion to the position in the minds of the people which it once had. If this spirit pervaded the people strife between Capital and Labor would disappear. The agitator who was striving to set one class against another should be stopped instead of fanned on. He urged his hearers to nip any such attempts right in the bud. He charged the press with being very much to blame for the unrest. The ravings of agitators were conspicuously placed in the newspapers with big headlines, while sound common sense advice was either put away in small type in a corner or left out of the paper altogether.

Canada Still Solvent.

Lastly, Mr. Cockshutt dwelt on the material side of the question which he viewed as more promissing. The war debt of the cuntry was very heavy but he felt sure that Canada was well able to pay it if economy was exercised. During the war Canada had held up her head in a proud way materially. Five years ago he would not have believed it possible that the Canadian people could lend to their Government two billions of dollars and still carry on and yet this was exactly what had happened. Bankers told us that there was more money deposited in the banks today than there was before the loans were floated. This prosperity was one of the wonders that had arisen out of the [illegible] material resources of Canada had been enormous during the conflict. Despite the fact that nearly 500,000 men went overseas Canada supplied a large part of the war material and as far as he knew 55 per cent of the shrapnel used by Great Britain and her Dominions in the war had been supplied by this country.

Caring for the Veterans

One of the country's greatest problems was the soldier problem and it was naturally so. You could not fight for five years and then expect to be clear of the soldier problem in as many months. He prophesied that the problem would be with the country for many more years to come. The greatest patience was necessary to see that justice was done to these men and their dependents. The pensions of widows, orphans and disabled men were even yet entirely inadequate. Canada had paid her soldiers more than any other country in the world, but yet she had fallen down in the matter of pensions. He thought that the policy of the War Veterans, as presented to the Parliamentary Commission last fall had been very moderate and he had stated so in the House. The question would be up again and he would never be satisfied until every widow dependent or disabled soldier was receiving enough to keep body and soul together. He appealed to the men of Peterborough to use their influence in the direction of seeing that justice or even more was done to these who had suffered in the war which had left this country with more of this world's goods than was ever thought possible. Canada's soldiers had written pages in the annals of history, which no one would ever be able to blot out and you could not have a good army without giving a proper reward which was a just treatment of the widows, orphans and wounded soldiers.

Mr. Cockshutt's speech, which interested his hearers throughout, was greeted with much applause and it was moved by Mr. R. R. Hall and seconded by Rev. F. E. Malott that a hearty vote of thanks be conveyed to the speaker for his instructive address.

MANITOBA DIVORCES

Province Is Not the "Reno of Canada."

"No, distinctly no!" replied Chief Justice Mathers when asked if Manitoba would ever become the Mecca for divorce pilgrims.

"I would term Manitoba divorce laws as eminently safe and sane," he declared. "On the one hand there must be a very good ground before the courts will grant divorce. The applicant must show that he or she is really entitled to relief from conditions of hardship. On the other hand, the law is framed so as to be within the reach of rich and poor alike."

With good grounds, costs for a divorce will not exceed $50 or $60, according to legal experts.

Approximately 13 applications for divorce have been granted by decrees nisi since the law became operative for Manitoba last September. In six months from the date of issue the decrees become final upon application.

"That may seem to be a high total for the period of five months, but conditions which have been responsible for large numbers of divorces are going rapidly out of effect," Chief Justice Mathers said. "The great majority of applications have been made by returned soldiers. Abnormal conditions existed during the war and what is true for Manitoba can be said, generally, to be true for the whole world.

"Again, there are many cases which go back to conditions of several years' standing. Formerly there was no way of obtaining divorce except by Act of Parliament. The expense of such proceedings made divorce prohibitive except for the wealthy. Many potential divorce cases have piled up during the years before the Manitoba law became operative and they are just coming out now."

Considerable decrease in the number of divorces is expected when applications from these two classes are exhausted.

World's Oldest Statue.

In a museum at Boolak there is a statue supposed to be over 6,000 years old. A great French Egyptologist, Mariette Bey, discovered the statue at Memphis and brought it to the museum. It is little more than three feet high and holds a staff. The figure is full of life and poise. The forehead is rounded, expressing intellect and the eyes, of crystal, set in bronze give an astounding lifelike appearance. The statue is not the work of a crude barbarian and few artists living today could impart such realistic features to a wooden statue.

Always a Silver Lining.

Robert had lost a penny. His mother tried to show him the value of the penny by telling him that car fare is seven cents, and if she only had six cents and could not find the lost cent, she would have to walk, and not take the car. After thinking a while, he said: "But mother, you could buy an ice cream cone then, and then you could eat it while you were walking, and that would make the walk pleasant."

Agreed Better Apart.

Ansel and Fred were chummy, but got into a dispute before playing together long. Finally they remained away from each other for several days, and Ansel's father asked him what the matter was that they didn't play together any more. "Why," replied Ansel, "we've agreed to stay away from each other, 'cause we get along together better when we are apart."

Patrick Fennell, Sr., Woodstock, celebrated his 84th birthday on March 17th.

MARKET TOLLS SELL FOR $750

F. T. MAHOOD HIGHEST OF TWO BIDDERS— LATE CLERK BID $650

Last evening the Council's Property Committee opened the following tenders for the market tolls and charges from April 1st this year to April 1st, 1921:

F. T. Mahood, $750; Walter Fisher (present market clerk), $650.

Fisher offered, in case of a free market being inaugurated, to serve as caretaker for the city at a salary of $700 a year.

It has been decided, however, not to make the market free.

Ald. Crowe: "I move that the tolls be charged to Mahood."

Ald. Whitehouse: "Don't be in a hurry, Ald. Crowe. While we may get $100 more fore the tolls, it is possible to lose a hundred in service."

Fisher has had had the tolls for several years, and his service in looking after the market as been excellent. However, the committee could not see their way clear to turn down the extra hundred dollar bid by Mahood, whose tender was accepted on the following resolution:

Ald. Crowe moved, seconded by Ald. Copping,

"That Mr. Mahood's tender be accepted providing he give satisfactory securities."

This carried.

Last year these tolls were sold to Fisher for $700.

James Giles, Stratford, was fined $350 for operating an illicit still.

DR. WIGHTMAN PRESIDENT OF CURLING CLUB

ANNUAL MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT WHEN PRIZES WERE DISTRIBUTED

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club held last night in the Charlotte street curling rink the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Hon. President—Geo. H. Giroux.

President—Dr. Wightman.

Vice-Pres.—John A. Cameron.

Committee of Management—A. C. Kay, W. J. Oke, G. B. Boucher, and Jas. H. Metheral.

Mr. Campbell of the Union Bank was appointed auditor, and Angus McIntosh was again appointed official referee. R. M. Waddell was appointed to represent the club on the O. C. A., with W. G. Morrow as alternative.

An amendment to the constitution of the club proposed by R. M. Waddell, which would allow for the appointment of a chaplain, was referred to the committee of management with power to act.

An amendment to the bylaws with reference to membership was introduced by George B. Boucher allowing for an increase in the membership of the club to 140 attached and 25 unattached members, the fees to be the same in both classes. This amendment was carried.

A lengthy procedure was the distribution of some eighty prizes, won in the inter-rink games, the vice-skips' bonspiel, and the local bonspiel. Prizes amounting in value to a considerable sum were distributed at the meeting last night.

The chair was occupied until the election of a vice-president by G. H. Giroux, and in the absence of President Dr. Wightman, who was out of town, Vice-President John A. Cameron assumed the chair as soon as he was elected.

Boost for Peterborough

An interesting announcement and one that is eloquent of the progressiveness associated with the name of this city of ours in American centres is the fact that the newly incorporated Canadian Raybestos Co., Limited, have decided to locate here. This decision comes after a deliberate survey of the advantages afforded by other Canadian cities.

Just here it may be pointed out that the officials of the American company in Bridgeport, Conn., first heard of Peterborough as a site for favorable location through Mr. Birnie of the Board of Trade and later through the officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Big Business.

Illustrative of the immense business carried on by the American Raybestos Co. is the fact that the plant covers an occupied space of 200,000 feet, and the Raybestos Co. is well known, in name at least, and through the genuine excellence of their products, all through Canada as well as in the United States. At the present time their product is distributed in Canada by all automobile accessories houses and jobbers, it being shipped directly from Bridgeport, Conn.

In this connection it is predicted that there will be 400,000 automobiles in Canada by the end of 1920.

Who's Who?

The officials of the newly incorporated Canadian company are Mr. Sumner Simpson, president of the American company, and also president of the Canadian branch; Mr. Howard C. Simpson, vice-president and factory manager of the Bridgeport company and a director in the Canadian company; Mr. Robt. Abbot, vice-president of the new Canadian company, who will have charge of the factory here and reside in the city; and Mr. M. F. Judd, director of the Canadian branch. These gentlemen individually have always taken a large interest in the general welfare of their own town of Bridgeport, where their factory is known as an up-to-date and thriving manufacturing concern, connected with the American Manufacturers' Asociation, an organization which was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. As a company they have always taken the keenest interest in the welfare of all connected with their concern, and among other movements have purchased all the government houses in their town and now have 1,100 tenants, which will stabilize the rent situation in Bridgeport and keep their tenants out of the grasp of the speculator.

Mr. Sumner Simpson, resident president of the company, is a man of affairs with a long list of appointments to his credit, all of which goes to show the esteem in which he is held in his home town. Mr. Simpson is chairman of the board of directors of the Connecticut National Bank, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, member of the executive committee of the Manufacturers' Association, chairman and trustee of the Salvation Army Temple, vice-president of the Building Loan Association and president of the Bridgeport hospital board.

Mr. H. C. Simpson is well known as an enterprising citizen of Bridgeport and comes to this city with the standing recommendation of appointments to such positions as director of the West Side Bank, member of the Chamber of Commerce, chairman of several committees, and an active worker in the Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Robt. Abbot, who is connected with the sales department, wears a service button, significant of overseas duty with the American expeditionary forces. Mr. Abbot will reside in the city and will bring with him several skilled employes and begin operations in the very near future. It is not the intention to bring many American employes, and Peterborough men will be employed practically exclusively.

Advertisements regarding the Raybestos brake lining are to be found in some of the most prominent magazines of the day, as Collier's, Harpers', Literary Digest, Saturday Evening Post and others, a fact which speaks well for the genuine quality of their products.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

SAYS EXCESS OF HYDROCHLORIC ACID IS CAUSE OF INDIGESTION.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

EXCITING CONTEST OF INDOOR BASEBALL

57th. REGIMENT TEAM DEFEATED THE WAR VETERANS BY TWO RUNS

One of the most evenly matched games of the season in the City Indoor Baseball League was played last night between the Great War Veterans and the 57th Regiment. Right from the start until the last innings had been played neither team could be sure of a victory and this fact greatly added to the interest taken both by the players and the spectators. Up till the present the majority of the games in this league have been more or less one sided affairs and it was therefore a surprise last night to see two teams put on a battle royal.

At the end of the game the 57th Regiment were leading with a score of 11 to 9. For indoor baseball this score is comparatively small and gives evidence that there was some good field work by the players of both teams.

FEDERAL ESTIMATES

and maintenance of wireless stations, are the only two branches of this department which call for increases over last year.

Soldiers' Re-Establishment

Soldiers' civil re-establishment reduced from $72,368,615 to $34,000,000.

Miscellaneous reduced from $40,463,034.50 to $17,437,468.81. Soldiers' land settlement increased from $45,018,000 to $50,017,000.

Included in the total amount of the estimates ($537,149,428.09) are the following uncontrollable expenditures and expenditures resulting from the war: Interest on public debt, $140,000,000; great war pensions, $27,-ment, $34,000,000; soldiers' land settlement, $50,117,000; demobilization, $38,436,400. Totals, $289,579,076.

To the above might be added an additional amount of $13,310,000 asked for as loans for the purpose of encouraging the erection of dwelling houses.

"NIGHTIE NIGHT" COMES TO GRAND SATURDAY

FAVORITES WHO MADE THIS PLAY FAMOUS, HERE MATINEE AND EVENING

The offering at the Grand Opera House for matinee and night performances on Saturday, March 27th., will be the presentation by Adolph Klauber associated with the Selwyns) of "Nightie Night," the farce which has just completed a season's run at the Princess Theatre in New York and with Francis Byrne in a featured role. The production and original company comes here intact from New York, including Suzanne Willa, Dorothy Mortimer, Marie Chambers, Grant Mills, Ruby Craven, Malcolm Duncan, George W. Pierpont, Oscar Knapp and Cyril Raymond.

"Nightie Night' is the work of two new dramatists, Martha M. Stanley and Adelaide Matthews and the fact that it was acclaimed by the Metropolitan critics in unqualified terms, and remained five months during turbulent times in the New York theatres is its best recommendation. It discloses, in an hilarious manner, the consequences which may befall a man who withholds the truth in a trivial matter from his wife. The hero of the farce has had an apparently harmles affair with a certain dancer of the stage in his early life, and the wife has selected this particular affair to harbor a constant jealousy. The husband accidentally meets his dancer friend in a Pullman car on a hurried business trip, under unusual circumstances, but discreetly keeps the fact to himself; also the fact that his dancer friend has married a friend of the family. The complications which ensue are calculated to stir most anyone to laughter, on the order of "Twin Beds," but of the unblushing type.

LONDON BOARD OF COMMERCE NEW PLAN FOR ADVERTISING THAT GROWING CITY

Pictures of Leading Buildings and Plants in Operation are Shown on Screen of Grand Opera House Here—"A Grain of Dust" Feature of Bill This Week.

The city of London, Ontario, has set a new pace in the matter of advertising its resources, and one which the Peterborough Board of Trade would do well to consider with a view to its adoption. The Board of Commerce of the city on the Thames has had pictures made of its public buildings and its leading industrial plants, and these are now on the circuit of the moving picture theatres of Canada. Their presentation formed one of the most interesting features of the excellent program at the Grand Opera House last night.

These films give interior and exterior views of the leading manufactories of London with letter press explanations and short descriptions. They show the workers, men and women, at their various tasks, at lunch in the rooms provided for that purpose, in so many of the plants, and also show the employes during the noon hour engaged in dancing and athletic games. The working population of London certainly looks well dressed, prosperous, contented and happy. It is announced that any outsider wishing to locate in that city can secure all information as to the prospect for employment by communicating with the Chamber of Commerce. The statement is made that there are six thousand women and eight thousand men altogether on the payrolls of the different industries in London. One of the best pictures is that of the telephone exchange in operation. Another shows the business college, where the young people are taught the precepts of thrift and are schooled in the essentials for a commercial life.

This best of all advertisements that any city can possibly print will reach thousands of Canadians before the circuit of all the theatres in Canada is completed and will also be shown on the screens in the United States.

The feature picture of the program for the first two days of this week—the last presentation to be given tonight—is a dramatization of David Graham Phillips' popular novel, "A Grain of Dust," with Lillian Walker in the leading role. The story has lost none of its attractions in the process of being reduced to pictorial form, and constitutes an interesting chapter from the history of everyday life in New York, where a young girl thrown on her own resources meets with all the perils to which unprotected maidenhood is subject in a large city, but who bravely holds her own and triumphs at last.

There is the usual mirth-provoking Charlie Chaplin stunt and the Paramount Magazine section, the whole constituting an excellent bill of wholesome entertainment.

"Flo Flo," the musical pageant of beauty and wit that entertained the millions of New York for an entire year, will be at the Grand tomorrow night with its perfect "36" chorus and famous orchestra. There will be one performance only.

The bill for Saturday, matinee and night, is "Nightie Night."

Scene from John Cort's hilarious musical pagent of beauty, wit and fashion, "FLO-FLO," coming to the Grand on Wednesday evening, March the 24th.

SNAPPY MUSICAL COMEDY AT GRAND TOMORROW

"FLO-FLO" IS THE ONLY COMEDY CHORUS IN EXISTENCE TODAY

When John Cort brings his latest and snappiest musical comedy "Flo-Flo' here on Wednesday, the patrons of the Grand Opera House Theatre will have an opportunity to see the only comedy chorus in existence. "Flo-Flo' is the breezy medley of tuneful songs and pretty girls which kept the Cort Theatre in New York crowded for one solid year.

The plot of the comedy which concerns the love intrigue of a shapely corset model and the matrimonial machinations of a match-making mother is said to be well carried out by a splendid cast, a beautiful, magnificent gown, and one of the finest teams of eccentric dancers ever seen on Broadway.

The names on the program of the Cort production are Hazel Alger, W. J. McCarthy, Carl George Eddie Lloyd, Augustus Buell, Rhea Norton Elinore McCune, Marie Dantes, Robert Dale, Frank Masters, Frank Hodgins and others of prominence, and the "Perfect Thirty-Six" chorus. An augmented orchestra assures a musicianly rendition of Silvio Hein's score.

Dr. F. A. Adams, border M. O. H. declared that the edict that all Windsor children be vaccinated will remain in force for some time.

Covered by Provincial Officers Smith and Hanna, of Windsor, rum runners abandoned two automobiles loaded with 100 cases of whiskey on the river front near Ojibway.

Miss E. Richardson, of Elora, who was so badly burned by pouring gasoline on a kitchen stove while on a visit to Guelph, died at the home of Miss Harris, where she was taken.

Headaches Come From Nose.

That headaches are often due to troubles in the nose is well brought out by Dr. William Wilson in the London Practitioner. They are caused by the closure of the mouths of the ducts that drain the sinuses or cavities in the bones of the head. These sinuses are situated in the upper jaw bones directly under the eyes, in the frontal bones, over and between the eyes; in the ethmoid and sphenoid bones, back of the nose and almost in the centre of the head.

The sinuses are lined with mucous membrane and normally are full of air which is changed as we breathe. But a cold in the head causes swelling of the mucous membranes of the nose and pharynx, and the openings of the ducts are thereby closed. Then the air in the sinuses is absorbed and a vacuum is produced. Sometimes the inflammation spreads to the lining of the sinuses and they discharge semi-purulent mucus into the nose and throat. If they be blocked they cannot discharge freely.

The result of either of these conditions is headache. Such a headache is generally felt in the morning and passes away as the day wears on.

The cure for these conditions is the freeing of the entrance to the sinus, which is easily done through the nose by a specialist with a bougie inserted through a silver tube. The physician generally touches them with a weak solution of nitrate of silver. Occasionally a slight operation is necessary.

IS GLAD SHE TOOK FRIENDS ADVICE

TORONTO WOMAN RESTORED TO HEALTH BY TAKING TANLAC —DELIGHTED TO RECOMMEND IT.

Although it is more than a year now since Mrs. Elsie Mavor, off 11 Mallon avenue, Toronto, Ont., Canada, realized the wonderful powers of Tanlac, she still finds pleasure in praising it, for she says it was the means of retsoring her to health when she was in an extremely weak and run-down condition. In the course of conversation with the Tanlac representative at Tamblyn's drug store, Mrs. Mavor said:

"When I look back on those two years of suffering and ill health, I realise what a boon Tanlac has been to me. I was in an extremely run-down condition. My appetite was feeble, and although not troubled with indigestion, I had to eat sparingly or my liver would get out of order. I was continually having such frightful headaches that I simply had to give up and lie down. I had severe pains in my back, especially whenever I went to stoop over. I hardly knew how to get through the day, and my sleep was so broken that I would rise in the mornings feeling tired and heavy.

"It was a friend of mine who advised me to try Tanlac, and as she herself had tried it with excellent results I decided to take her advice and I am very thankful I did. In a very short time I knew the medicine was doing me good, for my appetite picked up wonderfully and I felt so much better and stronger. By the time I had got through the second bottle all my aches and pains had disappeared and I have been well ever since. I can sleep fine, eat well and am so much stronger that I can do all my housework with perfect ease. It is over a year now since I stopped taking Tanlac, but I am so delighted with what it did for me that I take pleasure in recommending it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by The Warne Drug Co., and by the leading druggists in every town.

New Fish Story.

A convalescing Indian fisherman in a Rangoon hospital was fishing along the foreshore recently when he caught a small fish. His basket being a short distance away, he put the head of the fish in his mouth, and closed his teeth on it, while he was rebaiting his hook. The fish slipped into his throat, and struggling to escape, got stuck there. The fisherman was hurried into the hospital, where an incision was made and the fish removed just in time to save the patient from choking to death.

Laid Color on Thickly.

There were periods when even men rouged. In the Eighteenth century little attempt was made to imitate nature's coloring. The ladies "laid it on thick" in round red spots, and seemed to apply it, as they did patches, to obtain a supposed decorative effect, and to simulate the blush of nature. The red and white they used, unlike the modern cosmetics, were actually poisonous, and there is record of more than one lady of quality who died from the effects of white lead.

There for a Good Time.

While entertaining our club one evening our hostess felt it her duty to ask a member to sing. Realizing what we would have to endure, and without stopping to think, I suddenly exclaimed, "Oh, we came here to have a good time; let's play cards." The painful silence which followed, together with the look which the would-be singer gave me, made me truly experience the most embarrassing moment of my life.—Exchange.

Deserved the Cookies.

Our neighbor's small son was well bred and he never asked for things to eat at our house. The other day he came into the kitchen just as I had spread the last of a batch of cookies on the table. The sight of so many and their delicious smell almost overcame his manners, for he said, "Cookies are one thing that have never disagreed with me yet." He got the two largest in the batch.—Chicago Tribune.

Poetic Nomenclature.

Illinois is an Indian word with the French suffix "ois," meaning "Tribe of Men." Indiana means "Indian Land." Michigan is an Indian word meaning "Fish Weir," so called from a fancied resemblance of the lake to a fish trap. Minnesota is Indian for "Sky-tinted water." Ohio means "beautiful water." Wisconsin means "rushing water."

SINGAPORE TO HAVE TAXIS

Far Eastern City Will Abandon the Rickshaw, Long Used as Method of Transportation.

According to advices from Consul General Edwin N. Gonzales at Singapore, that city is to have an internal transportation system of thoroughly modern taxicabs.

Whether American automobile manufacturers will secure the order for these motors is problematical, but the most significant part of the news is that it marks a further development of the use of modern methods in the far East.

For several years in Singapore there has been a most consistent and vigorous agitation against the institution of the well-known rickshaws. Most of this agitation came from the tongue and pen of the educated Chinese, who maintain that the system of making a horse out of men is wrong from the standpoint of the degrading influence which it has on the individuals as well as the harm it is claimed to work upon the coolies.

Distances are great in most far Eastern cities, and while the rickshaw makes transportation reasonably convenient and comfortable, the rickshaw most certainly is a primitive vehicle and doomed to early abandonment because of the rapid advance now being made in the industrial and social life of the far East.

The new company to operate in Singapore is to be officially known as the Singapore Motor Taxicab and Transport company, Ltd., and will have capital of $350,000. The initial equipment will be made up of 40 landaulet taxicabs, five one-ton trucks and five three-quarter ton trucks. Singapore has a population of 300,000.

The Cynical Actress.

The late Oscar Hammerstein believed that the actresses should lead a pure life.

"Cynical, disillusioned actresses are no good," he once said at a dinner. "I remember an actress of mine some years ago who fell down badly in a part I'd given her.

"'Look here,' I said the morning after she fell down, 'all the critics say you don't show half enough emotion in the scene where your husband leaves you never to return.'

"The cynical, disillusioned creature gave a tart laugh.

"'Oh, I don't, don't I?' she sneered. 'Well, look here, Mr. Hammerstein, I've had six husbands leave me never to return, and I guess I know how much emotion ought to be shown in such circumstances as well as anybody.'"

Safe Light for Miners.

Nowadays the up-to-date miner carries a package of electricity about with him while underground. It is a small storage battery attached to the back of his belt, and is connected by a cord with a lamp fastened to the front of his cap. The lamp, provided with a reflector, throws quite a flood of light in front of the miner. But its chief advantage is absolute safety. In olden days miners (who must, of course, have light) carried about with them open-flame lamps. These caused innumerable disastrous accidents through ignition of coal dust or gases. Sir Humphry Davy's invention of a safety lamp whose flame was protected by a wire gauze saved an immense number of lives. It is in common use today, but the electric mine lamp is better and more convenient.

NEW BASEBALL RULES

Fans, in order to be up-to-date should know the baseball rules as they have been amended. The following changes now in effect, are the most important.

Freak pitching deliveries forbidden, except the spitball, which will be barred next fall.

Catchers forbidden to step from behind the batsman to aid intentional pass.

Umpire to decide whether a game is postponed.

Gift stolen bases not be recorded in official box scores.

Schedules must be completed even if games have to be transferred.

No sales of players in the American League after July 1 and in the National League after August 1, except on waivers.

All home runs to be recorded as such.

With two out in the last half of the ninth inning and the score tied, batsman to be credited with number of bases he advances on his hit.

A ball that hits the bat while the batsman is trying to avoid it is dead.

Catcher to be charged with an error if he drops a third strike and the batsman reaches first.

Players to be credited with batting and fielding records made in game thrown out in protests.

Catchers to receive credit in box scores for men who are thrown out when trying to steal.

First baseman to receive an error if he fails to touch the bag when possible after taking a thrown ball.

REVENGE TAKEN BY ANIMALS

Story on Record of Huge Mastiff That Killed Thoughtless Groom at First Opportunity

Careful observers have put on record some very extraordinary instances of dogs and other animals which have remembered injuries put upon them, and have eventually retaliated, says London Answers.

There is a terrible story on record of a dog, a huge mastiff, kept as a watchdog by a Staffordshire gentleman. The great brute was kept chained in the stable yard, and during the very hot weather one of the grooms, noticing the creature panting with heat, threw a bucket of cold water over him.

A week later the dog was loose when the same man entered the yard. He sprang upon him and caught him by the throat and killed him.

A touching little episode happened a few years ago in a Worcester village. A boy was the proud owner of a very handsome pair of fox terriers, named Mick and Jerry. Jerry went off one day into a wood near by and tackled a badger, which killed him. Raymond, his master, went out to look for him, but could not find him. But two days after Mick was found mourning over the dead body of his companion.

He was brought back. One day he did not return. His master searched and found him lying dead, his teeth in the throat of the badger, which was also killed.

An amusing incident was that of an Indian elephant whose revenge on a new mahout whom he took a dislike to was rather funny. He picked him up and deposited him in the branches of a thorn tree.

NO NEED FOR FURTHER TALK

Argument Had Convinced Man That Arctic Expedition Was Just the Place for Him.

A middle-aged man, with what appeared to be a load on his mind, visited the arctic steamer just before it started on the expedition, and seemed greatly interested in what he saw.

"Say," he said to the officer on deck, "I'd like to go with you on this expedition of yours."

"It's awfully cold up there," remarked the officer, discouragingly.

"I don't care for that."

"You have very little to eat, and you might starve to death."

"That wouldn't be pleasant," observed the visitor.

"I should say not," returned the officer. "And you might be eaten by your comrades."

"And then," continued the officer, "you wouldn't see your wife for three years, and possibly longer. You know you can't take her with you."

"Oh!" returned the would-be explorer, after a long pause, "then you can put my name down on your books. Your last argument captures me."

France Seeks Mauritius.

There is a movement in France to ask Great Britain for the return of Mauritius, the Beloved Isle of France, which was lost in 1810. It is contended that, in spite of being under British rule for over a hundred years, the island is still essentially French, and that the people desire union with their mother country.

Great Britain has no particular reason for keeping the island, says the Newcastle Chronicle. It has no strategic or economic importance, nor has it any sentimental associations, so far as Great Britain is concerned. For the French, on the other hand, it is the place to which many of their nobles emigrated, and is the island which Bernardin St. Pierre immortalized in his idyl, "Paul and Virginia."

The islanders gave proof of their feeling for France by sending many of their sons to fight in the French army.

Labor and Christenings.

W. Wallace Alexander, associated with the Elkins estate and a leading light in the Orpheus club, at a campfire gathering was humorously describing his troubles at a Pennsylvania coal mine which he was seeking to put on a paying basis.

"The miners were getting out coal two days a week—the other five days were devoted to christenings.

For every christening the whole neighborhood took a day to prepare, a day to celebrate and a day to recover.

Finally the problem was solved by hiring a brass band, arranging a parade and having all the christenings take place on the same magnificent, uproarious, welkin-ringing day.

A Leave of Absence

By MYRTLE LEE BARROWS

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

"Wanted by the chief," announced the manager of Porter & Co., wholesalers of coffees and spices, and Egbert Clyne repaired to the private office of the senior partner to find there Mr. Porter, his lawyer and the family physician.

Clyne looked puzzled and concerned.

"An indefinite leave," put in the physician, "backed by my certificate that a vacation rest would be beneficial."

"Perhaps I had better explain," interposed the attorney. "It is necessary to the interest of Porter & Co. that you disappear for a time. As head bookkeeper of the house you would probably be subpoenaed in court next week in an important case. It covers a transaction ten years old, an invalid claim, but the records of our books show that it has its merits. On the contrary the same was settled verbally long ago, only the person who was a witness to the settlement cannot be found."

"To simplify things let me explain further," said Mr. Porter. "It was a bookkeeper we had whose evidence would prove the settlement. He was a trusted employee, inherited some means and, with his motherless child, then ten years of age, left our service. We never kept track of him and now that we desperately need his testimony we cannot locate him."

"You see," the lawyer again spoke, "we want to gain a delay. If you cannot be served they will have to await your return to bring our books into court. The delay will give us a chance to try and locate our old bookkeeper—at least, negotiate a compromise settlement."

"So go and forget business cares, with salary and expenses entirely off your mind," directed Mr. Porter.

It was a peculiar situation, but Egbert Clyne asked no further questions. "Lose yourself," were Mr. Porter's final words, "so the court officers can't serve that subpoena."

Clyne had no definite plans in mind, but after consulting a book devoted to advertising summer resorts he selected a remote one. He found Bear Lake well suited to his ideas, wrote to Mr. Porter and set about awaiting orders and enjoying himself.

Bear Lake village was the center of a group of half a dozen bodies of water and Clyne took in the entire chain as the days went by. It was well on towards dusk one evening, and he was fully ten miles from home. He had left a little hamlet known as Point Hope on his return trip. The sky had clouded and a stiff northeaster was roughing the waters when, coming within view of an island about midlake, he plied the oars with diligence as a small sailboat he had noticed was struck by a sudden squall and overturned. Clyne fancied that a shriek in feminine accents was borne to his hearing. He bent to the oars prodigiously, arose to his feet and plunged boldly into the water as he made out a girlish figure clinging to the upturned boat. Apparently exhausted, she let go her clasp, sank, reappeared and Clyne gained her side just as she was sinking again. He managed to sustain her, reached his drifting boat and lifted her into it. Upon the island he made out a house and he drove his skiff ashore. A white-haired old man came rushing to the spot.

At the moment the girl revived. Her father and Clyne assisted her to a little cottage, set in a nest of verdure and flowers. When the old man had seen his daughter to her room he insisted that Clyne should get on dry clothes and remain their guest until the storm had subsided.

That was a charming evening for the young man, in the company of John Brice and his daughter, Luella. He learned enough to know that they had lived on the island for a number of years, seeking peace and quiet amid the beauties of nature. Books, music, a modest literary ambition on the part of Mr. Brice and an amateur impulse of art on the part of Luella alleviated any possible tedium of their hermit life. They insisted that Clyne remain till the next morning and, after a refreshing sleep in which all his dreams were of the charming girl he had met, Clyne awoke, found his own clothes dried and pressed and started in to make himself presentable. He scanned twice in some amazement a framed yellowed photograph on the wall. It was a front view picture of the business establishment of Porter & Co.

"Ah! already?" hailed Mr. Brice, passing the open doorway. "Time for a constitutional before breakfast, if it suits you."

"Surely," responded Clyne, "that picture is familiar to me."

"Indeed! It's that of an establishment where I was bookkeeper for nearly twelve years."

"Then my meeting you will be of immense importance to Porter & Co."

It was so important and valued that after the evidence of the old bookkeeper had been given in court, Mr. Porter presented Brice and Clyne each with a check for five thousand dollars.

And six months later, when Clyne led Luella to the altar, among the wedding presents was a diamond necklace from Mr. Porter fit for a princess.

Bank Has a Liquor License.

The Bank of England has the right to sell beer without a license. This privilege was granted to the bank in its charter of incorporation under the great seal, dated July 27, 1694. And so the bank, if it liked, could open a public house in Threadneedle street, or could send drays round and deliver beer from door to door.—Tit-Bits.

Fecundity of Fish.

The most prolific fish is the cod, the yield of which averages about 45,000,000 eggs each season. Many other kinds of fish are exceedingly prolific. More than 36,000 eggs have been counted in a herring, 38,000 in a smelt, 1,000,000 in a sole, 1,120,000 in a roach, 3,000,000 in a sturgeon, 546,000 in a mackerel, and 1,357,000 in a flounder.

The Greyhound's Origin.

The origin of the greyhound, according to some authors, is a mystery. In ancient times the greyhound was considered a valuable present, especially by ladies, with whom it appears to have been a particular favorite. In the reign of Henry VIII the greyhound was distinguished as one of the king's beasts.

"Auld Lang Syne."

Perhaps you think that Robert Burns wrote that famous song "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot?" Most people do, yet the noted Scotch poet is not the author. He himself said, "I took it down from an old man's singing."—Boston Post.

Names of Countries Ending in "ia."

These names are of Latin origin: Britannia, Germania, Helvetia, Espania are old Latin names for England, Germany, France and Spain. The names of countries in Latin were of the feminine gender and the nouns ending in "a" are feminine.

Speeds Building.

Norwegian builders have developed a method of construction for temporary structure in which netting made of wooden rods is fastened to the uprights, bound together with wire and covered with plaster.

Mustn't Be Down Too Long.

"A man may be down, but he's never out," is a nice slogan—but if you stay down for the count of ten, you lose the biggest share of the gate receipts.

Theory and Practice.

If folks were paid according to their executive ability, a good cook would draw more salary than a college professor.—Galveston News.

A New Language.

A strong movement is on foot for recognition of Provencal, the language of southern France, as a distinct tongue from French.

Powerful Lens of English Make.

The most powerful lens used in aerial photography during the war, it is said, was made in Birmingham, England. It was 6¼ inches in diameter and had a focal length of 36 inches. The power and clear definition of this lens were such that when used in an airplane it gave good visibility and detailed information of what was happening five miles below it. It is said that the photographer could easily detect the presence of barbed wire from a height of three miles, and movements of troops that had been effected under cover of darkness were likewise traceable by the experts. Birmingham manufacturers have been so successful in making lenses that they believe they can compete with Germany, which has long had a monopoly of high-grade manufactures of that kind.

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION IS ORGANIZED AT QUEEN ALEXANDRA

A very enthusiastic and representative meeting of parents and teachers was held yesterday afternoon at Queen Alexandria School to consider the advisability of forming a Home and School Association.

Mrs. W. R. Morris was present and briefly outlined the work of the Home and School Association in a general way, emphasising their need in connection with every school. She said that while at present this was a purely provincial organization affiliated with the Ontario Educational Association, it was but a matter of a short time until the movement would be Dominion-wide.

Mrs. S. T. Medd, president of the Queen Mary Association, touched briefly on the work that might be undertaken by any club. While this work was mostly of a social nature, there were a great many other things that could be accomplished, such as doing relief work in providing food and clothing for pupils in need, welcoming new teachers, supporting school trustees in progressive measures, beautifying and enlarging school grounds, providing instruction in swimming, domestic science, manual training, sewing, etc. Mrs. Medd made special mention of the work accomplished by a Jewish club in Toronto. She then read the constitution that had been adopted by the Queen Mary Club, stating their aim, objects, who were eligible for membership and what officers constituted the executive.

Miss Jory, the school nurse, praised the work of the Queen Mary Club, emphasizing the assistance it had been to her in carrying out her duties.

A resolution was then introduced by Mrs. A. G. Roberts and seconded by Mrs. Rathbone that an association be formed in connection with Queen Alexandria School. This was carried unanimously. The election of officers resulted as follows;

President—Mrs. H. A. Genney.

1st Vice-President—Mrs. Russell Copping.

2nd Vice-President—Mrs. A. Mowatt.

Secretary—Mrs. Joseph Wearing.

Treasurer—Mrs. R. W. Davidson convenor.

Entertainment Committee — Mrs. Massey Cooke.

Convenor Relief Committee—Mrs. B. F. Cuffe.

This association decided to meet the first Monday evening of each month.

The members of Queen Alexandria Association are deeply grateful to Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Medd for their assistance in organizing and the enthusiasm they inspired in every member.

A meeting of the same nature is being held on Thursday afternoon at Central School.

The fourp'ny doss

WHEN Peter Wright, the great Chief of the British Seaman's Union—was in Canada, he said that many a time in the old days a fourp'ny doss was the only thing that stood between him and sleep on the sidewalk.

SAILORS and Soldiers and good hardy men the world over have a vivid recollection of these places.

THE "Doss" as such does not exist in Canada, but Hotels for Working Men are a definite part of the Salvation Army's activities in the large Canadian cities.

OBITUARY

JAMES RICHARDS.

City Clerk Armstrong and Mrs. Armstrong are in Belleville attending the funeral of Mrs. Armstrong's father, Mr. James Richards, who died in that city on Sunday morning at the age of 91 years. In referring to the death of Mr. Richards, the Belleville Intelligencer says:

"In the passing of Mr. James Richards at an early hour on Sunday morning, a well known and much respected citizen has entered into rest. For several years he had been in failing health. In the year 1829 Mr. Richards was born at Whitely, England, being thus in his 91st year. Deceased was by occupation a carpenter and for several years was a valued member of the Board of Education and also superintendent of buildings. He was a member of Benjamin Lodge, L.O.L., being one of the oldest members. In religion he was a life-long Methodist, being attached to Bridge Street Church. In his public and private life, Mr. Richards was a gentleman who was esteemed for his many sterling qualities and his numerous friends will extend to the bereaved family their sincere regret at his departure. An aged widow, one son and four daughters survive. The Son, C. W. Richards, resides in Toronto, and the daughters are, Mrs. W. E. Reid, of Toronto; Mrs. S. R. Armstrong, of Peterborough, and Misses Elizabeth and Sarah, of this city.

JOHN EDWARD COONEY.

The death took place last night of John Edward Cooney, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cooney, of 350 Aylmer street. The funeral took place from the family residence at three o'clock this afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery. Funeral services at the house will be conducted by Adjutant Buntin of the Salvation Army.

GEORGE McLEAN.

Mr. George McLean, a well-known resident of this city, passed away at noon yesterday after a lingering illness at his residence on the corner of Reid and McDonnel streets.

Mr. McLean was an old employe of the Grand Trunk Ry. and for the past eight years he has been the gateman at the Reid street crossing. He was born in Lakefield 41 years ago, but has lived the greater part of his life in this city.

There survive two brothers, Robert, of Toronto, and Charles, of Parry Sound; his father, John McLean, of 168 Charlotte street, and two sisters, Mrs. McNeil, of 81 Crescent street, and Mrs. MacFarlane, 482 Reid street.

The funeral will take place at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon from his late residence to Little Lake Cemetery. Services will be conducted by Rev. D. Brown, of Park St. Baptist Church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Doner, of Bethany Tabernacle.

LIKELY TO CARRY

But a Light Vote is Polled for the C. G. E. Bylaw.

Voting on the Canadian General Electric exemption bylaw is taking place today. It was reported at the different polling booths throughout the city that while the voting was not as heavy as in the case of the municipal elections, yet it was decidedly heavier than the vote that is usually polled for bylaws. There seems to be little doubt expressed on the streets that the bylaw will carry.

CONCERT AT SALVATION ARMY TEMPLE

A musical evening was given last night at the Salvation Army Temple by the Peterborough Temple Songsters and orchestra, under the capable leadership of Songster Leader W. C. Forde and with Songster Mary Yost, acting as organist and accompanist.

The chair was taken by Mr. T. Tooms, M. L. A., who in his remarks told of acting in a similar capacity for the Salvation Army about five years ago. He never remembered a more enjoyable concert that that one and he felt sure that he would be able to say the same of the concert last night. He had always been very much impressed with the Salvation Army, which he thought was carrying out the religion as Christ Himself taught it, which was: "Go Ye Into the Highways and Byways." Christianity and the Labor movement were very much allied as both lead to sentiments of love and brotherhood.

A very fine program was put on, especially a dialogue given by songsters Hazel, Victor Lang and Henry Parnel. This feature was very amusing and called forth much applause. Col. Adby kindly consented to add an extra number to the program and sang one of his Sacred songs to the tune of "Somewhere the Sun is Shining."

Although handicapped by the absence of piano music, Songster Leader, W. C. Forde, rendered the Columbia Polka in a manner which brought forth great applause from the audience and which did not subside until he re-appeared to render an encore. A solo "The Holy City" by Songster Lillian Tugwey also made a favorable impression on the audience and in response to applause she rendered another song in an equally pleasing style.

The lights were turned out for a little scene called "a Fireside Reverie and on the right hand side of the platform a fireside was realistically placed for the occasion. Songsters Lena White and Henry Parnel took the part of an old man and his wife, dreaming of bygone days. Their children who have long since gone to a better land appear in the form of angels. The scene was very pretty and caused much applause.

A prominent part was taken on the program by the recently formed orchestra. Considering the fact that it has only been organied for a short time the orchestra gives promise of being one of the best in Peterborough.

The program also included solos by Songsters Ethel Payne; selections by Temple Songsters, Temple Male choir, Temple Quartette, the Temple Ladies' Chorus and the Temple Ladies' quartette; recitations by Mr. H. Hedge, and Songster Lena White; prelude meditation by Songster Mary Yost; Bible reading by Songster Sergeant. Mrs. Lloyd, and marches and an overture by the orchestra.

The attendance was very good the entire seating capacity of the Temple being taken up. Tonight Co. Adby will hold his last service in the city and leaves for Ottawa, where he will conduct revival services.

At the close of the program Adjutant Buntin moved and Col. Adby seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman of the evening and all those who had helped so loyally to make the concert a success.

TWO PARTY LINE IS POPULAR IN PETERBORO

PATRONS OF TELEPHONE HAVE TO BE EDUCATED IN USE OF SYSTEM

Mr. G. O. Cameron, local manger of the Bell Telephone Company, stated this morning in response to enquiries as to the situation in regard to the installation of new telephones in the city that the two party system has been more or less in vogue in Peterborough for some years back. In this respect Peterborough has led other cities in the Province. Consequently there is not the same difficulty over the installation of single party lines as in other cities. Peterborough citizens are better educated to the use of the two party lines and know that they are just as useful as private lines.

It was in the big cities such as Toronto where they had used private lines more than here that trouble was being experienced in converting the people to the use of the two party line.

Owing to the world shortage of material as a result of the war it was necessary in the interests of public service that private lines should be discouraged. Mr. Cameron, however, reiterated that there was little trouble in Peterborough in this respect. He even found people who already had private lines volunteering to allow another party on their lines as soon as the company required it.

HIGH SCHOOL ENTRANCE RADICALLY CHANGED

NEW MINISTER OF EDUCATION MAKES IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

A change in the High School entrance examination is being made to take effect this year. Hon. R. H. Grant, Minister of Education, has announced that High School Entrance Boards under the new plan will be left free to decide whether the candidates shall be accepted on the certificates of Public School Principals or shall write on the examinations as usual.

The Boards will determine the conditions under which the Principal's certificates are to be accepted. The boards may, in addition, recommend to the Minister the admission of Candidates, who, in their opinion, are fitted for High School work, even though, in certain respects, they have failed to attain the required standard at written examinations. Moreover, those who, for adequate reasons, were unable to write on the examinations, may have their applications for admission to High Schools considered by the Public School Inspectors and High School Principals at any time.

The changes involve considerable alteration of the existing regulations which will be modified accordingly. The chief complaint has been that admission by Public School Principals was hampered by a requirement that the promotion examination papers and results had to be submitted to the Entrance Board, and the result, in the opinion of many, was merely an entrance examination of a different sort. In future, the Entrance Boards may dispense with a set form of examination and accept such recommendations from Principals as are deemed satisfactory.

MISS TOPPING COMES HIGHLY RECOMMENDED

LONDON PAPERS WRITE IN PRAISE OF HER TALENTS AS A SOLOIST

The Free Press of London, Ont., says of Miss Gladys Topping, who recently appeared at a public concert in that city and who will be heard at the Conservatory of Music Hall next Friday evening: "One of the greatest hits was the patriotic novelty song sung by Miss Gladys Topping and chorus. Both the charming soloist and bevy of charming society girls who made up the chorus wore the uniform of Red Cross nurses."

The Advertiser of the same city says: "The soloist is possessed of a pleasing and flexible voice. Miss Topping, in her character songs especially, sings with a versatility that is irresistible."

Miss Topping is the contralto soloist of First Presbyterian Church, London, Ont., and comes to this city to assist Miss Anis Ruth Phillips pupil of Miss Alice Roger Collins, in the recital Friday.

FIRST AID CLASSES ARE RESUMED TODAY

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN TO C.P.R EMPLOYES AND MEMBERS POLICE FORCE

Mr. Noble, the C.P.R. first aid instructor from Montreal, today continued his instructions to the local employes and the members of the police force. He dealt with arteries, veins and the methods to be adopted in treating for hemorrhages, etc. The manner in which the questions put to the classes were answered indicated that great progress is being made in this work, and it is anticipated that when the examinations take place the local employes of the C.P.R. will be able to make a very creditable showing.

At two o'clock a class for the freight shed employes and the members of the police force was held in the Police Court. At three o'clock a class was held in the Board of Trade rooms for the women employes and at four o'clock a class was held at the passenger station for the passenger station employes and section hands.

JUDGE HUYCHE SPOKE TO EPWORTH LEAGUE

DELIVERED AN INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS ON THE DUTIES OF CITIZENSHIP

At Trinity School Hall last evening His Honor Judge Huycke gave a most interesting and instructive address to the members of the Epworth League. It was citizenship night, and the address was most timely. Judge Huycke treated the subject of "Citizenship" in its broadest sense. He called the attention of of the young people to the fact that they have duties in various spheres. They are members of churches, of communities; they are citizens of Canada and of the Empire. All these privileges carry responsibilities. We should study the problems that arise out of these relationships and endeavor to play our part nobly and well in all these spheres. Judge Huycke urged the young people to be industrious citizens, intelligent citizens, unselfish citizens. "Be a booster, not a knocker," was one of the things he urged. It is so foolish to criticize others while we selfishly keep out of political and civil life. "Those who do give up their own ease to give attention to public affairs, to our affairs, ought to receive encouragement rather than criticism," said the Judge.

At the close of the meeting a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker for his interesting and inspiring address.

Miss Eva Waugh sang with good voice Charles Kingsley's beautiful verses, "Be Good, Sweet Maid." Mr. Daden Green gave an excellent violin solo.

FARM FOR SALE BY TENDER

TENDERS will be received to 31st March, 1920, for the purchase of the homestead of the late William and Allen Miles, being all of Lot No. 30, Concession 7, and part of Lot 31, Concession 6, in the Township of Dummer, containing 240 acres more or less. On the said farm is said to be a good brick, metal roofed dwelling, also good woodshed, milk house and ice house; also a large L-shaped frame barn with galvanized iron roof and high stonework foundations; stabling has concrete floors and is fitted with litter carrier. There is also a log hay barn with hay fork. Eight acres are sown to fall wheat and fall ploughing all done; immediate possession. Farm is well watered by lake, spring and well. No tender necessarily accepted.

Address Tenders to W. SHERIN, Lakefield, Ont., and state amount you can pay down on purchase.

ANOTHER CHIMNEY FIRE

A chimney fire at 350 Charlotte street caused the Fire Department a run last night at about a quarter to six. The blaze was easily extinguished without causing any damage. Chimney fires are very prevalent, this making about half a dozen calls for this class of fire in the past few days.

Some men never wander from their own firesides—because they dwell in steam-heated flats.

QUESTION OF BAND GRANTS FROM CITY COUNCIL NOW POSTPONE

Effort Will be Made to Supplement Parks Committee's Appropriation of $1000 by Monies From Other Committees—Intention is to Equalize Grants.

According to action by the Counil's Parks' Committee, last night, no et sums for band grants will be ixed until the end of May or early n June.

The idea is to wait and see if some mmittee cannot be relieved of $400 r $500 in sight by that time as a aving out of their appropriation with hich the Parks Committee.s approiation of $1,000 for bands could e supplemented, to allow of a decent qualization of grants among the 7th. Regiment, the Veterens' and he Salvation Army bands..

In this connection, Ald. Gordon has fatherly eye on Ald. Crowe's Legal nd Reception Committee as a posble victim, from which augmentation nds may be secured This commite's appropriation is $1.200, and Ald. ordon points out that as not a single se of litigation to recoved damages or acidents during the winter(an nusual circumstance) is facing Ald. rowe's Legal Committee, he might and for being held up for a few ndred dollars from his appropriaon, and thus relieve a vexed quesion.

The 57th. Band is asking a grant f $600. so is the G. W. V. A. band. he Salvation Army asks $500. Each and is willing to play thirteen conerts in the parks during the paumner. These sums total $1700 against mmittee's appropriation of $1,000.

Too Small

Ald Gordon said there was no quesion of Mr. Rupert Gliddons value as leader of the 57th. Regiment Band nd he has made nothing out of the ost the last twenty years. He thought a pity the appropriation for bands ad not been larger.

Ald. Crowe said Mr. Gliddon was rought here years ago by the 57th. egiment to serve as bandmaster. At at time, seevral good men applied or the position, but Mr. Gliddon had een selected because he was a young an, having papers and degrees from eipsizz, Germany. Mr. Gliddon rought the band up from 13 to 52 embers and that band travelled ll over this province and earned a eputation for efficiency.

Ald. Crowe was strong for the rant going to one good band— the 7th— which he contended would nder concert programs of an acptable value to all. Thirty men, he rgued at $2 a night, and Mr. Glidon, the leader, at $4 a night, for hirteen concerts would mean $832. his would be union wages.

Ald. Gordon suggested that were a question of union wages, for ndsmen playing in the park, why ot cut down the number of concerts assure the grant allowing for such ages. In the event of union wages eing covered in a grant, Council ould insist on them putting up the oods.

Ald. Whitehouse's idea had always een that Council should support enerously, one good band, but he id not think such a policy could be ursued with but $1,000 available for rants. He considered the Salvation rmy and the Veterans' entitled to onsideration and suggested, under he circumstances, dividing the $1,000 qually.

Possible Surplus

Ald. Gordon here suggester postoning fixing the grants in the hope f seeing by June, surpluses coming rom some other committes, which be added to the $1,000 appr riation for music. He has his eye on he Legal Committee in this connecion as there is not a single case of itigation stated at present for that mmittee's expenditure. By summer e might be able to take $500 from hat committee's appropriation of 1,200, add it to the $1.000 allowed or bands and divide the $1.500 in mounts of $550 each for the 57th. d Veterans' band and $400 for the alvation Army.

Ald. Crowe contends that apart rom the 57th., the other bands have ot the reeds to give first class conerts up to the standard. Then, he aid, we should recognize the fact hat the people look for music worth he money. Ald. Crowe also considered that the Salvation Army are drawing away from their policy of years not to accept money for playing. [illegible] in their accepting a [illegible] from the city to play in the [illegible]

[illegible] last explained that what the 57th. Regiment band gets from the Government is free quarters, light and heat and $44 a year for music.

Ald Gainey: "Divide the $1,000 available among the three bands — $400 each to two and $200 to another on the understanding that should any surplus from another committee accrue, that that surplus also go to the bands."

Ald. Crowe: "I don't see why not engage a first class band leader and hold him responsible for the concert programs put up."

Motion Lost

Ald. Crowe and Copping moved that Mr. Gliddon be instructed to arrange band concerts for the parks and that the men in his organization be paid each $2 a night and Mr. Gliddon $4 a night (union(wages)—This would mean $832 for thirteen concerts put up by a band of thirty members

This resolution had only the support of the mover and seconder and was lost.

Recognize All.

Ald. Whitehouse. "It would not be fair to ignore the men in both the Veterans and the Salvation Army bands who went overseas to fight The veterans should have consideration. He thought Ald. Gordon's suggestion for augmenting the band's appropriation a good move. The total sum thus acquired could be then divided as also advocated by Ald. Gordon.

Ald. Copping. "I think you'll find before long many of the Veterans' Band playing in the 57th. Band.

Ald. Crowe: "War Veterans' musicians also belong to the Musicians' Union, and could be engaged by Mr. Gliddon. The Government would back up any proposition."

Ald. Gordon and Whitehouse moved that the question of band grants be postponed in hope of supplementing the committee's present appropriation with money saved from other committee's with a view to equalizing the grants among the three bands. This carried.

Members Present

The Mayor, Aldermen Gainey Whitehouse, Copping, Gordon and Crowe.

Deputations

Col. Clegg of the newly organized 57th. Regiment spoke for the 57th Band, which he said had for many years taken an active part in this city's affairs. In fact during the past twenty or thirty years, the 57th had been recognized as the city's band and up to 1914 it was classed among the best in the country. Since 1914 when war started there had been no 57th. Band excepting as held together by these few members remaining after so many went overseas, and who received no remuneration whatever from the Government. Now that the 57th. Regiment Band will be built up to a strength of thirty members, composing an organization equal to that before the war. Of course, Col. Clegg went on, money is needed to put the band on a first class footing and to maintain it as such. To that end the grant asked for would be applied, when with financial backing from regimental officers, the band would again evolve into one of the best in this province. The regiment will not be satisfied, he declared, unless it has an efficient band organization The policy always had been in the past and will be so in future, to secure, when necessary, musicians positions here on the strength of their joining the 57th Regiment band

Ald. Crowe: "The grant from the city has always been applied toward the salary of the 57th's bandmaster and to provide and maintain instruments."

Live Asset

Major McPherson of the 57th. was exceedingly optimistic that the newly organized regiment would be a credit to the city and country, to both of which it will prove a valuable asset. A band, he recognized as one of the most important adjuncts of a regiment and very essential for its welfare and progress. Not only is a money grant anticipated, but also the city's moral support, without which citizens cannot be expected to appreciate the band with enthusiasm. He hoped Council would consider this grant application, not from a sectari-

IRISH CITY TURNED INTO ARMED CAMP; CITIZENS QUIET

TROOPS ARE STATIONED AT ALL POINTS IN CORK READY FOR EMERGENCY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Cork, Ireland, March 24.—More troops and Royal Irish Constabulary have been sent here, and empty houses at strategic points have been occupied by the military and police forces. Sinn Fein organization is maintaining secret watches and guards to protect its leaders, some of whom are reported to have received threatening letters, similar to that delivered to May MacCurtain before he was murdered last week. Last night troops, supported by the police, were stationed at the various points in the city with armoured cars and machine guns. This protection was maintained while the streets were thronged, but later the extra guards were withdrawn. Soldiers and police officers, however, remained in the barracks all night ready for any emergency.

FAMILIAR LANDMARK IS BEING DEMOLISHED

WORKMEN ARE TARING DOWN OLD BLACKSMITH SHOP ON AYLMER STREET

The demolition of the old blacksmith shop on the west side of Aylmer street between Murray and Brock streets, removes another familiar landmark from the city. The shop was built over fifty years ago by the White & Davis Machine Shop and Foundry, and for many years was used as a forge in connection with their works. Their shop was on the southeast corner of Brock and Aylmer streets. It was this firm which built the cast iron bridge over the Otonabee in 1871, and which four years later fell, owing to the action of frost. Immediately opposite the shop is a double house, which, standing on the site now occupied by the G. W. V. A. hall, was the first Bible Christian Church in Peterborough. When this sect united with the Methodists the church was moved down to its present position and remodelled into two houses.

Since the time of the White & Davis Foundry many tenants have occupied the blacksmith shop, and it has been a well-known landmark of the city.

JUDGMENT IS RESERVED

In Case of G. A. Parcells Charged With Making Whiskey

Magistrate Langley yesterday reserved judgment in the case against George Albert Parcells, charged with having in his possession a mash for making liquor. Mr. A. C. McFee, collector of customs for Belleville division, gave evidence to the effect that he had searched the residence of the accused on lot 9, concession 2, Belmont township, on Sept. 17 last, and had found a forty-gallon barrel containing ten gallons of mash in a state of fermentation. Another tub containing mash was found in a thicket near by.

Mr. J. O'Brien appeared for the accused and the case was prosecuted by Crown Attorney Hatton.

WOULD EXPELL TURKISH RACE FROM EUROPE

UNIED STATES REAFFIRMS ITS POSITION ON THE SUBJECT ON REQUEST

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, March 24.—The original position of the American Government that the Turks should be expelled from Europe is restated in a note to the Allied Supreme Council, which has been prepared at the State Department and which will be transmitted soon.

The communication is in reply to an inquiry from the French and British Governments as to the views of the United States on the Turkish settlement. The position of the U. S. Government is understood to be that there is no sound reason for retaining the Turkish capital in Europe.

CHAOS PREVAILED IN THE NAVY DEPT. OF UNITED STATES

WHEN THAT COUNTRY ENTERED THE WAR, WITNESS TELLS SENATE COMMITTEE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, March 24.— Virtual chaos existed in the Navy Department at the time the United States entered the war, Captain Harr's Laning, assistant chief of the Bureau of Navigation during the war, testified today before the Senate Investigating Committee. Captain Laning said no one knew what to do after the plan of action submitted by the Bureau of Operations had been disapproved and that "the personal characteristics of the Secretary of the Navy of ten, made it impossible to get the approval of really important policies. When important policies and plans were submitted to Secretary Daniels, Capt. Laning said, directions would be given to leave the papers "for consideration" and usually these instructions meant that the matter would not be heard from again until the officer interested looked the papers up and then frequently they could not be found.

"As for material conditions in the fleet when we entered the war," the Captain said, "it was found that it would take over one hundred days to get all the battleships of even the active fleet materially ready for war."

RESULT OF VOTING ON C.G.E. BYLAW

The following is the result of the voting on the C.G.E. bylaw yesterday:

Poll.	For.	Against.
1	51	35
2	80	23
3	65	31
4	72	16
5	93	18
6	80	12
7	57	9

19	61	13
20	46	16
21	31	28
Total	1265	465

This gave the bylaw a majority of 800, which was approximately 11 votes over the required two-thirds majority, which would make the bylaw law. As a result of the decision of the electors it is expected that work will be commenced in the near future on the proposed extensive additions to the plant of the Canadian General Electric Company.

OVER BILLION DOLLARS DEPOSITED IN BANKS

PROSPERITY IN CANADA INDICATED BY STATEMENT OF FINANCE DEPARTMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 24.—Savings deposits in Canadian banks now stand at $1,187,000,000, an increas during February of nearly twenty-four million during the month, according to a statement issued by the Finance Department today. Call loans in Canada showed a decrease and current loans an increase. Demand deposits were rather lower than in the month previous.

CHIEF BROWN TO RESIGN.

Word has been received from Sudbury that Chief John Brown has resigned and intends returning to Scotland in the near future. Chief Brown went to Sudbury from Peterborough about three years ago to take over the chiefship. He was a sergeant on the local force for six years previous to that, and will be remembered by the local force and citizens in general.

GOVERNMENT MAKES EASY TERMS WITH THE WORKINGMEN

WILL RAISE SIEGE OF BERLIN AND WITHDRAW TROOPS FROM CITY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 24.—In the strike settlement reached by the German Government with Labor unions, the Majority Socialists are pledged to place in their Parliamentary program the claims of the Labor organizations, says a Berlin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. The Government has expressed willingness to withdraw its troops from Berlin and across the Spree River, near Government headquarters, and raise the state of siege immediately it is said. In addition, it undertakes not to attack workers, particularly those in the Ruhr Valley, and to negotiate with the unions concerning the entry of Labor representatives into the defense corps. The unions pledged themselves to call another meeting to decide upon the question of a new general strike, in case their aims are not met and the Government's promises are broken.

Socialists Dissatisfied.

Copenhagen, March 24.—Gas, water and electric service had not been resumed in Berlin and the tramways are still idle, as the Independent Socialists have assumed a waiting attitude. They are said to be disappointed with the Government's soft methods towards the traitors while armed Spartacans are simply stood against a wall.

Another Skirmish Reported.

Wesel, March 24.—Six thousand Government troops reinforced by armed countrymen had a kirmish with the Communist guards, numbering about fifteen thousand, near here last night. Reports state 62 were killed and about one hundred wounded.

New German Cabine.

Copenhagen, March 24.—The formation of a new German Cabinet is a matter of only a few hours and the Independent Socialists are sure of getting several important portfolios, according to telegrams from Berlin this morning.

SINN FEIN PRISONERS TAKEN TO ENGLAND

SIXTY-FIVE REMOVED FROM CORK JAIL AND PLACED IN SHOPS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Queenstown, March 24.—Sixty-five Sinn Fein prisoners, under heavy military escort, were brought by motor lory from Cork jail to this city this morning, where they were put aboard a British sloop, which set sail, presumably for England. The sloop was accompanied by two destroyers. The prisoners sang Republican songs and returned the farewells of the watching crowd as the vessels left the harbor.

SOLDIERS ARE FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH

OVER SIXTEEN THOUSAND WERE VICTIMS OF CLIMATE IN SIBERIA

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 24.— More than sixteen thousand anti-Bolshevik soldiers have been found frozen to death on the Steppes, it is announced in a Soviet military communique received here today from Moscow, by wireless. The statement reports progress by the Red troops against General Denikin's forces along the railway in Ekateinodar region on the Caucus front.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY HAS SURPLUS FOR 1919

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, March 24. — Complete returns of the results of operations for the calendar year 1919 of the Grand Trunk Railway show a surplus of 377,600 ponds sterling for the lines operated in Canada, compared with 338,600 pounds in the previous twelve-month period. After allowance was made faor an estimated deficit of 276,500 pounds on account of the branches under the United States Government control, there [illegible] a surplus of 7,000 pounds [illegible],500 pounds in 1916.

VETERANS DISCUSSING CALGARY RESOLUTIONS IN CONVENTION

Debate Was Still in Progress When Gathering Adjourned at Noon—Harry Flynn Sends Offer to Form Merger of all Branches of Veterans' Organizations.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, March 24.—The Great War Veterans' Association had before it the problem of re-establishment at this morning's session of their annual convention. The chairman of the re-establishment committee, J. E. Akins, presented his report and the regular resolution recommended. He read the Calgary resolution which calls for additional payment of one dollar per day to men who served on a belligerent front other than in Siberia; eighty cents per day for service in Great Britain and Siberia only, and fifty cents per day for service in Canada only, and a cash bonus of $1500 in a lump sum to widows.

A long discussion followed, which was in progress at the lunch adjournment.

The nomination of officers was fixed for this afternoon.

Conference Postponed.

An invitation to join a merger of the United Veterans' League and the Grand Army of Canada was received by telegram. It was signed by J. Harry Flynnn of the U. V. L. Before reading it Chairman Maxwell pointed out that the Dominion executive of the G. W. V. A. had already adopted a resolution advocating a round table conference of all soldier bodies in Canada. Communications to this effect, he said, had been sent out in the hope of holding such a conference before the present convention. Replies, however, had been so indefinite that arrangements for the holding of the conference had to be postponed until after the convention. Mingled applause and laughter greeted the reading of the telegram.

Get Into a Tangle

The re-establishment committee not having been ready with its report, which, with an amendment to transfer the convention to Ottawa, was to have been the first order of business, the report of the land settlement committee was taken up in its place. The resolution comprised twenty-six clauses, and, in addition dealt with Dominion lands, swamp lands, etc. Before the preamble was disposed of an amendment proposed by T. Dace of Alberta and seconded by W. Drinnan of British Columbia, started a discussion which lasted over an hour, in which the land settlement question was discussed from every point of view.

The amendment took the administration of the Land Settlement Act severely to task, and called for an investigation and the reorganization of the central board of the administration. This amendment was finally adopted after the defeat of an amendment to the amendment which had been piled up behind it. Discussion became very involved, delegates rising to discuss the resolution and the amendment and the amendment to the amendment indiscriminately.

Want Thorough Probe

Mr. Drinnan, in seconding the amendment, said that the soldier scheme was merely a scheme whereby a returned soldier must pay a stated amount to take up land.

Mr. Mills of Winnipeg advocated a thorough investigation into the administration of the board, saying that a legal representative of the board in Winnipeg, paid by the Government, was charging the regular fees in addition to that in changing land titles for soldiers.

Mr. Cameron of Saskatchewan did not think an investigation would do any good, and declared that the board had done good work in his province. He was convinced that the officials were doing the best they could with the legislation they have before them and he was sure that any suggestions offered in a straightforward way by the G. W. V. A. would be met by prompt attention and action.

The resolution on land settlement, as passed, among other things, requested the governments of the Dominion of Canada and of the Province of Alberta to revise their acts and regulations with the intention of making procedure cheaper, quicker and easier for veterans and others to acquire rights in swamp areas for the purpose of reclamation.

In proposing the amendment Mr. Dace declared, that, contrary to promises made to the soldiers in the trenches, the Government had not actually given them much greater privileges regarding land settlement than have been accorded to the lowest type of foreigners in the country.

The Value of an Eye.

The question of equalization of pensions was brought up in a motion by Lukin Johnston of Vancouver, seconded by Canan Scott, Montreal. A long discussion took place, many views being expressed. There was only one opponent of the principle that a private's pension should be as great as that of an officer. It was the unanimous opinion of the delegates that the country was able to equalise pensions upward, raising the private soldiers' pension scale to that of officers.

Comrade J. H. Rawlinson, Toronto, a blind delegate, deeply impressed the convention by asking if it was right that his eyes were worth only $600, while those of a brigadier-general were considered worth $2700.

It was decided by vote to return the question to the resolutions committee to be passed upon separately.

GOVERNMENT MEMBERS DISCUSS PROGRAM

STATEMENT ON NAVAL ISSUE IS EXPECTED IN THE HOUSE TOMORROW

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 24.—At 1 o'clock today when the caucus of Government supporters adjourned, Sir George Foster stated there had been a general discussion of matters in the legislative program. Among these were naval establishment, post office legislation and the franchise bill clauses. There should be a statement made in the House tomorrow in regard to the decisions reached on naval establishment, the Acting Premier stated, and the opinions of the caucus on other matters would be made known at a later date.

NO REDUCTION LIKELY IN THE PRICE OF MILK

AT LEAST BEFORE MAY 1st LOCAL DEALERS NOW ANNOUNCE

Local milk dealers, when queried as to the possibility of an early reduction in the price of milk in consequence of similar action being taken in other cities of the province, notably Kingston, stated that it was not likely that there would be any reduction until the first of May at least. One dealer pointed out that in the use of tickets he had been charging only 1 1-2 cents instead of the 14-cent price which was being charged in other cities all over the province. April 1st was the date given for a reduction of milk prices in Kingston.

HOUSES MUST BE BUILT.

THE EXPECTED happened yesterday and the C.G.E. bylaw was carried by an overwhelming majority. The good judgment of the people has been vindicated. They can be depended upon to recognize a good thing when they see it, to hospitably open the portal when opportunity knocks.

The adoption of the bylaw yesterday brings more prominently into the foreground the fact that there is a scarcity of houses in the city. There are few vacant residences of any class, detached, semi-detached, or in apartment buildings. When the C.G.E. extension is put up and in operation, the new enteryrise will mean an increase in the working population of this city of at least one thousand men, and this means that at least three thousand more residents will be brought here. For these families accommmodation must be provided. There should be no time lost in dealing with this civic problem. The building season is here. The C. G. E. Company, with characteristic energy, will speed up the work of constructing its new plant, and it behooves the city to keep pace with the company in the matter of providing homes for the new army of workers who will be required to equip the place. The company is not held back by a consideration of the cost of labor and building material, and this business foresight should be sufficient to satisfy the city that there is no immediate prospect for a decrease in either.

The Government at Ottawa, it seems, has set aside thirteen million dollars to be loaned to the various provinces for the purpose of building houses. The Ontario Government has—faintly, perhas—indicated its sympathy with the movement, and it is likely that the two hundred thousand dollars that the city has asked for as a loan will be available. The machinery has been provided here, and Mr. F. H. Dobbin of the Housing Commission has supplied himself with detailed information relating to every branch of the problem. The labor required for the carrying out of the plan is here, and the mechanics need the money. A building program will add to the general prosperity of the city, and the enterprise is such that the risk of loss to any party to the contract is negligble. All persons anxious to own their homes, which they can purchase on easy terms and with the element of profit to the seller elimnated, now have the opportunity of a lifetime.

But even if the Drury Administration does not care to assume the role of custodian of this housing fund, and will not furnish the city with the amount asked for, there is another way that promises results. Private capital can be enlisted. Local men with money can organize and begin a building campaign, the city having authority under the Act to guarantee their bonds. With two such courses open, the city has no excuse if it should fall down in the attempt to take care of the growing population.

SOLICITING CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

> That, in the opinion of this House, in view of the reported statement by the Rev. Ben Spence, that another prohibiton referendum in Ontario would cost the Prohibitionists five million dollar ($5,000,000), and in view of the fact that such immemnse sums tend to the corruption by patronage and otherwise of press and people, and to the destruction of public liberty and public morals, and in view of the reported collection of party funds for the Farmers' party and parties, and in view of the fact that a coming struggle in Canada will probably be between the owners of land and the employers of labor, and in view of the charges made against other parties in respect of party funds, it is desirable that all campaign funds be prohibited and made a criminal offence and that an amendment of the Criminal Code be made to that effect.

THE ABOVE is a copy of the resolution which Mr. J. H. Burnham will, according to notice, introduce in the House of Commons, and the matter is certain to provoke and interesting and extended debate. If such a measure were given effect it would interfere with the plans of the Western Farmers' party, the members of which are raising by subscription large campaign funds to be used in the next Federal election.

These days it is impossible to do anything without the use of money. Even moral reforms call for financial support. The political campaign which precedes an election is, or should be, an education for the people, and as such is worth all that it costs, provided the expenditure is kept within reason. If the candidates for office are personally to bear the expense of the campaign, then only the man of means will be able to run for office, a condition that is not likely to be tolerated in the present temper of the masses, so many farmers and workingmen being candidates in prospect.

The corruption of the electorate by the lavish use of money most certainly cannot be condoned, but legitimate expense, including the necessary outlay for the renting of halls, advertising meetings, and the payment of speakers from outside, must be provided for. If every member of a political party would contribute to the campaign fund according to his means, no possible objection could be urged against such a course. A subscription would assure personal interest in the outcome just as a man who lays a wager on a horse race is more especially anxious as to the result than the spectators who have no financial investment in the event but merely watch the horses from the grandstand.

Mr. Burnham's resolution provides a penalty for a practice that has been indulged in for years, often with [illegible] braseness and a glaring disregard for everything [illegible] political or commercial probity. The rich man in public life will find himself deprived of his most powerful weapon if the measure passes. But why is Mr. Burnham so ready to substitute prohibition for moral suasion in this case while insisting on a reversal of the process in regard to temperance legislation? Why not teach the people to be honest in politics as well as temperate in private life?

Of course, there are newspapers and individuals who will hoot the idea of abolishing gigantic campaign funds. Their experience has taught them that the easiest way to win an election is to knock the head out of a money barrel and let the golden contents trickle into every corner of the constituency.

Another point—the member of Parliament or Legislature has always been regarded as an easy mark for the man or woman with the subscription paper, and here, again, the rich man has an unfair advantage over the one whose means are limited. All such donations are properly forbidden during a campaign. Why not extend the same measure of protection—for protection it really is—so as to cover the entire time during which the successful candidate holds office?

AMENDING THE CONSTITUTION.

IT IS ANNOUNCED that the attorney-generals of the various provinces are to hold a conference in Ottawa to devise some way of securing amendments to the British North America Act, another evidence that this country has reached the status of a nation.

The situation appears to be this: The Act in question can be revised only by permission of the Imperial authorities, whose sanction was required to give it effect. Before this can be done, the unanimous consent of all the provinces to such amendments is secured. After that, the sanction of the Imperial powers would appear to be a mere matter of form.

The real difficulty would probably be met with in the attempt to secure the essential general agreement to any change that is proposed, a difficulty as great as that which was encounterel by the Fathers of Confederation when the Act was first framed.

MR. TOOMS IN THE LEGISLATURE.

MR. THOMAS TOOMS has already introduced two resolutions in the Legislature, one providing for a change in the Municipal Act so as to place the police force of cities under the jurisdiction of an elected instead of an appointed commission. The other resolution aims at the amending of the Street Car Act so that cities of less than fifty thousand population shall have the right to decide by vote whether or not cars shall be operated on Sunday. The former resolution was seconded by N. Asmussen, M.L.A. for North Waterloo, a straight Liberal, and his apparent deflection to the Labor party is said to have caused Mr. Hartley Dewart considerable alarm.

Mr. Tooms has received from the City Council an official communication asking him to work against any attempt made in the Legislature to lessen the control of the municipality over the Board of Health, the reason urged being that such a policy would not be in the interests of good government. Mr. Tooms wonders why the Council should be inconsistent in this matter, why they should insist upon retaining control of this department while opposing the idea of any change in the management of the police department, especally when under the proposed changed conditions the police would be not more under aldermanic influence or interference than they are today.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Belleville Intelligener.

NOT MUCH TIME need be wasted debating daylight saving for Belleville this year. There does not seem to be any loud call for it thus far, and as the railroads will no doubt adhere to standard time. Belleville as a city where the railway interests represent the principal industry, would hardly care to invite endless confusion by having two time standards this summer. Then, our country cousins are unalterably opposed to this new time contraption, and much as we appreciate the longer evenings for our backyard garden, golf and other recreation, there are strong reasons for personal sacrifice in the interest of the bonne entente between city and country

BEYOND ALL DOUBT.

(Farmers' Sun.)

FROM VARIOUS CITIES and manufacturing organizations motions favoring daylight saving are being passed. This matter has been pretty thoroughly discussed during the past two years, and little more need be said regarding the merits and demerits of daylight saving.

In brief, the city man likes it and the farmer finds it most objectionable. In order that everyone should be satisfied, why not let each individual city or manufacturing establishment open and close their offices or factories an hour earlier? No one in the country would have any serious objection to a city or individual factory opening and closing an hour earlier. But they do object to them foisting their fads on the country. The majority of farmers object to getting up an hour earlier than usual in order to catch the milk trains—operated under the daylight saving system. They cannot cut grain or get into the fields until the dew dries, and, unfortunately for the daylight saving advocates, Providence has not heard of the scheme to set the clock back an hour. Old Sol goes on his way as he has always gone. If the city man wants to readjust his own working hours let him do it, but let him not try to force the farmer to conform to his wishes.

DRUG CANKER IS GROWING IN THE WEST

Vancouver, March 28;—Like a festering canker that grows worse with neglect, is the growing evil of the drug habit which is eating into the very heart and well-being of some of the Pacific coast cities today.

In the city of Vancouver since the New Year drugs in the form of cocaine, heroin and morphine have been seized in "dope raids" amounting to approximately $200,000 on the street retail price. What is said of Vancouver can be applied to Seattle and other coast cities.

Drug Traffic Ring

"Never in the history of the city has there been such a systematic and organized traffic in habit-forming drugs as at the present time," says the city's chief of police. "Raids seizures and arrests and fines, seem to have no effect in stamping out the nefarions traffic. Bail money and fines, irrespective of amount, is promptly advanced, indicating the operation of an organized ring, and the guilty parties return to the business immediately they are released. So wide-spread are the ramifications and so insidious the methods of the 'dope traders" that under the present inadequate laws affecting the evil the police have an almost hopeless task in trying to stamp it out."

The police chief sees the need of much more stringent penalties if this blasting traffic with its final revenue of wrecked lives and broken humanity is to be quelled.

Many Women Customers

"If we were to tell the names of some of the fashionable people in the city who are addicts to the drug habit the city would have the greatest scandal it ever knew," say the detectives who are specializing in tracking down the "dope" trade.

Ricci and Sinclair, two of the detectives, tell that in a raid on a Chinese premises a fortnight ago, they had to wait for about an hour before the Chinamen whom they wanted should return, and in that time the unlisted telephone was used twenty-one times, nineteen times by women and three times by men, giving orders for drugs. Some of the customers, declare the detectives were fashionable women in the best residential parts of the city.

Tricks to Avoid Detection

Police pressure has forced traffickers and their clients to resort to all sorts of tricks to evade detection and arrest. Unlisted phones, secret phone signals, counter-words and cabalistic names and numbers for the drug and the quantity and for meeting places, are all now part of the system.

Whites Higher Up.

All the peddling and distribution is done by Chinamen, but there are white men and women in the wholesale side of the business higher up. The Chinamen in the business are mostly known to the police, but the "higher-ups" are either under protection or the chain of distribution has so many links that the heads of the ring are beyond reach.

The phone, the automobile and the Chinese boys are the main elements in distribution. Orders are made in cabalistic phrase over the telephone, a date and place is fixed, the Chinaman drives a heavy and fast car to the spot, picks up the customer and takes a fast quarter of an hour's ride, afterwards dropping the customer at some other place near home. The fast ride enable the traffickers to elude a possible police car, and in the interval the transfer of "dope" and payment is safely made. The Chinese boy, on the either hand, is sent out with a single packet to a known customer, either to a shop, store or private residence. Such methods are difficult of detection.

Pacific Coast Clearing Centres.

It is a known fact that certain New York drug firms regard Vancouver and Seattle as their clearing centres on the Pacific Coast. Shipments are made via Montreal from New York and drugs that cost $20 in Montreal, fetch as high as $190 when retailed in Seattle, and $200 in Butte, Montana.

Worse Than Dante's Inferno.

The scenes at the police station on the night when 20 or 30 "hop heads" are in the cells outrivals Dante's inferno in hideousness and yells of suffering. When the craving for the drug grows on the prisoners they cry, plead, weep, rage and yell in the most abject and pitiable fashion. Often the police doctor has to be called to give the worst of then a hypodermic injection in order to allay the horrid bedlam.

Rising Against Curse.

Public sentiment is growing against the insiduous traffic that subordinates the wreck of human lives to the love of gain, and already the people are clamoring to the Legislature for more drastic penalties and repressive measures to eliminate from the community what is today one of its greatest curses.

FARM WAGES IN ALBERTA BEAT RECORD

Ranging from sixty-five dollars a month up to one hundred a month, wages for farm laborers this year promise to break all records in Alberta. Up to the present very little has been said regarding wages to be paid for farm help, but C. S. Noble, of the Nobleford Foundations, Ltd., announced the scale to be paid by his firm in the following statement:

A good many are hesitating regarding what wages they can afford to pay for farm labor. The Noble Foundation company, who have in the past hired more or less on a contract, believe it is more satisfactory both for the farmer and the men to have a definite wage set for the different months of the season, giving them the liberty of leaving at any time should the company not be able to make things agreeable for them.

The company realizes that on large farms it is impossible to give all men personal supervision, and that success depends to a great extent on the ability to secure thoroughly experenced men who will take a complete interest in their work as they would on farms of their own. They can only make work for teamsters who can show ability in handling at least eight horses, and for this work they have decided on the following scale of wages:

Last half of March ...	$ 65.00
April	80.00
May	80.00
June	80.00
July	80.00
August	100.00
September	100.00
October	100.00
November	80.00
Totalling	$700.00

for eight months.

Mr. Noble states that while this total will in all probability exceed what would be saved should the men be paid day wages after harvest begins, he believes the men realize all the advantages to be derived from eight months' steady work, and the company would gain through increased interest and in avoiding changing of teamsters and the losses resulting.

In addition to this, for those who complete the full eight months or any longer time that might afterwards be agreed for, the company will pay as a bonus the same per cent. on the amount earned as is paid to shareholders, which for six years prior to 1919 has averaged 20 per cent. Should the crops be normal and the average 20 per cent. dividend paid, the bonus for the full eight months would be $140.

On these farms some men are employed to drive more than eight horses, in which case 50 cents per day for each additional team is allowed, up to 12 horses.

Mr. Noble particularly emphasizes the fact that he is not in any way attempting to set the wages for general farm work in Alberta, but that it is necessary for his company to make arrangements early in the season and to have a definite program to lay before men applying for work with the company.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

Col. William Pendleton Gaines, owner of the Austin (Texas) Statesman, who became known from one end of the Lone Star state to another through victory achieved over Ben Thompson, a bandit, died at his home in New York, last week of heart disease.

In the days when Austin was a young city and bandits' raids were so numerous that the local authorities were unable to cope with them, Col. Gaines, through the columns of his newspaper, attacked the city officials for their ineffectiveness.

The editorials were answered by Thompson himself. After having warned Col. Gaines that he intended to kill him and blow up his plant, the bandit, accompanied by his followers, stalked intothe office on the day specified and found the colonel waiting for him, unarmed.

At this display of nerve, Thompson slipped his pistol back into its holster, and, after chatting with the editor, shook hands. He parted with this tribute:

"You're the bravest man I ever met."

After that Austin was no longer troubled with bandits.

Col. Gaines was born in Richmond, Tex., in 1852. He established the Statesman when Austin was being developed and contributed to many newspapers and periodicals.

SCHOOL GIRL TELLS OTHERS

How They Can Find Relief From Periodic Sufferings.

Nashua, N. H.—"I am nineteen years old and every month for two years I had such pains that I would often faint and have to leave school. I had such pain I did not know what to do with myself and tried so many remedies that were of no use. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and decided to try it, and that is how I found relief from pain and feel so much better than I use to. When I hear of any girl suffering as I did I tell them how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me."—DELINA MARTIN, 29 Bowers St., Nashua, N.H.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, therefore is a perfectly safe remedy to give your daughter, who suffers from such painful periods as did Miss Martin.

The reason so many girls write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice, is because from their 40 years experience they have a store of knowledge which is invariably helpful.

SPANKING IS REVIVED.

Used With Good Results at Ontario Jail Farm.

The old idea that spanking days were over, when a boy grew too big for his mother or father to do the job, has received a rude shock, as seven young men sent to the Ontario Jail Farm can testify. The young men's ages ranged from 17 to 22 years, and they were slapped six times in the good old-fashioned way, with a very healthy-looking school strap, about 18 inches long, two inches wide, and thick enough to make an impression on the culprits' feelings.

Officials connected with the prisons are not allowed to talk about the matter at all. Instructions are to that effect, so do not fry and pry into the secrets of spanking at the Jail Farm.

However, the job has been well done, as Major W. J. Morrison, superintendent, has notified the York County Clerk of the Peace to that effect. The spanking was carried out on the recommendation of his Honor Judge Emerson Coatsworth.

The culprits were given six good honest slaps, and the ceremony was witnessed by the superintendent, deputy, surgeon, and clerk. Of course, it wasn't possible to place young men of 17 to 22 over the knee of the slapper "like mother used to do," so a change was made in the position of the victim of the whacking.

No! he is not even stripped. Only the section of the anatomy especially arranged by nature for the purpose of spanking was laid bare. The young man is told to stand up with his face to the wall, and his hands held high over his head grasp a certain steam pipe. Each of these seven young men will probably have no admiration for a steam pipe after this, as a tingling sensation will follow, as soon as any one of them sees a steam pipe.

But, listen, it is declared that the real punishment is not in the slapping, as "the young men took the medicine fine." It is the outrage to the feelings of the culprits which has the salutary effect. It is declared "they feel like two cents."

It is claimed that since the spankings were ordered, there has been a material decrease in the stealing of autos in Toronto. And those who know best say that the punishment is a good one, and is much better than long prison sentences.

Wanted to Fight.

Among the most restless and unwilling stay-at-homes during the war were the Eskimos living on the Arctic coast of Alaska.

The eagerness of the male members of the Eskimo tribes to get into the fighting in the war on Germany is one of the most interesting tales brought back from Alaska by William B. Van Valin, leader of the John Wanamaker Alaskan expedition, who has just returned to Philadelphia, after an extended sojourn in the north.

The Eskimos listened with horror to the accounts of German atrocities and the sinking of defenceless ships by submarines, Mr. Van Valin says. They grew so angry that the white men in the section were obliged to use all their powers of persuasion to convince them that their higher duty was to remain at home and attend to their families.

News of the armistice did not reach the Arctic coast until last September, and then there took place one of the most picturesque victory celebrations in the world. The natives lit fires, dressed in fancy skins, took their war weapons and danced and sang until they could hardly stand on their feet. The celebrations ended with feasts in all the Eskimo hamlets on the coast.

MEN WE MUST ADMIRE

THEY PROTECT LAW AND ORDER IN YOUNG COUNTRY.

The Royal Northwest Mounted Police Have Been Mustered Out of Service After Making a Record That Cannot Be Matched in the History of Modern Pioneer Undertakings Under Any Flag.

THE famous Northwest Mounted Police has been mustered out of service.

For half a century, "the Scarlet and Gold" of the riders of the plains had been a symbol of law and order. And the territory they policed is as vast as the United States west of the Mississippi.

On the prairies, in mountains and forest, through the ice-bound reaches of Arctic coast, they made the "long patrol," protecting the settler, succoring the weak and administering justice with relentless hand to Indian and white man, to British and alien.

The territory covered by the Royal Northwest Mounted Police has now reached a point in population where a different form of policing is called for.

The many provinces which at the inception of this famous corps were populated by hunters, trappers and Indians, have been thickly settled by farmers, merchants and professional men. And these provinces have formed their separate laws for governing, which may or may not have interfered with the methods of administering law and order as carried out by the "Scarlet and Gold."

It is now merged with the Canadian Mounted Police.

Only in the far north is any of the original work of the police left. Here in the Great Barrens, along the desolate shores of Hudson Bay and the Arctic Ocean, through the Rockies to Dawson, the "long patrols" will be needed.

But the famous corps has done its work and has lost its identity in the new national force.

The uniform has been preserved, but the old romance has departed.

For nearly two centuries the Hudson Bay Company had ruled that vast territory between Hudson Bay and the Rockies, when in 1870 the Dominion of Canada gained possession. The great company which had been guardian to the war-like Blackfeet, Assinaboines and Cree Indians, had kept in a fashion law and order.

The hardy Scotch factors had in many instances married into the tribes, and their influence was powerful and firm. Then came a change in control. It became a "no-man's land," with the great company without authority and the Dominion Government without any machinery to enforce its edicts.

It was a dangerous period. The United States Government was seeking to curb the fierce Sioux. They in turn, were making overtures to the Canadian Indians to join them. The whiskey runner was unchecked in his debauchery of the Indian. It was at this period that the Royal Northwest Mounted Police came into existence, and since then have been the most potent influence in preserving order in this great territory.

Three companies were mobilized at Winnipeg, or as it was then known, "Fort Gary." Three other companies joined them later. In all, 1,050 men restored and preserved order in a territory as large as Europe, without a railway, and peopled with nearly 100,000 Indians, rent with tribal wars and embittered against the whites by the depletion of the buffalo herds, the almost sole source of their existence.

It was then that the famous "scarlet and gold" uniform was adopted. To the Indian the "red" coat symbolized the power of the "Great White Mother," and Col. Robertson-Ross, organizer of the force, suggested the uniform in his report.

From the Red river the new force made its first long patrol. Through what was then known as the Great American Desert it struggled for 800 miles, establishing posts, and finally wintered in Fort McLeod, in the foothills of the Rockies.

From there its activities spread, until now, on the Hudson Bay, Coronation Gulf, the frozen Arctic and the desolate Yukon, are posts from which patrols keep watch.

By horse, canoe and dog train they carry the authority of the law to the Eskimo of the Arctic, the whalers of Herschell Island and the gold seekers of the Rockies. In the last fifty years they have brought the wild Indian into treaty, have made the cattle rustler or whiskey runner only a name, and in the Klondike rush, that seething mining camp of Dawson was as safe as an eastern hamlet.

During the regime of the riders, Canada's western domain passed from a country of tribal conflict through the railway stage, when our first continental was won across the prairie without provoking strife with the original owners of the country, to the period of peaceful settlement and the upbuilding of modern cities.

They won not only the confidence of the Canadian Indians, but also of the fierce Sioux, who sought refuge in Canada after the Custer massacre.

Sounds Like Fiction.

Out at Gunton, a village near Winnipeg, wolves parade the streets in broad daylight, and usually come to the station to meet incoming trains. So says Christopher Possett. Possett, who is station agent in the village, and champion wolf-killer in the district, usually slays two or three in the morning before breakfast, he told Magistrate Richardson of Winnipeg when he applied for a permit to buy a revolver.

A Critic.

A critic isn't always a person who has tried to do it and failed. Sometimes he is a person who feels too learned superior to try to do it.

Non-Conformists Gain Much Greater Importance In England Since the War

ONE of the results of the war has been a distinct gain for the Nonconformists of Britain in their relationship with the Established Church. This gain, however, is not allowed to go unchallenged by some leading churchmen, as the incident in Durham Cathedral on Sunday, February 15, when Rev. Dr. J. H. Jowett, the famous Nonconformist preacher, occupied the pulpit shows. An untoward incident occurred just as Dr. Jowett was about to announce his text. A Church of England clergyman rose and began denouncing the service with the result that a commotion was caused and the interrupter was ejected. Lord Phillimore, president of the English Church Union, had previously protested to the Archbishop of York against the innovation, describing it as a "disorderly and suicidal course," but the archbishop refrained from interfering.

REV. DR. JOWETT.

Writing in the Presbyterian Banner, Pittsburgh, recently, Mr. Calvin Dill Wilson pointed out that until Mr. Lloyd George, a Baptist, assumed office no British Premier had been a nonconformist. Disraeli, a Jew, went into the Church of England as a "necessary step towards premiership." Mr. Wilson also points out that not only is Premier Lloyd George a member of a nonconformist body, but a determined foe of establishment and has nine nonconformists in his Cabinet. This, Mr. Wilson says, "is a religious revolution" and "means that the nonconformists have at last won their way and gained equality for religious organizations not bound up with the ecclesiastical theories." Mr. Wilson recalls that it was at Mr. Lloyd George's personal request that Dr. Jowett returned from his New York Church to Westminster Chapel, London.

Another sign of the times, continues Mr. Wilson, "is that one of the most noted and scholarly men of today in the Church of England, Canon Henson, accepted an invitation to preach in the City Temple, one of the greatest pulpits of nonconformity." In England, he says, this means much and the act fits in admirably with the new spirit which is growing in England's religious world.

Chinese Lead in Thrift.

The manager of a Chicago savings bank made an examination of his accounts on racial lines and had the surprise of his life. He discovered that about the most desirable customers the bank had and the most profitable were the Chinese. Their average balance was far above the average of all accounts. In fact, the Chinese came pretty near to having the largest deposits of any patrons of the institution. Moreover, they were the easiest of all to please, made the least complaint and never in the history of the bank had there been a legal difficulty over a Chinaman's account.

This is not surprising when you come to consider it. No people have a higher sense of honor than the Chinese. They will gamble till the cows come home, and their ways are peculiar, but they are scrupulously honest. For a chinaman to die in debt to anyone means that his relatives must and will assume the obligation.

The Chinaman is a shrewd trader, but an honest one. You never see a Chinese mendicant—never. You never see a Chinese loafer. The Chinaman is not work-shy, never was and probably never will be. He is peculiar in more ways than Bret Harte had in mind, and in one particular, that of thrift, it would be well if the white man was peculiar also.

A Boy of Method.

It was the week before little Willie's birthday and he was on his knees at his bedside petitioning Divine Providence for presents in a very loud voice.

"Please send me," he shouted, "a bicycle, a tool chest, a——"

"What are you praying so loud for?" his younger brother interrupted. "God ain't deaf."

"I know he ain't," said little Willie, winking towards the next room, "but grandma is."

A. D.

"William the Conqueror," read the small boy from his history, "landed in England in 1066, A. D." "What does A.D. stand for?" inquired the teacher. The small boy pondered. "I can't exactly know" he said. "Maybe it's after dark."

A Canadian Humorist

GEORGE T. LANIGAN, one of the most brilliant writers that Canada has given to the world, was born at St. Charles, near Three Rivers, in the Province of Quebec, on December 10, 1845. He died in Philadelphia, while on the staff of the Record, on February 5, 1886. In Montreal he attended the High School, where he became the favorite pupil and lifelong friend of George Murray, the famous classical teacher and poet. At about sixteen Lanigan took up telegraphy, soon acquiring uncommon speed and accuracy, and forming a friendly rivalry with Thomas Alva Edison, he perfected a handwriting as legible as print. During the Fenian raid on Canada, in 1866, he sent important despatches to New York journals. In 1867 he established in Montreal, with Robert Graham and other friends, the Free Lance, a satirical weekly paper, largely directing its assaults upon the City Hall. From that little paper grew the Star, of which Lanigan was the first editor, contributing a serial story, never reprinted. In 1870 Lanigan removed to the United States; in 1871 he was in Chicago on the fateful night of its great fire. Without a moment's delay he sped to South Chicago, took hold of the wire at a local office, and telegraphed the New York World a story such as appeared in no other newspaper of New York. Much of his raciest work was published in its pages, including his famous Fables. These Fables, with pictures by F. C. Church, were issued as a booklet in 1878. A few days afterwards the World office was burned down, with almost the whole edition of that booklet. This accounts for its rarity: a decent copy easily commands ten dollars.

In person Lanigan was short, and in his later years inclined to stoutness, with a light fluffy beard. He was always the life and soul of every social gathering of his friends. To this day, both north and south of the Canadian frontier, his taking-off at but forty years is deeply mourned. He had barely begun to develop his rare gifts of wit and fun, satire and pathos. Two of his brothers survive: William B. Lanigan of Winnipeg, and F. R. Lanigan of Montreal.

KIND-HEARTED SHE-ELEPHANT.

A kind-hearted she-elephant, while walking through the Jungle where the Spicy Breezes blow soft o'er Ceylon's Isle, heedlessly set foot upon a partridge, which she crushed to death within a few inches of the nest containing its callow brood. "Poor little things," said the generous mammoth, "I have been a mother myself and my affection shall atone for the consequences of my neglect." So saying she sat down upon the orphaned birds.

Moral.—The above teaches us what Home is Without a Mother; also, that it is not every person who should be entrusted with the care of an orphan asylum.

But Lanigan's most famous achievement, and one which seems to be permanently enshrined among the world's finest gems of parody, was his Threnody for the Ahkoond of Swat. One day he found that the only news item on his desk was that the Akhoond of Swat had said farewell to earth. Seizing his pen, Lanigan dashed off a few verses which soon were reprinted the world over:

A THRENODY.

What what, what,
What's the news from Swat?
Sad news,
Bad news,
Comes by the cable led
Through the Indian Ocean's bed
Through the Persian Gulf, the Red Sea and the Mediterranean—he's dead,
The Ahkoond is dead!

For the Ahkoond I mourn,
Who wouldn't?
He strove to disregard the message
stern,
But he Ahkoodn't.
Dead, dead, dead;
(Sorrow Swats)
Swats wha hae wi' Ahkoond bled,
Swats whom he hath often led
Onward to a gory bed,
Or to victory,
As the case might be.
Sorrow Swats!

Tears shed,
Shed tears like water,
Your great Ahkoond is dead!
That Swats the matter!
Mourn, city of Swat,
Your great Ahkoond is not,
But laid 'mid worms to rot.
His mortal part alone, his soul was caught,
(Because he was a good Ahkooned)
Up to the bosom of Mahound,

Though earthly walls his frame surround
(Forever hallowed be the ground)
And skeptics mock the lowly mound
And say "He's now of no Ahkoond!"
His soul is in the skies—
The azure skies that bend above his loved
Metropolis of Swat.
He sees with larger, other eyes,
Athwart all earthly mysteries—
He knows what's Swat.

Let Swat bury the great Ahkoond
With a noise of mourning and lamentation!
Let Swat bury the great Ahkoond
With the noise of the mourning of the Swatish nation!

Fallen is at length
Its tower of strength,
Its sun is dimmer ere it had nooned;
Dead lies the great Ahkoond,
The great Ahkoond of Swat
Is not!

In view of a recent military order the police advised the closing of Sinn Fein headquarters and the Sinn Fein bank, Dublin.

FIRST LADY OF ALBERTA.

Mrs. Charles Stewart Came From an Ontario Village.

From a country home in the little village of Midhurst, near Barrie, Ontario, to a homestead on the Western prairie, and from thence to the provincial capital, as its First Lady—a far cry, surely, yet the experience of Mrs. Charles Stewart, wife of the former-Premier of Alberta.

The daughter of Mr. George Sneath, township clerk of Vespra, Mrs. Stewart's girlhood was spent some five miles from Barrie.

When, in 1906, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart and their children went West, it was to take up a homestead at Killam, some 70 miles east of Wetaskawin, now on the Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton branch of the C.P.R.

Life on a prairie homestead is no bed of roses. To the lack of the conveniences of the ordinary Eastern farm home, add the loneliness of the dready surroundings, the distance from medical, dental and even nursing attention, and, with all, the continuous, arduous labor of the pioneer, and even then none who has not experienced it can have any conception of its discomforts and difficulties.

It takes a brave, bright spirit, a quiet, kindly nature to emerge from such a rest mellowed and sweetened and with a clearer vision of life, a truer standard of values.

Mrs. Stewart struck the key-note when asked once in what direction her interests lay.

"Only in bringing up children," she replied, proudly. "I have had no time for anything else."

Nor does she deem her work accomplished, for when it was suggested that, now that her family is so nearly grown up she would have more time, her quiet reply: "They are still at school," was conclusive.

The loss of a promising boy last year during the flu epidemic was a very bitter drop in the cup of the new Premier and his wife, but four daughters and three sons yet remain to them.

One daughter, Mrs. Caldwell, of Killam, is in a home of her own, one at university, the others at High school in Edmonton, while two boys are still at school and the oldest, Mr. George Stewart, after homesteading near Chinook, is now manager of his father's farm at Killam.

Mrs. Stewart's motherly nature extends outside her home—as her interest in the Young Women's Christian Association testifies. Indeed, that is the only organization, with the exception of the Women's Canadian Club, in which she takes any active part. In religion she is an Anglican, attending All Saints' Pro-Cathedral.

To shine in the social world Mrs. Stewart shows no ambition. As the First Lady of Alberta she fulfils her duties with gracious dignity, but evinces no desire to extend them. Her beautiful home — the former residence of the Hon. Arthur L. Sifton—is fitted, admirably, for entertaining, and is immaculate, despite the fact that Mrs. Stewart keeps no maid, and the large reception given on the Thursday evening following the opening of the Legislature proved her a successful hostess.

In repose Mrs. Stewart's face shows signs of her strenuous life, but these are lost in its brightness and animation when she speaks. Indeed, at the recent "opening," where she was accompanied by her tall son and two "flapper" daughters, she looked more like sister than mother to the trio. She dresses unobtrusively and in good taste, and her personality is very sweet and winning, though characterized by rather more than a hint of firmness and reserve, strength tempered by kindness, good judgment and clear perception mellowed by gentleness and tact.

Our Imports.

Canadian imports from the United Kingdom in January were a record. They totalled $16,414,503, as compared with $9,882,984 in December last and $6,709,200 in January, 1919. In January our exports to the British Isles were $38,288,049.

Imports from the United States in January, however, despite the unfavorable exchange rate, showed no decline. The total value of imports was $74,539,425, as against $71,069,509 in December and $59,379,127 in January, 1919. Our exports to the United States in January were $43,577,594, as compared with $41,227,589 in the corresponding month of 1919.

For the ten months of the present fiscal year Canada's trade with Great Britain shows a favorable balance of $357,500,000, an unfavorable balance of $230,300,000 with the United States and with all countries a favorable balance amounting to $263,600,000.

Cautious.

A traveling entertainer boasted of the possession of a genuine Stradivarius violin of which he was very pround and so informed the editor of the local paper of the town in which he gave one of his concerts. In reporting the concert the newspaper made no mention of the Stradivarius violin. He made haste to make known to the editor his disappointment at his failure to mention the instrument. The reply was, "If old Stradivarius expects any advertising in the columns of this paper he will pay ten cents a line for it."

Whale In Yukon.

Angus Cameron, a prospector, who has arrived at Dawson, says he saw a whale in the Yukon river at the mouth of Sixty-Mile river, 2,000 miles inland. A whale was killed in the Yukon at the mouth of the Tanana river, 1,000 miles inland, two years ago.

He Knew.

"Yes," said the young wife, proudly, "father always gives something expensive when he makes presents."

"So I discovered when he gave you away," rejoined the young husband, feelingly.

The death has taken place at his residence at Farren of Jeremiah O'Mahoney, a well-known member of Cork County Council.

The name "Bayer" identifies the only genuine Aspirin,—the Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years and now made in Canada.

Always buy an unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" which contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Joint Pains, and Pain generally.

Tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer"

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

PARLIAMENT SETS ASIDE THIRTEEN MILLIONS FOR THE HOUSING SCHEME

Prospects are That Ontario Will Have Funds to Loan the Municipalities for This Purpose—Some Argument by Housing Commissoner Dobbin.

(By F. H. Dobbin)

Daily papers of Tuesday, noting the proposed budget sheet to be submitted to Parliament, at Ottawa, mention that among the suggested appropriations, likely to be approved, is an amount of $13,000,000 for housing purposes. This could be taken to intimate that the Dominion House will support the loans already made to the provinces for the above purposes. It is known that the Ontario Government had applied to Ottawa for a further sum, needed to complete work under progress, if indeed not new work. While the grant has to receive action of Parliament, the need is so universal that it is almost assured that the item will be passed. In any event, hope which was feebly expressed, now blossoms. What the rate of interest, a most critical thing, will be, is not stated. It may be assumed that it will be as before, for if the rate varied, especially as to work arranged for and not completed difficulties will certainly ensue. Operations undertaken on the assumtion, and implied assent that if more money were forthcoming, would be disarranged.

So far as the local situation is concerned, while it has been halted until ascertained as to the possibility of the funds being in sight, such things as can be done without immediate expense are being looked after. This in anticipation of concurrence in the scheme. And further that if the best happen we shall, at least, have broken the ice in the way of preliminary preparation.

In order to get a view of the possibilities as to probable costs in building of houses for workmen, three local builders have agreed to give of service to take the plans and specifications now in the hands of the commisson, and going as indication what such houses, as built to the plans, may cost. Based on material expenses and wages as they stand today. It is not known what the wages scales as set by the several handicrafts will be, but it is assumed that there will be advances asked. If such come then the additional cost can be added to the estimates. In addition three houses, already built within the last six or seven years will be selected, and based on present costs what it would cost to replace them. Then an applicant can be directed to go and look at the house and see what he would get for his money.

It is seen that a point of view that is prevalent contains the thought that if a house be built at present costs that it may have to be sold at a re- and if ever, will be very gradual. We may be living in tents by t hat time.

The dread of having to sell at less duction in case prices for materials and work should fall in coming years. Even if there be some reduction there will not be any distinct thud if such take place. It is human nature to have and hold. There has been no evidence that the manufacturer is looking for a reduction in wages. In fact he does not want it. Besides being disagreeable, there is the larger profit to him because, as at present his profits are framed on his working costs, and the larger these the more his profit on the turnover. His materials he can serenely charge up and pass on to the consumer. He may say he doesn't, but the evidence is there. Then mechanics will fight just as strenuously against any reduction in wages, as they have done to get wages increased, mainly to meet the increased cost of living. Will wish to retain the wage and have someone else bring down for them the cost of living. Consultation with dealers in building supplies, enquiry from along the North Shore as to lumber cutting operations, tell that 1921 costs will be higher than at present. It is the universal opinion that no reductions may be looked for, than cost at some time in the future has some foundation, but not much. If built under the Housing Commission, the man must live in it and not sell, except for very good reasons. Once in it he will likely stay. His wife will want to, at any rate, and that settles it. But the curious thing is, that men will serenely face a loss in some transaction and yet kick furiously at the possibility of a loss on a house built at the present time. Take the case of an enquirer. Lives in a rented house. Last year bought a car for $1,500.00. Expects to sell it in a couple of years. The mechanics' depreciation on that car will be at least $200.00 per year. Lucky if he gets $900.00 for it in 1921. Expends for tires, gasoline, upkeep. All he gets is some satisfaction for self and family. Has no compunction at dropping from $600.00 to $700.00 on the car but shies away from a possible loss of $600.00 on the house he lives in. So long as a man lives in his own house a few hundred dollars one way or the other does not make much difference, for he has that desirable thing called home.

Careful enquiry about the city bearing on the probability of house building brings out this point of view— that new houses will not be built in the city in any large number until rents increase. This is not written to support house owners in making increases of rent, but it is a part of the game, the relative cost of occupying a house—rental or ownership. Rents in Peterborough are from fifteen per cent to thirty per cent lower than in many other places of about equal population. The figures prove it. Despite the impression, the landlord, as we have him, is not a rapacious individual. Many people have lived in rented houses for 10 to 15 and even 20 years. There has grown up a sort of friendly convenience in all that time and the owner of the house hates to do something that will disturb that feeling, doing it from his end. So he lets it go. A substantial advance in rentals would do more to provoke housebuilding than anything else. Consider a neat domicile in a terrace of five. Plumbing, (no bath,) closet, proper sewage, six commodious rooms, brick, on a well travelled street, for $10.00 per month. People in Brantford guffawed when told so. And were boisterous in unbelief.

In the meantime those who are thinking, or feel like building, might make investigations as to lots, come and see plans, talk the thing over and reach if possible some decisions tentatively. Look into the matter thoroughly. As an example, the question was put "would a house, built at present costs, have to stand a larger assessment, and consequently increased taxes, than one adjoining which might have been put up eight years ago. A perfectly natural enquiry.

It may be replied, that the cost of a house is not the determining factor relative to the taxable assessment. Such is rather framed on its residential value as compared with its situation, adjacent property and desirability all as making its commercial value and taxable rate. It is highly probable, for it is a matter wholly in the hands of the assessor, that houses built just now will not be assessed out of proportion to those adjacent. Rather it might be that those already erected might have to stand a raise for if a given amount of money has to be raised for municipal purposes it must come from a stated rate on a given amount of property. The lower the rate the higher the assessment. With a high rate there may be a lower, or stationary assessment. Any way, the first year's taxes, while under construction, and previous to settled occupancy will not be serious.

It is hoped that in a short time we shall see what we shall see. If the housing scheme finds favor at Ottawa, and Toronto approve, the money may be forthcoming and operations can commence. We may as well face the proposition and say it is all a matter of expediency. We need houses, badly. If not built under the operation of the Commission, who will build? And if not, what rent? What do you suggest to fill the gap?

The Telephone Situation

The World At The Telephone

The demands upon the telephone nowadays are enormous. Everybody telephones. As a result the complexities and perplexities of the business were never so pressing.

Wherever you turn, especially in the larger cities of this continent, telephone men are wrestling with the greatest difficulties they have ever faced.

Very heavy demands for new connections have come right atop of world-wide shortage of vital material.

The heaviest traffic load in the history of the business have come when facilities were lacking because of the scarcity of material, and when labor unrest and unsettlement were most acute.

Expanding business in all lines means insistent demand for extensions of telephone facilities. The cumulative requirements of a fast growing community like ours tax our resources to the limit!

We were never trying harder than we are to-day to make our facilities and service meet the demands of a difficult situation.

GIVE STOMACH WHAT IT NEEDS

The Alkaline Effect of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Usually Corrects the Stomach Faults That Provoke Attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia.

To sit back after a good meal and know there is not going to be sour risings, gas, drowsiness, and discomfort is the logical result of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets immediately after eating. Most people believe they can trace each attack of indigestion to the something they ate and can still "taste." And it surprises them, invariably, to note how quickly relief comes after using one or two of these tablets. Whether it is highly seasoned food, rich pastry, the heavy hearty foods or some one particular offender, the relief comes just the same. Those who are susceptible to attacks of indigestion or dyspepsia should try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets as they supply the stomach with an alkaline effect just as it does naturally when it is working in a perfectly healthy condition.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are so widely known and used that you can get them in any drug store in the United States and Canada at 50 cents a box.

What causes Indigestion

An excess of acid in the stomach sours the food and starts fermentation. Distressing gases form. Your meals don't digest but lay like lumps of lead. Then you have heartburn, flatulence, fullness, belching, headache, and real misery in the stomach and intestines.

A few tablets of "Pape's Diapepsin" bring relief almost as soon as they reach the stomach. "Pape's Diapepsin" costs little at drug stores

STRATFORD TAXI RATE OF 40 CENTS APPROVED

Stratford, March 24.— The Police Commision decided that the 40-cent taxicab rate is the fairest to the public and in general will insist on its being adhered to. That is, 40 cents for single passenger, and 25 cents each for two or more passengers.

The taximent have been operating on a zone system since the strike, waiting untol the Commissaion met, and as this was the schedule they objected to there is every probability of further trouble.

The matter of police salaires was next dealt with, when salary increases were granted. Patrolmen were given $15 a month, or $180 a year, and the sergeants and detectives $100. The latter objected to this, particularly on the ground that the sergeants' work the 24 hours between them, while the patrolmen work only nine hours. The wages were today equalized, the sergeants getting the $180 a year increase.

ANNUAL MEETING CENTRAL ONTARIO BASEBALL LEAGUE IN SESSION TODAY

Delegates Meet in Empress Hotel—President Sandy Lockington of Port Hope Delivers Interesting Address.

The annual meeting of the Central Ontario Amateur Baseball League opened its session at the Empress Hotel at 2.30 this afternoon with President Sam Lockington, of Port Hope, in the chair. The representatives present are;

Peterborough—Messrs. Ward Paterson, Jake Solomon, Gordon Matthews and C. C. McLean.

Cobourg—Messrs. Mulholland and A. Kimmel.

Oshawa—E. Parsons and J. Nott.

Lindsay—James Anderson and Secretary M. J. Dedman.

Port Hope—S. Lockington (president and Messrs. Hills and Bradburn.

Messrs. W. J. Smith, president of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union, of Toronto, and Mr. Robbins, president of the O.B.A.A., Hamilton, will arrive in the city on the evening train and it is expected that the both will be present for the evening session. The greater part of the afternoon session was taken up with the president's opening address, which is as follows:

The President's Address.

To the Officers of the League and Representatives of Teams:

Gentlemen,—I consider it a great honor to be privileged today to submit the president's first annual report of the Central Ontario League. On April 2nd, 1919, a few optimistic baseball enthusiasts, led by Mr. M. J. Dedman, of Lindsay, and Mr. Jake Solomon, of Peterborough, met at the Queen's Hotel, Port Hope, to orgaize the Cetral Ontario League. These two leaders were of the opinion that there was just as good baseball material in this section as in any other part of the Province, and that the good old game of baseball should be revived. Officers were elected, a schedule arranged and all will agree that 1919 was the most successful ball season ever experienced in this midland district, also that the real champion ball players are raised in this section.

After a neck and neck race in the Central League, Belleville emerged with the championship, and then continued the good work in the playoff with the O.B.A.A. teams, bringing the Provincial championship home. I am sure that I voice the sentiments of every official of the league when I extend the heartiest congratulations to the boys from the Bay of Quinte town. They threw every ounce of their energy into the game, and with the invincible Goyer and his backstop Mills they brought honor to the town they represented and also to the league of which they were members. We are indeed proud of our Belleville team, and without detracting one iota from their splendid achievement I might add just here that had Belleville been unable to accomplish the undertaking we had other teams in the league which could have done so. There was little to choose between the Belleville and Peterborough teams, and I am satisfied that had Peterborough won the championship of the Central League they would also have carried off the Provincial honors. This indeed speaks well for our league—two teams in a league just in its infancy strong enough to win the championship of Ontario.

It has been said that "opposition is the life of trade," but some person revived this late "co-operation is the life of trade." And co-operation in a great degree was responsible for the success of our league. Every officer, manager and player had the interest of the league at heart and never lost a single opportunity to boost. Executive meetings were held in Port Hope, Lindsay and Peterborough and every member was present. Not a single delegate raised the question of expenses; the meetings were necessary for the success of the league and the delegates cheerfully made the sacrifice.

As you all recall, Belleville and Peterborough finished a tie and home-and-home games were ordered to decide the winner. Naturally quite a rivalry sprang up but who was Belleville's most enthusiastic supporter when they entered the race for the Provincial championship? I remember quite well when I visited Belleville to witness the Belleville-Toronto game and long before I could see him I recognized the voice of my good friend, Jake Solomon. He was occupying a conspicuous place on the Belleville bench and giving the team very assistance. That is the spirit which spells success and I trust the same spirit will be more and more instilled in the Central League teams of 1920.

Of course it is always customary at the annual meeting to congratulate the victors. I, however, wish to deviate slightly from the old-time honored rule and offer a little congratulatory message to the team which held the cellar position—Cobourg. Better to have played and lost than never to have played at all. That was Cobourg's motto, and notwithstanding the fact that they did not win a single game they completed their schedule and fought just as hard for the final game as they did for the opening one on May 24th. You will all be pleased to learn that they finished with a nice surplus in the bank.

Praise for Alex. Kay.

The thanks of the league are due to the umpires who so faithfully and impartially performed their arduous duties. It may seem unfair to particularize but I, as the president of the league, would feel that I war remiss in my duty if I did not refer to the splendid work of Mr. Alex. Kay, of Peterborough. Mr. Kay's rulings were given with such precision that there was never a chance to doubt and the result was that wrangling and scrapping, which in the past spoiled many a contest, were entirely eliminated. Mr. Kay's ability was recognized when he was called to Toronto to officiate at the final games in the City League. To Mr. Kay and all others who so kindly assisted, the league extends its deep appreciation.

To the press of the dirtrict we are much indebted. The Lindsay Warder and Post, the Peterborough Examiner and Review, the Oshawa Reformer, the Belleville Ontario and Intelligencer, the Cobourg Star World and Post and the Port Hope Guide gave freely of their space and much of the success we have attained is due to the excellent advertising and boosting of these journals. The league appreciated this kindness and I trust that the teams of the league will always extend every courtesy to the newspaper men.

In conclusion let me suggest that in the selection of your officers today the greatest care be exercised. Forget all personal feelings and select the men whom you know will discharge the duties fairly and fearlessly. I am not a candidate for office but if at any time I can be of assistance I assure you it will always be a please. With my best wishes to the new officers and also for a bright and successful season for the league.

DOUBLE BEAUTY OF YOUR HAIR

"Danderine" creates mass of thick, gleamy waves

In a few moments you can transform your plain, dull, flat hair. You can have it abundant, soft, glossy and full of life. Just get at any drug or toilet counter a small bottle of "Danderine" for a few cents. Then moisten a soft cloth with the "Danderine" and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Instantly, yes, immediately, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will be a mass, so soft, lustrous and so easy to do up. All dust, dirt and excessive oil is removed.

Let Danderine put more life, color, vigor, and brightness in your hair. This stimulating tonic will freshen your scalp, check dandruff and falling hair and help your hair to grow long, thick, strong and beautiful.

'TWILL BE EASY

A certain judge ruled the other day that a wife had the right to rifle her husband's pockets if he did not give her enough money to run the house. No wonder Mrs. Catt says women will soon control 51 per cent. of the country's wealth.

INCONSISTENT

It is rather amusing that the United States should protest against the Turkish peace treaty when that country never was at war with Turkey. And yet some of the senators are saying that they have no desire to have their country interfere in European affairs.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder troubles you.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

CANADIAN NAVAL AFFAIRS DISCUSSED IN BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS

London, March 24.—In the House of Commons today, replying to the question whether it was true that the Canadian authorities had decided to close the two dockyards at Halifax and Esquimalt and had declined the offer of two warships from the British Admiralty as a result of the report of Admiral Jellicoe, the First Lord of the Admiralty said he had no information that Canada had declined the offer of the warships. On the contrary, his impression was that Canada had practiolly ocepted the offer. He did not know that dockyards had been closed, but he would make an inquiry. He added that Admiral Jellicoe's services on his recent tour had been of immense value and he hoped that great good would accrue to the Empire in the promotion of increased co-operation between Great Britain and the Dominion.

The Minister of War assured a questioner that there was no intention of abolishing the Kilt in Scottish regiments. He also said that a committee was arranging for an issue of battle name clasps for about ten outstanding engagements in France and two or three in other theatres of war. There would be between six and seven million medals, and their issue would take three or four years.

Piling More Than 400 Years Old.

Many of the piles in use in Amsterdam are 300 or 400 years old. That part which is not in the ground in salt water is often bored by a pileworm near the surface, but it is preserved by driving in nails with very large heads, so as to give the pile an iron coating. This coating is then transformed by the water into a layer of rust, which protects the wood from the pile-worm. This process must be repeated every 15 years.

The Honor Code.

Those of us who would have our days glide by peacefully should not expect too much at the hands of others. This is a strenuous age—indeed, almost every minute of every hour is all too crowded for the average person. There is but one honor code to go by—play fair. The girl or woman who does so will have absolutely no regrets, and will prove a real inspiration to others around her.—New York Evening Telegram.

Unlike Mayflower Pilgrims.

In 1731, on the 27th of September, a gang of 130 felons were taken from Newgate prison and put aboard ship to be transported to America to colonize the country. Later in the century England changed the destination of her transported criminals to Botany bay and favored America with shiploads of destitute people just discharged from the poorhouses.

Place for Small Fruit.

In gardens where the available land is limited in extent, currants and gooseberries may well be planted among the tree fruits and left there permanently. The shade of the trees protect the fruits from sun scald, and the foliage is usually healthier in such locations than when grown where it is freely exposed to the sun.—Agricultural Department.

HASTINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

Hastings, March 24. — The St. Patrick's social held in the basement of the Methodist Church Wednesday evening was a grand success. The decorations were in green and the table decorations in harmony with the occasion. The tables were laden with rich dainties, capable of suiting the most fastidious, and the guests were waited on by a bevy of ladies who did everything possible to please.

After ample justice had been done to the tasty viands, a miscellaneous program was rendered, which was most entertaining. Rev. Mr. Walsh was called to the chair, and after a short address called the different numbers. These consisted of selections by the choir, solo with piano and violin accompaniment by Miss Jessie Wilcox; a reading by Mrs. (Rev.) Walsh, also by Miss Bertha McConnell, and two orchestra selections.

Altogether the result of the evening's entertainment was highly satisfactory. The proceeds are in aid of the Ladies' Aid and the choir.

The following officers were elected in the local branch of the W. O. W., which was recently organized:

Council Commander—Robt. Simpson.
Lieutenant—Wm. Killenbeck.
Banker—Robt. Dainerd.
Clerk—Fred Dodd.
Escort—Harry Scriver.
Watchman—Earl Dainerd.
Guard—Wesley Dainerd.

Archdeacon Davidson of Peterborough was in town during the week assisting in the services in connection with the unveiling of the memorial tablet which has been erected in the Anglican Church in honor of the boys who gave their lives in the recent war. The tablet is of polished bronze in an oak frame. The crossed Union Jack and naval flags, surmounted by a cross, are enamelled in colors, and the effect is very pleasing.

Rev. Father Bretherton was "at home" to the members of his congregation on Wednesday evening. The town hall was used for the occasion and a large gathering assembled to enjoy the evening. The program consisted of music and games, and all present seemed to enjoy themselves.

The W. M. S. of the Methodist Church held their regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon in the parsonage. A good program was given by the members, assisted by Miss M. Walsh, of Orono, who gave a most interesting talk on her work in the McDougall Orphanage. At the close of the program a dainty lunch was served and much enjoyed.

Mrs. Harold Wilson spent Thursday in Peterborough.

Miss Mary Spooner of town is receiving the congratulations of her friends on winning the silver medal of the lower room of the Campbellford High school for the best essay and composition on the recent Victory Loan.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Warner have returned from their honeymoon trip and have taken up residence in their new home in Asphodel. Mr. and Mrs. Warner have a host of friends who join in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

All are sorry to learn of the serious illness of Mr. Harry Lamey of Percy, who is suffering from an attack of diphtheria. Latest reports are that he is slightly improved.

Miss Annie Lamey of Toronto is home for a few days.

Some of our citizens drove to Norwood on Friday evening to take in the concert in connection with the High school. A good time is reported.

A wedding of interest locally was solemnized on Wednesday last when Miss Ruby Comstock of Westwood became the bride of Mr. Alex. Fleming of Trenton. The bride and groom are well known here, and their many friends extent heartiest congratulations and best wishes for a prosperous future. Mr. Fleming is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fleming, of Hastings.

Mr. Alex. Weir, who has been in the employ of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, has been transferred to Colborne and left during the week for his new appointment.

Mr. and Mrs. Coyle of Colborne are visiting their daughter, Mrs. E. J. Laing.

Dr. Marshall of Peterborough was in town on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor German were in Peterborough on Wednesday.

Little Miss Georgie Beavis, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Beavis, has been in the hospital in Peterborough for a few days undergoing treatment for an infection of the eye.

Messrs. Elton Brugess and Eric Finlay of Norwood attended the St. Patrick's social here on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. J. G. Staples returned Saturday to her home in Lindsay after a few weeks' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Tate.

Miss Flossie Stewart took a trip to Peterorough on Thursday.

The spring freshets are causing considerable inconvenience in some parts of town. Several cellars are flooded to a great depth and some parts of the sidewalks are rendered impassable by the overflow of water.

CANADIAN GENERAL HAD PROSPEROUS YEAR

GROSS PROFIT FOR 1919 EXCEED MILLION AND HALF DOLLARS

That the Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, has successfully met the difficulties arising in the critical period dating from the signing of the armistice down to the present time was indicated in the report that was presented to the shareholders at the annual meeting held in Toronto yesterday, but the effect of these trying times was also apparent in the figures submitted. The business of the company, in the early months of 1919, were conducted without profit, but in the later months a marked improvement was discernible, and these signs of betterment are still in evidence.

The gross profits for the year ended December 31, 1919, were $1,617,989.32, or a decrease of $396 007.32 and the net profits $1,093,320.81, a decrease of $343,162 86. The surplus for the year showed a decrease of $343.162.86 and stands at $313,320.81 The sum of $400,000 was transferred to the reserve, which now totals $5,000.000. The company's total surplus is now $5,436,097.48, or an increase of $313,320.81 over a year ago, the surplus in question being equal to 54.36 per cent. of the par value of the company's shares. both common and preferred.

Providing for Contingencies

During past years very large sums have been set aside from year to year from surplus profits with the object of creating as quickly as was possible, consistent with a fair return to the shareholders, a reserve for depreciation of plant and machinery of such proportions as would provide against all contingencies. This reserve for depreciation has now reached the sum of $4.700,466.09, which is equivalent to 81 per cent of the book value of the company's machinery tools, patterns and drawings. which are carried on the books at $5,644,397.71.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

FARMERS PREDICTING AN EARLY SPRING

SNOW AND ICE DISAPPEAR AND LAND IS DRYING UP.

Unless all signs fail, we are in for one of the earliest springs in a long time, and yesterday's glorious sunshine and warm air worked a marvelous change in the country districts. City people who conjure up visions of snow and ice covered fields will be agreeably surprised if they take a run out ten or fifteen miles. Practically all the snow and ice have disappeared, and the plowed lands and meadow fields are beginning to dry up. All the rivers and streams are beginning to run low, and the wheat lands are green and luxuriant, and for the first time since before Christmas exposed.

Farmers are figuring out now that with a continuance of this weather (which is improbable) April 1 will see seeding on in the high lands. The country roads are fairly passable and getting better every day. April 1 is moving day in the country, but wherever possible, renters are taking time by the forelock and getting through with this ordeal ahead of time.

Never in the history of the province has there been such selling of farms and retiring from active life as this year, city, men, buoyed up with hope and spare cash, taking up the burden.

RESULT OF INTERESTING DEBATE HELD IN OMEMEE HIGH SCHOOL

Omemee, March 24:— The work of the art class of the Omemee High School, on the unique posters, which were placed in the main store windows, bidding the public welcome to the debate and presentation of Victory Loan medals, which was held in the school last Friday afternoon, won favorable comment on all sides.

The afternoon proved to be a stormy one, yet many ventured forth and were glad for the venture. The debate proved a real treat. The negative side were the winners. The program under the chairmanship of Rev. Mr. Scott was as follows:

Recitation— Lillian Graham.

Debate: "Resolved that the Senate Must be Retainer in the Canadian Government."

Speakers— Affirmative: Leader, Doris Sandy, time, 10 minutes; second, Austen Grandy, time 7 minutes

Negative—Leader, Percy Windrim, time 10 minutes; second, Marion Rea, 7 minutes.

Leader of affirmative, Doris Sandy 3 minutes to reply.

Chairman's Address.

Presentaion of medals and three book prizes by Mr. Mackie.

As the fortunate students went forward to receive their medals, the scholars sang a parody on a popular song to suit each recipient.

From Middle School— 1st. prize Miss Ruth Corneil; tune "Flow Gently Sweet Afton."

Miss Ruth is a blonde and a happy one, too,
Her hair it is curly, her eyes they are blue,
You see her sweet smile wherever she goes,
For she's a good fellow, why everyone knows.

Second Prize— Maurine Stillman; tune. "Should old Acquaintance be Forgot."

Maurine she is pretty girl
Her skin is white as snow
And everyone admires her,
Wherever she may go.
Her hair is fair, her eyes are blue,
And she's a sport right through,
And everyone is glad to know
That she has got the medal, too.

Lower School— First Prize. Tom Cassidy.

For Thomas has done his bit
And came back without a hit;
We welcome him in our midst a hero boy;
We congratulate him too,
In a most delightful way,
On winning the prize for our school.

Second Prize—Vera Lowe.

The river flowed gently as smooth as a plank
Beneath the shade two sat on a bank
Vera's mother did catch her
Oh how she did run.
I was hid in a tree so saw all the fun.

Book Prizes— Middle School: Ernest Anderson tune "Blowing Bubbles"

We're forever asking Ernest
If he'll come and skate tonight
He smiles so brigh
Says he may alright
Then we all shout with all our might
For Ernest is always smiling
And has such lovely hair
All the girls love their Ernest
For Ernest he's all there.

John Carrol: tune "Over There."

Johnny get your book. get your, get your book,
Learn it like a rook, like a rook, like a rook,
Hold your head. oh! so high,
Like true school boys, do or die;
Don't you delay, hurry up, right away,
Make your daddy glad to have had such a lad;
Tell your teacher not to fret,
She'll be proud of Johnny yet.
Amen.

Marjorie Adams:

Marjorie was a lovely girl, lovely girl, lovely girl,
Marjorie was a lovely girl and once she won a prize.
And of you doubt her happiness, happiness, happiness,
And if you doubt her happiness,
Just look into her eyes

QUESTION OF BAND

To Ald. Whitehouse, Mr. Gliddon, replied that all responsibility for the 57th. Band refusing a $250 grant last year must be shouldered by the band The union had nothing to do with that rejection, but the band felt it quite a knock to be put on the same level with organizations not capable of competing with it.

Col. Clegg: "The band last year had no financial support from the Government or from any other source and it was hardly fair to ask them to give concerts at $15 a night. The Veterans' band, he declared, has behind it the Veterans' local association.

Mr. Gliddon said in evidence of the 57th's past record and present promise for efficiency, that Dr. Clarke had offered to engage this band for Chatauqua programs. As at present organized, Mr. Gliddon declared the 57th, a nucleus for the best possible results. Then this band has been engaged by the Toronto Exhibition Board the past twenty years, and it had filled a week's engagement at Scarborough Beach Toronto. He did not see why the bands could not get together in agreement for open air concerts.

Not Sectarian

Adjutant Buntin appealed to any man of common sense to admit that the Salvation Army, which serves the public in sixty-six different countries and in forty-two different languages, cannot be classed as sectarian.

The adjutant also took strong exception to the attitude of Secretary Benson of the Musicians' Union in writing over his head to the Salvation Army Commissioner that the Temple Band is filling engagements cheaper than members of the union can play for, in consequence of which they get most of the engagements. The speaker contended that jealousy had inspired such action. "We can play the music, the Adjutant declared, and besides, some of the best members of the 57th and Veterans' bands are ex-members of the Salvation Army band.

The Adjutant here said the Salvation Army Band is under the control of the local Salvation Army Commander and there are no paid men. Music has been cheerfully furnished local church functions without at any time one cent of charge. "We stand," he said, "for righteousness and truth, and depend on help from people of all denominations— Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Methodist Church of England. What money is contributed to or granted for the Salvation Army Band, does not go to paying professionals, but toward furnishing and maintaining instruments. We buy our own music, the men furnish their own uniforms Adjutant Buntin extolled Salvation Army bandsmen as second to none in the world for making great sacrifices, and explained that their idea of playing in public was not to demonstrate how well they can play, but to induce, by band efforts and singing, people indifferent to church attendance to unite in public worship

TO ISSUE NO MORE DIRECT LOANS FOR HOUSING SCHEME

BUT LEGISLATURE AGREES TO GUARANTEE THE LOANS OF MUNICIPALITIES

Toronto, March 24. — Municipalities will get no more direct loans from the Ontario Government for house building. In future they may issue their own bonds for that purpose, and the Government will guarantee them. New legislation covering these two points was introduced in the Legislature yesterday afternoon by Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary.

Mr. Nixon informed the House that ten days ago word was received from the Dominion Government that there would be no further loans to the provincial authorities for housing purposes. In view of this, his amendment was to wind up the work under the present Act at the end of this year.

The amendment to the Municipal Act allows municipalities to issue their own bonds, which will be guaranteed by the Government. The money raised in such is way will then be expended for housing. It has been known for some time that the policy would be changed, in view of the fact that the Dominion was closing down on the grants, but until yesterday the extent of the change was not known. Toronto has been the only municipality in Ontario to have its own housing program, but the bonds, of course, were not guaranteed by the province.

During the year 70 municipalities, in Ontario were carrying on active work under the Act. For the completion of the work now under way there is a revised list of amounts which may be loaned. Following are the loans available under the old Act and under "The Municipal Housing Act of 1920":

Amounts loaned under the Ontario Housing Act, 1919—House of frame construction, $3000; brick veneer, $3000; solid construction, $4000.

In the case of brick veneer construction, if the cost of the land is included, $3600 may be loaned. In the case of solid construction, $4500 is obtainable.

Amendments to Ontario Housing Act—House of frame construction, $3200; house of brick veneer construction, $3800; house of solid construction, $4000.

If the cost of the land is included in the case of frame construction, $3500 may be loaned. If the cost of land is included in the brick veneer type, $4200 is obtainable. If the cost of land is included in the type of solid constuction, $4600 may be had.

Amounts of loans under limitations of "The Municipal Housing Act 1920"—House of frame construction $3500; house of brick veneer construction, $4000; house of solid construction, $4600.

If the cost of the land is to be includedd then $4100 is obtainable for frame, 34600 for brick veneer and $5100 for solid construction.

THE HOBO COLLEGE IN CHICAGO IS CLOSED

BARLEYCORN'S CHIEF MOURNERS CHANGE WITH TIMES AND ALL DISAPPEAR

Chicago, March 24.—John Barleycorn's chief mourner has followed him to the grave. The "Hobo" in Chicago is no more.

"Jungle Buzzard," "Gay Cat," "Bar Fly" and "Ganly sucer" have deserted the West Madison street "flops" that were once their habitat. They have established themselves in lodgings more suitable to their improved conditions. The Hobo College in West Madison street, the only educational institution of its kind in the world, has closed its doors for lack of students. The day has gone when a rumsoaked intellectual could be lured to lean on the lopsided curriculum by a cup of coffee and a sandwich. "Mike" Walsh, president and organizer of the college, is authority for the statement that the bo vanished with booze.

"I have been through the slave market," across the river," he said. "I spent a long time there looking for recruits for the college. But times are changed. Where formerly a thousand men would come on a promise of hot coffee and rolls, we weren't able to get five a day. We had to quit.

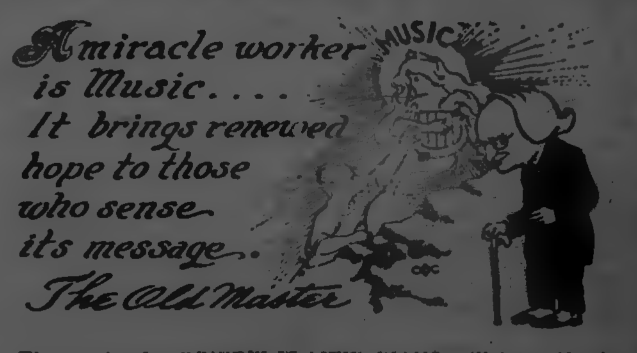
"The men have become rehabilitated and have made better citizens of themselves. They are able to see and think for themselves, and the ranting Red isn't having the easy time with them that he once had."

FOR A LONG LIFE

(Ottawa Journal.)

Since long before the day of Ponce De Leon people have been searching for the secret of extended youth. Non of those who have searched hav found it, but a good many wise men have found it without searching. They didn't travel beyond the sphere or their normal life to find it, either, and, it is open to nearly every one who is capable of grasping it.

The one thing, apart from sane and healthy living, that has kept men young in body in spirit while they have grown old in years in sustained interest in agreeable employment.



A miracle worker is Music.... It brings renewed hope to those who sense its message.

"DANCING ARTISTS" AT THE GRAND TONIGHT

PINKY AND ALOYSIUS, CELEBRATED PAIR, WILL BE SEEN IN "FLO-FLO."

If there is anything more obvious than the stove polish on a detective's shoes it is the dancing ability of Pinky and Aloysius, the self-styled Sherlock Holmes and Watson of John Cort's "war bride" musical comedy offering, "Flo-Flo," which the producer will bring to the Grand tonight.

"Flo-Flo" shortly ago completed a solid year's run at the Cort Theatre, New York City, and comes to this city following successful engagements in Boston and Chicago.

The eccentric dancing team with its trick hats and its theft of the bride's trousseau provides some of the brightest moments of the sparkling Cort product, not overlooking, of course, the show's "perfect thirty-six" comedy chorus, its splendid cast, effective scenery, melodious lyrics, snappy lines and riotous fun. Those who assist in making the comedy a success are Hazel Alger, W. J. McCarthy, Carl George, Eddie Lloyd, Augustus Buell, Rhea Norton, Elinore McCune, Marie Dantes, Robert Dale, Frank Masters, Frank Hodgins and other well known artists, the "Perfect Thirty-Six" chorus and lastly the augmented "Flo-Flo" orchestra.

THE FARCE COMEDY THAT MADE AUTHORS FAMOUS

"NIGHTIE NIGHT" WAS JOINT WORK OF A PAIR OF PLAY WRITERS

Adolph Klauber has made a sensational debut as producing manager with the farce comedy, "Nightie Night," by Martha M. Stanley and Adelaide Matthews, after a long and successful run at the Princess Theatre in New York.

When Mr. Klauber gave up his dramatic editorship in New York and entered theatrical life he knew that the authors of "Nightie Night" would some day amuse or amaze the country. He knew they were on their way to success. But he had no idea that their first accepted play would be the first production and that all three would land in the spotlight together with the biggest farce comedy hit scored in New York since another gifted dramatic authoress penned "Baby Mine." But the only resemblance "Nightie Night" bears to "Baby Mine" is that it sends everyone home tired of laughing. The riskiest thing in this new comedy sensation is a pretty suit of pink pyjamas sported by a [illegible] young matron who quite accidentally takes possession of an apartment occupied by an old friend [illegible], a nice young man married [illegible] charming but monumentally jealous girl to whom strange pink pyjamas, especially when they are filled by a charmer of Diana-like figure, are as things that make the world turn upside down. But this discovery is nothing to what happened when the inflammable husband of the pink pyjama lady drops in to say good evening. Yet, it being a thoroughly innocent bit of adventure from first to last, the pink pyjamas are not to be taken seriously. It was only because the Diana-like lady had to send her one and only suit to be cleansed that they bobbed up at all.

Mr. Klauber, associated with the Selwyns, under whose personal direction "Nightie Night" was produced, are bringing from New York the original Princess Theatre cast, headed by Francis Byrne, whose impersonation of the role of the virtuous but suspected husband has won a high place for him among the expert present-day comedians. Dorothy Mortimer, Malcolm Duncan, Marie Chambers, Suzanne Willis, Ruby Craven, Grant Mills, Cyril Raymond and other clever farceurs are prominent in the hilarity.

Quack doctors are patient workers.

Old clothes are about the only bad habits some women have.

Some men know more, some less, and some not even so much.

PRACTICAL JOKER'S UNWILLING VICTIM

VIVIAN MARTIN IS MADE BUTT OF HER GAY OLD RELATIVE

Was ever an engaged pair without at least one practical joking relative—generally male—who never loses an opportunity to "kid" the lovers and play all sorts of tricks on them? Such a character is played by jovial Bobbie Bolder in Vivian Martin's new Paramount-Artcraft picture, "His Official Fiancee," which the Grand Theatre has booked for Thursday and Friday. The fact that Monica Trant, played by Miss Martin, and her supposedly cold-blooded employer are not really engaged, but merely posing as such for business reasons makes Bobbie's "rough stuff" and intimate allusions to their future all the more embarrassing—and funnier than ever to the audience.

This is said to be only one of the intensely amusing situations in this screen comedy, which advances a new idea in laugh-making. A good cast helps dainty Miss Martin, including Forrest Stanley, as leading man; Vera Sisson, Mollie McConnell, Hugh Huntley and James Neill. The picture was directed by Robert G. Vignola, who has handled most of the recent Martin productions.

Lighthouse That Fell.

There have been three or four Eddystone lighthouses. Henry Winstanley built one that was criticized by engineers as being unsafe. "It will stand the storm," he replied, "and I hope I may be in it when the first and worst gale sweeps down the coast." On the night of the first fierce equinoctial tempest the builder and some workmen went into the lighthouse. Next morning when the people along the shore looked for the lighthouse it was gone. The awful storm had swept everything away and the men had perished.—Boston Post.

Paul Verlaine.

Passion, wisdom, creative genius, the power of mystery or color, it has been wisely said, are allotted in the hour of birth and can be neither assimilated nor learned. For good and evil—for he was a mixture of evil and good—Verlaine possessed all these qualities. Verlaine is always faithful to himself, to the two sides of himself, and he has thus succeeded in rendering as no one ever has before, the whole home duplex, the eternal conflict of humanity.—Arthur Symons.

Something to Be Proud Of.

Some folks wipe the drops of sweat off their faces as if they were really ashamed of them. Man alive, drops of sweat that come from good, honest work are finer than any gems that ever sparkled in the crown of a king. And their greatest beauty is that they make the whole world happier and better. This cannot always be said of the stars on the monarch's brow.—Exchange.

Value of Salt.

You can clean your teeth with it, keep your eyes bright and strong by daily salt baths, gargle with salt water to strengthen your throat, throw a handful of common salt into your bath for toning up the system generally, and bathe your feet in salt water to prevent chilblains.—London Tit-Bits.

Humility.

The only true independence is in humility. . . . But humility is not the virtue of a fool; since it is not consequent upon any comparison between ourselves and others, but between what we are and what we ought to be.—Washington Allston.

Word of Many Meanings.

What does not that word cheerfulness imply? It means a contented spirit; it means a pure heart; it means a kind and loving disposition; it means humility and charity; it means a generous appreciation of others, and a modest opinion of self.—Thackeray.

ANIMAL CAMOUFLAGE.

Stripes, Spots and Blotches Noticed in Zoo.

Visitors to the Zoological Gardens are being more attracted to the reptile house in these days. There is no better place to study the vagaries of pattern and color presented by animals, or for speculation on their possible utility. At the present time there are three odd instances of color in the reptile house worth special attention. Reptiles pass a great part of their lives in quiescence, and most of them appear to be adapted for relative invisibility. The patterns they display are usually disruptive or outline breaking, with the effect that the attention is distracted from the natural shape of the body and directed to stripes or spots or blotches which suggest anything except the presence of a living creature. The colors employed are usually similar to those of the habitual natural surroundings.

First of the three examples referred to is that of the Arizona heloderms, plump and repulsive lizards from the desert regions of Western North America. There are several examples in the now well-lighted cases along the west wall of the house. Their color is an orange pink, conspicuous and very ugly, and unlike that of any of the tints of their ordinary surroundings. It would seem as if it would attract attention even from a distance. These lizards are definitely poisonous, their bite being dangerous and sometimes fatal to human beings.

The second instance is that of two white axolotls, which have been recently acquired by the society and are exhibited in a tank alongside the case containing a single example of the black and spotted adult salamanders, into which one of their black relations were successfully transformed. These white axolotls are nearly complete albinos. Their eyes are black, and there is a trace of pigment along the back, but the body generally is pure white, and the red blood shows through the transparent skin of the gills behind the neck. As yet there is no explanation of the physiological cause of the failure to form pigment. It occurs not only in man, but in nearly every kind of animal, and there is some evidence to show that the absence of pigment is one of the characters transmitted on Mendelian principles. In ordinary nature, albinos do not seem to thrive; probably their conspicuousness hands them over to enemies, for there is no reason to suppose that they are less hardy than normal animals.

The third curiosity is a blue tree-frog, exhibited in one of the cases in the entrance lobby. It was caught near Monte Carlo and is a variety which is occasionally found of the common green tree-frog of South Europe. Normal tree-frogs are bright green, and are well concealed because their tint agrees with the color of the blades of the tall bulrushes which are there favorite haunt. The green color is not due to a pigment, but to a combination of pigments and "interference." The skin contains a true yellow pigment found in droplets in the cells, but there is also a clear layer with the reflected light so that in the normal optical property of breaking up the case the color appears green, in the abnormal case blue. The example now at the gardens is of a less brilliant turquoise than one presented by Sir Hugo de Bathe a few years ago, but it differs so much from the normal that it might be set down as a different species.—London Times.

Reading the Bible Aloud.

It is strange, says the London Spectator, that the reading of the Bible aloud in an acceptable manner should present—apparently—almost insuperable difficulties. It is written in the finest English of the finest period. It concerns subjects of universal and undying interest. It is endeared to every listener by tradition and recollection. But the evidence proves it hard to read well. Men specially interested in philosophy and religion, specially trained in Hebrew and Greek literature, specially anxious to bring the truths of Scripture home to their audience, read it for the most part in abominable fashion.

We cannot insult them by supposing their weekly task an easy one. We cannot, on the other hand, deny that the Old and New Testaments offer great scope for fine reading. The task of the curate at the lectern is like the task of the executant before the piano. The one has great literature before him; the other great music. The audience waits for his interpretation. As a rule, with many and marked exceptions, the curate runs through his work in such a mechanical and uninterested manner as would empty a concert hall if imitated by his brother artist. He reads heroic passages as though they were dull, meditative passages of the highest inspiration as though they were parish notices, arguments as cut-and-dried snippets of dogmatism, and shrewd proverbs as sacred poetry.

A Refusal.

When you do not intend to pay a bill there is nothing like being decisive in your refusal. The other day a bookseller in Toronto had an "account rendered" returned to him with the following reply scrawled across the billhead: "Dear Sir,—I never ordered this beastly book. If I did, you didn't send it. If you sent it, I never got it. If I got it, I paid for it. If I didn't, I won't. Now go and hang yourself, you fathead.—Yours very respectfully, John Jones."

He Took Courses.

Jones developed the "course" habit. First he learned to be a "convincing talker," and was arrested as a confidence man; next, purchased "The Secret of Making People Adore You," and lost all his friends; third, he invested in the "Magic Recipe for Millions," and joined the bread-line; and, as a last resort, with what was left he plunged on a "Memory Course," and—promptly forgot all his troubles.

About the only way for a married man to keep out of debt is to give his wife all the money she needs.

It doesn't take self conceit long to put bashfulness out of business.

DRAINAGE IS IMPORTANT

Some Benefits of a Well Devised Drainage Plan.

Guesswork Is the Poorest Method to Adopt—Get the Land Levels and Then Arrange for Tiling — How to Protect Drainage Outlets.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

WHEN a man is about to erect a building, be it ever so small, the first thing he does is to make a plan. That plan may be on paper or it may exist only in the mind of the builder, yet it is a plan. Without a plan to follow, a builder cannot do good work. The same is true of tile drainage. The man who places a "string" or "line" of tile in a watercourse, which traverses his fields, should not do so without asking himself such questions as: "Am I putting this tile in the lowest part?" "Will I be able to get a satisfactory outlet? How many acres will this tile drain, and is it large enough to drain it satisfactorily? Have I sufficient grade to drain the holes in the rear fifty?" If he does not ask himself these questions he is like a builder without a plan; he is working in the dark; his work cannot be efficient. All these questions the drainage plan answers, and more.

No matter how small the means for immediate construction of drains, or how few the drains which one is about to instal, he should not do so without having first laid out a plan of which these drains will be a part. On rolling land such a plan is not hard to decide upon, because the differences in elevation are very pronounced, and any one who is familiar with such lands is able to intelligently plan a system of drains for them. But where the area is large and the topography irregular, or very flat, guesswork is out of the question. It is then that we must resort to the tape and the levelling instrument for reliable information.

A drainage plan shows first of all the differences in height or elevation between all parts of the farm over which the survey extended. This allows the owner of the land to plan his own system of drainage. The possession of the levels for all parts of the farm lays bare the most advantageous routes for tile drains, from a study of the levels and contours of a plan it is possible to calculate the acreage which each main tile must drain. This information together with the fall or grade procurable is the only true guide to help us decide upon the size of tile needed in any given drain. It is only when the planner has a picture of the whole project before him that he can draft an efficient yet economical plan of drains for any piece of land.

Future Benefits—The benefits of a plan do not end with the completion of the drainage system. Only those of us who have tried long and hard to find a drain, the location of which was nowhere recorded, know the value of guidance such as is offered by a plan. When a tile-drained farm is offered for sale the existence of a plan of drains adds greatly to the value of the farm. The plan is of equal value to both the seller and buyer. With proper care well-constructed tile drains will give good service for several generations; therefore for the convenience of our children and grandchildren it is necessary to have a plan of our underground drainage work.

There is another way in which a drainage plan is very helpful to a farm owner; it is a splendid guide toward ascertaining the acreage of any field or part of the farm. Fences are located on the plan, and the whole plan drawn to scale, so that with the aid of a rule it is possible to measure the area of any part of the land surveyed. This is of great assistance in planning a season's crops as well as in calculating yields per acre.

Tile drainage pays; but, before you start even a small system by all means secure a plan.—G. Heimpel, O. A. College, Guelph.

Protecting Drainage Outlets.

Tile, particularly clay tile, should not run out to the mouth of the drain. If a piece of old gas pipe, eight or ten feet long, can be secured, this should be placed in the drain in place of the last few tile. Failing this a piece of corrugated steel, or even a plank trough is much better than running the tile right to the end, where they will be broken, washed into the outlet, or otherwise destroyed, allowing the earth to roll in and stop the flow of water.

Under any condition the bank is liable to wear away. Animals pasturing in the field may tramp it down, and block the tile, so in the second place, an abutment should be built through which the outlet discharges its water and the bank will be kept in a state of preservation. This may be made of concrete, stone or plank, and should be a permanent structure. In some cases where the flow is heavy and the water would have a tendency to undermine the wall, it is well to build an apron on which the force of the falling water is broken.

There is still another precaution which should be given due consideration. Frequently small animals, muskrats, coons, ground hogs and others, seek refuge in the tile. Here they are entrapped, and form a dam to the flowing water. To overcome such, the outlet should have bars across the end. These may be quite small, and close together so that nothing can get through. A screen may be fitted over the end, but unless the mesh is quite large the water is retarded in its flow. Sometimes the first tile is threaded with wire. This forms a good protection.

When all these devices are given attention, the outlet should remain in a state of efficiency for years, and the system, if properly installed, should give satisfaction.—F. L. Ferguson, O. A. College, Guelph.

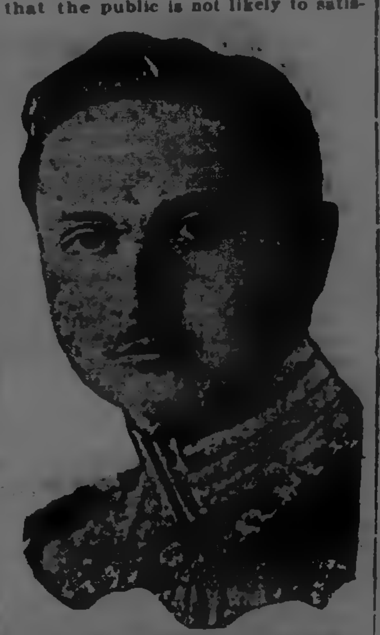
Sons of Ex-Kaiser May Sever Marital Fetters Forged by Their Father

WITH reasons of state no longer the ruling power dominating love or antipathy in the affairs of royal hearts, a revolution has broken out in the Hohenzollern family and is in a fair way of bursting the marital fetters forged by the ex-Kaiser.

The first concrete evidence of this comes with the confirmation of recent reports that divorce proceedings have been instituted between Prince August Wilhelm, fourth son of the former Kaiser, and his wife, Princess Alexandra Victoria, of Schleswig-Holstein.

As is customary in most divorce cases in Germany, the case is expected to be heard behind closed doors, so that the public is not likely to satisfy its curiosity to any great extent. Those on the "inside" say a considerable romance lies behind the cause, which is given as incompatibility.



PRINCE AUGUST WILHELM.

August Wilhelm's wife is regarded as the most beautiful princess in the Hohenzollern family. Of a reddish blonde type and radiating vigor, health and energy, she is a veritable personification of "Germania," the national heroine. Her husband is of a listless sort, passive, dreary, given to the writing of poetry. The couple separated some time ago as a result of growing mutual antipathy.

Rumor has it that the princess has fallen in love and wants to marry an officer with a very common and democratic name, a member of Noske's National Guard.

Prince Joachim, the ex-kaiser's youngest son, and his wife, Princess Maria, of Anhalt, who had a hasty war wedding in March, 1916, also live separated and divorce proceedings are expected in the near future. The princess is at present in a sanitorium.

It is further rumored that Prince Adalbert, Wilhelm's sailor son, and his wife, Princess Adelheid, of Saxe-Meiningen, have had discord and are planning to dissolve their matrimonial partnership.

Ex-Crown Princess Cecilie, who now is regarded largely as the head of the Hohenzollern family — and who has had troubles of her own in her relations with her husband—has sought in vain to straighten out the matrimonial tangles of her "in Knew Something About Mothers.

Ralph went to visit a neighbor's little boy. While there another boy came to play also; but he was something of a bully and Ralph did not like him. When he reached home he told his mother some of the mean things the boy had said and done. "He was so disagreeable I am sure nobody could like him," he said. Then after a moment's meditation he looked up into her face and added: "I suppose, though, his mother loves him, no matter how bad he is."

POSTOFFICE BOWLERS ARE LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

LAWN BOWLERS ARE SECOND AND PASTIMES TAKE THIRD PLACE

Last Friday night ended the Business Men's Five Pin League at the Water street alleys, where a double schedule was played. The Post Office won first place, Lawn Bowlers second, and the Pastimes third. The race was a close one all the way. The Post Office won first place in the first round and the Pastimes second. In the second round the Lawn Bowlers and Brinton Carpet were tied for first place, and a playoff between these teams resulted in a victory for the Lawn Bowlers, placing them in first place for the round. The Post Office and Lawn Bowlers, winners in each round, played off, and the Post Office won the championship, Lawn Bowlers taking second place. Brinton Carpet and Pastimes played off for third place, the latter winning out.

H. Ballard had the high average with 187, playing the full number of games. Jake Solomon had the high three games with 750.

Thos. Barrette won the 128 blind score. William McGill won the 150 blind score.

BILLY EVANS ANSWERS BASEBALL QUERIES

KNOTTY PROBLEMS IN THE NATIONAL GAME UNRAVELLED BY UMPIRE

If runner attempts to steal home while the pitcher is standing on the rubber in a position to pitch, is it possible for the pitcher to make a play on that runner at the plate?

G. H. L.

If the pitcher has not started his delivery, all he needs to do is back off the rubber, and then he has the same right to make a play at the plate as at any other base. If he remains on the rubber and throws the ball to the plate in an attempt to catch the runner, it is legal delivery, at which the batsman has a right to swing if he so desires. The main thing in this play is for the pitcher to back off the rubber, prior to making any motion to pitch.

Does the team at the bat have to make an appeal to the umpire when it is believed that the pitcher has made a balk. I have often seen players of the team at bat rush at the umpire when it seemed the pitcher had erred. Some times a balk was called, and at other times the umpire seemed to pay no attention to the protests. Is the umpire supposed to call a balk immediately when he believes the pitcher has violated the rule?

G. G. K.

It is not necessary for an appeal on a balk. The umpire, if he believes a balk has been made, always so rules it immediately without an appeal, although very often it may seem that such an appeal has been made. The fact that the team at bat always raises a protest when it is believed the pitcher has violated some point in the pitching rules has caused many people to believe that an appeal is necessary in case of a balk.

Do you believe the New York club will use Ruth as a pitcher this summer, or do you believe he will be used regularly in the outfield?

A FAN.

Manager Huggins, of course, will decide where Ruth will play, and as Huggins is a mighty wise baseball leader, he will use him at a position where he will be of the most advantage to the club from the Huggins point of view. I recently read a report in a New York paper, where Huggins was quoted as saying that Ruth was the regular right fielder of the club, and that he would play that position only. I am of the same opinion on that point at the present time, because I know that Ruth is for from being the pitcher that he was a few seasons back. Making the throw from the outfield seems to have played havoc with his pitching muscles. However, unusual conditions very often make a manager back up a bit on his original plans and it is very possible that Ruth may be seen on the rubber for the New York club before the season is over.

COMISKEY IS ON HIS WAY TO PASADENA

IN AN EFFORT TO ROUND UP HOLD OUT WHITE SOX

Chicago, March 24;—The Chicago club of the American league is shot to pieces and Charles A. Comiskey is on the way to California to see what can be done. The regular infielders, except Eddie Collins, have refused to report for training.

Kid Gleason has nothing but a bunch of rookies at Waco. Gandil Weaver, Risberg and McMullen are missing.

Weaver has a three-year-old contract but refuses to live up to it and wants to be traded to New York where he says he can get the money he desires. Gandil, Risberg and McMullen, the utility infielder want more money. All four are in California.

Sorry Looking Outfit

Waco, Texas, March 24;—Manager Bill Gleason is wondering where he is going to get a ball club to play his first exhibition, which is only three days away. He is working the material at hand to the limit but finds himself about to tackle two strong Texas league clubs with not a regular infielder in camp.

Only one substitute is present, so the first two days of the White Sox practice resembled a three-wheeled hose cart going to a fire. The Sox were the last major league club to report for practice and, therefore, had to hurry faster than their rivals to get into condition.

Of pitchers there is superb abundance, in fact, Faber, Williams, Kerr and Wilkinson reported in exceptionally good condition, and any one of the four could pitch five innings right now without distress.

The outfield is all here, now that Joe Jackson has come, and three catchers are present, but it looks comical to see Ludzke at third, McClellan at short, Eddie Murphy at second, and Byrd Lynn at first. Even Ted Jourdan, who should be enjoying his third attempt to win a major league berth, did not find it convenient to get down this way early and sent word he would cast anchor in Texas about March 19. McMullin also is on the way.

Gleason put his patched up infield through two rapid courses of sprouts today, personally bitting bad hopping grounders to the substitutes, both morning and afternoon.

Some Are in Good Shape

Such of the Sox as have reported are in better physical condition right now than they usually are after a week's work, because the European war has taught the athletes the benefits of keeping busy during the off season. But a big league ball club sans its entire infield is a sorry spectacle.

After some men get a start in life they don't know when to stop.

A STRANGE SUGGESTION.

Other Governments Besides Germany Covet Canada.

It was announced the other day that William G. McAdoo, the son-in-law of President Wilson, had made the suggestion that the United States might buy Bermuda and the British West Indies, in order to enable Great Britain to pay their debt to the republic. This proposal caused something like consternation in the British Dominions mentioned, and many meetings of protest were held. At first sight it did not seem as though Canadians need be concerned, but developments that have followed indicate a carefully-arranged campaign to spread abroad the idea that the Dominion of Canada might be sold like a sack of valuable merchandise to Uncle Sam.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce is a gentleman of vivid imagination, or else he has an anti-British slant to his neutrality. At any rate, it is entirely clear he does not know the facts regarding the British financial position, as it is now, and has been "loaded" by some bureaucratic friend. He says: "There is no prospect that England can pay interest on this debt (four billions owed to the United States). Indeed, it was a matter of certain knowledge in the mid-summer of 1918 that Great Britain would not be able to meet her interest obligations after the war. The leading financial men of the United Kingdom said this was a foregone conclusion, and this Government from that time forward, with all the enormous advances of moneys that were made, knew what the prospects were from the best authorities on financial matters in Europe." This correspondent utterly ignores the fact that the British Government is now making revenue meet expenditures, that this year it is expected British export trade will be a billion dollars more than imports, that arrangements have been made to pay in full the Anglo-French loan when it comes due, that not only is Britain paying all interest—except that suspended for three years on the debt to the United States Government—but raising the money by taxation to pay it, and that, within a year or two, the prospects are that British exports to the United States will be paying not only interest on the debt, but also the principal. But the correspondent of the usually careful Journal of Commerce discloses the object of the misrepresentation of the British position when he argues, not only for sale of the British West Indies to the United States, but also Canada. His dream is this:

"The sweep of the proposed scheme for the extinguishment of the British debt to the United States has included Canada, but no steps looking to any definite discussion of such a transaction have yet been taken. The plan, of course, is in entire disregard of the principle of national self-determination now so tritely regarded in all comment on the adjustment of political boundaries. Canada might not relish the idea of being exchanged 'body, soul and breeches' for any part, even all, of the huge international debt of Britain to the United States. With the small dependencies in Central America or the islands of the West Indies however, it would be another matter."

The article includes a minute description of the British colonies in the West Indies and South and Central America, and says that efforts are being made to arrive at some basis of negotiation. There is propaganda at Washington toward this end, evidently, but the false foundation of the whole story lies in the Journal correspondent's assertion that the British debt to the United States is ten billion dollars. That is the amount of the total allied indebtedness, not Britain's, which is only about four billions, and which certainly can be repaid in a reasonable number of years. The inclusion of Canada in this "propaganda" to stir up United States opinion in favor of demanding British colonies to liquidate the debt shows how scatter-brained is the convention behind it.

Naturally Road Is Crooked.

For the benefit of automobilists who have wondered why the road from Exeter to Hampton, N. H., is so crooked it is explained that when the first settlements were being made in New Hampshire, a bear made a night raid on that part of the Hampton settlement known as Wigwam row, and men in pursuit the next morning followed its tracks in the light snow to its watering place at Squamscott Falls, and built the road accordingly.

Famous Sundial Broken.

A sundial known as "Nell Gwynn's Sundial," which for years has been in position in the terrace at Lauderdale house, Highgate, England, was broken beyond repair while workmen were trying to change its position, a London dispatch says. There is still in the house Nell Gwynn's original bath, which is much older than the sundial, and was placed there when she was installed in the place by Charles II.

Y.W.C.A. CONCERT

At the concert in the Young Women's Christian Association next Tuesday evening, Miss Pryce will interpret in dancing MacDowell's beautiful music, "To a Water Lily." Edward MacDowell, an American composer who died in 1908, wrote many beautiful compositions, both for piano, voice and orchestra. Perhaps the most well known of these is his "Woodland Sketches," and in this collection one of the outstanding pieces is his "To a Water Lily." Dreamy, exquisite, dainty, one can fairly see the swaying flower out on the lake. Those who saw Miss Pryce dance in the Rose Ring dance and the Rainbow Waltz will be anxious to see her interpret this music.

An Increase of Two Cents a Gallon is the Latest.

When the proud possessor of a "flivver" hauls his car out again for use this spring he will find an unpleasant surprise awaiting him. Local dealers would not advance any reasons for this latest increase but passed the buck on to the big oil companies who fix the price.

GROCERS REQUIRED TO SEND IN REPORTS

OF THEIR BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS EVERY MONTH TO BOARD OF COMMERCE

Local grocers received the expected forms yesterday which they are required to fill out every month for the Board of Commerce. Extensive instructions and explanations accompanied the forms, and the filling out will necessitate much more work on the part of the grocer. A prominent grocer in the city stated this morning that he had no objections to filling out such forms, provided the proceeding was conducted on a fair basis and that all grocers, large and small, were required to do the same. He understood that at present only a few of the larger grocery stores were required to supply the information, and he did not think that it was at all fair.

The particulars required cover practically everything that is sold in the grocery store, and the information required is as follows: Commodity, from whom purchased, quantity received, net unit cost, unit of freight cost and total cost, sales, high sales for month, current sales for month, profit, unit amount and percentage of profits. These particulars are to be mailed not later than the 7th of each month.

Local grocers anticipate considerable difficulty in complying with the instructions, especially in and case of commodities where the cost price is varying from day to day, such as eggs.

OBITUARY

JANET C. HALLIDAY.

The sudden death took place at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. A. Cairns, Manor, Sask., on March 14th, of Janet C. Halliday, relict of the late Rev. J. R. Scott, at one time Presbyterian minister at Cambray. The deceased lady was in her eighty-fifth year and up to her sudden illness was in good health.

The deceased was born in Scotland and came with her parents to Canada at an early age.

The late Mrs. Scott is survived by two sons and three daughters, living in Saskatchewan; also a sister Mrs. H. Scott, of Peterborough, and a brother, Mr. S. Halliday, of Orono.

DEATH OF INFANT.

Edward Ralph Luscombe, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John James Luscombe, High street, died at the family residence at an early hour this morning. The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. J. F. Chapman will officiate.

MR. FRAZER DELIVERED ADDRESS ON EXCHANGE

WELL KNOWN BANKER AT MEETING OF LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

An exceptionally well attended meeting of the Local Council of Women was held on Thursday, March 18th, at the Y.W.C.A.

The Baby Clinic Committee reported that the babies in all but two sub-divisions of the city have been registered, a total of 546 so far.

A very able paper on "Citizenship" was read by Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, a member of the Citizenship Committee. This committee plans to follow up this subject at the future meetings of the L.C.W. Some interesting discussion followed resulting in a resolution to the effect that Mrs. Kenner's paper be accepted and that the sub-executive of the L. C. W. consider plans for interesting the federated associations in the study of citizenship.

The meeting was then addressed by Mr. J. W. Fraser on the subject of "British and Foreign Exchange." Mr. Fraser gave a lucid statement of what is meant by exchange, in the money markets of the world, also explaining clearly the reasons for the present rates of exchange between Canada and the U.S., and between Canada and Great Britain. Once more it was made clear that the debtor nation must sell more to, and buy less from the creditor nation, till exchange is stabilized.

A standing vote of thanks was given to Mr. Fraser for his very instructive address.

The president's report of the recent executive meeting of the National Council of Women was held over for another meeting.

GAVE MARVELOUS EXHIBITION OF SWIMMING ART

MISS M. PAYNE AT Y. W. C. A. LAST NIGHT ENTERTAINS LARGE AUDIENCE

Miss M. Payne, of Toronto, gave a most wonderful exhibition of trick swimming, life-saving and diving before a large crowd of spectators at the Y.W.C.A. last evening. This noted swimmer holds the bronze medal and silver medal of the Royal Life-Saving Society and has an enviable reputation in athletic circles. Not only has the young woman attracted wide interest by her marvellous feats of agility in the water, but has outdistanced some of the best swimmers, having swam Toronto Bay and swam in the Kawartha Lakes from Juniper Island to Mount Julian and a distance of one-quarter of a mile along the shore after that. All of which speaks for a splendid power of endurance as well as a perfect knowledge of how to conserve strength by correct swimming. Mr. Roper of the Y.M.C.A., chairman of the evening, in his opening remarks commented on the excellently equipped swimming pool of the Y.W.C.A.—an appointment of which the young ladies have reason to be proud. Miss Payne commenced the performance with a clean and graceful long plunge. The remarkable poise and balance—the perfect assurance with which the swimmer dove into the water—was in itself a lesson in correct diving. This was followed by a breast stroke, back stroke, side stroke and sculling, a demonstration of under water swimming—a difficult feat, requiring no small amount of skill. Here the generous bursts of applause on the part of the spectators showed that they fully appreciated the difficulty of these seemingly easy-to-look-at performances.

Next came an exhibition of walking on the water, followed by feats, which called for marvellous skill, such as revolving, forward somersault's, backward somersaults, the wheel, the pendulum, the porpoise, and then a most practical and interesting illustration of life-saving. This showed the manner in which to rescue a drowning person, the way to overcome and release yourself from the choking grip of such a person and how to bring the drowning one to safety. Miss Payne also showed how to help a friend in the water and relieve an exhausted swimmer.

A feature of the performance was the amazing stunt performed by this young adept in swimming with her hands and feet tied. This climax to a most interesting evening's entertainment and one that was not without thrills, elicited storms of appreciative applause. Following was a relay race, and a cork hunt, by the swimming class under the direction of Miss Payne.

Concluding, Mr. Roper pointed out the necessity for a knowledge of this accomplishment especially in a city like Peterborough surrounded by water. Not only from the standpoint of health, but also in a conscientious sense. In order to be of use in emergencies it is the duty of every individual that he or she should know how to swim. The day may come when they would give all they possess for such a knowledge.

NEWS IN BRIEF

About forty tried and untried prisoners in Cork jail have gone on a hunger strike.

The police posted a proclamation in Youghal forbidding the holding of any demonstrations.

While on protection duty in North Clare, Constable Slattery was fired on and slightly wounded.

The Dublin trades, and citizens in general, have started a self-protection campaign against burglars.

John MacMahon, Under-Secretary for Ireland, has been appointed an Irish Privy Councillor.

The death has occurred at Mentone of Col. Richard Cavendish Boyle, a kinsman of the Earl of Cork.

PLAYGROUNDS IN OLD ASHBURNHAM

BEHIND VILLAGE HALL— SUITABLE FOR JUVENILES IN ANY EVENT

Joseph Grierson was last night reappointed caretaker of Central and Victoria Parks, he to supply the plants and bulbs and the city to pay extra for alterations or new work needed. The city will also arrange for improved watering facilities over those of last year.

The tenders received for this appointment by the Property Committee were as follows:

Joseph Grierson	$ 885
W. H. Merrill	1425
Wm. Pearson	1350
Frank Wise	1025

Mr. Grierson's appointment was on motion of Ald. Crowe and Whitehouse. His work last year was satisfactory, and his price was 860.

Remove Band Stand

On motion of Ald. Copping and Crowe, the band stand in Central Park, which is in an unsafe condition will be taken down, but not rebuilt.

Another Playground

Chairman Ald. Gainey wondered if the city would not appropriate the old drill shed grounds in East City for playgrounds purposes. He suggested that the Parks Commission level off the ground, and the Playgrounds committee be invited to place thereon games and apparatus.

Ald. Whitehouse and Copping moved in this direction, and the resolution carried.

The site is on Mark street in the rear of the old village hall.

On motion of Ald Gordon and Whitehouse, the Mayor and Ald Gainey were authorized to arrange for an interview with the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario with a view to getting further street railway extensions this year.

Suggested extensions are down Lansdowne street to Park street and a summer service to Crawford's Grove; also along the boundary to the Aladdin Company's property.

More Street Paving

On motion of Ald. Gordon and Whitehouse, this committee will request the Board of Works to take the necessary steps to pave George street from Romaine street to Lansdowne street.

No Funds.

Ald. Gordon and the Mayor moved that the city development commissior be informed that the city has not the funds this year to make an appropriation of $1500 for an airplane map of the city. This carried.

Removal of Poles

The matter of the removal of the C. P. R. Telegraph Co.'s poles from George street south of Charlotte to the C. P. R. station was, on motion of Ald. Gordon, referred to the Mayor and chairman.

The Peterorough Utilities Commission are anxious to remove these poles, and the C. P. R. had planned to put their wires in the Machine Telephone Co.'s underground conduits, but finding that this latter company had but a limited franchise for their conduits, the former company withdrew their project, preferring to retain their perpetual franchise to using underground conduits which must be removed within a given time unless said franchise is renewed by agreement with the city, which it might not be.

It is now up to the Mayor and Ald Gainey to evolve some underground scheme if these poles are to be removed.

MACHINE GUN COMPANY WILL PARADE TONIGHT

MEMBERS WILL MAKE AN EXCELLENT SHOWING IN SMART NEW UNIFORMS

The boys of the local M. G. C. are really getting down to soldiering now. In their new uniforms they look very smart and clean, and as cleanliness comes even before Godliness in the army, this is very satisfactory. The turnout and interest taken is very gratifying to the C. S. M. and officers of the company. A large amount of clothing and equipment is now available and will be issued on the parade night. C.Q.M.S. R. Muir has this matter well in hand and is in every way a very capable quartermaster. The company will parade tonight (Wednesday) for drill and further issue of clothing and equipment.

STERLING EXCHANGE RISES

New York, March 24.—Sterling exchange rose on the local market this morning to $3.82¼, its strength being attributed to reports that Great Britain's exports are now nearly at a pre-war rate and that continental countries are now buying British bills. Canadian dollars advanced to 91.43 cents.

LABOR WILL HELP TO BUILD CHEAP TORONTO HOMES

BUILDING TRADES OFFICIALS HAVE SCHEME TO SOLVE PRESENT DIFFICULTY

Toronto, March 24.—Realizing the critical nature of the housing situation, the executive officials of the Building Trades Council of the local Labor movement are asking the Council, at a special meeting which is being called for the purpose next Monday night, to endorse a proposal whereby dwellings which now cost $4000 can be built for a sum not exceeding $3200. The proposal is somewhat similar to the scheme of the building trades crafts of Manchester, England, but it does not allow for a profit.

Briefly, the proposal, which is, if approved, to be forwarded to the city council, is that the building trades council, which controls the monopoly of building trades mechanics in Toronto, will guarantee the required supply of labor at normal prices if the municipality will provide the material and the land. The scheme has taken hold among the officers of the building trades council, who deputed James T. Gunn, one of their active members, to interview a firm of architects on the proposal.

Make Early Start

The firm of architects is composed of returned soldiers and have volunteered their services on a salary basis. It is estimated that the cost of a $4000 dwelling would be no greater than $3200 if profits on material and labor were eliminated.

If the municipality endorses the scheme, the building trades council will guarantee to mobilize within one month a sufficient number of workmen to commence the erection of one hundred dwellings.

Curtail Needless Building

In return for these guarantees from the building trades council Mr. Gunn stated that the council expected that the municipality would use its influence to prevent the erection of buildings which might be termed luxuries. Refernce was made by Mr. Gunn and Mr. John oggett, an official of the Carpenters' Union, to the large number of moving picture houses, theatres and dance halls which were being erected at the present time.

Other trades unions officials than those of the building trades have become interested in the scheme before the Toronto council. The St. Catharines trades council has asked that the local body use its influence to make the scheme provincial in its scope. One member of the city council has already discussed it in detail with members of the building trades council, and has suggested a public meeting to create interest in the suggestion.

WYOMING FIRE CHIEF IS WORTH A MILLION

NOTED GATHERING OF MEMBERS OF CALLING IN TORONTO TODAY

Toronto, March 24.— Some noted fire chiefs from the United States are due to arrive in Toronto today. Crief Percy Hoyt of Cheyenne, Wyoming, is reputed a millionaire. With him will be Chief Healy of Denver, Colorado. Chief John Kenlon of New York is another famous fire-fighter due to arrive today.

The fire chiefs from across the border are all members of the Executive of the International Association of the Firet Chiefs of America an they meet in this city tomorrow to set a date for their convention here in July, when over 3,000 fire chiefs will gather to confer.

It is told of Chief Hoyt that when the Cheyenne civic fathers refused to purchase an aerial motor truck he went out and bought it himself and presented it to the department. The chiefs gathering here today are: Chief John Kenlon of New York, President; Chief John F. Healy, Denver, Col., First Vice-President; Chief Frank Reynolds, Second Vice-President; Chief Peter B. Kerr, Camden N. J., Chief W. H. Bywater, Salt Lake City; Chief James Armstrong, Kingston; Chief H. F. McGee of Dallas Texas; Chief Dalfe of Lansing Mich; and Steven E. Hooey of New York, Acting Secretary.

PETERBORO'S MERCHANT PRINCE; DEATH FOLLOWS AN OPERATION

Robert Neill Passed Away Yesterday in Rochester Minn. Where He Had Gone for Medical Treatment—Career Distinguished in Business, Church and Social Work and Civic Affairs,

Robert Neill, president of the Robert Neill Shoe Company, Limited, of this city, died in Rochester, Minnesota, yesterday afternoon after a lingering illness. Mr. Neill, who had been suffering with liver trouble for the past few years, went over to Rochester, Minn., two weeks ago to undergo an operation, which it was hoped would cure him. The operation, however, was unsuccessful and he passed away yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Neill and his daughter, Miss Mary, were with him at the time of his death.

His Early Life.

The late Mr. Neill was born in Oswego, N.J., on April 5, 1854, and spent the earliest days of his life there. Moving at an early age to Barrie, he received his education in the Barrie Public and High Schools, an education which so well fitted him later to undertake the battle of life successfully.

Over 40 years ago he first entered the boot and shoe business in the firm of Burrill McKonkey & Company at Barrie. His father was interested in this same line. He showed great ability in this line and since that time had made steady and remarkable progress. Later he acquired the business at Barrie and opened a branch in Peterborough in May, 1884. This store is now the headquarters of large business branches at Barrie, Lindsay, Brantford, Guelph, Woodstock, Galt, Brockville, Stratford (for a time) and at Chatham. The store in this city is also the wholesale supply for the branches all over the Province.

Acted as Alderman.

Although generally too busy a man to be able to aspire to civic office Robert Neill was in the City Council twice during his career. The first time was in the year 1899, but there was nothing of importance concerning his connection with the City Council that year. He was again a candidate for alderman in the year 1906. During this term he worked with great zeal to have the city take over the Auburn dam and become the owners of electric power, a step which was eventually taken and which resulted in placing the city of Peterborough second to none in the Province in this matter. He was also instrumental in the formation of a regular Fire Department, the city up to this time having been protected by a volunteer force. At the time he was a little in advance of his fellow citizens in this matter and his stand created much opposition

Fond of Athletics.

Mr. Neill was a very enthusiastic sportsman, taking part in many forms of healthy exercise. He was very fond of golf and was a well-known figure of the links. He was also greatly interested in curling and when the Peterborough Curling Club Company was incorporated he became one of the stockholders and a prominent member. He was also the donor of several valuable trophies to the club, which greatly helped to stimulate interest in the game in this city. The news of his death will come as a great blow to his fellow members of the Peterborough Curling Club.

In religion he was a faithful member of Trinity Methodist Church and had been a trustee for more than thirty years, and on almost every board and committee of the church for many years back.

He is survived by a wife, three daughters, Mrs. Hubert McLaughlin, the wife of a prominent Toronto lawyer, and at present in England; Margaret and Agnes, at home, and one son, Robert, at home, and who since his return from overseas has been associated in the business here.

FIREMEN'S PROMPT WORK SAVE BUSINESS BLOCK

BLAZE IN FANNING'S LAUNDRY LAST NIGHT, THREATENED TO DESTROY BUILDING

A serious fire was nipped in the bud last night by Chief Grange and his men. At about 8:30 p.m. a telephone call was received from the Fanning laundry, 285 1-2 George street, stating that the plant was on fire. Upon the arrival of the department it was seen that the blaze had already made some headway and two lines of hose were quickly laid. With the use of one of these the fire was controlled after about three quarters of an hour's work. The damage which has not up to the present been estimated will not be heavy.

The fire started in the boiler room where slabs of wood had been placed between the boilers to dry for kindling in the morning. The boilers had become overheated and ignited the slabs which in turn spread the fire to the wooden beams and walls of the boiler house. From here the flames leapt the intervening space between the boiler room and the main building and started eating into the woodwork of the roof and attic. This was the position of affairs at the time when Mrs. Fanning happened to look out of the window from the main building and see the reflection of the fire. She immediately turned in the alarm and only the quick actions of the department saved the entire building from destruction.

SHIPPING GOLD TO NEW YORK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, March 26.— The New York Herald, which last week printed a report that a large amount of British gold was being shipped to New York via Halifax, today, declares that the gold has been temporaly stored in Ottawa and is to be shipped here from the Dominion in the near future.

Gardening and flower-growing short courses are being conducted in St. Thomas, with great success in attendance.

IS HELD FOR TRIAL ON SERIOUS CHARGE

JOSEPH MICOLUCCI ACCUSED OF ASSAULT ON GIRL UNDER 14 YEARS OF AGE

Stupid looking, not fully realizing the seriousness of the offence, Joseph Micolucci sat in the dock this morning to hear overwhelming evidence against him on the strength of which he was committed for trial at the next sittings of a court of competent jurisdiction on a charge of indecently assaulting a young girl under 14 years of age.

Micolucci had lived with the parents of the girl off and on for the past twelve years and nothing had been suspected of the occurence until recently. The father gave evidence against the accused and Dr. Carmichael,in substantiating the testimony of the father, stated that the girl was about to become a mother.

In her evidence the little girl told how the accused had ill treated her after threatening her and at times pointing a revolver at her. In an effort to clear himself the prisoner had attempted to force the girl to lay the blame upon her thirteen year old brother.

Crown Attorney Hatton prosecuted and the prisoner was defended by Mr J. O'Brien.

DISPENSARY FOR PETERBORO IS ONE OF PROSPECTS

THAT QUESTION WAS RAISED IN LEGISLATURE YESTERDAY BY MR. STOVER

Toronto, March 26.— H. H. Dewart asks what was the nature of the legal services re Nicu Steel Corporation, for which the firm of Tilley, Johnston, Thompson & Permenter were paid $1671.50.

Mr. Lang wishes to know who is F. M. Starford, in respect of whom the public accounts show that he was paid in the year 1918-19 the sum of $15,769.34 for materials furnished for use at the Industrial Farm, Burwash.

Co. Cooper (Toronto) wishes to know the names of all deputy ministers, chief clerks and clerks, who, during the calendar years 1916, 1917 1918 and 1919, applied upon medical certificates for leave of absence from their duties.

Mr. Stover inquires. Is it the intention of the Government to open government liquor dispensaries at such central points in the province of Ontario as St. Thomas, Welland, Barrie, Petereboro, Belleville, Kingston, North Bay and Sudbury?

Mr. Hall, Parry Sound, wishes to be informed whether orders-in-council approved by the lieutenant-governor, legalizing the payment of the sum of $40,000 by the Canadian Copper Company (now the International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited), for any year or years in lieu of the amount as provided by the mining tax act and amendments thereto, or under the agreements entered into by the minister of lands, forests and mines during the month of December, 1913.

Mr. Pinard asks what were the professional services for which the Pinkerton National Detective Agency was paid the sum of $156.92, in connection with the Meredith Commision?

Premier Drury assumed an air of injury in the Legislature yesterday, when crawling out of a wrong position with regard to the appointment of Justices Riddell and Latchford to investigate the department of lands, forests and mines. He admitted that the commission had been appointed two weeks ago—March 9. But he complained of the announcement of it in the press, and said of the source of leakage he had no knowledge.

The judges have, as a fact, been at work two weeks on the inquiry entrusted to them. Mr. Drury's annoyance apparently was assumed to cover a retreat from his extraordinary admission that he had appointed a secret commission.

H. H. Dewart, called attention to a newspaper report of the appointment of Justices Riddell and Lachford to investigate the records of the department of lands, forests and mines. He said the announcement was definite. He did not wish to embarass the Government, but if the announcement was an official one, asked is this the way the Government chooses?

Premier Drury. It is not an official announcement. It is not by any means a correct announcement. It is the sort of newspaper announcement we have been treated to for the past couple of months, and from which we have all suffered. I have no idea how that announcement found its way into the press. To show how inaccurate the report is, I have today ordered the publication of the order-in-council which was issued two weeks ago. It will explain to the public exactly the scope of the commission.

He laid a copy of the order-in-council on the table.

In answer to a question, Hon. Peter Smith said he had no idea when he would announce his budget.

J. W. Curry said he had received no notification that he had been appointed chairman of the public accounts committee.

MAGISTRATE MURDERED IN BROAD DAYLIGHT

FOUR ARMED MEN DRAGGED HIM FROM AUTO IN DUBLIN TODAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 26.—Alan Bell, resident magistrate who presided over the inquiry into the dealings of the Sinn Fein with Irish banks, was shot dead this morning outside the Masonic Club in Dublin ,according to a dispatch from that city to the Central News.

In the House today Bonar Law announced that four armed men took Magistrate Bell from an automobile and shot him to death.

WOULD DEPORT ALL ALIENS WHO ARE OF ENEMY ORIGIN

WAR VETERANS SO DECIDE TO RECOMMEND TO THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, March 26.— Deportation of people of German, Austrian, Turkish and Bulgarian origin, whom it is impossible to assimilate as Canadian citizens, is demanded in a clause contained in a resolution relating to immigration deportation and naturalisation passed by the Great War Veterans Association, on the resumption of its annual convention here this morning. The resolution, which will be submitted to the Dominion Government, suggests that all disfranchised aliens be given one year to dispose of their property, and also contends that all unnaturalized citizens should be examined before a properly constituted court which will determine whether or not they are desirable citizens, so that undesirables can be deported.

Give Accused a Chance

Protest is also recorded against the deportation of British born people domiciled in Canada, who may be charged with sedition, without trial by jury.

The motion to transfer the Convention to Ottawa was dropped as it will likely conclude its labors tonight or tomorrow.

The labor resolution was carried, which demanded the appointment of two returned soldiers on the civil service commission, that future appointments to Government positions be from the rank of soldiers and that all amrried women be released from Government employment.

Canon Scott of Guebec and C. E. Jeakins, Ontario, withdrew from the presidential election.

Scale of Bonus.

After two days of discussion which at times became somewhat embittered the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada at its fourth annual convention here agreed tonight and adopted a definite bonus plan which fixes a maximum of $2,500 and a minimum of $1,000 subject to no deduction, and payable to 100 per cent of the Canadian forces. This cash re-establishment bonus is based upon an additional $1 per diem, total period of their enlistment to men who have seen service on a belligerent front. It is also asked that dependents of foreign soldiers or their beneficiaries should receive equitable compensation in the form of a lump sum cash bonus to be not less than the amount the soldier would have received had he returned at the date of the armistice. Finally the Government is asked to deal with the matter at the present session of Parliament in view of the many and serious differences confronting the returned soldiers in their endeavors to become re-established.

The cost of the proposed bonus would be approximately $215,000,000. Dominion Secretary-Treasurer MacNeill warned the delegates that the present Canadian Government had already definitely declared itself as being against an indiscrimminate cash bonus and its opposition must be overcome before the passage of a measure embodying the bonus could be effected.

Having conceived a solution, he adds, it only remains to convince the public of Canada.

Burglars entered the grist mill, Haliday's butcher shop, and George Haynes' hardware shop at Gananoque, but got only a few cents.

CANADA ACCEPTS BRITAIN'S OFFER OF WAR VESSELS

NAVAL POLICY OF THIS COUNTRY IS ANNOUNCED IN THE COMMONS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 26.— Hon. C. C. Ballantyne's statement in the House of Commons today on the Canadian naval policy is summarized as follows:

Action on a permanent naval policy deferred, in view of the financial situation and of the forthcoming imperial conference.

Canadian naval service to be continued along pre-war lines.

Acceptance of the British offer of one light cruiser and two destroyers to take the place of the "obsolete and useless training ships," Rainbow and Niobe.

Demobilization of all officers and naval ratings and discontinuance of civilian help at naval dockyards "in order to be free thoroughly to organize."

Retirement of Admiral Kingsmill as director of Canadian naval service

Description of Ships From Britain.

The ships given by Brtain for the nucleus of a Canadian navy are a light cruiser, two destroyers and the Canadian Government has already two submarines. The light cruiser is a 30-knot ship of 5,000 tons, armed with six six-inch guns, two anti aircraft guns and two torpedo tubes. It requires a crew of 350 officers and men and cost $4,000,000. The destroyers are each of 1,000 tons steam 35 knots, have three four-inch guns and four torpedo tubes and a crew of 90 officers and men. The submarines are of the latest British type of 900 tons, armed with two guns and six torpedo tubes and steam 17 knots on surface and 10 knots submerged.

KING'S EMPLOYES ASK SHORTER DAY AND MORE WAGES

WORKMEN ON ROYAL ESTATES IN SCOTLAND AT ODDS WITH SUPERIOR

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 26.— Employees on the Kings estates in Scotland, including Balmoral Castle, are demaniding an eight hour day and a wage increase to three pounds weekly. J. D. Ramsay, the Kings Commissioner on Balmoral estates, has given the men the option of working ten hours a day or quitting their jobs. As far as is known he has said nothing about wages. The question is to be discussed in Aberdeen, Saturday, at a meeting of the Scottish Federation of discharged soldiers, many of the men being former soldiers. It is recalled that King George in writing to Balmoral, sometime ago, said he wished all his employees to be comfortable and satisfied.

Hon. Arthur Meighen Explains Some Of The Clauses In The New Franchise Bill

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 26.—Hon. Arthur Meighen, Minister of the Interior, will make a statement in the House this afternoon on the disqualifying clauses of the Franchise Bill now being discussed on the second reading. Criticism of the clauses, particularly in their relationship to naturalized aliens, was based largely on misinterpretation of the intent of the sections, it is asserted in official circles. The main purport of the clauses, it is learned, is to provide that a woman not a British subject, who comes to Canada from some part of Europe and marries a Canadian, will not be entitled to vote unless she has the same residential and other qualifications as her husband.

Were those clauses not in the bill it is asserted, a woman coming from an alien country might only be in Canada a few weeks before she was married and become entitled to the franchise. It was to avoid such a condition that the clauses were inserted.

There is talk of an amendment to the bill coming from the Liberal benches, and it was indicated this morning that the vote on the amendment may be reached before adjournment tonight.

GERMAN CABINET HAS RESIGNED: REDS CONTINUE TO MAKE TROUBLE

Workers' Forces Threaten to Destroy Factories and Mines in Western Germany—Dutch Government May Combat New Movement With Local Detachments of Troops

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, March 26.—Wesel, the besieged fortress northwest of the Ruhr coal basin, is still holding out against the revolutionary workingmen, according to the Freiheit, which adds that the situation in Ruhr the industrial region is gradually clearing.

Paris. March 26.—The German Cabinet, headed by Premier Gustav Bauer, has resigned, according to a message received here from Berlin today.

Threaten Destruction.

London, March 26.—Workers' forces entrenched along the Lippe River south and southeast of the city of Wesel, threaten, if they fail to capture Wesel, to destroy all factories and mines in Western Germany, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Berlin this morning. The Reds are now issuing an official statement, and last night claimed to have captured several villages and to have taken more than two hundred prisoners during the day. Telegrams from Muenster filed last night report severe engagements between government and communist troops on the line from Harm to Hagen. Further south there has been serious fighting, and conflicts have occurred at Wesel, Recklingha and near Muenster, as well as along the Lippe River.

Holland May Interfere.

Amsterdam, March 26. — Government forces at Wesel have been reinforced, according to reports from the Dutch frontier. Coal trains to Holland from the Ruhr district were operating normally today, although the crews were sometimes threatened by the Spartacists. In the event of trouble with Soviet adherents, the Dutch government will combat the movement with local detachments. The administration will not call on conscripts.

According to the Telegraph's frontier correspondent the government forces at Wesel are strongly entrenched and are being constantly reinforced by armed farmers and the bourgeoise from the towns nearby. The Red army's trenches are occupied by about six thousand men. Casualties in the ranks of the Communists last night numbered about sixty dead and one hundred wounded. The Communist soldiers receive 30 marks per day with rations.

Southwest of Wesel are Belgian forces, which have been withdrawn to the left bank of the Rhine. French troops equipped with artillery also are arriving.

TYPHUS STILL RAGES AMONG THE REFUGEES

MAKING IT DIFFICULT AND DANGEROUS TO REMOVE THEM

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Constantinople. March 26. — The prevalence of typhus among the refugees, is making their removal a difficult operation and one dangerous to other countries. Eight thousand refugees who are at Verna Bulgaria are experiencing a terrible death rate because it is impossible to apply proper precautions. Besides the British emissary who went to Novorossisk, the French also sent an officer to confer with the committee, which denounced both the Bolsheviki and Denikin's forces, saying the Black Sea people were fighting for the purpose of freeing their territory from all outside plunderers.

ALLIES ARE STRIVING TO KEEP ORDER AMONG TURKS

REMOVING ALL THOSE LIKELY TO BE SUSCEPTIBLE TO BOLSHEVISM

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Constantinople, March 26. — An anti Bolshevik army operating in the vicinity of Novorossisk and moving southward in the Black Sea province towards Battum, has established its capital at Sochi (Laknovski) on the Black Sea, about midway between Novorossisk and Battum, where the general committee is directing the so-called government. Gen. Keith, of the British forces, is reported to have visited Sochi recently, where he discussed the situation with M. Filipposki, chairman of the committee for the liberation of the Black Sea province. Despatches from Novorossisk indicate that the war-worn refugees in this region, confused by the multiplicity of factions and somewhat reassured by Bolsheviki promises to abandon terrorism, are becoming reconciled to remaining in Russia, even if the Bolsheviki should occupy Novorossisk. The Allies, however, are removing those whom it is considered would unquestionably be in danger of Bolshevik reprisals, and transporting them to Theodosia, in the Crimea. The Red Cross is removing its supplies depot to Constantinople.

BOLSHEVIKI TAKE TOWN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London. March 26.—Bolsheviki have occupied Maikop, a town in the territory of Kuban, Circassia according to a wireless message sent out by the Russian Soviet Government at Moscow today.

EFFICIENCY PROGRAM WAS FAILURE AT HOME

WIFE OBJECTED TO TWO MINUTE LIMIT FOR WASHING HANDS AND FACE

Detroit, March 26.—Efficiency in an automobile factory may be all right, but when tried in the home it is a flat failure, as Mrs. Wm. Economo, who is suing for divorce here, is prepared to testify.

Soon after her marriage Mrs. Economo says her husband made out a working time-table and told her she must conduct her household on the schedule laid down therein.

For instance, Mrs. Economo was to arise at 5:45, was to dress in 12 minutes wash hands and face in two minutes, prepare breakfast and eat same in 20 minutes; then William went to work, but time-table continued throughout the day.

Mrs. Economo was to do sweeping next, five minutes being allowed for each room. Later, her husband found there was a period of 20 minutes in which wife had nothing to do. He marked this time as "miscellaneous." Mr. Economo was a great believer in economy, wife said, and he insisted on making all children's dresses and wife's nightgowns. He thought he could cut cloth more economically than she could. The last straw came when Economo revised his "time-table" by cutting out the daily wash and substituting "baths" Saturday night only, ten minutes.

Judge Tappan dismissed the bill for divorce, but ordered Economo to pay his wife $10 a week alimony.

SHIPPING GOLD BULLION FROM LONDON TO THE U.S.

REPORTED FOUR MILLION POUNDS LIKELY TO BE TRANSFERRED

London, March 26.—It is reported in the bullion market that four million pounds in gold will be shipped to America at the end of the week, comprising two million and a half from the Bank of England's stock and the remainder from other sources.

Officials of the Bank of England refused information on the subject today. Shipping companies say that a certain amount of gold is going out, but refuse details as to the exact amount. It is known, however, that arrangements have been made with the Canard and White Star lines for carrying bullion on the steamers leaving this week, and it is possible that this is the first instalment in cooperation for the repayment of the Anglo-French loan of one hundred million dollars.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

FRIDAY, MARCH 26, 1920.

THE LATE ROBERT NEILL.

THE DEATH of such a citizen as the late Robert Neill, who passed away yesterday in Rochester, Minn., where he had gone in search of health, is an irreparable loss to any community. The late Mr. Neill was one of the outstanding figures in the city, prominent in business, in church work, in all social reforms, and always interested in the development of Peterborough. He could be relied upon to take the right side of every public question of moment. As a member of the City Council Mr. Neill proved himself one of the best civic servants that the people have ever had.

In the business world his name was a synonym for commercial probity, and his efforts were not confined to this city alone. The store which he established here especially the rejuvenated concern which rose from the ashes of the fire of a few years ago has always been regarded as one of the show places of the city, a place to be pointed out to visitors. And yet tihs store was only one of a chain of eight such establishments operated by Mr. Neill in various parts of the country.

"KEEP OFF THE GRASS."

THAT FAMILIAR notice will soon be in evidence again in the public parks that are popularly supposed to be the playgrounds of the masses, so many spaces where the rising generation can find an opportunity to disport themselves at will and breathe the pure air of heaven. The fiction of the idea, however, is made manifest when it is found that only the graveled walks are to be trod upon, and that the rest of the expanse, carefully trimmed by the park janitor, is maintained merely to tickle the vision. "Keep off the grass." Otherwise the caretaker will be after you.

Four years ago Central Park was trodden brown and bare by the hundreds of feet of the gallant young men who were preparing for military service overseas, and for some reason or other the most aesthetic taste was not outraged by the spectacle. The desolated grounds told their own eloquent story.

The perverse feet of the children of Peterborough fairly itch for the cool grass that is so carefully guarded in the parks. The little ones will persist in evading the vigilance of nurse or mother and will wander on to forbidden ground. But, after all, why should this freedom of action be denied them? It is of vastly more national importance to raise healthy children than it is to preserve a park intact or to produce a crop of grass. Give the little people a chance to develop, to prepare for the battle of life, just as the young soldiers did in 1916 for the fighting zone across the sea.

The parks are so much public property, but the lawn of the householder is his own private concern. This should be sacred from trespass if the city is to wear the appearance of an up-to-date community. Part of the education of children should be the impressing upon them the fact that private lawns should be regarded as such and not converted into so many playgrounds. Adults, too, should not forget their obligations, legal and moral, in this regard. It is a busy age, but no man is so pressed for time that it is necessary for him to cut the corners and so shorten his course by tramping across the private property of his neighbors.

LANDLORDS ARE NOT PROFITEERS.

THERE ARE actual conditions that must be met with in the housing problem of today. Finely spun theories achieve little to the purpose. If there is anywhere in Peterborough a tenant who is of the opinion that his landlord is getting rich at his expense, and that rents today are excessively high, here is an instance which should convince the tenant that he is simply embracing a delusion, most likely cherishing a grouch.

A citizen owned a house which he rented for $30 a month. The taxes on the property amounted to $108 a year, and the repairs and other incidentals cost $110. This left the owner a net income from his property of $142 a year or a fraction over two per cent.

Impressed with the conviction that there was nothing in the business, the citizen referred to availed himself of the first opportunity to sell the house, which he did for $5000. His income from the proceeds is now $300 a year, a clear gain of $158 over his former investment and his increased revenue is free from everything like worry as to defaulting tenants, fire, periods of vacancy and the like. This is by no means an isolated case, but is simply one of scores of parallel instances that could be quoted. Another incident that demonstrates that there is little inducement in the real estate business—a residence on Brock street the other day sold for less than the cost of construction over twenty years ago, and since its completion many modern improvements have been made, but no note is taken of these in the computation.

Some one has said that any man is only half a man until he is married. There is the same degree of difference between the citizen who owns his own home and the one who is satisfied to spend his days in rented premises. Even if ownership means increased cost, the accruing advantages, the feeling of security and independence which ownership assures, is worth the difference in outlay many times over. No man should be satisfied to spend the years of his life with no spot under the sun which he can call his own, subject at all times to being driven from pillar to post, and often facing the difficulty in finding anything like a suitable shelter for himself and family.

If the tenant believes that his rent is exorbitant he will find, in nine cases out of ten, that his landlord is willing to do business with him on a different basis and to sell him his house on easy terms. One obstacle to this method of settlement is that there are comparatively few houses in the city built with a view to the accommodation of a family of moderate means. This is a matter that can be easily overcome if the tenant is willing to avail himself of the opportunity offered by the housing plan. There may be no more loans in sight from the Legislature, but the Province agrees to guarantee the bonds of any municipality that takes up this work. The municipality in turn has authority under the Act to guarantee the bonds of any private corporation that organizes under the statutes and embarks on a house-building program.

Times are most certainly out of joint when it is necessary for the Legislature to back up any private enterprise—for such it really amounts to under the new order—to carry on a business that was once regarded as a paying proposition, especially when the demand for the finished product is taken into consideration. But why theorize? It is a condition that faces the people.

EXPLANATIONS THAT FAIL.

"WHAT IS the Aurora Borealis?" asked the college professor of the student who appeared to be following the scientific lecture with real interest. Pondering for a few minutes, the student made answer, "Well, I did know, but I am afraid I have forgotten." "Too bad," said the sarcastic professor, shaking his head. "The solution of a great mystery has been lost to an inquiring world. The only man who ever knew it has forgotten all about it."

But there are professional and avocational scientists today who undertake to explain the wonderful display of electric lights which illuminated the heavens Monday night. The laity were not behind in local explanations. In Peterborough, for example, there were some who firmly believed that the display was but a reflection of the light that a visiting statesman from Brantford was shedding over a select audience at the Canadian Club luncheon in the Empress. Members of a certain secret society in Toronto noted the hue of the wavering light and accepted it as a celestial benediction upon the cause for which they stand.

A famous professor at the Yerkes Observatory throws out the following bit of illumination on his own account:

"Magnetic storms on the sun's surface, or what we know as 'sun spots,' produce similar disturbances in the atmosphere of the earth, and are responsible for the auroral phenomenon witnessed a few nights ago," he says. "It has been found," he continued, "that these solar disturbances are coincident with the occurrence of the aurora, and when sun spots are plentiful the aurora is plentiful also, but to ascribe the occurrence of the aurora to individual spots on the sun, as some have been doing, is entirely wrong. All that we know at present is that the disturbed condition of the sun's magnetism is responsible for the production of the phenomenon, and though some two or three weeks ago there was a large spot on the sun, it cannot be said that one spot caused the beautiful display Monday night."

So there you have it. What could be simpler? The finite mind of man still seeks to grapple with the Infinite. Since the beginnig of the history of the human race, men have been trying to explain why people are born, and, most of all, why they die. They and the victims of their erudition are yet as much in the dark as ever, while the inscrutable plan of the Creator is carried out as usual. Why cannot these scientists be honest to a still greater degree than the student who sought to stand as well as possible with his teacher, and, while admitting that they don't know, pass up the reservation that they once did, but that a great truth has slipped their memory?

Probably one of these days some bespectacled student of human affairs will in all good faith attempt to explain just why things broke as they did in Ontario on October 20th last, and will also essay to fix the date—even as Premier Drury's election day is set—when an ailing Province will begin to show encouraging signs of convalescence.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

Mary Augusta Ward, known to the world of book-readers as Mrs. Humphry Ward, who died Wednesday was born in Hobart, Tasmania, June 11, 1851. She was the daughter of Thomas Arnold, second son of Dr. Arnold of Rugby, and a brother of Matthew Arnold, of whom she was a niece. Although of "Colonial" birth, most of her education she received at Oxford, whither she went when a girl.

Although at an early age she developed a strong bent toward literature, it was not until she had reached her thirtieth year that her first novel, "Milly and Olly," was published. Although this book did not create any great notice in literary circles, it received favorable comment, and it was not until the publication of "Robert Ilsmere" in 1888 that the real foundatinon for her literary reputation was laid. This novel, dealing in a striking way with current religious problems, soon became the talk of the whole civilized world.

Mrs. Ward was a prolific writer and novels flowed rapidly from her pen during the following years. "Lady Rose's Daughter," "Fenwick's Career," "Diana Mallory," and, since the war, "Lady Connie," "England's Effort," "Toward the Goal," "The War and Elizabeth," and "Fields of Victory," published last year.

Mrs. Ward was, however, more than a writer, and occupied a large place in the social and political life of her day. She introduced into England the children's holiday play centres and sponsored the movement for a greater sense of responsibility toward scool children in the hours when they were not in school. It is said that her son, Arnold Ward, owed his seat in Parliament, in great measure, to his mother's support and efforts as a campaigner. She was one of seven English women named under the Sex Disqualification Removal Act to act as Magistrates.

Her husband was Thomas Humphry Ward, also a writer of considerable attainments, whom she married in 1872.

PLEBISCITE ON IMPORTS

Premier Norris Promises Liquor Referendum in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, March 25— Replying to representatvies of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association, Premier Norris referred to the fact that a plebiscite was to be held in Manitoba this summer, under provisions of the Canada Temperance Act to decide whether importation of liquor into the Province should continue. "If the people answer this question in the negative," Premier Norris said, "the Government will hold a referendum to permit the sale of beer and light wines without prescriptions."

COMMUTERS AND DAYLIGHT SAVING

(Sun and New York Herald.)

It is now for many commuters to decide whether they shall carry two watches, one for the daylight saving time of the city and the other for the slothful time of the home town, or whether they shall become expert calculators. If the State of New York repeals its daylight saving law and the State of New Jersey fails to adopt a similar law all commuters face the problem of reconciling train time with the New York City time which by ordinance will go into effect next Sunday morning.

Matters will be fairly simple for commuters from Weschester way. If the State law is repealed this week the New York Central and the New Haven, while not altering their clocks, will run earlier trains. The White Plains of Mamaroneck man will rise at six o'clock by rural and railroad time, catch a train at 7:20 and, after forty minutes ride, arrive in New York when it is nine o'clock on Forty-second street, yet only eight o'clock in Weschester. The commuter's child will be just getting up when its father is already in the city and there will be no opportunity for morning questioning on such subjects as why the dew is wet and why it is good for children to go to school.

If the New Jersey Legislature should pass a daylight saving law and the railroads of that State should follow it the Jersey commuter will be able to do without two watches, thus diverting a large amount of money toward the purchase of Hackensack melon seed, grapevines and cider presses. This law, however, has yet to be passed, just as the New York State law has yet to be repealed. It is only our forward looking city government that has taken early action in the matter. With all its talk about people looking like gargoyles, with all its persiflage about Palm Beach, the city government is at least wide awake enough to make people get up an hour earlier.

In spite of the disturbing conditions it is the commuter who will be grateful to the city for changing its clocks. It is he who has the fun in that saved hour, whether fun for him means golf or digging in the garden. What the city man does with the saved hour nobody has ever been able to discover. Some cynics have declared that the odd hour—between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon—is spent in thinking how pleasant it is going to be when it is dark enough to light the lights. This is denied, however, by some of the leading croquet players of Prospect Park.

NEW YORK LEGISLATORS PROPOSE TO PUT STOP TO PROFITEERING IN RENT

Almost a Riot in the House at Albany When the Bill is up for Discussion.

Albany, March 26.— The hearing today before the Cities Committees on the State's housing programme to curb rent profiteers and promote building developed into a wild and uproarious demonstration of the bitterness between landlords and tenants from New York. The hostilities at times came close to fist encounters, and during the five hours' session the crowded Assembly chamber was in a turmoil.

Little was said regarding the merits of the nine bills proposed by the housing committee to solve New York's serious rent problem, the speakers for the most part indulging in the most acrimonious charges and counter charges of bad faith. But at the conclusion members of the joint committee said they were confident the measures would be passed by the Legislature next week.

There was trouble almost from the start. The 300 landlords and representatives of the real estate interests sat on the north side of the chamber and the delegations of tenants, bearing big banners, on the opposite side. Members of the committee were in the well. The crowd filled every inch of space and throngs were in the corridors all day.

Said Speaker "Bullied Him."

The rent hearing followed a rather sensational scene in the Assembly session, when Assemblyman Jos. McKee, Democrat, of the Bronx, declared from the floor he had been called into the Speakers' room and "bullied" for having said in a speech on Saturday that Mr. Sweet was not trying honestly to bring about reforms to benefit tenants. Mr. McKee said he was not going to be intimidated.

The Speaker answered from the rostrum that his efforts were intended to withold action on individual bills until concerted action could be taken. He said his only object in speaking about the subject was "to discourage fomentation of the public mind at a time when the situation is most critical," and added that "any man in this House, who has the best interest of the people at heart will withhold inflammatory remarks until the Legislature has had the opportunity to put through the measures which will meet the situation."

Chamber in an Uproar

Hisses came from the landlords. The New York official turned towards the group, and pointing to one man, shouted angrily: "You are just the type of dishonest landlord who is making all this trouble; you came here from Russia. What have you done for this country in the emergency just passed?"

Two or three men at whom Mr. La Guardia, was pointing jumped up and shouted, "Are you pointing at me?" He said he was. The chamber broke into a bedlam of hoots, catcalls and hisses. The two of three landlords embraced in Mr. LaGuardia's gesture tried to climb over the desks. The uproar lasted several minutes. Finally Mr. La Guardia said that 10 per cent was return enough on investments in real estate, and that what is wanted is correction of the rent evils and not new laws to help tenants after they go into court.

The Rev. G. A. Carstensen, rector of the The Holy Rood Church of New York, protested against the "effrontery" of Stewart Browne and men of his kind who are not satisfied with 20 per cent profits on real estate. He recited how he had called his own landlord 'a thief and a liar" when his own rent was raised 47 per cent, and declared he had as much contempt for the greedy landlords as he had "for the swashbuckling Anderson." He said he dreaded the black spectre of May 1.

When he returned to his seat there came a scream which startled the big audience. A woman shouted "a minister is being insulted!" Scores of persons started up the aisle. Those nearby declared that one of the landlords had said when the rector took his seat "you are a hell of a minister," and that the latter had answered "You are a Shylock." A few more passes of the same kind were exchanged and half a dozen persons became involved.

The chambed was in an uproar. Men and women jumped on the seats to see. No blows were struck.

Then H. W. Berg, for the real estate owners, started to speak. The bills proposed amounted to confiscation of the right of ownership, he said. The trouble was not primarily high rent, he argued, but lack of rooms, which made big rent possible. He urged production as the solution, and said the Government could help by letting down the immigration bars and bringing in labor.

EDITOR'S MAIL

MR. BURNHAM EXPLAINS

Editor Review: In your editorial of Wednesday you ask why I am in favor of the prohibition of public campaign funds and yet against the prohibition of alcoholic moderation, cards, dancing, etc. The answer is easy.

My prohibition is just the reverse of the other. Campaign funds, if continued, as indicated in the press, are our attack or means of attack upon the public and upon the interests of the public. But if the majority of the public wants them they are able to have them. Your prohibition is an attack by the public on the individual and he has no means of defending himself. Unlike the public, his preference counts for nothing. The one is tyranny of the majority over the minority, in its private affairs. The other is the expression of the will of the public in a purely public matter, and therefore its own affairs. I do not, of course, urge that the individual has any right to attack or to debauch the public and as you know I am in favor of the strictest regulation. But, the public has no right to attack the liberty of the individual, which is the business of the individual and no one else. The public has rights and I acknowledge those and they must be protected. The individual has rights and they must be protected. The individual is at liberty to have a campaign fund of his own, but as in the case of cards, dancing, alcohol, etc., he has no right to direct his efforts in those respects, against the public. My resolution is directed against an attack upon the public, just as in the other case it is directed against an attack on the individual.

Tokyo to Treble Its Population.

If plans adopted by a special committee are carried out, Tokyo will become a city with an area of 226 square miles—a startling contrast to its present area of 30 square miles. The Tokyo Asahi claims that the absorption of the score of suburban cities, some of which the editor says possess larger populations than other principal cities, excepting Osaka, Yokohama, Kobe, Kyôto and Nagoya, will make Tokyo the largest city in the world. Suburban Tokyo now includes the populous residential and industrial communities of Shinagawa, Meguro, Shibuya, Harajuku, Yodobashi, Nakano, Osaki, Sugamo and many others. These towns are no longer suburbs, but parts of Greater Tokyo, and the movement is to bring them under one administration.

Old New Year's Day.

The act for the change of style provided that the legal year in England, 1752, should commence not on the 25th of March, but on the first of January, and that after the third of September in that year, the next ensuing day should be held as the 14th, thus dropping out 11 days. A similar change was made about the same time in Sweden and Tuscany, and Russia and Greece are now the only countries using the old style. The years 1800 and 1900, not being considered by us as leap years, have interjected two more days, actually making the difference 13 days between old and new style.

Will Not Read Bible in Schools.

The Atlanta board of education at a recent regular meeting reversed its action which ordered the reading of the Bible and repeating the Lord's prayer in the public schools of the city. This action was taken by the board after having heard read the address of the late Senator Joseph E. Brown, war governor of Georgia and the first president of the Atlanta board of education, which was delivered in 1873, and in which the Georgia senator delivered an argument against enforcing the use of the Bible in the schools.

Lawyer's Humor.

Mr. Hohenzollern says he prefers not to think of his exit from Germany as a "flight." While we would like to agree with William, we cannot help thinking of a phrase that occurrs in real estate leases. When a tenant is thrown out for not paying his rent or for abusing the premises the lawyers call it "an amicable action in ejectment."—Collier's Weekly.

Mistaken Responsibility.

Teacher—"How is it you were not at school yesterday, Tommy?"

Tommy—"Please, teacher, when I was coming to school I saw a steam roller."

Teacher—"Well, what about it?"

Tommy—"A man touched me on the shoulder, and said: 'Mind that steam roller, boy,' and I stood minding it all the afternoon."

Paid for Conversation.

Some of the unconventional "professions" which have developed in after-war England include the man who guarantees to be able to furnish an afternoon or evening's pleasant conversation at a moderate fee. Another ex-officer, who says he became an efficient letter writer while in the trenches in Flanders, will write breezy letters to interesting people for "so much per." Owing to the ravages of the war on old-established fortunes, scores of highly placed women are trying to obtain jobs as chaperons or companions to women and girls who have to travel. Others are willing to share in the management of large houses for a nominal wage. Thousands of girls, some of them of title, are applying for jobs as cinema actresses.

Some Futurist!

Grandfather (to aspiring artist, who flatters himself on the modernity of his outlook)—I have no wish to depress you, my boy, but I must say your grandmother used to knit better pictures than that!

ROUSES HENS FROM INACTION

Theory as to Benefit of Use of Artificial Illumination Would Seem to Be Plausible.

How can artificial illumination have any effect on egg production, is the question being asked by some skeptical poultrymen who have never made any tests.

The answer is, according to the workers in poultry husbandry at the New York state college of agriculture, that the light appears to equalize the time between meals and to shorten the period of inactivity of the fowls during the long nights.

The long nights of the late fall and winter months apparently cause the fowls to use a larger proportion of the night feed for bodily needs than would be the case under normal conditions in the springtime, when the days and the nights are of practically equal length.

At the time of the year when fowls lay the most eggs in New York state—the months of April, May and June—the days and the nights are approximately of equal length. Under these conditions, fowls appear to assimilate their feed, secure the proper amount of exercise, and form their eggs to best advantage.

The latter part of December there are about fifteen hours of darkness and nine hours of daylight, whereas in the latter part of June the reverse is true—there are approximately fifteen hours of daylight and nine hours of darkness.

In other words, illumination attempts to imitate spring conditions so far as the hours of activity and the regulation of feed supply are concerned.

CROW IS ENEMY OF FARMER

Under Modern Conditions There Seems Little Reason for the Bird's Continued Existence.

The record of the crow is like its coat—about as black as black can be—a writer in Detroit Free Press says. It may be that in the great plan of nature, some time in the past, the crow served a useful purpose—likewise the hawk and the buzzard. Take the buzzard, for example. Once protected by human laws everywhere because useful for removing carrion, the stench of which offended the nostrils of all animal life, it is now outlawed, because man realizes that it is better to burn or bury the dead—leaving no excuse for the existence of the disease-carrying buzzard. So, in the beginning, the mission of the crow, we may conjecture, was to preserve some equilibrium, some balance in the economy of nature. It may be he was placed here to hold in check the weed seed and grain eating birds, because weeds were a factor in the past in covering the waste places of the earth and making them fertile. However that may have been, there seems to be no excuse for his existence now since man, the agriculturist, seeds the waste places to useful grains and grasses and needs the help of the insectiverous birds.

Japanese Picture Star.

Tsuri Aoki, the Japanese picture star, who has been commissioned to adapt and modernize the works of a number of great British and American dramatists to the requirements of the native Japanese theatres, is a niece of Mme. Sadda Yacco, who was the first woman in Japan to be permitted to appear on the stage, women's roles during all the thousands of years previous having been assumed by men players. Miss Aoki's uncle was Kawakima, reformer of the Japanese theatre. She emigrated to America in early girlhood with these relatives. Because of her thorough knowledge of both Japanese and English, and of the dramatic traditions of both countries, she was selected to make the translations of the English classics.

HUDSON SEAL COATS HAVE INCREASED IN VALUE MORE THAN FIVE TIMES OVER

Garment That Cost $100 a Few Years Ago Brings $500 Today—Muskrats at Rice Lake Being Starved out by Raising and Lowering of Waterr

My lady's Hudson seal coat, that cannot be purchased today, style and [illegible] say $100 three or four years ago, material being equal, for less than five times that sum. No one is profiteering either and the profits made by those who handle the raw material come no higher than they were when the price of the finished article was lower. The producer of the raw fur is getting more for his wares, but it must be said on his behalf that the supply which he handles is limited. The whole problem admits of easy explanation.

Mr. T. E. Curvin of the Peterborough Raw Fur Company, has for years bought the catch of muskrat pelts from the Indians at Rice Lake. These are sold by closed bids, the highest taking the stock. Four years ago Mr. Curvin paid 66 cents each for the pelts. A year later they sold for $2.55. This year he expects that they will bring $5 each. All depends upon the price which is obtained for rat skins at the sale of furs at Montreal today.

The annual catch of muskrats at Rice Lake means to the Indians what the wheat crop does to the western farmer. It is his one source of revenue and the field for the propagation of the species is excellent provided man did not interfere with the works of nature. But the lowering and raising of the water in the Trent Canal system to meet the exigencies of modern navigation has spoiled the home of the muskrat and the Indian trapper is the loser. A deputation will wait upon the Department of Game and Fisheries at Ottawa at an early date to bring this condition to the attention of the authorities under whose jurisdiction it is.

The auction sale of furs in Montreal, started the other day, is a new institution in Canada and it has been inaugurated to keep pace with this department of business in London, Eng., New York and St. Louis where such sales are held annually. The furs produced in Canada are beyond all question the best in the world and the sales at Montreal will attract dealers from all sections of the United States and the British Isles. The American buyer has the advantage over all competitors on account of the exchange rate.

The price of muskrat skins for this year has not been fixed and will not be until the results of today's sales at Montreal are known. This is the first day that this class of pelts has been offered but no one need be surprised if the figure for the best grades goes beyond $5. There will be sold today in Montreal 624 white fox, 5,000 fitch, 640 lynx, 320,000 rat skins, 1190 fisher and 62,500 white lamb pelts.

TORONTO BUILDERS ARE SUFFERING FROM COLD FEET

AFRAID TO BEGIN OPERATIONS THIS YEAR ON ACCOUNT OF PRICES

Toronto house builders are suffering from a severe attack of "cold feet," report says, and 1920 will be a decidedly quiet year for this industry. The high costs of material and labor have inspired a fear in builders of being caught in a weakening market with high-priced houses on their hands. There is a feeling in the air that prices have almost reached the summit.

The foregoing is the opinion of W. J. White, a builder of ten years' experience. Mr. White mentioned several other builders who have been operating for many years in Toronto and who have decided not to put up any houses this year. Last fall Mr. White bought a piece of land, and intended to begin early this spring the erection of 25 houss. Some weeks ago he made the round of the supply concerns and got prices of material These quotations show that he would have to get $5600 for the same six-room house that he sold last year for $4600. To proceed with his plans under the new scale of prices looked like a considerable venture in view of the feeling abroad that prices must soon break. He thought the matter over for a couple of weeks and then went back to the supply houses to confirm prices and to see what the outlook for materials in quantities was. He found that materials for a six-roomed house had advanced over $300 in the two weeks. This meant that by giving contracts before the next jump took place he could sell the houses at $5,900 or $6000, but by selling at $5,000 he would not make as much profit as he made last year in selling at $4600. Mr. White decided not to take a chance. He will rest up and wait for the break of prices, which, he says, cannot be long delayed.

Prices Reach Limit

The builders' conviction that prices have about reached the limit is shared by the loaning companies. Many of them have greatly reduced the percentage of loans to builders and some of them are charging better than 7 per cent. for money.

Mr. Gregory, of the legal firm of Gregory, Gooderham, Campbell & Coleman, who do a large loaning business with builders, said there was a sharp falling off applications for loans and that the outlook was for a quiet year in the building industry. Present values, he said were believed to be abnormal, and first mortgages were running around 45 per cent. of the value of the building, instead of up to 60 per cent., as formerly. The prevailing rate, said Mr. Gregory, is 7 per cent.

Mr. Henderson of the Union Trust Company said his firm had made a practice in former years of lending $2500 on houses costing about $5000 when complete. This year such a house would cost $8000 to erect, but the loaning company could not advance 50 per cent. or $4000 on it because it might be worth only $6000 before the mortgage ran out and the security would be very much impaired.

"Loaning companies are holding advances closer to 40 per cent. than to 50," he said. "The feeling is growing that prices have now about reached the peak."

Mr. Henderson says there is not as much money available for building loans as in former years and that 7 per cent. is about the minimum rate. Some builders are paying higher in order to get larger advances.

Josaphat Thibard of Montreal was sent to the penitentiary for three years for chicken thefts.

The maple sugar season in Brockville district promises to be one of the best in years.

The Y. M. C. A. defeated the Machine Gun Co. last night in the City Indoor Baseball League by a score of 35 to 30. From the first innings the Y. M. C. A. asserted their superiority over the Emma Gees and were sure of a victory. In the last innings, however, the Emma Gees staged an eleventh hour rally and reduced an 18-run lead down to five runs. Unfortunately for them at this point the game came to an end, leaving the Machine Gun men only visions of what might have been.

STEEL WORKERS' NEW SCALE

Toronto Union Men Will Demand $1 an Hour After April 1.

Toronto, March 26.— Structural steel workers, whose ultimatum to steel-erecting firms expires on April 1, met last night in the Labor Temple and decided to stand by their demand of $1 an hour for a forty-four hour week, which had been increased from 85 cents an hour when employers refused to recognize the union and answer communications asking for conferences. Leonard Bowring, its Business Secretary, stated that the union would make no move until after April 1, when its members would be again summoned to a meeting. Mr. Bowring stated that a well-known firm of engineers several days ago tendered a contract to steel-erecting forms of the United States and Canada for an important Toronto structure which contained a union Labor clause, and that every firm returned the contract without comment.

DAD YOUR HAIR IS FALLING FAST

"Danderine" will check that ugly dandruff and stop hair coming out

To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair usually stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Soon every hair on your scalp shows new life, vigor, brightness, thickness and more color.

Telling The Story of Their Loveliness Better Than We Can

And Joining Hands with the Springtime To Make Gay The Easter Season Are Frocks, Suits and Accessories That Claim Your Admiration

WITH only an odd bit of ice to remind us of bleak winter, and Spring awakening under the rays of a warm sun, we turn to the calendar and find that Easter is but a few days away. Easter! the season that custom has made the official date for the promenade of new finery. It finds this store prepared—prepared to supply everything from the garment itself to the most trivial details that are termed accessories.

We etxend to you an invitation to make use of the many conveniences of this establishment. Our Rest Room on the second floor and our Loungs Room on the third floor provide excellent accommmodation for the weary shopper.

Nineteen Answers To Your Footwear Needs

If it is a Pump of Oxford and many more if we include Boots in the assortment.

12 different models in Pumps.

7 different models in Oxfords.

Each style has an individuality all its own—a different heel, a rounder or more pointed toe as the case may be, but always something that contribute distinction. We also bring to your attention Tweedie Boot Tops in four different colours.

HURLBUT AND MACFARLANE WELTS FOR CHILDREN

They are the most economical shoes you can buy for they give double the service. Good leather and good workmanship is necessary in children's footwear for we never heard of a boy or girl who was not hard on shoes.

Our Ladies' Shoe Shine Stand in our Ladies' Shoe Department is proving to be a real convenience now that the streets are bare and rubbers are no longer necessary.

The Exalted Position of the Suit is Unassailed Many Models That Will Meet With Your Favor

Fussy or tailored. That's a brief outline of the style census. Some with braids and flared hips and others with patch pockets and narrow leather belts. The materials are serge, tricotine, gabardine, poiret twill, etc. The colors are navy, gray, taupe, sand and tweeds. This is just a little sketch to which you may find exceptions for it is only a outline.

The suit in the illustration with the narrow belt can be had in navy blue gabardine and is priced at $65. Others can be had from $47.50 to $110.

THE SEPARATE SKIRT HAS FOUND A COMPANION IN THE SHORT COAT

It must have been pre-arranged or else it was a lucky coincidence that brought about the introduction for they are a happy combination.

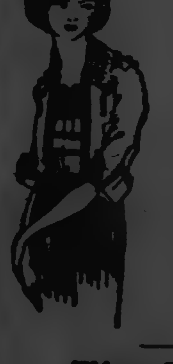
The desirable modish little Coats we speak of can be had for $20 and $25.

All-wool Plaid Skirts that are so popular from $22.95 to $33.75.

Skirts of the new novelty silk Kumsi Kamsa are priced from $39.75 to $42.50.

Then there are many other lower priced models of both wool and silk.

A New Blouse For The New Skirt



In this day of Blouses that slip-on, tie-on, tuck-in, with Peplum and Aprons, it is necessary that there be at least one smart representative of the diversity of kinds. Developed in cobwebby, georgette, crepe silks and chiffons are Blouses designed for sports dress for wear with a tailleur and for "in between" times. Every woman wants a well balanced collection and this display makes it easily possible. Lingerie priced from $1.98 to $11.50, Georgettes from $6.95 to $25, Silks from $4.50 to $22.

The Hoover Electric Suction Sweeper, A Good Rug and A Good Housekeeper Have Much In Common

It dislodges the deeply embedded grit and straightens the nap and with little labor the rug or carpet is kept clean from day to day or week to week, not from season to season, as is the case with the old method of beater and broom, when once a year it is taken out to the yard and beaten until it is only partly cleaned. You need never take a carpet from the floor if you use a Hoover on it, for "it beats, as it sweeps, as it cleans." This is more than an advertising slogan, its a fact that any Hoover Suction Sweeper will substantiate.

A Demonstration is now being conducted on our Main Floor by an Expert from the factory.

A Collar To Adorn The Neck

Tiny roll collars of georgette, organdie or net. Mostly all are edged with lace and many with embroidered motifs. Priced from 85c to $3.

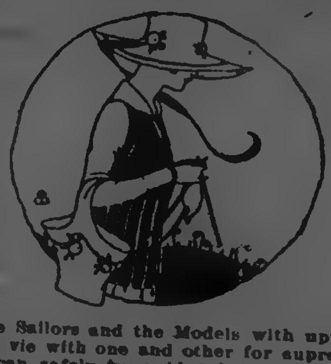
The Question of a New Hat



The Sailors and the Models with upturned brims vie with one and other for supremacy. You can safely be guided by choosing that which is most becoming for fashion is in favor of both. As usual with Spring millinery flowers and ribbons are freely used, but never before have they been arranged in such pleasing manners. Clever hands and original minds have devised new ways for their usage. We have a splendid array priced from $7.50 to $15.

Volumes Could Be Written About the Silken Dresses For Afternoon Wear

Much scope is permitted in the selection of materials. For instance, you can have taffeta, tricolette, charmeuse, crepe meteor, georgette, plain or printed, or combinations of georgette and taffeta and charmeuse and georgette. For trimming, embroidery, beadings, ribbons and puffings are skilfully employed.

The miss or small woman who is in search of something in navy blue will find cause for enthusiasm when viewing this taffeta and georgette combination. The overskirt is georgette with wide bandings of taffeta and piped with sand colored silk and the sleeves are finished in a like manner. The price is a most reasonable one at $32.

The suppleness of this Navy Blue Satin lends itself admirably to the drapings of the present season. It is touched with American beauty on the bodice and liberally used on the hip. Price $33.75.

Navy Taffeta and Georgette again play a prominent role. A wide crushed girdle of the silk defines the waist and a gathered frill forms its lower edge. A knife pleating finishes the round yoke. Priced at $35.

Handsome Haberdashery For Particular Men

"Just Wright" Shoes—a shoe that lives up to its name. It has an nation-wide reputation, but we do not sell it on its reputation. We sell it on its merits. That is the way all our merchandise is sold.

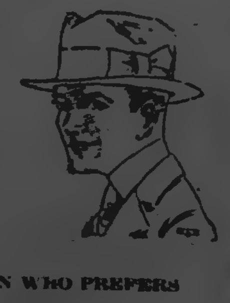
HANDSOME HATS FOR ANY HEAD



The famous Borsalino is among our collection. No matter how much we say in its favor we would not be saying anything untrue. It sells at $10. The King Hat (a good line of soft felts) can be had at $4.50 and $6.

FOR THE LAD OR MAN WHO PREFERS A CLOTH CAP

They are genuinely fine in style, material and workmanship. Some are tweeds, others worsted and many plain cloths. All have one piece tops and are the proper weight for present wear. We have not mentioned color for there is every shade that is consistent with good taste.

Spring Suits For Men and Young Men

Brimful of style, these Suits might figuratively straighten up and step out. They are cut on enterprising lines, not too advanced, yet leading the rank and file. Breezy without being obtrusive. Convincing clothes. Latest Spring styles and cuts. Leishman, Society Brand and Style Craft Clothes.

MOVE FOR INDEMNITY JUMP IS REPORTED TO BE UNDER WAY

Toronto, March 26.— It was whispered about the corridors of the Ontario Legislature yesterday that at the Tuesday Coalition Caucus, the subject of an increase in the sessional indemnity from $1,400 to $2,000 came up. In Quebec, the sessional indemnity has been raised to somewhere about that figure and why should Ontario lag behind in dealing justly with her legislators. It is said that sentiment in favor of the increase was pretty strong, but that the Government refused to listen to any extra indemnity proposition.

FATHER SHOT BOY TO SAVE HIS SOUL

WOULD RATHER KILL HIM, HE SAYS THAN HAVE POLICE DO IT

Chicago, March 25.— Frank Piano, Jr., today was at the county hospital with three bullet wounds in his body. Frank Pinamo, Sr., was held at a police station, where officers said a murder charge would be placed if the eighteen-year-old boy died.

"I shot him to save his soul," the aged man told the police. "I would rather kill him myself than have the police do it. For months I have been worried every time I heard of a 'stick-up' for fear my son had been killed. I tried to get him to buckle down, but he would not do it."

Frank, Jr., according to court records, slipped into a near-crime record when he was 14 years old. Two years later he had become a recognized gangster, and repeatedly was arrested. A year ago his father carried him bodily to the police and had Frank Jr., confined to a boys' home. Two months later he was released at the instance of Mrs. Piano.

Between sobs the aged father told the police of how for years he had herded his family of 10 other children to the Church of Our Lady of [illegible] on Sunday, but that Frank, Jr. always was missing—"hanging out with his gang."

Collective Bargaining Not Defined in Amended Industrial Disputes Act

Winnipeg, March 25. — Premier Norris, concerning amendments to the Industrial Disputes Act, stated tonight that collective bargaining in its technical sense would not be defined in the amendments. There is every possibility, however, that the clauses will set forth that labor can organize for all lawful purposes. Amendments will also provide that it shall be illegal for a strike or lockout to take place until the dispute has been brought before a joint council and a decision made.

THEATRICAL

NAUGHTY-NICE FARCE AT THE GRAND SATURDAY

"NIGHTIE NIGHT" WILL BE PRESENTED BY ARTISTS, MATINEE AND EVENING

"Nightie Night," the jolly rollicking farce that held forth for many months at the Princess Theatre in New York creating new laugh records at this house of hits, comes to the Grand Opera House, matinee and night, Saturday, March 27th. The offering is presented by Adolph Klauber, associated with the Selwyns in many of their successes. Mr. Klauber sends "Nightie Night" here with Franciha Byrne and all his associates identified with the New York triumph of this naughty-nice farce: including Dorothy Mortimer, Suzanne Willa, Malcolm Duncan, Marie Chambers, Grant Mills, Ruby Craven, Cyril Raymond, George W. Pierpont and Oscar Knapp.

Martha M. Stanley and Adelaide Matthews turned out this play which added so much to the gayety of the Metropolis all season, and until very recently and so appreciative of the farce's merit were the critics that they hardly would believe this was the first effort of the two playwrights. Some conception of the fun-possibilities may be gleaned from a glimpse at some of the complications they have conceived. Billy Moffat, so conscientiously pictured by Mr. Byrne, makes a downright effort to live a model life as a husband. Inadvertently Billy has admitted an innocent affair with a certain Trixie Lorraine, dancer, and when encounters Trixie during a business trip on a train and fails to make the fact known at home, although his sister has witnessed the meeting on the train, he is confronted with situations positively hilarious, until they reach an uproarious climax by the discovery of Trixie in his own guest chamber, clad only in her "nightie." Billy's brother-in-law has sublet the apartment to Trixie, each unaware of the other's identity, and things would have been straightened out but for the arrival of Trixie's fiery and jealous husband, one of Billy's intimate friends. It sounds broadly bright, but when the naturalness with which the incidents are worked out is witnessed there is not the slightest offense to the most straightlaced. This despite the fact that Trixie must frolic in and out of tubs and closets through two acts, clad merely in her night attire. As one of the New York critics remarked in his review it merely produces "a bumper crop of laughs." The management send not only the entire original cast, an exceptional one, but also the complete production used at the Princess.

THE NEW IRENE CASTLE FILM IS STRONG DRAMA OF MARRIED LIFE

"PERSONAL LIBERTY" QUESTION RAISED AND ANSWERED IN "INVISIBLE BOND"

Do you believe in Free Love? "The Invisible Bond," thenew picture starring Irene Castle, which will be on view at the Grand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, is a screen version of what happens when a young husband insists upon his "personal liberty" and the right to associate intimately with attractive young women of his acquaintance. It was adapted from Sophie Kerr's recent novel, "The See-Saw."

The story centers around the married life of Harleth and Marcia Crossey, the latter role played by Mrs. Castle. Harleth has an affair with a coquette named Leila Templeton, which leads ultimately to a divorce between the Crosseys. Thereupon the ex-husband marries his charmer and discovers that her views on "personal liberty" are the same as he expounded to Marcia and that she reserves the right, though married, to consort with other men. In the end Leila meets a tragic death through an automobile accident in which one of her male flames, infuriated by the manner in which she has played with his affections, plunges them both over a high cliff.

The picture is a Paramount-Artcraft and is played by an excellent company. Huntley Gordon is Mrs. Castle's leading man, and Charles Maigne was the director.

Flogging Burglars.

Ancient British law has been revived by London justices in dealing with burglars and petty criminals. Lashes on the bare back with the cat-o'-nine tails used to be a favorite sentence, but in modern times it has practically been abandoned. Alarmed at the rapid spread of crime, however, Justice Horridge revived the old-time law and has sentenced Walter Wetton and Walter Brown, convicted highwaymen, to the "cat."

"I want it to be understood that I shall not hesitate in proper cases to inflict the punishment I am going to do on you two men. You will receive twelve lashes from the 'cat'." This was the judge's dictum and other courts are following suit.

Burglary in England is a profession followed practically with impunity at the present time. Government post offices seem to be favorite places for the thieves to operate. Bond Street shops are raided nightly and frequently warehouses containing costly silks and furs have been cleaned out by burglars using automobile trucks to carry away the loot. But few of the offenders have been captured by the police.

The revival of the "cat" and other medieval forms of punishment should, it is thought by the authorities, have a salutary effect on criminals. Prison sentences seem to have no effect on the hardened offender, but physical pain will, it is thought, have the desired effect of preventing wholesale crime.

History Repeats Itself, Recalling Great Speech Delivered by Gladstone

In few things is the present world controversy concerning Turkey more remarkable than in the way history is repeating itself. Forty years or so ago, the great anti-Turkish movement which swept over Great Britain, occasioned by the nameless outrages of the Turk upon the Bulgarians and other Christian peoples in the Balkans, was led by Gladstone. In the early autumn of 1876 he suddenly emerged from the retirement into which he had recently withdrawn, and, with the publication of his famous pamphlet on the Bulgarian atrocities, embarked on a campaign against the pro-Turkish policy of the Government which ended, four years later, in the overthrow of Lord Beaconsfield, and Gladstone's return to power. This extraordinary effort was marked by three tremendous battles, the great denunciation through the pamphlet, a memorable speech in the House of Commons in the early days of the Russo-Turkish War, and the Midlothian campaign. In many ways, the speech was the most remarkable of the three. "I shall never forget," declared Mr. Balfour, many years afterwards, the impression that speech left on my mind. As a mere feat of physical endurance it was almost unsurpassed; as a feat of parliamentary courage, parliamentary skill, parliamentary endurance, and parliamentary eloquence, I believe it will always be unequalled."

The occasion of its delivery was one of peculiar tension. A conference of the powers, which had met at Constantinople in the previous December, in an effort to settle the Turkish question, had broken down. A subsequent effort in the following March had likewise failed, and Russia had declared war on Turkey. Mr. Gladstone was all for immediate action. His colleagues in the Opposition were all for delay. Mr. Gladstone was in a peculiar position. Two years before he had vacated his place as leader of the Liberal party. Indeed, he did not regard himself as being, even technically, amongst the leaders of the party. He tried, therefore, at first, to induce the official leaders to act in the matter, but, on their continued refusal, decided that considerations of humanity overrode all mere party considerations, and determined to introduce a motion in the House, which, if it had been accepted, would have completely reversed the country's Near Eastern policy. "This day," Gladstone writes in his diary, under date of April 27, 1877, "I took my decision, a severe one, in face of my not having a single approver in the upper circle. But had I in the first days of September asked the same body whether I ought to write my pamphlet, I believe the unanimous answer would have been, No."

A few days later, Lord Granville and Lord Wolverton came round sufficiently to his point of view to endeavor to prevent any kind of breach in the party, but when Gladstone faced the House on his motions, on May 7, it was in the presence of tremendously hostile ministerial forces and a sullen and silent Opposition. To quote from his diary again: "For over two hours I was assailed from every quarter, except the Opposition bench, which was virtually silent. At last I rose on the main question, nearly in despair as to the result, but resolved at least not to fail through want of effort. I spoke two and one-half hours. House gradually came round and at last was more than good. It was over at 9.30."

Thus simply does Mr. Gladstone record the matter, but many who heard him on that occasion must have agreed with Mr. Balfour that they had listened to an effort which, in many respects, would "always be unequaled." The speech, however, is the thing. Take this one passage in what Lord Morley calls the "noble peroration": "You talk to me of the established tradition and policy in regard to Turkey. I appeal to an established tradition, older, wider, nobler far—a tradition not which disregards British interests, but which teaches you to seek the promotion of these interests in obeying the dictates of honor and justice. And, sir, what is be the end of this? Are we to dress up the fantastic ideas some people entertain of this policy and that policy in the garb of British interests, and then, with a new and base idolatry, fall down and worship them?" Or take this appeal, made after describing the enormities of the Turk as Gladstone alone could describe them: "But, sir, the removal of that woe and shame is a great and noble prize. It is a prize well worth competing for. It is not yet too late to try to win it. I believe there are men in the Cabinet who would try to win it, if they were free to act on their own beliefs and aspirations. It is not yet too late, I say, to become competitors for that prize."

The appositeness of this appeal to the present day and hour is something more than remarkable. The House was, in the end, as Gladstone puts it, "more than good." True, after five days of debate and party drilling, the motions were defeated by 354 votes to 223, but the speech was, none the less, one of the greatest moral triumphs ever won in the House of Commons.

Related to George IV?

Referring to a New York despatch to the effect that William Fitzherbert, who died at Brooklyn recently, claimed to be a great-grandson of King George IV by his marriage with Mrs. Fitzherbert, and as such entitled to large estates, the London Daily News says: "Whatever the facts about the marriage, there is no doubt that Mrs. Fitzherbert believed herself to be lawfully married to George IV. It has always been understood that she died childless.

Plants Are Very Sensitive

A GREAT deal of curiosity has been aroused by the discoveries in plant life which have been demonstrated by Sir Jagadis Chandra Bose, director of the Bose Research Institute in Calcutta.

Two years ago this institute was dedicated to the nation, its main purpose being to continue the researches of the founder and to carry on, with the aid of all resources of science, his large conceptions of the investigation of the processes of life.

In the pursuit of these investigations he has found inorganic matter anything but inert. A universal reaction seemed to bring together metal, plant and animal under a common law. All exhibited essentially the same phenomena of fatigue and depression, together with possibilities of recovery and exaltation, and also of that permanent irresponsiveness which is associated with death.

In natural sequence to the investigation of the response in inorganic matter has followed a prolonged study of the activities of plant life, and a comparison with the corresponding functioning of animal life. But since plants for the most part seem motionless and passive, special apparatus of extreme delicacy had to be invented which would magnify the temor of excitation and also measure the perception period of a plant to a thousandth part of a second.

Ultra microscopic movements were measured and recorded, the length measure often being smaller than a fraction of a single wave length of light. The secret of plant life was thus for the first time revealed by the autographs of the plant itself.

The investigations have convinced Sir Jagadis that all trees and plants are fully alive to changes of environment and that they respond visibly to all stimuli, even to the slight fluctuation of light, caused by a drifting cloud. By the instrument, the crescograph, the growth of the plants and its variations under different treatment are instantly recorded.

It is expected that this method of investigation will advance practical agriculture since for the first time it is possible to analyze and study separately the conditions which modify the rate of growth. Experiments which in the past would have taken months — and their results vitiated by unknown changes — can now be carried on in a few minutes.

Some time ago Sir Jagadis made a series of experiments in order to determine the range of perception of plants to light, whether visible or invisible. We ourselves can perceive light which lies within a single octave the wave length of which varies from one-forty-thousandth to one-eighty-thousandth part of an inch. Above or below this octave the human eye fails to detect light.

It was found that plants respond not only to the invisible ultra-violet light at one end of the spectrum, but also to the entire range of the vast ethereal spectrum, and even to wireless messages transmitted through space. A special apparatus records the plant's reception of the wireless signal, also its response to light in the form of a definite script.

There are three ways in which plants record signals through space, the first being by electrical response, the second by the twitch of leaflets of sensitive plants, such as the mimosa, and the third by the sudden acceleration or retardation of growth in any seeding.

Experiments have shown the effect of chloroform upon the electrical responses of a carrot. The anaesthetic was applied after the first few normal responses, and then the pulsations gradually disappeared.

Chloroform and cold benumb plants, alcohol makes them unsteady as a man who is drunk; foul air excites them. In sunshine they are exhilarated; in rain depressed; and poisons and violence kills them.

In a word, Sir Jagadis has shown by his experiments that plants are responsive or irresponsive under the same conditions as a human being, sometimes to a greater and sometimes to a lesser degree. His ingenious recorders are pens of incredible lightness, with which lilies or cabbages may write down their impressions of the outer world in a script we can understand. Use these instruments intelligently and vegetation, hitherto mute, will whisper its story.

The most fascinating and perhaps the most dramatic experiments Sir Jagadis performs are those on the death of plants.

To the registering lever of his instrument he attaches a plant, and then places it in a vessel of water which is carefully heated. As the temperature reaches 140 degrees Fahrenheit the line shoots up abruptly. It is the death spasm—the last response of which the plant is capable.

Sir Jagadis has experimented with many different species of flowering plants. All twitch and die in the same temperature. In the transactions of the Bose Institute it is stated that we now understand what the curious movements of leaves and flowers mean when they are scorched and scalded. It is not simply the mechanical curling and twisting that heat produces in all things. It is regarded as a genuine death throe.

The sudden paling of the passion flower may now be interpreted, it is said, as the end of life, and the quick opening and closing of a French marigold in hot water as the writing of death. A new meaning is imparted to the variegated hues of flowers growing on the same stem; for the stripes that crawl up on the petals of old blossoms, the colored spots that grow larger and larger on leaves and flowers, and that are so highly prized by breeders of plants, prove, when tested to be dying areas.

PAINS SO BAD STAYED IN BED

Young Mrs. Beecroft Had Miserable Time Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have suffered for three years from a female trouble and consequent weakness, pain and irregularity which kept me in bed four or five days each month. I nearly went crazy with pains in my back, and for about a week at a time I could not do my work. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the Hamilton Spectator and I took it. Now I have no pain and am quite regular unless I overwork or stay on my feet from early morning until late at night. I keep house and do all my own work without any trouble. I have recommended the Compound to several friends."—Mrs. EMILY BEECROFT, 269 Victoria Ave. N., Hamilton, Ontario.

For forty years women have been telling how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It is made from native roots and herbs and contains no narcotics or harmful drugs.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

MANY NEW WORDS.

Aviation Has Greatly Enlarged the Language.

Students of the English language attribute to aerial navigation the addition of 200 words. As the average man has had in the past a speaking vocabulary of only 850 of the more than 600,000 words in the English language, the increase brought about by the airplane and airship is regarded as remarkable.

For the benefit of those as yet unacquainted with the true meaning of such words as "fuselage," "nacelle," "drift," or "parasite resistance," the Manufacturers' Aircraft Association has prepared a "flying dictionary."

"Never before has so much aeronautical news been printed," says the Manufacturers' Aircraft Association article, "yet one of the handicaps is the proper description of equipment so as to give the public — generally uninstructed — an accurate idea of the magnitude of current happenings. This difficulty has also been encountered in government aircraft activities and appears more than ever now that commercial aviation, with proper encouragement, promises to develop soon.

"The 200 or more aeronautical words or phrases in common use on the flying fields or in the aircraft plants are strangers to the average reader. For instance, every one probably has heard of the aileron, yet many may not know that "the ailerons of a biplane are arranged in the trailing edges in a unique manner, causing it to respond at the slightest touch of the controls and enabling the pilot to ignore the lateral altitude of the machine entirely.

"An aileron, to be more specific, is a bit of a wing tip fixed on hinges back of the rear edge at the ends of the wings. It is controlled by wires. When moved from the pilot's seat the ailerons on one side raise and those on the other side decline proportionately, thereby allowing the wind pressure against them to tip the 'plane to either side as desired.

"A bi-plane is a two-winged machine, one wing placed above the other. A majority of machines are biplanes.

"The trailing edge" is the rear edge of the wings. Speaking of gliding, it means not only gliding, but the angle of the path the airplane takes when it descends under the influence of gravity alone. A 'plane usually glides by keeping its nose fixed toward the horizon, when it will glide straightaway eight miles for every mile it is above the earth, or eight in one.

"An airplane is a machine that depends for support in the air on 'planes or wings and the propelling power of its motors to keep it there, overcoming gravity and at the same time propelling it forward. An airship is not an airplane, but a balloon, elongated, somewhat cigar shaped and provided with a propelling system, car for passengers, rudders and stabilizing surfaces.

"There are three kinds of airships, the non-rigid, whose form or shape is alone maintained by the pressure of gas inside and aided by the cables and ropes which hold the passenger car underneath. Then there is the rigid airship, or one having a stiff wood or metal framework inside the big gas bag to hold its shape for it. The semi-rigid airship has a rigid metal or wooden keel or spine along its under side, which holds it partly in shape, aided by the expansion of gas inside.

"An aviator is an operator or pilot of an airplane, or any heavier-than-air craft. A balloon is a lighter-than-air craft. The term 'aviator' applies to either a man or a woman who drives airplanes. The term 'fuselage' is common, yet not wholly understood. It is the body of the plane.

"The 'tail group' is general, and it contains, besides the rudder or rudders, depending on the type of machine, elevators in a horizontal position, one on either side of the rudder, and fins which are vertical to the elevators and are fixed, forming one plane with the rudder when it is in a natural position. The controls are the wheel or 'stick' for use of the pilot in guiding his craft, the same as the wheel of an automobile or the rudder bar of a boat. A control has three uses, where in other vehicles such as the motor car or boat only two uses can be found for it. The reason is that aviators have to contend with three dimensions. An auto or boat can travel only backward or forward, or sidewise. A plane can do these things and besides can go either up or down.

"A hangar is a shed for an airplane. An airplane also has 'dope' in large quantities. Dope is a substance resembling glue, etc., used in treating the cloth surfaces of airplanes and balloons to increase strength, produce tautness and act as a filler to maintain the air and prevent the fabric from leaking or tearing. Its base usually is cellulose. The nacelle of an airplane or dirigible is a structure to which the wings are attached. The engine is moored and the passengers are stationed in it. A nacelle never extends back to the tail, but sometimes protrudes out on front and holds the propeller.

"The term 'pancake' came into use during the war. It means that an airplane, when landing, straightens out almost level with the ground, instead of diving into it."

An Athletic Woman.

Miss Marguerite Cody, the first woman journalist in the Press Gallery of the British House of Commons, has many athletic records to her credit. She swims, boxes, rows, plays hockey and tennis, practices jiu-jitsu, and enjoys flying. Five years ago she swam across Belfast Lough, a distance of six and a half miles, only one man having previously accomplished the same feat.

Fashion Note.

There was a time when the corset started up near the collar bone and ran down to the hips. But nowadays the corset starts at the hips and runs down to the knees.

BEAUTIFUL JAPAN.

Even a Rainy Day Is Made Picturesque.

A rainy day in Japan! Mountains half disappearing in wraiths of mist like the landscapes in old kakemono to glossy black by slanting sheets of rain; coolies in bristling straw raincoats; and everywhere great oiled paper umbrellas. Little Japanese women trip along daintily on their wooden clogs, oblivious to the muddy rivers under foot, totally eclipsed under their red, blue, green, yellow or black umbrellas. Shop apprentices and errand boys hurry along with umbrellas decorated with great black characters indicating the name of the firm or their trade. Out in Asakusa, Tokio's popular quarter, huge red umbrellas protect the old women who sell beans to feed the doves that dwell in the eaves of the Temple of Morning Grasses. At the entrance to every house a whole row of open umbrellas are drying. No two paper umbrellas are alike in Japan, perhaps because they are all made by hand—bamboo ribs, rattan handles, and the patterns stenciled or formed by different layers of colored papers. The umbrella is as necessary to the Japanese actor or dancer as his fan, says Elsie F. Weil, in Asia. In the old prints the umbrella appears constantly as a harmonious part of the design. The geisha have umbrellas appropriate for wistaria season and cherry viewing, for winter and summer. An umbrella may even be the theme of poetry, as it was for the Japanese poet who sang: "In the spring rain an umbrella passes by on which petals are softly falling, falling." Yet the Japanese have been able to find something picturesque in our wire-framed umbrellas of uniform black; they call them "bat wings."

Color Photography.

If the claims of a Russian professor—Dr. S. M. Prokudin-Gorsky—are correct, a revolution in photography and cinema shows is promised.

The professor is said to have discovered a secret emulsion which will make color photography possible for the million.

For many years color photography has occupied the minds of experts, one of the chief problems being to make the process capable of snapshot as well as time work. As a result of the professor's discovery, it is claimed that the problem has been solved, and the exposure can be as rapid as with the ordinary emulsion—thus fitting the invention for cinema work.

The amateur photographer will merely have to provide himself with a special camera designed for color work and plates or films covered with the secret emulsion. After exposing in the ordinary way he will then have to reconcile himself to developing with three separate solutions, and printing will be rather more complicated than with the usual paper, but he is promised a result which will reproduce natural colors without any of the crudity of some color processes.

It is hoped that the special camera and plates will be put on the market within a few months by a British firm.—Tit-Bits.

Dreadful Threat.

"Late again!" cried the irate moving picture director to the members of his company. "Do you actors think that you can stroll into the studio at half-past ten every morning and get away with it? This isn't a national bank. But, by humphrey, I'll get even with you! Tomorrow we start filming that Alpine drama with the fog and cloud effects. Report at the old quarry at 4:30 a. m. You are all going to be shot at sunrise every morning for a week." Being shot at sunrise is harder hardship for a movie actor than it is for a prisoner of war.—Film Fun.

WOMAN PROPOSES.

In Some Lands It Is Always Leap Year.

Once again with 1920, women have a chance to take the initial step towards providing themselves with an introduction to the heavenly kingdom, a boon which marriage brings to them, according to Mormon philosophy. The return of a year which leaps forward a day, bringing to them a privilege monopolized by man three years out of four, has no significance for women of many lands, since they enjoy that liberty all the time.

The women of no race possess more freedom in this matter than the Hopi Indians of Arizona. A maiden does not woo the man of her choice, but simply and forcibly states her proposition to his mother without any encouragement on his part. Her only preliminary proceeding is to do her hair in two gigantic whirls, one over each ear. This is her announcement that she is going a-courting. These peculiar knots are intended to represent the blossoms of a squash vine, symbol of virginity, but to those untutored in their meaning they resemble huge door knobs set at a rather violent angle. When some debutantes thus announce that they are 'out on the carpet,' it is said that as many as six or eight of the eligible young men of the tribe literally take to the woods.

After this aggressive young lady has selected her victim and his mother has agreed that he shall be sacrificed, she serves in the house of her future mother-in-law for thirty days, grinding meal, very much after the fashion that Jacob of old served fourteen years for Rachel. The poor youth in the meantime does not sit idly by, but weaves her wedding garments.

Among the Batus of the Uganda Protectorate of Africa, if a girl is not fortunate enough to be asked in marriage in her home town, she goes to another village and offers herself to some man there. Though not honored in her own country, she at least receives consideration in that of her neighbor, for a woman is an agricultural laborer and a man is not likely to refuse such a business asset.

The Galla woman of the eastern coast of Africa has the rare privilege among savage and half-civilized people of refusing to marry a man who is undesirable to her.

Little is known of the marriage customs of the ancient Egyptians, but we can easily believe that women had at least the privilege of expressing a preference if they did not actually do the proposing, for, if we trust the historian, Didorus, a man promised his wife to grant her complete control over him and to offer no objection to her commands.

Some survival of this liberty of Egyptian women must have permeated other portions of Africa, for princesses on the west coast of that continent whose children may become future rulers choose their own husbands. Nor is a princess limited in her choice to unmarried men. She may just as easily decide upon one who has already entered the marriage state, and the poor fellow has to put away his other wives and become her slave. Moreover, she has the power of life and death over him. He sometimes has only one consolation—he inherits all her property if he is fortunate enough to be spared until her death.

In the Tyrol a girl may express her preference for a man by presenting him with a bottle of spirits. If she is afraid that her procedure has not the indorsement of her parents she may contrive to lower the precious fluid at night from her chamber window.

In North Transylvania, a young peasant woman may give a particular swain a tip that he is the 'apple of her eye' by going with him to his cart at the time of the harvesting of the oats to help him carry in his crop. It is said that at this season one sometimes sees a procession of gaily-decorated carts going a-field, a willing maid seated in each.

One of the obligations of a father in Roumania and Bosnia is to provide so well for his marriageable daughter that when she is presented with a list informing her of the means and qualifications of the eligible young men in the vicinity she will not be hampered by a lack of worldly goods on her own part in making her choice.

In bygone days in India women were sometimes allowed to choose their own husbands. One of their old fairy tales tells of a fair princess who, after a tournament, placed a garland around the neck of a knight who had won her heart.

Among the Eskimos of the east coast of Greenland, a man captures the girl he wants, but from that time on the usual order of things is reversed. He has to exercise the greatest vigilance to prevent her from eloping with any other man whom she may prefer, as this seems to be her privilege.

In the Northern New Hebrides, a bride who is unhappy seeks the earliest opportunity of running away from her husband and seeking a home with some man she likes better. If her parents cannot induce her to return to the injured husband, they usually send him a pig to soothe his wounded feelings.

CLASSIC ROWING TEST BETWEEN OXFORD VS. CAMBRIDGE TOMORROW

Great Acquatic Event in England to be Revived After Lapse of Six Years Due to the War.

(By Associated Press.)

New York, March 2[illegible].— After a lapse of six years the classic collegiate rowing test between the Oxford and Cambridge University eights will be revived tomorrow in England. This annual rowing event, which was first decided in 1841 was won 39 times by the Oxford oarsmen. The Cambridge crew finished in front in thirty-one races and once, on March 24, 1877, the result was a dead heat. On one other ocasion neither crew scored a victory. This was on March 20, 1912, when both boats were swamped in the rough water and the race was declared void.

The last time these rival college crews met was in March, 1914, when Cambridge proved the victor. Then the world war interrupted all sporting events of any prominence in Great Britain so that this year it was decided to revive this event in which the British sporting public takes a very keen interest, many big wagers being lost and won on the results.

This year, however, American oarsmen and followers of rowing on this side of the Atlantic will be interested in the outcome of the English Versity rowing contest inasmuch as there is a probability that one or more American crews may meet either or both of the English collegiate crews during the English Henley regatta next July or the Olympic games regatta at Antwerp later.

The course over which the Oxford-Cabmbridge race is rowed is on the Thames River between Putney and Mortlake a distance of four and one quarter miles. Thousands of persons line the banks on either side of the river to watch the contest and everywhere one sees nothing but dark or light blue flags, streamers, ribbons and other decorations in the rival colors of the Oxonians and Cantabs.

President Swann of the Cambridge University Boat Club thinks well of the chances of his crew against Oxford. In a recent interview he said:

"It must not be forgotten that we have had a year of rowing at Cambridge since the armistice, and it has been exceedingly useful. Still we are nothing like in the position we used to be in before the war when commencing practice for the race.

"There had been a tremendous gap. Nearly all the members of the crew have had to learn their rowing in a year, instead of the two or three years prospective members of the boat were able to give it. Still, this circumstance is an advantage as well as a disadvantage.

"We have no preconceptions to combat. The rowing will no be up to the best as before the war, but the crew will be better than many of the moderate ones. It will be a heavy one.

"Our 'style' comes straight from Captain Bruce, who coached the winning crew in 1914, and we are as near to it as possible. We have not adopted any new methods of training, except that we are not so strict about food as in other days."

President E.A. Berriford of the Oxford University Rowing Club, who had been diligently coaching the "Dark Blues" for weeks before he was relieved by E. D. Horsfall, the ex-president, also thinks well of his crew's ability to outrow the Cantabs. He, as well as the others interested in the coaching and training of the Oxford eight, are well satisfied with the work of the men and the progress they are making in their preparatory spins.

Following are the names, and weights, of the two crews as they were seated several weeks before the date of the race:

The London Housing Commission suggests that tenement houses or flats to rent at $20 or $25 a month be built but that could not be done under the Government loan scheme which provides for houses to be sold to individuals.

The Canadian Railway Association announced that railways in the Dominion will adhere to standard time this year, except in suburban schedules to suit local needs, when municipalities and districts adopt daylight saving.

M. F. Davidson was elected by acclamation to a vacancy in the Brockville Board of Education.

WHEN THE MIGHTY BABE RUTH STRUCK OUT

HE PUMMELLED A LUCKLESS SPECTATOR WHO JEERED AT HIS FAILURE

Last fall the management of the [illegible] base-ball club paid the Boston club a large sum, said to be $130,000 for the release of Babe Ruth, who had established a world's record during the season of 1919 for driving out home runs.

In making the purchase the New York management was moved by the expectation of Babe having create a new record this season. Although the [illegible] and will not open for some weeks, Ruth has already introduced a novelty, but not in the matter of hitting home runs. The novelty was introduced at Jacksonville, where the Yankees and Brooklyns played an exhibition game, and where, a despatch says Ruth invaded the stands to wage war on a vociferous fan who persisted in [illegible] Babe, like the mighty Casey, had struck out.

Admitting that it is a far cry from Jacksonville to New York and that ball players are human, the fact remains that reasonable objection may be made to Ruth or any other player attempting to go into the stands in search of those who voice their personal opinions of the game. [illegible] York club for the purpose of hitting home runs, but not for hitting spectators who lose their heads during the heat of battle and cry out in disappointment when Ruth fails to connect with the elusive sphere for the third strike.

Ty Cobb once punched a spectator for abusing him on the field, and Arthur Devlin performed the [illegible] stunt in Brooklyn, but neither [illegible] himself more popular by his display of fistic ability. And Babe Ruth can rest assured that only by showing indulgence to excited spectators can [illegible]

IS DOING EXCELLENT WORK

Member of Parliament Speaks Well of Soldier Settlement Board

Speaking in the House of Commons on Mr. Andrews' resolution for a further enquiry into the question of soldier re-establishment, Mr. H. A. Stevens, Vancouver, said:

"As far and as impartially as I can judge, the Land Settlement Board is doing excellent work in Canada and is administered by a man at the head, Mr. Black, who is not only doing his best but is enthusiastically devoted to the work. I do not think a more capable man could be chosen. What I suggest to the honorable members is that we should rather refrain from careless and general criticism of the Land Settlement Board and seek to point out any specific weakness and take it up directly with that Board or through the Government."

Mr. E. W. Nesbitt, North Oxford, said on the same subject:

"The Land Settlement Board is managed with good judgment, the very best judgment, I think, that could be brought to bear in connection with it."

SOCIAL EVENING AT ST. LUKE'S

Exhibition by Women's Art Association

Lovers of art in this city will be interested to know that the collection of etchings, being shown by the Exhibition Society of Canadian Painter-Etchers, under the auspices of the Woman's Art Association, in their studies at the Conservatory of Music, is a most superior one. A close study of these pictures will convince one that Canada, young and unsophisticated, is not without the promise of artistical achievements, even as great as the much heralded efforts of foreign artists. And as a deliberate survey of these etchings will show Canadians have a future in this line of endeavor that is worth more, perhaps, than the glorious past of other countries. Perhaps, they lack the finish of imminent artists, but there is a certain newness about their work that readily appeals. So interpretating the spirit of a people, that hewed homes for themselves out of the forest.

Among the most beautiful are the exhibits of Laur. These are principally winter scenes, and for perfection of shading and infinite detail of line, are truly remarkable. Such pictures as "Winter Thaw" and "The Old Homestead" are an inspiration to students of art.

Then there are some by Haines, the well-known Canadian artist, just as wonderful in their own way. Evidently a lover of nature this artist depicts horses, dogs and other animals in the most life-like manner.

F. W. Sutherland exhibits interesting etchings of native faces—the negro, the Indian and others.

A large collection of portraits by Dorothy Stevens, furnish a good opportunity for the study of personality and temperament as expressed through the medium of the brush.

"Sunset on the Prairie" and "Little Saskatchewan" are among the most noteworthy efforts of the artist, Phillips. The exquisite colorings of these portraits are really beautiful.

Others by E. Fosberry will excite the keenest admiration of lovers of simple beauty. Such pictures as the "Birch Tree," "The Storm," a most real depiction of the elements in commotion, are ones that will not soon weary you. The longer you look at them the more you will love them.

"The North-West Wind," by Jefferies, is a wonderful portrait. It represents a peasant with out-stretched arms praying to the spirit of the wind. This artist specialized in pictures pertaining to the times, and has a varied exhibit of soldiers-in-drill, ships, etc.

A charming group by John W. Cotton will interest those who delight in natural scenery. "Dundas Valley" is one of his finest efforts.

W. J. Thompson, the renowed Canadian artist who met death suddenly in Muskoka about two years ago, offers a display over which you will linger long. "The Birch Mill" is a portrait of rare soulfulness and delicacy of outline.

"The Roadside," by Green, is another instance of the rare beauty of simple scenes.

Etchings of outstanding merit by Reid, ornament the collection and will prove of special interest to students of art in any form.

This exhibit will be open this evening and Saturday evening and will be free to the public. It will also remain on view at the musical on Saturday afternoon for the members and their friends. Those wishing to purchase any of the above etchings will have an opportunity to do so.

57TH CHAPTER I.O.D.E. MET AT THE ARMOURIES

INTERESTING PAPER ON CITIZENSHIP READ BY MRS. H. R. H. KENNER

The regular monthly meeting of the 57th Regiment Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held in the Armories Thursday afternoon, the regent in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, and the report of the treasurer was adopted. Much applause greeted the announcement that Mrs. Duncan Walker had been elected a councillor on the Provincial Chapter Executive to represent the chapter of this district.

Mrs. Jamieson and Mrs. Frederic were appointed to represent the chapter in the work of secondary education of children of deceased or totally disabled men of all forces. The knitting committee asked that those having socks or wool of the 57th Chapter would please give them to either Mrs. J. S. Sharpe or Mrs. Cottrell.

It was decided that the entertainment the Chapter is giving on Thursday, April 8th, should take the form of a bridge and tea in the afternoon and cards and dancing at night.

Mrs. Kenner read a most interesting and instructive paper on "Citizenship," which was greatly appreciated. The meeting then adjourned and tea was served. Every one was delighted that henceforth the meetings would be held in the Armories.

HAS RAISED $6,000

One of the last of the Presbyterian Churches to complete their canvass for the Forward Movement is Queen Street East, Toronto, which finished last night and reported the gratifying total of $6,000 subscribed on an allocation of $4,000. Rev. W.

OBITUARY

THE LATE MRS. COOPER.

The funeral of the late Mrs. John Cooper, of Keene, will take place from the family residence at Keene at two o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Service will be conducted by Rev. P. E. Jull.

MRS. ELIZABETH WHITE.

Mrs. Elizabeth White, one of the oldest residents of Peterborough County, died yesterday morning at the home of her son, Mr. Frank White, 301 Maitland avenue.

Mrs. White was born in Ireland 95 years ago, and came out to this country when about 20 years of age. She at first settled in Cobourg, but stayed there only a short time, and then moved to South Monaghan where she resided until the time of her marriage to Mr. White 65 years ago, when she moved to Smith township. For forty years or more she had lived in and about the city of Peterborough and was a well known and very highly respected resident.

She was one of the pioneer members of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church and belonged to it before the present edifice was built, and when the parish was only a mission. In the church she was always a prominent figure in all kinds of social work, until her advanced years made this impossible.

Her husband predeceased her 24 years. Mrs. White was the eldest of a family of nine, four of whom are yet living, two brothers, Edward Mahood, of Smith, and Robert Mahood city, and two sisters, Mrs. Campbell city, and Mrs. Lackey, Toronto. There also survive one son, Francis White, 301 Maitland avenue, and one daughter, Mrs. James Lackey, of South Monaghan.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. There will be a service at the house, conducted by Rev. Robt. Pogue, at 2.30 and interment will then take place in Little Lake Cemetery. The six grandsons of the deceased will act as pallbearers.

THE LATE ANNIE CALDWELL.

The funeral of the late Miss Annie Caldwell took place at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon from her residence, 301 Brock street, to Little Lake Cemetery. Services were conducted by Rev. Robert Pogue, pastor of St. Paul's Church. The pallbearers were Messrs. E. Mason, W. Madill, J. Nugent, W. H. Hill and Drs. Carmichael and Harvey.

Miss Caldwell died Tuesday evening at 8:40 after an illness lasting all winter. She was a sister of the late Dr. Caldwell, who died six years ago. Miss Caldwell originally came from Brantford, Ont., but had resided in this city for at least thirty years and was very well known and highly thought of. She had been an outstanding member of St. Paul's Church, where her sterling qualities won for her the love and admiration of all her fellow parishioners. She always took an active part in the work of the church, and will be greatly missed from the different church societies in which she was interested.

She leaves to mourn her loss one sister, Mrs. Brodigan, Peterborough, and two brothers, John Christie Henderson, of Rochester, N. Y., and Mr. Samuel Henderson, Toronto.

NEW PLAN IS ADOPTED

PRIVATE MESSAGES ARE NOW INCLUDED IN TELEGRAPHIC MONEY ORDERS

The offices of the Great North Western Telegraph Co. have been advised that personal or business communications may now be embodied in telegraphic money orders to Canadian and United States points. While this arrangement has previously existed between offices of the Western Union Telegraph Company in the United States, the plan has only recently been adopted by the Great North Western. Several hundred offices in both Canada and the United States are included in the arrangement.

POST'S BED BUG POISON KILLS BED BUGS AND INSECTS OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS

This is the season of the year when the cautious housekeeper should procure a bottle of Posts' Bed Bug Poison, and if it is used according to the directions, this pest will soon be exterminated. Posts' Bed Bug Poison is sold at Lynch's Drug Store, 168 Hunter Street, and should be kept out of the reach of children.

DIED

MIGHT—At the family residence, 782 George street, on Friday, March 26th, William Might, in his 80th year.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

MORNING KISSING DEADLY.

Doctor Says Defer Osculation Until Afternoon.

New York, March 26.—Kissing should only be done in the afternoon and evening when sunshine and fresh air have sterilised the lips, Dr. Lawison Brown of Saranac Lake told the New York State Medical Society. He gave instances from his observation at a tuberculosis sanatorium to show that morning kissing was deadly.

AMSTERDAM WAR CORRESPONDENT PAYS A VISIT TO BOLSHEVIK BATTLE LINE

Says Army is a Mixed Horde of Fighting Men in all Styles of Raiment.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Amsterdam, March 27. — Telegraphing from Dusseldorf after a visit to headquarters and the front of the Red army in the Ruhr district, the correspondent of the Amsterdam Handelsblad says: "The Reds are a heterogenous mass, wearing red armbands, ribbons or neckties. Some of them have red shirts. The only thing in common to all is that they carry rifles. While the rest of the world uses such terms as 'government troops,' 'Spartacans' and the like, in the fighting area everyone speaks only of the 'Noskes,' which includes all the varieties of the former class and 'carabinmen,' who include all the Reds. It is a war of Noske against Carabineers. At Duisburg, where dozens were killed and hundreds wounded during the first day's fighting, women and children in the streets speak about shooting and death like one would speak of rain. At Duisburg Allied food missions which were caught in the town at the height of the fighting were courteously treated and escorted out of town by the Reds after the Belgians occupying the hotel had fled in the darkness."

WILL SPEND LARGE SUM ON FLIN FLON MINE

OVER $200,000 TO BE USED TO GET PROPERY INTO WORKING ORDER

(Canadian Press Despatch)

The Pas, Man., March 27.— The Flin Flon mine is under option and a sum of $200,000, and more, if necessary, is to be expended upon the property, starting at once, according to The Pas Herald, which says that the owners are W. B. Thompson, of New York, and the Mining Corporation of Canada. Two shafts will be sunk, for which machinery has been purchased, and the whole Mandy mine equipment taken over. Work is already proceeding with the dismantling of the Mandy and numerouus freight teams are busy on the trail from The Pas with tons of supplies. The engineering work is in the hands of the Longyear Company, of Minneapolis, and William Koerner, of New York, is the manager. Some 60 miners will be brought in to begin operations, and this force will be increased as required. The program of development is stated to consist of shaft-sinking and drifting along the ore-body.

It will probably take six months to thoroughly explore underground ore body, and map out the scheme of production. When this is accomplished it is expected that a request will be made upon the Government to construct a railway from The Pas. It is believed that the request will embody a wish that the line start right at The Pas, and not at Mile 42, as at present indicated.

NOT BY WAY OF CANADA

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Victoria, B. C., March 27. — The Prince of Wales will not return to England from Australia by way of Canada this summer. This statement is made by his secretary in a cablegram to the Victoria Board of Trade.

NEW METHOD TO COMBAT HIGH COST OF LIVING

HOME ECONOMICS TO BE TAUGHT IN MANITOBA AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, March 27.—In an heroic effort to meet both the high cost of living and the impossibility of getting help, the Agricultural College, if sufficient students apply, will put on a ten weeks' course in Home Economics, the course to conclude the latter part of June. Staff professors will be in charge, and the subjects covered will be cookery and food values, management and marketing, home nursing and hygiene, textiles and dressmaking, millinery, laundry and dry cleaning, and household arts.

DEAL WITH THE MERCHANT WHO PAYS TAXES

When you yield justice to your city and your own local merchants, the great mail order houses will be powerless to absorb vast sums of money that should be kept at home. And when mail order houses decline, thousands of the smaller cities in Canada will enter upon an era of unprecedented prosperity. Poverty is a curse, and a heavy expense to taxpayers. Spending money at home where you make it will do much to stamp out poverty. You can't keep reaping money at home and spending it elsewhere without exhausting your local resources.

Help home merchants to increase the volume of their sales by additional thousands instead of doing all you can to swell the volume of mail order houses by more millions. You can never again have an interest in the money you send to mail order houses, but the money you spend at home will float back to you upon the stream of reciprocity.

As you read the above words don't get the notion that they apply to others and not to you. We mean them for you.

CANADA'S OLDEST PRIEST RESIDES IN WINNIPEG

REV. FATHER DANDURAND IS STILL BRIGHT AND ACTIVE AT 102

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, March 27.— The other day the Dean of the Oblates and the oldest priest in the world, Rev Father Damase Dandurand, began his 102nd year. This length of years has not been, in the case of this venerable priest, attended with the most dreaded of all circumstances, loss of reasoning faculty, weakness of intellect. On the contrary he is so shrewd in his conclusions, so ready in his repartee, that you would credit him for being in the heyday of his powers. Rev. Father Dandurand was the first Canadian priest to oin the Oblates congregation in Canada. He has been Vicar of Ottawa, then Vivar-General to its first Bishop, Administrator of the same diocese, Vicar-General of Quebec diocese; first Winnipeg parish priest for a short time. He founded St. Carles Parish and has been among the citizens of Winnipeg and St. Boniface, since August 28, 1875.

SOVEREIGN REMEDY FOR FLU

Physicians of British Columbia Issue Thousands of Liquor Prescriptions

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, B. C., March 27. — Three hundred and fifteen thousand liquor prescriptions were issued last year by British Columbia physicians, according to the annual report of the probibiton commissioner. Rye whiskey is the popular 'flu' cure. During the year, in all British Columbia, 25,000 gallons of rye were prescribed and only 9,051 of Scotch. Total sales amounted to $1,579,000 during the year. Amendments to the British Columbia act provide that the limit of liquor prescriptions hereafter will be eight ounces, instead of two quarts as heretofore.

CARING FOR THE AFFLICTED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Edmonton, Alta., Mach 27.— Each municipality in the Province of Alberta will be requested to provide accommodation for tuberculosis patients, Dr. Laidlaw, provincial health officer says. The patients will be treated in either separate wards in the hospitals, or preferably, in tent shacks.

CHILDREN ARE DEFECTIVE

Alberta Pupils Found Suffering From Many Ailments.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Edmonton, March 27.—According to the report tabled by Hon. A. G. MacKay re medical inspection of the rural schools, covering 126 schools and 5,745 children, only 1,129 were found to be without defect. The greatest number of cases were those of adenoids, tonsils and throat affections, and the next greatest number were for bad teeth.

TO MAKE MINERAL DISPLAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, B. C., March 27.—The Chamber of Mines is arranging for a large representation of British Columbia mining men at the International Mining Convention to be held this year in Seattle, April 7 to 10. A complete display of British Columbia minerals will be on exhibition.

ALLEGED SUBSTITUTE FOR SCOTCH WHISKEY

ORIENTAL IN THE WEST CLAIMS TO HAVE DISCOVERED A WONDERFUL HERB.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, March 27.—A special analysis is to be made of an "herb" which, when immersed in water smells and tastes like Scotch whiskey, but actually possesses more authority. The "herb" was found on an Oriental named Gun Shee, charged with infraction of the Prohibition Act. He claims to be the discoverer, but reufses to say whether it is a local or imported "herb."

OIL OPERATIONS IN ALBERTA

Imperial Oil Company Will Spend Two Millions in Drilling.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Lethbridge, March 27—Lethbridge promises to become the centre of oil activity in the south of Alberta. Drilling has commenced in several places tributary to the city. The Imperial Oil Co. is drilling to the south and west on Dry Fork and west of Nanton. This company intends to spend two million dollars in Alberta this summmer in their search for oil.

"WHO POISONED MY DOG?"

Indian Appeals to Agent To Find Out the Culprit.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Port Arthur, March 7. — "Please find out who poisoned my dog.—Signed. Ambrose Fisher." This was the text of an urgent telegram received by Indian Agent Brown from a point 160 miles out in his constituency. The Indians look upon the agent as doctor, detective, constable, financial provider, employment agent, etc.

FAKE INVITATIONS WERE SENT FROM VANCOUVER

SUPPOSED DERANGED MAN ASKED CANADIAN MAYORS TO ATTEND CONGRESS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, March 27.—As a result of the activities of J. C. Putnam, now in an institution for mental cases, the city hall staff are busy sending out letters of explanation to the mayors of Canadian and American cities, who were invited here by Putnam to attend a gigantic industrial congress. Putnam reached here a week ago and sent letters to virtually every city in Canada and many in the United States, inviting city officials to Vancouver, promising that their expenses would be wired to them. The first intimation the city council had of the proposed congress was when letters of acceptance began to pour in.

REDS CAPTURE BASE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 27.—Novorossisk, the last base in Southern Russia under the control of General Denekine, has been captured by the Russian Bolshevik, according to a despatch from Moscow.

VETERANS THROW THE MEMBERSHIP DOOR WIDE OPEN

AMEND CONSTITUTION TO ADMIT SOLDIERS WHO SERVED IN CANADA ONLY

Montreal, March 27. — After the stormiest session of the convention, delegates decided last night to adopt the "open door" policy, amending the constitution to admit to membership in the organization veterans who had seen active service in the British forces in campaigns other than the great war, and also including, as eligible for membership, men who saw service in Canada only. Another change was made in the constitution, under which permission is given for political action at the discretion of local branch officers.

In connection with the first change and after the "open door" had been adopted, I. A. McKenzie of Vancouver, seconded by N. MacDonald, of Pictou, roused at the passing of a measure which they had bitterly opposed, moved that the name of the organization be changed by striking out the word "Great." This motion was later withdrawn by Comrade McKenzie, but he first asked those who thought as he did to stand, and less than twenty delegates did so, mainly from British Columbia, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Ontario for "Open Door."

Ontario, with a single exception was solid for the "open door," and W. E. Turley, secretary of the Ontario Provincial Command, who moved the clause re the admission of veterans of former wars, declared that the life of the association in Ontario actually depended upon the passage of such a clause.

Vote of 150 to 46.

R. B. Maxwell, Winnipeg, was elected president of the Dominion Command of the Great War Veterans' Association at the convention yesterday afternoon. S. Stafford of Ontario is the new first vice-president, and Captain L. Plante of Montreal was unanimously elected second vice-president.

T. Dayse of Alberta was named to take the chair for the elections and he announced the withdrawal from the nominations of Comrades Scott, Davidson and Jeakins, leading Dr A. M. Forbes of Montreal and R. B. Maxwell of Winnipeg the only contestants for the office of president. The vote resulted: Maxwell, 160; Forbes, 46. Comrade Forbes then moved that the vote be made unanimous, which was done.

All candidates for second vice-president withdrew and Capt. Plante was declared unanimously elected to the position. His popularity was shown when the whole convention sang "Alouette."

FAMINE AT NATIONAL ZOO

Government Compelled to Kill of Part of Herds as a Result.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Edmonton, March 27.—About 30 heads of buffalo, late members of the big national zoo colonies at Wainwright and Elk Island Parks, have come to Edmonton for mounting this winter. A despatch from Montreal a few days ago stated that the Government had ordered the killing off of a considerable part of the herds at both parks, on account of the shortage of feed, and that the skins were being included in the fur sales in that city. This cannot be verified here, but the usual amount of slaughtering has been done this winter, and the 30 heads sents here for mountin gare the result.

AERIAL SERVICE FOR WEST

Hydroplanes Will Deliver Mail and Supplies to Miners' Camps

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, B. C., March 27. — Early this summer hydroplanes will provide the Stewart mining camp all the comforts of a rural mail delivery and will deliver from the southern markets everything from prunes to lumber. Several machines are now being constructed in Seattle, and early next month the first one will fly to Stewart. In May the other two contracted for will leave. They will have a carrying power of 1,200 lbs. and a speed of 90 miles an hour.

GOVERNMENT TROOPS MAKE SORTIE AND FORCE REBELS TO RAISE WESEL SIEGE

Russians Have Sent Officers to Direct Operation of Workers' Army.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Wesel, March 27. — Government troops made a sortie southeast of the city yesterday, drove besieging workers' forces from their posts, shelled their retreating columns, and raised the siege of Wesel on both the east and southeast. Dimensions seem to have broken out among both workers' and government forces.

Reinforcements Arrive.

While a counter attack was proceeding, reinforcements arrived here, including Hussars and Uhlans. The Allied commissioners conferred with General Kabitsch and soon after the Belgian military authorities at Byderich, a Belgian town across the Rhine, began issuing passes for civilians to return to the city. After a conference at Hagen, three socialist parties' delegates have decided to send envoys to Wesel in an attempt to bring about a cessation of the fighting there.

Russians and Germans.

London, March 27.—One hundred Russian officers, sent to Germany by Nicholai Lenine the Bolshevik premier, are assisting in the operations of the German workers' army before Wesel, says a despatch to the London Times. The despatch says the Workers have taken over the control of the Krupp works at Essen and are turning out arms and ammunition.

Workers Control Saxony.

Falkenstein, Saxony, March 27.— The Workers have taken over the control in towns and cities in Lower Saxony, but there is an impression that their ascendancy will be short lived as they are not sufficiently organized in a military way to resist pressure successfully.

Hundreds in Flight.

Rotterdam, March 27.—Hundreds of fugitives from the Ruhr district are nearing the Dutch frontier, according to a correspondent of the Courant. Some have arrived at Strassburg, bringing stories of Red terror in towns through which the Spartacists have drawn armored cars. They confirm the reports, the correspondent says, that the Workers' forces are being led by Russians or other foreigners. The government at Muenster, it is said, has had to contend with Soviet dictatorship after the Russian model, which has been getting help from Moscow.

Spartacist forces in the Ruhr valley have enough ammunition, but their rations are very bad.

POLISH CAPITAL MOVED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 27. — The Polish Government was removed on Thursday from Warsaw to Bromberg, in Polish Posen, 25 miles northwest of Thorn, according to a Berlin despatch, quoting rumors in that city.

Appreciation From The Bishop Of Huron

His Lordship the Bishop of Huron, who as chairman for Canada, was the leader of the Anglican Forward Movement, has written to Archdeacon Davidson in terms of high appreciation of his work in the late campaign and also complimenting The Review on its valuable co-operation in publishing the complete returns.

The Bishop says: "The mere reading of the paper shows the immense amount of work done and the splendid organization achieved through your efforts in the country districts of the diocese of Toronto. Let me add that whatever my leadership may have been it would not have resulted in the splendid success attained by the Movement if it had not been backed by capable organizations in the various parts of the Dominion, of which the full statement in The Review is a splendid example. We have all reason to thank God and take courage upon the success of the Forward movement."

Over 300 copies of The Review containing the A.F.M. report were sent to bishop's clergy, chairmen and other workers throughout the country and many letters of appreciation have been received, including one from the Primate of Canada, Archbishop Matheson. Peterborough has been brought into considerable prominence as an important A.F.M. headquarters.

HEAVY LOSSES FROM HAIL

Alberta Paid Out Over Half Million Last Season

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Calgary, Alta., March 27.—Losses from hail in the district covered by the hail insurance board of Alberta totalled $503,957.78 last season. The net assessment was $778,132.48. The total surplus and reserve was $198,358.23, after deducting commissions to municipal districts, expenses and interest charges. At the end of the financial year there was a reserve fund of $190,000 invested in provincial bonds, while the accounts outstanding totalled $108,279.39.

WILL FIGHT LEGISLATION

Motor Dealers in Saskatchewan Opposed to new Regulation

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Regina, March 27.— The Regina Motor Trades Association members will soon be enlisted among the forces that are gathering throughout the province to forestall, if possible, the enactment of the Automobile Repairs Act passed by the Provincial Legislature. This act requires every vendor of an automobile in this Province to name in the contract of sale a depot in the Province at which repair parts may be obtained for the car, promptly and at a reasonable cost at any time within a period of five years from date of sale.

HOLY WEEK BEGINS IN CATHOLIC CHURCH

PALM SUNDAY TOMORROW COMMEMORATES CHRIST'S TRIUMPHAL ENTRY

The week commencing tomorrow is one of the most solemn occasion in the Catholic Church. It is termed Holy Week and during this period and Passion Week, which precedes it, all statues and pictures in Catholic Churches are shrouded in purple mourning. The week represents the period from the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday of His death and resurrection. Tomorrow is Palm Sunday and at the Cathedral and local churches palm leaves will be distributed before Mass in commeration of Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem as a prelude to His Passion when the overjoyed Jew strewed His path with palm leaves only to desert and betray Him a short time later.

Thursday is of particular significance because it is the anniversary of the day on which the Last Supper took place upon which is founded the doctrine of the celebration of Mass in the Catholic Church. It was on this day that Christ breaking bread and taking wine said to the Apostles: "Do this in commemoration of Me." These are the words which are taken as the authority which gives a priest of the Catholic Church the power to say Mass.

Friday of course represents the [illegible] and minutes on the cross and is the only day in the year in the Catholic Church upon which no Mass is celebrated. Instead other services, such as the Stations of the Cross, which represents the journey of Christ from place to place during His Passion, are substituted.

Lent with its fasting and abstinence ends at noon on Saturday so that it is permissible to eat meat for dinner on Saturday. The week closes a period in the Catholic Church of penance and self-denial and culminates in the most glorious feast of the Catholic Church which is Easter Sunday. In the curriculum of the Catholic Church this feast outshines even that of Christmas.

Veterans Ask Government To Bar Former Agent of Ex-Kaiser.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, B. C., March 27.—The Great War Veterans' Association of this city have passed a resolution on the undesirability of re-admitting Alvo von Alvensleben, recently released from Fort Douglas prison and now sojourning in Seattle, to Canada. They are sending a formal petition to the Federal authorities to refuse the ex-kaiser's former agent permission to cros sthe border.

LATE SEEDING IN ALBERTA

Snow is Still Three Feet Deep in That Province

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Calgary, March 27.— "There will be a late seeding in the north," according to H Greenfield of Westlock, on the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia railway, a member of the executive of the United Farmers of Alberta. "The snow is about three feet deep, and it will be some considerable time before the farmers will be able to commence operations on thier land.

Mrs. Grace Davidson and her daughter of Simcoe, woke just in time to escape from fire which damaged their home.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY REACHED HIGH PRESSURE DURING WEEK

New Records Were Attained in Many Lines—Shipments of Gold to United States Eases Situation in That Country Payment of Anglo-French Loan Next October.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, March 27—Active trading in speculative shares was resumed on a broader scale this week, the movement continuing to centre, however, in specialties of the motor group, also oils, equipments and steels. The gains among some of these issues, which rose and fell in bewildering confusion on frequent profit-taking, were of substantial proportions, and in several noteworthy cases new high records were established. The advance was in a large part traceable to relatively easy rates for call money, demand loans ruling between 7 and 9 per cent., though mounting at one time to higher quotations, with continued firmness for the time funds.

Another important factor in the advance was the strength of remittances on London, which rose vigorously even before it became generally known that heavy imports of gold to the United States had begun. A large consignment of metal is already here, according to reports current in shipping circles, but the inflow, which is supposed to bear a close relation to the payment of the Anglo-French loan, maturing next October, may reasonably be expected to reach huge proportions.

Industrial conditions, as indicated by several favorable annual reports, pointed to a high pressure of activity in many lines of trade, and the investment situation offered encouragement in heavy subscriptions to new capital underwritings.

LOCAL INTEREST IN EDUCATION.

THERE IS NO mistaking the interest that is being taken locally in educational affairs. Within the past few days two branches of the Home and School Association have been formed in this city, one at the Queen Alexandra and the other at the Central School, which makes three for Peterborough, with a local council or central body already in prospect. The pioneer body in this movement is the branch at the Queen Mary School that has been in useful existence for years. Originally it was known as the Mothers' Club, but the name was changed when the organisation was given a provincial standing about a year ago, with Mrs. S. T. Medd, a pioneer in the movement and one of its most enthusiastic supporters always, as a member of the executive.

The Ontario Educational Association has been rightly styled the educational parliament of Ontario, and now the Home and School Association has been made one of the important adjuncts of that organization. The representation of the educational interests of the Province is now complete. The O. E. A. is made up of practical educationists, teachers and inspectors. The Home and School Association is composed of the parents, who are organised not to find fault with but to co-operate with the teachers in the discharge of their duties. Where such co-operation is lacking the best results are impossible of attainment.

The Home and School Association has been accorded the honor of a room in the legislative building in Toronto in which to hold their annual sessions on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 6th and 7th, at the same time that the members of the O. E. A. are meeting. Educational problems of interest will be discussed by well-known leaders in the movement, and a joint session will be held with the teachers before final adjournment Queen Alexandra and Central Schools will send representatives, it is expected, and Mrs. Medd will represent Queen Mary School and at the same time act as a member of the Provincial Executive.

The work of organizing the new branches has been largely carried out by Mrs. Medd and Mrs. W. R. Morris the influence of both ladies being due to the fact that the former has been interested in the movement from the first, while the latter is a member of the Board of Education, a position which enables her to aid in giving effect to the work of the association.

MARRIED WOMEN IN PUBLIC LIFE.

THE DELEGATES to the G. W. V. A. Convention in Montreal adopted a resolution asking the Dominion Government to dismiss married women from the public service. This move on the part of the Veterans is not due to a lack of gallantry, but is a measure designed to promote the general welfare and to develop the home life of the nation. No married woman should be under the necessity of earning her own living, and the men of Canada can never come fully into their own so long as they meet with vocational competition from this source If a married woman spends eight or ten hours at work in a public office, while the care of her children is left to hired servants, the children are denied the advantages that all juvenile Canadians are supposed to enjoy It was not in such homes as these, as a rule, that the high type of Canadian manhood represented in the country's overseas forces and now in the Montreal Convention was developed.

UTILIZING THE ORIENTAL.

A SHORT TIME AGO The Review suggested that a company be formed for taking over the Oriental Hotel building and converting it into an apartment house, and it seems now that the idea is to be revived with something like a prospect of practical results. It does appear really too bad that in view of the present dearth of housing accommodation in the city, a substantial building, capable of sheltering over one hundred people, and centrally located, should be permitted to stand idle.

Some time ago an investor from Toronto looked over the property with this object in view, but so far nothing has come of the matter. If the old hotel building is to be remodelled it is evident that the work must be done by local capital.

It is estimated that it would cost $75,000 to convert the building into a modern apartment house. When the location is considered, all doubts as to the popularity of the place for residential purposes is removed. The apartments would beyond question be spoken for as soon or even before the work was completed. In common parlance, they would go like hot cakes, and there would be no difficulty, either, in securing rentals sufficient to assure an adequate return on the outlay.

It seems that the people of Peterborough, as a rule are opposed to the idea of purchasing their own homes under present conditions. They prefer to live in rented premises, the question of expense being with them the deciding factor. Due note must be taken of this fact by those who realise the necessity of providing more homes Something must be done if the city in the matter of residences is to keep pace with the industrial growth that is already in sight.

It now seems that the Legislature will drop the housing scheme that provided for the building of homes for sale and not for renting. The Act, however, provides for the organization of private capital, the bonds of such a company to be guaranteed by the municipality up to 85 per cent. of the actual investment. Such a company could build homes either for sale or for rent, and if for the latter purpose, the modern apartment would appear to be the more popular method. It has been announced at Toronto that the Legislature, instead of loaning money direct, will guarantee municipal building bonds, and if this idea is implemented it should be sufficient to guarantee the city against loss.

It may be said that it would require a large outlay to make over the Oriental Hotel building. There is no doubt on that point. But it would cost money to lay the foundation and erect the walls of a new apartment building, and in the case of the Oriental these are already provided. A large part of the necessary outlay is already disposed of.

The new industrial plants already in process of construction will necessitate an increase in the working population. Expansion seems to be the order of the day among the manufacturers. The C. G. E. Company will lose no time in getting up an addition to their works. Something must be done to take care of the working population already here and in prospect. The city that grants fixed assessments and other concessions to encourage industries to locate here, and those that are here to increase their capacity, should not hesitate when it comes to a question of simply guaranteeing the bonds of a private corporation that may be induced to take up the erection of houses.

ENGLAND'S NEW DIVORCE LAW.

OVER IN ENGLAND the people are giving daily evidence of being more progressive and democratic than they are in Canada. The House of Lords, in spite of all the opposition of the clerical section, have adopted an amendment to the divorce laws which extends the causes upon which such action may be taken. Habitual drunkenness is one of the new causes, and the bill also provides that when a man has been sentenced to death, but afterwards has his sentence commuted to life imprisonment, this shall be deemed a sufficient reason for the annulment of the marriage tie. It is announced by cable that this bill is certain to be adopted by the Commons just as it leaves the House of Lords.

In Ontario divorce has been allowed on scriptural grounds only, and even at that it has been made a luxury in which only the well-to-do can indulge. The Senate is maintained as the divorce court, and the process before that august body is costly. Here, if a man is hanged, the marriage tie is automaticaly severed. If he has the good fortune to have his death sentence changed to a life term in the penitentiary, his unfortunate conjugal partner has no redress. Neither can any amount of neglect relieve either party to the marriage contract of their obligations.

Those who are opposed to divorce on principle never fail, by way of argument, to quote the scriptural injunction, "Whom God has joined let no man put asunder." It is, however, hardly fair, or reverent either, to hold Providence responsible for some of the marriages that are solemnized—or perpetrated—on earth, any more than it is to hold Him to account for other human mistakes or crimes, relief from which is not denied the innocent party to the contract.

DEARER COAL IN SIGHT.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

CONSUMERS of bituminous coal will welcome what appears to be an assurance that the operators and miners have agreed to agree. Extremes met when the operators protested against any substantial increase in pay and their employes demanded a thirty-hour week and a sixty per cent. addition to their compensation, all the differences being referred to a settlement commission. The agreement provides for a 27 per cent. increase, the retention of the eight-hour day, and fixes March 31 as the date for the termination of contracts. Though the report was not unanimous, its adoption is regarded as a foregone conclusion.

Incidental to its sanction by the president has come renunciation by him of his power to fix prices. He writes that he considered it inexpedient to exercise this power without the warrant of a grave emergency, and he does not feel justified in fixing prices with reference to future conditions of production, and that on and after April 1 no rates will be enforced by the Government.

For the consumer there is, of course, the customary fly in the ointment. It is estimated that the increase granted to the miners will cost the operators two hundred million dollars a year. As the President says in his letter to the regional commission, there is no provision in law for fixing new coal prices for peace time purposes, so there is nothing to prevent the operators from compelling the public to foot the extra bill. And, similarly, there is nothing to prevent them taking from the consumer more than the deficit. That has been known to happen.

Chats About Books and Their Authors

(By F. M. D.)

There is a book in the library entitled "A Book of Discovery," which is a most fascinating one. It deals with the discovery of lands and peoples from the time of the Phoenicians to the finding of the North Pole by Peary. It tells of the ancient and mediaeval idea that the world was flat, of the travels of Herodotus, of Alexander the Great and his exploration of India, and of Pytheas, the mathematician of Merseilles, who first discovered the British Isles. And so, down the centuries the book brings us, giving us information concerning Strabo's Geography and Ptolemy's maps and unrolling the whole story of man's efforts to discover the extent and character of the lands and races of the planet in which he lives. There can be no more alluring study than that which deals with the story of the world and the people who inhabit it. There are few indeed who have not at some time or other been thrilled with the adventures of great explorers and wished that they temselves could have had a hand in piercing some portion of the world's surface hitherto untrodden by civilized mortals. I remember that my own desire for a life of adventure was kindled at quite an early period by the experiences of a friend of the family named Bradford. He was in the merchant sevrcie and had jjust returned from a voyage to Patagonia. His account of the wonders of that distant land and of an attack by pirates on his vessel thrilled the young people of our houseohld to the innermost fibres of our being. I can see him now, big, brawny and bearded, dramatically describing for our edification how the savages eluded the watch on the vessel, massacring all of the crew who happend to be on deck and throwing them into the sea.

He went on to tell how they then descended into the cabins to finish their bloody work, and that he was awakened by the touch of a dagger tickling his troat. But when he described how he suddenly rolled from his hammock and caught the pirate by the hair and stabbed him to the heart with his own snicker-snee the blood leaped in our veins and we fairly shrieked with excitement. It adds to the interest to have known the heroes of such doings, but still we love to read about them, whether we knew them or not. The lives of great explorers abound in such adventures as these. We read of perils by water and by land, attacks by pirates and bandits, startling escapes from wild beasts and cobras and pythons, and apart altogether from the interest such adventures create in our minds they help us to see through how many difficulties and dangers mankind has had to pass in order to arrive at his present knowledge of the earth, and to keep alive in us that spirti of daring and enterprise that has kept our empire in the van. It is a duty incumbent on everyone to study geography and to read such books of travel as come in his way, for only by such means can a knowledge be obtained of how much exploration has meant in the extension of commerce and the evangelization of heathen races.

Strabo and other writers believed the earth to be one vast island surrounded on all sides by an ocean into which rivers flowed. He computed the breadth of the habitable world to be about three thousand miles and the length about seven thousand. But Strabo lived at the very commencement of the Christian era and by the time of Ptolemy A. D. 136 or thereabouts, quite an advance had been made in the knowledge of geography Both as an astronomer and a geographer Ptolemy held sway over the minds of almost all scientific men down to the sixteenth and the beginning of the seventeenth century. But the last three hundred years have swept away nearly all the mists created by ignorance, surmise and imperfect acquaintance with astronomy. Our shelves show to what an extent the desire for more perfect knowledge of distant lands has seized on men and women. Our books deal with travels in almost every corner of the world. Stanley and Livingstone, Emin Pasha and Donovan Pasha, Slatin Pasha, Baker and Speke and Grant, Cook and Dampier, Scott and Nares and Franklin, are seen there in close touch with the heroes of other lands. Peary and Amundsen, Nordenskiold and Nansen. There is no end to the names of those who in these latter years have ventured into the wilderness of field and flood in order to blaze fresh trails for the advancement of science and the good of civilization. Women have done their part, too, as the lives of many abundantly testify. Liivngstone's wife, the daughter of the famous missionary Dr. Moffatt, accompanied him on his journey to Lake Ngami and the Zambesi; Sir Samuel Baker's wife shared with him the perils of the Nubian Desert and was with him when he discovered the Albert Nyanza Their privations are well set forth in Sir Samuel Bake's book "The Albert Nyanza."

Sir Henry Stanley, whose real name of Rowland was the boyhood hero of many among us. Years ago I heard him lecture in the old auditorium building on Queen Street, Toront and I couldn't help thinkng as I gazed at him that he hardly measured up in appearance to one's preconceived ideas of a traveller and explorer. Bruce, I had read was a giant in stature. Burnby, whose ride to Khiva was one ofthe most-talked of books of its day, was looked upon as the strongest man in the British army. It was reputed that on some gala occasion at Windsor he tucked a Shetland pony under each arm and walked up a flight of stairs with them. Compared with these Stanley was almost a pigmy. But he was a compact little man and determination was written in every line of his countenance. He had returned about a year previously from his search for Emin Pasha and his lecture related to this trip. Stanley's life had been filled with incident. His early days must certainly have been loveless ones. He spent nine years in a workhouse exposed to the tyranny of a man who ended his days in a lunatic asylum. He finally ran away and worked for a time on his aunt's farm, then he got a place in a dry-goods store, afterwards at a butcher's and ended by shipping as a cabin-boy on a ship bound for New Orleans. There he attracted the notice of a kindly cotton-broker named Henry Stanley, who eventually adopted him, and whose name he took. His benefactor died suddenly without making provision for him and Stanley entered the Confederate army as a volunteer and was taken prisoner. He obtained his release on promising to serve in the United States army and was promptly attacked by fever, which prevented his going on active service. For two years he obtained employment at various jobs and then returned to his mother's house at Denbigh. He was peremptorily ordered away and returned to America and went sea-faring. He was wrecked off Barcelona and swam ashore naked, the sole survivor of the ship's company. He then decided to write an account of his adventures and thus made his entry into journalism.

The rest of his career is too well-known to need recapitulation. But if anyone is anxious to read a book of real adventure, whose only demerit lies in the fact that it wasn't written yesterday, he can obtain much enjoyment by reading "In Darkest Africa."

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

Speaking in the Senate the other day of what has been called the agrarian movement, the Hon. Dr. F. L. Schaffner said he did not see why the farmers "should not move, if they wanted to"—that is, band together for political action; but he also maintained that the farmers, like the members of any other class or element of the population, should bear their just share of the obligation of the country and carry on its government. He was in favor of a revenue tariff that would apply fairly to all.

Dr. Schaffner is an old parliamentarian, for more than fifteen years have passed since he entered the House of Commons as a member for Souris, Manitoba. He sat there continuously until October 23, 1917, when he was called to the Senate.

He is a native of Nova Scotia, having been born at Williamstown South, Annapolis County, on August, 18, 1855. He was educated at Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., from which he took his B. A. degree, and then studied medicine at Trinity College, Toronto.

Shortly after completing his medical course he went West and entered upon the practice of his profession at Boissevain, Manitoba, which has ever since been his home. Besides discharging his parliamentary duties, he has rendered public service in his own locality and his own province. He has been health officer for Morton and Boissevain, member of the Board of Health of Manitoba, and mayor of his own town.

A GENTLE LAXATIVE FOR THE CHIDREN

Mothers—the surest way of keeping your little ones well and happy; whether it is the new-born babe or the growing child is to keep their bowels regular and their stomach sweet. Nine-tenths of all childhood ailments are the result of clogged bowels and sour stomach. The most necessary and the best medicine for little ones is a gentle laxative—something that will relieve constipation; sweeten the stomach and promote rest and natural sleep. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. They are a gentle but efficient laxative; are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates or other injurious drugs and may be given to the youngest infant with perfect safety. They banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and give the baby that health and happiness which all children should have. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Midland Public school teachers have notified the board that they will resign at the end of May, the trouble being over salary.

ONLY TABLETS MARKED "BAYER" ARE ASPIRIN

Not Aspirin at All without the "Bayer Cross"

BAYER
BAYER

For Colds, Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Toothache, Earache, and for Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuritis, take Aspirin marked with the name "Bayer" or you are not taking Aspirin at all.

Accept only "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in an unbroken "Bayer" package which contains complete directions. Then you are getting real Aspirin—the genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years. Now made in Canada.

Handy tin boxes containing 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer"

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

COAL WORKERS INSIST ON 45 PER CENT RAISE

ANTHRACITE COAL DIGGERS DECLARED THEIR WORK REQUIRES SPECIAL SKILL

New York, March 26. — While pressing their original demand for a sixty per cent. wage increase, anthracite mine workers declared they will not accept less than 45 7-10 per cent.

Because of greater skill required in hard coal mines, these diggers until recent years received more pay than soft coal workers, according to officials of their union. This difference, however, has not been maintained, and hard coal diggers declare they are entitled to 18 7-10 per cent. in addition to the 27 per cent. wage increase just granted butuminous workers.

Following a conference of the General Scale Committee of the miners today, an official circular was drawn up, notifying the men in the anthracite fields to remain at work after April, as the operators had agreed to make "any wage award retroactive to that date" when the present contract expires.

"You are officially notified," said the circular, "to observe, as in the past, April 1 as a holiday, by remaining away from work, but after that day work is to be resumed, pending negotiations, and in these negotiations it will be our aim to bring the matter to a conclusion as soon as possible.

Union officials explained that April 1 has for years been observed as a holiday, in commemoration of the anniversary of the granting of the eight-hour day in the coal industry.

Arabic Dictionary Is Heavy.

Arabic dictionaries of 500 years ago, which are still the great authority for students in that language, more than surpass the ponderous dictionaries of Europe, even the famous many-volumed etymological index of Larousse, the monumental work of all modern tongues.

The Arabic dictionary most used by scholars familiar with no other language, which was made in the time of the great Caliph Haroun al Raschid, is in 20 quarto volumes and weighs close to 100 pounds. There is a 50-pound, 10-volume abridgement of it, presumably for use at home.

Arabic dictionaries are of so large a size because each of the words that have been familiar in the daily life of the nomad Arabs for centuries has an enormous number of synonyms. The camel, for example, was the sole means of transportation across the thirsty deserts and is characterized in 122 different ways. Above all, the horse and the sword were the two great standbys of the Arab, and more than 200 different words convey ideas of the two Arab essentials. All other familiar words are interchangeable and in constant use.

Kava In New Way.

The national beverage of the Samoan Islanders is "kava," obtained from the dried fruit of a plant known to the botanist as Piper methysticum. The classic method of its preparation was by chewing, this work being done by maidens; then water was added, and, after straining, the stuff was ready to drink.

Missionaries convinced the natives that this method did not accord with the best social customs, and so nowadays they grind the kava root in a stone mortar with a stone pestle.

To any unaccustomed person kava tastes rather like soapsuds, though some say it has a flavor of varnish. Many Americans, however, having acquired a liking for it, drink it by the gallon. But the native way of preparing it is too slow for them, and they prefer to use a meat-grinder.

Harder to Sing.

Delicate scientific measurements have proved that contralto, baritone and bass singers use far more force than soprano and tenor singers need.

The women of Spain are generally credited with being the best dancers of any women in the world.

Any Duty, Mr. Hun?

The Boche customs officer—or rather the former Boche customs officer at Metz probably will remember one of the final "declarations" he accepted. It was from the correspondent of a Paris paper, who reached Metz ahead of the French troops. The Germans still were in the town they had held since 1870, but in view of the armistice made no attempt to stop the correspondent from entering the city.

Writing to his paper of his experience the correspondent told how no one but the customs officer stopped him, and continued:

"The officer asked if I had anything to declare, to which I responded that what I had to declare was:

"'Vive la France!'"

A SPRING TONIC AIDS EFFICIENCY

LAY FOUNDATION OF GOOD HEALTH NOW BY BUILDING YOUR BLOOD AND STRENGTHENING YOUR NERVES.

The good old fashion of taking a tonic in the springtime, like most of the customs of our grandparents, is based upon sound common sense and good medical practice. Winter is always a trying time, for those who are not in rugged physical health. Many men, women and children go through the winter on reserve strength they have stored up during the sunny, summer months, and grow increasingly pale and languid as the spring days approach. A tonic for the blood and nerves at this time will do much for such people, by putting color in the cheeks and banishing that tired feeling that worries thousands of people at this season of the year.

It is impossible to be energetic if your blood is thin and weak, or if your nerves are frayed or shattered. You cannot compete with others if you do not get refreshing sleep at night, or if your appetite is poor or you are losing weight. You need a tonic at this time to add to your efficiency now, as well as to save you from suffering later on. And in all the realm of medicine, there is no safer or better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills tone and enrich the blood which circulates through every portion of the body, strengthening jaded nerves and run down organs, and bringing a feeling of new strength and energy to weak, easily tired, despondent men, women and children.

Mrs. J. N. McNeil, Glace Bay, N.S., says: "For years past my home has never been without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have good reason to praise them highly. Following an attack of la grippe, I was left in a badly run down condition. I had no appetite and felt so weak I could scarcely go about the house. I was taking medicine, but it was not helping me, and a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I used them for a time with the most beneficial results. My appetite improved, my strength returned and I was soon able to do all my housework. I now use the Pills every spring and find them a splendid strength bringing tonic. I have recommended the Pills to other friends who have used them with good results."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic, not a stimulant. They build up the blood, and through their use not only the disastrous after effects of influenza but also troubles due to poor blood, such as anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion and the generally worn-out feeling that affects so many people, disappear. You can get these Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TWO MILLION DOLLAR LOAN FOR TOWNSHIPS

LEGISLATURE ANNOUNCES ANOTHER ADDITION TO ONTARIO'S PROGRAM

Toronto, March 26.—Another addition was made to the roads program of the Ontario Government yesterday when Hon. F. C. Biggs, Minister of Public Works and Highways, introduced legislation which will set aside two million dollars as a fund from which loans may be made to the townships for improvements to roads within the municipalities. The loans will be repayable without interest within a period not exceeding five years.

This money to townships is plus the regular grants. The Minister of Highways will say how much will be loaned to any township, and it must not exceed an amount equal to ten mills on the equalized assessment of the township. The Government will undertake to accept municipal debentures as security, and these will not require the approval of the electors or be the subject of other restrictions generally applied to debentures.

In addition to the proposed loans the new legislation would reimburse townships for twenty per cent. of their own expenditure on township roads. The Government retains a right of supervision over the expenditure. The bill also gives assistance to the townships by making grants of 40 per cent. of the salaries of township overseers or foremen on road construction.

Suburban road grants are also fixed. In areas just outside the city limits 30 per cent. will be paid by the county; 30 per cent. by the city; and 40 per cent. by the Province. The limit of expenditure is one-half mill on the dollar for the city, but provision is made that two mills on the dollar may be spent if the Council approves by a two-thirds vote. The Council of the country must be prepared to spend an amount proportionately.

CHANCE FOR COAL EXCHANGE

Britain Has Too Much Anthracite and New York Has a Surplus of Bituminous.

In England the coal controller is trying to induce the people to burn anthracite in place of bituminous coal. He offers to exchange two tons of large anthracite for every ton of bituminous coal that consumers have on hand. In the eastern United States the fuel administration has been trying to get consumers to use bituminous coal in place of anthracite. Welsh anthracite mines are operating on part time, while English and Welsh bituminous coal mines are working overtime, says the New York Commercial.

This would be a fine chance for exchange of products if shipping were available, and it soon will be. New York city needs anthracite and can get a surplus of bituminous coal. England needs the latter and can spare the former. In England most of the people do not know how to burn anthracite. New Yorkers are ignorant of the way to use bituminous coal. The English persist in using open grates for heating rooms, and find it hard to make anthracite burn in them. In New York the open grate is found only in the homes of the wealthy. England shivers with plenty of anthracite in sight, while New York is threatened with a famine of domestic sizes of anthracite. Each regards the other as pig-headed because neither knows how to use the fuel available. It's an odd world.

Mica and Pins.

The use of mica for insulating purposes, as in making commutators for direct current generators and motors, is well known, and the manufacture of it into bars and sheets for such purposes has become a recognized industry. But there are rifts in the lute, and there are sometimes foreign substances in the mica, the presence of which is laid to some of the new voters-to-be, for we are assured that "a good many of the processes evolved in building up these sheets are done by girls, and it has been found that, in spite of all precautions, pins, bits of tin foil wrappers, small pieces of wire, and other foreign substances are sometimes built up in the mica." Just as ages ago some delicate, timid fern impressed its story within a lump of coal, so to-day for future ages pins and other things betake themselves to mica to await the moment when the X-ray operator shall find their hiding-place. Men and women and children have a way of leaving their traces behind them and sometimes in startling ways. The Roman cockney that scratched "ic" upon a wall, never thought that some day the graffito would be found and his "h"-lessness bared to the world. Or perhaps he did not care. In the brave days when there were no direct-current generators, and tin foil wrappers were a good deal scarcer than beaten gold, the Roman, high or low, did not disturb himself much about posterity's opinion, and anyhow the aspirate has never played such a part in the Latinic tongues as in the northern.

An Old Habit.

The former crown prince of Germany, it is announced, has decided to "take things as they come." An old habit of his.

GUARD AGAINST THE 'FLU

Serious Outbreaks of Influenza all over Canada

GOOD HEALTH IS THE SUREST SAFEGUARD

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brings Vigor and Vitality and Thus Protects Against Disease

There can be no doubt that the situation regarding the spread of Influenza throughout Canada is one of grave concern. It is quite true that the number of cases does not constitute an epidemic such as caused the suffering and sorrow during the terrible days of 1918. Yet there is no disguising the fact that everyone should be on their guard against the disease.

In Montreal alone, from January 20th to February 21st, three thousand, one hundred and twenty-two cases of Influenza and 180 deaths from the disease were reported to the Health Department.

If the outbreak had come at the beginning of the winter instead of the end, we might reasonably feel that the very cold weather would check the spread of the disease. But coming as it has, at the end of the winter, there is grave fear that an epidemic may occur. For spring, with its slush and rain under foot, its dampness and chill, its constant changing from cold to warm and back again, is a prolific source of coughs and colds, pleurisy and pneumonia.

The best protection, in fact, the only safeguard against the 'Flu, is, GOOD HEALTH.

Those who are not as well and strong as they should be; those who are underweight; those who are "run-down" through overwork or sickness; should build up at once. What they need is a Blood-purifier, a body-builder, a strength-giver, like "Fruit-a-tives", the wonderful fruit medicine.

"Fruit-a-tives" regulates the kidneys and bowels, causing these organs to eliminate waste regularly and naturally as nature intended. "Fruit-a-tives" keeps the skin active, and insures an abundant supply of pure, rich blood. "Fruit-a-tives" tones up and strengthens the organs of digestion, sharpens the appetite, brings restful sleep and renews the vitality of the nervous system. "Fruit-a-tives" contains everything that an ideal tonic should have; to purify the blood, to build up strength and vigor, and to regulate the eliminating organs, so that the whole system would be in the best possible condition to resist disease.

Now is the time to build up your health and strength, not only as a precaution against the ravages of Influenza, but also to protect you against "spring fever" and the inevitable reaction which comes with the appearance of warmer weather. Get a box of "Fruit-a-tives" today and let this fruit medicine keep you well.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, trial size 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Birds Steal Rides.

Birds are fast taking the place of hoboes on the brakebeams of trains, according to John E. Sexton, president of the Eureka-Nevada Railroad company of Palisade, Nev.

Sexton says birds, especially sparrows and linnets, are extremely lazy this year, and instead of flying from the East to the West are riding the brakebeams.

Citing an instance, Sexton said that about 300 birds riding on a Southern Pacific train passing through Nevada from the east recently flew from their perches between the coaches when the train passed over a rough crossing.

Causes of Commercial Growth.

The chief causes of the growth of international commerce from less than $2,000,000,000 in 1818 to approximately $50,000,000,000 in 1918 are growth in population, cheapening in transportation and a division of labor among groups of men the world over.

Patti's Beauty Vanishes.

According to a writer in Everybody's Magazine, "Patti lives, not only in our hearts, but really, in the flesh, at the age of seventy-six, in her magnificent castle of Craig-y-Nos, ten miles north of Swansea, in South Wales, on which she has spent quite half a million. She lives there with her third husband, Baron Cederstrom, and sometimes, when they feel inclined, they throw open their theater, a replica of the Baireuth theater, to the countryside and give one of the operas in which Patti once thrilled the world. Until recently Patti was even sometimes prevailed upon to appear at Albert hall in London for the benefit of some charity, but her beauty is quite gone—it vanished far earlier than her voice—and so for the most part she is happiest in her Welsh fastnesses among the neighbors, who will always call her the 'Queen of Wales.'"

Dutch Select Wireless Site.

The site for the wireless station intended for communication between the Netherlands and the Dutch East Indies has finally been decided on. The Koelberg hill, which is 88 meters high and located in Hoog-Buurlo, near Apeldoorn, was selected, according to the Scientific American.

A new railway line will be constructed from Kaatwyk. The station is to have four towers, each 210 meters high, a large power house and building for housing the operatives. The communicating station in India is to be built near Bandoeng in the Preanger, so that the distance between the two stations will be some 11,000 kilometers.

INVENTION GOT GOOD TRYOUT

Exploit of an Elderly French Aviator With Particular Hobby, Has Become Legendary.

Another French officer, recently promoted to a very high position in aviation, is a genuine character, a numero as they say here. He recently spent many hours in perfecting a trick optical sight, guaranteed to down a Boche at any range, angle or speed. He adored his invention, which, he admitted, would probably end the war when fully perfected, and grew quite testy when his friends told him the thing was far too complicated for anything but laboratory use.

A last, though he had reached a non-flying rank and had not flown for months, he installed the optical wonder on a single-seater and went out over the lines to try it out. As luck would have it he fell in with a patrol of eight Albatrosses and the fight that followed has become legendary. Boche after Boche dove on him, riddling his plane with bullets, while the inventor, in a scientific ecstasy, peered this way and that through his sight, adjusting set screws and making hasty mental notes. By a miracle he was not brought down, and in the end a French patrol came to his rescue. He had not fired a shot!

At lunch the other day someone asked what sort of a chap this inventor was, and the answer was so exceedingly French that I will reproduce it word for word: "He detests women and dogs; he has a wife he adores and a dog he can't let out of his sight." A priceless characterization, I think, of a testy yet amiable old martinet.—Charles Bernard Nordhoff in the Atlantic Monthly.

FEWER HEROES' NAMESAKES

One Popular Custom Seems to Have Virtually Ended With Cleveland's Administration.

Americans are abandoning the old custom of naming their children after the hero of the hour, according to the New York Sun. At the time of the Civil war and immediately thereafter thousands of children were named Abraham Lincoln.

This custom continued about thirty years after the war. The last American president to be honored in this way by any large number of persons was Grover Cleveland. The American army today is jammed with Grover Clevelands, as boys born during the great democratic administration are just now of the finest fighting age. The slump began during McKinley's term and has continued ever since.

There are comparatively few William McKinleys, and even Theodore Roosevelt, with all his immense popularity, gained but few namesakes. President Taft had only a small number of babies named after him. In time of war, such as has existed for the last two years, it would be imagined that the custom would revive, but there has been only a slight increase.

Out of 43,000 births recorded in Philadelphia in 1918 there were only 27 Woodrow Wilsons and only 7 John Pershings, according to the records of the bureau of vital statistics.

WELCOME DEATH'S COLD HAND

Little Wonder That Men Who Realize Their Appalling Loneliness Should End It All.

Alone. Not a living soul near to whom to speak. Forsaken it seems almost by God, whose presence scarce can penetrate the confused jangle of the city slums. Alone and penniless, with none to know or care. It is a harder lot by far than death. What wonder that men die?

Alone—with bitter thoughts of failure crowding through the interstices of a sluggish brain. Alone—with not even two coins to rub in warming friction, clammy hands thrust into empty pockets. It is hard to live and doubly hard to die. What wonder that men kill that breathing, pulsing thing within we call life? What wonder that men pass by their own hand from living death to deathless living?

They come and stay with us a while—and pass, defying God and man, themselves defied. And only they whose hearts beat with a richer, warmer, redder blood will understand.—Milwaukee Journal.

Mountain Grown Orange Pekoes are Best

Orange Pekoe Teas are plucked from every tea bush.

So there are poor Orange Pekoes and those of fine quality. Low price and high price.

The best Orange Pekoes are plucked from tea bushes grown from selected seed in the carefully cultivated soil of mountain side gardens, and gathered at a certain time of the year when the flavor is most fully developed in the leaves.

Naturally these command the highest price.

They are worth it, as you will agree when you taste their exquisite flavor in our Red Rose Orange Pekoe Tea---the new and higher priced tea for those who are willing to pay a little extra price for a tea of extra quality.

There are numerous packages of Orange Pekoe teas on the market. See that the one you buy has the name---Red Rose Orange Pekoe Tea---on our waxed board carton.

A Column For The Veterans

After clearing up much business of importance at the convention the Great War Veterans' Association, Provincial Command, now looks forward to another year of effort for the general good of the returned man. If its efforts meet with as much success as has been met in the past twelve months there will be every reason to be satisfied.

• • • •

The local Veteran who belonged to the G.W.V.A. in this city and thought that this was as far as his organization went, had his eyes opened last week. He was shown that the Great War Veterans' Association is a nation-wide power which must be reckoned with by all parties.

• • • •

The Peterborough delegates had evidently received strong instructions to fight against any attempt to lower the barrier of admittance to the organization. They fought solidly against any move that would throw the door of membership open to every Tom, Dick and Harry who cared to join. It was a case of quality against quantity. That quantity won was no fault of the local representatives.

• • • •

An outstanding factor concerning the recent convention was that Flynn and his followers were only mentioned once during the whole convention and then in a merely casual way which had no particular significance. It would appear that Veterans as a whole are becoming more and more convinced day after day that Flynn is an agitator and nothing more. His solution of the returned Soldier problem is gradually becoming recognized as an impossible one and his following is in consequence growing less every day. At the close of the Provincial Convention the Secretary referred to this as one of the most pleasing points of a very successful gathering.

• • • •

Returned soldiers in Hamilton are incensed at the action of the Hamilton magistrate who dismissed the charge laid against a colored man of molesting a 14 year old white girl although the evidence presented looked like a clear case against him. The Hamilton Vets take the stand that there was at least sufficient evidence to commit the man for trial to let a jury decide whether or not he was guilty. The vets are supported in their action by several women's organizations and the Trades and Labor council and it is likely that action will be taken under this pressure by the Attorney-eneral.

• • • •

There are over 200 Ontario delegates attending the Dominion Convention in Montreal. The last Dominion Convention was held in Vancouver and it was noticed that there was a great preponderance of Western delegates but this year owing to the eastern location of the Convention the Ontario delegates are getting more of a show.

Advices received by the militia department at Ottawa state that the British and allied medals are in the process of manufacture, and there is also a memorandum as to whom they shall go.

The record office at Ottawa is at present working to establish the men's claims. The army council has advised that the allied medal will be restricted to those serving actually in the field, while the British war medal will go to all those who served overseas. It is expected that there will be bars to indicate general engagements, and if so, it will be necessary to establish the soldier's presence at each engagement for which he claims a bar. Eight hundred thousand medals will be issued.

• • • •

A Toronto despatch states that military headquarters has apparently approved of the suggested increase in pay of 60 per cent. for the officers of the Canadian permanent militia. If this increase goes into effect a married subaltern will receive $1500 per annum to start, exclusive of allowances. Lieut.-Col. Brookes, A.A.G., stated that the increase would greatly add to the attractiveness of the service. The scale is as follows:

	O. S. Pay	Field Allowance	N. S. Pay
Colonel	$6	$1.50	$6.60
Lieut.-colonel ..	5	1.25	5.50
Major	4	1.25	4.40
Captain	3	.75	3.30
Lieutenant	2	.60	2.20
Paymaster	3	.75	3.30
Quartermaster .	3	.75	3.30

The new scale of pay plus the old field allowance would be as follows: Colonel, $8.10; lieutenant-colonel, $6.75; major, $5.40; captain, $4.05; lieutenant, $2.80; paymaster, $2.80 and quartermaster, $4.05.

What is puzzling local militia officers is whether the above despatch in referring to the "permanent militia" does not mean the "active militia." For some time past there has been a scheme on foot to increase the pay in the active militia regiments.

• • • •

In the Ontario Legislature the other day Sergeant-Major MacNamara, who made such a dramatic address at the recent convention in this city, demanded that the pledges made to the returned men should be kept. Extracts from his speech follow:

"When I told them at Christie Street Hospital that I was thinking of entering the civil service, they asked me: 'Have you got Government pull?' 'No, the only Government pull I ever had was when I pulled a mule out of the mud at Passchendaele. Government pull! That's a fine thing with which to confront a man after three years' service. It's not right. (Loud cheers, in which Premier Drury and his Cabinet joined).

"We are not asking for sympathy.

"The only thing we returned men demand in this country is a fighting chance.

"Are we asking too much when we ask you to keep your pledges?

"Two years ago each and very man was under orders to stand with his back to the wall. You sent the encouraging word to us and asked us to stand fast. We come back to you and say: 'Stand fast in your promises and pledges to the men who went overseas. The returned soldier expects you to keep your pledges just as they kept their word. Play the game square, and if there is any patronage going, so far as is possible, so far as is practicable, let it go to the man who has been disabled.' "

• • • •

Local Veterans are taking steps towards the organisation of a baseball team to enter the City League again this year. A very creditable showing was made last season considering that many Veterans were still overseas at the commencement of the season and it is expected that a good team will be put in the field again this season. A meting of all veterans interested in baseball is called for Monday night to take the matter up.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets
At Any Cost

Such is the statement of Mr. A. O. Norton, of Boston, the largest Jack Manufacturer in the world. His voluntary testimonial regarding ZUTOO follows:

286 Congress St., Boston, Mass.
"I have been a sufferer from Headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all the so-called 'cures' on the market. Some months since my attention was called to Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a 'sick' or 'nervous' headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effects. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Arrangements are being completed for the placing of an order for 6,000 tons of coal for the Windsor municipal coal pile.

Capt. John F. Boultbee, an old resident of Paris, Ont., and retired Royal Naval officer, died in his seventy-ninth year.

Mrs. T. Humphries, of Welland, took an ounce of carbolic acid, and was dead when her husband came home in the evening.

This picture shows a train of Gray-Dort automobiles leaving the Company's Canadian factory at Chatham, Ontario. The autos, it will be noticed are loaded on coal cars, which indicates Canada's shortage of rolling stock to meet transportation requirements.

MEMORIAL CROSSES TO BE DISTRIBUTED

THERE ARE 126 WIDOWS AND 129 ORPHANS TO RECEIVE THEM

According to memo, the figures compiled in the city this week, there are 126 widows and 129 orphans in Peterborough County, who will be entitled to receive the memorial cross which is to be issued to the dependants of soldiers who fell in the Great War as a recognition of their sacrifice.

Thirty-five of these widows are widowed mothers. Full instructions and regulations are given in Routine Order 2306 of December 6th, 1919, which deals with the issuing of memorial crosses. A copy of this order is in the hands of Secretary Whatley of the G. W. V. A. and may be seen upon request.

These memorial crosses will be issued in the ordinary course of events to dependents of fallen soldiers of the C. E. F. but special applications are necessary where the soldier was killed while serving in the Imperial Forces.

According to the description given in the routine order, the cross will be of silver, suspended by a purple ribbon; at the end of the upright a crown, at the foot and at the end of either arm a maple leaf, in the centre, within a wreath of laurel, the royal cipher "G. R. I." It will be engraved with the number, rank and name of the soldier in whose memory it is raised.

Framers in the Blenheim district are plowing, and if the present fine weather continues seeding will commence in a few days.

CENTRAL SCHOOL, TOO, JOINS PROCESSION

BRANCH OF THE HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED BY PARENTS

A large and enthusiastic meeting of parents and teachers was held Thursday afternoon in Central School to consider the forming of a home and school association.

Mrs. W. R. Morris presided and outlined the work of these associations, their use and helpfulness in connection with every school.

Mrs. S. T. Medd, president of the Queen Mary School association, addressed the meeting, touching briefly the work of her association and pointing out the fact that each school had its own particular work. Mrs. Medd read the preamble from the constitution of the Toronto Home and School Council, which showed how very important this association can be and how helpful both to teacher and pupil.

It was moved by Mrs. W. F. Nelson and seconded by Mrs. R. Denne that an association be formed and this carried unanimously.

The following officers were elected:
President—Mrs. R. Denne.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. R. H. Heideman.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. Lush.
Secretary—Mrs. J. Sharpe.
Treasurer—Mrs. Spencer.
Convenor of Relief Committee—Mrs. J. Craig.
Convenor of Program Committee—Mrs. John Anderson.

The association decided to affiliate with the National Home and School Association and to send a representative, if possible, to the annual convention in Toronto in Easter week.

Meetings will be held the first Wednesday of each month and the executive hope that all mothers will join the association.

The Central School Association members are very much indebted to Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Medd for their help in forming the association and hope that in the near future they will be very proud of their efforts.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

TORONTO MAN HAS GAINED 16 POUNDS

"TANLAC HAS CHANGED ME INTO A STRONG, HEALTHY MAN," HE STATES.

"I have gained sixteen pounds in weight and have been changed from a sick, wornout, broken-down man into a strong, healthy one since I started taking Tanlac," said Andrew Thompson, of 1 Poulton avenue, Toronto, Ont., Canada, an employee of E. B. Blaine, wholesale grocer.

"For the past six years I had been suffering with rheumatism in the small of my back so bad I was never free from pain. I could get no relief either standing, sitting or lying down, and if I stooped over it caused me such agony I could hardly bear it. My left arm finally became affected, my elbow got stiff and pained me terribly and the balance of my arm and hand felt numb and dead all the time. I also suffered with severe headaches and was in such constant misery I could get but little sleep lying awake many a night all night long without sleeping a wink. I lost a great deal and for one whole summer was absolutely unable to do a thing. I tried many different treatments and medicines, but never found anything that did me a particle of good until I started taking Tanlac.

"A friend told me about Tanlac and the good it had done him, and I decide to give it a trial. Well sir, after I had taken the first bottle the improvement in my condition was simply remarkable. I continued taking it until now I am absolutely rid of rheumatism, never have a sign of a pain and can get around as good as I ever could. I have not had a headache since I started taking Tanlac, sleep well and have regained my strength and feel so good all the time I never miss a day from work. I don't think I could praise Tanlac too highly, and it is a real pleasure for me to tell others about it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by The Warne Drug Co., and by the leading druggists in every town.

PIANO RECITAL AT CONSERVATORY HALL

MISS A. RUTH PHILLIPS WAS ASSISTED BY MISS COPPING, LONDON

A most interesting musical event took place at the Conservatory of Music last evening when Miss A. Ruth Phillips, A.T.C.M., delighted a large audience with a splendid program of classics by some of the most emminent composers. Miss Phillips who is the pupil of Miss Alice Roger Collins, assisted by Miss Gladys Topping, contralto soloist of the First Presbyterian Church, London. Miss Collins added much interest to the piano solos, by short talks on the lives and methods of the different composers, and explanations of the particular idea which each artist carried out in his compositions. After listening to last evening's program Miss Phillips was accepted as a pianist of exceptionally fine ability and one who does credit to her teacher.

Miss Gladys Topping sang some very beautiful numbers in a pleasing contralto voice, responding generously to the repeated encores that were given her.

The Program.

(a) Bach—Prelude G Minor.

(b) Beethoven—Scherzo, from op. 14, No. 1.

(c) Bach—Prelude G Major.

Coningsby-Clark — Desert Love Songs, (a) By the Blue River, (b) My Heart's Desire, (c) The Hawk.

(a) Chopin—Etude C mi. op. 25.

(b) Liszt—Cantique d'Amour.

Hermann-Lohr — Romany Songs, (a) The Wind on the Heath, (b) The Magpie.

Debussy — (a) Nocturne, (b) Danse.

Clayton-Thomas—Japanese Love Song.

MacDowell—(a) "In Deep Woods," op 62, No. 5; (b) "To an Old White Pine," op. 62, No. 7; (c) "Song," from opus. 55.

Bizet—"Love Is Like a Woodland Bird," from "Carmen."

Schubert-Tausig—Military March, op. 51, No. 1.

MOSCOW DESPATCH CLAIMS CAPTURE OF THOUSAND MEN AND ARTILLERY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 27. — Bolshevik communication received by wireless last night from Moscow says: "During the occupation of Kholmskaya we took more than one thousand prisoners, and fourteen guns and scores of machine guns. These were captured mainly by the Uhlan regiment, which only the previous day had passed over to our side. Two thousand Kuban Cossacks have joined us near Smolenskaya. We entered Grosny (Ciscaucasia) March 24. The oil wells had not been damaged.

British Columbia expects to raise $400,000 additional revenue from motor car licenses and the amusement tax.

MISS HAMILTON, THE DISTRICT NURSE SUBMITS REPORT OF WORK DONE 1919

As Representative of Peterborough Health Association Treated 133 Cases—Work Among Infants--Tubercolosis Shows no Sign of Increase.

The following is the annual report of Miss Edith Hamilton, district nurse for the Peterborough Health Association:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I beg to submit the following report for the general and tubercular work for the year 1919: During the year one hundred and thirty-three patients were treated. Of these there were, medical, 86, obstetric, 36, surgical, 11.

The following donations have been handed in and have been greatly appreciated: The Red Cross Society—Fifteen one-lb. packages of absorbent cotton, three webs of gauze, a large number of Canton flannel bandages; also old linen, which is always needed.

The one hundred and thirty-three patients mentioned above had to be visited once or twice a day as the case demanded. Thus one thousand, six hundred and nineteen visits in all were made by the nurse. I might just say that had I not a car I could not attend to both general and tubercular patients. Nine hundred and sixty-one were free; six hundred and fifty-eight were paid for by the patients. The total sum collected was $154.60.

Some Cases Treated.

During the year a clinic for babies was held at the Motor Show. To this a large number of mothers brought their babies for a physical examination. Some of these were poorly nourished and some had slight physical defects, which the mothers had not thought serious enough to have attended to. These were pointed out and the mothers were advised by the physician in attendance to have their family doctors correct them. It would not be possible to mention all the cases in this report, but one baby in particular was poorly nourished and weighed only six pounds when four months old. This baby was visited daily by the nurse and the mother instructed as to the baby's food, sleep, bath and airing. The child now weighs fifteen pounds and has a good foundation laid for a strong constitution.

In a family of seven there were two children who were poorly nourished. These were supplied by the association with eggs and milk for three months and gained rapidly in weight. Now they are in good health and attending school.

The association had also an emergency tent on the Exhibition grounds on the First of July. Four patients who had been overcome by the intense heat were revived.

In Exhibition week they had another emergency tent to help all who were in any way hurt.

During the year the nurse was called out twelve times at night.

Tubercular Work.

The tubercular work has not increased to any extent during the past year. If there are more patients, they have not been reported to the nurse.

During the past year eleven tubercular patients were treated, three of whom were new cases. These were visited as occasion demanded, thus making a total of two hundred and fifty-nine visits.

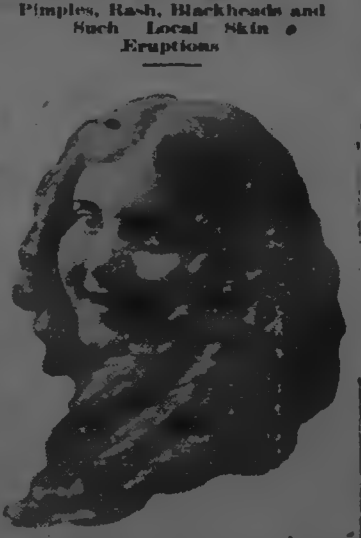
In one home that was visited there were eight children, the eldest being in the advanced stage of tuberculosis. Here no precaution had been taken to ward off infection, no precaution taken in regard to sputum. The danger of contracting tuberculosis is especially great during childhood and we have learned that the advanced stage must be isolated, if we are to avoid case after case of infection. This is hard to do, however in a home. The ladies of the supervision committee have sent a little girl eight years old, suffering with tuberculosis in the bones of the feet to the Hospital for Sick Children, where she will be operated on.

For this the following articles have been loaned: Air cushions, two electric fans, verandah curtains, cots, thermometers, soap stones, coal oil stove, and a bed rest. Moreover, all patients who are in need are supplied with milk, eggs and medicine as long as they are required.

The total number of visits made during the year is one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, and one hundred and forty-four patients were treated. Of these, ten have died, three of tuberculosis, four carcinoma, one pernicious anaemia, one heart disease, one paralysis, and one hundred and thirty-four have recovered.

TO BEAUTIFY COMPLEXION

All You Need is Stuart's Calcium Wafers to Clear the Skin of Pimples, Rash, Blackheads and Such Local Skin Eruptions



The calcium sulfide in Stuart's Calcium Wafers is nature's contribution to skin health. It is the substance that seeks the skin, assists in its activity to prevent stagnant pores, to stimulate circulation and divert impurities from finding lodgment in the skin texture. It sweeps its way through the bowels, removing wastes that otherwise may be absorbed into the circulation and thus try to escape through the skin. Use these wafers regularly for a few days and notice how the skin clears, how pimples, blackheads and such kinds of skin eruptions are removed. They simply cannot remain. Their redness and itching disappear. Proper food and Stuart's Calcium Wafers will surely take the place of all your creams and lotions and you won't need your powder puff. Get a 50-cent box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers today at any drug store and join the ever-growing throng of American complexion beauties.

LOUIS JOFFE PREACHES AT ST. PAUL'S SUNDAY

"THE DAY OF THE SON OF MAN" SUBJECT OF HIS DISCOURSE

It is an interesting fact that Jewish Christians hold a view of our Lord's Second Advent and Messianic Reign not held by most Gentile Christians. Mr. Joffe is to speak in St. Paul's Church Sunday evening on the subject "The Day of the Son of Man." He believes in our Lord's personal and literal reign, and finds in that reign the only hope of the world's ills. He will speak in St. Paul's Sunday school hall Monday evening, March 29th, on Russian Literature, Folk Lore, Superstitions and Proverbs. Those who heard his masterly address on Shakespeare on Monday evening last know what a treat is in store for them.

FIRST MULE SEEN IN AMERICA

Was Presented to George Washington by King of Spain.

The first mule seen in the United States was sent to George Washington by the King of Spain. The mule measured 15 hands high, and his ears were 14 inches long. His disposition was so ungrateful that Gen. Washington remarked on the beasts inability to appreciate "republican enjoyment."

The mule was given much publicity. Washington sent him on a tour of the South, where his long ears, peculiar voice and strange appearance drew large crowds and created much excitement. The attention lavished upon the mule forced the keeper to hurry him from place to place at such a pace that the animal reduced considerably. Washington having been shocked with his condition upon his reappearance in Mount Vernon.

It is said that Washington looked forward to producing a breed of mules suitable to draw the family carriage, but history does not record whether the frist President carried out this plan. He was, however, at all times very enthusiastic over mules, and commented upon them in glowing terms as an excellent race of animals.

LAST MEETING OF SEASON

Of High School Club Held at Y.M.C.A. Last Night.

The last meeting of the season for the High School Club was held at the Y.M.C.A. last night. During the past season the activities of the club have been very successful. Each Friday the club met in the Y.M.C.A. and listened to addresses by different speakers, which proved very helpful and instructive to the Collegiate boys. The membership is open to any boys of the Upper School.

"Safety First" To Be Enforced.

People Taking Matters Into Their Own Hands.

Public safety does not alone concern the operation of railways, street cars and motors. It lies deeper. It lies in the health of the people.

One of the greatest enemies to health is kidney trouble. If the kidneys don't filter from the blood the uric acid and other poisons, the general health declines, and all manner of ills appear—rheumatic, sciatic, and neuralgic pains, lumbago, stone in the bladder, headaches, constipation, lassitude. There is certain relief for these ailments. Gin Pills help where other remedies fail. They build up the debilitated system, bring the kidneys and bladder back to normal action, and, by removing the cause, make impossible the evil results. Gin Pills do not contain any alcohol, but all the valuable diuretic properties of the Gin together with other diuretics and antiseptics which have a signal effect on the bladder and kidneys.

All druggists and dealers sell Gin Pills under a guarantee to return your money if they do not bring relief. If you have backache, constant headaches or pain in the sides, begin treatment at once with Gin Pills, 50c a box. Free sample on request.

NEW FASHION IN COMEDY SET BY NIGHTIE NIGHT

UP-TO-DATE FARCE THAT WILL BE SEEN AT THE GRAND TONIGHT

New fashions in farces crop up every few years. The latest fashion in bedroomless comedies has been set by "Nightie Night," an Adolph Klauber and Selwyn production, written by Martha M. Stanley and Adelaide Matthews, which, after an all-season record-breaking run in New York, will be seen at the Grand Opera House matinee and night, today.

Through a prologue and three acts runs the effervescent story of a young matron who meets an old friend and innocently drags him into an adventure that drives his poor wife into hysterics and brings her own jealous husband storming into a scene filled with protests, alibis, divorce threats and a mischievous, but entirely proper pair of pink pyjamas. The acting is said to be as vivacious as the farce itself. Mr. Klauber, associated with the Selwyns, will present the original New York company, headed by Francis Byrne, whose success in the role of the woefully harassed and suspected husband, has won for him the featured position in an organization made up of accomplished farceurs. Among the other prominent players in this latest Princess Theatre success are Dorothy Mortimer, Suzanne Willis, Malcolm Duncan, Grant Mills, Ruby Craven Marie Chambers and Cyril Raymond.

IRENE CASTLE'S NEW FAD IS "VANITY PAIL"

DANCER NOW APPEARING AS SCREEN STAR IN "THE INVISIBLE BOND."

It remains for Irene Castle, known the world over for her original fads, to induce America's most exclusive jewelry shop to make anything so commonplace as a dinner-pail. While working on her new picture, "The Invisible Bond," to be shown at the Grand Opera House next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Mrs. Castle told the story.

"I have always wanted some sort of a compact contrivance in which I could put odds and ends, so I planned a box about six inches in circumference and a foot deep and had my husband secure a patent for it. It looked just like a dinner-pail. I went to Tiffany's to have the thing made up and they gave me just what I wanted."

Mrs. Castle has had "pails" made of white kid, rattlesnake skin, lavender suede, leathers, velvets, and every other material to match her costumes. The inside of the top has a large mirror and the sides are fitted with miniature bottles and containers for powder puff, lip stick, rouge, a watch, and baby check book. Personal mail, gloves, handkerchiefs and other articles have found their way into the "pail" and it would not be surprising some day to see Mrs. Castle take a collapsible umbrella out of it.

POTATOES BRING $4.50 ON LOCAL MARKET

PROSPECTS ARE THAT PRICE WILL BE INCREASED — EGGS 50 CENTS

The main feature of a fairly large market this morning was the sudden increase in the price of potatoes which jumped from $4 a bag last week to $4.50 this week. And the worst of it is that the farmers seemed quite confident that the price would not remain at this but would be even higher in a week or so. Other prices were pretty much the same with the exception that eggs, which, last week dropped from 65 cents early in the morning to 50 cents later in the day, started out today this time at 48 and 50 cents and there seemed a prospect of a further drop later. The following prices prevailed:

Dairy Products

Butter, 63 and 65 cents.
Eggs, 48 and 50 cents.
Chicken, 35 and 40 cents lb.

Meat

Pork, pound, 26 and 28 cents.
Pork, pound, 27 and 29 cents.
Beef, pound, 18 and 21 ecnts.
Lamb, paund, 32 and 35 cents.

Garden Produce

Potatoes, bag, $4.50 straight.
Turnips, bag, $1.
Carrots, peck, 40 cents.
Parsnips, peck, 40 cents.
Beets. peck 40 cents.
Onions peck. $1.25 and $1.35.
White beans, quart, 25 cents.
Cabbage, per head, 15 to 30 cents.
Apples, peck, 90 cents.

LOCAL STOCK OF COAL IS ABOUT EXHAUSTED

AND DEALERS SEE LITTLE PROSPECT OF SECURING FURTHER SUPPLIES

Peterborough along with other cities in the country is living a hand to mouth existence, with reference to the supply of coal. Local dealers stated this morning that the supply on hand was nearly exhausted and the prospects for more in the near future looked very poor. None of the local dealers are accepting orders for winter delivery at the present time owing to the uncertainty of supplies and prices and the prevailing opinion is that the high water mark with regard to cost has not yet been reached with coal at $14 a ton, but that it will shortly soar far higher than this figure. It seems certain that there will be another coal strike on April first and the mine owners who have been in communication with the local dealers have advised them to place their orders anywhere they can for the present as the whole situation is one of great uncertainty.

:-: INDOOR BASEBALL :-:

An exhibition of some first class indoor baseball was given at the Armories last night when the Collegiate team defeated the 57th. Regiment in a City League fixture by a score of 11-8. The game was hotly contested all the way through and proved very interesting. Messrs. Rush and Flowers were the umpires.

FOUND FORTUNE IN SACK

Five Million Dollars was Confiscated in Roumania

Bucharest, Roumania, March 27. — Five million dollars in bills, found in a sack in the corridor of the Simplon Express have been seized and confiscated at the Temesvar station, on the Roumanian-Hungarian frontier. The owner of the money, it is asserted, was expecting to make a trip to England and the United States shortly.

SEWED UP CLAMP IN BODY OF PATIENT

GROSS CARELESSNESS OF OPERATING SURGEON HAS FATAL RESULTS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Cambridge, Mass., March 27.— An outophy performed on the body of Mrs. Jennis Cholakian, who died at the hospital here under intense pain, disclosed that the surgeons clamp had been left in her body after an operation was performed some time ago. The clamp, five inches long, was apparently forgotten by the surgeon.

WAS THERE WITH THE RAZOR

Colored United States Soldier Mad Short Work of Hun and His Trench Knife.

How a negro soldier met a stray German prowling about a piece of woods was related by one of the colored troops from New York, on his return to that city. The German had lost his gun and revolver and was armed only with a trench knife. The negro, a resident of Tenth avenue, looked him over, dropped his own gun and bayonet and revolver, and took a long, wicked razor from his boot.

"Now, you li'l Hun boy," said the American soldier, "now you and me's a'gwine to fight fair and square. I'se a-going' to carve you! Here goes! Wif you knife and ma knife we's fightin' even."

The German grasped his knife and waited for the negro, who crept upon him like some savage from the African jungles, his eyeballs gleaming in his black face, his splendid teeth glistening like a tiger's. There was a flash of steel, a grunting, a swish of knives in the air and the German reeled back, his face gashed and gashed again Again the negro crept up, laughing. Again there was the flash of steel, and again the German reeled, blinded with the blood streaming into his eyes. The third time the negro actually half severed the Hun's head from his trunk with one wide, glittering sweep of the razor.

Exhibition Trains.

An exchange of exhibition trains for showing in one country the products of another is a recent trade-extension project that is attracting attention in Canada. The Canadian National Railways have arranged for the transportation of exhibits of French goods through Canada, and Canadian manufacturers will be able to secure a similar exhibition of their goods on a train that will be taken through the principal cities of France.

Manitoba.

The Province of Manitoba covers an area of 251,832 square miles, of which 178,000 square miles were added in 1912. The added territory, known as New Manitoba, contains 424 miles of railroad, 332 miles of which have been built by the Canadian Government to connect the grain fields of the northwest with the Hudson Bay.

LACROSSE ENTHUSIASTS DECIDE TO REVIVE THE GAME IN PETERBOROUGH

Committee Appointed to Canvass for Necessary Support—Rev. Father Phelan Speaks a Word in Favor of Pastime.

At a well-attended conclave of lacrosse enthusiasts held last night in the Empress Hotel initial steps were taken towards the forming of a Peterborough lacrosse club and the re-introduction of the national game into the city for the first time since 1916. It was unanimously decided that Mr. R. Begley should take the chair for the first meeting. In briefly placing before the gathering the object for which the meeting was called, the chairman referred to lacrosse as the best game that existed for both mental and physical exercise.

On being requested to give the advice of an old-time lacrosse player, Father Phelan, who was present at the meeting, advised caution in the initial stages. "One false move," he stated, "might put them back farther than ever." He advised the appointment of a committee to stir up interest, solicit for financial assistance, and make enquiries as to the possibility of obtaining suitable grounds before proceeding with the election of permanent officers and the formation of the club. He told how in his day Peterborough had been a real lacrosse town. Many of the citizens who supported the game then were still in the city today and he felt sure that they would support it again when called upon to do so. Above all he laid stress on the necessity of keeping the game amateur. It was the bringing in of so-called "ringleaders" that had "rung out" lacrosse before.

Mr. J. Creighton, who played the game in Quebec, also gave some timely advice with regard to the forming of a club. He laid stress on the financial side of the project, pointing out that in the last few years the cost of everything connected with the game had increased enormously and several hundred dollars would be required before they could make any real headway. He supported the advice of Rev. Father Phelan as to electing a committee to canvass for support.

Mr. E. (King) Dillon heartily favored the idea of reviving the game in Peterborough. He thought that the main difficulty would be the matter of travelling expenses, but was of the opinion that this might be overcome by playing either with Port Hope, Oshawa and towns in that district, or with Hastings, Campbellford, Havelock and Norwood. On the other side he did not think that it would be possible to work with towns in both districts together. All the towns which he had mentioned were enthusiastic lacrosse centres and some of them had already strong teams in existence.

After some discussion it was decided that the time had arrived when Peterborough should be represented on the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association. Several were nominated in turn to attend the meeting of this association in Toronto on Good Friday, but none seemed willing to undertake the job until Mr. L. Johnson was nominated. He then offered to go to Toronto to the meeting at his own expense in order to protect the interests of Peterborough with reference to lacrosse.

It was decided on the motion of Mr. E. Dillon that the meeting should go ahead with the formation of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club. It was then moved by Mr. J. Creighton that a committee be appointed to canvass for support and financial assistance and to take up the matter of securing Riverside Park or other suitable grounds for the games during the coming season. The committee appointed consisted of the chairman and Messrs. J. Creighton, L. Johnson, J. McCoy, E. D. Dillon, H. J. Tudhope and R. M. Glover. Mr. H. J. Tudhope was the unanimous choice of the meeting as secretary pro tem.

Practically everyone present was an old-time lacrosse player and the gathering was most enthusiastic and confident as to the prospects of the revival of the game in Peterborough.

Another meeting will be called on Tuesday next when the committee will report on its work. If as a result of the information supplied by this committee it is thought advisable the club will be formed at that meeting and officers elected.

FOOTBALL TEAM FOR CALEDONIAN CLUB

INCLUDES GOOD PLAYERS WHO LEARNED THE GAME IN SCOTLAND

As a preliminary to the dance last night the members of the Caledonian Club met and commenced arranging the details for a promising season of football. The following officials were elected:

Honorary President: G. N. Gordon
Honorary Vice President: Mr. Alex Gibson.
Honorary Second Vice President: Mr. Peter McArthur.
President, Alex. Dick.
Vice President: Harry Taylor.
Secretary Treasurer Alex McArthur.

The following were appointed to a committee with the object of getting the ladies of the club interested enough in the matter to form an Auxiliary: Robert Vetitch, Robert Haddow and A. D. McLeith.

The Caledonian Club has among its members some first rate football players many of whom have played the game in the Old Country and it looks forward to the season full of confidence that a good showing will be made.

A DYING CITY.

Tragedy of Vienna, Once Gay and Cultured.

"City of the Dead" is gruesome; a city of the dying is more appalling—and the latter phrase describes the Vienna of to-day. To recall Vienna as it was—gay, musical and dancing—is only to heighten the contrast. Recollections of the "prettiest sight in Europe," when thousands of children joined the procession in the Prater at Whitsuntide, only emphasizes the poignant tragedy of those other thousands now in hospitals, too weak and too sick to cry for food.

The Prater, three times the size of Washington's Rock Creek Park, symbolized the Viennese love of outdoors, which a climate of changeful variety could not quench. There, scarcely out of earshot of each other, the famous military bands played music which later was to be hummed by home-going Canadian theatre audiences.

Fourth city of Europe before the war, Vienna seems doomed, not to temporary suffering, like many another European city, but to permanent disability. She was important principally for being the seat of government of an empire of some 50,000,000 people and rich natural resources.

While the population of Austria-Hungary was but half that of the United States, Vienna was the art, musical and tourist centre of a population that was much more artistic than that of the United States.

Vienna abounds in relics of her former glory. Such a reminder is St. Stephen's, the St. Peter's of Austria, which has been a Viennese shrine for seven centuries. The older tower, now replaced by a spire half as high as the Eiffel Tower, was the home of Vienna's early fire department.

By climbing 700 steps the fire watchers reached a platform, where there were four telescopes, sweeping every point of the compass. Each quadrant, covered by one telescope, was divided into sections, enabling the observer to determine the exact locality of the fire. House owners in each section corresponding to these sectors were listed in great books by the side of each telescope, and as soon as the observer determined which house was ablaze he wrote the name on a slip of paper, threw it down a long pipe, to a janitor below, and by him the fire was reported to the city authorities.

Legend, as well as quaint fact, adheres to many of the landmarks of Vienna. To the south of the city is a beautiful cross, the Spinnerinn am Kreus. The site was a rendezvous for tourists because of the panorama of the city it afforded. Though the present cross is more than five centuries old, it replaced a simpler crucifix, which is said to have been placed there by a woman whose husband went away in one of the crusades. While he was abroad she went to this point every day to spin and to pray. When he returned she erected the cross, as an act of gratitude, with the money she earned by spinning.

Only a few years before the world war Vienna embarked upon municipal ownership to an unprecedented scale. Not only did the city own her electric and gas lighting plants, her street railways, and warehouses, but also her breweries, pawnshops, and undertaking establishments.

As befits a city to which the western world owes a debt of gratitude, because it was the bulwark against the Turks, Vienna was heavily fortified. The pulling down of these fortifications made room for the extensive park system. With the demolition of the inner ring of forts space was given for the Ringstrasse, or boulevard, which has a two-mile circumference, and is about 150 feet wide. Around this circle, or, more accurately, octagon, run street cars, passing various sections given over to different phases of city life, such as the opera, the business street, the city palace of the former emperor, and so on.

Vienna is not on the Danube, but is connected with the river's course, several miles away, by a canal.

Scottish Reverence.

Lord Leverhulme has encountered the religious prejudices of the Scottish men who live on the extensive property he has purchased in the Outer Hebrides and has suffered a rebuff. He had planned to make Stornoway, on the island of Lewis, the headquarters of a huge fishing fleet that should sweep the seas for 500 miles around. The project involved Sunday labor and the islanders who adhere to the strict and intense form of the Presbyterian faith, rejected it. Commenting on the incident, the periodical, Common Sense, says: "Lord Leverhulme is a man of big ideas and new ideas while the population over whom he has declared the rights of lordship are folk of old and intense ideas. Hence the inevitable collision."

An Easy Fraud.

British soldiers in Palestine used labels from jars of jam as money in purchasing goods from some of the natives there. The scheme worked well until the plum and apple labels were presented to the bank for payment.

THE MAORIS.

Inhabitants of New Zealand Are Dying Out.

When Captain Cook, the famous navigator, landed at Poverty Bay, New Zealand, in October, 1769, the natives took his ship for a gigantic bird and were struck with the size and beauty of its wings. He spent nearly a year cruising around the islands and cultivating friendly relations with the inhabitants.

They appeared to be amiable and exceptionally intelligent; yet infanticide was commonly practiced, and cannibalism was an established habit. The Maoris thought nothing of making an armed descent upon a distant island, rounding up its people, and accomplishing a thorough clean-up by eating them all in leisurely fashion.

Captain Cook estimated their number at 400,000. To-day there are not more than 40,000 left alive. Like other native races all over Oceania, the Maoris are dying out. They earned the admiration of Europeans by the skill and bravery with which they defended their country in a long series of wars against the white invaders. At one time the British had 10,000 soldiers in New Zealand.

The origin of the Maoris is uncertain, but they are presumably of Malay stock. They have a tradition that the islands were first settled by ancestors of theirs who came from a distant land in fourteen canoes. Most cherished of their ancient weapons are war-clubs made of a translucent and very beautiful green stone. A British sea captain once asked a chief what he would take in exchange for his club, and the reply was "Your ship."

The chief explained that the lifetime of one man was required to make such a war club. Very likely this was true. For when an attempt was made to turn out clubs of like pattern from the same material with the help of machinery the result was failure, owing to the extreme hardness of the stone.

The Lesser Evil.

A popular musical comedy star was taking her summer vacation in a New England village last year, and good-naturedly agreed to participate in an "entertainment" to be given at the Town Hall for the benefit of local charities. She procured from New York one of the costumes from her last winter's show, and a fetching poster showing herself in that same costume. Soon after the poster was on display a delegation of ladies waited upon the committee of gentlemen who were engineering the entertainment and protested against the chic costume of the poster, which was, in fact, that of the conventional "prince" of musical comedy, with a frank if pleasing display of silk-encased limbs.

"Let's send for Miss de Lancy and see if we can't fix it up," a committeeman suggested, and this was done.

Now, besides being good-hearted, Miss de Lancy is high-spirited and rather thought that the costume which had been good enough for her to appear in for some hundreds of times in New York would do for one appearance in Hicksville.

"There is no use talking," she announced with decision, "I'll appear in that costume or nothing!"

There was a moment of horrified silence, then quick whispering among the lady delegation, and a moment later their protest against the proposed costume was withdrawn.

Ontario's Minerals.

A drop of $25,000,000 in Ontario's metallic mineral production during 1919 is the feature of a preliminary report for the year issued by the Bureau of Mines. The value of metals produced during the twelve months amounted to $41,510,000, compared with $66,178,059 for the preceding twelve months. A scrutiny of the details of the statement, however, shows that the reduction is accounted for almost entirely by the small production of silver, nickle and copper matte, and the reduction in the market value of the latter metals. The falling off in the output of silver was compensated for to some extent by the high prices, but even at that, the value of the mines' output was, roughly, $4,500,000 below that of 1918.

Metallic nickel was produced to a much greater extent and provided an increase of nearly two million dollars in value.

While silver production in Ontario continues to decrease, even with the treating of low-grade ores made possible by high prices, the gold mining industry continues to grow. The 1919 output of 505,962 ounces, worth $10,451,688, was the largest to date. Ontario is rapidly becoming a great gold producing province, the output last year being greater than that of any other province or any state of the American Union, with the exception of California.

A Historic Fugitive.

Peter Himadam has surrendered after evading capture by the police for nearly fourteen years. This Indian, with his brother-in-law, Simon Gun-a-Noot, was "wanted" for the murder of Alex. McIntosh and Max Leclair near Kispiox on June 19, 1906, but the authorities never laid their hands on the elusive native. Gun-a-Noot surrendered a few months ago and was acquitted after trial in Vancouver, so that Himadam is not taking any great chances in coming in now as the evidence against his brother-in-law was admittedly stronger than against him. It is doubtful if the crown will carry the case beyond the preliminary stages.

Until he walked into Hazelton a few days ago, Peter had been out of touch with civilization since that fateful June morning, he says. He lived in the northern wilderness, supporting himself by trapping, trading his skins and furs with friendly Indians for food and clothing.

Rev. James Rollins Will Deal With That Topic Tomorrow Night.

Rev. James Rollins will preach in St. Andrew's Church tomorrow evening on "Excuses." There are two sorts in the world—the people who do things and the people who are always ready with elaborate explanations as to why they did not get the things done. The world frankly prefers the first type. It saves its highest honors for them and steadily puts the other sort into the discard. It is for every one to make up his mind as early as possible with which group he prefers to travel.

OBITUARY

THE LATE ROBERT NEILL

The remains of the late Robert Neill are expected to arrive in the city at midnight tonight. The funeral will take place from his residence, 359 Hunter street, on Monday afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery. There will be a service at the house at 2 o'clock conducted by Rev. F. E. Malott, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church.

WILLIAM MIGHT.

William Might, whose death took place early Friday morning, was born in the Township of Cavan, near Millbrook, in the year 1840. His parents were Samuel Might and Martha Morrow, both of whom came to Canada from Ireland a little over a century ago. After engaging in business in Millbrook for a number of years, in 1882 he removed to Peterborough and the last twenty-five years or more had been identified with the insurance business here.

From his early youth he was an ardent Methodist, and a local preacher for over fifty years. Since coming to Peterborough he had been a much respected and active member of George Street Church.

His wife, who survives him, was Eunice Hetherington, of Millbrook. The sons are: George W. Might and Percy G. Might, both of Toronto, and the daughters: Mrs. (Rev.) C. E. Cragg, of Lethbridge, Alta., and Miss Emma L. Might, at home.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning to Little Lake Cemetery, following a service at the family residence, 782 George street, at 10 a.m.

AT TRINITY CHURCH

Palm Sunday Will Be Suitably Celebrated Tomorrow.

Palm Sunday will be suitably celebrated in Trinity Methodist Church tomorrow. The music and the sermons will be in keeping with the occasion. Mrs. Maurice Park will sing at the evening service, and Mr. Fred Hartshorn in the morning.

One feature of the morning service will be a five-minute address to the boys and girls by the pastor. All the members of the Easter reception class are asked to be in the basement of the church at 10:30 Sunday morning to meet the pastor.

BENEFIT DANCE HELD FOR MISS DORIS WARREN

KIND FRIENDS RENDER SUBSTANTIAL AID TO AN UNFORTUNATE LADY

That the city of Peterborough is every ready to respond to a call for help in a good cause was evidenced last night by the wonderful success which attended the benefit dance given in aid of Miss Doris Warren by four of her interested friends, who desire to remain anonimous. Although little had been done in the way of advertising the Victoria Hall was filled at an early hour in the evening and many later arrivals turned away on seeing the crowd already on the floor. Before nine o'clock over six hundred had paid admittance and many came in after that hour.

The usual dances formed the evening's program with a slight variation in the way of a few old country square dances which were decidedly a "hit." The dancing was preceded by a short vocal and instrumental program, which included solos by Mrs. Schooley, Miss M. Allen and Mr. E. Bartlett, a piano selection by Miss Evans and a banjo duet by Messrs. . and A. Parkins, father and son, respectively. Mr. Fred Hartshorn accompanied the artists very capably.

Everything in connection with the dance was supplied gratis, including the hall and refreshments, which left the entire receipts of the evening available for the beneficiary.

The cause for which the dance was arranged is particularly worthy. Miss Warren was injured by running a needle into her hand more than a year ago while employed at the Canadian General Electric Company. Since that time she has had constant trouble with the injured hand until she was forced to have it amputated. Her troubles did not end here, however and for some time past she has been in Nicholl's Hospital suffering from ulcers brought on as a result of her injury. All this placed the young lady under a heavy expense and her thoughtful friends adopted the method taken last night for coming to her assistance. When seen during the dance last night these friends were overjoyed at the success of their enterprise and the great help it would mean to the beneficiary of their kindness.

EIGHTY YEARS OLD AND VOTED FOR BY-LAW

MR. JOHN LANE HAS BEEN RESIDENT OF CITY SEVENTY YEARS

Mr. John Lane, who lives on Patterson street, although over eighty years of age, was one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the C. G. E. By-law last Tuesday. Mr. Lane came to Peterborough seventy years ago in June and has lived continuously here ever since. His first trip to Peterborough was one of much hardship. Travelling from Montreal to Cobourg with a team of horses, then to Harwood by the same conveyance, and from Harwood to Peterborough by a boat propelled by a stern wheel driven by horses. This would be considered more or less of a joke in these days of teamboats and automobiles. This peculiar boat was owned by Captain May, one of the founders of the settlement at May's Corners.

Mr. Lane states that when he first came to Peterborough there were no less than two distilleries in operation here and to all appearances doing a good business. One of these was located at Spalding's Bay, the other in the old Lundy tannery, now occupied by Fitzgerald and Company.

Mr. Lane tells of very interesting happenings in those days.

SCOTCH DANCES FEATURE AT CALEDONIAN BALL

ANOHER SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL EVENT STAGED BY THAT POPULAR ORGANIZATION

The dance of the Caledonian Club, held in their hall last night, was one of the most successful events ever staged by this society. Early in the evening Peterborough Scots and others who were not Scotch but probably wished they were, gathered with expectations of an enjoyable evening, which expectations were realised to the fullest extent.

A committee composed of Messrs. W. Lawson, R. French, R. Veitch, R. Elliott, J. Morton, S. Leith and A. McArthur had the arrangements for the evening in hand and they certainly excelled themselves, neglecting not the slightest detail from a special street car in the early hours of the morning to take the dancers home to the inclusion of a few children's numbers to provide amusement for the "wee mites" who accompanied their parents for the evening of enjoyment. The program included, besides the ordinary run of waltzes, one-steps and two-steps, many of the old country dances, which proved to be very popular to the participators, the majority of whom were of Scotch extraction. Some of these old country dances were the Circassian Circle, Quadrilles, Highland Scottische, Flowers of Edinburgh, Valette, Grand Old Duke of York and Partnella. A Canadian barn dance and a military two-step also figured on the program. In order to provide a relief for the Symphony Three orchestra, whose playing for the dances was superb, the dancing program was interspersed with vocal selections by Miss Madge Duthie and Messrs. John Anderson, John Smith and William Thompson. Quite a stir was noticed when piper Lorne MacDonald entered playing "The Barren Rocks of Aden." Lorne MacDonald is a new member of the club and a recent arrival in the city from Lucknow, Ontario, and the way in which he handled the bag pipes showed that he is a valuable acquisition to any Scottish society. Several times during the evening Mr. MacDonald favored the audience with some Scotch airs of the pipes to the great delight of his listeners.

At "half time" on the program refreshments were served by the male committee named above and they handled this part of the program with an efficiency which should excite the envy of the fairer sex. It is sufficient to say that the refreshments were up to the high reputation in this matter already established by the Caledonian Club.

Dancing continued until the early hours of the morning when the gathering dispersed tired but satisfied after an evening of thorough enjoyment. Mr. S. Leith made an efficient chairman and master of ceremonies.

New York, March 27. — Canned tomatoes given in one ounce quantities are ideal food for month old babies, according to Dr. Alfred Hess of this city, who discussed the subject at the second session of the 114th annual convention of the Medical Society of the State of New York.

He declared pasteurized milk, the infants usual diet, is not nourishing enough, and to prevent scurvy they should be fed with something else either orange juice or canned tomatoes. It was harmless, he asserted.'

Dr. George Draper, of the Rockefeller institute, stated that persons of dark complexion or with moles or freckles were most susceptible to influensa.

MRS. KENDRY APPEALS ON BEHALF OF THE WOMENS' MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Spoke at St. James Methodist Church Last Night on Need of Mission Work in Canadian West, Japan and China.

The Women's Missionary Society had charge of the evening service yesterday at St. James' Methodist Church, and an eloquent appeal for money, workers and members was made by Mrs. James Kendry, who detailed the work of the organization and its connection with the missionary work in the Canadian West, in Japan and China. In introducing the speaker, Rev. J. F. Chapman referred to the Women's Missionary Society as the greatest religions organization in existence. Mrs. Kendry, he stated, had been a member of the society ever since its first inception in Peterborough, and that meant ever since the society came into existence, as Peterborough had been one of the first cities to start such an organization.

At the commencement of her address Mr. Kendry mentioned that it was not often that so many men were present for their services, and that she was very gratified to see them there tonight and hoped that the same would be the case at future services of the society. The Women's Missionary Society had been born in 1881, when the late Rev. Dr. Sutherland returned from Japan and declared that it was imperative that women missionaries should enter the field if the work was to be successful. Thus, under the direction of the superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada and Dr. Sutherland the society was organized. In 1882, the first woman missionary was sent out to Japan. The work was begun under many misgivings on the part of the ministry of the church, who feared that the funds of the general board would be adversely affected as a result of the organization of the society. The result had been quite to the contrary.

Some idea of the phenomenal growth of the society could be gained from the fact that the first year's collection under the auspices of the society in Canada amounted to the sum of $1800, while last year the total collection amounted to over [illegible]60,000. Last year an appeal had been received for an increase of 20 per cent in workers, 20 per cent. in members, and 20 per cent. in finances. The 20 per cent. increase in finances was realized, the 20 per cent. increase in membership was almost realized, but she was sorry to say that the appeal for workers did not have the desired effect. This year the same request was being made, and Mrs. Kendry appealed to the congregation to do their full share to make this year successful in all these respects. She pointed out in connection with the financial side of the society that, although the society had worked faithfully towards the objective of the recent national campaign they had received no share of the finances which had accrued from the campaign and that had been a part of the agreement when they undertook to assist in the campaign.

New Education Helps.

Mrs. Kendry attributed the success of the society so far to the crusade of literature and education which had been undertaken by the members. Such a course was something new in religious work, and the effects of it had been wonderful. As a result of this plan of campaign, there now existed all over the country Mission Circles, Mission Bands, Junior Leagues and Epworth Leagues, all of which were taking up the study of missionary work. If the young people did not come forward and volunteer for the work, it certainly was not because the opportunity for doing so had not been granted them. The work should not be regarded as entirely foreign. There was work of this nature to be done right in Canada.

Work Right at Home.

There were problems to be worked out of a missionary nature right in the city of Peterborough, and the speaker called upon the young men and women to take up the work right outside their very doors. If they did this there would be no danger that the vacancies in the Canadian West and in China and Japan would not be filled. The board was pained every year to have to refuse the requests received from foreign fields for more workers, which were not there to give. She was pleased to say, however, that just recently nine missionaries had gone abroad, three to the Canadian West, three to Japan and three to China.

The missionary work in Japan was showing wonderful fruit as could be seen from the fact that there were now four boarding schools and many day schools in that country. As a result of the teaching in these schools native Christian women had gone back to their homes to spread the gospel through the land. She had heard of cases where old Japanese women had walked sixty miles simply to attend a cottage meeting, and had begged that such meetings be established in their district. The kindergarten established in Japan had also been a great success, and through the fondness of the children for the institution the homes of their parents had been opened to the missionaries.

Social Service Work

Referring to the social service part of missionary work, Mrs. Kendry stated that it was only just beginning in all denominations, and it was a work that if it had been started when it should have, years ago, the world might have been very much the better for it. The Japanese government had begun to realize the value of higher education for men, but it would not admit its value for women. Last year the Government had set aside five million dollars for the higher education of men, but nothing had ever been given for such education for women. The Women's Christian College in Japan had a far higher standard of education than any government college. At last the Japanese Government had begun to realise the value of the social service department of the college, and had offered scholarships of twenty-five yen a month to any student taking up the course. We should realise that much depended upon the women of Japan. Japan could be either a menace to the peace of the world or a great factor in bringing the world to a better condition. The attitude which Japan might take in the future could be influenced by the women of the country.

The Work in China.

Speaking of the work in China, Mrs. Kendry stated that his work had commenced, as far as the Women's Missionary Society was concerned, in 1883, and that the history of its development formed as interesting a romance as any novel. There was now an interdenominational normal school in China, and many graduates of this school went to Pekin to take up the study of medicine. This in itself was a remarkable fact in a country where a few years ago there had been a superstition against all medical men. There were at the present time twenty graduate nurses who would now be able to do much to alleviate suffering among their fellow countrymen.

Coming closer to home, the speaker pointed ont that there were 81 missionaries working in Canada, many of whom were under the direction of the general board. There were Indian hospitals and two Ruthenian hospitals with eleven nurses paid by the W. M. S. Social service work such as household instruction and other things was being undertaken al lover Canada wherever there was a foreign element.

An Appeal for Help.

Mrs. Kendry appealed to the congregation to think of all these points when they were called on to pay, and to pay in as liberal a manner as they could. She pointed out that while $260,000 had been raised last year, $50,000 of this sum could be discounted by the shrinkage in the value of the Canadian dollar. In the city of Tokio alone there were 25,000 women workers living under bad conditions which could be greatly improved by the society if they had the money to do so. There were plenty of pool rooms and dance halls in Japan, but far too few churches and schools at the present.

In conclusion, Mrs. Kendry appealed for help to carry out the work. The Chinese and Japanese were already making returns for the work by coming out to this country to instruct their fellow countrymen in British Columbia.

OTTAWA EMPLOYES CANNOT EXIST ON WAGES PAID THEM

WARD FOREMEN, CARTERS AND OTHERS ALL ASK RAISE OF PAY

Ottawa, March 29.— Mr. J. G. O'Connell, Central Ward Foreman barely existed on $110 a month, he told the Board of Conciliation, considering the demands of outside civic employes for increased wages.. He replaced Street Superintendent Little last year, lost his holidays, and did not receive any extra remuneration. Mr. O'Connell wants $135 a month. He supplied a total of 24 meals a day on $4.23.

Mr. Bancroft, representing the men— "Do you thing $135 a month reasonable."

"The way charges have gone up, $150 a month would be little enough." retorted the witness.

Mr. E. Doyle has been working for the city since 1886 and in 1888 he lost a leg. In 1889 he was given a job as a carter and had to supply cart, horse and feed. He was receiving $4.50 a day and was given a raise of 50 cents a day last year.

A Healthy Diet

"What are you to do after keeping the horse—eat wind?" asked Judge Gunn.

Mr. Doyle testified the harness for his horse was 14 years old. He had paid $45 for it, and it was now worth $125.

It cost him $175 to get a cart. He worked 26 full days and received $117 each month. This left $67 a month or $2.75 a day for himself.

Judge Gunn— "You are demanding $6 a day?"

Witness— "I am asking $6, but it is not enough.

Mr. O'Connell, recalled said, contractors were paying foremen $7 a day and these men were kept on the payroll in winter.

Mr. George H. Kennedy 12 years in the civic employ was unable to keep up his insurance on $100 a month. He asked $160 a month to meet the high cost of living. Mr. Kennedy went overseas in April 1916 and was demobilized in February 1919. His duties had been doubled bue he had only received $20 a month increase in seven years.

After 19 years in the civic service Shop Foreman Henry Mooney was earning $110 a month. He was employed in the Chamberlain avenue ward. In 1901 he broke his leg and was off duty eight weeks, but did not receive any indemnity. He asked $150 a month. During the past two years he had been given two weeks holidays with pay.

Can't Afford Holiday

"Do you go out of town in summer?" Judge Gunn asked.

"No," said the witness."

"Why dont you go to a summer resort?" Judge Gunn questioned with a smile.

'Can't afford it" declared the witness.

Mr. Frank Murry, 29 years in the city employ, was earning $105 a month. He owned his own property and had two sons, returned soldiers, who were earning their own living. He declared laborers were being paid more. One received $80 more last year than witness.

GOVERNMENT WILL AMEND THE NEW FRANCHISE BILL

ALIENS NATIONALIZED BEFORE THE WAR WLIL NOT BE DENIED BALLOT

Ottawa, March 29.— The battle over the new franchise law, which raged so furiously collapsed in the House of Commons when Hon. Arthur Meighen announced on behalf of the Government that there was no intention of disfranchising the thousands of foreigners who left Europe before the war, and are now good citizens.

The Minister of the Interior admitted that the legislation, as it stood, combined with the Naturalization Act, would have the effect of depriving tens of thousands of loyal citizens of the vote. He denied, however, that this had been deliberately planned by the Government, and promised an amendment, meeting the main objections of Mr. Pardee, Mr. Euler and Dr. Clark.

The Minister made it perfectly clear that the Government had neither desire nor intention to deprive such citizens as Mr. Euler's mother and the relatives of German-Canadian soldiers, who fell in the war fighting wth the allies, of the right to a voice in the affairs of the nation. Nor is it planned to rob the thousands of Austrians in the West of the franchise. The retroactive features of the bill will be eliminated by Government amendment.

The Government aims not at the Germans who made Waterloo county one of the most progressive communities of Canada, but at newcomers from countries that were hostile to the allies in the war. These cannot become naturalized or receive the franchise for ten years after the cessation of hostilities. Those who were naturalized by virtue of the naturalization of their fathers or husbands will not be denied the right to vote. On the other hand, a woman from Central Europe, who comes to Canada and marries a British subject will not be enfranchised until she possesses the necessary qualifications in the shape of a knowledge of either French or English (the official languages of the country), is of the age of 21, and has resided in Canada a sufficient length of time to enable her to vote intelligently.

LEAVE FOR CANADA WITH GOD SPEED FROM KING

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY EMIGRANTS AND FAMILIES ON WAY HERE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 29.—Two hundred and fifty church army emigrants, mostly ex-soldiers and their families, sailed for Canada by the Empress of France on Saturday. King George sent a farewell message expressing the hope that "each one of you may prosper, and by showing the true pioneer spirit and brave endeavor, help in building on strong and lasting foundations the mighty dominion of the West."

CONTRACT IS LET FOR THE ERECTION OF NEW BUILDING FOR MEDICAL CLINIC

Structure to Cost $50,000 or More, to be Put on Site of Old Simcoe St. Church—Epgrave and Barrett the Successful Bidders

A new departure in medical practice has been taken by six local doctors who have formed a joint stock company to erect a modern office building where they will establish their offices and while keeping up their individual practices for the time being they will work towards specialization in different diseases with the object of increasing efficiency and giving better service to their patients.

The first steps were taken about a month ago when each of the six doctors sent his patients a circular letter informing them of the new project and its purposes. It is understood that since that date the incorporation of the company has taken place and officers elected although, Dr. F. Malcolm McCulloch, the secretary of the company, when seen today announced that he could give out no information concerning the company until he received instructions to do so. However, it is learned that the broad principles upon which the doctors are working by deciding to take the present steps. They are to reduce overhead expenses and give better service to their patients while at the same time, improve the position of their practicing. The company would also be in a position to carry on research work, which would be of the greatest value to the doctors concerned and would improve the services which they would be able to render the public.

Messrs. Epgrave and Barrett, the well known local contracting firm, were the successful tenderers for the erection of an up-to-date office building, which is to cost something in the neighborhood of $50,000. It will be erected on the site of the old Simcoe street church, which was considered the most convenient centre for such a building. As soon as possible the work is to be commenced and it is anticipated that the building will be completed and ready for occupation before the end of the year.

CANADIAN LABOR MAY APPLY FOR A BILL OF RIGHTS

VERDICT IN STRIKE CASE AT WINNIPEG CAUSES DIFFERENCES OF OPINION

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, March 29.— There is a probability that Canadian Labor will demand a bill of rights in which sedition, unconstitutional action and strike rights will be clearly defined is intimated by several prominent Labor leaders here in general discussion following verdict against the Winnipeg strike leaders. Opinions here among leaders on the justice and legality of the verdicts is divided. Moderates say it indicates that the Red propaganda and O. B. U. methods are no good in Canada, and only constitutional action shiuld be undertaken by the Labor movement. On the other hand the more radical Labories declare that all Labor unions must take up the fight to compel the release of the convicted men.

DAYLIGHT SAVING CAUSE OF TROUBLE TO INDUSTRIES

OPERATIVE IN NEW YORK WHILE CANADA WORKS ON STANDARD TIME

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, March 29.— There is considerable confusion in the Canadian border cities and towns and generally throughout Canada in industries having direct United States connection following the daylight saving time going into effect in New York and other border states. This mix-up will probably continue, more or less during the month of April. On May 2nd the cities of Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa will adopt daylight saving time locally. Niagara Falls, Ontario and other frontier points are running on the new time from today. It is not expected that the Federal or any of the Provincial Governments of Canada will take up daylight saving this year as a Dominion and Provincial measure. The railways have made no definite move in the matter.

LIQUOR IMPORTATIONS CEASE FROM ONTARIO

Winnipeg, March 29.—The Winnipeg Telegram says liquor importations fryom Ontario will cease after March 31 by the cancellation of all liquor export licenses by the Ontario Provincial Government.

A. A. Strang, of Strang Brothers, is authority for the statement that the Ontario Government has notified all holders of liquor export licenses in that Province that their licences will be cancelled after March 31.

CANCEL ORDER TO RAISE RATES ON RAILWAYS

RAILWAY COMMISSION STEPS IN AND SPOILS PLANS OF THE COMPANIES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, March 29. — Railway companies in Canada who sought to increase the fares to United States points by ten per cent. to make up for a diverse exchange and who issued a circular instructing their agents to charge the extra amount today, cancelled their circular today on instructions from the Railway Commission. An increase in the heal tax from eight to nine dollars for Canadians going to the United States was also cancelled by the commission.

The railway commission has cancelled the imposition of the extra ten per cent., pending a hearing of the case at a date to be set during the present week. Mr. Richard, secretary of the commission, cannot state when the hearing will be held.

HUNS HAVE ALREADY VIOLATED ONE CLAUSE IN TREATY OF PEACE

Send Regular Army Troops Into Ruhr District, on Edge of Allied Zone of Occupation Without Permission, Supreme Council Will Take Matter up.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 29.—Absolute confirmation of the entrance of regular German army troops into the Ruhr district on the edge of the Allied zone of occupation without any permission from the Allies, has been received by the French Foreign Office, it was declared today. The subject it was stated, will probably come up before the Supreme Council in London. The French say they can find no excuse whatever for the sending of troops into this section.

Order in Sight

Berlin, March 29.—News from the Ruhr industrial district, the Rhineland in general, and from Westphalia, permits the conclusion that order will be gradually restored in these regions where the rebellious forces of working men have been operating, it was declared here today. At a meeting held on Sunday at Hagen, in Westphalia, the three socialist parties decided to withdraw from Mulheim headquarters, the seat of rebel control, and, if necessary, fight under the republican leadership against he Mulheim faction, despatches from Hagen announced. The behavior of this faction was declared to be held in these socialist quarters as constituting a danger to the industrial region.

Other Decisions Expected

Similar decisions, it is stated, are expected from Dortmund, Elberfeld and Bremen, which would mean the isolation of the Mulheim faction. This faction, however, has so far not changed its atttitude in making demands which far exceed the terms of agreement reached a few days ago at Bielefled for a settlement, the carrying out of which was prevented by further military activities on the part of working men.

These demands in excess of the settlement terms were for the complete disarming and disbanding of regular troops and the establishment of the people's army, composed of workmen, to which all arms must be surrendered. The attitude of the Mulheim insurgents is not easily understood here in view of the fact that the rebels have suffered a sharp setback before the fortress of Wesel, which they have been besieging. Friedrichsfelde Camp has been cleared of rebels, who suffered heavy losses, so that the bombardment of Weisel is no longer faered, the rebels' heavy howitzers and other artillery there having been captured.

WIRELESS WILL BE TRIED OUT IN IRELAND

WIRES ARE SO FREQENTLY CUT THAT WHOLE SYSTEM IS DEMORALIZED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 29.—In consequence of the frequency with which telephone and telegraph wires in Ireland are being cut, the Government has decided on an extensive use of the wireless telephone there, says the Daily Mail. Naval signalmen are being employed to start the system, and the newspaper intimates that portable telephones with a radius of about thirty miles are being employed in transmitting messages from one police station to another or between adjacent towns. It is asserted that the system has proved satisfactory.

Peacemaker for Ireland

The Daily Express says that the Government is making a dramatic change in the military control in Ireland by sending over Gen. Neville MacCready as commissioner of metropolitan police in place of General Shaw. The former is known as a strong peacemaker and he has vastly increased powers in Ireland.

THOUSANDS GO OVER TO ARMY OF SOVIETS

BOLSHEVIKI FORCES ARE IN POSSESSION OF CITY OF NOVOWSSIK.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Novorossisk, March 29.—The occupation of this city by the Bolshevik forces occurred Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Thousands of Gen. Denekine's volunteer soldiers went over to the Soviet side, and most of the remainder went on board ships and departed for the Crimea with Denekine. The only ships which resisted the occupation of the city were the Russians, which fired a few shells at the Soviet forces. Virtually all the shipping of value was removed from the harbor before the Bolsheviki secured control of the city.

VETERANS PRESENT RESOLUTION FOR BONUS TO CABINET TODAY

Ask $1 a Day for Eevery Man Who Saw Actual Service From Time of Enlistment to Date of Discharge With Lesser Grants for Others—Acting Premier Foster Promises Prompt Reply.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 29.—The Government has taken the request of the Great War Veterans' Association for a cash bonus under consideration, and will announce its decision in a couple of days. This morning a large delegation from the G. W. V. A. headed by the newly elected president, R. B. Maxwell, and representatives of G. W. V. A. members in every province, waited on Sir George Foster, acting Premier, and members of the Government, to present resolutions adopted at the Montreal convention. Sir George promised the delegation an early reply and full consideration.

The Veterans ask for a cash bonus of a dollar a day for all members who served on the belligerent fronts from the time of enlistment until their discharge, with an approximated less amount for those who served their country in Great Britain, Siberia or Canada. The Government is also asked to give to the next of kin of fallen soldiers a cash grant in a lump sum not less than he would have received had he returned on the day of the armistice. It is estimated that this amount will cost the country fifty-two million dollars.

"ONE BAND, ONE GRANT."

ALD. GORDON would solve the band grant problem by taking from the appropriation set aside for the work of the Legal and Reception Committee of Council $1000 and adding thereto the similar amount to be paid for music, divide the total among the three bands now in existence. But Ald. Crowe, who is chairman of the committee in question, will have none of the proposition. The total amount at his disposal for the year is $1800, and of this $1200 goes in a lump sum to pay the salary of City Solicitor Widdifield. This leaves $600 to defray the cost of entertaining deputations from other cities and of paying the expenses of defending suits that may be started against the municipality. There are none such in sight now, but no one can tell what a year may bring forth in the way of litigation. An inroad on this $600 balance left after the city solicitor is paid has been made to the extent of $25, the cost of the civic reception extended to railway officials who visited this city recently. Besides these substantial reasons for holding on to the full amount of his appropriation, no chairman is willing to have his committee reduced to a mere nonentity by being deprived of its funds right at the start.

Ald. Crowe is not the only alderman who favors the one band idea. Ald. Copping, a member of the Parks Committee that has the matter in hand, is of the same way of thinking. Other aldermen may have made no public statement, but the general opinion is that there is a majority of the Council behind Ald. Crowe, who in this matter, declares that he will do what he believes to be right and in the best interest of the city, regardless of future consequences to himself. He states his position clearly. His idea is that the $1000 appropriated for music should be turned over to the 57th Band and that Leader Gliddon should be authorized to select thirty musicians in the city, these to be paid the union rate of wages when they take part in a park concert or in any other civic function. Ald. Crowe does not believe that Peterborough is financially equal to the task of supporting a purely citizens' band, and cites the case of Toronto and other large cities in Ontario where such ventures have invariably resulted in failure. If such a musical organization is maintained in any municipality it must be financed largely by private funds, just as the famous band of Huntsville is supported.

"One band, one grant," is Ald. Crowe's slogan in this matter. He realizes that the Salvation Army band cannot possibly amalgamate with the others and that the prospects of a union between the other two are remote. If they fail to reach an amicable understanding, Ald. Crowe will take the stand that no grant whatever shall be made to any of the bands. He would leave them to fight it out among themselves and let the fittest survive. In that event, he claims to have no doubt as to the result between the two non-sectarian organizations. A military band has a backing no other can hope to secure.

WHEN A CITIZEN IS A NUISANCE.

TWO OF THE STRIKE leaders among the seven whose trial in Winnipeg was concluded on Saturday have been adjudged guilty of committing a common nuisance, and as such are likely to receive sentence only a trifle less severe than the other five who are convicted of seditious conspiracy. The man who concocts a plan against the peace of the community may be a menace but it is the good fortune of the people that in most cases his conspiring brings disaster upon no head save his own. But the nuisance is ubiquitous, a constant source of worry, one of the lesser evils, perhaps, but none the less annoying, which humanity has to endure. If the law is finally to take cognizance of the members of this species and to deal out what is coming to them a long-suffering public will receive the news with jubilation.

There are all sorts and conditions of human nuisances right here, too, in Peterborough, unfortunately. There is the man who insists upon talking partisan politics in this age when in this department of public trial it is generally supposed that a truce has been declared. The nuisance sees nothing but treason in the faith of his political opponents, nothing but the highest brand of statesmanship and virtue in those to whom he accords his distinguished allegiance. Outer darkness for the one, the pearly gates for the other.

The greatest nuisance of them all, perhaps, is the man of leisure who, finding time hangs heavy on his hands, cherishes the belief that others, even though they be struggling for their daily bread, find themselves similarly afflicted. He buttonholes his busy neighbors on the street, invades their homes and their places of business, and seeks, probably with the best intention, to relieve their worries by light conversation invariably irrelevant to the business in hand. Such men may felicitate themselves on the fact that as a rule their fellow mortals, if not slow to at least reveal anger, have compunctions about committing actual physical violence upon their fellows.

Another nuisance is the man who makes excessively long after-dinner speeches, and by the aridity of his remarks induces digestive afflictions among his victims. Again, there is the man who prolongs a public meeting to an unheard-of hour in order that he may air his views and to set the speaker of the evening right. If he lavishes encomiums upon the latter, the result is the same. The wearied audience depart with vows that never again will they forfeit a night's rest by attending such a function. The public is being slowly but surely talked to death, and still there are those who wonder why even the most noted orator fails to draw a crowd as he formerly did.

Another nuisance—although the word "boor" would more fittingly describe this species—is the man who, as a guest in a private house, seizes the occasion when a musical offering is being made, to indulge his habit of making more or less interesting conversation. Then there is the man—and woman, too, occasionally—who at the movies insists upon reading in audible tones the textual explanations shown in the screen. There are patrons of the legitimate drama who, while a performance is in progress, keep up a fire of running comment upon the actors and their work. Worst and most offensive of all to good taste is the ninny who seeks to show his knowledge of high art by laughing just at the time when the actor is with real artistic power depicting one of the highest of all human sentiments with so much realism that the cultured among his audience are closer to tears than to unseemly guffaws.

Among the nuisances is the man who writes anonymous letters to the newspapers abusing his neighbors and criticising men in public positions. We have always been at a loss to understand whether such men withhold their names through physical or moral fear or because they realize that the revelation of their identity would weaken rather than add weight to what they have to say.

The man who fails to hold punctuality as one of the higher virtues is another nuisance. How is it that so many public meetings and other functions in Peterborough fail to start at the hour announced? The lack of the virtue here alluded to is fast becoming one of Canada's national sins.

But the finding of the jury at Winnipeg brings hope to suffering humanity. Nuisances are no longer to be allowed to get away with it. A new field for police effort has been opened. Like other offenders against the peace and happiness of the community, the nuisance can now be committed to the more or less tender mercies of the law and given his just deserts. Emancipation from one human affliction is just around the corner, headed this way.

STOP PROFITEERING BUT NOT BUILDING

(Sun and New York Herald.)

One thing the landlord must remember—and the fair-minded landlord not only remembers but admits the fact—is that there is rent profiteering. There is profiteering among real estate owners as there is among manufacturers, among farmers, among labor unions, who have the public at their mercy. But just as there are millions of business men and workers who are not preying upon the public, there are thousands of landlords who are not taking advantage of the desperate housing shortage to pillage the man who must have a roof over the heads of his family.

One thing the tenant must remember—and the Legislature will do him a poor service if it does not also remember it—is that while it is a need and a duty to suppress the unspeakable profiteer, it is every whit as essential to increase, and to increase largely, the supply of homes.

If all rents were cut in half, this wouldn't do a thing for the tens of thousands of families now in vain search of suitable shelter. It would not put a shingle on a new roof. On the contrary, it would further accentuate the housing shortage; for it would stop building. Everybody realizes this simple truth. If an inadequate rent return were arbitrarily fixed by legislation the same thing would happen.

The way of the profiteer should be made as difficult as it is odious. But the way of the builder of houses must not be made impassable. He will not build at present abnormally high costs of labor, abnormally high costs of material, abnormally high costs of maintenance and abnormally high costs of operation unless he can get his money back. And if he cannot build or does not build for whatever reason, all the laws that can be written against the profiteering abomination will never supply the housing deficiency which now confronts, with its possibilities of terrific consequences, financial, social and moral, the prodigious population of this city.

Kill the profiteering, but do not cut off the supply of new houses.

Responsibility With Big City Dailies

"Printer and Publisher," of Toronto, in its March issue, just received, says the newsprint situation does not become any better nor is there anything in sight to indicate that it is going to become better. Many publishers — old customers — do not realize the seriousness of the situation. Without going into details, it says, "it is safe to assert that the newsprint situation is worse than it was a year ago. If there are signs showing an improvement we would like to be optimistic enough to point them out." That is the view of the Canadian trade periodical.

Nor is there any improvement in the newsprint situation in the United States and there is a constantly increasing feeling that the responsibility is with the big metropolitan dailies, as we have so often pointed out. This feeling is illustrated by Mr. J. H. McKeever of the Aberdeen (S. D.) American and News, who says that "twenty or thirty great metropolitan newspapers have brought upon the little dailies and the country weeklies of the United States a paper famine that has already squeezed the life out of many, has forced them to prices out of all proportion to pay and live and is slowly driving others to disaster." These newspapers, he says, have it within their power to end the paper famine and put the industry of publishing upon a sane basis, 'but drunk with selfish power and grabbing every drop of advertising they can get, they plunge ahead with thirty or forty page papers daily and seventy or one hundred and more pages on Sunday, while small papers are forever scrimping and cutting and trimming their papers in the hope that they can weather the famine."

In the United States the smaller dailies and weeklies have been successful in obtaining postal rates and a zone system that in a large measure compels the big newspapers to restrict their circulations to a comparatively legitimate field, or to pay something like adequate postal rates if they wish to go afield for circulation, but the crazy, selfish instincts whether in the States or in Canada, lead them into publishing papers almost unlimited in size and selling for much less than the cost of the white paper, regardless of any consideration for other publishers, whether at home or afield.

In Canada, the big metropolitan dailies, whether in Toronto or Montreal or Winnipeg, or even Hamilton or London, sell their papers outside of their own home field by mail at a much lower rate than they charge at home, thus compelling the local daily in its own home town to keep down its selling price to a point where there is no profit, because the local paper with its limited circulation generally, and more limited because of the unfair competition with which it has to contend, does not justify a high advertising rate. It is an immoral practice which these metropolitan papers resort to which cannot be justified in any decent way. What can be said in justification of The Montreal Star charging $4.80 a year in the Island of Montreal, and selling at $3.00 per year by mail the country over; or the Toronto Mail and Empire or World selling at $6.00 a year in Toronto, and $4.00 anywhere else in the country by mail, and the Toronto Telegram and Star with their still larger issues, selling by mail at $3.00 per year?

It is not denied that the country is losing millions of dollars per annum in the carrying of these metropolitan newspapers at one-quarter of a cent a pound. Senator Robertson has put the loss at six million dollars a year, and the public has to pay the piper in the cintinued war tax of 1c on every letter and postal card.

Why should the Government of Canada aid these Metropolitan newspapers in their career of lust and avarice and utter disregard of all their fellow-publishers? Why should they not charge a postal rate adequate for the payment of the service rendered and which would enable them either to take the war tax off of letters and postal cards or pay their help more decently than they do?

The public generally has no idea of what the Government does for the metropolitan papers, or of the impapers have obtained through their cut rate and cut-throat system of doing business. The morning papers, of course, are the worst offenders.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

Some of the greatest books in all literature were written in the solitude of a prison cell, says the Sing Sing Bulletin. Vincent Blasco Ibanez, one of the foremost writers of fiction today, began his literary career while serving a 14-year prison sentence in a Spanish penitentiary for his political activities in a nattempt to free Cuba. His illustrious countryman, Cervantes, who wrote the greatest Spanish novel, "Don Quixote" was a prisoner in Madrid jail when writing that masterpiece.

John Bunyan was confined in Bedford jail for 12 years, his "Pilgrim's Progress," having been written while he was a prisoner there. His "Grace Abounding" and "Holy War" were also written in prison. Dante wrote most of his wonderful poems while in penury and exile, after he had been condemned to be burned at the stake. Raleigh wrote his "History of the World" during his 13 year's imprisonment in London Tower.

"Robinson Crusoe," a book read in every country in the world, was written jail by Defoe. Thomas Cooper was confined in Stafford jail when he gave to literature his "Purgatory of Suicide." Oscar Wilde's "De Profundis" is perhaps the most sorrowful story that was ever penned within prison walls.

Others who wrote within dungeons were Campanella, who was for 27 years in a cell where no ray of sun light ever penetrated; ovelace, Boetius, Grotius and a great many other writers of note.

ONTARIO'S BIG PROFITS OUT OF LIQUOR TRADE

GOVERNMENT DISPENSARIES CLEANED UP OVER HALF-MILLION DOLLARS

Toronto, March 29.—At a short session of the Legislature the proceedings only lasting about an hour and a quarter, without a dissentient voice, the House approved a motion by Capt. Jack Ramsden that representations should at once be made by the Dominion Government requesting a revision of the Pensions Act, and an investigation into the operations and procedure of the Board of Pensions Commissioners, particularly the question of mothers' and widows' pensions, so as to grant much needed increases in the previous scale and to secure a more sympathetic attitude on the part of the pension commissioners to the just claims of the returned men.

Liquor Questions.

In answer to Major Tolmie's question as to what had been the profit or loss up to the 29th of February last upon the running of the liquor dispensaries by the Ontario Board of License Commissioners, Hon. Mr. Nixon, Provincial Secretary, replied that the net profit was $536,803.

With regard to Mr. John O'Neill's question as to when the Board of License Commissioners for Ontario took over the stocks of the liquor vendors and what was the whole price paid for acquiring such liquor, and any other necessary fixtures or equipment which the board purchased, the Provincial Secretary stated the total price paid was $11,206.

In answer to Mr. Bragg as to how many Government dispensaries are operated in the Province under the authority of the Board of License Commissioners, Hon. Mr. Nixon replied one wholesale and seven retail. The number of employes engaged in connection with the dispensaries in the Province was 144.

LADY ASTOR SPENT HALF DAY BUYING A DRESS

AND GARMENT DID NOT FIT, MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT SAYS

London, March 29. — Lady Astor met defeat in the House of Commons Thursday afternoon but not until she had stirred the Tories by declaring "men have made such a mess of things that women are justified in taking the vote away from them," states a cable to the Public Ledger.

Joining a debate on the amendment to the woman's suffrage act permitting women of more than 21 to vote, Lady Astor pleaded for the amendment, but when the vote came on that division, the amendment lost, 21 to 13.

Lady Astor could not overcome the impression that she and other women vote-seekers were "pussyfooters." Fear that women might make England dry was expressed.

Lord Wolmer said there was no doubt, that the majority of the "pussyfooters" in England were to be found among women and could they imagine what would happen where women who were in the majority in voting power were insistent upon prohibition while the male population were not prepared to tolerate such a thing being imposed upon them against their will.

Sir Frederick Banbury observed that Lady Astor gave the whole show away when she told them that as soon as the women were in the majority they would take the vote away from the men. Lady Astor denied that she had said such a thing. What she said was that "men had made such a mess of things that women would be justified in disfranchising them."

"You can never argue with a woman," retorted Sir Frederick, good humoredly. Young women of 20 and 25, on fine afternoons, he said, would not be listening to debates but would be spending their time in shops like Lady Astor, who was reported recently to have spent a whole afternoon in a Plymouth shop buying a dress which did not fit her. The chairman called the baronet to order.

HUNGER STRIKE'S RESULT

Ald. O'Brien of Dublin Removed From Jail to Hospital.

London, March 29.— William O'Brien, Alderman of Dublin, who was arrested on March 3 during a raid on Liberty Hall, in that city, and who has since that time been conducting a "hunger strike," was removed from jail to a hospital says a despatch to the Herald, organ of Labor. The case of O'Brien, who is leader of the Irish Transport Workers, was discussed in the House of Commons, when it was brought up by T. P. O'Connor, the Nationalist leader.

A Timely Message

By RALPH HAMILTON

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

When the parents of Waldron Lynne asked him to go down to Earlville and look up a house they could rent from May to November, that enterprising young man must have acted with extreme diligence and care, for when he returned he made the announcement with enthusiasm:

"I've found you just what you want, all ready to move into, lovely garden, nice neighbors—in fact, a perfect jewel of a place."

A few days later when Mr. and Mrs. Lynne accompanied him to Earlville, there were selected places they liked much better than the one Waldron had selected. He seemed so greatly taken with the latter, however, that they decided to indulge his choice.

"There was a method to the process of our young man in influencing us to move into this especial neighborhood, it seems," remarked Mr. Lynne to his wife a week later. "Have you noticed the large house on the rise in ground in a line with this one, about a square distant?"

"Not particularly," replied Mrs. Lynne. "Why?"

"Waldron has, and continues to do so. I remarked how absorbed he was in studying its architectural beauties and general environment through an opera glass and took a look myself. It appears that the garden of the Wayland place, as it is called, is a favorite spot with a most graceful and prettily dressed young lady. I rallied Waldron, basing the action on my suspicions, and in his always frank and truthful way he admitted the soft impeachment of an unusual interest in the young lady in question. He deliberately stole a march on us. It seems that when he first came here and noticed the rent sign, he went to the Wayland place to inquire something about it. As it might not happen again in a year, Miss Isabel Vane was alone in her garden. All the folks were away except one servant. She was probably lonesome and she and Waldron were mutually attracted to one another. Anyhow, he remained there a whole forenoon and he has managed to meet her away from her home several times since then."

"Why not at her home?" queried Mrs. Lynne.

"Ah! there is the crux of the whole affair. Miss Isabel Vane is an orphan and an heiress with two guardians, one at Brocton, the other here. She equally divides the year between the two. John Wayland, who lives yonder, is a crotchety, stern, suspicious old bear who is so afraid that his lovely ward will fall a prey to some scheming fortune hunter, that he watches her as a cat does a mouse."

"Poor boy!" said Mrs. Lynne.

Mr. Lynne had outlined conditions correctly. Isabel Vane and his son had met a sufficient number of times to cement an acquaintance that had very nearly culminated in unexpressed, but mutual love. John Wayland had seen to it that the young people did not meet. He denied Isabel no rational pleasure that money could buy, but at once set about arranging to remove her to her other guardian many miles away from Earlville.

Just one letter Waldron had managed through craft and caution to get to Isabel. In it he had impetuously confessed his sentiments toward her. He entreated a reply, encouraging, if it could be so, and then hinted at a campaign where love laughed at locksmiths. A day passed by, two days but he received no reply, and he was at a point of desperation. He did not make allowance for the fact that the watch and ward of John Wayland had been set to a method where every move of Isabel was under the closest cynosure. It was torture complete to sit at the open window of his room and take within the range of his vision so distantly a sight of the dainty, flitting form of his inamorata. Archery was about the sole recreation of Isabel and as he noted her in its pursuit he likened the punctured targets to the poignant wounds separation occasioned to his own longing and lacerated heart.

At the end of the third day of anxious, woeful waiting, Waldron made up his mind that Miss Vane was not inclined to favor his suit. Had it been otherwise, he reasoned, she surely would have found some way of communicating with him. He made up his mind to go to the city, immerse himself in business and forget his misery and disappointment. He was seated dejectedly on a garden seat when his little brother Willis came up to him.

"Oh, Waldron!" he hailed, "won't you make me a bow to shoot with? See, I found a beautiful arrow right under the window of your room."

As Waldron casually took the arrow, he aroused to sudden animation. A folded compact fragment of paper was discernible, wedged into the cleft of the feather guide. He opened it and a wild joy sprang to his eyes. It read, "This is my only way of telling you that Tuesday I shall be on the train bound for my guardian at Brocton. If you will also be a passenger, I will tell you what I think of your cherished note."

And the train in question bore Isabel Vane not to her guardian at Brocton, but into the lasting charge of a loving husband.

Three French Republics.

The French were not able to permanently establish a republic until they had tried three times to do so. The anarchy of the French revolution produced Napoleon Bonaparte, as first consul, and then as emperor. The revolution of 1848 resulted in Napoleon III as hereditary emperor of the French by an almost unanimous vote in November, 1852. The third republic was a result of the Franco-Prussian war and the king of Prussia was proclaimed emperor of the Germans, September 4, 1870, and his coronation took place at Versailles January 18, 1871. The third French republic was saved from destruction by the ability and activity of Louis Adolphe Theirs. Like Cavour he carried his country safely through a great crisis.

DOG LOVED MURDERER

FISK WAS THE WITNESS OF TWO CRIMES.

Adopted by Mounted Police Following the Death of His First Master—Canine Still Survives and Is the Property of a Red-coated Officer, Corpl. Watts, Late of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

Fisk witnessed two murders and one attempted murder, but he could not testify. Not that he was an unwilling witness, or because he evaded the authorities and could not be produced on the stand, but simply because Fisk was not made to speak; he is a dog.

With the passing of "E" Division of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police from Calgary, Fisk, the faithful canine, who was owned by John Fisk, the murderer who slew Tucker Peach in cold blood at his farm house in southern Alberta several years ago, is aged and worn now and he has left Calgary and all its bewildering surroundings for the dog. He was at the Peach home with his first master, John Fisk, on the early morning of the crime and had he been produced as a witness on the stand against his master, the evidence would have been more convincing than that on which the slayer was sent to the gallows.

Long after the crime, when his master was suspected and arrested at a livery stable in Carbon, Fisk came on to Calgary with the police and while his master lay in the cells with the charge of murder hanging over his head, Fisk stayed with the mounties. He was outside the courthouse while his master stood trial in that famous hearing when the late Paddy Nolan fought through the volumes of law in a desperate attempt to save his client from the grip of evidence which gradually closed about him and eventually strangled the life from the prisoner on the gallows in the R.N.W.M.P. grounds.

Fisk found a new home, however, and was happy with the mounties. The redcoats learned to love the faithful canine and he came to recognize Constable Davis as his master. This officer took a great fancy to Fisk and it was not long before a great friendship grew between the dumb animal and his new guardian. On their many hunts throughout the land, Fisk accompanied different detachments of the mounties whenever Davis was along. He tracked along behind the dashing steeds that bore the redcoats over the plains for miles and life again seemed to him worth while, even though his former master died a dishonorable death by hanging.

But that cloud of gloom was destined to cast its shadow over poor old Fisk again. Constable Davis, accompanied as usual by his faithful canine, visited an Indian settlement to apprehend one Running Wolf, an Indian wanted by the police for an infraction of the law. Running Wolf shot Davis dead and Fisk was alone again. His second master fell victim to the bullet and he died an honorable death in the performance of his duty.

The mounties were the old consolation for the poor old dog. Two owners had cherished him as a friend and they had passed on, but still Fisk sought the companionship of a faithful master and he was next taken by Corpl. A. F. C. Watts of the mounties. Though it took Fisk a long time to make up with his new master, he eventually came to care for him with that same faithful spirit as had marked his friendship for the other two who had since left him behind. Strangely enough Fisk seemed a hoodoo for his owners. Corpl. Watts while in the man hunt after the murderers at Exshaw, narrowly escaped death at the hands of one of the desperadoes in the dense woods at the foot of the Rockies many years ago. Fisk followed his master on this hunt, for he became attached to Watts just the same as the other two and here again he might have been a witness, had he the tongue, intelligent enough to speak in court. The murderers were afterwards caught and Watts was avenged.

In his last days in Calgary Fisk limped around with a drooping head. His coat had become thick and matted. He was old, but still beloved by the mounties. The redcoats had long since come to recognize Fisk as a member of the force. Before the redcoats took their final departure, Fisk held his silent inspection. As the mounties trooped by, Fisk watched with sadness in his dim, bleary eyes the faithful officers of the law, who have made a home for him for many years. They passed, but in their passing this dog had taken his last long look, fastening in his unspoken mind a picture of the redcoats, which will long remain with him, and doubtless be carried to the day when the lids of his age-worn eyes close forever over the eyes that had witnessed but could not tell.

Fisk is spending his last days with Corpl. Watts in Vancouver, far from the scenes where dastardly crimes were committed and he was the star witness.—Rod and Gun in Canada.

Brought Up On a Bottle.

While sea fishing with a friend a doctor lost his sinker. Rather than cut the day's fishing short, he hit upon the happy idea of utilizing his flask. The bottle was filled with water, carefully corked and sent down on its mission. A few minutes later the doctor was lucky enough to pull up a pair of whiting, one on each hook.

"Ha, doctor!" exclaimed the companion; "twins this time!"

"Yes," replied the doctor, with a smile, "and brought up on the bottle, too."

In the English language there are more surnames beginning with "W" than any other letter.

FEW MURDER MYSTERIES.

Eight Unexplained Crimes In Toronto Since 1887.

Is Hamilton in danger of losing first place to Toronto in the matter of unsolved police mysteries?

Many anxious citizens of Toronto are alarmed at the fact that there are on the police books two recent murders in that city, one unsolved shooting, and the disappearance of a prominent millionaire citizen.

That there is no cause for alarm and little room for criticism of the city and county police in all these mysteries is the claim of prominent city police officials and lawyers. A complete list of unexplained and unpaid murder mysteries in Toronto since the year 1887, shows eight. In every one of them, that element of chance which always enters into the relation of crime versus police, was extraordinary. Against eight mysteries in thirty-three years in a city the size of Toronto, there is to be credited the solution of hundreds of murder cases and crimes of violence.

In two of the murder cases, the names of the suspected murderers are known. The fact that both victims and both suspects are foreigners adds to the problem, for a foreigner has advantages of escape and security owing to the clannishness and secrecy of foreign races. On November 11 last, Joe Camandt was killed by a man who struck him on the head with a shovel in a sandy works. Gi Mastrionini is wanted for this. On September 24 last, Joe Berclidio was shot, and Frank Lombardo, a well known Toronto Italian, is wanted in this case. The next mystery is about the only real mystery of recent years. On September 25, 1918, the year before, Dio de la Salandra was shot in the railroad shops at the foot of Spadina avenue. No trace of the murderer has ever been found.

The two chauffeur murder mysteries are real mysteries, and both occurred in the county on the outskirts of the city, and therefore come under county police. But both victims were Toronto men who drove out to the outskirts, as it were, to be murdered. The Toronto police assumed some of the burden in both cases.

On November 5 last, John G. Rowland, a chauffeur, was found murdered in his car out at Leaside. On July 26, 1917, two years before, Carmen Lapello or Ross, another chauffeur, was found murdered and wrapped in a blanket beside his car out at Swansea.

These both occurred out in lonely suburbs. The police, either of county or city, could not be expected to do more than search every available source for motives, which they did. These are the type of cases where the police have to deal with unknown or unknowable quantities. The recent addition of several fast motor cars to the city police equipment gives the police a greater show in dealing with these undefined, detached crimes.

Among other old unsolved mysteries in and around Toronto are those concerning Hugh Hassan, found murdered on the Humber in August, 1913; Frank Malatto, murdered, November, 1917; John W. Dick, who was punched by an unknown man on King street in October, 1911, after the Argonaut-Tiger rugby match, who died; and away back, Frank Westwood, shot, 1894; Rachel Ferguson, murdered at the entrance to the Don Jail in 1894; Joseph Priestman, murdered at the Exhibition grounds in 1887, and Jane Speers, the old charwoman, found murdered apparently from motives of robbery, in 1887.

Indians First Used Radium.

Radium ore was first used by the Indians of Utah, having been first employed by them to paint their bodies a bright canary yellow. The first coat worn by man is said to have been a coat of paint. The early American Indian painted the lower half of his face red and the upper green. But he didn't stop at that. He painted weird pictures on rocks and the faces of cliffs, and his wooden house or his steps were designed with symbolic and descriptive figures. He painted his bow and arrow, his monstrous mask worn at ceremonials and his pottery.

Paint was the most precious of all things to the Indians, a deposit of mineral pigment being a mine of wealth to them. The Indian women, as well as the men, used pigments for cosmetic purposes. They painted their faces with quaint conventional designs, in obedience to the demands of aboriginal fashion.

Aerial Game Laws.

Modern inventions beget new manners and new laws to govern the changed customs. The man who nets fish wholesale seems about to be outclassed by the airplane operator who gathers in wild birds by means of a net. So, apparently, think the sportsmen in one locality of Canada. As a consequence, an association of them are sponsoring a request to the Government to prohibit the flights of airplanes over marsh lands, and the use of flying machines in pursuit, shooting, or netting of wild fowl. When warned of anything approaching, these birds do not seek cover, but rise immediately into the air and obviously become open at once to the ingenious contrivances of airplanists. Rapid-firing guns, and nettings attached beneath the body of the machines, would seem to be capable means of possible extermination of the birds, and this it is sought to avoid.

Prairie Dogs.

The little ground squirrels, or prairie dogs, of the western plains have their homes 12 or 15 feet underground, with corridors and rooms. In some of these chambers the squirrel family lives, and in others food and various materials are stored.

100 Cigars a Day.

The Cuban workmen can turn out 100 cigars a day each, all identical in shape, size and weight, without using any mould or pattern.

A chrysanthemum, measuring ten inches across, and twelve inches in depth, was recently grown near Grimsby, England.

CANADIAN TRADE.

Ten Commandments That Should Be Remembered.

The Canadian Reconstruction Association urges observance of the following "Ten Commandments for Canadian Trade" as a means towards a safer trade situation and the development of Canadian resources:

1. Buy Canadian products. In doing so, you develop the home market, encourage factory expansion, provide employment for new populations, and create bigger and better markets for all kinds of farm produce.

2. Import only necessities, and then only if similar Canadian articles or substitutes are not available.

3. Produce to the limit in field and factory. Increased production means new wealth, and is essential to the success of any effort to reduce imports and promote export trade.

4. Co-operate, conserve, specialize, standardize. These are the means to maximum production of high quality goods at minimum cost.

5. Develop export markets. Foreign business gives stability to trade. It reduces unit costs, benefits domestic consumers, affords employment to factories and workers in times of depression, and corrects adverse exchange by improving the trade balance.

6. Utilise Canadian services. Ship by Canadian carriers through Canadian ports. Patronize Canadian railways, Canadian steamships, and Canadian banks. Place insurance in Canadian companies. Employ Canadian architects, engineers, scientists, and other experts. Spend vacations in Canada.

7. Manufacture raw materials to final stages in Canada. Hundreds of millions of dollars are lost annually to the Dominion, and especially to Canadian wage-earners, by the exportation of raw materials and semi-manufactured products.

8. Use science for the determination and development of natural resources. Industrial research will reveal new wealth, improve industrial processes, and help to relieve our economic dependence upon outside sources for fuel, iron and other essentials.

9. Make quality the hall-mark of Canadian products. In return for public support of the home market, Canadian manufacturers should provide products that compare favorably with imported goods, and Canadian workers should recognize good workmanship and maximum production as their standards.

10. Be fair to capital. Canadian money should be encouraged to invest at home, and foreign capital attracted to promote Canadian industrial expansion.

Fine Pearl Necklaces.

Of 30 necklaces which have been made from the magnificent collection of pearls contributed to the Red Cross from all parts of the British empire, two are of considerable interest.

One of them is composed almost entirely of the fine collection of pearls sent from Egypt as a result of the Red Cross appeals, and the other is a specially beautiful necklace of pearls of the straw-colored tone which is so much sought after by buyers. The necklaces are not of uniform size; they vary in length, in color and, of course, in value. But all of them are of great beauty, for they consist of the best pearls from many famous necklaces, as well as from less well-known ones, matched by the chief experts in London.

Odd Bequests.

When men begin to think about winding up their worldly affairs and disposing of their earthly possessions, then do they, as at no other time of their mortal career, reveal the odd workings of their minds by the strange bequests they make, of which this extraordinary instance is given:

"I bequeath to George William Steel all my fancy stockings, and to Mary Hannah Wiggin my set of false teeth for waiting upon me." Thus, on a half-sheet of notepaper, William Greenwood, an English retired cotton spinner, disposed of his worldly "goods and chattels."

China's Peanut Industry.

Before the war the peanut industry of China had reached its highest point in its relation to the foreign export trade. The annual exports then were about 70,000 tons of shelled peanuts and about 50,000 tons of oil. More than 40 per cent of these amounts went from the port of Tsingtau, as Shantung has become the largest peanut-producing province of China.

LLOYD GEORGF RENEWS DRIVE ON LABOR PARTY

SAYS AIMS ARE COMMUNISTIC AND DEVELOPED BY "LOP-SIDED" MINDS.

London, March 29. — Premier Lloyd George and Herbert H. Asquith, former Premier and member of the House of Commons for Paisley, are conducting an informal debate over the right to claim the leadership of the Liberal party. Incidentally the question, who will be the predominant figure in the National Club, the party's headquarters, is involved. Mr. Asquith's supporters arranged a luncheon in his honor at the club and the Premier's Liberal followers organized a luncheon in honor of Mr. Lloyd George.

In his speech at the luncheon Premier Lloyd George defended his attack of last week on the Labor party, for which he has been condemned by both the Labor party and the party of Mr. Asquith.

"The program of the Labor party is to put an end to the capitalistic system and create a co-operative commonwealth," he declared. "I have read carefully everything said by Mr. Clynes (John Robert Clynes, the Laborite) and Mr. Henderson (Arthur Henderson, Laborite), anl all the apologies of the Labor party. Not one of them denies that the doctrine of the Labor party is a doctrine of communism.

"The Labor program is not a movement started among the working classes. It comes from a group of men who have received a lopsided education: who have had no experience of affairs or of work in factory, shop or office, and who call themselves intellectuals. A vast majority of the working classes have repudiated that program, and the common sense of the working classes will save them right to the end."

SHOULD GET THE KAISER

Harry Lauder Believes Public Safety Demands That Course

"East, west, hame's best."

These were the words with which Sir Harry Lauder greeted his friends on his return from America and Australia."

"The green hills o' auld Britain are a sicht for sair een," he remarked his face beaming with delight, "but I'll soon be on ma' way again. I'm jist like the times, aye on the move, takin' in a' the graphic situation as I go," he pawkily added.

"South Africa will be my next scene of operations, and I leave for that quarter at the end of the week. Aye," he continued, his smiles giving place to a more serious, almost a saddened expression. "I'm sorry I canna stay beside my auld freends in London. Touring the British Empire is a big job, but I want tae help tae draw it closer thegither."

"The whole world is in a turmoil, so, Britishers, keep steady. The world is looking for an example. Australia is asking what we are going to do next. Our discipline and efficiency are required today in peace as in war. I sing:

Get in the wood and bring up the coal,
Don't hang about and slack and loll;
Put on the fire and get up steam,
Wake up, fellow, work, don't dream.

"Everybody with whom I came in contact wants to know when Britain is going to get the Kaiser, and I want to know too. I'm revengeful when I ask for justice.

"Of course, I know we canna get everything at once, but there's one thing we must get that will straighten things out, and that's the Kaiser.

"Let us have patience because it would not be good to recover too quickly, for some of us maybe would forget too soon. We may forgive, we should forgive, we will forgive, but we never will forget."

EMPLOYES QUIT UNIONS

Winnipeg Men Abandon Internationals for Mutual Benefit Society

Winnipeg, March 29.— To take the place of the international unions, which they are prevented from joining by their pledge to the City Council, civic employees are organizing a mutual benefit society.

POPE URGES ALL CLERGY TO FIGHT BOLSHEVISM

ADDRESSES LETTER TO CATHOLIC LEADERS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

Rome, March 29. — The Catholic Church must use its influence to oppose Bolshevism, and to maintain friendly relations between Capital and Labor, Pope Benedict declared in a letter just made public.

The letter, which was addressed to the Bishop of Burgamo, was intended to direct the activities of Catholic leaders throughout the world. It created a sensation throughont Italy as it was the first time the Pope has taken a direct hand in labor disputes. He urged bishops and priests to participate activly in the labor movement with a view to moderating the demands of labor, regulating strikes and opposing Bolshevism.

Pope Bendeict warned that "it is not with the violence of direct action that the cause of truth and justice is served."

SEEDING OUTLOOK FAIR IN THE WEST

GOOD SUPPLY OF GRAIN AND CROP CONDITIONS ARE FAVORABLE.

Ottawa, March 29.—Seeding prospects in the prairie provinces are very fair, as far as can be judged at this early date, it is stated in the department of agriculture. There is a good supply of wheat, oats and barley seed in the west. It is fairly well distributed and in good condition.

Good fall rains were reported from most of the districts and nowhere is it anticipated that there will be insufficient moisture for germination. Some districts are fairly dry and depend for their crops on weather conditions early in the season.

In giving out these details Dr. J. H. Grisdale, deputy minister of agriculture, stated that no difficulty is anticipated in distributing seed. There is sufficient to meet every demand, and it will be available where required.

Crop prospects throughout the Dominion are apparently very good at this date.

MANITOBA ELECTION IN LATE SUMMER

ANNOUNCEMENT IN LEGISLATURE BEFORE CLOSING—DISCUSS RURAL CREDITS

Winnipeg, March 29.—That the provincial general election will be held before harvest was the announcement made by Premier Norris in the closing moments of the fifth and last session of the fifteenth legislature of Manitoba on Saturday afternoon and shortly before the official prorogation took place and the curtain was rung down on the last legislative function of the administration which came into office under the Hon. T. C. Norris in 1915 and has been in control of the destinies of Manitoba for the full period of the constitutional life of the legislative assembly.

Royal assent was given to 136 bills, which, with the forty assented towhen supply was voted, makes a total of 176 measures enacted during the sessions.

Credits System Debate.

Before the arrival of the Lieutenant-Governor the House reverted to a discussion of the credits system which has arisen through the resignation of G. W. Prout from office of administrator of the business since the scheme was put in operation E. A. McPherson read a statement on behalf of the Government supporters declaring that, while they had the greatest appreciation of Mr. Prout's services, and had been greatly surprised at his resignation, they were heartily in accord with the Government in the decision that it would not be advisable to amend the Legislative Assembly Act, as suggested by Mr. Pront for the purpose of allowing a member to be placed in charge of the operations of the legislation and to receive a salary while he remained a member.

POLICEWOMEN IN DETROIT WILL LOOK AFTER THE WELFARE OF YOUNG GIRLS

New Adjunct to Force to Have Oversight of Movies, Cafes Parks, Dance Halls and Other Places of Amusement.

Detroit, March 29.—Detroit's women's police bureau should start with at least 15 workers, according to Mrs. C. VanWinkle, head of the Washington bureau, who recently surveyed Detroit conditions and who will supervise the formation of the Detroit bureau.

These policewomen, who will not wear uniforms, if the same system is followed in Detroit as in Washington, will be all over the city giving especial attention to matters that pertain to the welfare of women and girls though aiding the other members of the department in obtaining evidence.

In Washington, the women's bureau has supervision and general survey of the movies, dance halls, skating rinks, railway stations, parks and all large public gatherings, this work being catalogued as "preventive," together with welfare work by special workers, voluntary probation finding positions for girls, advising as to associates, amusements, etc., and working with the family in behalf of the delinquent.

Corrective Duties.

Under the heading "corrective" are: Voluntary probation and voluntary commitments to public institutions in other states, there being neither laws nor institutions to cover the needs of offenders over 17 years old in the District of Columbia; psychopathic and physical examinations with a view to obtaining propre disposition of the case and treatment; thorough investigation to find all positive and negative facts in a case to arrive at the inner mental life of the girl so that intelligent help may be extended; earnest attempt to mitigate or remove causes of delinquency; locating missing girls and working with them and their families to prevent repeating; return of fugitive children to parents, guardians or institutions.

In addition to this work, which may sound radical in Detroit where there is but one policewoman in addition to the matrons, there is general police work which embodies: Detection of crime and the apprehension of criminals, sex offenders, shoplifters, etc.; helping the judges and prosecutors with the results of investigations; care of socially diseased through voluntary and court commitments; co-operation with men of the police department in obtaining information; being present with female offenders in identification bureau: interviewing and searching female prisoners; escorting women and girls to homes and institutions in other states.

Watch For Runaways.

The policewomen who patrol the streets, railroad stations and parks pay especial attention to the woman or girl who makes the acquaintance of men friends in public places. They also advise, escort to her home or invite her parents to come for a girl, interview and advise with her parents and work with the parents if necessary. A lookout is kept for runaway girls and the search for missing girls is constant. Temporary lodgings, which have been investigated, are obtained pending further investigation in cases where this is necessary.

Women who patrol the dance halls are on the lookout for opportunities that make for delinquency and vice. They seek that the regulation stipulating the age of admittance is observed and stop indecent dancing and spooning. There is no such police observation in Detroit. Managers are encouraged to appoint matrons and the policewoman sees that those employed perform their duties.

Just at present, the women's bureau is being sued by the proprietor of a dance hall whose license they were after. In the hearing, five girls were among the witnesses. Each of these girls got on the stand and swore that she had begun her life of immorality in this particular place. The five were volunteers, Mrs. VanWinkle said adding that she had proof that there were at least 35 others.

Policewomen Study.

Cafes, cafe dansants and restaurants are patrolled also and the type of patrons observed. In the movies, burlesque shows and theatres, the type of picture shown is observed as well as the lighting, ventilation, indecencies in the audience, overcrowding and the enforcement of fire regulations together with the character of the girl ushers, cashiers and personnel in general.

At the skating ranks and other places of commercialized recreation the young girl is prevented from making undesirable acquaintances and the methods used in street patrolling are applied also.

Hundreds Where Killed Or Injured in Tornado That Swept Central States

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, March 29.—Special augmentation of the known death list of sixty-four, hundreds injured and property damages estimates of many millions of dollars, loomed up today when the restoration of wire communication would permit compilation of accurate reports from the six central west states hit yesterday by a series of tornadoes. The most foreboding reports early today were from the southern Michigan peninsula and the rural districts of Indiana and Ohio. In those states the wires were prostrated in every direction and it was said it might be days before some of the communities were heard from.

Atlanta, Ga., March 29.—Because of demoralized wire conditions no additional details of last night's tornado, which struck Georgia and East Alabama, had come in up to noon today. Thed eath list is approximately forty.

CROSSING ACCIDENT NEAR BELLEVILLE

WIFE OF DR. ROBERTSON KILLED AND DOCTOR INJURED BY TRAIN

Belleville, March 29.— A fatal level crossing accident occurred Sunday afternoon on the line of the C.P.R. about a mile east of the city limits Dr. Robertson of this city, accompanied by his wife, was driving a runabout towards the city, when, at what is known as Gibbons' Crossing, he failed to notice the approach of the westbound C. P. R. express. As the car reached the crossing, the engine struck and hurled it for some distance completely demolishing it. Mrs. Robertson was killed outright, and the doctor was seriously cut about the head and face, and also sustained injuries about the body. He was conveyed to the hospital, where his injuries were attended to. What the result will be is not at present known. Dr. Yeomans, coroner, was upon the scene and ordered an inquest to be held over the body of Mrs. Robertson. The victim was middle-aged, and leaves two young children.

LONDON WOMAN MAKES ATTACK ON SMOKING

London, Ont., March 29. — The adoption of a pledge against cigarette smoking for all members of young girls' organizations is proposed by Mrs. Greene, President of the W. C. T. U., to offset a tendency toward the development of the habit in this city.

The W. C. T. U. has had the matter of cigarette smoking among girls and women, under advisement for some time, and recently a controversy has been waged in which numerous women have defended the practice, on the ground that it is a nerve soothing diversion, and that it should not be restricted for the pleasure of men alone.

"The growing habit of cigarette smoking among young girls," said Mrs. Greene, "will undoubtedly increase with the arrival of immigrants from the Old Land, where it is already firmly established. I should like to suggest that the young people's organizations of the city should have a pledge of all girls promising abstinence from the smoking of cigarettes."

Mrs. Greene declared that she is developing the belief that more can be done to check intemperance by education than can be accomplished by legislation. An effort to undertake an educational campaign will be made through 'teen age girl organizations and through the mothers' clubs.

What Is Job'ess Ministers' Fate?

PICTURE a bunch of cheerless Cabinet Ministers stranded on the beach, the tide of popular favor having receded over the horizon, leaving them high but not dry, with their clothes stolen and a chill wind whistling unkindly round their shivering bodies and flapping with mournful cracks through their political bathing suits. A sad scene, and heartrending too, were it not for the knowledge that most of them are secure in the possession of a private stock of most excellent B.V.D.'s

What, though, does happen Cabinet Ministers when they lose their jobs? Have the recent Conservative rulers at Queen's Park joined the ranks of the unemployed? Are their eager eyes scanning nightly the help wanted columns in an anxious search for something to tide them over till the spring comes and work opens up? Waste not your pity in advance. They are all well fixed, or have hopes.

Take Sir William Hearst, for instance, their leader. He can't really complain. It's time he lost the right to consider himself king-pin of Ontario but he had not to wear out his own pins looking for work or to advertise: "Wanted by ex-Premier suitable employment. Good appearance and agreeable manners. Knowledge of law. Big connection. Willing to consider himself the servant of the people and work up. Wages to suit." No, the cheers of the farmers had hardly died away before Sir William found himself appointed a member of the International National Waterways Commission with a salary of $6,000 a year. It's a big drop from $12,000, but there is a lot of dignity in being a member of the I. N. W. C. and it is better than moving the family to the Soo and starting that law practice there again.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, was in a way the luckiest of the bunch. All his clothes were not stolen though there was little left but the shirt and socks. Still it was enough to make him leader of the party. There is not much money in it apparently, though there are hopes, in spite of heartless U. F. O. threats, if Mr. Ferguson becomes the officially recognized leader of the Opposition. Still Mr. Ferguson has no need to worry. He has a good law practice in Kemptville and another in Toronto.

But what about the masterful McGarry of the big physique, doughty bitter, erstwhile Provincial Treasurer? Surely he is not going to bury his brains and his brawn. Surely the clever tongue of him is not doomed once more to beguile the Renfrew Board of Education or twist itself in petty pleading as the town solicitor. By no means! It is whispered that McGarry has big financial interests and that his capable handling of the provincial moneys, combined with his legal knowledge, has qualified him to set up as an expert financial adviser to big business.

And I. B. Lucas, the Attorney-General, another lawyer, what of him? Will he go back to his early task of helping settle disputes about rail fences between Markdale and Owen Sound? Of course, he might once again become a law partner of Hon. W. E. Raney, but two men of Attorney-General's rank in the one firm might make it top heavy. So he still practices law at Markdale and he still stays on the Hydro Commission. But it is said he will resign the latter; and it is again whispered that Mr. Lucas, who "keeps his ear to the ground," has heard that there is a shortage of houses and that he intends to help supply the demand by the erection of choice homes to suit select purchasers.

Hon. W. D. McPherson and Hon. Rev. Dr. Cody won't have much trouble finding their B. V. D.'s. Both knew exactly where they had laid them. And they hadn't left them very long! From the Provincial Secretaryship to his old seat in his Toronto law office is for Mr. McPherson as smooth and frictionless as a duck taking the water. Dr. Cody simply steps down from the education rostrum and up into the pulpit of St. Paul's.

Hon. Finlay Macdiarmid, ex-Minister of Public Works, and Hon. George S. Henry, ex-Minister of Agriculture, may also be classed together. They have turned their backs on the city and for them it is back to the land. They will wake at cockcrow and hurry out to watch the grass growing, and when the evening falls they will sit in the quiet country and philosophize about the shortcomings of their fellow-farmers now sitting in the seats of the mighty in Queen's Park. But, both Macdiarmid and Henry are farmers in a big way, the former at Rodney, the latter at Todmoden. Henry was credited with being the richest man in the late brotherhood, with a 800-acre farm and half a million dollars. He is also president of the Farmers' Dairy Co. Neither need worry.

There only remains Hon. R. F. Preston. He had no portfolio in the late Government so he had none to lose when the crash came. Thus he has merely gone back quietly to his medical practice at Carleton Place and continues to keep an eye on his investments.

There is an ever growing list of Federal Ministers leaving their jobs, but there is little need for worry on their account. Sir Thomas White gave up the Ministry of Finance to become adviser to great financial concerns. His income now must exceed by many times his $7,000 a year as Minister. Hon. F. B. Carvell became chairman of the Dominion Railway Board at $10,000 a year. Hon. T. A. Crerar works enough at his desk to draw $15,000 a year as president of the United Grain Growers. —Toronto Star Weekly.

ONLY TABLETS MARKED "BAYER" ARE ASPIRIN

Not Aspirin at All without the "Bayer Cross"

The name "Bayer" stamped on tablets positively identifies the only genuine Aspirin,—the Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years and now made in Canada.

Always buy an unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" which contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis, [illegible] and Pain generally. [illegible] tin boxes containing 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer"

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

"TOO MANY PILATES WITH US TODAY" SAYS REV. A. J. THOMAS OF GEORGE ST.

In Eloquent Sermon Last-Night Discusses Trial of Jesus Before Pilate and the Latter's Failure to do What he Knew to be Right.

There are too many people of the Pilate type today in the opinion of Rev. A. J. Thomas, who took as his theme, "Jesus and Pilate," at George Street Church last evening. He preached from the text Mark 15:15, 'And so Pilate, willing to content the people, released Barabbas unto them, and delivered Jesus, when he had scourged Him, to be crucified."

This was a memorable scene in the city of Jerusalem: Jesus, nearing the close of His career in this life, stood before Pilate on trial Pilate knew the attitude of the chief priests and Jews. They hated Jesus because He was good and they evil, and besides feared He would undermine their powers. Envy has led to many crimes, but this was the foulest. Even Pilate, whose record of dealings was none too good, saw this and despised the Jews.

Pilate gave a splendid testimony of Jesus. Three times he pronounced Him innocent. He knew Christ was guiltless and pitied Him. He also marvelled for he seemed to have the idea that he himself was being tried rather than that he was judge, for he said: "Knowest thou not, that I have power to crucify three, and have power to release thee." His verdict was, "I find no fault in Him."

Pilate showed moral cowardice revealing the weakness of a clever politician. He knew the right thing to do, but he feared for his popularity, and his job, and so denied his principle.

Too Many Pilates Today.

"We have too many people of the Pilate type today," said Mr. Thomas "They have good impulses, but are selfish. They refuse to take a right attitude on matters of community welfare, and other moral questions as they fear to lose their popularity or position. They refuse Jesus for the same reason. They are too cowardly to be true to their best selves.'

What is a Pilate.

Henry Ward Beacher in comparing Pilate with the modern world once said:

"What is a Pilate? A Pilate is one of those courtly gentlemen, polished, tasteful, expert, who is not disturbed, nor warped by convictions in over measure, who looks upon all moral qualities, as a gambler looks upon cards which he shuffles and plays according to the exigencies of the game, and one just as easily as another.

"A Pilate is a man who believes in letting things have their own way. Do not sacrifice yourself. Do not get in the way of a movement. Do the best thing. Live in peace with your time. Be not like the fool who stands in his own light. Maintain good appearances—that is profitable. See to it that you do not go too far one way or another. Study the interest of number one all through. Do not be gross, brutal, fanatical—that is not profitable. Preserve your balance. See that you keep your eye on the chances. If they go this way, you go with them far enough to reap them. If they go the other way, go with them. Do not be too scrupulous. Use men, use events, use everything that is profitable. Do not use your conscience too much. This is the language of the Pilates of our day. Those men who ride astride of the time—of administrations and policies. Those men who are polished, cold, calculating, speculating. These are the Pilates."

"To win Jesus is the main thing," Mr. Thomas said, "and what prevents is worthless, and should be renounced and despised."

Pilate was worried by his wife through a dream. It would have been well if he had heeded this warning, and the prompting of his own conscience. God is always trying to block the way to destruction. He tried to stop Baalam. Just as mariners are warned of approaching storms so God raises danger signals. So when the soul goes wrong, it need not blame God.

Pilot had a mistaken conception of his responsibility. He thought he could wash his hands off the whole matter, and shift the blame. The Jews took some responsibility and have since suffered, but that did not clear Pilate.

The Sinner Responsible.

The sinner is responsible for his own sin. He cannot reject Jesus Christ and blame it on his friends or on circumstances. Pilate lost in the end being deposed from his position and dying it is said, as a suicide in exile. The great Cardinal Wolsley, who held such a high position, next to the king, and who sacrificed everything for power, at the end, broken and wretched, exclaimed: "Would I had served my God as faithfully as I have served my king."

There is no gain in sin. It is all loss. Only eternity will reveal the loss, the soul suffers who is untrue to Jesus. Jesus is at your side, inviting you near. It is just as sinful for you to reject Him, as it was for Pilate.

A South African Flower.

Flowering at the Cape of Good Hope all through the winter is one of the most beautiful flowers in the world, which has been called the queen of the South African flora.

This is Strelitzia, with leaves like those of a small banana and flowers so magnificent in color, form, and size that soon after its discovery it became one of the wonders of the flower world. It is along the river banks of southeast Cape Colony that it may be seen at home, standing up some four feet among the grass and scrub that clothe the edges of the water. Open glades are also sometimes ornamented by scattered tufts some way from the valleys, but nowhere else in the world is it truly wild. So it is an endemic. The flowers spring one after another all through the season from the beak-like summit of the stem. In each there are three deep yellow sepals four to six inches long which stand upright like the crest on the head of a parrot. Among them are the dark blue petals combined together around the stamen into the shape of an arrow. The whole bears a striking resemblance to the head of a large and gorgeous bird with its blue and yellow crest erect and its beak pointing forward. The likeness is further helped by the flower stalk which curves like the neck of a swan. The stamen is normally completely hidden by the petals, but it is revealed when a honey gatherer visits it as they open down the middle when pressed from above, closing again to protect it as soon as the weight of the visitor is removed. Rather more weight is required than that of a bee, and it has been noticed that these flowers are visited and pressed open by the little sugar-birds and sunbirds.

Never judge an argument by its sound; it may be all sound and no sound at all.

The "Quality" Character of this brand has an International Reputation.

FIVE STRIKERS GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY; TWO BRANDED AS COMMON NUISANCES

Winnipeg, Man., March 29.—The fate of the seven Labor leaders, charged with seditious conspiracy as a result of the Winnipeg general strike last May and June was placed in the hands of the jury after Justice Metcalfe had completed a lengthy charge. After hearing a technical objection by E. J. McMurray, which he later withdrew, Judge Metcalfe recalled the jury and dismissed it for the balance of the night. Late Saturday the jury returned a verdict finding five of the defendants guilty of conspiracy and two guilty of committing a nuisance.

Metcalfe's charge took more than six hours to deliver. With the exception of William Ivene, the judge dealt put briefly with the individual strike leaders. His charge was regarded as strongly against Ivens. Alderman John Queen and W. A. Pritchard also were mentioned several times in his summing up of the evidence.

The judge characterized the riots of June 10 and 21 as "extremely vicious." He said he would not have gone into the riots in detail if the defense counsel had not attempted to belittle them and attack the Royal North-West Mounted Police. He said it was "unthinkable" defense counsel or accused should attempt to make light of that body without bringing evidence into court.

Justice Metcalfe asserted the Winnipeg strike undoubtedly was the result of the conspiracy, but it was for the jury to say whether any of the accused men were connected with the conspiracy. He said a combination of workers to prevent others from working was illegal on its face.

"Hew to the Line," Advises Judge.

"It is your duty and mine," he said in conclusion, "to hew to the line, let chips fall where they may."

A. J. Andrews, K.C., chief crown counsel, concluded his rebuttal Friday afternoon. He was frequently interrupted by Pritchard and other accused men. They asserted he was not fair in presenting the facts to the jury.

"I cannot allow this to go on," Pritchard exclaimed on one occasion. "it is not the matter that is being presented to the jury, but the manner in which it is being done that makes me bitter. He reads from the O. B. U. Bulletin, which he knows was printed May 1, when John was out of town, and then tells the jury John was responsible for it."

Andrews covered most of the points touched by the defense, and read new matter in answer to Bonnar's callenge to produce anything seditious from any literature put in as evidence.

Sitting Since January 28.

In beginning his charge, Justice Metcalfe referred to the great length of trial, saying he had been sitting on the case since January 20, and the jury since January 28.

"There are two main charges," he said. "First, the seditious conspiracy, and, second, the common nuisance. There are six separate parts of first charge, each charging seditious conspiracy by committing some overt act. The Crown must show seven different classes of evidence before there can be a conviction on all counts. You may find all or some guilty, one on some counts, on all of them, or innocent of all.

"Counsel for the accused has made it more difficult for me by referring to the law contrary to what was decided in the Russell case by the Court of Appeal. I allowed considerable latitude to counsel and to the undefended accused, but there are bounds that cannot be overstepped.

"We are not here to decide what should be done with Capital or Labor, but whether these men are guilty as charged or innocent. This court is bound by the law as it is, and it is not for the accused to say what the law should be. It is the function of Parliament to say what the law shall be. It is my duty to see you get the law as I believe it to be, and then if any wrong is done the accused, justice may still be done."

He then instructed the jury exhaustively in the laws governing sedition, conspiracy, seditious conspiracy, seditious libel and common nuisance.

Anxious Mother Objects to Her Son Joining Artillery.

People look to the Great War Veterans' Association for help in many strange ways. Bright and early this morning an anxious mother called up on the phone and informed Secretary Whatley that her son wanted to join the artillery. On being referred to the armories, she replied, "But I don't want him to join." She was told that there was nothing that the G.W.V.A. could do for her in the matter, but was instructed as to the proper place to voice her objections.

TO DISCUSS HOUSING PROBLEM IN PETERBORO

JOINT MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL AND BOARD OF TRADE TOMORROW

The housing problem which in view of the many large factory extensions which are taking place in Peterborough this year is becoming a serious difficulty will be discussed at a joint meeting of the City Council and the Board of Trade which is to be held in the Board of Trade rooms on Tuesday evening. Invitations have been sent out to all who might be interested in the question, but it is quite possible that many have been overlooked and it is therefore announced that the meeting will be open to all of the public, who cares to attend.

The Manufacturers' Association hold their inaugural banquet tonight at seven o'clock at the Empress and will hold their annual meeting in the Board of Trade rooms on Wednesday evening.

HUNDRED THOUSAND VICTIMS OF TYPUS

JEWS SUFFER TERRIBLY FROM DISEASE AND LACK OF FOOD

Typhus, which has been the cause of so many deaths in Eastern Europe during the past year, is on the increase in certain districts, according to reports received by the Canadian Jewish War Relief from relief workers abroad.

It is estimated that there are fully 100,000 cases of this dread disease in Poland alone. Bernard Zuckerman of New York, a commissioner recently sent to Eastern Europe by the Joint Distribution Committee of American Funds for Jewish Sufferers from the War, says that the epidemic is at its worst now in the districts recently added to Roumania, and that there are even more deaths in the farming districts than in the cities.

"The death rate is increasing greatly in Kishineff, and throughout Bessarabia," he writes. "In the cities the Jews are suffering more from it than the non-Jews, because their condition is very much worse. But in the country, the farmers are giving a greater percentage of victims to the epidemic than even the Jews. This is due to the fact that in the small houses of the farmers, many people are now crowded together, and the typhus epidemic which is carried mostly by lice, has spread like wildfire among the farming population."

TWO FIRES IN THE CITY

One on Stewart Street Yesterday Put Out Just in Time.

The Fire Department was called out to two small fires during the week end. The first was at 1:30 on Saturday afternoon when a call was received from the residence of Mr. J. Smith, 411 London street. A chimney had caught fire and was easily extinguished there being no damage in this case. The second alarm was received at 9:26 p.m. on Sunday from the home of Robert Jackson, 183 Stewart street. When the department reached the scene of the fire they found that the chimney was on fire and sparks flying from it had ignited the shingle roof which was burning merrily. With the aid of the 40 gallon chemical tank the incipent blaze disappeared leaving damage of but a few dollars to the roof.

CATHOLIC FORESTERS AT ST. PETER'S SUNDAY

MARCHED IN BODY TO 8 O'CLOCK MASS AND RECEIVED HOLY COMMUNION

Yesterday morning, the Catholic Order of Foresters met at their rooms on Hunter street to the number of about 200 and marched in a body to St. Peter's church, where they attended the eight o'clock mass and received Holy Communion. Mass was celebrated by Bishop O'Brien who, during his sermon made reference to the good work of the Foresters which was being done among the young men of the parish. And he wished them the best of success for the coming year.

This procession to the Cathedral is undertaken [illegible] Order once a year, every Palm Sunday and is always a very interesting event and well attended by the members of the Order.

TOWNSHIP MUST PAY FOR FARMERS' TRIP

ECHO OF FARMERS MARCH ON OTTAWA OVER M.S.A. IS HEARD.

Toronto, March 26.—An echo of the farmers' march on Ottawa in 1918 in opposition to the co-operation of farmers' sons in the war was heard in the Appellate Court here, when an appeal was taken against the judgment of the county judge of Brant, in a case in which a ratepayer of Burford township sued for the recovery by the township of Burford of the sum of $219.15, the expenses of the Burford farmers in the delegation, which had been paid by the township council. The Brant county judge held that the free trippers should repay the $219.15 to the township.

This decision was upset by the appeal court. Chief Justice Mulock and Justices Sutherland, Clute and Masten were unanimous in the opinion that the farmers' trip to Ottawa "pertained to or affected the interests of the corporation," within the meaning of the law, because the township was concerned as to production and the question of production was affected by the Military Service Act.

BIG MAJORITY IN FAVOR OF DAYLIGHT SAVING

CHANGE OF TIME IS LIKELY TO BECOME EFFECTIVE MAY FIRST

The Brinton Carpet Company have reported a 75 per cent. majority in favor of daylight saving. It is expected that a complete return of the balloting in all the local factories will be given out in the next few days and that it will show a tremendous majority in favor of the measure. The whole question at present depends on the action of the Provincial Government. If they pass a law making daylight saving effective in the Province it is expected that the railways will follow suit and that the clocks will be turned an hour ahead on May 1st. If the railways do not adopt the measure, it is expected the local clocks will not be changed, but that the factories will simply commence work an hour earlier in the morning and quit an hour earlier in the evening.

An attractive program for all citizens, will be the order of the day at a concert to be given by the (augmented George street Methodist Church, under the able leadership of Mr. John H. Renwick, on Tuesday, evening, April 20th., in the church.

The choir has been augmented to [illegible] voices and will be heard to advantage in popular choruses, such as the "Soldiers' Chorus from Faust," and others equally as attractive. Male and female choruses will also be included in the program.

A few special artists have been secured for instrumental selections and the audience will again have the opportunity and pleasure of listening to Miss May Urquhart, the popular elocutionist.

The attractive advance price of twenty-five cents will suit everybody's pockets. Tickets may be secured from any of the choir members.

SAYS HOUSING SCHEME BENEFITED PRIVATE CO.

MANITOBA HOUSING COMMITTEE TO PROBE IN ASSINIBOIA MUNICIPALITY

Winnipeg, March 29.—Investigation by a County Court judge into the administration of the funds allocated under the housing scheme to the municipality of Assiniboia was promised by Premier Norris at the sitting of the Manitoba Legislature on Saturday, following a statement made by Dr. George Clinegan. The member for Virden earlier in the session had suggested government supervision of the manner in which the money was being used in municipalities, making a general reference to Assiniboia. The member for that constituency, J. W. Wilton, then thought that Dr. Clinegan should be more explicit, and on Saturday he laid on the table of the House certain documents which, he stated, showed that the City and District Land Company, of which the reeve of Assiniboia, C. L. Richardson, was secretary, had profited out of the operation of the scheme in the municipality.

SOME DEFICITS ON THE HYDRO POWER SYSTEM SHOWN

ONTARIO POWER COMPANY IS $485,000 BEHIND OWING TO ABNORMAL CONDITIONS

That the treaty with the United States regulating the amount of water Canada may take from the Niagara River must be amended to permit this country to take a larger quantity of water or that the Ontario Power Company's plant, owned by the Hydro, must curtail its operations so as to permit the Chippawa power canal to be used to its full capacity is the intimation given by G. T. Clarkson in his audit of the Hydro for the Ontario Government. To relieve the situation, Mr. Clarkson says:

"I am firmly of the opinion that the interests of the Province and the municipalities will best be served by permitting the company to forego charging provisions for renewal of plant and equipment as part of the cost of power delivered by the Ontario Power Company to the Niagara system, in the period between August 1, 1917, and October 31, 1919. In addition it believes it is essential that some basis shall be arrived at which will protect the power company in its investment in the third pipe line to its work, so that it may avoid loss of any substantial portion of the same and be allowed to repay the cost over an extended period of years.

"If this be done the income of the Ontario Power Company to October 31, 1919, will have been all but sufficient to meet other requirements without any increased charge for power to the municipalities."

The report urges that the prices payable by the Niagara system for power from the company shall remain at $9 and $12, delivered at the Falls, for the period ending last Oct., and that the cost of the third pipe line shall be extended over a period of years.

Deficits and Surpluses.

The report shows that a number of municipalities did not pay enough to cover the cost of power supplied them, which fact is attributed to the shortage of power and the higher expenses. The city of Toronto, after allowing for a sinking fund, showed a deficit of $106,854. Other deficits follow:

Hamilton, with sinking fund 23,518.

London, Port Stanley Railway Com. without sinking fund, $13,331.

Dundas, with sinking fund, $4,558

Dunnville, no sinking fund, $3,690

Galt, with sinkinp fund, $1,988.

Preston, with sinking fund, $2,078.

Watford, no sinking fund, $1,675

Harriston, no sinking fund, $1,406.

The following overpaid to the extent indicated: Sarnia $10,929; New Toronto $10,707; Walkerville $9,356; Windsor $8,816; London $5,568; Chatham $5,362; Tilsonburg $3,222; Wallaceburg $3,163; Weston, $3,015.

MEMORIAL FOR THE Y'S FALLEN

Samples of Design Have Been Received by Committee in Charge

Sample photographs of war memorials were received by Secretary Roper of the Y.M.C.A. this morning and will be presented to the committee for their final decision as to the design of the memorial which is to be erected to commemorate the members of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. who fell in the great war. It is expected that the memorial will be made of bronze. The sample received this morning were all very handsome designs and the committee will find it difficult to discriminate between them.

There are over 50 members of the Y.M.C.A. who gave their lives for their country and a minstrel show was recently put on by the Y.M.C.A. to raise funds for the purpose of suitably immortalizing their sacrifice.

Worth thousands of pounds a vast quantity of barley was destroyed in a fire at the Cork Distillery. All the firemen could do was to save the enormous stocks of whiskey stored in neighboring buildings.

SINGLE VETERANS NOW EXPECTED TO GO IT UNAIDED

NO MORE UNEMPLOYMENT ALLOWANCES MADE TO THEM AFTER APRIL 10th

In connection with the announcement made recently that the unemployment allowance to returned soldiers would be extended until April 10, it was pointed out at the local Employment Bureau today that this meant an extension of just a little over a wek and that it was taking effect only in extreme cases and would on no account be granted to single men. The Government felt that the time had arrived when the single man ought to be able to look after himself and no further unemployment allowance would be given in this direction. At the present time all men receiving unemployment allowances are paid up until the end of the month and this is the last payment that they will receive unless they can prove a case of extreme need. While no figures could be obtained as to the number receiving this allowance, Captain Morrison of the S.C.R. stated that the number in this city receiving such assistance had been kept down to a minim owing to the careful scrutiny made of all demands by the local officers. As a result of this there had been far less paid out in this city than in other cities of the same population.

Y.W.C.A. WHATS DOIN THIS WEEK

It is hoped that a large number will attend the concert at the Young Women's Christian Association on Tuesday evening, March 30th. Mrs. A. A. Perrin, the convenor of the Musical Committee is in charge of the program and it promises to be a good one.

On account of the Easter holidays there will be a few changes in the week's schedule. The following are the activities:

Monday, 4.30—Senior school girls' gymnasium.

Monday, 7.00—Beginners' French Class.

Monday, 8.00—Advanced Gymnasium Class.

Tuesday, 4.30—Junior school girls' gymnasium.

Tuesday, 4.30—Junior Life-saving Class.

Tuesday, 6.00—Athena Club supper and gymnasium.

Tuesday, 7.00—Business Girls' Swimming Class.

Tuesday, 8.00—Good Cheer Club.

Tuesday, 8.00—Club Swimming Classes.

Wednesday, 4.30—Junior school girls' gymnasium and Saturday juniors.

Wednesday, 4.30—Senior school girls' swimming.

Wednesday, 7.00 — Life-saving Class.

Wednesday, 7.00—Aesthetic Dancing Class.

Wednesday, 8.00—Advanced swimmers.

Wednesday, 8.00 — Intermediate Gymnasium Class.

Wednesday, 8.00—Bonner-Worth Club.

Thursday, 3.00 — Ladies' Swimming Class.

Thursday, 4.30—Junior school girls' and babies' swimming class.

Thursday, 8.00 — Merry Maids' Club.

Thursday, 8.00—Business Girls' Swimming Class.

Special gymnasium classes will be announced later for Easter week.

Tweedmouth's war memorial will be erected at the end of the old bridge, built in the reign of King James, and one of the few bridges in the country towards which the Government makes an annual grant for upkeep.

EDITOR'S MAIL

CARE OF THE PARKS.

Editor Review: Just a word re the care of the parks. The Parks Committee have had their discussion. Mr. Grierson has had his say as the lowest tenderer. I just want a word as the highest tenderer. Mr. Grierson may have kept books and knows just what it cost him last year, but I know what it will cost to keep those parks in any way creditable to the city, and if I was offered $1,424.00 to do the job as I consider to my own credit, I wouldn't accept the offer.

I believe that the citizens of this city that has any interest in the community life of the city will agree that the public parks should be an inspiration to every citizen to keep their own home surroundings up to the highest standard.

We find that some of our western towns and cities are pressing the Ontario Legislature, championed by Mayor McBride, M.L.A., to pass legislation allowing them to levy one mill for the benefit of the parks. What would that mean to the city of Peterborough? Surely we should be as aggressive as any city in Ontario.

Now Ald. Gordon made the statement that he had supported the lowest tender for city work for ten years and he would do it a while longer. I have heard once in a while, not very often, a farmer say that he sows the cheapest seed he can get and I have heard once in a while, not very often, cheesemakers say that they use the cheapest supplies they can get. Now those three are in the same boat and are bound for the same destination.

Yours etc.,
W. H. MERRILL.

NO MATRON YET FOR CHILDREN'S SHELTER

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO MAKE SELECTION WILL HOLD MEETING TOMORROW

A special meeting of the Executive Board of the Children's Aid Society will be held in the Bank of Montreal chambers tomorrow for the purpose of consideration applications received for the position of matron of the Children's Shelter. It is believed that the committee appointed at the last meeting to deal with applications and make recommendations concerning them to the Executive Board have met with some difficulty in arriving at a decision. The matter is urgent as the new matron is required to take over the duties on the first of April.

YOUR MOST IMPORTANT DEAL

When a man applies for Life Insurance he is taking up the most important deal of his life, for, presumably, he will not be here when it is settled.

How important then that he select the best obtainable.

The record of the Sun Life of Canada for the past 49 years of its existence has been an unbroken march of progress, obtained through square dealing, and the past year has surpassed all others with its Assets of over ONE HUNDRED MILLION and Income of TWENTY-FIVE MILLIONS and Surplus, on Government standard, of over TEN MILLIONS. Where can you find its equal?

Is it not to your interest, therefore, to place your Life Insurance with the

A scene from the all-Canadian motion picture, "THE GREAT SHADOW," at the Grand Opera House, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

TYRONE POWERS STARS IN "THE GREAT SHADOW"

"The Great Shadow" the production opening at the Grand Thursday week for its first public screening was produced by the Adanac Producing Company Limited, of Montreal. All interior settings of the production were assembled and photographed at their studio at Trenton, Ont., and considerable of the exterior scenes were taken in Toronto and Lonsdale Road, Rosedale ravine and Lake Shore Road. When it is stated that this is the first and only all-Canadian production no attempted misrepresentation to appeal to Canadian patronage is being made, and apart from its Canadian atmosphere, this production is a thrilling, gripping drama full of pathos and heart interest. The dramatic critics contend that it compares with any of the large American productions. The settings photography and acting are par excellence.

The "star" in the production, Mr. Tyrone Power, is well known to Peterborough audiences by his presentations of " The Drain Digger," in "The Servant in the House," and as "Brutus" in 'Julius Caesar." His portrayal of "Jim MacDonald" a big upstanding labor leader, in this picture is admirably presented. He is supported by a notable caste, chief among whinch is Louis Sterns taking the part of a Bolshevist leader. Mr. Stern's presentation of this role is so convincing that when he is finally hurled over a 400 foot cliff in an automobile the audience is stirred to applause although the scene is so realistic and sensational that it really takes your breath away for a minute Ivy Ward the phenomenal child actress, known to picture fans as "Baby " carries her audience with her from the opening, and when she is finally knocked down and run over by a runaway team there is not a dry eye in the home. Other members of the caste are Dorothy Bernard, Donald Hall, Lucille Mamion and several others. Miss Bernard is well known to Toronto audiences and special incidental music has been prepared for this picture.

Lieut.-General Sir John Philip Du Cane and Sir Archibald Williamson, M.P., have been appointed members of the Army Council.

In an ejectment case at Marylebone, London, it was stated that there were 25 children in the house and that the noise they made was terrible.

The best way to kill time profitably is to employ it. [illegible]

: : AT THE GRAND : :

Without seeing "Nightie Night," which was produced at the Grand twice on Saturday, one would scarcely think it possible for a playwright to tangle two newly married couples up so badly as the four principal characters in this brilliant farce were. It was just one mix-up after another from the first curtain until the last, and the audience was kept in laughter throughout. There are no dull moment in "Nightie Night."

Through a prologue and three acts runs the effervescent story of a young matron who meets an old friend and innocently drags him into an adventure that drives his poor wife into hysterics and brings her own jealous husband storming into a scene filled with protests, alibis, divorce threats and a mischievous, but entirely proper, pair of pink pyjamas. The acting was as vivacious as the farce itself. The cast, headed by Francis Byrne, whose success in the role of the woefully berated husband, has won for him the featured position in an organization madeup of accomplished farceurs, was perfectly balanced and perfect in their parts.

"Nightie Night" is a worth-while show.

The Bill Tonight.

The bill at the Grand tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday consists of Irene Castle in "The Invisible Bond," a Paramount comedy, "The Night of the Duke," and a special vaudeville act.

Abreast With the Times.

Mr. Parveau-Smith was furnishing his library, which occupation was causing him considerable anxiety. In despair he called in an expert bookseller, and after making suggestions and a final order for a complete library he turned to his adviser and asked:

"And what is the name of that fellow who writes such a lot—Shakeshaft, or something like that, isn't it?"

"Shakespeare, sir," answered the tradesman.

"Yes, that's it. Get me all he's written and make a note to order anything new he may write."

Concealing a smile the bookseller suggested: "And may I suggest you have them bound in morocco?"

"Bound in Morocco!" roared the newly-made Croesus. "No, certainly not. I want the confounded things at once."

In 1,782 Years.

It has been estimated that had there been no wars and no epidemics, the present population of the world, 1,519,000,000 people, could have descended from a single couple in 1,782 years, or since 132 A.D.

WHEN PEACE CAME

Oppressive Silence Followed the Great Crash.

Hard at First to Realize That the Carnage of Four Dreadful Years Had Ended—Huns Defeated but Unrepemant.

With a silence like that which follows the mighty crash of a great organ, the great war came suddenly to an end. No longer do the weary soldiers at listening posts strain their ears through long night watches; star shells have ceased to burst and flame over No Man's land; cannons have cooled; machine guns utter no sound; the exchange of all manner of deadly missiles has stopped. At last peace, which for four slow, dreadful years has seemed afar off like a mirage, has come. The thousand and one activities of battle, intense to the last ounce of possible human effort, are relaxed. Ships now cross the ocean in safety; smoke from thousands of ammunition plants no longer darkens the sky; tired workers return once more to their homes; armies are demobilizing; reconstruction of devastated homes and farms and factories is contemplated; the dreadful military debauch has consumed itself; the world draws a great sigh of exhaustion and relief, the conflict is ended.

In all history no message ever sped so gladly nor so fast as the few words flashed through the air, and under oceans, and over land wires, until around the whole world and to its uttermost accessible parts the news was carried. What wonder that all civilization gave vent to a frenzy of joy almost barbaric, that men shouted and women wept; and little children witnessed an event which threescore years and ten hence they will relate to other wide-eyed children. In our joy let us not forget those millions of fathers whose voices refused to cheer and those mothers and wives and sweethearts whose eyes were dry, because their hearts were bowed down with a sorrow no victory can ever compensate.

The Huns ceased only when physically exhausted; when their ammunition was spent; when the war had reached their own borders; when they no longer possessed the ability to murder the defenseless, to gas the brave. Their regret is that they failed, but not one single word of penitence for the harm they have done, the sorrow they have caused. Instead they think only of their bellies and demand, not supplicate, the food they have so wantonly destroyed for years; they whine lest the very cars they stole from France and Belgium be returned to their rightful owners. They have been beaten in what was for nearly four years an unequal struggle, but for any word which has yet to come out of Germany they are the same degenerate Huns who, casting aside all the obligations of a civilized nation, marched into Belgium in August 1914.—Chicago Evening Post.

Ancient Rock Engravings.

The prehistoric art museum lately revealed in Montesqui Avantes, Ariege, southern France, contains rock engravings estimated to be 30,000 years old. Continuing the exploration interrupted by the war, Count Begouen and his three sons discovered on the inner walls of the cavern a bas relief of a real lion, with numerous figures of reindeers, bisons, horses, bears, elephants, rhinoceroses, and such birds as ducks and swans. Strangest of all is a silhouette of a powerful man, with thick neck, distinctly human limbs, feet and hands, and a tail, and represented walking on all fours.

Prepare for Another Day.

Prepare today for the morrow. It is the only way to advance rapidly and with success. He best succeeds who, in advance to demand, knows his abilities and shortcoming, who is able best to estimate his capacity for production, mental or physical. Prepare incessantly for promotion, and promotion must come. Neglect to prepare for the future, and there will be no future. It is such neglect that has spelled stagnation for millions in the past, that will spell stagnation for millions in the future.—Milwaukee Journal.

Our Future King

IT is due to no adventitious aid that the Prince of Wales has won his way to the hearts of the British people; it is because he has made the irresistible appeal of frank, honest, unsophisticated and generous youth to all true hearts. Modest and unassuming, notwithstanding his exalted state, he has never sought to obtrude himself, but his unaffected worth has, in spite of a seeming desire for self-effacement, become manifest, and it may be doubted if any prince in history has won greater regard from the masses of the people. The warm sentiment he has inspired is spontaneous and glows the stronger the better he is known. His war record proves that he is imbued with high courage and a strong sense of duty. Many pleasant incidents are related by returned soldiers of his kindly disposition, his sympathy and considerations, his good comradeship with brothers-in-arms, irrespective of rank. What a contrast he has shown us to the princelets of Germany, flown with insolence and wine like sons of Belial!

Two inestimable advantages he has certainly had, inasmuch as he comes of a very noble stock and his scrupulous training has been such as to bring out all that is best in him for the worthy fulfilment of his high destiny. His parents have ever been the exemplars of those kindly domestic virtues which we are proud to think flourish best on British soil. Their great ideal has not been the splendors of a court, which may, incidentally, foster extravagance and folly, but the cultivation of the tranquil joys and graces of well-ordered family life, which is the true basis of a nation's worth.

The Prince of Wales was born at White Lodge, Richmond Park, on June 23, 1894. But his youth has been developed by many and varied experiences and a wide range of interests due to personal aptitudes, real hard work and the requirements of his high position. His serious and wholesome bent was early manifest, for at a tender age he showed great interest in natural history, mechanics and wireless telegraphy. He was also a hero-worshipper, for whom the study of great men's lives had a special fascination. Till the age of 13 he was educated at home; then he went to Osborne as a naval cadet. Two years later he was transferred to Dartmouth, and in 1910 he became a full-fledged midshipman. His naval training, as the prior experience of King George had shown, was a grand preparation for the fuller life that becomes the Heir Apparent, and at the age of 17 he was sent to Paris for a year's study of the French language and political economy. In 1912 he entered as an undergraduate at Magdalen College, Oxford, where he remained for two years, attending lectures and devoting special attention to constitutional law.

The scope of his interests and activities already includes scientific, charitable and social organizations, and it is ever widening. In May, 1919, he became a Freemason of the city of London and on June 2 he was installed with impressive ceremony, as Grand Master of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, at St. Paul's Cathedral. King George, who is now Sovereign of the Order, was himself, when Prince of Wales, installed Grand Master, just 13 years ago.

If the many demands on his time and attention preclude the indulgence of the mechanical bent which was so manifest in childhood Prince Edward has developed a great interest in the nation's workday activities, and in his visits to industrial centres he has shown keen and appreciative interest in technical operations.

Not only does he show a discerning and approving interest in the industrial developments on which, more than ever, the prosperity of the country depends, but, like his parents, he is intensely concerned for the welfare of the workers—solicitous to learn how their living conditions may be improved and their social status bettered. He has endeavored by personal visits to crowded areas to gain first-hand an intimate acquaintance with the lives of the masses, and wherever he has gone he has left indelible memories of unaffected goodwill and sympathy. Tributes to his worth and kindness are plentiful in districts where the very poorest live, for, if reticent himself, the objects of his regard are not to be silenced.

It was recently reported that through a motor accident a youth was knocked down, but, fortunately, not seriously injured, by the car in which the prince was seated, and that his Royal Highness was greatly moved by the regrettable mishap. He removed the injured lad to a hospital and remained there anxiously till assured that the sufferer was in no danger and would very soon be well. Later, when the youth was able to go out, the prince invited him to Buckingham Palace, and treated him like a dear friend and asked him what particular present he would prefer as a souvenir. The lad replied that he would most appreciate a wrist-watch, and the prince assured him that his wish would be promptly gratified.

That reported incident is but one of the many that have never found publicity, proving beyond question that the prince is distinguished by very fine qualities and a noble character. A true gentleman himself, he is extraordinarily susceptible to the courtesy and consideration of others—all the more if these be displayed by humble folk as many soldiers and civilians can vouch. In these cases he is genuinely touched and his eager responsiveness leaves no doubt as to his gratification.

Soundings have been obtained over all parts of the ocean, even in the two polar seas.

Stirling Town Council has resolved to proceed with plans for sixty additional houses at Shiphadgh, being an extension of the scheme already in progress there.

BILLY EVANS AND BASEBALL QUERIES

Knotty Problems in the Game Solved by the Well Known Umpire.

(By Billy Evans)

What chance do you think Ruth has of breaking his home run record?—H. H.

Making more than 29 home runs in a season is some trick, and while Ruth, of course always has a chance, because no harder hitter ever lived, I wouldn't be at all surprised if the mark of 29 home runs stood for some time. The transfer of Ruth to the New York club certainly increased his chances. He will be hitting them back at a short right and left field fence. Incidentally he made his mark last year in a 140-game schedule, so that he will have fourteen more games to shoot at this year.

The batting order of a team's starts out this way—Davis, Jones and Smith. In the last half of the sixth inning with two men out, Smith gets mixed up and bats in place of Jones, hitting for two bases. The mistake was immediately discovered and an appeal made to the umpire. What should have been the ruling of the umpire and who should have been the first man up in the seventh?— H. J. K.

When Smith batted out of order and the mistake properly discovered and an appeal made, the umpire should have declared out the proper batsman Jones, which of course retired the side. The batting order in the next inning should have been resumed in the proper order, which would bring Smith up as the first batter, despite the fact that he was the last man up in the previous inning.

When a double-header is played by two teams in the major leagues, one of the games being a postponed affair from earlier in the year, which game is regarded as the regularly scheduled game of that day?— D. K. L.

In case of a double-header, the first game is regarded as the regularly scheduled game of that day.

Under the old rules if an umpire stopped play because of rain, and the rain continued for a period of thirty minutes, was it not compulsoryp that he calls the game, regardless of the inning or the score at the time? What changes if any have been made in this rule?—G. H. J.

A very drastic change was made in the rule covering the rain situation at the meeting of the rules committee in Chicago. Under the old rules the umpire was compelled to call time at the expiration of thirty minutes, if having suspended play because of rain, it continued for that length of time. Under the new rules the suspension of play is left entirely to the judgment of the umpire. If at the end of thirty minutes he believes most of the rain is over, that it will stop in a few minutes, and that it will be possible to get the ground in shape for play, he can do as he pleases in the matter. It is a judgment play entirely now, with the umpire having the sole authority to reach a decision.

On what play or plays is it necessary for the team in the field to make an appeal to the umpire for a decision? — H. D.

In a batting out of order play, in order to get action on the slip it is necessary that the team in the field make an appeal to the umpire that the proper batsman be declared out before a ball it pitched to the next batter. In all plays where a base runner misses a base or leaves a base before a fly ball is caught, the ball must be held on the base missed or left too soon or the runner be touched with the ball, and a ruling be requested.

OSHAWA IS READY FOR THE BASEBALL SEASON

TEAM WILL BE ENTERED IN CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE THIS YEAR.

Oshawa, March 29.—There never was a moment's doubt whether a team would be entered in the C.O. B.A. this year. Each true baseball sport came to the meeting with that sole idea in his mind and consequently the decision to enter the team was launched without difficulty.

Dr. Finnegan was nominated to the chair and Frank Chester, secretary pro tem. Every sport present adopted the "after-you-my-dear-Alphonse" role for a minute, and then Ernie Parsons made a motion to enter the team. Charles Hall's name went down as seconder and the proposal carried unanimously. The election of officers then followed. The former honorary presidents were again elected and no other name but George Miller's was mentioned for the presidency of the club, his capable management in the chair last year being generally desired for another season.

Officers Elected.

The officers elected were as follows:

President—George Miller.
1st Vice-President—Geo. Morris.
2nd Vice-President—Dr. C. M. Trewin.
Secretary Frank Chester
Treasurer—B. Lowe.
Executive Committee—E. Parsons, W. A. Coad, Dr. Finnegan
Official Scorer—"Bill" O'Brien.

For the executive, E. Trew P. Purves, H. Landler and W. O'Brien were also nominated. They are all good men, but because they did not get elected on account of the fact that enough of their friends did not turn out to vote for them.

VETERANS ORGANIZE FOOTBALL PLAYERS

BELIEVE THEY HAVE TEAM THAT WILL CARRY OFF CHAMPIONSHIP

Immediately after the auction sale at the G.W.V.A. on Saturday afternoon the members met and organized the football club for the coming season with the following officers:

Hon. President—R. H. Muir.
Hon. Vice-President—C. H. Ackerman.
President—G. Farrance.
Vice-President—P. D. Ryan
Secretary—Sydney Whatley
Treasurer—F. T. Mallinson.
Executive Committee—W. H. Murphy, E. Morley and C. Griffiths.

The Veterans are not hiding the fact that they are out to win the league championship this year and they believe that with their present line-up they have a very good chance of accomplishing this feat. Up to the present 20 players have signed up with the association team all of them first-class players.

The colors of the team will be blue knickerbockers and red shirts with the G.W.V.A. crest

SQUABBLE OVER CITY WALLS

People of Canton, China, Divided Over Question Which the Progressives Have Put Forward

There's a "tempest in a teapot," and a China teapot at that, over the proposal in Canton, China, to take down the ancient city walls. "Shades of our ancestors," say some of the Cantonese, "it is a sacrilege. It is an evil plan inspired by foreign devils. Never has it been done. Never shall it be. If our forefathers got along with city walls, so should we."

Such feeling against removal of the walls is expressed in the form of a protest by some of the members of the Merchants' guild to the civil governor, according to the Canton Times, which is for the removal of the walls "on account of the congestion of population and of facilitating communications in the city," and because "public health demands wider roads and more air for the people."

After admitting that the protest is based on the "grounds that demolition of homes along the walls would deprive hundreds of thousands of their livelihood," the Times, with true Oriental indifference as to the effect of such treatment on said gentry, says: "If the gentry think otherwise they should be dumped into the river."

The Mansfield Collection.

Mrs. Richard Mansfield has given to the National museum at Washington, and it has been arranged in eight cases for exhibition, the costumes, armor, jewels, and other articles of dress that her husband wore upon the stage in his many parts. Mansfield was exacting about the historical accuracy of his costumes, where it was possible, as well as about the quality of the stuffs and the fashions in which they were made. Hence the collection has a certain value apart from association with him and with the American theater. It includes, for example, all his dresses for Brutus in "Julius Caesar," for Shakespeare's Henry V, Richard III and Shylock, for Rostand's Cyrano, for Czar Ivan of Russia, for Don Carlos of Spain in Schiller's like named tragedy, for Bonaparte, for Beau Brummel.

Believe It or Not!

Friends of S. F. Lockbridge, former state senator, and James I. Nelson, both of Greencastle, are telling a story regarding the strange actions of hogs on their farms last summer. Mr. Lockbridge went to his farm west of Greencastle and on arriving at a field in which were some fat hogs he saw the animals jumping into the air. He investigated and found them after big, yellow-striped grasshoppers.

The same story is told of Mr. Nelson except that his hogs were so wild over the grasshoppers that he had to remove them to another field where the provender was not so plentiful, in order to prevent the hogs from running off the fat faster than he could put it on by heavy feeding.

The grasshoppers were as large as a man's thumb and were in such quantities that the hogs by exerting themselves could catch enough to make their efforts "worth while."—Indianapolis News.

LAUGH AT DEATH SENTENCE

Two Montreal Men Find Humor in Murder Verdict

Montreal, March 29.— When Fedor Belan and William Boycal were taken to their cells after having been sentenced to hang June 18 for the murder of Peter Shulman, they laughed loudly at their fate. The trial was a speedy one, commencing at 10 o'clock in the morning and concluding at six.

TORONTO'S TAX RATE

Toronto's tax rate for 1920 will be 30 1-2 mills on the dollar—that is, unless the city council succeeds in cutting off any further large amount from the estimates when they are taken up on Wednesday.

The rate last year was 28 1-2 mills, and had it not been for the salary increases this year, the 1920 rate would have been just one-half a mill higher than last year, or 29 mills.

A Business Puller

The Review circulates among the best homes and reaches the best of Peterboro's buying public.

There is nothing new about selling goods. The same methods are in vogue, with modern modifications, as existed a decade ago.

The sale of goods is attained by four methods---by advertising, by window dressing, by talking, by giving satisfaction.

Advertising is the chief of these methods because it carries to homes by the cheapest and surest method possible, information as to what you have to sell, and attracts that general attention to your business not otherwise obtainable.

The strong points of advertising are:
Persistency to assure returns.
Continuous and well-directed publicity.
A fair price for commensurate returns.
Quality of value as against mere size of circulation.

In connection with these four strong points of advertising The Review's columns offer space at fair rates based on the quality of its circulation, and the price and results will be found such as to confirm our claim that Advertising in The Review pays.

The readers of The Review are those who appreciate a dependable local newspaper, and whose trade spells "quality" and "cash."

We'll be pleased to talk it over you.

A Contract for systematic advertising in the Review means more business for you Mr. Business Man.

OBITUARY

REV. ALEX. SANDERSON.

The death occurred at his home at Madoc, Ont., on March 12, of Rev. Edward Alexander Sanderson, a retired Methodist minister of the Bay of Quinte Conference, aged 85 years. His wife, who was Miss Laura Allen, daughter of Dr. James Allen of Napanee, died several years ago. The surviving members of the family are: Rev. E. George Sanderson, D. D. of Wisconsin; Frank, retired school teacher of Madoc; Rev. Richard A. Sanderson, of Minneapolis; Dr. Arthur Sanderson, doctor of dentistry, Grand Forks, N.D.; Rev. Henry H. Sanderson, M. A., Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Maxwell Cromie and Mrs. James White of Smith township and Miss E. E. Sanderson of Madoc. The late Sandy Sanderson, G.T.R. engineer, who lived in Peterborough several years, was a son.

THOMAS BRUCE ROBERTSON.

Thomas Bruce Robertson, a returned veteran, passed away Saturday afternoon after an illness lasting since January last. Bruce was one of four brothers who went overseas to answer the call of their country. He went with the 93rd Battalion, enlisting in April, 1916, but was later transferred to the 87th Battalion, with which unit he served ten months in France. After being gassed during the famous Battle of Vimy Ridge on April 9, 1917, he was returned to Canada in October, 1918, and discharged as medically unfit. The other brothers who served overseas are Hugh Robertson, of the Labor Bureau, Peterborough, William, of Vancouver, and Robert, of Regina.

The deceased was a son of the late John Robertson and was born August 18, 1882, and since his return from the front had resided with his brother at 588 Bonacord street.

For some time before his enlistment Bruce Robertson was employed at the Peterborough Utilities Commission, and was well liked and held in the highest esteem by both his employers and fellow workers. He is survived by six brothers and three sisters.

He was a prominent member of the Great War Veterans' Association and a special meeting is being held tonight in order to arrange to have his remains interred with full military honors at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. Rev. James Rollins, pastor of St. Andrew's Church and chaplain of the Great War Veterans' Asociation, will conduct the services. The firing party, buglers, etc., will be named at the meeting tonight. The Great War Veterans' Band will be in attendance and will accompany the body to Little Lake Cemetery, where interment wil ltake place. (Motors.)

DEATH OF INFANT.

The death took place yesterday in St. Joseph's Hospital of the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Clancy, of Otonabee. The funeral took place this afternoon to St. Peter's Cemetery.

THE LATE ROBERT NEILL.

With impressive ceremony and attended by a large gathering of mourners the remains of the late Robert Neill were placed in their last resting place at Little Lake Cemetery this afternoon. Services at the house was conducted by Rev. F. E. Malott, pastor of Trinity Church, of which the late Mr. Neill was for many years a distinguished member, assisted by Rev. Dr. Shorey, formerly of Port Hope; Rev. H. M. Manning, and Rev. B. Greatrix, former pastor of St. James Methodist Church.

The Mayor and members of the City Council attended the funeral in a body and there were also present a large number of the manufacturers and merchants of the city to pay their last respects to such a highly respected citizen as the late Mr. Neill had always been.

The floral tributes were numerous and representative of almost every organization in the city, besides many from dividual friends of the deceased.

The pallbears were: Messrs. J. A. Thinn, Toronto; S. Neill, Toronto; N. Neill, Brantford; A. E. Gregory, Lindsay; B. F. Reesor, Toronto, and R. J. Kidd, Peterborough.

GRENFELL ASSOCIATION.

In order to stop Sunday fishing, the North of Scotland fish buyers, curers, and fishermen have unanimously agreed not to buy or sell herrings landed on Mondays.

GENERAL STATISTICS OF FORD PRODUCTION

GREAT QUANTITIES OF RAW MATERIAL ARE REQUIRED FOR AUTO BUILDING

Reports from Detroit indicate that the production of the Ford Motor Co. for the current fiscal year will be about 1,250,000 passenger cars, if the average for the first seven months is maintained.

Despite this output, unparalleled in the history of motor car manufacture, the Ford company last month had 223,492 unfilled orders on its books, he adds. Ford also expects to build 150,000 trucks during this fiscal year.

Based on a production of only 1,000,000 passenger cars a year, the following figures are cited:

More than 445,000 tons of steel required.

Some 140,000,000 square feet of rubber cloth material for tops.

Around 4,000,000 each of wheels and tires.

Over 3,000,000 lamps.

A total of 17,649,348 feet of vanadium steel shafting and axles.

Exactly 5,586,666 square feet of plate glass for windshields.

Around 14,333,333 pounds of steel for Ford magnetos.

About 34,264 miles of wiring used in magnetos.

Some 8,707,325 square feet of galvanized metal for gasoline tanks

About 34,044,969 feet of tubular rods.

Some 156,546 freight cars to handle material and product in addition to 79,534,404 pounds of material in less than car load shipments.

Approximately $15,000,000 profits shared annually with employes.

VETERANS' BAND IS WELL ABLE TO STAND ALONE

SUCH IS OPINION OF THE CANADIAN BANDSMAN AND ORCHESTRA JOURNAL

With reference to the band controversy in the City Council the following extract from a letter received by Secretary Whatley of the Great War Veterans' Association from the Canadian Bandsman and Orchestra Journal, will provide interesting reading:

"We have followed with interest the correspondence in the Peterborough papers about amalgamating the bands and making them into one While we do not know anything about local conditions, still we think that your G.W.V.A. band has made a name for itself which should enable it to stand by itself. We know that your appearance at the Toronto exhibition last year was very highly commented on."

MERCHANTS' BANK OPENS BRANCH IN COUNTRY

WILL GIVE SERVICE TO FARMERS AT FRASERVILLE ON SHIPPING DAYS

A sub office to the Peterborough branch of the Merchants Bank has been opened at Fraserville, with service on shipping days. This should prove to be a great convenience to the people of the district, as the lack of banking facilities has been felt somewhat keenly by the many farmers who ship from there.

The bank will be open two or three days a week and will cash all grain and stock cheques, and carry on a general banking business. In view of the advantageous location of Fraserville and amount of shipping that takes place from there, this branch of the bank should be quite successful

The services of a bank of the undoubted standing of the "Merchants" will no doubt be welcomed by the many who have occasion to transact business there.

It is understood that the branch at Fraserville will be in charge of Mr. Crawford, the Peterborough accountant, and will be open two or three days a week. Definite announcement as to days and hours will be made in a day or so.

SPLENDID MUSICALE AT CONSERVATORY HALL

WOMEN'S ART ASSOCIATION GAVE ONE OF BEST ENTERTAINMENTS OF SEASON

A delightful musical event took place at the Conservatory of Music, under the auspices of the Woman's Art Association on Saturday afternoon, when the members and their friends were entertained by a corterie of Toronto artists. The most largely attended event of its class this season, all present were enthusiastic in their appreciation of the different numbers, and many congratulations were extended to Mrs. Edward Howard Wood, the lady whose good fortune it was to secure the entertainers and especially the brilliant pianist, Miss Dowsley, A.T.C.M.

Miss Dowsley pleased the crowd immensely with an unusual beauty of expression, and a mastery of tone and technique that was truly admirable. Recalled again and again, she responded each time with the utmost good-will.

Mr. P. A. Matthews as soloist soon made friends with his audience, by reason of an exceptionally beautiful voice of fine timbre and notable power of expression. Another entertainer was well received and deservedly so was Mrs. McDonald, a singer with a sweet and clear soprano voice.

A number by this artist, which created a profound impression, was the song, "When You Are Near."

After the program a dainty tea was served, the decorative appointments being carried out harmoniously.

The Program.

God Save the King!

Parter (Losti)—Mr. P. A. Matthews.

Liebstraline (A. B. Liszt)—Miss Maud Dowsley.

Love's Wondrous Garden (Walter Lewis)—Mrs. McDonald.

Intermezzo (Diemer); Barcorolle's Tale of Hoffman—Miss Dowsley.

I hear a Thrush at Eve (Cadman)—Mr. Matthews.

When You Are Near—Mrs. McDonald.

Hark! Hark! the Lark (Shubert Littoif-Tiszt)—Miss Dowsley.

My Task—Mr. Matthews.

APARTMENTS FIND FAVOR

Cost of Building Separate Houses Too High in London.

London, Ont., March 29. — The London Chamber of Commerce through its Members' Council, will probably assist in the proposal of the London Housing Commission to erect apartments to be rented to workingmen at rentals they can pay. The scheme finds general favor in this city, owing to the fact that construction costs have advanced so that it is well-nigh impossible for the average workingman to buy even a cottage under the Provincial Housing Act, and rentals of houses are constantly climbing. The land lords points out that London's tax rate and special charges against property are now totalling close to six per cent. on the assessment. Year after year the assessments are going up, and the addition seven and a half mills were added to the tax rate by this year's City Council. Further, the Dominion Government exacts four yer cent. on net rentals, and, according to the men who have houses to rent, the end of the high rents is not in sight. One real estate man stated that repairs are growing so costly, that this item alone means a further boost in rents shortly.

MONEY FOR REFERENDUMS

Parliament Has Voted Half Million to Decide Temperance Issue.

Ottawa, March 29.— The Government has placed $500 000 in the main estimates for the taking of prohibition referendums in the various provinces, but Quebec, will take advantage of the new Dominion law, which enables Provinces to practically go bone dry. Ontario and Manitoba have already intimated that they will request a plebiscite.

HO, FOR THE LIFE OF SALVATION OFFICER

IT MAY NOT BE ALL ROSES BUT IT CERTAINLY FURNISHES VARIETY

Ho, for the life of a Salvation Army officer.

Though it isn't all roses—no, indeed—it is variety.

Nor can the experiences of one be taken as the example of the experiences of all. Suffice it to say, there are some who have had and others who are now experiencing a life devoid of monotony, full to the brim of new situations, new conditions, new scenes of activity.

Talk for a while with Brigadier Morris! From the scenes of the gold rush days of the Yukon to those of today in peaceful Toronto; from the office of "Great Chief" in Alaska to organization work on the Skeena River settlements; from canoe trips through Canada's northern rivers to participation in the second largest mercantile marine disaster in history—such and more has been his lot.

An Interesting Life

After twenty-eight years of Salvation Army service, this particular officer looks back on a period intensely exciting, wonderfully intresting and splendidly sacrificial. 'A life devoted to the cause of humanity in the Salvation Army is a life offered for service in any part of the world. During Brigadier Morris' tenure he has seen life with its adventures as few people have been privileged to do.

Back in the days of the flourishing Yukon, when the men staked their all on finding the precious metal, when from all parts of the world men from every walk in life sped northward, Brigadier Morris asked permission to go. With seven officers and two nurses the party set off. They were the first to represent the Salvation Army up there.

Stayed Three Winters.

They stayed three winters. The experiences of those years would fill a book. They were the days of which Robert Service wrote. This work completed, the officer returned to Headquarters and became assistant editor of the War Cry. In a short while he was travelling again. His goal was Alaska. Here the Salvation Army officer is known as the "Great Chief." Next he is found at Glen Vowell, then Andimaul, on the Skeena River. Here he had charge of an Indian Salvation Army village.

Back To Ontario.

Back to Ontario he comes in time to prepare for the great conference in London in 1914. Then, the colossal experience! The Empress of Ireland. And if the story of this catastrophe could be told without bringing to mind the sorrow it caused, the telling would require a long article to itself.

Now, you will find Brigadier Morris in the third post in Salvation Army service in this territory—field secretary. Backed by his years of thrilling adventures, backed by his knowledge of human nature in any sphere of life, he is admirably suited for the position.

Such is the experience in twenty-eight years of a Salvation Army officer.

Monotonous? Well, hardly.

SPECIAL SERVICES IN TRINITY CHURCH

REV. J. A. McKENZEI WILL BE THE SPEAKER AT TONIGHT'S MEETING

Special services will be held in Trinity Church the first four nights of this week. Rev. J. A. McKenzie, B.A., of Knox Church, will be the speaker tonight. Tomorrow night the Rev. A. J. Thomas, M.A., B.A., will speak. On Wednesday night Rev. P. H. Neville and on Thursday night the Rev. H. M. Manning will be the speakers. The choir will lead the singing.

The pastor of the church, Rev. F. E. Malott, will give a connected series of brief bible readings.

These meetings will be full of inspiration and help and will be open to all. Those who are not connected with any church are especially invited. A reception for new members will be held on Thursday night in preparation for the communion service on Easter Sunday morning. The meetings will begin at 8 p.m. sharp. It is hoped that every member of Trinity Church will be loyal in this work.

HOME RULE BILL IS ATTACKED BY THE EX-PREMIER

MR. ASQUITH SAYS HE IS SILL FOR HIS OWN MEASURE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 30.—Herbert Asquith in the Commons today described the Irish Home Rule Bill as a "cumbrous duplication and multiplication of institutions and offices," adding that from the viewpoint of efficiency there is nothing to be said for it. Mr. Asquith recalled that in 1914 he gave a pledge that Ireland should have one parliament and declared that he adhered to that view now. He disagreed with those who believed there could be no constitutional changes until order had been restored, and asserted that the root of the trouble could not be got at until there was a wide reform in the Government's system.

Bonar Law Replies

Bonar Law followed Mr. Asquith, declaring that if the Liberal leader proposed to amend the existing law, as he indicated, his proposal would be condemned as unanimously by the representatives of southern Ireland as is the present bill. The Government leader said that no bill was the result of free choice on the Government's part. It recognized that when the last of the peace treaty was signed, the existing law wod Irish Home Rule would become effective. This would have meant that Ulster would be forced to join Dublin in a Parliament against its will, something which the Government would not attempt to carry through. He declared the Government in the present bill intended to give Ireland the largest measure of Home Rule compatible with national security and the pledges that had been given.

EXCHANGE RATES TODAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, March 30.—Exchange rates were substantially lower at the opening of the market here today. Demand sterling opened at $3.85¼, or 3¼ cents below yesterday's close. The Canadian dollar was quoted at 91.75.

WARING FACTIONS COME TO TERMS IN RUHR DISTRICT

ONLY ONE QUESTION, SURRENDER OF ARMS BY REBELS IN DISPUTE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Essen March 30.—All stipulations of the Berlin Government relative to cessation of fighting and the maintainance of order in the Ruhr district have been accepted with one exception by the Central Committee in charge of the Anti-Government operations here, according to notifications sent to Berlin last night. Exception was taken in reference to the fourth condition, referring to the surrender of arms and ammunition. The Government in sending its ultimatum to the Communitsts in Ruhr district, stipulated its conditions must be accepted by today.

RUSSIA WILL MA PEACE WITH POLAND

SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER SIGNIFIES HIS WILLINGNESS FOR NEGOTIATIONS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 30.—George Tchitcherin, Russian Soviet foreign minister, has notified Poland of his willingness to open peace negotiations on April 10th, as Poland had suggested, according to a Moscow wireless message otday. Tchitcherin suggests the meeting be held somewhere in Esthonia.

All the passengers of the British steamer Ortega have been landed at Fishguard.

LOCAL MANUFACTURERS FORMALLY AFFILIATED WITH THE C. M. A.

J.E. Walsh, General Manager and H. MacDonald, Secretary of Ontario Branch Spoke at Banquet in Empress Hotel Last Night—Movement Starts Off With Every Prospect of Success.

Last night at a banquet at the Empress Hotel, the Peterborough Manufacturers' Association was formerly affiliated with the Canadian Manufacturers' Associaton, Ontario Division. Among the guests present on this auspicious occasion were Mr. J. E. Walsh, General Manager of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association of Toronto and Mr. H. MacDonald, Secretary of the Ontario Division. The chair was occupied by Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, President of the Peterborough Manufacturers' Association. The dinner itself was quite an informal affair, the only toast being that to the King.

In introducing the speakers, the chairman spoke of the benefits of the association as his own company had found them, declaring that it had saved them thousands of dollars during the 20 years membership. Six months ago Mr. E. G. Patterson and the speaker went to Toronto to take up the matter of affiliation with the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and he was glad that the time had now arrived when this had been effected. New industries had been coming to the city and it had been necessary to put on a campaign which resulted in putting the city in the one hundred per cent class again. He then called upon Mr. J. E. Walsh to outline the work of the Association.

Mr. Walsh's Address.

Mr. Walsh stated that he appreciated being invited to Peterborough upon such an occasion and he was glad to be able to say that Peterborough had set the example to all other branches in the percentage of membership. He had pointed this fact out when he visited the different branches all over Canada. It was also pleasing to know that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at such a time as the present was stronger today than it had ever been before. It was just as strong in Halifax and Vancouver as it was in the centre of the country. Three years ago when he accompanied the former president of the association on a mission to the West with reference to transportation there were eighteen members of the association in Vancouver and the vicinity. Today there were 160 members in Vancouver alone and in this connection it would be interesting to know that the annual convention of the Association would be held in Vancouver next June.

Dates From 1882.

The C. M. A. was started in 1882 and from then until 1899 there were two separate organizations, one in Ontario and the other in Quebec, with Toronto and Montreal as the headquarters. He had in his possession a report of conditions in 1875 and he could see from that report that the same problems confronted the country then as they did today. In 1899 the two organizations amalgamated with a membership of 300. Incorporation took place in 1903. The main question before the Association then was the tariff. In 1904 the transportation department was formed following an Act of Parliament. All would agree that questions of transportation had to be watched very closely. One of the benefits which the members had derived from this department was connected with the bill of lading. There were at first 27 clauses or conditions printed on the back, all of a negative character. By means of negotiations by the transportation department these had been changed to nine affirmative clauses. Other outstanding legislation had been effected switching and interswitching. Few realized the importance of the improvements secured in this regard. Then there was the insurance department which after many changes and improvements was now in a position to give advice on this subject. Shortly after this the tariff department of which Mr. Bristol was the present manager, was organized. Previous to taking over his posi-

WAVE OF PESSIMISM HAS SWEPT OVER AUSTRIA; FAMINE IS IN SIGHT

Agents Who Went to Paris for Food Supplies Return With Empty Hands and American Loan Has Been Delayed.

(By Associated Press)

Vienna, March 30.— A wave of pessimism has swept over the country since Baron Koranyi, Minister of Finance, and the Food Controller returned from Paris with empty hands except for some small food credits. Newspapers express regret at the delay of the hoped for American loan and publish warnings of approaching exhaustion of food supplies and of another crisis.

Depression prevails in business circles. Manufacturers declare that these driblets of loans for food purchase are futile and that only credits sufficiently large to enable business to get on its feet by the purchase of coal and raw materials will postpone the complete breakdown of Austria.

One of the basic causes of the country's paralysis is lack of coal due to failure of the coal supplying countries to live up to their agreements. For this reason industries lie idle.

Austria's natural and logical coal supply lies in Bohemia and Prussia or Upper Silesia. Under present arrangements coal is secured, when there is of it, under agreements between state governments and upon arrival here is distributed by government officials. The supply is so small that virtually all of it is needed for limited railway operation, the gas and electric plants and limited private domestic use.

None remains for industries and no factories except those producing the necessities of life are in constant operation. For instance, the great Floridsdorf locomotive works, with a capacity of 150 locomotives a year have been idle for four weeks while all Europe is crying for railway motive power. The demand for freight cars is insistent and yet the Graz car factory with a potential capacity of 300 cars a month produces less than fifty because coal is not to be had and consequently they cannot secure wheels, axles and structural iron for bodies.

Vienna is surrounded with a forest of factory stacks. Blue smoke issues from few of them. This has been true ever since the revolution fifteen months ago. Manufacturers say that if coal can be assured in sufficient quantities, they will manage to find raw materials enough to start with and slowly build up credits for more.

Commission after commission has vainly tried to obtain delivery of the coal for which contracts were made with Czecho-Slovakia. The reason for this failure is unknown here. One expert says that unless Austria is allowed to get coal from the Upper Silesian fields, whence has always come the bulk of Austria's supply, her population must be deported or the country will perish under starvation and anarchy. This solution, he says lies in the hands of the powers.

DEATH FOR EMBEZZLER

Officer Who Stole Money From Regiment Forfeits His Life.

(By Associated Press)

Warsaw, March 30.— Lieut Stanislaw Zebrowski, of the Polish army tried by court martial and found guilty of a charge of having misappropriated 10,000 marks belonging to his regiment, has been sentenced to be shot, it was announced recently. At the present rate of exchange, 10,000 marks is the equivalent of about 185 in Canadian money. The prosecution contended at the hearing that Zebrowski had lost the money betting on horse races.

RAILWAY RATES MUST BE RAISED TO BREAK EVEN

NATIONAL SYSTEM SHOWS A DEFICIT OF OVER THIRTY MILLION DOLLARS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 30—Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways, will lay before the House this afternoon the first annual statement of the Canadian National Railways System. The statement, it is understood, will present in detail the result of the operations on all the Government lines, so far as the public is concerned.

Probably the most important question with which Dr. Reid will deal will be that of increases in railway rates. He will present the views of the management of the C. N. R. in this regard and also his own as Minister of Railways. The railway budget, it is understood, will show a total deficit during the year, including fixed charges, of rather more than thirty million dollars.

GERMANS WILLING TO OBSERVE TERMS OF PEACE TREATY

WILL NOT SEND TO RUHR MORE TROOPS THAN ALLIES PERMIT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 30.— Assurances have been given by the German Government that it will not send into the Ruhr Valley more regular troops than are allowed by the terms of the Versailles treaty. A German delegation called on Premier Millerand last night, and told him that troops in the Ruhr district did not exceed the number allowed and declared that no such troops would be sent there without authorization from the Allies.

WILL CONSULT PREMIER ON HIS TRIP TO SOUTH

MR. A. CALDER HAS IMPORTANT MATTERS TO PUT BEFORE SIR ROBERT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 30.— It is stated in well informed circles that Hon J. A. Calder, who has gone south, will make his ourney serve a double purpose, in that, while recuperating after his recent illness, he will place several questions before Sir Robert Borden, for his decision. Among these it is said, are certain clauses of the Franchise Act, which the Government has intimated it is willing to change; the question of a naval policy and proposed taxation to be outlined when Sir Henry Drayton makes his maiden budget speech.

STRONGEST UNION IN PETERBORO

That is Claim Made on Behalf of Machine Gun Section

There will be an inspection of "C" Company, 4th Canadian Machine Gun Brigade, at the Armories tomorrow night at 7:30. It was expected that Brigadier-Gen. Williams would be present for the inspection, but a later announcement received stated that Col. Walker, officer commanding the Machine Gun Corps, would come in his place and would be accompanied by Col. Craig, officer commanding 4th Machine Gun Brigade. Despite the fact that the local company has been organised only since December last, they look forward to the inspection tomorrow with every confidence of making a creditable turnout. The O. C. of the company stated this afternoon that the Machine Gun Company was the strongest unit in Peterborough.

PETERBORO ON EVE OF GREATEST BOOM IN INDUSTRIAL HISTORY

Nearly Every Manufacturing Plant in City Making Extensions to its Works, and Many New Ones in Process of Construction—American Firms Favor Peterboro Above all Ontario Cities.

The indications today are that the city of Peterborough is in for one of the biggest booms in its history during the next few months. Practically all factories in the city have either just completed extensive additions to their plants or else are contemplating doing so in the very near future. The talk of an expected "break" seems to have dropped altogether. Last night at the Manufacturers' banquet a prominent local industrial magnate was heard to say, "At first I looked for the break in two months, then I expected it come in the middle of next summer, but now I don't see how it can come at all."

The world shortage of material of all kinds it is expected will practically assure prosperity for at least several years to come. In Peterborough this prosperity is more marked than in almost any other city in the Dominion. Tall factory chimneys are rising to the clouds in almost no time and factory premises are rising to the clouds in almost no time and factory premises are growing into being where a few months before there was nothing but the green fields.

The C. G. E. Extension.

Looming largest of all is the work proposed by the Canadian General lectric Company, and upon which the recent bylaw was voted. It was a straight question of do you want a big factory extension in the city or do you not and the voters said they did. The result will be that additions will be erected to the C.G.E. plant covering a floor space of 108,-040 square feet, and running into many hundreds of dollars in cost. The increase in the monthly pay roll will be tremendous and in this regard it is well to point out that the advantages do not stop right here. With the increased pay roll there will be the increased trade for the merchants and general advantages all round.

American Firm Coming.

One of the most promising incidents in connection with the city's industrial expansion is that in the past six months no less than four larger American firms has established or made arrangements to establish branch factories in this city. They are the Alladin Company, the Canadian Nashua Paper Company, Western Clock Company and the Raybestos Company. All these companies are extensive advertisers in all of the leading publications and in their advertising they will write the name of Peterborough in large letters all over the United States. The Canadian Nashua Paper Company are now setting up their machinery and expect to be running strong in their premises on Aylmer street in the very near future.

The Aladdin Company's Plant.

The new building of the Aladdin Company is nearing completion. It was to have been completed by the end of this month, but although there has been a little delay it is expected that the factory will be in running order and employing a number of hands within the next few weeks. They will manufacture ready-cut houses, for which there is a great demand all over the country and the very nature of their product is a guarantee of their continued prosperity for several years to come at least.

The Latest Addition.

The latest of the American firms to establish in Peterborough is the Raybestos Company of Bridgeport, Conn. This firm is already well known to Canadians on account of its extensive advertising in the Saturday Evening Post, probably the most expensive advertising medium in America. This firm will take over the old Lundy Shovel and Tool building, which is a large building covering floor space of 280 by 68 feet. They expect to spend about $15,000 improving the building before they start operations. This firm manufactures brake and clutch linings for automobiles and has very rosy prospects for the future. It will be necessary to pass a bylaw granting a fixed assessment before this firm makes any final arrangements to come to Peterborough, but in view of the results of the recent bylaw and the advantage to be gained, it is not expected that there will be any serious opposition to the passing of the measure. The Weston Clock Co. commenced building a plan in this city last fall and they are now in active operation manufacturing clocks and watches and employing a large number of hands.

Peterborough Cereal.

The Peterborough Cereal Company completed large extensions last fall and they are now in operation. The Canadian Woollen Mills also completed large extensions to their Auburn plant and the Bonner-Worth

NAME OF 57TH REGIMENT IS CHANGED

This Military Unit, Affiliated With 2nd Battalion to be Known as Peterborough Rangers.

Col. Clegg has received notification to the effect that the war trophies which had been earmarked for the Second Battalion, C. E. F., will be sent to Peterborough, as also will the colors of that battalion. Under the reorganization of the Canadian Militia which has taken place since the war, the 57th Regiment ceases to exist, and this organization will henceforth be known as the Peterborough Rangers affiliated with the Second Battalion of the C. E. F. This is a great honor to the city of Peterborough, as the Second Battalion was the second senior infantry unit in the Canadian Army Corps and won great renown durin the war.

It is understood that it is to be the general policy all through the Dominion to drop the numbers by which the militia regiments have hitherto been known and to designate them by names, such as the Peterborough Rangers.

The first orders of the new organization are as follows:

Daily Orders, Part 1, No. 1, by
Lt. Col. F. R. Clegg, [illegible]
"The Peterborough Rangers"
30th March 1920
Extracts C.E.F. Routine Orders
No. [illegible] 10-1-20
Re-organization of the active militia Non-permanent procedure.

(a) A commanding officer, preferably with overseas service, and after due consultation with the old officers of the corps (overseas and militia) will be selected and gazetted to command.

(b) The new commanding officer will prepare a new slate of officers with due regard to war service, previous militia service, and qualifications, and will forward recommendations for the disposal of all officers on the strength not included in the carde.

(c) On receipt and approval of above, a general order will be issued disbanding the Regiment as of a certain date (for purpose of re-organisation.)

(d) This disbandment order will clear the situation, render free action in making new appointments and adjusting seniority, and will force decisions in the case of all officers on present strength who are not receiving appointments to the re-organized unit, by transfer to another unit, appointments to the corps reserve, or the reserve of officers, Canadian Militia, as otherwise, they automatically cease to be officers of the active militia (see K. R. Can. 280.)

(e) Amendments H. Q. 7-1-7., 17-1-20.

Those officers without C. E. F. service will be appointed to the reserve of officers C. M. in accordance with

DENMARK,S KING ISSUES DEFI TO THE RADICALS

REFUSES TO COMPLY WITH DEMAND MADE FOR REFORM.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, March 30. — King Christian announced today his refusal to comply with the ultimatum of the Social Democrats demanding the reinstatement of the Zahle ministry, dismissed by the king, and the other action demanded in connection with the Government crisis. The demand was made under a threat that the Danish trade unions would meet today with a view to declaring a general strike if the throne did not comply. The action demanded included the immediate summoning of the Rigsdag and the restoration of constitutional conditions.

158 LIVES LOST IN TORNADO OF SUNDAY LAST

FURTHER REPORTS MAY INCREASE LIST—PROPERTY LOSS MANY MILLIONS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, March 30. — The death toll of Sunday's tornado, which ripped a path of destruction through eight States, at noon today stood at one hundred and fifty-eight, with the fear expressed that reports from isolated districts might increase the total. Relief measures for the thousands of injured and homeless were well under way.

Reports by States today gave the number of deaths as follows: Indiana, 36; Illinois, 27; Ohio, 26; Michigan, 12; Georgia, 38; Alabama, 17; Missouri, 1; Wisconsin, 1.

Wire communication in the affected areas was being restored, and this was expected to aid in clearing up the extent of the destruction and the total number of those who lost their lives. No accurate estimate of the total property damage, which runs into millions, had been made today. In Illinois it was estimated that the material loss was $6,000,000; in Western Ohio $2,000,000; in Michigan $2,000,000, and in Georgia more than $1,000,000.

PRICE OF POTATOES NOW WORRIES HOUSEWIVES

UP TO $1.20 A PECK IN SOME TORONTO STORES— MANY FROZEN IN PITS

The price of potatoes is worrying the Toronto housewife today just about as much as the other Irish question is perplexing her husband.

The potato price in some of the uptown stores reached the high mark of $1.20 a peck on Saturday—which is equal to $7.20 a bag.

Farmers up the country are selling them to the dealers at $3 and $3.50 a bag, according to a farmer who was interviewed by a Toronto paper.

Market gardeners who deal directly with the consumer were selling at 80 cents a peck on Saturday—a big cut on the retail store price.

One of the market gardeners told the Toronto paper that the price was not likely to drop soon because it was found that a great portion of the potatoes in the pits had been found to be frozen. The heavy frost of the winter had nipped them.

"And some of them were frozen last fall before they were dug up," said another farmer.

TUESDAY, MARCH 30, 1920.

A SANE METHOD OF DAYLIGHT SAVING.

THERE IS NOTHING in the law or the prophets to prevent people from going to work at any hour in the morning they may choose, unless it be in the case of women and children, and this is a matter that could be easily disposed of by legislative action. It is now suggested that Peterborough adopt the practice of rising and going to work one hour earlier during the summer months and quitting at 5 p.m., without changing the clocks. This would attain the results in view without confusing the situation. For one thing, the person who wishes to take a train will be able to do so without first wrestling with a problem in mental arithmetic. Every man should play fair with himself, at least, and not try to believe that it is seven o'clock when the reckoning is one hour off.

The State of New York enacted daylight saving, the new time going into effect yesterday. After one day's trial, the railways still working on standard time, the Senate has repealed the Act.

THE SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

THE ONTARIO Legislature has been in session since March 9, and the members are still wrestling with the Speech from the Throne. That means that no real progress has been made by the lawmakers. They are practically just where they were when they first heard the carefully prepared document read by the Lieutenant Governor. The straw that the spell-binders in the House are flailing so industriously now must be submitted to the same tiresome process later on when the various matters mentioned in the Speech come up for separate consideration.

The Speech from the Throne is supposed to be an announcement of the policy of the Government, an enumeration of the more important measures which it is proposed to introduce. As such it is necessary. But it is always diverted from its purpose and made the text for what is nothing more nor less than so much party oratory. The Speech could well be received without comment. All this eloquence could then be flashed upon the public when each separate item mentioned was being considered. As it is now the legislators are simply duplicating effort and wasting energy. So many of them appear to be of the conviction that they were elected to talk and that they earn their indemnity best by wasting the time of the Province.

In every legislative body the Speech from the Throne in one form or another is a feature of the proceedings. The warden of the county council and the mayor of a city are not denied the privilege of making annual addresses which are supposed to outline the program for the year. The members of these bodies listen with exemplary patience and respect to these announcements and let it go at that. They do not, as a rule, proceed to tear the address into shreds and convince warden or mayor that he is etnirely off the track, that his election to the highly honorable office which he holds was all a mistake that would be rectified on the first opportunity. The opportunities for criticism of any line of policy come later in the proceedings.

There is talk at Toronto of abolishing the Speech from the Throne altogether, but it has become a fixture in the parliaments of all civilized countries and is likely to remain so. In Canada alone has it been made the excuse for exasperating delay and inexcusable waste of the public's time. When it is permitted to hold its proper place, all objection to it as a time-honored institution and a necessary part of the legislative program will disappear.

STATES REPUDIATE THEIR DEBTS.

THE ANNUAL REPORT of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders just issued in London contains the following startling information:

> "It is indeed regrettable that these States of a nation whose credit leads the world should allow their obligations to continue in default and refuse to listen to appeals from their creditors. The council would be glad to hear what arguments can possibly be adduced in extenuation of the conduct of Mississippi in repudiating the payment of its loans of 1831 and 1833, which were duly authorized by the State Legislature and were issued at a high price in this country.
>
> "The State invested the proceeds in the establishment of two banks and so long as they prospered Mississippi paid the bondholders, but when the banks ceased to be profitable the State not only suspended payment but actually repudiated its debt. Such a step has not been taken even by so backward a country as Honduras."
>
> The corporation's "blacklist" shows the approximate principal outstanding to be £1,746,000,000, and the approximate interest in arrears £162,000,000. As regards back interest, if the Southern States of America are left out of account, Honduras comes second in arrears, being rather more than four times the principal of £5,398,000. Honduras has now entered on the forty-seventh year of uninterrupted default.

The States referred to are part of a country the people of which appear to worry lest England repudiates the debts incurred when loans were contracted and credit secured from the United States during the war. It is, perhaps, only natural for one country to suspect another of business methods which it has itself adopted.

But England will not repudiate any debt honestly contracted, but will discharge her obligations to the last farthing. That is her reputation in the commercial world. Her word is still as good as the gold itself. She would not refuse payment, from principle alone, and there is no necessity for such action. Financial experts in Great Britain have no difficulty in demonstrating that she is not only solvent, but is better off financially today than she has been at any period of her history. She carried the heavy end of the war burden for four years, and loaned to her allies in Europe vastly greater sums than she secured from the United States.

During the period of reconstruction following the American Civil War, the Northern States, assuming sovereignty over the conquered South, raised money on the credit of the former slave states in order to pay the high cost of the carpet-bag government that was established in each of them, and following this came a regime of graft and official extravagance beyond all former dreams of dishonest politics. Some of the States, restored to their former status, have repudiated these obligations on the ground that they had no part in contracting the debts. There may be logic in such an attitude, but there would appear to be none in the action of the States referred to in the annual report, an extract from which is given above.

LADY ASTOR'S REVERSE.

LADY ASTOR may have failed in her attempt to have the Equal Suffrage Act amended by the British Commons by having the age at which a woman can vote changed from 30 to 21 years, but she has at least won what may best be described as a moral triumph. She has at least asserted the rights of her sex. The provision as to age contained in the Act in question is a crude and discriminating piece of legislation which any fair-minded man should be ashamed to support.

The provision referred to demonstrates the sublime egotism of the average male mortal, the self-assurance with which he deludes himself into the belief that he is one of the lords of creation, a being physically and intellectually the superior of the members of the weaker sex. It is also an outstanding example of a shallow political artifice. According to masculine logic, single women especially will be averse to making the public admission that they have attained the age of 30 years, and this, it is hoped, will keep down the supply of women voters.

Why should a man be considered qualified to vote at 21 while a woman has not attained the essential intellectual standard until she is 30? The female of the species attains maturity, intellectually and physically, before the male. A woman is regarded as reaching her majority at 18. When she is 14 she is legally supposed to be able to protect her own moral safety. However, in England the impression prevails that she knows nothing of public affairs, has no ideas on the question of political probity, until she is 30.

INTEREST TURNS TO PROBABLE USE OF MOTOR BUSSES IN NUMEROUS CITIES

One Automobile Official Declares Street Railways Will be Obsolete Within Fifteen Years—New Bus Model Has Seats for Sixty Passengers.

Considerable discussion is being heard in many cities regarding the prospects of early adoption of motor bus systems to replace or relieve existing street railways. Action has already been taken in a number of cities in the United States, a New York committee having just made a report of estimated expenditure for the creation of a motor bus feature by the municipality. Another indication of the trend is the action taken by merchants and property-holders along Broadway in signing a petition for the removal entirely of trolley rails along that thoroughfare. In other words, the time has come when the existence of a street car line is considered a nuisance. Chicago has made a great success of the motor bus operation. It is also worthy of mention that an automobile official has prophesied [illegible] street railways will become obsolete within 15 years, and that the popular form of common carrier before many years will be the railless motor bus.

All this is very interesting in view of the fact that street railway franchises in various Canadian cities will be expiring in a year or two, and that the municipalities concerned will probably take over the local trolley systems. At the same time, it is not unlikely that the street railway companies may turn to the operation of motor busses just as soon as they have sold their rail systems to a city. In this way the private corporation would be in a position to compete in a formidable manner against its former street railway, in which case the city might find itself with a white elephant on its hands.

Start Where Rails Stop.

The motorbus is no longer a doubtful success. The Fifth avenue busses in New York have been operating for years and in competition with surface trolley lines, elevated railways and subways. Hundreds of thousands of Canadians have seen the London busses. Western cities have made good use of busses which have been used to augment existing car lines or to compete with the rail systems. In some instances, the gasoline-propelled vehicles start where the rails stop and passengers on street cars are permitted to transfer to the busses, using an ordinary transfer for the purpose.

Motor omnibusses have been operated in all kinds of weather and in all seasons with success and the type of vehicle in itself has been developed mechanically to the point where it is reliable and enduring. Some of the new busses will carry as many passengers as some models of street cars, thanks to a double-deck arrangement. The upper deck of the new bus models are entirely enclosed and the upper floor is preferred by many passengers at all times.

Floor is Very Low.

Like the older type of bus, the new vehicle in use in Chicago has the front-wheel drive, the floor on a level with the curbing for convenience and speed in taking on and off passengers and the covered straight stairway in the rear which is safer than the winding and exposed one. Instead of the twenty-five enclosed downstairs seats on the older style bus available in bad weather there are sixty, which means that had the newer style bus been in service from January 1 to August 31, 1919, instead of the old ones, 733,557 more passengers would have been carried, meaning an approximate increase of earnings amounting to $73,355. During that period of time the Chicago Motor Bus Company carried in its busses ofb fifty-one passenger capacity—twenty-five seats below and twenty-six above—4,106,208 persons and 53,027 round trips. When the company began business on March 25, 1917, it had nine busses and averaged daily 2,229 passengers. This number increased with the addition of more busses and with the growth of the motor bus idea of travel until in August, 1917, it was 18,034. The cost of operating this fifty-one passenger bus averaged in December, 1917, twenty-nine cents a mile. Designers of the sixty passenger closed top car declare that the increase in operating cost is negligible.

Heated By Exhaust.

The designers based their general ideas of construction on the old bus which in itself is radical when it is realised that all the other motor busses in operation in the United States seat only forty-four passengers. The fifty-one passenger busses had their test and proving by 2,500,000 miles of actual service in Chicago, and this experience was utilised to great advantage by the designers of the new bus. The length of it is twenty-five feet and six inches; the width, seven feet and six inches, while the height from the roadway, when loaded, is thirteen feet. It has a wheel base of 176 inches; height of lower deck from roadway twelve and three-quarter inches; height of upper deck from roadway is eighty-six inches when loaded. Both decks are lighted by a generator driven by the engine whereas the heat is supplied by deodorised exhaust gases from the engine. The front tires are six-inch single style and the rear ones are double with a total tread of twelve inches. The power plant is the A. M. B. C. standard type of front-wheel drive, made into a detachable unit with constant mesh transmission. The brakes on the rear wheels are placed so as to be applied approximately to 500 square inches of braking surface.

Forty-one Windows.

However, the covered upper deck with its forty-one windows is the principal feature. Of course, this is made possible by the front-wheel propulsion and consequent low hanging body enabling the cover to easily clear elevated structures under which it must pass. The Chicago Company expects to install these vehicles as rapidly as they can be built. Designers of this bus believe it is the last word in bus construction and that it offers a solution of traction difficulties. Just at this time when the motor bus is coming to the fore as the most feasible means of city transportation the operation of this new type will be watched by motorists all over the country with great interest.

THE LAWYERS CHUCKLE, WHY?

(Farm and Dairy.)

The Ontario Government has engaged J. G. Elliott, ex-M.P.P., of Middlesex County, to render legal advice to the government in its business of law making and law administration. Hon. Mr. Raney, as the only lawyer in the cabinet, has found the work of dispensing legal information to all the ministers too onerous a task for any one man. And now, we are informed, the lawyers all over the province are chuckling. They enjoy the spectacle of the farmers, who claimed there were too many lawyers in the Legislature, being obliged to create a salaried position for the indispensible lawyer. "Why not elect lawyers and save the expense of hiring legal talent?" queries one of our city contemporaries.

Our legal friends are not as logical in their stand as members of that fraternity might be expected to be. The Government is under the necessity of consulting experts in road building, construction work, forestry, colonization and kindred problems. It has never been suggested that we fill the House with engineers in order to get expert advice on these problems free of charge. And if the Government is to engage expert advice from the engineering and kindred professions, why not from the legal profession as well? The Ontario Government is following the logical course, but lawyers would probably prefer to make the laws as well as interpret them. Farmers will continue to believe that rural constituencies are best represented by working farmers and will be quite content to let the Government hire its legal advice even as they themselves have to do.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

Whether his actual exhibits were wonderful or not, P. T. Barnum was always supreme in the skill with which he drew public attention to them. And much of his most adroit advertising, so far from involving any large expenditure, cost him little or nothing.

A characteristic example was his request, in the summer of 1842, to the authorities of St. Paul's Church, New York, to allow him to run a line from the front of his museum to one of the trees in the churchyard. It was, of course, indignantly refused. Nevertheless, on the night of July 3 Barnum ran the line and floated from it a number of the biggest American flags he could find. Early the next morning he was visited by a vestryman who demanded that the rope be at once cut or removed, and threatened, if he declined, to cut down the offending decoration with his own hands. In presence of a crowd of sightseers that had already assembled, Barnum pulled off his coat and, putting up his hands in belligerent fashion, declared: "Well, mister, I should just like to see you dare to cut down the American flag on the 4th of July." The crowd was almost ready to lynch the man who talked of cutting down the National flag on Independence Day, and the attendance at the museum before the evening made a new record.

VICTORY LOAN ESSAY WRITERS GET PRIZES

LIEUT.-GOVERNOR DISTRIBUTED THEM AMONG PROVINCIAL WINNERS

Toronto, March 30.—At the Parliament Buildings this afternoon the Lieutenant-Governor presented the prizes to the winners in two Victory Loan Essay Competitions,—one for the Province, held under the direction of Mr. F. J. Coombes, chairman of the Victory Loan Publicity Committee, and the other for the City of Toronto, under the supervision of Dr. Abbott, of Toronto University.

The first competition was open to all high and continuation schools in the Province. Each school examined the essays of their pupils and sent in those they adjudged the best. The Toronto Publicity Committee held a separate competition for the city, and the prize winners competed with the outside schools. Three Toronto students gained prizes in each section.

The results are as follows:

Province of Ontario.

Upper School, 1st prize, Leslie McFarlane, Halleybury, H. S.; 2nd prize Morley Irwin Doxsee, University of Toronto Shools.

Middle Schools, 1st prize, Harry Alexander Stark, University of Toronto schools; 2nd prize, Gordon D Watson, De La Salle Collegiate, 69 Bond street, Toronto.

DRAINAGE MACHINES FOR VICTORIA COUNTY

F. G. SANDY, M. P. P., AIMS TO INTRODUCE LABOR SAVING DEVICES

Lindsay, March 30.—Mr. F. G. Sandy, M.P.P., was in town Saturday attending a farmers' meeting in connection with the drainage operation which some are advocating for the county of Victoria.

Several speakers were on hand to demonstrate the advantage of having machines brought in for that purpose and the question was raised whether the machines should be owned by private individuals or controlled by the municipalities.

There will be another meeting held in Reaboro on Tuesday night in the school and some of the farmers in that section may begin operations at once. Owing to the scarcity of labor, Mr. Sandy is trying to encourage the farmers to take advantage of the machines for digging the drains on their farms.

TO ADOPT 24 HOUR TIME

Indications That Great Britain Will Abolish A M. and P. M. System.

London, March 30.—The adoption of 24-hour time for official and other public purposes will, it is understood, be recommended by the committee which has been holding an inquiry. This method of time notation abolishes "a.m." and "p.m." Two in the afternoon, for instance, is 14 o'clock. The system has been adopted by many Continental nations. Both the navy and army, which used it during the war, testify to its usefulness. The Post-office has agreed to fall in with the reform and does not expect any difficulty. It was stated to the committee that in Italy, where the new method has been in use 20 years, 12 hour watches are still used, and few clocks have been changed.

The Home Secretary, replying to Mr. Forrest in the Commons, said he believed the general feeling was strongly in favor of the continuance of summer-time, and it was therefore proposed to introduce legislation to make it permanent.

"I AM MORE GRATEFUL TO Tanlac than words can express, for it has given me health and happiness after twelve long years of suffering" was the enthusiastic statement made the other day by Mrs. Olivine Peltier, of Vermont.

"I am more grateful to Tanlac than words can express for it has given me health and happiness after twelve long years of suffering," was the statement made the other day by Mrs. Olivine Peltier, No. 26 East Allen Street, Winooski, Vt.

"I had been troubled so long with nervousness and sleeplessness that my housework was a drudgery and I got little pleasure out of life. My appetite left me entirely and at times I could hardly bear the sight of food, and what little I did eat caused me severe suffering afterward. Gas would form on my stomach so badly that it affected my heart and I thought I had heart trouble.

"I was so nervous I would jump at the least unexpected noise and would drop everything I had in my hands. I got so weak and faint at times that I would have to catch hold of something to keep from falling over. My sleep was broken and restless and I was losing weight rapidly. I had little strength or energy and, as I had tried all kinds of medicines without relief, I had become very much discouraged over my condition.

"My husband had been taking Tanlac and when I saw what wonderful results he was getting I decided to try it myself and now I think as much of Tanlac as he does because it has helped me the same way.

"My appetite has come back and everything agrees with me perfectly. I am taking on weight rapidly and have already gained nine pounds; in fact, I feel perfectly well in every way. Tanlac has done wonders for me and I am only too happy to tell others about it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by The Warne Drug Co., and by the leading druggists in every town.

MAJOR MOWAT ADVOCATES COMPULSORY TRAINING FOR YOUNG MEN

Ottawa, March 30. — Abolition of the permanent military forces of Canada and universal physical training of all men between 18 and 25 save those who are crippled and infirm, was advocated in the House of Commons by Major H. M. Mowat, of Toronto. The Parkdale member thinks this would increase their ability in civil and industrial life and fit them to defend their country against invasion or aggression.

He advocated the establishment by the Department of Militia of training schools and camps so that all young men would have the opportunity of four weeks training annually for seven years.

The Toronto member believed the young men of the country, if associated together in training camps would become better citizens. "We have a lot of bad manners," he said "and lack of discipline of mind among our people, which would fade away if they got together. There is too much individuality which makes for harsh treatment. Everybody in Canada wants to say something harsh. It comes out at hockey and baseball games in such yells as 'kill him, kill him."

Major Mowat was aware some labor men would not take kindly to his proposal, "but the better class and some labor leaders do not object to universal training for four weeks each year because that won't interfere with industrial life. Labor men ought to be the first to welcome this because it will train all labor men in some sort of discipline, and if they got into a scrap they would be able to give a better account of themselves than if they were a mere mob."

JESSIE ALEXANDER AT ST. JAMES CHURCH

HIGH CLASS ENTERTAINMENT WAS GIVEN BY THIS NOTED ELOCUTIONIST

The Jessie Alexander concert, held in St. James' Methodist Church last night, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid, was one of the most successful events of the season. Any program bearing the magic name, "Jessie Alexander," is a guarantee in itself of an hour of unalloyed pleasure. Therefore, the appreciative audience which packed St. James' Church to capacity.

Jessie Alexander is so well known here now, and her work so much discussed, that it is scarcely necessary to make any comments in detail upon her performance.

As usual, her numbers were very happily chosen and she richly deserved the enthusiastic plaudits, and the many recalls, she received.

Among her numbers were "The Turning Point," a pathetic story of a little Irish boy in New York; "The Charge of the Mad Brigade," an up-to-date parody; Mrs. Mason's Teapot," "Mr. O'Brien's St. Patrick's Day After-Dinner Speech," "In Flanders' Fields," "In the Days of the Convenanters." Should Women Vote?" by Dorothy Dix.

The musical program, which interspersed the readings, was of a high character and was given by Peterborough artists. Miss Doris Rathbone sang in her usual charming voice and responded to the hearty applause.

Mr. Barton and Mr. Humpage, also delighted their hearers with solos.

A cornet solo, by Mr. Sutton, was greatly enjoyed, as were also the several splendid selections by the South End orchestra.

The committee in charge wish to thank Mr. James for the beautiful flowers and Easter lilies which banked the platform.

RADIAL ROADS, TOO FEEL THE EFFECTS OF HIGH PRICES

OWNERS ASK RAILWAY BOARD FOR PERMISSION TO INCREASE TARIFF

Toronto, March 30.—Urgent representations made to the Ontario Railway Board that a Provincial wide investigation into the financial condition of electric railways be made with the view to recommending increases in fares, met with slight success. The appeal was made by a deputation representing the Canadian Electric Railways Association, with Mr. J. E. Eastman the acting secretary of the association as chief spokesman.

This deputation recently met the Premier and Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney-General, and presented a memorial outlining their case. This was referred to the board by the two Ministers for its consideration.

Mr. Eastman urged that the board be given a wider scope, equal in extent to that vested in the Dominion Railway Board, whereby inquiries could be made and recommendations be made to increase fares, even where fare restricting agreements existed between municipalities and the electric railways.

The deputation urged that such powers would be practically valueless especially as many agreements were twenty-five years old, and since then no fare increases have been granted.

Cost Increased.

"The cost of an interurban car, which we purchased ten years ago, was $15,000," remarked Mr. Eastman, "and we have just received a quotation recently for a similar car of $62,000. How can we operate on that basis?"

Under the Dominion Act, which applies to some Federally incorporated roads, a charge of 3 cents per mile is permitted by Provincially incorporated roads and cannot exceed a charge of 5 cents for three miles. This Mr. Eastman pointed out operated to the great disadvantage of the Provincial corporations. Mr. W. F. Walker and Sir John Gibson, of Hamilton, both pleaded the case of an investigation as early as possible. Sir John referred to a mooted demand of increased wages which would be made of the company this year and which could not be paid upon the present fares. "A passenger," said Sir John, "if he so wished can ride for 14 miles for 3 cents. Under pre-war conditions this was not such an evil, but we cannot stand it now." Sir John further intimated that the board might have to take over a lot of railways which were operating at a loss unless some relief is granted.

LOCAL MANUFACTURERS

tion Mr. Bristol was for 27 years in the service of the Dominion Government as chief appraiser. He was at present making preparations for a general investigation into the tariff as was announced by the Government some time ago.

The Legal Department

The legal department, of which Mr. MacDonald, who was present was the secretary, was the next work undertaken and that department now kept in close touch with all Provincial and Federal legislation and protected the interests of the members at Ottawa. The Commercial Intelligence Department had charge of the publication of the Trade Index and answered enquiries as to exports, supplies, location of industries. It was one of the most important departments in the organization. The Trades department which had been recently organized by the Association although not well known among the members was a very important department. There were altogether eighteen sections in the Association covering every industry in the country.

One of the newest department was that which dealt with industrial relations. This department owed its existence to the appointment of a Royal Commission to study labor conditions in Canada a year ago. This commission had recommended a conference of Labor and Capital and the C. M. A had taken care of the interests of the manufacturers at the conference. There was no intention on the part of this department to enter into any controversy with labor but to study the labor questions and the various legislative measures enacted with reference to it in the Provincial and Federal Houses. It was a necessary department and was by no means a new idea as such departments had been in existence in the United States for years.

Two years ago, every powerful organization with the exception of the C. M. A. had its office and representatives at Ottawa during the time that Parliament was sitting. The result had been that when laws were enacted the manufacturers did not receive the consideration that they were entitled to. There was now an office at Ottawa which, besides watching Government Legislation and acting in an advisory capacity to the Government performed special services to the members of the Association. Mr. Blake Robertson was in charge of this office.

The older members would remember that there had been some talk in branches outside of Toronto that the Association was being run by a clique in Toronto. To avoid any suspicion of this the C. M. A. was now divided into five divisions which were as follows:

Ontario division headquarters, Toronto, 5 branches.

Quebec division headquarters, Montreal, 3 branches.

Maritime Provinces, headquarters Amherstburg.

Western division, headquarters, Winnipeg.

Pacific division, headquarters, Vancouver with branches in Victoria.

All the departments were trying to serve the members to the best of their ability and it was the intention of the Association during the coming year to strengthen every department and be in a position to give first-class service.

Mr. H. MacDonald

The chairman then called upon Mr. H. MacDonald to speak a few words on the Peterborough Branch and its function with regard to the C. M. A. Mr. MacDonald had great admiration for the industries of Peterborough which he had visited yesterday afternoon. It was his first visit to the city but it would not be his fault if it was his last. Few realized the wonderful position of the Province of Ontario in the Dominion of Canada. The speaker presented a few facts concerning the province in support of the claim of Ontario to be the banner province and the back-bone of the Dominion.

Ontario had an assessed rural area of 25,000,000 acres. There were 15,000,000 acres cleared. Of thos 14,000,000 acres were under cultivation. Throughout the Province there were steam railways to the extent of 11,057 miles and electric railways to the extent of 767 miles. One half of the cheese produced in Canada came from Ontario. Over 45 per cent of the mineral production of Canada took place in Ontario and the nickel produced in the province was greater than in any other place in the world. Ontario had 6,000,000 of undeveloped horsepower in her water power of which there was only 985,000 horse power developed up to the present. The shortage of power had affected the province and Peterborough was fortunate to be able to escape it. He knew of one firm alone in the city of Toronto which, during the last year lost $36,000 as a result of stoppage on account of power trouble. The Ontario Hydro Commission had laid 2,533 miles of high and low tension power lines.

A Prosperous Province

Taking in another phase of the prosperity of the Province, Mr. Macdonald asked if any knew how many cities there were in Ontario. There were 23 cities, 139 towns, 150 villages and 553 townships. The property taxable by municipalities was $2,054,212,000. Ontario had more than half of the manufactured products of the Dominion per year. The figures were $1,390,000,000 for the Dominion and $715,000,000 for the Province. Farm produce for the Dominion amounted to $138,500,000 and for the Province $52,000,000. The timber values for the year in Ontario amounted to $5,000,000 and for the Dominion $172,500,000. The wealth produced from the farms, mines, etc., of Ontario, was sufficient to wipe out the bonded debt of the Province twenty-two times over every year.

Turning to the work of the local branches, Mr. MacDonald defined the domestic questions which were better handled by the local branches, such as questions brought up by the City Council and the matter of education, which was becoming increasingly important, particularly that of technical education. All these local questions should be watched very carefully by the branch. The larger questions such as power and taxation could better be dealt with by headquarters. In the matter of taxation the government of the Province and Dominion and the municipalities were enacting laws with reference to taxation in order to meet the war debt which was only just being tabulated.

The great benefit derived from the local branches was the opportunity of meeting together and airing grievances and interchanging views. In conclusion, he assured those present that any communications for Peterborough would receive prompt attention from the head office.

Mr. E. G. Patterson

Mr. E. G. Patterson, of the Canadian General Electric Company spoke a few words in connection with technical education. He stated that as long as there was a scarcity of accommodation for the primary classes in Peterborough, the Board of Education did not feel justified in asking the City Council for a grant for a technical day school, but technical night classes had been instituted and he understood that during the winter months there had been four classes a week with an average attendance of eighty pupils. The new school in the western part of the city would when completed, replace the South Ward school and he, personally, had hopes of the latter being converted to a technical school. The expense to the city would not be heavy as the Dominion Government paid one third and the Provincial Government another third. There were some 40 apprentices from the C. G. E. attending night classes and if they attended 90 per cent of the classes a year they received a month's bonus.

Mr. Edgar Worth

Mr. Edgar Worth, President of the Board of Trade, also spoke a few words of his connection with the Tariff Committee in Toronto and the relations existing between that committee and the Tariff Department of the C. M. A. He was sure that all the members of the Association had found it a great benefit to meet once a month and discuss difficulties which always became smaller in consequence.

Ex-President Turner

Mr. J. J. Turner, formerly president of the Board of Trade and now secretary of the Manufacturers' Association, spoke of the loyalty of those who surrounded him during his term as president. He realized that there was a mutual benefit to be gained by coming together and learning from each other. In conclusion he paid a tribute to the two speakers who had left their work and come down from Toronto for the occasion.

President W. R. Richardson

Mr. William Richardson, the new President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, spoke along similar lines to the previous speaker. It certainly was an eye opener to see what the Asociation could do for its members. His firm had been members of the Association for many years, and for a time they had wondered just what they were paying fees for but they were now using the Association for their own benefit.

In response to the thanks which several of the speakers had mentioned, Mr. Walsh rose and stated that it was a duty to be present tonight. It was his intention in the future to try and visit the branches more often which up to the present had been impossible. The singing of the national anthem closed a very interesting evening.

THEATRICALS

TYRONE POWER AND BABY JOAN,
in the all-Canadian production of "THE GREAT SHADOW," at the Grand Opera House, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, this week.

IS THE FIRST AND ONLY ALL-CANADIAN PICTURE

"THE GREAT SHADOW,".. WITH TYRONE POWER STARRING AT GRAND THURSDAY

"The Great Shadow," opening at the Grand Thursday, is the first and only all-Canadian picture drama.

It has been compared by dramatic critics throughout the American continent with D. W. Griffith's productions, "The Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance," and "Hearts of the World," several critics contending it is a greater contribution to the motion picture craft than any of the above. If we consider this production from a point of view of heart interest and sensational episodes with beautiful photography and settings, then certainly it is a masterpiece.

The work of Mr. Tyrone Power, who plays the lead in this attraction, is more convincing than similar parts portrayed by the regular motion picture actors. Mr. Power's physique is admirably adapted to the role in this production and he is supported by a notable caste, under the direction of Mr. Hartley Knowles.

What the Critics Say.

Toronto Saturday Night says: "A greater contribution to the motion picture craft than D. W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance."

The Montreal Star says: "Unquestionably a great production."

Toronto Mail says: "The spectacular features of the film are all excellent."

Montreal Herald says: "The story is clear cut and holds the tense interest of those before whom it is unfolded."

Canadian Motion Picture Journal says: "The Adanac have certainly produced something tense and interesting all through."

What Prominent Men Say.

Mr. Smith, president of the Vitagraph, says: "The finest picture of the year."

Mr. Williams, president of the First Nation, says: "Unquestionably a great picture."

Mr. Abrams, general manager of the United Artists, says: "A million dollar production with a great [illegible]."

L. J. Selznick, who bought the American and foreign rights, says: "One of the best productions that I [illegible]."

The late Major Pullman, chairman Public Safety Commission, says: "If you Canadians turn out any more productions like this, American producers had better wake up."

ALL RECORDS ARE BROKEN BY THIS INSURANCE CO.

METROPOLITAN LIFE HAS COMPLETED GRANDEST YEAR IN HISTORY

The annual report of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., which is summarized today, shows that the Metropolitan broke all the world's records for business in 1919. During the early part of the year many claims, traceable to the epidemic of influenza, which extended, roughly speaking, over the period from September, 1918, to March, 1919, figured in the mortality of the Company, although general health conditions during the year were better than usual. The industrial death rate in 1919 was the lowest in the history of the Company.

Notwithstanding the current stories of wasteful spending on the part of those receiving more money than heretofore, the experience of the Company indicates that a greater nmber than ever are saving their money and investing it in life insurance for the protection of their families. Increased wages, together with the fact that the influenza epidemic rought new emphasis to the need of life insurance, and the Government's scheme of War Risk Insurance, which placed the amount needed by the average man at ten thousand dollars, are reflected in the world-breaking record that the Company made in writing new insurance. The total new business was one billion four hundred and eighteen million six hundrded and eighty-one thousand four hundred and ninety-two dollars, an amount greater than was ever placed by any company in any year anywhere. People in all circumstances seem to have held the same attitude toward the taking of new insurance, because the so-called Ordinary Insurance, the larger policies, amounted to almost eight hundred million dollars, and the Industrial, the small policies on which premiums are paid weekly, to something over five hundred million dollars, while the comparatively new branch known as Group insurance, where employers take policies covering their employes, reached the total of nearly one hundred and twenty-two million dollars. The total number of policies outstanding is 21,770,671 for the enormous total of $5,343,652,434.

The income of the Company amounted to two hundred and fifty-four million seven hundred and twenty-nine thousand dollars, an increase over the previous year of more than fifty-four and a half million dollars. The assets of the Company increased during 1919 by $89,367,126 and total $864,821,824. Dividends to be paid to policy-holders this year are $7,626,723.

Claims paid numbered 289,125, an average of one every thirty seconds of each business day of eight hours, while the amount paid to policy-holders during the year was over seventy-three and a half million dollars, or an average of $505.93 a minute of each business day.

The Metropolitan report shows that it has Canadian securities on deposit with the Dominion Government and with Canadian trustees amounting to over thirty-eight and three-quarter million dollars: and has forty-four million dollars invested in Canadian bonds, while its total investments in Canada amount to more than fifty-four million dollars. This amount, added to the sum paid in death laims, endowments, dividends and other payments to policy-holders, and to Canadians for administration expense exceeds the total amount received by the Company in premiums from Candaian policy holders.

The Metropolitan has a free nursing service for sick Industrial policy-holders, and during 1919 Metropolitan nurses made 129,635 visits in Canada, and in carrying out its campaign for better health its agents distributed 1,061,440 pieces of health literature in the Dominion.

Canadian policy-holders will be interested in knowing that the rate of exchange between the United States and Canada in no way affects them becase all premiums on policies in force in Canada are payable in Canadian funds.

LOOKING AHEAD FOR DAMAGES

PETERBOROUGH MATTRESS FACTORY SHUT OUT BY NEW BRIDGE

James Ellis, head of the Peterborough Mattress Company, complained to the city's board of works last night that the Hunter street entrance to his factory is so shut out by the new high level bridge that his business is facing serious loss. He said the operations of his bed spring department are materially affected by present conditions, and that after the material on hand is used up he will be forced to close down this end of his industry and charge up his consequent loss to the city.

Mr. Ellis urged that the city afford him some relief. "I want to get out of the premises now," he said, "and I must locate centrally, or my business will be damaged by its removal to a considerable extent."

In this connection the city had an option to purchase Mr. Ellis' factory rather than pay damages resulting from the new brdige. This option was for $8000. Council concluded, however, to accept their valuators' reoprt that this price was too high, and decided to expropriate the property. Mr. Ellis now finds himself in the midst of a busy season and apparently is anxious for an early settlement.

The matter was sent to the Special Bridge Committee, where it really belongs.

City To Pay.

The Special Bridge Committee yesterday evening decided to pay Inspector Christie's salary for services on the new bridge. Payments will be made on the certificate of the city engineer and chairman of this committee, Ald. Hamilton.

This action commits the city to recognising Mr. Christie as its inspector, in contradistinction to the positon heretofore taken that he was Mr. Barber's engineer-in-charge and should be paid by him.

OUCH! BACKACHE! RUB LUMBAGO OR STIFFNESS AWAY

RUB PAIN FROM BACK WITH SMALL TRIAL BOTTLE OF OLD "ST. JACOBS OIL."

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right on your aching back, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints!

ROAD OIL FOR PETERBOROUGH STREETS PROMISES TO BE SCARCE AND VERY DEAR

Properties Adjacent to Sewage Disposal Site are Valuable and Litigation is Threatened.

The Council's Board of Works cleaned off their business file last night. The engineer was instructed to report on a complaint by the Colonial Hide Co. that at the north-west corner of Lansdowne and Haggart streets where crossed by the G. T. R. Belleville tracks, there is not adequate drainage to take care of the water in the spring. Complaints said each year their property is flooded by spring freshets, and they suggested a drain along the railway tracks to the river. The engineer will report on this.

The board's attention was drawn to the lack of adequate drainage at the corner of Aylmer and Dublin streets to carry off surface water from Bethune and Dublin streets. The city engineer will be instructed to report a remedy for existing conditions.

Street Paving.

In regard to the Railways and Parks Committee's recommendation that the Board of Works take steps to pave George street from Romaine to Lansdowne streets, Ald. Phelan said such had been his original intention, but he withdrew that proposition because there is so much vacant property south of Romaine street in consequence of which the pavement adjacent thereto would have to be charged against the general tax rate.

On motion of the Mayor and Ald. Copping, the board will recommend that notice be given of Council's intention to pave this portion of George street under the local improvements act.

Sewage Disposal Site.

The board discussed the wisdom of purchasing the whole 137 acres of the J. A. Wilson farm instead of expropriating the 35 acres alone needed as a site for the sewage disposal plant.

Mr. Wilson is asking $20,000 for the 35 acres and $35,000 for the whole farm of 137 acres. The board has been instructed by Council to take expropriation proceedings to acquire the 35 acres approved of by the Provincial Board of Health as a site for the sewage disposal system, and the matter rests there.

Suits Threatened.

In regard to H. P. Kennedy's threat to institute action for damages to his property should a sewage disposal plant be constructed on the J. A. Wilson farm. This communication was received, as also were similar notifications from C. W. Russell and Walter Brumwell, whose properties also be adjacent to the Wilson site for sewage disposal.

The Mayor: "All these properties are now valuable."

Ald. Morrison: "They ought to sell their properties and get out."

Salary Increase.

Engineer Ed. Marchand of the fire hall is asking an increase of $100 for taking care of the pumping station at George and Romaine streets. Marchand is receiving $1,450 as engineer at the fire hall and an addition $100 a year for his work at the pumping station.

On motion of Ald. Morrison and Gainey this request was granted which brings Marchand's salary up to $1650 the year.

Provincial Highway.

As to the request from Lindsay's Council that this city join them in petitioning legislature for a Provincial highway between the two communities, no action was taken.

The Mayor and Ald. Copping pointed out that the Minister of Highways had been most emphatic in his declaration that as Peterborough County had not as a whole come into the good roads scheme, he would not go over that county's head in regard to Provincial highways.

(The whole of the County of Victoria is uniting with the Legislature in the matter of good roads.)

Road Oil Scarce.

The Little Lake Cemetery Co. are anxious to buy from the city 2,000 gallons of road oil to use on the cemetery roads this summer. Last year they purchased from the city 600 gallons.

City Engineer Parsons reported that the several companies he had communicated with in regard to road oil for the coming summer had all declined furnishing quotations for the season's supply, owing to unsettled conditions. He said indications point to the city finding it hard enough to secure enough oil for its own use.

On motion of Ald. Copping and Morrison, this request will be granted "if satisfactory arrangements for securing oil can be made.

The engineer has only 4,000 gallons of road oil in sight at present And prices are very high.

On motion of Ald. Gainey, the city engineer and Alderman Phelan were instructed to procure either road oil or Tarvia at the best prices possible.

Want Name Changed.

A largely signed petition asked that Concession street be re-named more appropriately. This was sent to the Council.

Ald. Gainey said a more largely signed petition against the change is forthcoming.

Who Were There.

There were present Chairman Ald. Phelan, Mayor McIntyre, Aldermen Copping, Morrison and Gainey.

OBITUARY

DAVID CURTIS.

The death occurred in the General Hospital, Winnipeg, on Monday, March 22nd, of David Curtis, son of the late David Curtis, of Cavan. The remains are expected to arrive at Cavan Wednesday evening. The funeral will take place on Friday, April 2nd, at one o'clock, from the home of the sister of the deceased, Mrs. Beattie Fee, Cavan, to Little Lake Cemetery.

THE LATE BRUCE ROBERTSON.

The funeral of the late Bruce Robertson took place this afternoon from the family residence, Donacord street, to Little Lake Cemetery. It was intended that there should be a military funeral, but it was found at the special meeting of the G.W.V.A., called for the purpose last night, that this would be impossible as there was not enough men able to get away from work at the hour of the interment. However, a semi-military funeral was arranged. A servicewas conducted at the house by Capt. (Rev.) Rollins, chaplain of the Great War Veterans' Association, and when the body had been placed in its last resting place in Little Lake Cemetery, Bugler Sharpe played the last post, which signifies the end of the day in military life.

The pall-bearers were all chosen from the War Veterans and were: President R. H. Muir, Vice-President W. J. Clancy and Comrades P. Lavery, J. Bacon, F. Oxley and W. Murphy. The association was also represented at the funeral by Secretary Whatley.

ELIZABETH DORIS WARREN.

An extremely sad event was the death at Nicholls Hospital last night after a painful and lingering illness of Elizabeth Doris Warren, at the age of eighteen years and nine months.

Miss Warren was injured by running a needle in her hand over a year ago while in the employ of the Canadian General Electric Company. Blood-poisoning developed and it became necessary to have the hand amputated. Later on, however, it was found that the amputation had not prevented a spread of the trouble, and six weeks ago Miss Warren was taken to the hospital in a serious condition. Since that time she has been gradually sinking, in spite of all that could be done to save her.

She was a very bright young girl and extremely well liked by all her fellow employes at the C. G. E., and in fact by all who came in contact with her. Just recently some of her friends who sympathized with her in her serious illness and the consequence expense entailed, held a benefit dance. The crowds which attended this dance gave evidence of the great popularity of Miss Warren.

Miss Warren is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Warren, 87 Smith street, and came to this country from England with her parents nine years ago. She is survived by her father and mother and one sister and one brother, all at home.

The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

EPWORTH LEAGUE MEETS AT MARK STREET CHURCH

PROFITABLE SESSION OF CHRISTIAN WORKERS WAS HELD LAST EVENING

Great success attended the meeting of Mark Street Epworth League last night. An excellent service was held and the young people turned out in force. The president of the league, Mrs. H. Morton, was highly pleased with the representation and also with the program. Miss Halliday gave a most interesting and profitable reading on the subject, "Fanny Crosby," which was well received while Miss Craft took charge of the topic. Her illustrations were clear and forceful, using the numerous lights of the city to represent the various luminaries of the Church of God. These meetings are increasing in interest and proving to be of inestimable value to the young people.

CHRIST PURSUED HIS PURPOSE TO THE END DESPITE THE HATE OF THE RULERS

Rev. J.A. McKnzie Preaches Timely Sermon in Trinity Church Last Night---First of the Series of Passion Week Services

At Trinity Church last night Rev. J. A. McKenzie of Knox Church gave a very able and instructive address in connection with the Passion Week services being held this week. Mr. McKenzie spoke of the enthusiasm of the populace at the time of Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem, of the opposition of the rulers and Pharisees that came to a head at that time, and of the steadfastness of Jesus in the pursuit of His purpose.

The enthusiasm awakened by Jesus at the time of the Passover Festival Mr. McKenzie traced to the great and mighty works of healing that Jesus had performed that spread His fame far and wide. The evanescent character of this enthusiasm he traced to the disappointment of the people when Jesus did not realize their material hopes. Many of those who cried "Hosanna" on Palm Sunday, cried "Crucify Him" on Friday.

This change of attitude on the part of the people was partly due to the opposition of the rulers. Mr. McKenzie said, "We can hardly blame the rulers for being cautious at first about receiving the teaching of Jesus and linking themselves up with the new movement He was leading. It is well to be cautious, but there came a time when their refusal to accept Jesus became mere stubbornness and pride." He then traced the growth of their opposition until it culminated in a determined purpose to get rid of Jesus at any cost.

Anyone less steadfast in purpose than Jesus might have been influenced by the fickle-minded populace to stoop to meet their purpose and allow himself to become the head of a revolutionary movement in order to thwart the purpose of the rulers. But He had a mission to fulfil and a task to perform, and, in spite of popular feeling and of the deadly hate of the rulers, He steafastly pursued His great purpose to the end.

Many useful and timely lessons were drawn from the account of these incidents.

Miss Thirza Givens sang at this service. The pastor gave a Bible reading.

HOME RULE PASSES 2ND READING

FRENCH REFUSE TO LET GERMANS SEND TROOPS TO RUHR DISTRICT

Premier Millerand Says That Would Abrogate Terms of Treaty of Peace.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, March 31.—The request of the German Government that it be allowed to send troops to the Ruhr district, in the neutral zone near the German border, has been denied by the French Government.

Conversations over the German request have been in progress between Premier Millerand and the German Charge d'Affaires, Dr. Von Mayer. In his reply, M. Millerand stated that agreement with the German request would constitute abrogation of the Versailles Treaty articles and could be justified only by imperative and evident necessity. The commission charged with the execution of the protocol of August last has expressed its formal opinion that military intervention in that region at present would be useless as well as dangerous, he said.

General Strike Threatened.

Berlin, March 31. — Leaders of three Socialist parties here have sent an energetic ultimatum to the government requesting that it respect the Bielefeld convention and immediately suspend all military measures in the Ruhr Valley. The government is given until 3 p.m. Thursday to either accept or reject this request. Should it be rejected an immediate proclamation of a general strike will follow, Chancellor [illegible] was informed by a Socialist delegation.

Workmen Reinforced

The Hague, March 31.—The army of rebellious German workingmen besieging the fortress of Wesel in Rhenish Prussia has received reinforcements and made new attacks, according to despatches to the Nieuwe Courant of Rotterdam. The town of Hamm, in Westphalia, and several other places, are reported to have been plundered. At Essen, advices state, a general strike has been proclaimed and carried out in full force.

DEPARTMENT STORES IN ENGLAND AMALGAMATE

ALL BIG ESTABLISHMENTS IN THE LARGE CITIES ARE FORMING MERGERS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, March 31.—The amalgamation of department stores in England is noted in official trade reports received here as the latest development of a tendency toward combination in each branch of England's national industries. Big stores, especially those in the more important cities, are combining, through purchase or consolidation, and already it has become apparent to some observers that the business soon will be concentrated in the control of a few big interests.

The American Chamber of Commerce in London reports that one of the largest department stores of that city recently absorbed three competitors and has branched out in South America through the opening of a large establishment in Buenos Aires.

"The value of advertising as a selling force is becoming more realized in England," the report said. "This movement towards amalgamation is not expected to destroy competition, though it may tend to narrow its scope."

FINDING EMPLOYMENT FOR RETURNED MEN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 31.— Improvement in the employment situation and voluntary increases in wages are the features shown in the weekly report of the information and service branch of the soldiers' re-establishment department. There has been a decrease of two thousand in the number of unemployed ex-service men, the total unplaced now being about twenty thousand. During the week employment was found for more than three thousand veterans.

MILK PRODUCTS CO. TOO, SHOWS SIGNS OF GENERAL INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION

Improvements Have Just Been Completed That Will Increase Output by Over 200 Per Cent—Tall Chimneys are Movements to City's Prosperity.

In the matter of industrial expansion, the progress which is being made by the Peterborough Milk Products Company, should not be allowed to go unnoticed. Extensions and improvements are at present under way, which will increase the output of the firm by 200 per cent. The Peterborough Milk Products Company is one of the most up-to-date and best equipped plants of its kind in the Dominion and contains all the latest machinery which eliminates personal touch with the product from the time it enters the factory in the form of milk to the time that it goes out in the form of cans of condensed milk, ice cream or butter.

The alterations under way at the present time mainly concern the condensing plant, which was unable to meet the enormous demands for condensed milk which the firm has been receiving during the past few months. The capacity of the condensing plant last year was 25,000 lbs. of milk a day and it is announced that when the present alterations and additions are completed the capacity will be increased to 75,000 lbs. of milk a day. It is hoped that this will be sufficient to cope with the demand. This increase is being effected by the addition of new and larger condensing pans and two large boilers in connection with which the chimney, which can be seen from any part of the city, has been erected recently.

The story of the building of the chimney is interesting in itself. Carrying their slogan of securing the best in everything even to this outside sphere, the company let the contract for the new chimney to the Canadian Kellogg Company of Toronto, which is a branch of the firm of the same name in New York. This firm has the sole rights of the manufacture of the special brick that is used in the chimney and they are manufactured in the United States and shipped to the Toronto firm, which undertakes the building of the chimneys in Canada. The contract for the Peterborough Milk Products Company chimney and the Bonner-Worth chimney were obtained by the same firm and erected at the same time.

The chimney stretches ninety feet into the air and is a master-piece of masonry. When they start to build a chimney the Kellogg Company don't mince matters, and both chimneys were erected before many people realized that they had even been started. Sometimes as much as 20 feet of chimney was constructed in one day, although during one or two of the colder days the rate was not so high as that. Now they stand as a sign of the permanency of Peterborough's industrial expansion and as towering monuments to the city's prosperity.

IRISH BILL HAS BIG MAJORITY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 31.—The House of Commons passed the second reading of the Irish Home Rule Bill today. The vote was 348 to 94.

Sir Edward Carson Objects.

Sir Edward Carson was one of the first speakers today and he reiterated his opposition to the whole policy of Home Rule for Ireland. He believed it would be disastrous to both Ireland and England.

Morgan Jellett, member for Dublin University, asked Mr. Mapherson, Chief Secretary for Ireland, whether the Government would be prepared to facilitate a scheme of emigration for such loyalists of the south and west of Ireland as may desire to leave that part of the country through apprehension of results to themselves in the event of the Government's Irish proposals becoming operative and to compensate them for their loss. Mr. Macpherson replied that if such contingency ever arose it would have to receive grave consideration.

Lloyd George's Statement.

Replying to arguments against the bill, Premier Lloyd George declared that the Government had every reason to be satisfied with the course of the debate, as it demonstrated that the Government's plan was the only one that held the field. The difficulty of the problem, he said, was that no proposals which would be acceptable in this country would be accepted by any party in Ireland. If the people of Ireland were asked what plan they would accept, they would say by an emphatic majority, "We want independence and an Irish republic."

AUSTRIAN BANDITS HOLD UP FREIGHT TRAINS FOR FOOD

SHIPMENTS MUST BE CONVOYED TO MAKE CERTAIN OF DELIVERY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vienna, March 31;—Looting of freight trains, particularly of foodstuffs and wearing apparel goes on unchecked throughout Austria. Unless convoyed, it is said, a shipment stands little chance of coming through intact. The robbers seem well organized and armed and often so numerous as to resist arrest.

Gift cargoes from other European states seem the favorite plunder and, according to report, much of the stolen goods has been found for sale in the open market.

A large consignment of this character from Sweden arrived this week and when the well arranged food parcels, containing flour, fats and other staples, were opened it was found that a portion of the fat and flour had been skillfully removed from each package and a sack of Austrian salt substituted to make up the requisite weight.

Paris, March 31.— A dispatch from Athens to Temps today states that the Greeks are taking steps toward the ocupation of Adrinaople and Eastern Thrace.

GENERAL STRIKE IS INEVITABLE IN DENMARK

KING REFUSES TO CONCEDE THE DEMANDS OF THE WORKING CLASSES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, March 31.—Offers by responsible trades unionists of a compromise by which a general strike might be averted if the Rigsdag is called together immediately, have not been accepted by King Christian and th new Danish ministry, and thus a general strike throughout Denmark seems inevitable this morning.

All classes of the population are hoarding food, petroleum, candles and water. No serious trouble has developed as yet, as the police have been able to disperse hostile street crowds. The Independent Socialists are joining the Majority Socialists in demanding a general strike. The Liebe Ministry has issued an appeal to the population saying it will resign as soon as the elections are over and the Rigsdag has met.

Strike Effective Tuesday.

The general strike will go into effect throughout Denmark on Tuesday next following the rejection by King Christian and the new ministry of an offer by the trades unions to furnish a compromise in the political crisis if the Rigsdag was convened immediately.

FIVE SOCIALISTS EXPELLED FROM LEGISLATURE

MAJORITY OF COMMITTEE AT ALBANY, N. Y., MAKE THAT RECOMMENDATION

Albany, N. Y., March 31. — The charges preferred against the five Socialist members of the New York State Assembly have been sustained in the opinion of a majority of the thirteen members of the judiciary committee which investigated the qualifications of the suspended members.

In a report submitted to the Assembly, the majority of the committee state that the Socialists are disqualified from holding their positions in the Legislature, and that the seats to which they had been elected should be declared vacant.

Declare Against Majority

Several minority reports submitted, declaring against the recommendation of the majority.

Seven of the thirteen members of the committee favor the explusion of the entire Socialist delegation, five committee men would re-seat them, and another recommends the unseating of August Claessens floor leader of the 'minor minority,' Charles Solomon and Louis Waldman, and reinstating Samuel Orr and Samuel A. De Witt.

Would Bar Them From Ballott

Enactment of a law to prevent any organization which admits aliens to its membership from occupying the position of a political party on the official ballot of the state is advocated in the majority report. Waldman, Claessens, Solomon, De Witt and Orr, the findings state, "are not obedient to the constitution and laws of the United States and the State of New York, nor desirous of the welfare of the country, nor in hearty accord and sympathy with its government and institutions."

Considerable attention is given in the report to the attitudes of the Socialist party toward the war and the events leading up to it. It mentions the fact that the party's constitution provided that "any Socialist elected to an office who shall in any way vote to appropriate moneys for military or naval purposes or war shall be expelled from the party."

Opposed to Aiding in War

The reports reviews portions of the evidence heard during the recent 24 days' trial, purporting to show that the Socialist party opposed prosecution of the war opposed all proposed legislation for industrial and military conscription, pledged themselves to work for the repeal of the conscription law advised resistance to conscription of life and labor and urged the repudiation of war debts.

Aided Conscientious Objectors.

"Evidence before the committee," the report says "would indicate that the party was also engaged in a systematic effort during the war to foster claims to conscientious objectors."

"There is but one inference from the position of the Socialists in delatioin to military and naval appropriations and for war," the report continues. "They would render the country and Government helpless against all enemies so that it may be helpless against them, the enemies of established order. And for the opportunity which the helplessness of Government thus brought about would give them, they are willing to expose the state to assaults of all other enemies."

PUPILS OF THE SACRED HEART SCHOOL PRESENT OFFERING TO POPE BENEDICT

Handsome Cheque Will be Taken to Rome by Bishop O'Brien on His Official Visit to the Vatican—Presentation Was Made Yesterday.

An interesting event took place yesterday at Lake street separate school when a cheque, the result of subscriptions by the children of the school, was handed to Bishop O'Brien, to present to Pope Benedict when the Bishop visits Rome next month.

Bishop O'Brien arrived at the school at 10:30 a.m. accompanied by Rev. Father O'Brien, parish priest of the Sacred Heart Church. They were met at the gate by six little boys, representative of the different classes: James Fleming, Charlie Armstrong, Jack Halihan, Henry Jones, Melville Rogers and Ronald MacPherson. Each of the boys carried a purple and white banner.

The children were asembled beforehand in the lower hall, and as the Bishop entered he was greeted with "Vivat." As soon as the Bishop was seated, Alma Goselin presented him with a bouquet of flowers on behalf of the children. At the same time Margaret Jones presented him with the programs, which were decorated for the occasion. The hall was suitably dressed in purple and white, the Papal colors, and at the head of the hall were the Papal coat-of-arms.

An address, a copy of which appears below, was then read by Vincent Rishea. At the same time the cheque which the Bishop is to give to the Pope was presented by Marjorie Deannard, and a spiritual offering for His Lordship's safe return from Italy was also presented by Mildred Deannard. The children then sang a farewell song and the "Antiphon."

His Lordship Replies.

In thanking the children for the kindness and consideration, His Lordship referred to the fact that the Sacred Heart parish was his home parish and the first church of which he had been the parish priest. It was therefore with great feeling that he now returned to the parish once again as their Bishop. He also expressed pleasure at the offering which the children had most generously raised and also for their thoughts in regard to his safe return.

Father O'Brien also said a few words. He expressed great surprise at the generous dimensions of the cheque, for, although he had been aware that a presentation was to be made he had no idea that such a sum could be raised in so short a time, the children having only commenced the collection two days pre-

PUBLIC MEETING WAS STRONG FOR MUNICIPAL HOUSING PLAN HERE

Resolve That the City Issue Debentures for Loans to Workingmen and That Such Debentures be Sold Locally Committee of Board of Trade Appointed to Aid With City Council and Housing Commission.

The meeting of the Board of Trade, the City Council and Citizens, last night, in the Board of Trade chambers, to discuss the housing problem, in this city, resulted in the adpotion of the folliwing resolution:

(Moved by ex-Ald. A. H. Stratton, and Mr. Edward Manning, that in the opinion of this meeting more houses are needed in Peterborough, and that the chairman of the Board of Trade be asked to appoint a committee to interview citizens and companies with a view to stimulating the building of houses by individual or private enterprise, and also to cooperate with the Peterborough Housing Commission and the City Council to have houses erected under the provisions of the amended Ontario Housing Act. And further that the City Council be requested to issue debentures to the amount of at least $100,000 and not more than $300 000 for the purpose; and that a Board of Trade Committee assist in disposing of those debentures locally.

President Edgar Worth of the Board presided over the proceedings, and the discussion was general. Mr. Worth explained that Council had delayed asking a loan under the Ontario Housing Act too long, as all the money available under that scheme had now been appropriated, and he declared it was up to City to formulate and put into effect some other plan for furnishing workingmen's homes, if Peterborough is to take advantage of the industrial expansion in sight.

No Houses to Rent.

City Clerk, S. R. Armstrong made the following suggestions: That a company could be formed under the old Ontario Housing Accommodation Act, which would allow of the municipality guaranteeing bonds up to 85 percent of the cost of lands and buildings, the company to put up the other 15 per cent. That under a new Housing Act proposed to be passed by the Legislature, the city may issue its own debentures for housing loans at a rate of interest not higher than six per cent, and that the Ontario Government would guarantee the municipality's bonds if by so doing a lower rate of interest could be secured.

Mr. Armstrong here pointed out that there are practically no moderate houses to rent in the city today, and that the Canadian Nashua Paper Company is to start operations in a few days, and the Canadian Aladdin Company in a week or two. Employees of these two concerns will need housing. Then the Canadian Raybestos Company will start up with twenty-five men in a short time, and will be employing seventy-five hands

BEAUTIFUL STORY OF THE HOLY GRAIL

Judge Huycke Delivers Interesting Address at Meeting of Women's Art Association.

The beautiful legend of the Holy Grail formed the subject of an address that was intensely interesting by His Honor Judge Huycke, before the members of the Women's Art Association last evening. Calling up reminiscences of those far off days, His Honor told the pleasing story tinged with mystery and romance that is associated with the sacred chalice from which our Lord drank at His last Supper. The spirit and purpose of individuals as well as nations, the speaker said, is indicated by thoughts and aspirations, and so we have in the legend and folk lore of days gone by, the key to the interior life of the people. Happiness was deemed as the great good and incessantly sought for; an ideal existence was longed for. And the people always turned to the obscure past or the distant future for a vision of perfect days. So, the Romans immortalized in literature, and verse, the golden long ago and sang of the unalloyed bliss that was to come hereafter. The Greek nation, wise as they were, thought to be, and possessed of a rare culture, spoke of ideal days as in the reign of the God Saturn, and looked forward yearningly to a like existence, when Saturn would come again. Five hundred years before Christ, such an era was sung of by the Grecian Poet Pandar. History was formed and aspirations moulded by those old songs and tales, for in the days before books were obtainable song and story was the life of the people. Homers epics, and they are the world's greatest, were immortalized and redeemed from obscurity by being sung and recited in public and private. Great national heroes, as household names were worshipped and adored, and none more so than that character around whom so much of ancient narrative is woven, King Arthur. The name of this emperor is closely associated in legend with the story of the Holy Grail. The two legends are moulded together so that each is part of the other, having their origin in the same locality.

HOUSES ARE RISING IN STORM SWEPT STATES

VICTIMS OF SUNDAY'S TORNADO SHOWING RAPID RECOVERY FROM MISFORTUNE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, March 31.—Districts of the Middle West and the South that were swept by the tornado of Sunday with a loss of 164 lives, were recovering rapidly today and rebuilt homes and buildings began to rise from the wreckage. The property loss suffered in the eight states affected was estimated today at from ten to fifteen million dollars. It was believed that the death list would not be changed materially.

THE COMING MOTOR SHOW.

THE MOTOR SHOW, which will be held in the Armories on April 14, 15 and 16, will exploit one of the leading commercial lines in this city, it will be an excellent demonstration of local prosperity, a splendid move in the interests of publicity, but let no one run away with the idea that the Show has been designed for the financial benefit of any particular class. The men who go to the trouble and expense of making exhibits will receive at least no direct benefit. The proceeds of the Show will be turned over to the Peterborough Health Association, and there is no worthier object to which the money could be applied.

When the annual Motor Show was inaugurated a few years ago the money raised was devoted to the Red Cross to aid that organization in the war work which it was carrying on. The necessity for this work now, fortunately, no longer exists. Last year a sum slightly in excess of $1300, the net profits from the Show, went to the Health Association, which depends almost entirely upon charitable contributions to carry on the work which it has undertaken.

And there is no higher work anywhere. The nurse employed by the Association goes into the homes of the poor. The victim of tuberculosis is cared for, the first sign of this deadly danger is detected, and means taken to avert it. The Health Association is an invaluable adjunct to the medical profession. The physical well being of babies and adults alike is its charge.

One of the projects which the Health Association has in mind is the erection of a sanatorium for the care of tuberculosis patients. There are ideal locations in this district for such an institution. Its necessity is beyond question, if the people are to be saved from the white plague. The city has refused to conribute anything to the maintenance of the sanatorium at Gravenhurst, and this bars any resident of Peterborough from free treatment there. There may be obstacles in the way of this ideal project, but it is well to turn the thoughts of the people in that direction. Every encouragement that is extended to the Motor Show, every step taken to assure its success, every admission ticket bought and paid for is an aid to an association that is unselfishly and intelligently striving to make the world happier and better.

NO PENALTY FOR WILHELM.

THE ALLIES have finally accepted the conditions laid down by Holland as to the ex-kaiser. The Government of the Netherlands will be responsible for his future care. The greatest murderer of all time, the inhuman monster whose blood lust gloried in women and children as victims, the fiend who violated every rule of war, every human and Divine precept, is to escape the consequences of his acts. He will be permitted to live out the rest of his days in a castle, subject, perhaps, to a measure of military espionage, but free to all intents and purposes, nevertheless.

And was it for this that he soldiers of the Allies fought and bled? What becomes of the diplomatic promises that the ex-kaiser was to be treated as the criminal he is and brought to the bar of justice? What of Lloyd George's pre-election pledge that the deposed emperor would be made to answer for his offences? Men in the Allied army were stood against a blind wall and shot down for no other offence than the failure of their courage in one of the crucial moments of attack.

And still, people — some people — wonder why there is unrest among the proletariat.

THE NEW HOUSING PLAN.

THE CITY MAY HAVE been dilatory in the matter of availing itself of the municipal housing scheme, an opportunity that has passed, but it is not yet too late to remedy the failure. If the resolution which was adopted at the joint meeting of the City Council and the Board of Trade last night is carried out, the same measure of support from the Province can practically be secured. All the difference is that a higher rate of interest will be charged for the money borrowed. The Act is to be amended, and if this is done according to present expectations, the Province will guarantee the bonds up to the full amount of the expenditure instead of to 85 per cent. as stipulated in the Housing Accommodation Act which applied to private companies.

The city that has invested over two million dollars in Victory bonds in the past two years should have no difficulty in floating a local loan of from $100,000 to $300,000, especially when the urgent necessity for the money and the high rate of interest is considered. There is no question as to the need of house. Every manufacturer, every business man, every tenant, is of one way of thinking on this point.

One of the most practical and public-spirited suggestions made at the meeting last night was that which came from ex-Mayor Duncan. Why should not the wealthy men of Peterborough, in the interests of the city, make a venture in house building? If this plan is adopted the ex-Mayor pledges himself to build two or three houses. Housing accommodation is an essential adjunct to every manufacturing plant in the city. No industry can carry on without a working staff and no men can be secured unless there is a place to shelter them. The manufacturer does not hesitate to increase his plant if such outlay adds to the capacity of his works. In building houses he can get, in effect, municipal or provincial backing to safeguard him against actual loss equal to any concessions which he may receive in the regular line.

Any houses that are built should be in keeping with the dignity of a community of the importance of Peterborough. No one wants to see a city or even a section of a city, of shacks. Even an emergency such as exists at the present time would not justify a niggardly policy. It would be poor business to put up houses that no one would care to live in when conditions became normal again, or houses which if they were occupied would be little better than so many slums. Rooms may be small, but something better than mere cubby holes are required. No family either, should be expetced to live in premises that are not connected with the city sewerage system.

There is a manufacturing community in Western Ontario where all the residences occupied by the workingmen have been erected and are owned by the company. In the United States whole villages have been built on the same basis, the dwellings being put up to keep pace with the growth of the plant. The housing problem has no place in such communities.

The Housing Commission that has been appointed by Council can look after the details of the new scheme adopted last night, for the present at least. It will likely be found, too, that they can continue in office when the Act is finally amended by the Legislature.

ADVERTISING A CITY.

THE DOMINION Government had pictures made of all the points of interest on the Trent Canal from Lake Ontario to Orillia, and these were shown on the screen at a recent joint meeting of the Board of Trade and the Engineering Institute. There were views of Peterborough's business section, and the whole made one of the finest exhibitions of the kind ever offered the public. The pictures were shown in a local theatre and attracted little attention beyond the ordinary appreciation extended to such affairs. They are now making the circuit of the moving picture theatres of the Dominion, about 11,000 in number altogether, and will also be produced in the United States. Several local residents were at the Grand in Toronto when this film was one of the features on the bill, and they may be excused if they felt a pride in the excellent if somewhat limited showing made by this city.

But in the pictures in question Peterborough is a mere incident. What is wanted is a moving picture exhibition of this city exclusively on the same lines as the plan which has been adopted in London, Ontario, and which was recently shown at the Grand here. The film can be prepared at a moderate cost. Any merchant, manufacturer or resident can secure a place for his building on the film at an outlay of $5. The cost of photographing the public buildings and institutions could be borne by the city. These pictures would be shown in every theatre in Canada and in most of those across the line. The plan would constitute an advertising campaign at once cheap and effective.

Canada is to figure more and more in the moving pictures. "The Great Shadow," which will be at the Grand the last three days of this week, was prepared in the vicinity of Trenton. There are scenes shown in it which will be easily recognized by local residents. It is the first Canadian picture of the kind ever presented to the public. Peterborough can have an exhibition of its own resources. The Board of Trade would increase the value of its public service if it took this matter up.

TARRIF QUESTIONS THAT AFFECT THIS COUNTRY BEFORE AMERICAN CONGRESS

Duty of 25 Cents a Bushel on Wheat and $1.32 ½ a Barrel on Flour Proposed in One Bill—Pulpwood Question Likely to Cause Retaliation.

Washington, March 31.— A number of bills calling for tariff readjustment which affect Canadian interests are now before the United States Congress. Owing to the pressure of other business these measures have received but little attention from the members of the United States House this session and it now appears likely that most of them will be sidetracked. Nevertheless their introduction indicates that the United States has not abandoned its high protection principles and it is generally believed that had it not been for the favorable balance in trade with Canada, some of these measures might have been pressed more strongly than they have been.

Two of these bills propose to put a duty on wheat and flour. One, introduced by Representative Young, of North Dakota, calls for a duty of 25 cents a bushel on wheat, and $1.32 1-2 per barrel on flour, with a ten per cent ad valorem duty on semolina and other products of wheat not specifically mentioned in the act. This bill has met with a good deal of opposition and it is not likely to be passed. Mr. Young has a second bill, which is now before the Committee of Ways and Means, and which proposes a duty of ten cents per bushel on wheat and 45 cents per barrel on flour and other wheat products, as well as 25 per cent ad valorem upon potatoes. These bills indicate that Canada is still regarded as a competitor of the United States in wheat and flour.

A bill which has attracted a good deal of attention in view of Senator Underwood's campaign to force the cancellation or modification of Canadian provincial regulations limiting the export of pulpwood to the United States, was introduced by Representative Hull, of Tennessee. Senator Underwood's proposal was to appoint a commission to study the question with a view to discovering what measures could be adopted to induce the Provincia Governments to let down the bars on pulpwood and his resolution merely contained a hint of retaliation. Mr. Hull goes him one better. His bill includes a provision intended to penalize Ontario and Quebec for their export prohibitions on wood used for the manufacture of wood pulp. It calls for a duty of 12 per cent on printing paper valued above eight cents per pound, "provided, howwever, that if any country, dependency, Province, or other subdivision of government shall impose any export duty, export license fee, or other charge of any other kind whatsoever (whether in the form of additional charge or license fee or otherwise) upon printing paper, wood pulp, or wood used in the manufacture of wood pulp, there shall be imposed upon printing paper, valued above eight cents per pound, when imported either directly or indirectly from such country, dependency, Province, or other subdivision of Government, an additional duty equal to the amount of the highest export duty or other export charge imposed upon either printing paper or upon an amount of wood pulp or wood for the manufacture of wood ulp necessary to manufacture such printing paper."

The effect of this would be to force the American customers of Canadian mills to pay extra duty upon paper imported from the provinces which have pulpwood exportation restrictions, and would mean the penalizing of United States newspapers, which are forced to look to Canada for a large percentage of their print paper supply. The bill is now before the Ways and Means Committee. The general opinion is that it has but little chance of being enacted.

Other bills still under consideration which affect Canada include the following.

A bill providing for a duty on magnesite ore of one-half cent per pound and a higher duty on manufactured magnesite. In the year 1918-19 Canada sold the United States magnesite to teh value of $76,236.

A bill proposing to regulate the importation of coal-tar products by prohibiting the bringing in of any of these products if they can be secured in the United States. This would affect Canadian exports only to a comparatively small extent.

A bill providing for a duty on shell and pearl buttons.

Bills calling for duties on tungsten ores and zinc ores. Both of these have passed the House of Representatives and are now before the Senate Committee.

An anti-dumping bill which provides extra duties on goods the importation of which is likely to injure any United States industry or prevent an industry being established.

The bill to repeal the reciprocity act of 1911, which was passed by the House last October is still before the Senate.

STOCKS AND BONDS

(By JOHN M. OSKISON.)

Many an investor has lost money because he has an impression that stocks and bonds are the same thing. They are not. Let us get over the habit of thinking of them together.

When you buy the stock of a company you are buying a partner's interest in it. If it prospers your stock will be valuable and you will get dividends on your share in the ownership. That is, the profits will be computed and a certain part of them paid out to you and the other owners.

If the company doesn't earn any profits you won't get any, and the value of your stock will fall.

As a rule, you have nothing to say about how the business in which you own stock is run. A few men close to the management are acting as directors, and they say whether or not the company has earned enough to justify paying anything to you and the other owners.

Buying stock is the most speculative investment you can make.

Buying bonds, on the other hand, ought to be the safest form of investment. Just what are bonds?

A bond is a company's or government's promise to pay, backed by the assets of that company or that government. The promise is to pay on a certain date. If payment is not made on that date, the owners of the bonds have the right to take over the assets.

No company and no government ought to sell more bonds than its assets will sell for in any sort of market. No bond ought to be issued that is not safe from the standpoint of the investor.

Proper regulation would insure the safety of bonds, but no sort of regulation, under the competitive form of industry, could make stocks a safe investment. The owner of stock assumes the risks of business when he buys.

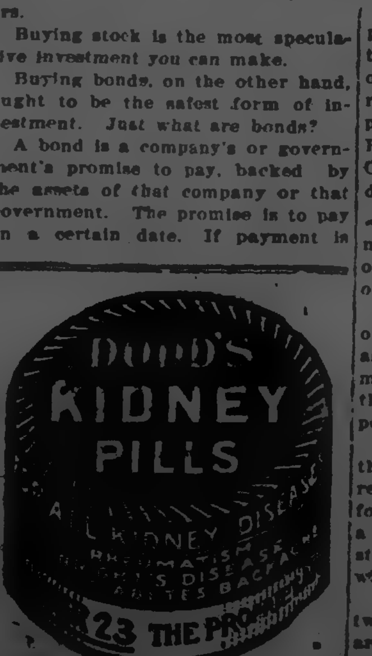
Then why continue to lump the two in our minds when we look around for a chance to invest the money we have saved?

FIRE PROTECTION FOR NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

UTILITIES COMMISSION AUTHORIZED SEVERAL EXTENSIONS OF WATER MAINS

A meeting of the public Utilities Commission was held on Monday afternoon to consider the extension of the water mains and other business of minor importance. It was decided to authorize the superintendent to construct an eight-inch main on Simcoe street easterly to the east side of the Peterborough Cereal Co.'s mill, and to extend the twelve-inch main on the Monaghan road from King to Patterson street, and a five-inch main on Sherbrooke street 200 feet west from the Monaghan road, in order to provide the new school in that district with fire protection if the City Council orders four new hydrants on the Monaghan road and Sherbrooke street extensions. The cost will be $9,100 for the Monaghan road and Sherbrooke street extensions, and $3,362.50 for the Simcoe street extension.

It was also decided to give the superintendent authority to purchase twenty-four hydrants and to use half of them in replacing hydrants which require to be replaced in order to prevent them from freezing. Mr. W. H. Moore was in the chair. The Commission will meet again Saturday at 3 p.m.



EDITOR'S MAIL

REPLY TO MR. ELLIOTT.

Editor Review: It is a great surprise to me to read Mr. Elliott's article headed "Farmers Were Disappointed," when I am given to understand that Peterborough County is the ONLY county that has not yet fallen in line. Of course, this is within their rights. It is entirely optional as to whether they adopt it or not, but to say that it is disappointing to the farmers of the Province at large, seems inconsistent with their action in getting into it. The grants may not have come up to Mr. Elliott's expectations, but to take the broad view of the scheme, it may be looked upon more as an investment than an expense, a scheme which will standardize the roads of the Province in width, drainage and construction, with a certain amount of provincial control.

Formerly, on provincial roads, I am given to understand, the county paid 40 per cent. and the Province 60 per cent. Now the county pays 20 per cent. and the Provincial and Federal Governments 40 per cent. each, equal to 80 per cent. County provincial roads remain the same as formarly, namely, Province 60 per cent., county 40 per cent; but whereas in the past no grant has been made on township roads, the Government policy is to give to the townships 20 per cent. of all monies spent by the township on all roads, and 40 per cent. of the salary paid to township commissioners. This, although not quite up to Mr. Elliott's expectations, will, I believe, appeal to all fair-minded people of the Province, and it is the hope of the Government that before long they may be able to substantially increase these grants. If the county roads are the feeders to the shipping stations, so township roads are feeders to the county roads, until they all eventually are the feeders to the provincial roads.

The county has the option of falling in line or staying out—nothing compulsory about it. I hear nothing but approval from both sides of the House, and when we consider some of the roads in one of the nicest spots of the Province, one naturally wonders has Mr. Elliott got full knowledge of this scheme. Of course, the Government must consider the Province as a whole, and this Government will not grant special favors. Some of the townships of Peterborough County have gone into it, and others, I believe, have expressed their willingness to go in. Mr. Elliott, what is your trouble?

Yours truly,
THOS. TOOMS.

BUY CANADIAN GOODS.

Editor Review: Peterborough appears to be prospering all right. The City Council has done well in bringing factories to the city: the Western Clock Co., the Nashua Gummed and Coated Paper Co., the Aladdin Co., the Raybestos Co., all American companies; the Albion Knitting Co., the Bon Marche Co. The same thing is happening all over Canada and Canadians will soon be able to do without American goods of all kinds, and the high exchange rate will soon be no more. The Board of Trade deserves credit for the part they took, as well as the people in general. "Buy Canadian goods and boost our country."

Yours for

BELLEVILLE MAN BLEEDS TO DEATH IN TUNNEL

BODY OF JOHN POWLESS WAS FOUND BESIDE STEAM SHOVEL

Belleville, March 30.—At an early hour this morning a fatal accident occurred at the Canada Cement Company's plant at Point Ann, the victim being an employe named John Powless. No person saw the accident, and the man had apparently been dead for some time when the body was found. Powless was employed in that portion of the plant known as the green clay storage tunnel. His duties were to shovel up clay, and the work called him in close proximity to a steam shovel. It is surmised that he came in contact with the shovel, which struck him a severe blow, fracturing his jaw and inflicting a severe wound under the left arm near the arm-pit. Powless was also hit on the head, and was probably rendered unconscious. The wound under the arm was such as to cause the victim to bleed to death. Dr. Boyce, coroner, of this city, was notified of the occurrence and opened an inquest. The victim was 50 years of age and was born on the Mohawk Reserve. A widow and one son and two daughters survive.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

Former President Taft owns a walking stick that is 250,000 years old.

When Prof. W. S. Foster, of Spokane was investigating the geological history of Southern Alberta a few years ago, he discovered a stump in a peat bed amid glacial drift in the Valley of Old Man River. Near it were some prehistoric seaweeds in good preservation. He was unable to determine what kind of wood the stump was, and the question remained an enigma. The geological stratum in which it was found had lain 60 feet beneath the surface for centuries, but had been exposed by river floods. Whether the original tree had grown in southern Alberta or had been brought from the neighborhood of the North Pole on an iceberg of the glacial age, no one knows. Few trees grow in the region now. The age of the stump was estimated by the geologists at a quarter of a million years.

Prof. Foster took the stump home to Seattle and when the Spokane people, on one of Mr. Taft's visits, wanted to give him a unique present, they had a cane fashioned from the wood. The walking stick cut from the tree that may once have sheltered the mastodom and the petrodactyl is valued at $5,000.

WHY COMPLAIN OF TAXES

People in Ancient Days Were Taxed More Heavily.

People in Bible times were taxed heavily. They were on a straight levy, not based on incomes or excess profits. Payment was compelled and no excuses made, nor were there any exemptions to married men or heads of families. Although there were no army or navy establishments and no airplane program, the people paid their assessments in both gold and silver.

King Solomon compelled the Canaanites who were left in the country to pay him tribute. The rebellion of Jeroboam on account of the heavy taxes levied by Solomon, afterward growing into the revolt of the Ten Tribes, was the most pretentious kick against the levy of the powers in Bible times. Jeroboam was at first compelled to take refuge in Egypt, and it was on account of the taxes and levies laid by Solomon that the Israelites said to Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, upon the latter's death:

"Thy father made our yokes grievous; now therefore make thou the grievous service of thy father and his heavy yokes which he put upon us lighter and we will serve thee."

When Caesar Augustus was in power and Quirinus was governor of Syria, after having just been elected for a third term because he had kept the Syrians out of war, the first named issued a proclamation signed by his secretary of state that the whole world would be taxed. And all the people went to their own city to be taxed. The later editions of the Bible speak of the act as the people being "enrolled."

GIRLS FROM OLD LAND REACH CITY TODAY

OVER ONE HUNDRED TAKEN TO BARNADO HOME— FOR DOMESTIC SERVICE

A party of one hundred and one girls arrived this morning on the 6:20 train for the Barnardo Home in this city. This is the first party to be sent out to this country since 1915, when the submarine warfare made it inadvisable to continue sending out parties.

They are a bright, intelligent-looking lot of girls, ranging in ages from ten to fifteen years, and seemed well pleased with the prospets of the new land. The younger girls will be sent to school in the city while the older girls will be sent out to domestic service, and this should go a long way towards relieving the shortage of household help which has existed ever since the first days of the war.

The girls sailed from England on the Cecilian and arrived at St. John's, N. B., on Sunday. It is expected that now that emigration has been re-opened three parties a year will be arriving as in former years, and the next parties expected this year will be in June and September.

While nearly every part of the British Isles is represented in the party which arrived today, the majority are from London, where the headquarters of the Barnardo Homes are located.

WHAT TEACHERS CONTRIBUTE

Superanuation Fund Has a Balance on Hand of $610,959.

In answer to Mr. Marshall of Lincoln, Hon. Mr. Grant, Minister of Education, stated in the Legislature that the total amount paid by Public school teachers to the Government Superannuation Fund was $469,022, by High school teachers $90,611, and by inspectors, $14,538. The total amount paid from the fund to the Public school teachers was $61,948, to High school teachers $5,386, and to inspectors $3,463. The total amount standing to the credit of the fund was $610,959.

TWO THIRDS ARE FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING

RETURNS ALL IN FOR STRAW VOTE TAKEN IN THE FACTORIES

The final returns of the daylight saving canvass of the factories instituted by the Board of Trade have been tabulated and shows that 63.4 per cent. of all employes in Peterborough are in favor of the re-introduction of the measure again this year. It is expected that with this pressure brought to bear on the City Council there will be little doubt that daylight saving will again be in force in Peterborough this year.

HAS PARLIAMENT LEGAL RIGHT TO GRANT DIVORCE

DIFFERENT OPINIONS AMONG LAWYERS ON THIS IMPORTANT QUESTION

Toronto, March 31. — Mr. Bram Thompson, editor of the Canadian Law Times, is the authority for the statement that the Parliament of Canada has no authority to grant divorce. In reply to this, one of the legal authorities of Toronto remarks that the British North America Act has always been considered sufficient authority for the granting of divorces by the Federal Parliament. Section 91 of the B. N. A. Act says:

"It shall be lawful for the Queen, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons, to make laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada in relation to all matters not coming within the class of subjects by this Act assigned exclusively to the Provinces and for greater certainty the exclusive legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada extends to all matters coming within the classes of sbjects next hereinafter enumerated."

Specifically Mentioned

Then follows a list of twenty-nine subjects about which the Federal Parliament shall be concerned, and the 26th is, "Marriage and Divorce."

Since 1867 in the granting of nearly five hundred divorces this has been considered sufficient authority.

The Journal of the Society of Comparative Legislature, of London, England, said in an article in April, 1918:

"It will be remembered that marriage and divorce are within the exclusive powers of the Dominion Parliament by the British North America Act, 1867."

And the Canadian Law Times of March, 1916 (Mr. Thompson's own journal) says:

"It is perfectly true that the Dominion Parliament has exclusive authority ever marriage and divorce."

Mr. Raney's Opinion.

Hon. W. E. Raney, the Attorney-General for the Province of Ontario, also seems to be among those who for fifty-three years have thought that the Federal Government had complete authority on the subject of divorce, for he has written: "The Dominion Parliament is auohtrized to legisalte on the entire subject of divorce and marriage."

Powers Are Judicial

Mr. Thompson declares that the Parliament of Canada has a legislative function only and not a judicial function such as it is aid to exercise in passing a private bill of divorce. The Parliament of England, whose powers the Canadian Parliament inherited in large measure, also exercised the same judicial function, for until the middle of the last century divorce in England was granted by Act of Parliament.

Divorce was no new thing in Canada upon the passing of the B. N. A. Act, for the Legislative Assembly of Upper Canada granted a divorce to a Toronto (York) man and woman in 1840, and the Provinces of British Columbia, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island exercised in their Legislatures before 1867 the right to grant divorce.

COMMITTEES TO CHOOSE MATRON FOR SHELTER

WILL HAVE PERSONAL INTERVIEW FITH FOUR CANDIDATES FOR POSITION

The matter of appointing a matron for the Children's Shelter is proving a knotty problem, and the matter was referred back to the committee appointed for the purpose by the executive board of the Children's Aid Society at a special meeting held yesterday afternoon. The chair was occupied by Rev. Father Phelan.

Chief Thompson, reporting for the committee, stated that there had been eleven applications received but that after careful consideration these had simmered down until it was a choice between four, all of whom appeared to be equally as good as the others. He felt that it would be necessary to have personal interviews before any satisfactory choice could be made.

Rev. Father Phelan agreed with Chief Thompson that an interview would be advisable, and he thought farther that the committee could quite easily go right ahead with the appointment after interviewing the various applicants, and that they would be in a better position to make a decision than the board as a whole would be. Other members agreed with this view, and it was moved by Mr. Edgar and seconded by Rev. F. E. Malott, that the advice of the Chief with reference to a personal interview be acted upon by the committee and that the committee be empowered to make the appointment subject to confirmation by the board at the next meeting, and that the committee also have full power with reference to the question of salaries. The motion was carried unanimously.

As this was the only business to come before the meeting the board adjourned until the date of the next regular meeting. Those present were Rev. Father Phelan, Rev. F. E. Malott, Mayor McIntyre, Dr. King, Agent Powell, Chief Thompson, Mr. H. B. Cowan, and Mesdames Gibbs, Turner, Stocker, Fanning and Knox.

YOUNG WOMEN AVOID PAIN

This One Tells How She Was Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Regina, Sask.—"For two years I suffered from periodic pains and nausea so I was unable to get around. My mother had me take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am much better and able to go about all the time, which I could not do before. I recommend Vegetable Compound to my friends if I know they suffer the same way, and you may publish my letter if it will help any one, as I hope it will."—Miss Z. G. BLACKWELL, 2073 Osler Place, Regina, Sask.

If every girl who suffers as Miss Blackwell did, or from irregularities, painful periods, backache, sideache, dragging down pains, inflammation or ulceration would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from such suffering.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

THE HISTORY OF BATTLEFORD

It is only of recent years, since the opening of the country by the railroads and the discovery of its wonderful possibilities, that Western Canada has found its way into the histories of the world. The stories of the early settlers who penetrated an almost unknown land full of hope but of uncertainty of the future, the Indian troubles, the proving of the fertility and productivity of Western soil, the transition of the prairie from its primitive wildness to the huge productive grain areas supplying the granaries of the world—all these are almost too near our own epoch to yet be history. Yet there are certain localities which constitute landmarks in the glowing story of Western progress, names already fragrant with historical aroma, blending the romance of early settlement with the bustle of modern industry and agricultural progress. The Battleford district is one of these.

The city of Battleford, beautifully situated where the Battle river and mighty Saskatchewan converse, was one of the earliest of Western settlements—a thriving little community in the era before the railroads. It linked up Winnipeg with Calgary and MacLeod on the main trail which led through what are now the prairie provinces. In 1878 it was made the seat of the North West Territories Government and Parliament continued to meet there until the penetration of the Canadian Pacific Railway further south and the consequent attraction of settlers along its tracks caused it to relinquish this honor in favor of the more conveniently situated town of Regina. Its name occurs frequently in the tales of early western settlement and the Battleford district was the scene of many bloody encounters between pioneers and Indians. At the barricades of the town the Indian Chief Poundmaker surrendered to General Middleton on May 26th, 1885, virtually closing the chapter of Canada's Indian wars.

It is in this historic district, that one of the last blocks of land owned by the C.P.R. is just becoming available for settlement. It is a beautiful park area of picturesque shady groves, rolling upland and luxuriant meadows. The country is admirably suited to mixed farming and the live stock industry, for its rolling slopes produce fine hay, and its clumps of trees, whilst offering no serious obstacles to grain growing, afford shade in the summer and shelter in the winter. The soil is a rich chocolate loam with a clay subsoil ensuring a conservation of these ingredients which make for rapid and hardy growth. Wheat is grown extensively and successfully as well as other cereal crops. Every phase of agriculture in fact, has been successfully carried on. Poultry raising, market gardening, and vegetable growing flourish, whilst there is no better dairying locality in the Western provinces.

William J. Milliken, C. P. R., section forman at London, dropped dead while playing with his children.

William Cline shot and killed his nephew, Gordon Fetterly at Williamsburg, and then took his own life.

The Telephone Situation

What We Get For The Money!

On January 1st this year our total investment in telephone property—buildings, equipment, tools and supplies, plus what it has cost in actual cash to put this working equipment into service—was $51,458,306. On the same date we had in operation 337,476 telephone instruments.

This means an investment of $152 for each telephone instrument in service.

What has been provided for this investment of $152 per telephone?

Here are some of the things:

An exchange telephone system in thousands of cities, towns and villages in Ontario and Quebec with substantial fire-proof buildings the last word in sanitation and convenience; 96.750 miles of Long Distance wire on 9,500 miles of poles; 587,000 miles of wire in underground cables; many hundreds of miles of wire providing party service to rural communities besides exchange and pole line facilities to give exchange connection to 720 local telephone organizations serving over 103,000 subscribers, mostly farmers.

It takes some 11,600 telephone workers to operate the system and their wages in 1919 totaled $9,400,000.

This goodly band of faithful workers, with those dependent on them, are a substantial element in the community. They are intimately concerned in its welfare—concerned most of all that the telephone service shall be adequate to its needs. They appreciate, just like the rest of humanity, the kindly co-operation of the public.

WOMEN MAY OUTNUMBER THE MEN WHO VOTE AT THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

Provided Suffrage Amendment is Ratified in Time to Give thn Franchise to the Former.

(By Associated Press)

Washington, March 30. — Ballots cast by women in the coming Presidential election will fall short of the potential men's vote by over 2,500,000 provided the suffrage amendment is ratified and state registraton laws enacted in time to permit women all over the country to participate, according to estimates by the National Womens' Party.

With the 1910 census as a basis, the Women's Party estimates the number of men eligible to vote at 29,577,690, and the possible women voters at 26,883,566. In 1916, however the actral vote cast for all various Presidential candidates was 18,528,743, omitting ballots thrown out for cause, which leaves over 11,000,000 possible votes unregistered. If as large a proportion of the men voters remain indifferent in the coming election, women political leaders here say that the eagerness of women to exercise their newly acquired privilege may more than offset the disparity in numbers between the sexes.

In five of the states, moreover, women of voting age outnumber the men. Massachussetts has the greatest preponderance of women "voteers" with 58,264 more women than men, North Carolina is next with a women's majority of 15,288 and South Caroline with 10,307 is third. In Rhode Island women of voting age outnumber men by 3,196 and in Maryland by 1,292.

FEDERAL ACT PERMITS VOTE TO DECIDE IMPORTATION OF LIQUORS

Ottawa, March 30.— The amended Canada temperance act, which was passed towards the end of the summer session last year, needs no further amendment to be applied to the province of Ontario, in the opinion of the department of justice, Dr. W. B. Whidden, Brandon, was informed in the house today by the leader of the Government. The answer was to a series of questions which Dr. Whidden had placed on the order paper some days ago.

In a letter to Hon. N. W. Rowell, Mr. C. E. Steele, president of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance, said, in part, as follows:

"(1) Was it the intention of the Government that the act should apply to Ontario?

"(2) Would the Government be prepared to bring in legislation removing all doubt?"

Reply to Alliance

Hon. Mr. Rowell replied on March 3, saying that in answer to question No. 1. "It certainly was the intention of the Government that the act should apply to the Province of Ontario, and, in the opinion of the department of justice, the act does so apply."

Replying to question No. 2, Mr. Rowell pointed out that, in the opinion of the justice department, no amendment would appear to be necessary. The department of justice was taking the opinion of eminent counsel upon the question.

For the Little Ones

To Keep Their Digestion Perfect Nothing is so Safe and Pleasant as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

An experienced observer in charge of a large office said it was a waste of words to tell most people to eat plain food. They prefer the food that delights the eye. Checking up on the after effects the usual distresses of gassiness, sour risings, water brash, loginess and so on may be avoided by following the meal with one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. These supply the stomach with an alkaline effect thus promoting normal conditions as in health. This puts the O. K. on so-called rich food. Men and women are but children of a larger growth when it comes to eating the foods that satisfy, even though they may cause indigestion.

Indigestion is not necessarily confined to those who live high. It may follow so simple a process as the flavor of a bay leaf, thyme, garlic, sage or any of the other savory flavorings so universally used in soups, roasts, dressings, etc. As a rule if the stomach balks at such things, it will be disturbed by cheese, milk, coffee, pies and almost anything that most people like so well. Such conditions as these are met quite adequately by following the meal with one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They digest food and at the same time supply the stomach with an alkaline effect that prevents gassiness, heartburn, sour risings, drowsiness after eating and such distresses so familiar to those susceptible to indigestion or dyspepsia. Get a box of these tablets at any drug store in the United States or Canada, price 60 cents, and then note how comfortable the stomach feels. Your most excellent cook may use garlic without a protest.

NO CHILDREN ALLOWED

Landlord's Mandate Drives Chicago Mother to Suicide

Chicago, March 30.—"No children allowed!"

Everywhere Mrs. Agnes Ready went in her long, weary trudge for an apartment she was told the same cruel story. Pekingese spaniels, Japanese chows, canaries, and even pedigreed cats, these would be welcomed, but not her babies—Albert, three years old, and John, one and one-half.

Discouraged, Mrs. Ready kissed her two children, entered the bathroom, locked the door, and then shot herself through the temple.

When the father came home he found Albert and John playing in front of the bathroom door.

"Where's mamma?" he asked

"She's in there," said Albert.

"She's kissed us good-bye and said 'I'm going on a long, long trip.'"

Mr. Ready forced the door and found his wife dead.

"We had received notice to remove from this apartment," explained Mr. Ready, "because a member of the owner's family is to occupy it. My work as a building contractor prevented me from looking for another apartment, but Mrs. Ready has been looking every day since March 1 Money was no object with us. But it seemed she could not find an apartment where children were allowed.

"She became discouraged and then acutely melancholy. Our youngest baby died four weeks ago. She became obsessed with the fear that we would be forced to live in a tent or in such fashion that would impair the children's health."

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if bladder bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become sluggish; they become over-backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for a generation to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralise the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

Employees of Ottawa Company Looking for 65 Cents an Hour

Ottawa, March 30.—The Ottawa Street Railway Company and its employes are negotiating in connection with a request made by the latter for an increased schedule of wages, to come into effect on May 1. It is learned through some of the men that the company is being asked to grant a maximum wage of 65 cents per hour. The present maximum is 45 cents per hour.

Major F. D. Burpee, superintendent of the company, has intimated that an increase will be granted the employes, with due regard to the advanced cost of living.

PROPAGANDA NOT BULLETISM CAUSE OF COLLAPSE

STORY OF THE MILITARY CAREER AND DOWNFALL OF RUSSIAN LEADER

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, March 31. — Propaganda, not bulletism, led to the final collapse of Admiral Alexander Koltchak, Supreme Ruler of Russia, who, after losing his army of eighty thousand men by wholesale desertion, was executed at Irkutsk, Siberia, early in February by the Bolsheviki. The success of the Soviet leaders in winning battles by propaganda was described here yesterday by Major-General I. Thord-Gray, who served with the All-Russian army under Koltchak, from early in 1919 until the final cataclysm this winter.

Major-General Thord-Gray went to Siberia in November, 1918, as a staff officer in the Canadian Expeditionary Force (Siberia) with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and no one member of that force saw more of the thrilling events that marked the struggle against the Red armies in the Siberian area. When it was announced that the Canadian troops were to be withdrawn he obtained permission to join the Russian army and was given the rank of major-general under Koltchak. He served in the latter's armies from Vladivostok to Ekaterinburg, and on one occasion was wounded at Omsk. When the Social Revolutionaries captured Vladivostok recently, Major-General Thord-Gray was taken prisoner, and before he finaly escaped from Siberia two attempts were made to assassinate him.

Two days after the All-Russian forces under Koltchak had evacuated their capital city, Omsk, Leon Tortsky, the Bolshevik minister of war, delivered a "propaganda" address to a group of All-Rusian prisoners, who had been taken in the fighting, said General Thord-Gray. Calling those men "comrades." Trotsky said they would be welcomed by the Red army if they wished to join. Captive officers, he said, who wished to return to Koltchak would be given safe escort and 2,000 roubles each. A number of the prisoners accepted this offer, and, returning to their own lines, told what Trotsky had done. Within two weeks, said General Thord-Gray, Koltchak had practically no army.

In the last weeks of the fighting, said General Thord-Gray, the Bolshevik troops showed better morale than those of Koltchak and were better armed. The Reds had one machine gun for every twenty men while Koltchak's troops had but three to each battalion of six hundred men. During the 2,000-mile retreat of the All-Russian armies, they were driven before machine gun, not rifle, fire. General Sakharoff, the All-Russian war minister and chief of staff, "lost the army at Omsk without a fight," said General Thord-Gray.

General Thord-Gray is a veteran of upwards of twenty wars and campaigns. In the Great War he commanded a British battalion until wounded. Later he was connected with the British Recruiting Mission in the United States. He served in many African campaigns, and at one time held a commission in the Mexican army.

Ninety Persons Are Employed to Enforce Measure

The Ontario Temperance Act, from the time of its coming into force on September 16, 1916, until October 31 1919, has yielded the Province a profit of $66,194.19, acording to a return tabled in the Legislature by Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary. The total revenue received under the Act has been $722,328.64, while the cost of enforcement has been $656,134.45. Salaries and other remuneration paid last year in connection with the enforcement of the Act totalled $119,187.12. There are 70 persons employed by the License Commission in the enforcement of the Act, exclusive of an office staff of 10 persons and from 10 to 15 special detectives who are employed from time to time.

AMENDMENTS MADE TO SUCCESSION ACT

THAT IS, THEY ARE PROPOSED BY PROVINCIAL TREASURER IN REPORT

Toronto, March 30.—Forecasts of Provincial Treasurer Smith's proposed amendments to the succession duties act would show the following scale of taxation:

Where the aggregate value exceeds $25,000, but does not exceed $50,000, one per cent.

Where the aggregate exceeds $50,000, but not $75,000, 2½ per cent.

Where the aggregate exceeds $75,000, but not $100,000, 3½ per cent.

Where the aggregate exceeds $100,000, but not $150,000, 5 per cent.

Thence, the duty increases a half per cent. with each additional $100,000 so that on estates of over $1,000,000 the duty is 10 per cent.

Additional duties are levied when a sum exceeding $50,000 passes to any one person. These range from two and a half per cent. on sums between $50,000 and $75,000, to 3½ per cent. on sums exceeding $3,000,000.

Special duties are also fixed on estate passing to "Lineal ancestors" of the deceased, other than parents or grandparents, or to brothers or sisters, unless aunts or cousins, nieces or nephews. These duties range from 5 per cent. on estate between $5,000 and $25,000 in value to 25 per cent. on estates exceeding $1,000,000.

Where any of the relatives included in this classification receives more than $25,000, additional duties are also to be levied. Where one receives more than $25,000, but less than $50,000, the additional rate is six per cent. Thence the additional rate advances to 20 per cent. where one person receives more than $1,000,000, and five per cent. additional is levied for each additional half-million, a limit for six per cent. is fixed on the duties which may be collected.

Where estates passed to more distant relatives of the deceased or to persons other than relatives the rates ranged from 10 per cent. on estates between $5000 and $10,000 to 60 per cent. on estates exceeding $800,000.

The amendments to the act will bring the following under the definition of property situated in Ontario:

Any bond or debenture issued by a company incorporated under the laws of Ontario, which is charged upon any property in Ontario; all shares of stock in any such company, whether owned by a person domiciled in Ontario at the time of his death or by a person not so domiciled.

The provincial treasurer will be authorized to appoint commissioners to fix the amount of succession duty due upon estates. The treasurer or any person interested may appeal from the judgment of the commissioner to the appellate court. Penalties will be fixed for persons failing to make proper returns as to estates.

NEGRO IS LYNCHED BY MOB IN KENTUCKY

TAKEN FROM POLICE OFFICERS AND HANGED TO TELEGRAPH POLE

Paris, Kentucky, March 31. — Swooping down unexpectedly upon officers who were taking Grant Smith, a negro, to the jail at Paris, a crowd of 40 men captured the negro and hurried him in an automobile on the Haysville-Lexington pike to Mays Licks, Fleming county, where he was hanged to a telegraph pole. Smith, who is 40, disappeared two months ago after alleged assaults on a 14-year-old girl. He was arrested in Michigan last week.

A quickly formed posse of county authorities unsuccessfully endeavored to overtake the mob in automobiles. When they arrived at Mays Lick the crowd had disappeared, but the body of the negro was found hanging by the neck at the end of a rope tied to the top of a telegraph pole. It was not mutilated, although threats were made at Paris to hang him. His arms were wired to his side and he was still handcuffed. According to reports reaching here, the negro lived 15 minutes after he was swung up.

ROBERT STROUD FIRST MAN HANGED IN FIFTY YEARS

UNLESS PRESIDENT WILSON COMMUTES HIS SENTENCE LIFE IMPRISONMENT

(By Associated Press.)

Leavenworth, Kansas, March 31.—Robert F. Stroud, of Juneau, Alaska, will be the first man legally hanged in Kansas in almost fifty years unless President Wilson saves him by exercise of executive clemency.

The last legal hanging in this state took place in 1870 and the death penalty was abolished in Kansas in 1907; but Stroud was tried and convicted in federal courts for a murder committed in the federal penitentiary here and sentenced under federal law to be hanged.

Another unusual feature of the case is the fact that he would have escaped with life imprisonment if he had not insisted upon a third trial, which resulted in a death sentence. If it is carried out he will be the first man to be executed in Leavenworth prison.

Stroud was serving a 12-year sentence in the penitentiary for the killing of a man in Alaska in a quarrel over a dance hall girl, when in 1916 hte attacked Andrew E. Turner, a prison guard, and stabbed him to death with a dagger which he had made from a table knife, and carried in a concealed pocket in his coat. Stroud asserted subsequently that Turner had called him a name.

For this killing Stroud had three trials. In the first he was found guilty of murder and sentenced to death, but the court of appeals remanded the case on the ground that the trial judge had failed to inform the jury of its privilege of bringing in a "qualified verdict" limiting his punishment to life imprisonment. In the second trial the jury availed itself of this legal provision and sentenced him for life. Stroud's lawyers felt that they had gained a victory, but at the prisoner's insistence the case was again appealed, and at his third trial Stroud was once more found guilty and sentenced to death. The case was carried to the United States Supreme Court which affirmed the sentence.

Stroud has been aided by his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Stroud, who came from Alaska in an effort to save his life. She appealed to President Wilson to commute the death sentence.

HOUSE RENTS IN OTTAWA

Raised From $5 to $20 A Month Beginning May First

Ottawa, March 30. — Increases ranging all the way from five to twenty dollars per month over previous rentals are being asked by local landlords renewing house leases, which become effective May 1st, and are in most cases of one year's duration. Apartment house rents are expected to show advances ranging all the way from five to twenty-five dollars when the old leases are renewed or new ones made next October.

Real estate agents state that the scarcity of houses continues to grow more acute, and it is becoming much more difficult to secure a new lease or make renewals of old ones.

STOP SHORT CIRCUITING IN LIQUOR DELIVERY

F. G. SANDY, M. L. A., OF VICTORIA, HAS A BILL IN LEGISLATURE

Toronto, March 31.—After a stormy caucus, at which the temperance situation was thoroughly discussed and opinions far from unanimous were voiced by the members present, the Ontario Government yesterday decided to relegate to a private member the task of bringing in a motion to provide for the taking of a referendum to prohibit the importation of liquor into Ontario. Notice was given by H. McCleary, U.F.O. member for North Lanark in the Legislature of a resolution asking the Dominion Government to take a referendum on the question. Notice was also given by F. G. Sandy, U.F.O. member for South Victoria, of a bill to become effective in the event of the referendum's carrying to prevent short circuiting in the liquor traffic, and to restrict importation to the Ontario License Board, which will be permitted to import it only for medical, mechanical and manufacturing purposes. Two days' notice is required before the resolution or the bill can come before the House, which means that they may be discussed on Thursday or may be laid over until after Easter.

WHAT DOES THE O. T. A. COST?

Hartley Dewart Asks for Full Details of Operation

The Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature, at its meeting today, on the motion of Hon. Peter Smith, Provincial Treasurer, appointed J. W. Curry, K.C., M. P. P., Liberal member for South-east Toronto, as chairman. It was decided to meet again at ten o'clock on Thursday morning.

H. H. Dewart moved that J. D. Flavelle, chairman of the Ontario License Board, J. F. Mowat, accountant of the board, and J. W. Cleland, chief of the Government dispensaries, be summoned to appear before the committee on Thursday to give evidence regarding certain items in the public accounts, including $235,454 for the enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act, the salaries of employees at the Government dispensaries, and the expense of taking over vendor's licenses, and also all orders-in-Council relating to remission of fines, penalties, or sentences, under the O. T. A. since September, 1916.

Mr. Dewart stated the orders-in-Council were brought down at the very last meeting of the committee last year, but were never considered.

STAGE STRUCK MEN AND WOMEN ROBBED

ALLEGED THEATRICAL AGENTS ARRESTED IN TORONTO ON FRAUD CHARGE

Toronto, March 31.—One hundred stage-struck men and women are bemoaning the ill-luck which separated each of them from five dollars in good Canadian currency and a prospective billet as leading man, comedian, soubrette or leading lady.

Their disappointment is due to the arrest of Howard Nolan and Robert Riley, Bond street, on a charge of fraud.

According to the police the accused advertised for men and women wishing to go on the stage. They had an office on Seaton street and during their short tenure as "theatrical agents" they collected approximately $500 from clients, who were promised positions in the "Conway Road Show."

The prisoners traded under the name of the Eagle Theatrical Union.

PUBLIC MEETING WAS

within a year. The Canadian General with their new extensions will, it is expected double their pay roll, and the question arises where are these new employees to live. In Mr. Armstrong's opinion, there is but one thing standing in the way of Peterborough's industrial growth and that is houses.

Boom in Sight.

Mr. E. G. Patterson of the C. G. E. said Peterborough is on the eve of a big expansion. He realized the need of houses, but could offer no solution of this problem. His company's new buildings will, they hope, be finished by December first, and bonuses will be offered to that end. "We could take on 500 more men tomorrow," declared Mr. Patterson. "Were housing accommodation available. Peterborough is on the map in the eyes of both Ontario and Quebec, and every day I am in receipt of applications from men who want to move to this city. If Peterborough grasps its opportunities now, there is no reason why its population should not double in ten years."

Mr. Edgar Worth— "I engaged nine outside men last week, and they had to live in hotels until even boarding accommodation could be found for them."

Chairman Frank Dobbin of the Housing Commission suggested the issuing of debentures by the city to the extent of at least $100,000. This money could be loaned to desirable applicants for homes of their own under the rules laid down in the Ontario Housing Act. The city could guarantee its own bonds, he said, and sell to manufacturers and citizens. He felt confident that such companies as the DeLaval, the C. G. E., Canadian Woolens, Limited and the Canadian Packing Company, Limited would invest liberally in such debentures. "There are enough men in this room," he declared, "to sell debentures to that amount in two weeks.

Mr. Dobbin here went on to say that payments of loans to workingmen including sinking fund and interest should be made as moderate as possible. Then workingmen should be convinced of the need for economy in building so as to moderate their financial burden. Let them do as their forefathers did before them; add modern conveniences from time to time as circumstances warranted. By the use of stoves for a few years concrete floored cellars could be left in abeyance; and verandahs also could be built at a later date. Such conveniences as furnaces and exterior comforts could be added in the course of time when the owners' debt had been reduced. By such a policy, Mr Dobbin concluded that $600 or $700 would be deleted from the first cost of contaruction, to let a man get into his own house and have a home over his head.

Talking of costs, Mr. Dobbin asserted that the concensus of lumbermen's opinion is that there will be no reduction in the cost of material until 1922.

As to a suggestion that the Oriental Hotel be utilized, he did not think it practicable. In his opinion the cost of converting it into an apartment building would be too heavy to allow of rental within the means of men of families such as Peterborough expects to come here with new industries.

In conclusion, Mr. Dobbin had little hope of the laboring man being able these days to build his own house on borrowed money. But the scheme he considered practicable for the good mechanic.

Question of Depreciation.

Ex-Mayor Duncan here spoke of the cost of building now and referred to the plan a-foot for a group of capitalists to erect so many dwellings each. He thought some rich men could afford to lose $300 or $400 by a possible future depreciation in values, in the interests of community progress. He himself was willing to put up a couple of houses if that would help conditions.

Mr. Duncan also drew the meeting's attention to the fact that Mr. Robert Stuart of the Quaker Oats Co. had thought it worth while the company considering his (Mr. Duncan's) proposition that they build 50 houses on their vacant property in East City.

Cost of Houses.

The Mayor was in favor of six-roomed houses for workingmen, which should not cost more than $3,000 each. He approved of Mr. Dobbin's city guaranteed debentures proposition, and was strong for all-brick dwellings, which come nearly as cheap as brick-veneer. "You can't," he said, "put up any kind of a house for less than from $2,500 to $4,000.

Mr. W. H. Bradburn thought Mr. Dobbin's suggestion a good one. In evidence that the shortage of houses is general, he said that a lady from Garden Hill had spent two days in Port Hope seeking for a house; she came here to him on the same errand. Then a man from Syracuse, N.Y., says housing conditions there are the same as here.

Mr. Edgar Worth said his company, Canadian Woollens, are going to develop their industry and they are up against the housing question. He thought houses in groups might be built attractively at a cost of $3,000 each. With a municipal scheme as proposed by Mr Dobbin he was optimistic of community backing.

Mr. J. W. Worth: "Yes, we've got to get down to the community spirit."

Mr. J. J. Hartley said a great deal of the trouble lies in the fact that people are looking for too many conveniences. Like people of 30 or 40 years ago citizens should be ready to make some sacrifice in order to acquire their own houses. He suggested the building of 28 x 22 houses like that he erected for himself when a young man, with two rooms and a pantry downstairs, and three rooms upstairs, and stones used instead of a furnace. The rooms to be small, like in Toronto, so that they can be easily heated.

He believed such a house of solid brick could be built today within the means of the average workingman.

President Worth asserted that the housewife's opinion today is in favor of small houses with modern conveniences, especially so as help is unobtainable. He advocated the bungalow style of architecture.

Exempt Taxes.

Ex-Ald. Langford suggested that any man who has a vacant lot and will build thereon with borrowed capital might have the taxes in the building exempted for a number of years to help him out. Some might argue, he said, that this would not be fair to other ratepayers, but he thought that in the general interest of community growth there would be nothing objectionable in such a policy. The city would still get taxes from the land, and the need of housing new citizens would be furthered.

City Clerk Armstrong replied that the land would not permit of such exemption.

Ald. J. J. Turner thought Council should seize the opportunity of backing up the Housing Commission; if that commission will not act, then appoint one which will. He proposed that the commission invite applications for homes under a municipal housing scheme, and thus ascertain how many are willing to and capable of entering into and carrying out a contract with the city for houses built on borrowed money. Let a committee of the Board of Trade, he urged, take up the financial end and sell debentures issued by the city at 6 or 6¼ per cent. interest, such money to be loaned to applicants for houses. By such action Alderman Turner felt confident 50 applicants would be forthcoming in two weeks. As brick is going to be scarce, he proposed cement block or stucco dwellings.

Mr. Edgar Worth here remarked that Canadian Woollens had used up all the available brick in Peterborough, Lindsay and Beaverton.

Fresh Air Homes.

Ald. Crowe suggested that during the summer months people could live comfortably in tents pending the erection of houses.

Council's Attitude.

In reply to Mr. Patterson, the Mayor said he was confident Council would issue debentures to the tune of $100,000 or $200,000 in furtherance of a housing project.

Ald. Turner said he was willing for such an issue.

Ald. Gainey would rather the manufacturers put up the money for homes for employees. In his opinion too many people of small families are living in large houses which might be split up to offer additional housing accommodation. He inclined also to apartment houses with adjacent playgrounds.

Committee to Act.

Ex-Ald. Stratton here induced concrete action by moving his resolution for the issuing of debentures by the city to a maximum amount of $300,000, the appointment of a committee to sell these debentures locally and community activity to stimulate the building of houses individually or privately. This carried.

A motion by J. W. Worth and Ald. Turner that applications for homes under a municipal housing plan also carried.

Ex-Ald. Stratton's suggestion that President Edgar Worth of the Board of Trade appoint three members of this organization to act jointly with the Council and the Housing Commission, was adopted.

As to style of homes, the meeting seemed to be in favor of cottages and small bungalows as easier and cheaper to build these days of high prices and scarcity of material.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restore Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

"THE GREAT SHADOW AT" THE GRAND TOMORROW

ALL CANADIAN PICTURE WILL SHOW SCENES OF LOCAL INTEREST

"The Great Shadow," the production opening at the Grand Thursday, and which will be the bill for the rest of the week, was produced by the Adanac Producing Company, Limited, of Montreal. All interior settings of the production were assembled and photographed at their studio at Trenton, Ont., and considerable of the exterior scenes were taken in Toronto, on Lonsdale Road, Rosedale Ravine and the Lake Shore Road.

Peterborough audiences can therefore feel that when we state that this is the first and only all Canadian production that no attempted misrepresentation to appeal to Canadian patronage is being made, and apart from its Canadian atmosphere, this production is a thrilling, gripping drama full of pathos and heart interest. The dramatic critics contend that it compares with any of the large American productions and are very flattering in their criticisms. The settings, photography and acting are par excellence.

The "star" in the production, Mr. Tyrone Power, is well known in Peterborough audiences, by his presentations of the "Drain Digger," in "The Servant in the House," and as "Brutus" in "Julius Caesar." Unquestionably his portrayal of the character of "Jim MacDonald," a big outstanding labor leader in this picture, is admirably presented. He is supported by a notable caste chief among which is Louis Stern, taking the part of a Bolshevist leader. Mr. Stern's presentation of this role is so convincing that when he is finally hurled over a 100 foot cliff in an automobile the audience is stirred to applause, although the scene is so realistic that it really takes your breath away for a minute.

Ivy Ward, the phenomenal child actress, known to picture fans as "Baby Joan", carries her audiences with her from the opening, and when she is finally knocked down and run over by a runaway team there is not a dry eye in the house.

Other members of the caste are Dorothy Bernard, Donald Hall, Lucille Marion and several others. Miss Bernard is well known to Peterborough audiences. Special incidental music has been prepared for the picture.

CONCERT AT Y. W. C. A.

Excellent Program, Musical and Literary, by Local Artists.

An interested and attentive audience enjoyed the excellent program at the concert at the Young Women's Christian Association last night. Mr. Wm. Madill, the chairman, after a few opening remarks, announced the first number, "Calm is the Lake," sung by Miss Eastwood, Mrs. Perrin, Mr. Steer and Mr. Nelson. This selection was noteworthy for the harmony and perfect balance of the voices, and was much appreciated. Miss Edith Pryce, physical director of the association, then gave her own terpretation of MacDowell's beautiful little piece, "To a Water Lily," an interpretation so full of grace and beauty that one could fairly see the water lily out on the lake.

Miss Lillian Eastwood's solo, Miss Davidson's reading and Miss Norma Moore's piano solo all brought forth such hearty applause that they had to respond with second numbers. Miss Eastwood with Howley's "In the Deps o' the Daisies," and Miss Davidson with "No Kiss," and Miss Moore with "The Nightingale," by Schubert-Liszt.

Miss Florence Emmerson then sang "Rose Softly Blooming," from Spohr's opera, while Miss Pryce danced. Miss Emmerson's voice is one of real musical charm and the song and dance together made a very beautiful number.

Mr. F. Whitehouse, who was on the program for a violin solo, was unable to be present, but Miss Dorothy Harrington very kindly played in his place. Everyone enjoyed her interpretation of Ries' Adagio and her encore, "Cavatina," by Raff. Another reading by Miss Davidson and a second number by the quartette, brought this very enjoyable concert to a close. Great credit is due Mrs. A. A. Perrin, who was responsible for the program and did much to make the concert a success. The accompanists for the evening were Miss I. Sanderson, Miss Harrington and Miss Layton.

PREMIER DRURY IS FIRM BELIEVER IN ECONOMY

HAS SPENT ONLY $30 OF AMOUNT ALLOWED HIM FOR EXPENSES

Toronto, March 31. — Premier Drury, who has had himself allotted only $200 out of the public treasury for expenses for the year and has spent since New Year's only about $30, believes in economy in small things. It was on the score of economy that today he requested Mr. Hartley Dewart and one of his supporters, Mr. Curry, of Toronto, to withdraw from the order paper long resolutions which have been printed in it from day to day for the last two weeks. The resolutions have to do with the preparation of voters' lists and the operation of the Temperance Act, and the Government is not ready to deal with them.

Freedom of Speech.

Commencing the day with a defence by Premier Drury and the leaders of both Opposition groups of the right of members to talk as much and on as many subjects as they wished, the Legislature got through more business and indulged in less discussion today than any day since March 9. Both Government and House are anxious to have something to show for four weeks of effort before adjourning Thursday for the Easter recess, which is to extend only until Tuesday. Premier Drury also desires to see the session over by the end of April.

All Are Agreed on This.

On one question Hon. Mr. Drury, Hon. Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Hartley Dewart are in sympathetic agreement. That is the legitimacy and propriety of plentiful and varied discussion in Queen's Park. Mr. Ferguson introduced the subject this afternoon by condemning as securrilous the accusation of a Toronto evening paper that the Legislature was wasting time and money in talk. The criticism, he declared, was an insult to every member of the Legislature. No newspaper was entitled, he held, to treat with such insolence the privileges of Parliament. He informed the new members that they were in no way responsible to any newspaper for their conduct in the House. While admitting that it was no reflection on the Government, he expressed the opinion that it was delay in the preparation of legislation that was responsible for the lack of progress so far.

GOOD FRIDAY HOURS AT THE POSTOFFICE

There will be no delivery by letter carrier. Outgoing mails will close for despatch at twelve o'clock noon. Two collections only from the street letter boxes, one beginning at 8.30 a.m and one at 8.30 p.m. There will be no afternoon collection. From 10:30 a.m to 12:30 p.m. the general delivery, stamp wicket, and registration wicket will be open. The lobby of the office will be open from 8 a.m., to 8 p.m.

VETRANS GIVE $400 TO ATHELETIC CLUBS

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE IS EXTENDED TO FOOTBALL AND BASEBALL TEAMS

The sum of $400 was voted last night by the executive of the Great War Veterans' Association to the G. W. V. A. Athletic Association for the purpose of fostering all kinds of sport. Both baseball and football is already under way and as financial assistance was urgently required by these clubs to put them into shape for the season, a special meeting of the executive was called last night to consider the matter. The chair was occupied by President Muir.

TORONTO WORLD GOES INTO LIQUIDATION

NEWSPAPER MAKES AN ASSIGNMENT WITH A VIEW TO REORGANIZING COMPANY

Toronto, March 31.—The World Newspaper Company, publishers of The Toronto World (Daily and Sunday), yesterday made an assignment to Mr. G. T. Clarkson, the well-known assignee, for the benefit of its creditors. The formal statement announcing the assignment says the action was taken with a view to reorganization and that the two papers will continue to be published. The next move will likely be by way of an application to the High Court for a winding-up order, with Mr. Clarkson as permanent assignee. Any reorganization decided upon will then be carried out under the direction of the court, which will be guided by the advice of Mr. Clarkson, who will at once prepare a statement of the affairs of the company. Mr. John Lang, Circulation Manager, is in charge temporarily for Mr. Clarkson, and the Editorial Management will continue in the hands of Mr. J. Harry Smith.

The World's Statement.

The World today makes the following statement:

"With a view to reorganization, The World Newspaper Company of Toronto, Limited, has made an assignment for the benefit of its creditors to G. T. Clarkson.

"Financial difficulties of the company, rendered acute by the high cost of paper and wages, coupled with the illness for the past three months of Mr. H. J. Maclean, the managing director, have made a reorganization necessary. Whether such reorganization will result in an ultimate change of ownership has not yet been determined.

"In the meantime the paper (both Daily and Sunday) will continue to be published and carry out its obligations to its readers and advertisers.

"The editorial policy of the paper will not be changed, and it is expected that Mr. W. F. Maclean's contributions to the paper will be as frequent as in the past.

"Mr. John Lang, heretofore circulation manager, has been appointed interim manager for Mr. Clarkson, and the editorial management continues in the hands of Mr. J. Harry Smith."

CHILDREN OF THE

viously. The program closed with the National Anthem.

In the presentation every class in the school was represented in one way or another. The address was as follows:

To Right Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D.,
Bishop of Peterborough:

It is with great pleasure that we, your children, assemble here today to greet you, our beloved Bishop. You have a double claim on the affections of the pupils of the Sacred Heart School—now as our Bishop, in the past as our beloved pastor.

We are aware that in a short time you are to sail for Rome. Although we regret your absence for even a few short months, yet we rejoice that our Bishop will have the honor and privilege of an audience with His Holiness Benedict XV.

The Holy Father's love for little children has been brought vividly before our minds by the kind and generous provision he has made for the orphan children during and since the Great War.

Presuming on your Lordship's indulgent kindness to us in the past, we beg you to present to His Holiness, on our behalf, this little offering, that he honor of presenting a personal gift to our Holy Father may be the privilege of the pupils of our school.

We also ask you, Right Rev. Father, to assure him that he receives a daily share in our prayers, and request him to bless in a special manner our parish, our school, our pastor, our teachers, our parents, and each one of the pupils of our school.

In view of your many kindnesses to us, we cannot let you depart without a proof of our affection and esteem. We ask you to accept our little spiritual offering with our good wishes that our Blessed Mother, whom you so tenderly love, will guide you safely home to us. Then oft shall we repeat the beautiful words:

"O Mary, Mother, Mary,
Thou bright star of the sea,
We'll pray to thee, our Mother,
We'll pray, we'll pray to thee."

From your devoted hildren of the Sacred Heart School.

RED CAVALRY INVEST TOWN ON CASPIAN SEA

WIRELESS DESPATCH FROM SOVIET GOVERNMENT IS RECEIVED AT LONDON

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, March 31.— Bolshevik troops have pentrated to Petrovsk on the Caspian Sea. Red cavalry was occupying the town yesterday. According to a Soviet Government, a wireless message today, Vladikavkaz, midway between the Black Sea and on the railroad to Petrovsk, about the Caspian Seas was occupied by Red forces on March 24. At Petrovsk, five armored trains and enormous booty were taken, the statement announces. All old wells were found to be in order when the Red forces reached them it is declared.

MY LADY NICOTINE IN CANADA

(1) White Burley Nearly Ripe, in Ontario.
(2) A Good Type of Curing Barn.
(3) Fermented Cigar Leaf from Quebec.

Tobacco culture in Canada is an industry of comparatively recent date. Extensive development has taken place in the past twenty-five or thirty years, and recent seasons have proved the adaptability of widely separated sections of the Dominion to this very profitable line of agriculture. Since the protective duty of 28 cents per pound has been imposed on all foreign leaf tobaccos, the Canadian industry has received a yet greater stimulus, and interest in the culture is becoming wider and more diversified yearly.

The two principal provinces where tobacco has been successfully grown for many years are Ontario and Quebec. Very successful results have been obtained also at Kelowna, in the Okanagan district of British Columbia, and the growing of tobacco may be said to be firmly established as an industry there. Recent experiments in the Lethbridge irrigation district in Southern Alberta, would indicate great possibilities for the growth in the prairie province.

Tobacco, in Ontario, is grown in the counties of Essex, Peele, Kent, Prince Edward, Elgin, and Lincoln. A total of 9,236 acres among these counties was devoted to the cultivation of the tobacco plant in 1919, producing a yield of 10,700,400 pounds, or an average of 1,160 pounds per acre.

The Burley variety, suitable for chewing, is grown in five counties: seed leaf in Essex; snuff in Kent; and Havana in Lincoln. Maryland tobacco has been introduced into Prince Edward County with success. During the past few years the growing of bright tobacco (flue cured) has extended rapidly on the light sandy loams near the shores of Lake Ontario, and some gravelly hills with good drainage. The annual production of this variety is nearly 1,000,000 pounds, with the yearly demand increasing. A limited amount of Seed Leaf and Fire cured leaf of the heavier type is grown in certain sections. The cost of cultivation in the province, including the labor of the grower has been estimated at from $50 to $75 per acre, and the average yield about 1,200 pounds per acre.

The increased demand, and higher prices of recent years have given tobacco growing in Ontario a considerable impetus. The provincial Board of Agriculture, realising this, instituted a tobacco station at the Harrow experimental farm, which has done valuable work in proving species of plants adapted to the various soils of the province, and encouraging limited production and improvement in quality rather than a large acreage and mediocre quality, by improved methods of culture.

The tobacco production of the Province of Quebec for the year 1919 was about 10,000,000 pounds and there were 22,404 acres under cultivation. As a tobacco growing area, the French-Canadian province has been coming more to the fore every year. This is illustrated by the fact that in 1911 there were only 12,134 acres devoted to this culture. In the counties of Berthier, Joliette, L'Assomption, Montcalm, Portneuf, Richelieu, Rouville, Terrebonne, Vercheres and Yamaska the industry is carried on a very large scale. There are federal government stations at Saint-Jacques de L'Achigan county of Montcalm, and at Saint-Cesaire, Rouville. In many counties the tobacco plant is grown for cigar manufacture, the principal species sown being Havana, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Comstock, Sumatra-Spanish, Cannelle, and Parsian Rose; but greater success is achieved with pipe tobaccos, such as white burley, red burley, blue prior, yellow prior, bester yellow mammoth and Tennessee Red.

The planters of the Yamaska Valley have formed a co-operative society and established at Saint-Cesaire a large warehouse for the curing and sale of Comstock Spanish tobacco as fillers and binders for cigars. The society sells annually from 50,000 to 100,000 pounds of tobacco at from 30 to 40 cents per pound. The purchase of tobacco according to quality has greatly improved methods of cultivation and treatment.

The growing of tobacco in British Columbia is practically confined to the area surrounding Kelowna in the Okanagan Valley. The total 1919 output, which amounted to about 120,000 pounds was sold at 29 cents per pound to a Quebec manufacturer. Interest in tobacco production in the Pacific province is on the increase, and in many sections of its area can be found warm, sunny, well-drained slopes of sandy deposits well adapted to the cultivation of tobacco plants of the heavier type.

The possibility of successfully growing and curing tobacco in Southern Alberta has been clearly demonstrated by the experimental farm at Lethbridge. Sixty plants, grown in the season 1919, produced prolific foliage, which was cured on the farm and made into cigars. Experiments will be carried on a more extensive scale with a view to establishing the industry as a commercial proposition in the irrigation belt.

The successful growing of tobacco calls for rich and light soils containing a good supply of vegetable matter, and will yield the best results. Soils deprived of humus, however rich in mineral elements, are not suitable for its growth. Good drainage of the subsoil water is essential. The soils of hillsides, with a gentle slope, generally give excellent results, mainly on account of the rapidity with which an excess of water drains off. The best soils for successful growing are those which contain a sufficient proportion of clay and humus to enable them to retain a good supply of moisture, known as "loamy soils." Stiff clay soils are the least suitable.

LACROSSE TEAM TO BE GRANTED USE OF EXHIBITION GROUNDS FREE OF CHARGE

Can Practice and Hold Their Games There—Organization Was Perfected at Enthusiastic Meeting in Empress Hotel Last Night.

The increased attendance at the second lacrosse meeting held in the Empress Hotel last night, the unlimited enthusiasm shown, and the reception given by citizens in General to the committee canvassing for support indicate beyond room for doubt that the attempt to revive the nation sport in Peterborough will meet with success.

The main business undertaken at last night's meeting was the election of officers and patrons for the club, which resulted as follows:

Patrons—Mayor MacIntyre, Dr. McPherson, Rev. Father Phelan and Messrs. F. D. Kerr, G. N. Gordon, G. H. Giroux, J. J. Howden, H. R. H. Kenner, R. Denne, G. W. Hatton, C. Graham, Ald. R. V. Copping and M. H. Halpin.

President—A. Todd.

First Vice-President—R. Begley.

Second Vice-President — R. M. Glover.

Treasurer—J. Sutherland.

Secretary—J. L. Johnson.

Executive Committee—E. Dillon, George Main, T. Creighton, Louis Yeotes and Dr. Sutton.

On the motion of Mr. Glover, it was decided that honorary officers should be appointed by the Executive Committee.

A committee, composed of Messrs. J. L. Johnson, F. Goodfellow and Louis Yeotes, was appointed to enquire into the matter of securing uniforms. Although nothing definite was decided as to the colors, the old blue and white was generally favored by the meeting and it is quite likely that these will eventually be the colors of the team.

The committee which was last week appointed to institute enquiries with reference to the use of Riverside Park and to look into the possibilities of financial support for the team, reported that the park would not be available for lacrosse as far as could be judged at the present time. They had found all who were approached quite willing to lend their support, both financial and otherwise, to the revival of the game. The matter of grounds was considered settled when Mr. Glover announced on behalf of the Exhibition Board that the team would be able to use the exhibition grounds at any time either for games or for practice free of charge and could charge an entrance fee if they saw fit as the arrangement with the board would not be affected.

The question of securing sticks and nets came in for some discussion and there was a general feeling that these articles would be higher than ever this year. Mr. Glover playfully remarked that they would have to lock the sticks in the safe after every game.

It was moved by Mr. Glover that the secretary be instructed to write to the different manufactures of lacrosse sticks in Ontario and Quebec and secure their quotations and all information possible. It was also decided to hold the next meeting on Wednesday, April 7th, by which time the committee on uniforms would have had time to look into the matter and Mr. Johnson would be back from the annual meeting of the O.A.L.A. which is being held in Toronto on Good Friday.

Mr. J. Creighton moved a vote of thanks to the proprietor of the Empress Hotel for the use of his parlor and the meeting adjourned on the motion of Mr. Glover.

Mr. Todd took the chair for the meeting and Mr. Johnson acted as secretary pro tem until he was appointed permanently so.

LONG RACING SEASON FOR BRITISH COLUMBIA

CALIFORNIA JOCKEY CLUB MAY TAKE OVER CONTROL OF THE TRACK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Tia Juana, Cal., March 31; Great interest is attached to the unofficial announcement that the management of the Tia Juana track in its entirety will probably be transferred for a long summer racing season at Vancouver and Victoria, B. C., where the plants have been closed since the war started. Influential Canadians recently visited Coffroth and took up with him the matter of the Lower California Jockey Club assuming control of the racing in Western Canada.

Announcement is expected in due time regarding the British Columbia proposition, and if a satisfactory arrangement is reached, it is expected that fifty days will be spent at Vancouver and Victoria.

Wrestler Jack Sherry Claims Championship of West and Alaska

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, March 31;—Jack Sherry who claims the championship of Western Canada and Alaska, and who has come out of the far Northwest in the quest of gold and glory which are to be picked up on the mat, has joined the list of the challengers of Joe Stecher. Sherry has been tackling the Coast grapplers, and is rapidly making an enviable reptation for himself. He will probably reach the East in the near future intent upon obtaining a match with the titleholders. According to advices from San Francisco, he is more than willing to wrestle Jim Landos, "Strangler" Lewis, or any of the other big fellows in the event that Stecher is not disposed to take him on at this time.

LEAGUE WILL ASK FOR PENSION INCREASE

PEOPLE OF WINNIPEG BELIEVE PERSONAL ALLOWANCES ARE INADEQUATE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, March 31.— On the eve of the Government Committee meeting to consider the soldiers' re-establishment question, many communications are being received, all of which will strengthen the hands of the soldier members in securing what they consider just recognition for those who have suffered during the war. The Citizens' League of Winnipeg has written declaring that it has decided to petition the Federal Government to make pensions more commensurate with the high cost of living. The report urges that present arrangements are totally inadequated.

ALL-DAY DEMONSTRATION BY WAY OF PROTEST

WINNIPEG LABORMEN DECIDE TO MAKE SHOWING GOOD FRIDAY

Winnipeg, March 31.—Eighty delegates, representing O. B. U. units, Labor party, Socialist party of Canada, Women's League and International unions—16 of the latter being included—assembled to take steps to have the Labor leaders recently convicted released.

It was decided to hold protest meetings at various points in the city all day and in the evening of Good Friday. Also that telegrams had been sent to every centre in Canada suggesting that similar action be taken at each point and that the strongest protest be made against holding the convicted men in jail. It was also decided that preliminary steps be taken to carry the Russell conviction to the Privy Council.

The convicted men are placed in the same ward at the Provincial Jail and they have spent most of their time so far in reading.

The effect of Judge Metcalfe's charge in the strike trial and the decision ofb the Court of Appeal in the R. B. Russell case, would appear to be that the general sympathetic strike is illegal in that no such strike can occur without a large number of employes breaking their contracts of employment in such a way as to be liable to prosecution, under various statutes. This is the opinion of several prominent lawyers interview today.

The imprisonment of Ald. John Queen means an end of the fifty-fifty split between Labor and non-labor elements in the City Council. Queen's enforced absence leaves the non-labor element with a majority of one. According to municipal law Queen is entitled to remain alderman for six weeks after his conviction.

OMEMEE BOARD OF TRADE PLANS IMPVROVEMENTS

PROPOSES TO BRING THAT THRIVING VILLAGE UP TO MODERN STANDARDS

(Special Correspondence.)

Oemee, March 31.—Miss Muriel Morrison, of Peterborough, was the guest of the Misses Clarke over Sunday.

The Omemee School Board, seeing the necessity for better playgrounds for the school, have secured a lease of the armouries property, a fine cement floor being all that is left of the beautiful armouries which was burned down shortly after the grand opening. The plan now is to have a first-class tennis court for the students, and, it will also be used for physical culture exercises.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Board of Trade was held last week and a lot of good ideas, many of which will be put into execution were exchanged. A few of the ideas fulfilled will mean:

A dentist for Omemee.

A printer for Omemee.

A park for our town.

And many other features which will go to make our pretty little village more attractive.

A cleaning-up day when everyone will clean up his back-yard, etc.

Good luck to the Board of Trade. May their many ambitions be fulfilled!

Mrs. Mulligan returned from Toronto on Monday where she has been spending the winter with her son, Dr. Clifford Mulligan.

Mrs. Stillman returned on Saturday after a pleasant week spent with Mr. and Mrs. Claxton in Lindsay.

Mr. Mitchell, of Burks Falls, accompanied by his wife and daughter, arrived in Omemee on Monday evening and will take up residence in our village, Mr. Mitchell being the manager of the plant to be installed in the new tannery building.

Miss Hilda Clarke, who has been nursing in Lindsay for some time past, spent the week-end with her parents.

Mr. Parsons, accompanied by his wife and child, arrived in the village Monday evening from Montreal and will reside for the summer in the residence of Mrs. Wm. Elliott. Mr. Parsons is a son of Mr. Chas. Parsons, of the Empress Tanning Co., Toronto.

Mr. L. A. Southworth was a visitor to Peterborough on Saturday.

Miss Curry was a visitor to Peterborough last week.

Mrs. Harry Magee and small son visited friends in Bobcaygeon last week.

Miss Perrett was a business visitor to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Laidley and baby, of Lindsay, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. I. Fee.

News of the death of Mrs. Wm. Clarke, of Carberry, Man., reached Omemee last week. Mrs. Clarke was for very many years a resident of Omemee and is well remembered by the older residents of the village. The deceased lady had reached the venerable age of eighty years. She was born in Omemee and was the daughter of the late James English, who for many years was assessor and tax collector for the village. About thirty years ago the family moved to Carberry where Mrs. Clarke passed away on March the 12th. The funeral was held on March 14th. The sorrowing family is extended the sincere sympathy of many old fiends.

STATE RAILWAYS SHOW DEFICIT ON ALL LINES

Ottawa, March 31.—In a comprehensive speech, Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways, laid before the House yesterday the first annual budget of the Canadian National Railway System since its inauguration. His statement had been keenly awaited, and was followed with interest from all sides of the House. It traced in detail the financial results of the year's operations; it outlined the needs of the roads in the future; it stated their program for the coming year; it discussed the vital question of the suggested increase in freight rates.

The year's work showed an operating deficit on Government roads of $14,000,000, namely: Canadian Northern, $6,500,000; I.C.R. and Transcontinental, $7,500,000. To this there has to be added $19,000,000 for fixed charges, or a total deficit for the year (including fixed charges) of $33,000,000.

Wages Took the Earnings.

In comparison, the operating deficit of the roads in 1918 (the Canadian Northern was then in private hands) was $2,124,000. Revenue, too, has advanced by nearly twelve millions. But, so Dr. Reid explained to the house operating expenses had increased from $84,000,000 to practically $108,000,000. The advances in operating expenses were largely due to increases in wages granted under the McAdoo award. Out of every dollar earned by the roads 76c went in wages to the employes. In fact, given the same operating costs as in 1918, Dr. Reid claimed the earnings in 1919 would have taken care of operating costs, and, in addition, provided the "tidy sum" of $9,000,000 towards fixed charges.

G.T.R. Statement Later.

In all this, however, Dr. Reid did not take the Grand Trunk Pacific of which the Government is in possession as receiver into account. The Grand Trunk Pacific, Dr. Reid intimated, would be the subject of another statement later. But he indicated last year of $14,[illegible], as follows: Operating [illegible]000; fixed charges, [illegible].

Thus, deficits on all [illegible] year, including the G.T.P.'s [illegible] both capital charges [illegible] loss, totalled $[illegible]

THE FELLOWSHIP OF CHRIST

Subject of Mr. Thomas' Adrdess at Trinity Last Night.

Rev. A. J. Thomas, M.A., B.D., gave the address at Trinity Church last evening. It was a most appropriate sermon for Passion Week. His theme was "The Fellowship of Christ's Sufferings." The text was taken from Paul's letter to the Phillipians, and was the expression of Paul's highest ambition when he said he desired to know Christ and the power of His resurrection and the fellowship of His sufferings. We can know and share the fellowship of Christ's sufferings when we feel as He did toward sin. When we are willing as He was to endure pain and privation in pursuit of duty. When we are ready to deny ourselves and take up our cross daily and follow Him.

Jesus wants followers today of Paul's type, who are not looking for an easy religion, but are ready for Christian work and service.

Miss Eva Waugh sang at this service and the pastor gave a Bible reading.

Tonight Rev. P. H. Neville will speak. All are invited. The meetings begin at 8 p.m.

TONSORIAL PARLORS CLOSE AT 7 SHARP

NEW HOURS FOR BARBERING WENT INTO EFFECT ON MONDAY LAST

On Monday last for the first time in history the barber shops of the city closed sharp at 7 o'clock. It was a pleasant experience for the journeymen barbers to find that they were at last in a position to have an evening to themselves. The action of the Peterborough barbers has been anticipated by the barbers of many other cities of the Province, who have been closing at 7 o'clock for some time now. The half-holiday on Thursday afternoons will not take effect until June 15th.

PUTTING UP NEW POLES.

Utilities Commission's Men Busy To day on Hunter Street.

Considerable attention was drawn this morning to the work of the Utilities Commission on Hunter street between George and Water streets, where they are replacing the old poles with new ones. Some of the poles were becoming so brittle and decayed as to constitute a menace to the public, and the work being undertaken today is timely.

FOR LOAFING ON STREETS.

Two Young Men Paid Fines in the Police Court.

Loafing on the streets in Peterborough will not be tolerated by the police department, as two local youths found to their cost this morning when they were charged before Magistrate Dumble with obstructing the traffic on George street on Sunday last after having been warned by a policeman to move on. Mr. J. O'Brien, appearing for one of the defendants, made a spirited defence, claiming no warning had been given, but the Magistrate could not see it that way, and fined both $5 and costs, amounting in all to $8.10.

BEAUTIFUL STORY OF

England still speak of a certain group of stars as Arthur's Chariot.

Speaking of the Holy Grail, His Honor referred to the sacred story that we learned at our mother's knee—the story of the beautiful chalice set in emeralds with which Joseph of Arimathea caught the drops of blood which fell from the Body of Jesus on the Cross. Throughout the mythical legend of which we have nothing definite, runs the strain of romance and the religious element. The blood in this chalice is ever living, ever beating, ever throbbing, as when it dropped from the sacred body. And so in this narrative there is the romantic stream and the religious stream; two rivers which joined and flowed on as one great national deep.

Tinged by this influence was the life of the intermediate generation. Such men as Chaucer, Arnold, Lowell, Campbell and Tennyson, embraced this subject and the great poet Milton thoroughly enarmoured with its beauty, was on the point of selecting as the topic of his great epic. Immortalized in the realm of music by the great composer Richard Wagner, the theme is combined with national legends of King Arthur. Whenever the Holy Grail appears, music sweet, and passionately beating, has been heard. Music that symbolized the beating of the crimson fluid in the cup—the beating that is eternal.

Consider for a moment, the speaker said, the intense terror of the time when rocks were rent and panic reigned among the people, the central figures of which were Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus. Back in the days of the crucifixion, when the friends of Our Saviour took His lifeless body down from the Cross, Joseph, who is said to have been a man of wealth, had the beautiful jewelled cup, wrought in emeralds, with which he caught the drops of blood that dripped from the wounds of Christ's body.

The four men supposedly pall bearers, who bore our Lord's body to the tomb were the two men in scarlet and gold, Nicodemus and Joseph, the loving disciple St. John, and the Roman Centurion at the rear. Joseph also kept the spear with which the Roman soldier had pierced Our Saviour's side, causing the blood and water to flow, and it is said that the blood on this weapon never congealed but kept forever dropping.

After the resurrection on Easter Monday the furious Jews being suspicious of Joseph, had him arrested and thrown into prison on the charge of taking away the sacred body. Joseph, who had the Holy Grail in his possession at the time was consoled sustained and made happy throughout the long term of his imprisonment, andw hen released expressed great surprise on learning that he had spent 42 years in confinement. It had seemed to him but a few days.

Joseph was warned in a dream to leave the Holy Land, go overseas, where he should find the island of Athlone and there make his home. After a long and toilsome journey, he finally came to the county of Somersetshire and to a great hill, which, after a difficult climb, he arrived at the summit and chirstened it "Weary all Hill."

Deciding to make his home in this beautiful spot, Joseph thrust his staff in the ground and the story goes that the staff took root and began to bud almost immediately. So we have the legend of the Christmas thorn. This plant blossomed twice a year, once in the springtime and then at Christmas, mindful of our Lord's birth. Here Joseph decided to build a church, and this edifice, built of rushes, was the first Christian Church of Glastonbury, and Joseph, was the first Bishop of Glastonbury. Always keeping with him the Holy Grail, Joseph, by its sustaining influence, attained a ripe old age.

As time went on and wickedness came to the world, the Holy Grail withdrew. Sometimes is could be seen by men and sometimes not. Only the good and pure in heart were privileged with the vision of this sacred cup, bearing out our Lord's words: "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." The people of Britain at this time were not British people. They were descendants of the Celtic race. However, Joseph and his people established Christianity. Soon a period of sadness swept over the land. There was war, and the people were downtrodden. It was at this time that Arthur, the blameless king, the knight of all ages, came. In the eleventh century there lived a certain Welshman who wrote a fabulous history and called it "the History of the British Kings." This book was written in French, taken to France and there given the prominence of a text book in the literary circle. This work was enthusiastically received by the people of France, was an inspiration to other works of notable authors, and finally became the ground work of all legendary tales. The book was later translated into English by two English monks, and stimulated much interest in these old and mythical tales. "Sir Thomas Mallory's 'King Arthur and the Holy Grail,'" a notable contribution to literature, and also a Welsh book by Lady Charlotte Guest, an English lady of culture, who became enarmored with everything Welsh. Such was her love for Welsh literature and legends that she taught them to her little children and translating them into book form called the work: "Welsh Tales."

So the people were delighted to hear of King Arthur and his romance and at this period something very notable occurred. In the 15th century 500 years ago, William Claxton was born and lived, and this work by Sir Thomas Mallory was one of the first books to be printed with his press. At this time pilgrimages were made to Glastonbury and excavations made, and it was during one of those excavations the tomb was found on which was engraved these words: "Here lies Arthur, who once was king and will be king again."

At the birth of Arthur, he was taken away by Merling, the great magician and given to Sir Ector and his good wife. This was accomplished quietly and no person knew anything of his kingly birth. And so the story goes, he grew up to be a handsome young man and as good as he was handsome. At this time there was much distress in the land over the question of who should govern the people, and a strange competition was entered into for this purpose. There was a certain anvil floating down the river upon which was fastened a sword; the one who could draw this sword away was to be the king. Many knights entered into this competition but all were unsuccessful until, Arthur, while running an errand for his elder brother, by chance threw the sword from the anvil to the amazement of the people. And so the story of his royal birth was divulged and he came into his own.

Referring to the "Round Table," His Honor pointed out that there was a seating capacity for 150 knights and only very worthy ones were honored in this way. The Knight who would aspire to a seat at the round table must be loyal to the king, must redress wrongs, and protect the weak and innocent. There was, the speaker said, one seat at the right of the king which was never occupied. This was the seat of honor, and it was said that it was looked upon with a certain fear, for should an unworthy knight deign to occupy it, he would immedately shrivell up into nothing.

However, their came a day when Sir Gallowhead, the immaculate knight, son of Sir Lancelot and a descendant of Joseph of Arimathea ventured to occupy this place of honor. With the words on his lips: "If I lose myself I save myself," he sat in the chair and shortly afterward the Holy Grail appeared clothed in a silken white cloth. Some could see it dimly others not at all, but all heard the exquisite music. At this momentous hour all took the oath to follow the Holy Grail, and so the quest of the Holy Grail typifies the quest of God. Among those who visioned the sacred chalice clearly was Sir Percival and his sister, a beautiful and pure lady who afterwards cut off her magnificent golden brown hair, wove it into a belt, on which she embroidered the symbol of the Holy Grail and clasped it on the waist of her knight when sending him to war.

At the conclusion of the address Mr. Jamieson, in a few brief remarks thanked Judge Huycke for the pleasant and interesting evening, expressing to His Honor the appreciation of all present. This motion was seconded by Miss Dennison and followed by general applause.

Previous to the address, Mr. H. Rush favored the gathering with a vocal seelction, rendered with his usual grace of expression.

Mrs. Eastwood performed the duties of chairlady in a most capable manner.

FOR A DAILY BOAT SERVICE

Trenton and Other Places on Canal Agitate for It.

There is an agitation among the cities on the Trent Valley Canal for the inauguration of a daily boat service this season. Trenton in particular is making strenuous efforts to have this step taken, and has communicated with the other cities and towns along the route asking for support in urging that this step be taken. It is believed that such a service would be of the greatest value to every city along the canal and that it would prove to be a very popular innovation.

OCIALISTS ARE WILLING TO GIVE FURTHER TIME

O DANISH KING AND CABINET TO AVOID GENERAL STRIKE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, April 1.— The postpone- of the Danish strike until next y, shows, according to a des- atch to the London Times from gen, that the Socialists are ing to give influential persons they know are working for a promise, time to effect a settle- at and that the strike will not take if the situation changes in the time.

A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, from Copenhagen, says: The Trades Union Congress in calling a general strike requested that every effort be made by the unions to maintain order.

SNUBBED THE KING

The same despatch says King Christian on Wednesday notified the Premier that he desired to meet him and his cabinet before they quit office. Zahle replied that neither he nor his ministers desired to visit the King as they could see no advantage in such a meeting.

BELL APARTMENTS TO BE REBUILT AT ONCE

WORK OF RESTORING STRUCTURE RECENTLY SWEPT BY FIRE BEGINS TODAY

The work of clearing away the debris following the recent fire in the Bell apartment building was begun this morning and the place will be remodelled with all speed from top to bottom. Mrs. James Bell, the owner, has given the contract to Elgrave and Barrett and W. H. Lytle is superintending the operations.

The building will be improved throughout. The store on the ground floor on the west side will be converted into an apartment. The other store when completed will be occupied by B. A. Mitchell, the antique furniture dealer. Some of the apartments have already been spoken for by tenants driven out by the fire, some of whom had lived their for over four years. It is expected that the place will be ready for occupancy in two months.

HOUSING IN BRANTFORD

Brantford, April 1.— Inspector Fletcher of the Ontario Housing Commission is in the city inspecting local houses being built under the act. There are 21 houses in Brantford now occupied, while 50 have been or are under construction. The local Commission has till $11,000 to work on, which will mean about ten more houses. Of the 50 houses built only one is of frame. The total investment thus far is $206,000.

NO PAPER TOMORROW

Tomorrow being Good Friday there will be no issue of The Review.

AMERICAN ARMY IN GERMANY IS SUBJECT TO U.S.

UNDER ORDER OF PRESIDENT NOT OF MARSHAL FOCH, PRESIDENT SAYS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, April 1.— The American troops on the Rhine are subject only to the orders of the President of the United States as commander in-chief of the Army, President Wilson wrote Congress today, in response to a resolution of inquiry adopted by the House. American troops and the territory they control are still governed by terms of the armistice, the President said. He disclosed that the American Government has disapproved plans to have the troops and territory placed under the orders of the Rhineland High Commission. Field Marshal Foch has the President said. "Major General no authority over the American troops Allen, commanding the forces, has full authority." Mr. Wilson added "to utilize his troops as police of the occupied district, the preservation of order and to repel any attack which may be made upon him."

WILL NOT PROHIBIT THE SALE OF NATIVE WINE

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT REFUSES TO COMPLY WITH REQUEST OF ALLIANCE

Toronto, April 1.—Prohibition forces in the Province are becoming increasingly active. At an important meeting of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance yesterday, at which the Managing Committee together with the Toronto members of the General Executive Committee were in attendance, the latest moves in the Legislature looking to a hastening of the drought in Ontario were discussed, and a resolution was passed, urging the Government to repeal Section 44 of the Ontario Temperance Act, which permits the sale of native wines for beverage purposes. This the Government so far refuses to do.

CONSERVATIVES FIGHT NEW ELECTION BILL

OPPOSED ESPECIALLY TO THE CLAUSE SETTING REGULAR DATE FOR POLLING

Toronto, April 1.—The Conservatives in the Legislature will oppose the new Elections Bill. This was decided at a caucus yesterday. They will fight particularly the clause making a set time every four years for a provincial election. They will argue that this is contrary to the spirit of responsible government. Several other features of the bill will also be attacked by the Conservative members. Aside from the Budget, the new Elections Act will bring out more discussion than any other legislation at this session. The Liberals are favorable to the new Act, and their criticism will be to strengthen it rather than to destroy.

The caucus of the Conservative members yesterday also started preliminary plans for the provincial convention of the party, which will be held in June if arrangements can be completed soon enough, otherwise the convention will be held in September. Committees will be appointed shortly to make preparations.

This convention will be asked to name a permanent leader for the Conservative party in Ontario. It is quite probable that the present acting leader, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, will be chosen as permanent leader. A platform will also be drawn up and passed by the convention.

CITY SOLICITOR WIDDIFIELD WILL BE REQUIRED TO PROSECUTE O.T.A. CASES

Provided the Complaints are Laid by the Police—Saving to the City of Attorney Fees Can be Effected in This Way.

At the meeting of the Legal Committee last night an interesting discussion was reached in regard to prosecutions under the Ontario Temperance Act. It appears that all such cases reported by the license inspector must be prosecuted by the county Crown attorney, who in case of non-conviction, is paid by the Government. When conviction is made, costs imposed and paid by defendant, then the county Crown attorney gets, of course from the defendant, his fees included in the costs. Heretofore the same rule has applied to cases reported by the local police, when the county Crown attorney has by call from the chief of police prosecuted. But it is now advanced that the chief can call on the city solicitor to prosecute breaches of the O.T.A. reported to his department, and the contention was held by the committee last night that he should do so. The reason for this is that in such cases when conviction does not follow the city pays all costs, and the city solicitor, should he prosecute, is already allowed his fees in his salary, but if the county Crown attorney prosecutes his fees must also come out of the city. If costs are imposed and paid by defendant then the city solicitor would get his fees from the defendant.

On motion of Ald. Copping and Phelan the chief of police will be instructed to call on City Solicitor Widdifield when he needs a prosecutor in charges under the O. T. A. reported by his department, and the chief himself to certify to whatever costs are chargeable to the city.

GOVERNMENT IS SAID TO BE AS FIRMLY OPPOSED TO CASH GRATUITIES AS EVER

Even Members of Parliament Who Are Return d Soldiers Take That Stand But Would Increase Pensions.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, April 1.— When the House resumes on Tuesday next, it is expected to be only a matter of a few days until there is an announcement fro mthe Government in regard to the sittings of the special committee on Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and Pensions. It is also intimated that before the committees begin to work, the Government will likely announce that it has not changed its attitude towards cash gratuities but is as firmly opposed to them as ever.

Several returned soldier members of Parliament have already declared their opposition to the cash gratuity scheme and these say they have not altered their opinions. They are, in some cases, however, of opinion that pensions should be increased in some directions and also some provision made for students and professional men who are experiencing difficulty in returning to civil life after service overseas.

There is talk of the budget speech being delayed until the Premier returns, in which case, with a budget debate of three or four weeks duration, there will be no prorogation before the end of May.

MANITOBA EMPLOYERS FORM ORGANIZATION

UNITE TO BETTER INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS BETWEEN LABOR AND CAPITAL

Winnipeg, April 1.—The Employers' Association of Manitoba had an organization meeting Tuesday night, at which fifty-one directors were elected, and principles of the constitution set forth. The main objects are: "To promote on a fair and equitable basis industrial peace and commercial prosperity in the community and steady employment of labor.

"To discourage lockout, strikes and unfair demands by either employer or employee, and secure for employer and employee freedom of contract in the manner of employment."

It was declared in many of the speeches made that employers were not organized to combat unionized Labor, but as long as laborers organized for the purpose of assisting their members by honest effort to improve conditions in general the association would work with it in every possible way.

Twenty-five different groups of industry and trade were represented.

JAPS KILLED BY REDS

Seven Hundred Reported Slain in Two-Days' Battle.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Honolulu, April 1.— Seven hundred Japanese troops and civilians were killed in a two-day battle with the Russian Bolshevik forces at Nikolaevsk, Siberia, according to a Tokio cable despatch received by the Japanese newspaper Nippu JiJi here.

Italy Must Accept Wilson's Settlement

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Trieste, April 1.—The Italian Government has notified Gabriele D'Annunzio that it will have to accept President Wilson's project for a settlement of the Adriatic question. An envoy from Premier Nitti has been to Fiume where he made this decision known to D'Annunzio, the insurgent commander there.

The meeting was held in Fiume, at which all of D'Annunzio's volunteers were present. At this meeting Alceste De Ambris, chief of the D'Annunzio Cabinet, declared the proclamation of Fiume as an independent state and would be made only in case such action was necessary to protect the Italian character of the city to guarantee the principles for which D'Annunzio went to Fiume to insure so that city possession of the port and railways.

OFFER LEAGUE MANDATE OVER THE ARMENIANS

BUT FRENCH WILL CONTINUE TO CONTROL THE TERRITORY OF CILICIA

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, April 1.—The mandate for Armenia has been offered the League of Nations by the Supreme Allied Council. All Armenian territories would be included with the exception of Cilicia, which would be left under French protection. An outlet to the Black Sea would be provided by arrangement under contemplation.

EDITORS AND POET DEPORTED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Constantinople, April 1.—Ahmid Eminbey and Velidbey, prominent newspaper editors here, and Souliman Nazifbey, a widely-known poet, have been arrested by British and deported to Malta, said Passa. The Turkish commendant in Constantinople has also been placed under arrest.

FORTY HOUSES NEEDED

Guelph, April 1.— The Housing Commission this afternoon discussed the housing situation very thoroughly. It finally decided to use up all the money at its disposal, about $160 000, in the construction of houses, and it is advertising for tenders for forty houses. It is anxious to have these houses erected this year if possible, as they are greatly needed.

CANADIAN MAY ACCEPT POSITION IN IRELAND

SIR HAMAR GREENWOOD HAS BEEN OFFERED SECRETARYSHIP OF ISLAND

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, April 1.—The Globe says the resignation of Ian MacPherson chief secretary for Ireland, has been accepted. Mr. MacPherson will probably be succeeded by Sir Hamar Greenwood, Under Secretary for Home Affairs, the Globe adds. Other papers announce definitely that Sir Hamar has been offered the secretaryship. Sir Hamar is a Canadian.

FIVE SOCIALISTS ARE EXPELLED FROM HOUSE

MEMBERS OF NEW YORK LEGISLATURE ENDORSES REPORT OF COMMITTEE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Albany, April 31.— Five Socialists Louis Waldman, August Claessens Charles Solomon, Samuel A. Dewitt and Samuel Orr, the entire delegation of their party in the New York Assembly, were expelled from membership in the Lower House of the Legislature early today. The majorities in favor of unseating men suspended on the opening day of the Legislative session on charges of disloyalty, were substantial.

TAKES UP QUESTION OF MILITARY TRAINING

MAJOR MOWAT'S RESOLUTION WOULD MAKE SOLDIER OF ALL YOUNG MEN

Ottawa, April 1.—A quiet day in the House of Commons preceded the Easter adjournment. Discussion of a resolution by Major H. M. Mowat of Parkdale advocating four weeks' military training for every young Canadian between the ages of 19 and 25, to the end that he might be fitted for civilian life and defend his country in time of war, consumed the whole of the afternoon sitting. At 6 o'clock the House adjourned until next Tuesday.

FIVE THOUSAND MEN TO STRIKE IN NEW YORK

FORTY PER CENT OF TRAFFIC IN HARBOR WILL BE TIED UP

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, April 1.—Harbor traffic here will be tied up by a general strike order, which has been issued by the Marin eWorkers Affiliation this afternoon The strike is to take effect immediately on all railroad boats except on the ferries.

The workers of the ferry boats of the railroad companies were ordered to quit work at eight o'clock tonight. The union announced that five thousand men would obey the order and that the strike would tie up forty per cent. of the total harbor traffic.

MONEY DISAPPEARS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, April 1.— Twenty million marks, being taken from this city to Essen, have mysteriously disappeared according to reports current in this city today.

RUHR TROUBLE TO BE SETTLED BY AGREEMENT

WORKMEN HAVE BEEN GRANTED TWO DAYS TO ACCEPT ULTIMATUM.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, April 1.— The German Government has granted the leaders of the workmen's forces in the Ruhr district a forty-eight hour extension of time in which either to accept or reject the terms included in the ultimatum sent to Essen late last week, according to advices received here from Berlin. Negotiations between representatives of the workers and the Government delegates are proceeding at Berlin, and it is said it is believed the conflict in Ruhr Valley may be settled without further hostilities.

TWENTY DOLLAR SHOE MAY BE A REALITY

DEALERS EXPECT PRICES OF FOOTWEAR TO GO STILL HIGHER

Local boot and shoe dealers are of the opinion that boots and shoes are likely to soar to tremendous heights within the next few months. One dealer stated that every shipment he had ordered since the first of the year had shown a new increase in price and he didn't know where it was all going to end. A shoe which he bought at Christmas time for $7 was now costing him $10.50 wholesale and then before it reaches the consumer there is the retailers' profit to add to that. Other makes of shoes have shown a corresponding increase and some have gone even higher than that, in one or two instances reaching $15 wholesale so that the $20 shoe, about which so much was heard a short time ago, will in all probability be a reality in Peterborough in the very near future. In fact at the present time the wholesale price of $15 for a pair of shoes brings the retail price up to somewhere in the neighborhood of $18 or $19.

COAL MINERS SATISFIED

Accept Increase of 27 Per Cent. Agreement to Last Two Years

New York, April 1.— The negotiations for a new agreement for the bituminous coal miners were brought to a close when the genera scale comittee of operators and miners of the central competitive field ratified a contract embodying the award of President Wilson's coal commission.

This new agreement, which involves a wage increase of 27 per cent, becomes effective Thursday morning and will continue in force for a period of two years.

One of the features of the new contract is a clause which provides that all "internal differences" in the various districts of the bituminous coal fields will be settled by the district officers of the mine workers and operators There must be nothing done, however in adjusting these matters that will increase the cost of production or decrease the earning capacity of the mine workers

EIGHT CHILDREN SLEPT UNDER CANVASS TENT

MAN WHO COULD NOT RENT HOUSE IN CHATHAM ARRESTED AS VAGRANT

Chatham, April 1.—The attention of the Children's Aid Society has been directed by the county police to the circumstances of the eight children of John Roland, of Amherstburg, who was arrested on a vagrancy charge yesterday. The police say that they found a piece of canvas stretched from a fence to a stake in a ditch on the roadside a few miles from Chatham, which served as a roof to their temporary dwelling. Roland told the police he tried to rent a house in Chatham but failed. He was remanded until Saturday. In the meantime Jerry O'Brien has opened an old brick house on his farm for the use of the family.

DAMAGE CLAIMS NOT ALLOWED BY THE CITY

MUNICIPALITY IS DECLARED NOT LIABLE FOR THREE ACCIDENTS--TREE INCIDENT

The City Council's Legal Committee last evening cleared their slate of business preparatory to Monday night's Council meeting.

Wm. Leslie was injured December 10th, 1919, by falling on sidewalk at the corner of Smith and Downie street in the dark in the early morning. He sustained a fractured rib and had to lay off work 16 days. His doctor's bill enclosed with notification of the above amounts to $5. Complainant was earning $3.30 a day and evidently is seeking damages. This matter was sent to the city solicitor.

A Good Move.

Ald. G. N. Gordon wrote that under the Assessment Act, trust companies, banks and other financial institutions pay the income tax of their local branches wherever in the Province their head offices are situated. Ald. Gordon suggested that the Legislature be asked to amend the Act to provide that the branches of such institutions pay their income tax in the municipality in which they are doing business.

This legislation will be sought for.

The Dainton Case.

Fred. Dainton, 625 Aylmer street, has had a claim for damages on the Legal Committee's file for nearly a year now. On May 20, 1919, during a heavy wind storm, a tree was blow down on his veranda and smashed the steps, the replacing of which cost him $25. Complainant says the tree was rotten and had been speared with an iron bar to prevent it from splitting; hence he contends its unsafe condition should have been known to some of the city officials and this menace to his property removed.

Dainton moved into these premises in April, one month preceding the date of the accident, and he had not reported this rotten tree, which stood on city property, to the authorities.

Street Commissioner Evans had a report on the Legal Committee's file, saying that the steps of complainant's veranda were in poor condition before the accident.

Dainton, who appeared before the committee last night, claims to the contrary.

The city solicitor holds that the city is not liable, as complainant had lived in the house a month before the accident, and had not reported to the Council or its street department the unsafe condition of the tree in question.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Copping no action was taken on Dainton's claim for damages.

The Blain Case.

H. Blain is seeking recompense for injuries received by him last December, when he fell on a sidewalk on Aylmer street, and broke two ribs. Complainant says he fell over a section of the walk raised above its proper level, but admits that a blinding snow storm raging at the time obscured his vision. He was earning $4 a day, and because of the accident, has been forced to resort to other and less remunerative employment. Before the accident Blain had sustained, according to his own admission, permanent injury to his right foot, which left him unable to walk with surety on uneven surfaces.

City solicitor reported the city not liable in this case also, and on motion of Ald. Phelan and the Mayor, no action was taken by committee.

There were present Chairman Ald. Crowe, Mayor A. A. McIntyre, Aldermen Phelan, Copping and City Solicitor Widdifield.

CIVIC EMPLOYES OUT

Galt Laborers Ask 55 Cents And an Eight-Hour Day

Galt, April 1.— Dissatisfied because the city had not met their demand for 55 cents an hour for an eight-hour day, 11 of 44 men employed by the Board of Works quit their jobs, and are now walking the streets, while others remained, accepting the city's offer of 48 cents an hour for a nine-hour day. The employees of the Public Utilities Commisson have received 10 per cent increase in their salaries.

WHY NOT A CITIZENS' BAND?

IT MUST BE ADMITTED that Ald. Crowe, dealing with the band question, has made out an admirable case, provided the matter is regarded from his angle alone. His courage in expressing himself on this vexed and perplexing problem is beyond dispute. Consequences appear to have no terrors for him, provided always that he is assured that the course he takes is the proper one, being in the best interests not of a particular musical organization but of the city as a whole. But every question has two sides, and Ald. Crowe's propaganda is not permitted to pass unchallenged.

Ald. Crowe says that no city can hope to keep up a municipal band, and he cites the cases of other communities where such an attempt has been made only to result in failure. But so far as Peterborough is concerned, what are the actual facts?

The city already is at least half owner of a citizens band. The musical instruments which the Veterans' Band is now using to such good purpose belong to the city, their use alone having been donated. If the Veterans' Band went out of business tomorrow, then the instruments would revert to the city. If the City Council decided to take over the band and establish it in full status as a civic institution; the only additional expense involved would be the purchase of uniforms for the players, suits that would be in keeping with the city's standing. The members of the band would be required then, as they are now, to donate their services at every public function. This would not prevent them from playing for money at private entertainments, so long as these did not conflict with their official engagements. In this way the band would be able to earn enough supplemented as their earnings would be by the annual grant, to provide themselves with music and other incidentals. All the music required in the parks would be furnished by this organization. The band would at all times be subject to civic control, instead of being an organization over which the military authority is supreme.

There are always in any city a number of young men who are ambitious to become musicians, but who have no desire for a military connection. The proposed Citizens' Band would be an excellent school for the training of these young men.

That is the situation as it appears to those who support the idea of one band. The establishing of a Citizens' Band seems feasible. The expediency of the proposition would appear to be the only real issue.

WESTERN FARMERS AND THE TARIFF.

THE UNDERWOOD tariff law which became effective in the United States in 1913 removed the duty on wheat and its products coming from all countries that admitted grain from the Republic on the same basis. This Act gave a new impetus to the free trade propaganda in the Western Provinces, where the farmers held that Minneapolis and other milling centres were the natural markets for their wheat. The agitation to remove the duty on wheat and flour so as to secure access to the American market was revived in the West. The duty referred to was abolished in the latter days of the war in order that Canada might avail herself of the American shipping facilities. In those strenuous and threatening days everything, almost, in the way of fiscal policy was sacrificed in the interests of expediency. The main question of the hour was getting foodstuffs to the Allied armies in Europe.

There are now two bills before the American Congress dealing with the duty on wheat. One proposes a tax of 25 cents and the other of 10 cents a bushel with prospects for success in favor of the latter figure. Proportional duties, specific and ad valorem, are to be imposed on flour and the by-products of the industry.

What becomes of the Western farmer's free trade propaganda in the face of these facts? The tariff party in the American Congress is in power again. Their prospects for electing a President next November are roseate. The old American tariff wall will be restored probably higher than ever. The Canadian farmer on the Western prairie will find his dream of an open American market rudely shattered.

LEGENDS ON RELIGION.

THE CHARMING STORY of the Holy Grail, never told in more clear and interesting form than when recited by Judge Huycke in his address to the members of the Woman's Art Association the other night, may be apocryphal, but there is nothing lost by cherishing these legends that have their foundations in religion and the study of which cannot fail to increase the popular reverence for the Central Figure in all history, sacred or profane. That such a chalice existed in some form or other is accepted as a truth, and there is also no question as to its having been blessed by the Saviour filled with one of the elements of the Last Supper, and passed from hand to hand among the disciples. It is scarcely probable, however, that the cup was a costly affair set in jewels. The Man who had not where to lay His head, Who had to depend upon the hospitality of one of His adherents for a room in which to eat the Passover, was not likely to sup off dishes that it was within the power of the wealthy only to own. There was poverty in that band of twelve and their Leader. Poverty was one of the conditions of discipleship, and the treasurer, the man who "carried the bag" for the company, sought to add to the capital on hand by selling his Master for thirty paltry pieces of silver, another instance of abject want tempting a man into crime. Modern commentators are disposed to take a charitable view of the case of Judas. Beyond all doubt a morbid love of money was the real incentive to his perfidy. But they give him credit for the belief that by forcing an issue between his Leader and the mob the prestige of the Former would be increased and His miraculous powers established beyond all dispute for all time. Judas, when he realized what he had done, had the—call it grace for lack of a more fitting term—to return the price of innocent blood and throw away his own life in a vain attempt to repair the mischief.

Another legend connected with the life of Christ is that while He was staggering to Calvary, sweating under the burden of the Cross, a woman on the wayside, watching the procession of death, handed the Saviour a handkerchief with which to wipe the perspiration from His face. He used it and returned it to His benefactor, who found a true copy of His features imprinted upon it. It is edifying to believe that this incident really occurred, because it shows that the Nazarene did not go to His death denied human pity and that in those days there were still hearts that felt for the suffering. The service, if really rendered, was more touching that that which Simon the Cyrenian actually performed when he relieved the weak and staggering Saviour from the burden of the Cross. What Veronica did was of her own free will, while the Roman soldiers, chafing at the delay, compelled Simon to render aid.

MAJORITY FOR HOME RULE.

THE NEW HOME RULE BILL has passed the second reading stage by a majority of nearly four to one. This does not assure its adoption, at least in its present form, but it certainly can be taken as an indication of the feeling in the British House of Commons on the Irish problem. The members of that body are fairly representative, it must be conceded, of the spirit of the times. As such they are worthy of confidence as to their ability to deal with an affair which, after all, constitutes a domestic issue. Dictation from the United States or unasked counsel from Canada are alike so much effort wasted, evidence, both of them, of international bad taste. Let the British manage their own affairs, something they have done up to the present, with few notable exceptions, with distinguished success.

But even if the present bill passes its final reading, Home Rule for Ireland will still remain a distant prospect. It will beyond all question be ruled that it is a new measure, and the Peers in the Upper House will insist on the right to veto it. This means that the bill must be dropped for at least a year. If at a subsequent session of Parliament it is passed again, it becomes a law regardless of the House of Lords.

A process which means more exasperating delay, and delay seldom tends to pacify a race that is restive under either real or fancied grievances.

COURTS AND THEIR FUNCTIONS.

THE JUDGES on the Bench are supposed to interpret, not to make, the laws of the nation. Courts are popularly supposed to posses no legislative powers, but it is nothing unusual for judges to so render opinions that their ruling establishes what is really a new statute.

At the trial of the strike leaders in Winnipeg Judge Metcalfe has undertaken to say what constitutes a treasonable conspiracy. The lawyers for the defence, among whom were numbered some of the brightest minds before the Canadian bar, challenge the ruling and claim that there is nothing in statutory law defining the charge upon which the men were really convicted. The case of the men found guilty are to be carried higher up until they reach the Privy Council.

It is well that this matter should be set at rest for all time. None will be more anxious to see it finally disposed of than the conservative element in the Labor party. Such men are as anxious as anyone to have their rights clearly defined. If it is decided that to strike is treason, then there will be less precipitancy shown in such matters. But there is a settled belief that it is possible for even judges to make mistakes in their rulings, and the desire is for an expression of judicial opinion which must be accepted as final.

THE VISITING NURSES.

(New York Globe.)

During 1919, 45,000 persons were ill in New York City who were either so poor that they could not afford nursing assistance at all or could not afford to pay for it at regular rates. These 45,000 persons were cared for by the visiting nurse service of the Henry Street Settlement House. The nurses, of whom 180 to 200 are on duty constantly day and night, made more than 272,000 calls during last year in the course of their duties. They are now making calls at the rate of about 1,000 a day.

"HE IS NOT HERE; HE IS RISEN"

(Family Herald and Weekly Star.)

Sorrow and lonliness and bleak winter come to the entrance of the cold dark tomb.

And, lo! the tomb is bright with light supernatural! The all-glorious Angel of the Resurrection stands within it!

They thought it the grave of life. It is really the womb of the morning, all a-glitter with the sun-rising of a new and better day.

The tradition of Easter is a holy one. The Feast lacks the merriment we have learnt to associate with the Nativity, but the Resurrection is to the full as essential to the Christian faith.

Christmas is a season of joy, of blithesome cheerfulness at the advent of the Saviour. To a world sobered by its Gethsemane and Calvary, Easter brings a message of Faith and Hope, the essence of the religion mankind needs.

Mankind has passed through the Agony culminating in and symbolized by the little white cross. Heavy-hearted we are still inclined to seek solace at the tomb. To us the message comes again: "Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here; He is risen."

Therein lies the message of Easter: the promise of immortality beyond the tomb.

Nor is it a mere coincidence that Easter falls at this season. Spring is simply Nature's way of re-iterating the Easter message. Through the long winter months the world of Nature has seemed asleep in death. Trees bare, fields destitute, death appeared to reign supreme.

Then, just as we are almost wearied enough to give up hope, the sap begins to run, little green things to shoot, birds to chirp as cheerily as ever.

It is Nature's message of immortality to the world of humanity.

There is another and wider aspect of the Easter message. We seem to be standing by the tomb of much that is holy. Religion, belief in principle, idealism, how dead they seem to be! Seeking only material things, neglectful of things of the spirit, the world is in a parlous state. The few who have held to their beliefs look about in perplexity and dismay. Has the very body of the faith been removed? Ah, no. In the midst of our anxious grief comes the reviving, heartening assurance: "He is not dead. He is risen."

That is the message of Easter: the immortality of the soul and the eternal existence of what we call religion, and of all that religion connotes to men.

Ever the Easter festival comes around—after the inevitable Agony and every Spring the magic words are spoken and we go forth clad in invulnerable armour for the fray, for "He is not dead. He is risen." So shall we other men also rise!

"Therefore let us keep the Feast."

FACTS ABOUT CANADA

In British Columbia there are large areas of free grant land. The area at the disposal of the Crown through the Provincial Government contains almost two hundred million acres.

A free grant of 160 acres in B.C. is made to the head of a family, a widow, an unmarried woman 18 years of age and self-supporting, a woman deserted by her husband or to an alien upon making a declaration of his intention to become a British subject.

During the past ten years the average yield per year in British Columbia of fall wheat was 31 bushels, spring wheat, 28.75; oats, 56.5; barley, 37.25; peas, 29.25; potatoes, 206.5; turnips 457.

According to statistics collected in 1916, the Prairie Provinces contained 703,345 males of whom 47,836 or 6.8 per cent, were illiterate. The females numbered 537,029, of whom 45,096 or 8.3 were illiterate. There were fewest illiterates among the British-born, namely only one-third of one per cent. Among the Canadian-born there were about 5½ per cent; and among the foreign-born about 11 per cent.

The fish and fish products exported from Canada last year had a value of $36,392,626. The largest buyer was the United States, taking these products to the value of $17,798,603.

Among the distant buyers of our fish were the Straits Settlements, $70,593; British Guiana, $239,078; Australia, $1,166,210; Fiji, $68,724; Hong Kong, $27,431; Brazil, $543,426; China, $2,992; Equador, $53; Dutch Guiana, $48,019; Siam, $4,852.

The exports of forest products last year had a value of $70,851,901. The value of those sent to Great Britain was $9,216,158; to the United States, $57,502,759; to other countries, $3,832,984.

The first bill introduced into an elective representative legislature in Canada was a bill to establish and define the authority of the House of Assembly of Nova Scotia introduced in the Assembly at its first session on October 2, 1758.

The first cotton mill in Canada was established at Sherbrooke, Quebec, in 1844, an incorporated company having been formed to operate it with a capital of £12,000. Among its promoters was A. T. Galt, afterwards Sir Alexander Galt, first Minister of Finance after Confederation.

The first stone house in Canada was erected at Tadousac, on the north shore of the Lower St. Lawrence, in 1599 by a fur trader named Chauvin.

Editor Review: I was interested in your editorial in reference to the moving pictures of our city, having been shown here, and not very liberally patronized. As a citizen, I would have been very pleased to have seen the films referred to. The difficulty is largely the fault of the picture houses not using the papers, which are the medium through which the majority of the citizens hope to keep posted as to what is going on in their midst.

ABOUT NOTED PEOPLE

As might have been expected, the man who is filling the office of President of the German Republic—Deutsche Vesammlung—is passing through turbulent times. Germany has been wrecked by the war of her own making, and out of the wreckage a new set of rulers are trying to build up a new political system and at the same time bear the domestic burdens created by the war, and the foreign burden justly laid upon Germany by the Peace Treaty that defeat compelled her to sign.

The man harassed by all these cares, beset by all these difficulties, and surrounded by great dangers, is Frederich Ebert, who took office on February 11, 1919, and who has already weathered one revolution, and emerged from the storm with his hands on the helm of state. The future is dark and threatens more storms, and all the President's fortitude and sagacity will be tried to the utmost before the German Republic is set upon a course that promises liberty with order. Prosperity as it was known before Germany set out upon her raid on the world, cannot be known for many years to come.

Herr Ebert is a democrat in every sense of the word. He comes of a family that has always belonged to the working and small trading class, and the line between that class and the aristocracy is more clearly drawn, more hard and fast in Germany than in any other country; at least, that was the case in Imperial Germany, and the present form of Government is too new to have made such change in social distinctions.

Herr Ebert's father was a master tailor with a good business but without wealth. The son was born on February 4, 1870, and was educated at a board school along with other children of parents belonging to the class of small business men. After learing something of his father's trade, he served an apprenticeship to the trade of a saddler, and it was as a saddler that he made his way in life for a number of years.

He married Luise Rump, a young woman of his own class, who now officially is the first lady in Germany. Five children were born of the marriage, and two of them while serving in the Kaiser's army in the late war were killed in battle. Thus German imperialism thrust its iron into the soul of the family of the President of Germany.

Herr Ebert, the saddler, took a keen interest in public affairs, and he began to devote some of his time to journalism. For a number of years he edited a Social Democratic newspaper known as the "Breiburger Zeitung." He entered public life in 1912, two years before the beginning of the war, when he was elected to the Reichstag—the old House of Commons of the German Empire, and in the following year he became Chairman of the Social Democratic Party.

When the breaking down of Germany's military power came in the autumn of 1918, Herr Ebert was one of the outstanding figures of the Democratic Party, and as order began to emerge out of the chaos of the revolution he was chosen President, with as difficult a task to perform as was ever undertaken by a public man.

YOUR

MOST IMPORTANT DEAL

When a man applies for Life Insurance he is taking up the most important deal of his life, for, presumably, he will not be here when it is settled.

How important then that he select the best obtainable.

The record of the Sun Life of Canada for the past 49 years of its existence has been an unbroken march of progress, obtained through square dealing, and the past year has surpassed all others with its Assets of over ONE HUNDRED MILLION and Income of TWENTY-FIVE MILLIONS and Surplus, on Government standard, of over TEN MILLIONS. Where can you find its equal?

Is it not to your interest, therefore, to place your Life Insurance with the Butter From Coconut Milk.

Butter is churned from coconut milk as from cow's milk. According to a British patent of late date the milk is completely extracted by crushing the fresh kernel of the coconut to a paste with the addition of skimmed coconut milk from a later stage. The cellulose is then separated in a filter press, and the resinous matter is removed in a centrifugal separator. The cream is then collected from the purified milk in a centrifugal cream separator. The separated cream is pasteurized, subjected to a lactic fermentation, churned into butter, and this is washed with water. Albumen or vegetable casein is precipitated from the skimmed coconut milk by heat and powdered gypsum, and is collected, washed, pressed and dried.

Sapphire Is New Fashion Gem.

That person who wishes to be in it, to use the English equivalent for the French phrase, will wear sapphires. Such is the edict of fashion. One reason for this is that it has been comparatively easy to imitate the ruby, hitherto enthroned as the show gem. Another probably is that the sapphire has been somewhat neglected and it is prudent to get rid of accumulated stock.

Small Coinage Doubles.

During last year the coinage of pieces under $1 in value was 714,000,000, or nearly double the coinage of 1917, and approximately five times the coinage of 1916. The coinage of pennies reached $4,456,282, and there were more than $4,000,000 in nickels, the remainder being half dollars, quarters and dimes.—Utica Press.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

EASTER LESSON

LESSON I. April 4, 1920

The Golden Text—"Behooved it not the Christ to suffer these things, and to enter into his glory?"—Luke 24; 26.

The Lesson Text.—Luke 24:13-31

The Time— Sunday, April 9, A.D. 30.

The Place— The road leading from Jerusalem to the little town of Emmaus.

Lesson Text Illumined

6. Now when Joshua had sent the people away. After the great assembly and solemn covenant at Shechom. Josh. 24:1-27. Israel went every man unto his inheritance. To occupy the lands which had been allotted to them.

7. The people served Jehovah all the days of Joshua. The historian begins here to give up his philosophy of history, and to point out the divine discipline of Israel. While philosophy, as such, had for the Jews no meaning, history had a deeper significance than it had for any other people of antiquity. The prophet was the conscience of his period, so t speak. It was his function to study the checkered fortunes of the chosen nation, and point out God's hand in their history. To the prophets, history was but the march of the divine purpose. As Dorner says, "Israel had the dea of teleogy as a kind of soul," the great idea of the prophets was that he history of Israel is a divine discipline—righteous, wise and good.

8. Joshua . . . died. Verses 6-9, here are almost identical with Josh. 24: 28 30.

9. In the border of his inheritance. Namely, Timnath-serah, Josh 19:49. 50 really, "the portion which remained over" after all the others, Caleb and the different tribes had been assigned their parts. Josha's tract lay up in hill country of Ephraim, not far west of Bethel. It was a very modest service to them. Joshua was first in service, but last in reward! Timnath heres. The name means "territory of the sun." In Josh. 19:50 "heres" is inverted into "serah," probably to avoid the heathen allusion to sun worship (Thatcher). George Adam Smith, folowing Moslem tradition, identifes it with Kefr Harith, nine miles south of Shechem, but it is better to identify it with a place called Tibnah by the modern Arabs, about eight miles west of Bethel. The mountain of Gaash. There is a high range of hills just south of Tibnah, in the sides of which an elaborately carved rock-mausoleum has been cut, with portico, spacious chambers, painted walls, and kikin, or cavites for the dead and it is highly probable, as Captain Conder long since pointed out, that in this tomb Joshua was himself buried.

10. There arose another generation after them, that knew not Jehovah "Our case," said Luther once, "will go on, so long as its living advocates Melanchton and friars and learned men, who apply themselves zealously to the work, shall be alive; but, after their death, 'twill be a sad falling off."

11. The children of Israel did that which was evil. The defection began after the death of Joshua, with the very generation after the invasion And served the Baalim. The gods of the Canaanites, local deites. Baalim is the plural of Baal, meaning "possessor."

12. They forsook Jehovah. Breaking the First Commandment.

13. Asthtaroth. The plural of Ashtoreth, the Hebrew goddess Astarte corresponding with the Babylonian "Ishtar."

14. He sold them into the hands of their enemies round about. Their punishment being inflicted by the hand of the same surrounding nations for whose religion they had forsaken their own.

15. And they were so distressed Or, they found themselves in great straits!

16. And Jehovah raised up judges who saved them. "The Book of Judges shows what God can do by a single man, and what happens when God does not provide a man" (Luther) To "judge" meant in those days to "vindicate" as well as to decide. The "judges" of this book are the champions and leaders of Israel in its conflicts with the enemies and oppressors. The name is therefore synonymous with "deliverers." That Israel cried out unto Jehovah for help is not here explicitly stated but may be inferred as implied from ch. 3:15 For, it seems to be the author's purpose in this section to explain why calamities and war befell Israel. He practically says, Israel was faithful till after the death of Joshua and his generation. Then apostasy to Baal and Astarte set in; whereupon, Jehovah became angry and sent oppressors. When Israel groaned under their oppression, deliverers were raised up Yet Israel did not completely abandon idols, and consequently their enemes were not completely driven out —By Prof. Geo. L. Robinson, Ph.D O.O.

It was well enough to impress the child with the George Washington cheery tree story; but, of course, it was foolish to follow it up with the gift of a hatchet.

NAVIN TURNS OVER THREE PLAYERS TO HAMILTON TEAMS

TWO PITCHERS AND THIRD BASE MAN ARE RECOMMENDED BY DETROIT PRESIDENT

Frank Navin, part-owner of the Detroit Americans, wants to see Frank Shaughnessy carry off the Michigan Ontario League gonfalon. This, no fact that Navin hails from Michigan, doubt, sounds strange in view of the which state has four entires in the M-O classic; but it's a fact, nevertheless. "Shag" and Navin have been this accounts for the Detroit owner's close friends for several years, and desire to see his lanky friend bob up on top of the heap. Last year Navin promised all his surplus material to "Shag," but didn't come through. This was only because he had nothing worth while to send here. This year he promises to atone for last season's failure, and, judging by the news dropped by "shag" weekly letter, received yesterday, he is starting off well to make up for lost time.

Navin has put the Hamilton pilot in touch with three players — two hurlers and a third baseman — who have already been signed up, and he has also recommended two others a catcher and an outfielder— for "Shag" to get in touch with. The third baseman's name is Jack Turner. We never heard of him, but he is highly recommended. The pitchers are Ernie Lorens and John Kudron. The former is a pretzelarm and the latter a regular fellow. Old-timers who have batted against Kudron say that he has a great fast ball, a fine change of pace and a good pitching head. Lorenz, besides being able to pitch with more than ordinary success, is said to be somewhat of a "Babe" Ruth. He can hit and play the outfield. However, if he can pitch as well as Navin says, he will not have to patrol the outer regions to earn his salary. "Shag" wants pitchers for pitching purposes only, and if they can't earn their weekly stipend in that way they will have to shake the dust of this Ambitious City from their tootsies."

The only stipulation Navin makes regarding the three men is that if they prove good enough for a chance in the major leagues Detroit be given first chance to purchase them. They are the outright property of the Hamilton club now, and "Shag" is quite willing to agree to Navin's terms, just as long as they turn out satisfactorily.

FALCONS ALL READY FOR TRIP OVERSEAS

VARSITY MADE RECENT GAME QUITE ROUGH, BUT CUP-HOLDERS FOUGHT TOO

Toronto, April 1.— The Falcons of Winnipeg are all set for their long flight across the Atlantic and if the new Allan Cup holders play as well in the Olympic competition at Antwerp as they did against Varsty, the Canadian amateur hockey titleholders should return home world's champions. The Intercollegiate representatives turned in one of their good names in the final fixture and were more outlucked than outplayed. Unlike the initial contest, the affair was not of a parlor nature, the students casting ceremony to the winds and mixing it merrily, whenever the opportunity presented itself, with the result that the penalty box was seldom without an occupant, and on occasions two and three players were temporary spectators. It was noticeable that certain members of the Falcons did not take very kindly to the bumping they were subjected to and were inclined to a temperamental.

Hughes Got the "Razz"

Referee Hughes, the western official, didn't please the Varsity partizans and with reason. He was apparently loath to discipline the 'Peggers, but was not slow to visit his wrath upon the collegians. Once when Judge of Play Marsh sent away a Falcon ofender he insisted that a Varsity man should also retire and carried his point. It was officiousness raised to the ninth degree and the crowd boohed its displeasure. At that the Falcons didn't need any assistance from anybody in order to win. They were too swift and strong for the students and won the championship on their merits.

Not Yet Convinced

Nevertheless, Toronto fans are not yet convinced that the Falcons are the world beaters they are credited with being and would like to have seen them opposed to Sudbury, Tigers or Kitchener or Granites, which perhaps are more finished teams than Varsity but didn't have two chances at the cup. It is doubtful, however, if any of the teams mentioned have indivduals equal to Frederickson or Goodman from a standpoint of skating ability. These two players are probably the best amateur performers in Canada and the peers of any professional stars. Goaler Byron, who was knocked out by a bullet drive which he didn't see at the beginning of the last period, was not seriously hurt, and this morning, apart from a sore head was as fit as ever. Two or three stitches were placed in the cut.

Glace Bay High School was partly destroyed by fire on Saturday morning, damage amounting to $15,000.

NEW MAPS OF EUROPE NOW IN CIRCULATION

THESE WILL BE DISTRIBUTED AMONG THE SCHOOLS OF THE PROVINCE

Peterborough seems to have been forgotten byt the Department of Education in the matter of new maps of Europe. Principal H. R. H. Kenner stated this morning that such maps [illegible] yet been received and that he had no word as to when they would arrive.

Reports have come from other cities in this district stating that the new maps of Europe have reached their schools and that there are vast changes to puzzle the student. The boundaries of the countries of Central Europe are very much changed. New countries spelled with a lot of consonnants make their appearance. Turkey, whose exit by the familiar bag and baggage route has been a consummation devoutly to be wished for by statesmen for decades eventually makes its appearance from at least the map of Europe. There is a strip around Constantinople in the familiar brown colour which was so appropriate to go with Turkey, but a foot note explains that this neutral zone is to be administered by or through the League of Nations. It is questionable, however, whether the pupil will consider it better to have a mental dinner of Jugo Serbs and peace therewith than the well-known old slice of Turkey and all its strife.

Germany, which formerly spread itself like a greedy spider, is somewhat crumbled up now like a frozen fly. Austria Hungary is dismembered, and Czecho Slovakia and Jugo Slavia become names to conjure with Ukraine and its distinctive salmon coloring. Finland, Esthonia, Kurland, Lithuania, all have their unique coloring where once there was a drab expanse, marked Russia. The British Isles are marked a vivid red. Ireland is still the same color as Great Britain.

Alex. Fraser, an old resident of Niagara district, passed away at the residence of his son, Magistrate Fraser, Niagara Falls.

Two-thirds of Brantford's treasury notes, to the amount of $150,000, have been taken by citizens.

St. Catharines Board of Education appointed Dr. W. H. Cunningham as medical officer to the board.

Port Stanley tugs are icebound, consequently fishermen will not be able to commence for some time.

British Columbia is to have a referendum this summer on whether prohibition shall continue or not.

Though favoring daylight saving, Ald. T. E. Ryerson, Brantford, will not introduce the bylaw this year.

$10 and $12 ARE THE TWO PRICES WE ARE FEATURING IN THE MILLINERY DEPARTMENT SATURDAY

OF COURSE, YOU CAN PAY MUCH MORE IF YOU DESIRE

They are distinctive hats, and made so because of their shape, straw and trimming. You are allowed great latitude in the way of shapes—some straight brim sailors or with rolling brims, and chin chins and turbans. In many instances they are gaily bedecked with flowers, for this seems to be the spirit of the season.

Some Profitable Propositions From The Redfern Store

$49 SERGE SUITS CAN BE HAD FOR $39.50

They are distinctly snappy in style and are made of a fine wool serge, and can be had in either black or navy blue. The coats are made with pretty ripples that fall from the waist line. Shawl collars and military braid trimmings also contribute to their charm.

IF YOU HAVE A DESIRE TO OWN A WHITE VOILE BLOUSE OF THE BETTER KIND, WE PROVIDE AN OPPORTUNITY SATURDAY

$5.95 To $6.95 VALUES For $5

The voile itself is that soft, supple desirable kind, and the neat trimming of fine pin tucks, lace, insertion, hemstitched seams and pearl buttons make them doubly enticing. Some have a convertible and others a sailor collar.

TWEED COATS THAT WILL GIVE LONG SERVICE

$25 VALUE. SATURDAY $21.95

They are jaunty because they are made of Donegal tweeds and cut on straight lines, and have a smart belt, pockets and convertible collar. They will give long service because there is no alternative with such material.

WHAT WOMAN WHO WANTS A SKIRT WOULD REFUSE A $12 OR $13.75 ONE FOR $10!

Navy and black serge has been used to advantage in their making. They are perfectly tailored, and neat buttons, a pocket and a separate belt make them quite modish.

SILK CAMISOLES THAT ALL ALONG HAVE SOLD FOR $1.69 ... TO-MORROW $1.29

You have choice of either pink or white and both have a deep lace yoke and ribbon trimming. Elastic finish at the bottom.

Died—At Manvers, on Wednesday, March 24th, 1920, Mrs. George Patton, aged 44 years.

Mr. Ed. Riley, of Peterborough, was a guest of Millbrook friends on Sunday.

Miss Gladys Gray, of Elizabethville, was home over Sunday.

The union Good Friday service will be held in the Methodist Church next Friday at 10.30 a.m. Rev. Dr. Lee will preach. All will be welcome.

W.M.B. Meeting.

W.M.B. Society held their tenth meeting on March 24th. In the absence of the president and vice-president, Miss Talbot took the chair.

Piano solo by E. Tucker.

A debate was then given, "Resolved that a country boy is not greener in the town than a town boy in the country."

The negative side won by one point.

The school paper was read by M. Grey.

Violin solo by W. Johnson.

A female quartette.

Easter Announcements.

The Sunday morning service is the annual church parade and thank-offering service of the Women's Missionary Society, the Mission and the Mission Band. The musical offerings will be: Anthem, "Glorious Victory," Ira B. Wilson; soprano solo, "Sharons," with violin obligato.

The Sunday School scholars are having a special Easter program Sunday afternoon at 2.30.

The evening service will take the form of an Easter song service, including special Easter hymns and the following numbers by the choir: Anthem, "Our King Hath Risen" (Victor), Wm. J. Kirkpatrick; duet and chorus, "The Three Crosses," W. C. Jordan, double mixed quartette "Awakening Chorus," Chas. H. Gabriel.

Next Sunday is Easter.

The day we've set to beat the record of our class attendance. We are glad because you are coming. But say, your presence alone won't make the class complete. Tell every one else, invite them, bring them, we want them. We meet in the church next Sunday afternoon, 2.30. Come.

Personals.

Mr. Steve Martin, of Peterborough, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs Chester Fee, on Sunday.

Miss Edith Proctor and Mr. Arthur Barrett were guests of Miss Mabel Brown on Sunday last.

Mr. Arthur Vance was a visitor to Peterborough on Monday.

Mr. Wes. Williamson and Howard Fallis were in Peterborough Saturday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Farmer have left town and gone on the farm. They will be missed by their many friends.

Messrs. Walter and Geo. Hetherington and Miss Stella Hetherington were in Peterborough Monday attending the funeral of the late Wm. Might.

Mr. Amos Strong was in Peterborough on Saturday.

Mr. Meredith Perrin, of Oshawa, spent Sunday with Millbrook friends.

Father and Son Banquet.

The C.S.E.T. boys gave a banquet in the basement of Millbrook Methodist Church on Friday evening. Mr. J. L. Byam, mentor of the C.S.E.T. group, was chairman for the occasion and filled the office in a most efficient manner.

The supper was provided by the ladies of the congregation and served by several girls. Over fifty fathers and sons partook of the excellent supper, after which the chairman gave a brief address of welcome. Several C.S.E.T. songs were sung, in which all joined heartily.

The chairman then called on four of the C.S.E.T. boys to speak on the different standards under the C.S.E.T. program. Mr. R. Davidson took the physical standard; Mr. A. Raper, the social; Mr. Frank Alcorn, the intellectual, and Mr. Bruce Dawson, the religious. Rev. S. T. Tucker was then called on and gave a very interesting address. Rev. J. E. Beckel, of Bethany, the speaker for the evening, then took the floor and gave a splendid talk, which was listened to with close attention. Mr. Monk, superintendent of Bethany S. S., also spoke. He congratulated the four C.S.E.T. boys on their splendid address.

The Byam quartette rendered several pleasing selections. Votes of thanks to the ladies and to Rev. Beckel were carried by acclamation.

There was a violin solo by W. Johnson and a female quartette. The critic then gave his remarks. The meeting closed by singing God Save the King.

PREMIER DRURY IS IN FAVOR OF REFERENDUM

GOVERNMENT WILL SUPPORT BILL BROUGHT IN BY PRIVATE MEMBER

Toronto, April 1.—With the debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne out of the way, the Legislature got ahead with considerable business yesterday. Several Government bills were advanced past the second reading. The bill increasing the number entitled to vote at municipal elections met with much unexpected objection, and will be thrashed out in Municipal Committee.

Efforts to force a declaration from the Government as to its temperance policy caused some war exchanges across the floor of the House. The participants were Major J. C. Tolmie, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Hon. W. E. Raney and the Premier. Major Tolmie started it by reading newspaper reports of the proposed referendum motion and bill being introduced by private members, and asking of the Government if this was a Government declaration? The question was backed by Mr. Ferguson, who took strenuous objection to the manner in which [illegible] making so [illegible] for other than the [illegible] the measures being [illegible] the private members.

"GREAT SHADOW" IS A PICTURE OF LOCAL INTEREST

TRENT VALLEY SCENERY WILL FIGURE IN EXHIBITION AT GRAND TONIGHT

For some months past there has been a wave of popular feeling against the showing of so many foreign pictures in Canadian picture houses, and the opinion has gained ground that there is no reason why Canadian pictures should not be able to compete with those made in the United States. Peterborough movie fans will have the unique opportunity this week of witnessing the showing of the first "made in Canada film," which is guaranteed to be as good as the best of those produced across the border, and indeed far superior to a good many of them. There are other points which should make "The Great Shadow" appeal to Peterborough people. They will remember the tremendous hit which Tyrone Power made in the recent exhibition of "The Servant in the House." Well, it is he who is now starring in the first Canadian motion picture, "The Great Shadow," a picture that is not only Canadian made but produced right in our own beloved Trent Valley with the beautiful scenery of the Trent Canal as the background.

Mr. J. J. Shea, who is conducting the augmented orchestra for the last three days of this week, is in himself a special attraction to theatre goers. In company with Klaw and Erlanger of New York, he produced the famous Ben-Hur, which is billed to show in Toronto next week, and also assisted in the production of many others of their first-class attractions. Later he owned and directed the Montreal Symphony Orchestra, and also is one of the founders of the Adanac Company, which produced "The Great Shadow."

Another added attraction to the picture is the appearance of Madame Lorette Beck, a famous dramatic soprano, who will render an Indian love song from "The Queen of Sheba," selections from Tanhauser, and "Kiss Me Again," by Victor Herbert. Madame Beck has a continental reputation as a dramatic soprano and acted in "Carmen" with Ramon Blanchart, the best baritone of Europe. In "Carmen" she was very successful and had secured a contract to appear in Spain. Unfortunately, during one of the performances of "Carmen" she had the misfortune to meet with an accident in the last act and break her leg, which necessitated cancelling the contract. It is as a result of this that she is able to appear in Peterborough today with the Adanac Company.

Madame Beck will sing "Divine Redeemer" at the service in St. John's Anglican Church tomorrow morning. She sings in French, English and Italian.

NEW MILK BILL AMENDED BY THE LEGISLATURE

INSPECTORS CAN TAKE SAMPLES FROM ANY WAGGON OR FACTORY

Toronto, April 1.— A dispute was expected yesterday in the Legislature when Hon. Manning Doherty got his bill regarding the purchase of milk and cream through the second reading. Hon. Geo. Henry, former Minister of Agriculture, was present and spoke briefly on the bill, but did not "start anything."

The day before, Hon. G. H. Ferguson had accused the Minister of Agriculture of making an attack on Mr. Henry in the absence of the latter. The second reading was then left for the return of Mr. Henry.

The bill was slightly amended yesterday when the drivers of milk wagons were put under the clause which gives permission to inspectors to take samples from any cans of milk in waggons, at factories or numerous other places. The new bill repeals the bill passed in the Legislature last session.

MOTHER OF 18 SAYS IT WAS A GODSEND

"FROM NOW ON TANLAC WILL BE MY FAMILY MEDICINE," SAYS MRS. GRENIER.

"Well, this is certainly a coincidence, for the very moment you were coming in I was pouring into the kitchen sink all the costly medicines that had been prescribed for me," said Mrs. Solomon Grenier, when the special Tanlac representative who had called at her residence, 1443 Logan street, Montreal, the other day to ascertain the facts.

"Tanlac is the only thing I found during my three years of ill-health," added Mrs. Grenier, "that has done me any good. I just consider it a God-send to suffering humanity. For at least 2 weeks in every month I had frightful headaches and would get so dizzy it was difficult for me to walk. Many a time after meals I had almost unbearable cramping pains in my stomach, and, at times, I was so overcome with heart palpitation that I had to sit down. I had no appetite and sometimes got so dizzy that things turned dark and had the appearance of a veil of smoke before my eyes. In order to get relief from these attacks I had to take to bathing my head with ice water. I was constipated the worst kind, had very painful neuralgia in my neck, and did not feel strong enough to attend to my household duties. I could only sleep part of the night and my condition was so distressing that life hardly seemed worth living.

"But I began taking Tanlac about three weeks ago and am just so glad to see how wonderfully my health is being restored that I want to tell everybody about Tanlac. I have no more headaches or dizzy spells and since I am able to digest my food properly my heart palpitations have disappeared. My appetite is just fine and I am eating meats—even pork—and anything else I stipated. that weak, tired feeling has also left me, and now that my suffering has been relieved, I am building up in weight right along. I have already gained five pounds and feel stronger and better than I have since my troubles started three years ago. I am the mother of eighteen children and from this time on I expect for Tanlac to be my family medicine. It is so good that I want to make this statement and help others who need it like I did to know about it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by The Warne Drug Co., and by the leading druggists in every town.

SOME WEDDING CHANGES

Old Form of Invitation to Ceremony Is Falling Into Disuse

We are going to be married on Tuesday and hope that you will come on from the church to a coffee and cakes' housewarming at our new home. This is the type of letter which is taking the place of the stereotyped silver printed wedding invitation of yester-year.

It is typical of the enormous change which has come over wedding arrangements generally just of late changes which are amongst the most notable of all recent alterations in everyday social life.

The old time elaborate ceremonial and ritual in connection with weddings has largely fallen into disuse and are passing more and more into oblivion. The new wedding is a very different affair from what a wedding used to be, far less elaborate, far more informal, less costly, and more pleasurable.

Blue Serge Brides

A group of clergymen agreed that there had been a big swelling of the number of "blue serge brides" during the last year or so, and the custom has not ended with the war though born of it.

Coat and skirt brides have come to stay. White satin and silver brocade lace and tulle, and orange blossoms were always a pull on the pocket of the average bride—or her parents.

Today a woman can dare to be married in what she likes or in what is suitable to her pocket – something that will be useful afterwards.

It is the same with wedding guests. It is no longer considered necessary to buy new frock, hat, gloves, shoes and etceteras for every wedding attended.

More Simple

Wedding ceremonies are altogether more simple. Ad lib orders on the scale of "Do what you like; the wedding will only come once;" methods have become practically unknown with florists.

Walking weddings have become much more frequent among everyday folk. One carriage at the most; the long string of vehicles with bedecked drivers has quite gone.

As a matter of fact, the honeymoon itself is becoming more honored in the breach than the observance. Long honeymoons have entirely passed from fashion, and the week-end honeymoon, born of war leave weddings has come to stay, if there is a honeymoon at all.

There is a growing tendency for the bride and bridegroom to go straight to their new home instead of journeying to some distant spot. Sometimes, as in the case quoted at the beginning, the actual wedding reception takes the form of a house warming. The latter custom is likely to extend. It certainly has many points in its favour.

Wedding receptions are among the sidelines of a marriage which have altered most greatly during recent years. The old-style wedding breakfast has quite gone; the wedding luncheon is on the high road to following it. Most people prefer a come and go as you please "coffee and cakes" sort of reception.

REFUSES REQUEST OF TEAMSTERS FOR RAISE

MINISTER OF WORKS WILL CLOSE DOWN JOB RATHER THAN CONSENT

St Catharines, April 1. – The teamsters, who are now being paid 35c an hour for themselves and 80c an hour for their teams, who are working for the Ontario Government on the Queenston and Grimsby stone road through here, which is a government highway, have asked Hon. Mr. Biggs, Minister of Highways, for substantial increases. They want a dollar an hour for their teams and 50c for the drivers.

Mr. Biggs has refused the request and says that sooner than pay out the Province's money that way he will close up the work entirely.

The Queenston and Grimsby road, which is the great international highway between Canada and the United States, and is largely used by autos, is to be levelled off and graded this year, preparatory to a permanent pavement of some kind being laid next year. The road will run from Hamilton to Queenston, and not touch Niagara Falls except possibly by a branch line.

LAUGH AT DEATH SENTENCE

Two Montreal Men Find Humor in Murder Verdict

Montreal, March 29.— When Fedor Belan and William Boycal were taken to their cells after having been sentenced to hang June 18 for the murder of Peter Shulman, they laughed loudly at their fate. The trial was a speedy one, commencing at 10 o'clock in the morning and concluding at six.

SIX TEAM ENTERED IN CITY FOOTBALL LEAGUE

FURTHER ARRANGEMENTS FOR SEASON'S PROGRAM MADE AT MEETING LAST NIGHT

At the present time there are six teams entered for the City Football League: the C. G. E., Canadian Woollens, Caledonian Club, Machine Gun Company, DeLaval and G. W. V. A. This information was gleaned at a meeting of the executive of the league held in Coleman's store, George st., last night, with President G. Parkins in the chair.

The C. G. E., DeLaval and the Caledonian Club will use the Exhibition Grounds and the Canadian Woollens the Oval. Other grounds have yet to be allotted. A committee composed of Messrs. Parkins, Baldwin, Sutcliffe and Curtis was elected to draw up a season and to have the same completed on or before the 15th. of April. It was also decided that the first league game should be played on April 24th.

Fixture cards must be in the hands of the different clubs at least four days before the first game. The motion passed at a previous meeting to the effect that all players must be registered by May first was rescinded and a motion fixing the date for such registration at April 15th. was put in its place. It is expedient that all clubs or players desiring to play in the league should hand their applications in to any of the members of the executive as soon as possible. The executive and officers of the various clubs are working at high pressure in order to get the league into working order without delay. Already outfits and equipment for some of the teams are arriving in the city and the season is looked forward to with the utmost confidence by all concerned.

At the meeting last night a number of names were submitted of those desiring to qualify as referees.

NOTE INCREASE OF RABIES

Recrudescence of Dread Disease Declared to Be a Direct Result of the War.

Among the plagues to follow the great war, rabies must be reckoned with. Already it has reappeared in England, while from the very beginning an increase was apparent in France. Before the struggle began Belgium and the districts doomed to be occupied in northern France swarmed with dogs, and rabies was sufficiently common. This abundance was due in part to the extensive use of the dog as a draught animal in those localities. After the invasion these animals moved westward in large numbers. They appeared to breed as usual and were under little or no police supervision, although conditions for suppressing the danger were most favorable. Rabies showed an increase from the North sea to Switzerland, and was carried far into the interior of France, where police protection was as good as absent. The type too is virulent, as shown by the short incubation period. Lenoir, who writes to the above effect in a health bulletin abstracted in the Journal de Medecine et de Chirurgie Pratique, was the officer in charge of an anti-rabies campaign, which suppressed the disease in South Africa in 1902.

Frank Davis, who was arrested in St. Thomas, has admitted that he was the burglar who has been terrorizing the citizens for the last two months.

DRESS UP FOR EASTER
You Will Know How Good Clothes Can Be Made When You Wear One of Our Suits
MEN who know good clothes at a glance, and those who have to leave the choosing of a right style and fabric to the man who does the selling, should investigate the immense showing of new Spring Clothes at this store.
Come here and ask the salesman to show you the particular kind of a suit you have in mind; let him tell you why these clothes will hold their shape, why the materials used are the best; why we are so particular about having every garment made by experienced tailors. Then — if we can't, with this great big stock of good clothes show you just what you want, whether the color be blue, tan or gray, or the fabric be of all-wool tweed, worsted or serge — we certainly won't expect you to buy.
May we suggest that now is the right time to buy Shirts, Underwear, Hosiery, Neckwear, etc.

DUST FROM THE DIAMOND

Martin Battle, one of the directors of the Hamilton Ball Club, is going to make a trip around the M. O. circuit when Tigers go away on their first jaunt. Alll hope that he doesn't find conditions the same in the Michigan cities as they were last year. In Tom Halligan's town there weren't enough at the opening games to start a respectable camp. And those who passed through the gate were there with passes.

Gone and Forgotten

When "Ping" Bodie was a member of the New York Americans the Gotham critics said there were few in the major leagues who could equal him as a fly-chaser and swatter. But now that he has gone this is how they talk of him:

New York Sun: "Ping Bodie's desertion of the Yankees, which means that he will not be forgiven by Manager Huggins, is not generally regretted by New York fans. Bodie is one of the poorest outfielders in the major leagues. He is a fairly good hitter, but runs the bases like an army mule. When last season ended Huggins' made up his mind to shelve the erratic Mr. Pizzola. The Yankee's manager planned to either trade or release him, figuring that with Lewis in left and Ruth in centre the right field assignment could be handed to Vick, Fewster or Meusel."

Ruth Over Anxious.

During the first four games played by the Kankees and Brooklyns in Jacksonville, Babe Ruth went to the bat fourteen times and lined out three singles, a percentage of .214. He also received three bases on balls and was credited with a sacrifice. Ruth is plainly overanxious. He is trying to live up to his reputation as the King of Home Run Hitters. The Brooklyn pitchers have done their level best to keep him in subjection and the big fellow probably has grown both peevish and impatient.

Too much is expected of Ruth. The fans have been told that, as a result of his tremendous batting, the Yankees will capture the American League pennant. Ruth, therefore, has been made the highest factor in the success of the team. But the new Home Run King doubtless will have to face more careful pitching than last year. The enemy boxmen will try to fool him in every possible way. It will not be surprising if Ruth is "slow balled" all season, for that seems to be the only method worth trying.

Ruth, however, is a natural batsman. As soon as the responsibility placed on his shoulders decreases, he will come through. He may not equal his world's record of twenty-nine circuit clouts this year, but he'll trot around the bases on numerous occasions, and should earn his $20,000 salary.

Cobb Always Fit

Tyrus Raymond Cobb, Detroit's $20,000 star, did not report at the training camp at the appointed time. He sent word that he had to attend to other matters, and was in no hurry to begin practice. Cobb has been doing this old stunt for many years. He is the big card, and he knows that he can have his own way. Manager Jennings finds no fault with him, because that would be a waste of words. Cobb always is in condition when he first puts on his uniform, and then he plays the game for all he is worth.

RIVAL BASEBALL TEAMS FILE CLAIMS FOR ORME

OUTFIELDER, ONE OF BEST IN THE PROFESSION, NOW WITH FLINT

Flint, April 1— It looks as if the higher-ups in baseball will have to decide which of the two, Milwaukee or Brantford, owns Orme, characterized as one of the sweetest outfielders of the Michigan-Ontario ball league and with Tom Halligan's aggregation here last season.

The turth is that both Mr. Halligan and Mr. Pierce, the latter Halligan's manager, sold Orme about the same date. When "Hump" Pierce was leaving Flint one afternoon, Mr. Halligan told him if he could dispose of Orme satisfactorily to do so. Pierce followed the magnate's instructions. But Tom, too, heard from Brantford, telling Brantford to "speak up and not be afraid," and Brantford did, and so Orme was told by both owner and manager on the same date or as nearly as fractions will figure.

So far as local authorities on baseball matters can get to the problem it seems that according to baseball rules and regulations as set forth, any authorized agent of the owner may sell any specified player. If that is so, then Pierce had a perfect right to sell Orme to Milwaukee. Of course, Haligan had the right to sell him to Brantford—a man can usually sell that property which is his.

Tom Nelson and Knotty Lee and the whole of Brantford are tickled to death with their purchase of Orme for the 1920 season. They wanted Orme badly and they got him, at least they thought they had him! But have they?

Brantford Apparently First

Brantford meanwhile claims that they bought Orme from Tom Halligan direct on February 11, last, and that Milwaukee didn't deal with Pierce till March some time. Exact dates are not available here at the time of writing. Saginaw also wanted Orme badly, but they are seemingly out altogether.

It isn't true that McDaniels, that lovely Saginaw catcher of last season, will not come to Flint. He is coming all right, but just when Flint doesn't know. Mr. Halligan hopes for him soon—in fact, right off the bat. McDaniels is reputed as a real live man behind the bat and will mean an important addition to the local end of matters.

Mr. Halligan has a deal now pending with the St. Louis Cardinals for Lester Roach, a shortstop. If Roach shows class enough for the Flint line up of 1920, the local owner means to grab him. This shortstop was a whirlwind with the Alton group, semi-pros of St. Louis, last year. So good that the Cardinals wanted to see him in action in training camp this spring.

"Of course, don't forget, that Roach will have to go some to beat our shortstop of the present," said Mr. Halligan today. "Bippes is a good boy and has a future before him. Nobody need make a mistake about that," he added.

LOUIS YEOTES ENTERS HIS TEAM IN THE CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE

New Aggregation Will be Known as the "Thistles" and the League This Year Will Contain Five Clubs—Games Will be Played at Riverside Park.

There will be five teams playing in the City Baseball League this season. This decision was reached at a meeting of the City Baseball League held at the Empress Hotel last night, the fifth team being allowed so as to permit of the entry of Louis Yeotes' Thistles. The teams will be the De Laval, Canadian General Electric, Great War Veterans, Canadian Woollens and the Thistles.

In the absence of President Matthews, the chair was occupied by Vice-President Ruiter, and in the absence of Secretary Phelan, Mr. C. McLean acted as secretary for the meeting.

The committee appointed for the purpose reported that they had interviewed Dr. Wightman with reference to the use of the Riverdale Park again this year and that they had received a favorable answer. Dr. Wightman offered the [illegible] other half of the gate receipts [illegible] ten cents extra, which he would have for the main grand stand or else that the league should receive 60 per cent. of the total gate receipts and he should receive the rest. He was, however, opposed to the principle of allowing the players who were not actually playing, passes but would be willing to admit them when in uniform. His stand in this matter was taken because he believed that in the past passes had been abused and passed around. At the meeting last night however, the majority strongly favored allowing fifteen passes to each team for their players, and a motion to this effect was passed, but the precaution of having the player's signature on the back and different colors for each team will be taken to remove the chances of mix-ups. [illegible]

A considerable portion of the time was taken up with a discussion as to whether the City League should enter the intermediate series of the O.B.A.A. [illegible] Messrs. Ward Patterson and C. McLean strongly favored such a step, while the C.G.E. representatives were equally as strong in their contention that it would not be conducive to the best interests of baseball in the city. There seemed no prospect of reaching a settlement on the matter and Mr. LeBarr moved a resolution, which was carried, to the effect that all discussion on the question should be left over until the next meeting so as to give an opportunity to the managers of obtaining the views of the players of the proposition.

A suggestion was put forth that the exhibition grounds should be used this year, but this was not entertained in any quarters as it was felt that the crowd would not go down there and that in any case the grounds would be well occupied by the soccer and lacrosse enthusiasts.

After the C.G.E., Canadian Woollens and Thistles had been admitted to the league, making a total of five teams, entries for the league were closed on the motion of Mr. Worth, representing the Canadian Woollens. It was also decided that registration of officers of teams with the secretary of the league should be completed by Wednesday next, the date of the next meeting.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

HEAFIELD—PURSGLOVE.

On Wednesday last at 4 p.m. the marriage took place of Mr. F. M. Heafield and Miss Alice Pursglove.

The service was fully choral and largely attended.

The bride was met at the entrance by the choir, who sang "The Voice That Breathed Over Eden," as a processional. Both the bride and bridegroom have been choirsters at All Saints' for many years. The Rev. B. Grobb officiated. Mr. Geo. E. Chandler rendered "O Promise Me" in his usual good style during the signing of the register. Miss M. Flowers, the organist, most ably officiated at the organ.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alcock, 577 Bolivar street, the sister of the bride.

The presents were both numerous and costly and showed the esteem in which both were held.

Mr. and Mrs. Heafield will reside at Charlabond Apartments, Charlotte street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Brevfogle left today to spend Good Friday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Thompson and daughter are spending the Easter holidays with the Misses Thompson, Smith street.

DEALERS CAN'T UNDERSTAND

Why Price of Victory Bonds Was Lowered Then Raised

Local dealers in Victory Bonds do not attempt to explain the actions of the commission in first reducing the price of bonds and then a few days ago increasing it. It is quite beyond them, they state. However, the action of the commission has little effect on the scale of bonds locally as the people appear to realize that in Dominion of Canada Victory Bonds they have a first class security and something that is well worth holding. Practically the only transactions in bonds locally at the present time are in connection with real estate deals.

"THE CRUCIFIXION"

Will be Presented at All Saints' Church Tomorrow Night.

There will be two services on Good Friday at All Saints' Church—one at 11 a.m. with sermon by the rector and the evening, commencing at 8 o'clock. The choir will render Stainer's "Crucifixion," assisted by Mrs. P. Hooper, violinst, and Miss Hinchliffe, soprano, who will sing "Come Unto Me," from "The Messiah."

W.A. RICHARDSON HEADS LOCAL MANUFACTURERS

ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE ASSOCIATION AT ANNUAL MEETING LAST NIGHT

At the annual meeting of the Manufacturers' Association held in the Board of Trade Rooms last evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President— W. A. Richardson.
Vice-President— J. J. Turner
Secretary — James Hamilton

The chair was occupied by the retiring president Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, who, in a lengthy farewell address reviewed the work of the association during the past year showing that a most profitable and useful year had been spent by the organization. He painted the prospects for the future in a rosy light.

Kitchener Horticultural Society has in a campaign added between 400 and 600 new members, including many factory employes.

EASTER SERVICES AT TRINITY CHURCH

NEW MEMBERS WILL BE RECEIVED AND SPECIAL MUSIC RENDERED

The Easter services at Trinity Church will be of special interest. This year the pastor will receive in the morning the class of junior members that have been in the preparatory class during the winter. A communion service will follow the morning sermon, at which it is hoped that every member, both young and old, will be present. Special Easter anthems at this service.

At the evening service the choir, assisted by Mr. Foster, violinist, will give a grand service of Easter song. The sermons, both morning and evening, will deal with the Easter theme.

At 3 p.m. there will be an open session of the Sunday School, when a most delightful program will be presented. Miss Layton of the Y. W. C. A. will tell an Easter story. Mr. Otto Glidden, leader of the orchestra, will give a clarionette solo; two numbers will be given by the members of the Primary Department, a duett will be given by the Misses Wolstenholme, and a reading by Miss Helen Storey. The pastor will give a ten-minute Easter talk, illustrated by lantern slides. The offering will be for missions. All are invited to this open session. The young people who are being received into membership are requested to meet the pastor at 10.45 a.m. in the basement of the church.

The ladies who are contributing Easter lilies are requested to bring them to the church at 4 p.m. on Saturday. These will be sent afterwards to the sick.

Visitors and strangers in the city are cordially invited to these Easter services.

OBITUARY

JAMES S. McNEIL.

On Wednesday evening, March 24, 1920, there passed to his reward an old and respected citizen of Otonabee, in the person of the late Jas. S. McNeil. Deceased was born on the farm on which he died, seventy-one years ago. By a life of honesty and integrity, he enjoyed in a marked degree the respect and esteem of the entire community. He was always ready and willing to assist in any movement that made for the improvement of things, both spiritual and temporal. Deceased was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church.

Some two years ago he suffered a slight stroke, from the effects of which it was hoped he would recover, but all that loving care and the best medical skill could accomplish, he gradually grew weaker and quietly passed away to be forever with the Lord. The sad death of his eldest son five weks ago no doubt hastened the end.

Left behind to mourn his loss are his loving wife, three daughters and one son, besides an uncle, four sisters and one brother.

A large concourse of friends and relatives conveyed the remains to Keene Cemetery where they were laid reverently away, the Rev. Mr. McEachern officiating. To the family the sympathy of the community goes out in a marked degree.

THOMAS JOHNSON.

Thomas Johnson, a well-known resident of the county, died yesterday afternoon at his residence in Otonabee Township after a short illness with pneumonia.

Mr. Johnson was born in Otonabee 31 years ago and has lived in the township all his life. He was a prosperous and highly respected farmer of the district and a faithful parishioner of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church, Peterborough.

He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and two small children. There also survive, his father and mother and several brothers and sisters.

The funeral will take place from the family residence in Otonabee Township tomorrow at 12 noon to the Sacred Heart Church and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

GRETA ALICE CHAPIN.

The death took place at ten o'clock this morning at the residence of her mother, 88 Gladstone avenue, after an illness of seven weeks' duration, of Greta Alice Chapin, in her 18th year. Miss Chapin was born in Deloraine, Manitoba, where she resided all her life until the family moved to Peterborough ten months ago. She was a prominent member of the Methodist Sunday School in Manitoba and was also a member of St. James' Sunday School in this city.

She was employed in the office of Mrs. Fanning's laundry for some time prior to her illness and for two weeks immediately preceding her illness she was employed at the Western Clock Company. At both firms she was very well liked and highly respected.

There survive, her mother, 88 Gladstone avenue, city; two sisters, Mrs. C. W. Rollins, of Dinmore, Sask., and Mrs. Hans Hanson, of Lemmon South, Dakota, and three brothers, Gladstone and Roland, of Deloraine, Manitoba, and Thomas, at home. The funeral arrangements will be announced upon the arrival of the relatives from the West.

MANAGER ROSENTHAL HOST AT A BANQUET

ENTERTAINED EMPLOYES OF ALLEN THEATRE ON EVE OF HIS DEPARTURE

The employees of the Allen Theatre were last night given a banquet by the manager Mr. Morris Rosenthal as a token of his appreciation of their earnest efforts to help to make the house a success. Mr. Rosenthal is leaving today for Toronto and will in a week's time open a new Theatre for the Allen's at St. Catharines.

During the course of the supper he was presented with a travelling bag by the employees and he responded with a neat speech although his voice quavered as he tried to thank the employees for their kind wishes. He will be missed by his friends of whom he has made a host since residing in Peterborough, several of whom were at the supper.

It is interesting to note that Mr Rosenthal was one of the youngest managers in the theatre business having been a vaudeville producer and manager from the time he was eighteen. His record shows no failures which is in itself remarkable in a business beset with pitfalls of all sorts. The Review with his friends wish him God Speed and success in his new undertaking. Peterborough's loss will be St. Catharine's gain.

"ONE HUNDRED PIPERS AND A'"

Band of Bagpipe Players is Assured For This City

A very fruitful meeting of the Caledonia Club was held in their hall last night under the chairmanship of Mr. Ed. Hardy, president. Piper Lorne MacDonald reported that he had already enrolled eight pupils in his class with a view to the formation of a pipe band and a pipe band for the club seems now to be assured thanks to the untiring energy of Mr. MacDonald.

It was decided that the Caledonia Club should attend Knox Church in a body at some date in the near future to hear a lecture on John Knox the great Scottish reformer which is to be given by Rev. MacKenzie, pastor of the church.

Representatives of the Caledonia Football Club reported that great progress had been made with the organization of the team, and that a practice would be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 at the Exhibition Grounds. They reported that they have a very promising line up for the season.

FIREMEN TO RESIGN

Chicago, April 1.— Five hundred Chicago firemen voted unanimously to resign in a body on April 7, in protest against the $192 a year wage increase carried in the revised city budget passed by the city council.

JOHN L. THOMPSON DIES

Was One of Port Hope's Oldest Business Men.

Port Hope, April 1.—One of Port Hope's most prominent citizens and oldest business men, John L. Thompson, passed away after a lengthy illness. He started in the harness-making business here nearly fifty years ago, and some time later added a boot and shoe business, and was one of the town's most successful merchants. He always took a prominent part in town affairs, and served on several municipal boards. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge and Independent Order of Oddfellows, a Methodist, and a staunch Liberal. His wife and two sons, Bailey and Brodie, now partners in the boot and shoe business here, survive.

Douglas Thibedean, age 12, and an older boy named Pike, wards of the Children's Aid Society, Sarnia, have been missing since March 22.

CORNELIUS O'CONNOR.

Mr. O'Connor was born in Ireland, but had been a resident of Ennismore practically all his life and was a prominent man in community work and very well known.

His is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. James Morrisey, of Ennismore and several brothers and sisters. The funeral will take place from the family residence at Ennismore Cross on Saturday morning to St. Martin's Church and St. Martin's Cemetery, Ennismore.
